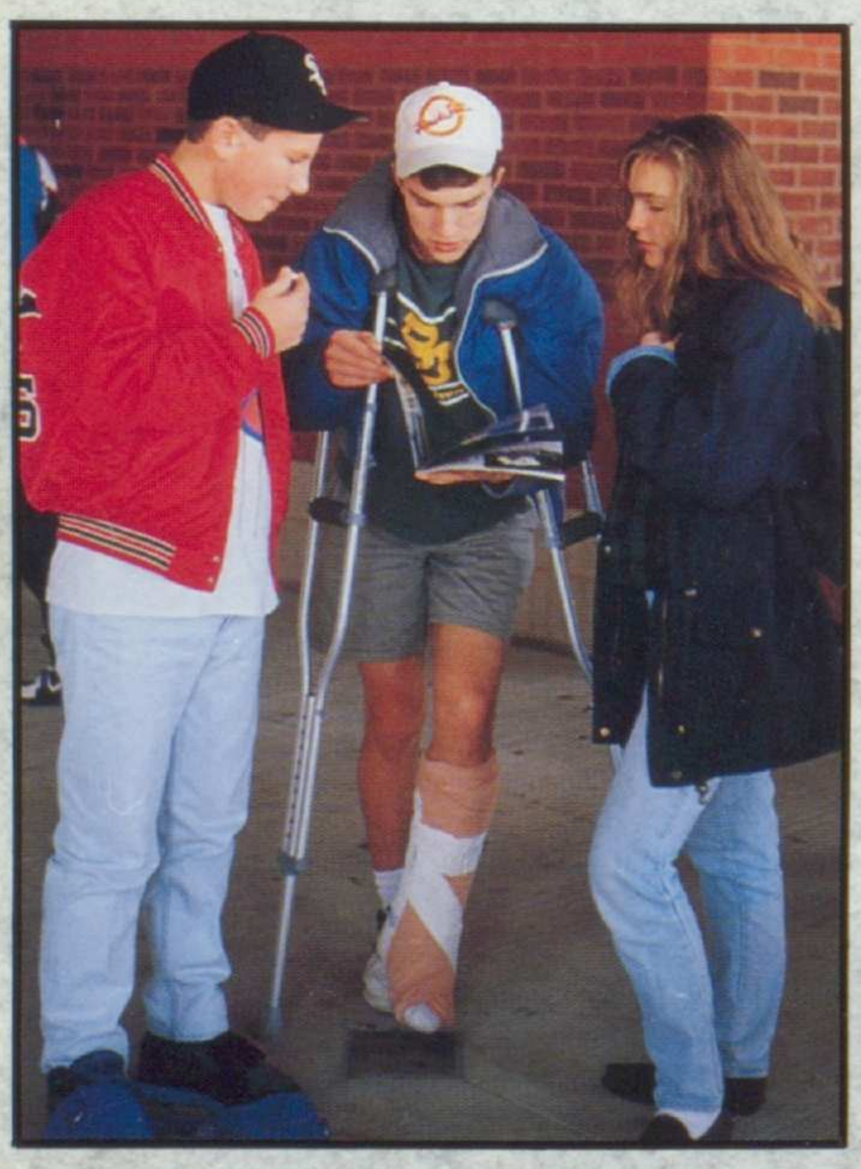
Seniors Darian Hunter and Danielle Frantz refuse to walk or ride the bus home. If they have to, even ride in the back of a truck will do.

Neither the dreadful fog nor a killer twinkie can keep Isti Islam from arriving for another thrilling day of school.



Freshmen Greg Gosman and Kate Adams keep occupied along with their unstable companion Benjie Mitchell as they wait for the bus after school.

Taking control of the after school traffic is our very own Buzz Wallen, directing Chris Ejzak and Brian Reichle out of the school parking lot.

WHAT A TRIP?

Arriving and departing is not always as simple as it looks

"I better be leaving soon. It's about 7:10. If I leave any later, I won't make it to school in time to go to my locker before classes. The morning traffic is ridiculous. I can't stand leaving twenty minutes before school begins when I live only five minutes away. Taking the shortcut through Worthington Green will be a good idea today since I'm running late... Finally, I'm almost to the railroad tracks. I hope there won't be a train this morning. All I have to do is park and make it to first period on time."

Not everyone drives to school, but most students share similar worries. Some may walk while others ride the bus or have their parents drop them off. Getting to school has its complications no matter how a student arrives. For most, the traffic produces difficulties while the railroad tracks cause additional back up. Students who don't have to worry about the railroad tracks have to wait for an opening to make a left turn into the school driveway. Anticipating the mess, the buses beat the traffic by dropping off students at 7:00 while walkers find shortcuts through neighborhood yards as they traipse to school. Obviously, there's not an easy way to reach school in the morning.

"Finally, it's 2:50. I'm ready to go home and relax. But first I have to beat the buses out of the parking lot, or I'll have to wait for each to crawl through the light and halt at the railroad track. I can't help wonder why parents stop their cars in the middle of the road and block the traffic flow to pick up their kids. Luckily, I beat the buses, and I'm on my way home, only to face the walkers who don't use the crosswalk and run out in front of my car.

Complications dealing with courses of study are not the only obstacle of school; just arriving and departing makes my life a hassle."

FREE TIME

Exploring interests helps students grow

High school students fill their free time with many things besides studying for a math test. The years in school allow students to explore their interests and discover what activities they enjoy doing. Some students condition for their favorite sport, some go out with friends, and others work during their free time. It is obvious that student interests vary because of the wide variety of activities they participate in.

For the last three years, Senior Nate Davis has invested his extra time rebuilding his '63 Mustang. Before school, Nate awakens early to deliver Columbus Dispatch newspapers to earn money for his car and for college. Jeff Hollenbach hasn't begun preparing for college yet. When he's not with his girlfriend, he spends time with friends at pool halls. Ed Benson also plays pool. He plays regularly at a place called 8 Ball. Ed's friend Jamie Davis loves fishing, listening to music, and dating. Natalie Davis prefers spending time with friends from her youth group. Brandon Gustafson also likes his youth group friends with whom he attends Christian concerts and basketball games.

Senior Nicole Revish explains her free-time activities: "I am a fragrance model for Ralph Lauren, Chloe, and Christian Dior. When I'm not working, I enjoy bowling, shopping, dancing, and going to the movies with friends." When they can find rides, underclassmen Jenny Souders, Jackie Piero, Jenifer Vinson, Ragon Brown, Heather Niess, and Electra Stillwagon also enjoy going to the movies and shopping.

Matt Rieser and Cory Kahoun prefer staying home and mastering Sega games and playing a short wave radio game known as Tune in Tokyo. When Mike Szabo is with his friends, they work out and hang out at a place called Croton. Darren Baldwin explains his after school activities by commenting on a movie he often watches. Laughing, he says, "Wierd Science—need I say more?"

School offers a variety of activities interesting to teens. Students of all grade levels take part in after school intramural sports. Also, school clubs and organizations are available to anyone who wants to get involved! Whatever the activity that the students participate in, it is important for their daily routine to consist of more than just their noses in books. High school is an important aspect of students' high school years, but for them to become well—rounded individuals, they must take time to nurture their interests and hobbies. After all, high school is not only a time for academic achievement but also a time for fun!!

PLANNING AHEAD

Planning early gives students a head start

Assisting her brother before the game, student athletic trainer Amy Palcic tapes Joe's arm.

Worthington schools have always provided activities and classes for its students to gain skills that they will be able to use for the rest of their lives. Student Mediation, DECA, Student Athletic training, and many other organizations help students prepare for the future. These groups allow teens to learn important skills while having a great time!

The Student Mediation program began in the fall of 1990-1991 school year before the split to the two high schools. Martin Luther King, Jr. Mediation Program from Cleveland, Ohio, trained and taught our students the definition of mediation: "A procedure in which disputing parties voluntarily come together to solve their problems. The conflicting parties are taken through a process by mediator facilitators that enables the parties to find their own solutions to their problems. This is a vital aspect of mediation because it encourages positive communications among youth, which is essential for adult development. The problems are solved jointly and nonviolently in a win-win situation with each side getting their needs met." All mediations are confidential.

The 20 mediators trained the first year facilitated 39 successful mediations, two of which were student versus teacher. Last year, with each school having its own program, mediators completed 60 mediations with four involving student/teacher. In the three years of the program, mediations have ranged from racial disputes to girlfriend/boyfriend conflicts. Mediations have also been successful between entire classrooms and a teacher.

High school mediators also train student mediators in grades K-12. Young kids who pass through the school system learn conflict management and communications skills.

Student Athletic training offers another option for students to learn a useful skill. After school students assist players in treating injuries they may have. This "sports medicine club" gives students an opportunity to get hands-on experience. Although interested teens do not have to enroll to be student trainers, the classes allow students to learn about nutrition, conditioning, exercise physiology, physical therapy, and physical related skills. Trainer Dyanne Lewis says, "Exposing students to all these different areas allows them to have a taste of each kind of training, and hopefully, gives them a feel for what they want to do as a future career." Paul Wojciechowski discovered he wants to become an orthopedic surgeon as a result of his participation in the after-school program. He says, "I've learned great skills to help me succeed in life as well as skills that I will be able to use for my career."

The curriculum offers opportunities during and after school for students to learn skills that will be useful to them forever. Students involved in these activities can step out from their peers for a head start in their lives.

DECISIONS, DECISIONS

Taking a stand on political viewpoints

"I don't regret it. Sacrificing class and sleeping time was worth it. I'll never forget the experience." These are student Adam Branson's thoughts on his involvement with the 1992 Election. Many students' participation in the election process helped them identify their party allegience and the basics of campaigning. Not only did students build awareness through school-related campaign functions, but many also spent their own time volunteering for various candidates.

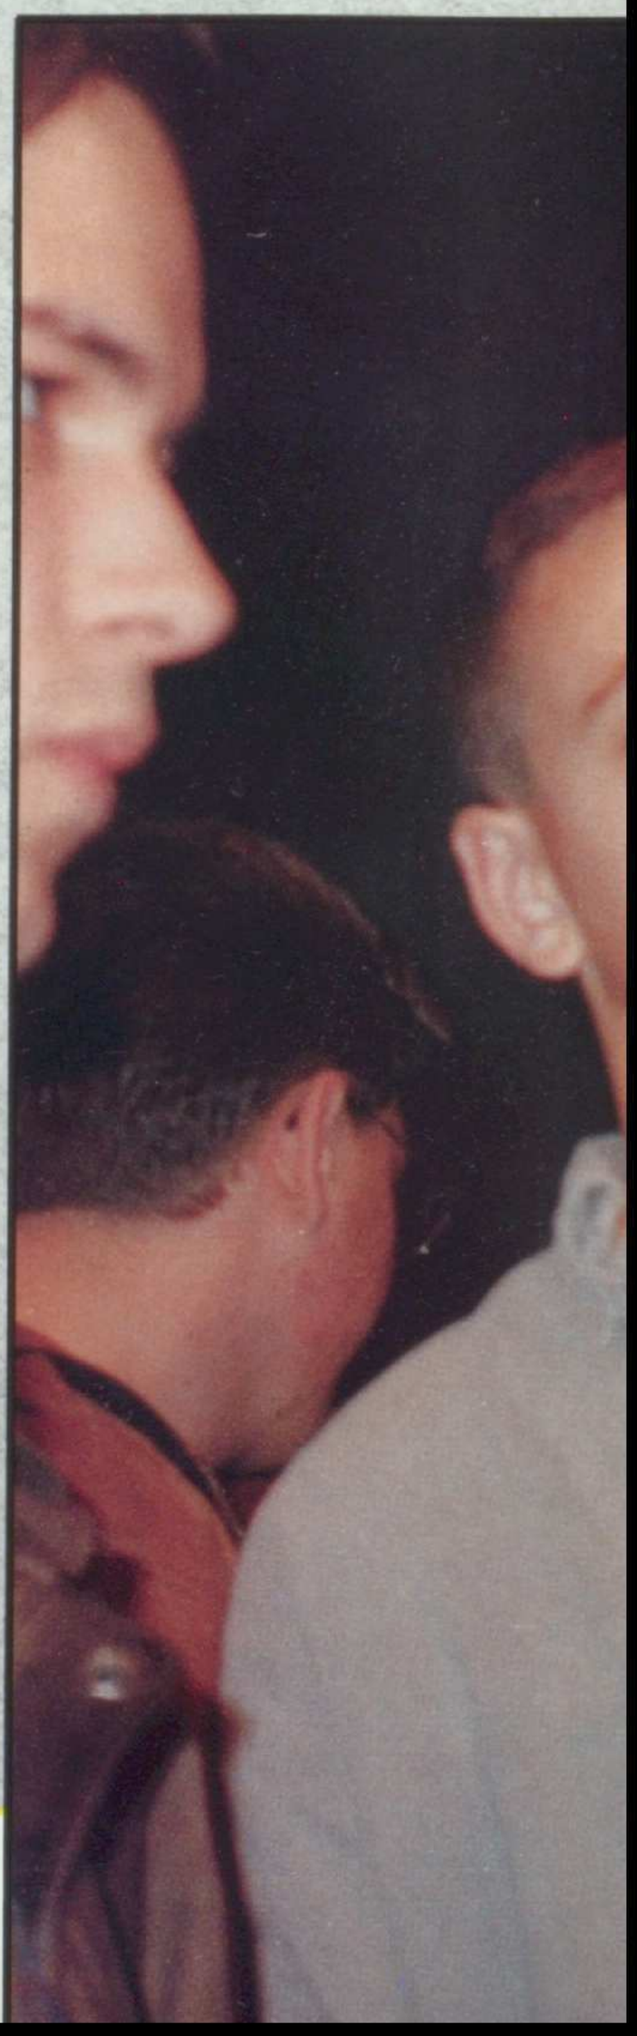
Many students became involved through government classes and the Political Club. Weekly articles due in government classes increased students' knowledge about the election. For extra credit students could volunteer their time and actually work "hands on" for political candidates. Answering phones, stuffing envelopes or looking up names of donaters in telephone books demanded their time. Not only did the Political Club help individuals become involved, but it promoted awareness for the whole student body. The organization hosted a debate of the candidates for the House of Represenatives, a mock senate, and a mock election.

Many students focused their time and interest during the election beyond an average citizen's involvement. The presidential debate in East Lancing, Michigan, included fifteen of our students. Several enjoyed the privilege of driving in presidential motorcades. "At first I did it [volunteered my time] for extra credit, but then I realized I had an addiction," commented Jeff Lagusch, a strong supporter of the Republican Party. Briana Miller, another senior, worked on the Clinton/Gore campaign by answering phones and distributing literature. She explained, "I am interested in the government, and I wanted some first hand experience." Adam Branson, probably our school's most active participant, earned the honor of Franklin County Co-Chair of the Young Republicans.

Many students participated in the election because they felt they had something to contribute to our country and its future. All involved gained a better understanding of our nation and what it stands for.

By Hollie Grimes

Walking over to the opinionated Mike Feeney during the debate among the House of Represenative candidates is the big, bad, senior Ian Brown to take control of the situation.

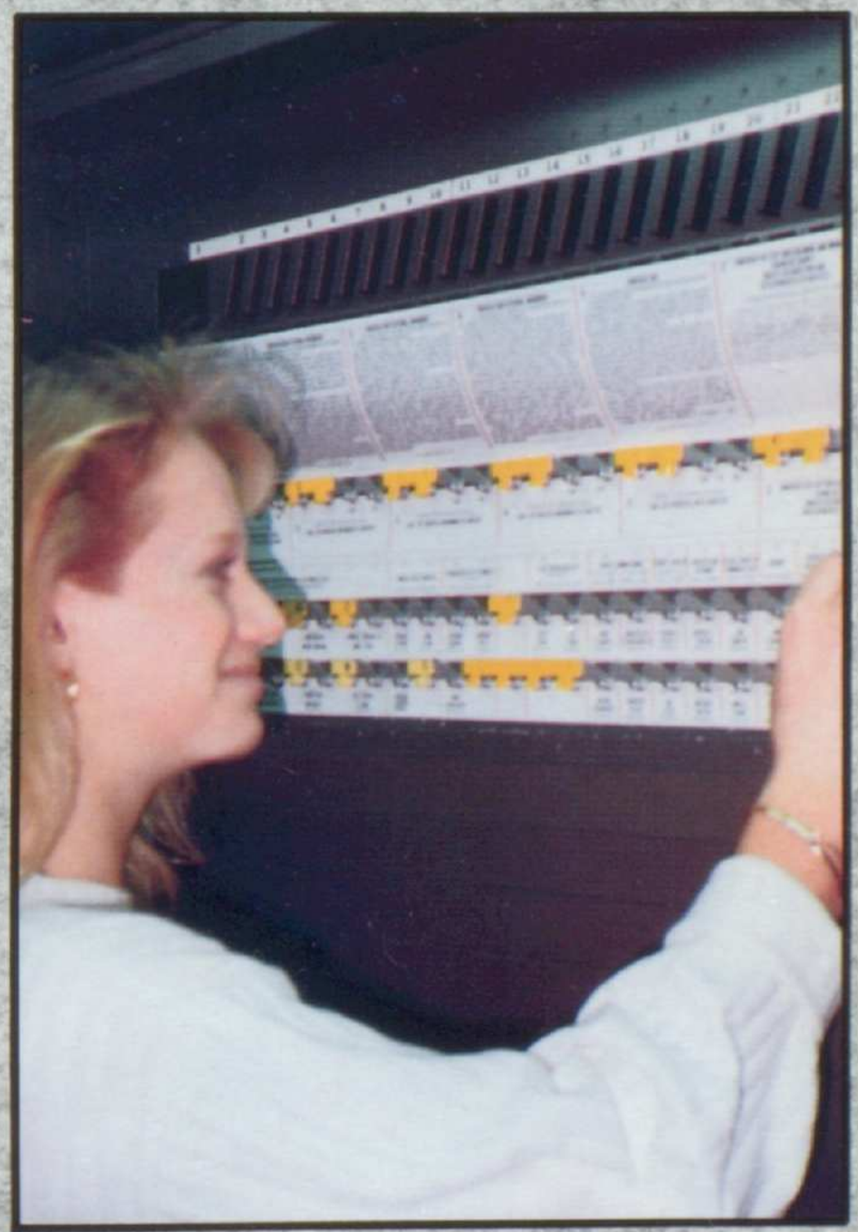


Interested in what the students have to say is Linda Reidelbach, an independent candidate for the House of Represenatives, along side enthused student Scott Holowicki.

Hidden behind the media personnel is Mike DeWine, Republican candidate for the Senator of Ohio. Adam Branson, a well-known young Republican, looks on intently for pointers on politics.

Are students Andi Hall, Hollie Grimes, Amy Geers, Lauren Jakubson, Ed Bensen, Kim Lowen and Kelley McClelland actually trying to present themselves in a serious pose for an election day candid?

Looking very professional is Derek Richardson who's waiting patiently to ride in the presidential motorcade following President Bush's speech.



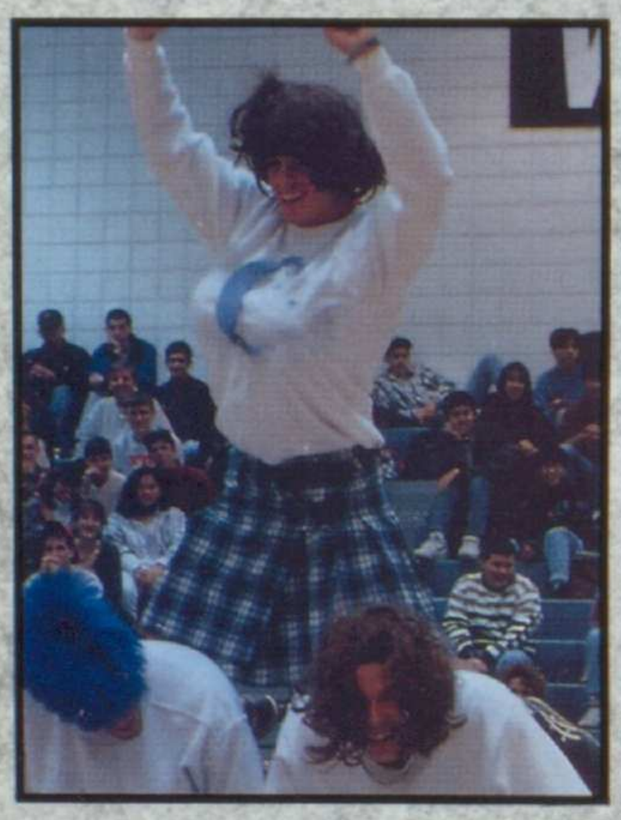
First time voter Kelley McClelland wants her vote to count as she figures out the complicated machine in front of her.

Running for the first time for the House of Represenatives is Richard Cordray who gained the attention of Matt Penrod after the debate held in our auditorium.

Piling together for a picture are Heather Hanna, Kim Lowen, Tammy Groves, Andrea Kotys, Amy Geers, Kelley McClelland, Andi Hall, Janine Hancock, Courtney Ziegler, Heather Carey, Hollie Grimes and Jenn Oatts before the Jingle Jam.

Jealous of the new fashion statement that Natalie Davis and Jamie Thomas make with their glasses are the other varsity cheerleaders, Mandy Dillar, Rebecca Hegenberger, Debbie Bowers and Czarina Lisboa.

Keeping the spirit alive is our very own mascot, Lobo.

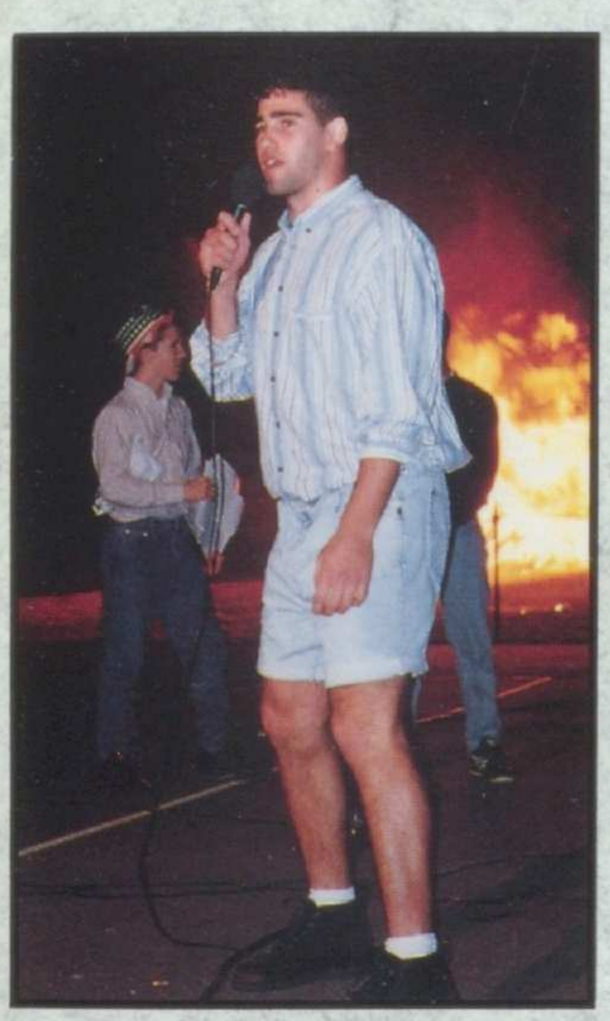


These sexy cheerleaders seem to have caught the crowd's attention. But wait a second. They aren't the cheerleaders! They are Joe Palcic, Jeff Todd and Jamie Tyack, entertaining the students at a pep assembly.

THE OLD, THE NEW

Traditions play a large role in uniting the students

You're a natural on the stage, Joe Palcic. No wonder agents came knocking on your door after your performance.



Establishing a new high school means beginning new traditions while continuing some of the old. Some of the traditions that we've held onto from the transition to two high schools include the infamous senior shirts, the painting of the rock, and the message sheets. Another tradition the students appreciate is the school dances. The popularity of the Homecoming and Sadie Hawkin's Valentine's dance has continued, but the students especially love the Christmas dance, previously named the Holly Hop, now called the Jingle Jam. This dance welcomes informally attired celebrants who express their holiday spirit in a non-alcoholic atmosphere.

Many new traditions have also come to be loved. Homecoming now signals competition between students and classes. These activities include dressing up for spirit week, decorating locker bays and painting commons windows. Another tradition Student Council has initiated is the sponsoring of needy Worthington families over the holiday season. Morning classes raised money to buy gifts for specific members of each family. Students say that sponsoring families is a nice change from simply collecting canned goods. Suzanne Provanzana, Service Committee Co-Chair who headed the project, explained, "A lot of schools sponsor can drives and Student Council decided to do something different. We wanted to make the holiday season a more special time for some Worthington families who could not afford presents."

Though Kilbourne is only in its second year of existence, we have begun to create and maintain traditions that will be passed down and enjoyed by students for years to come.

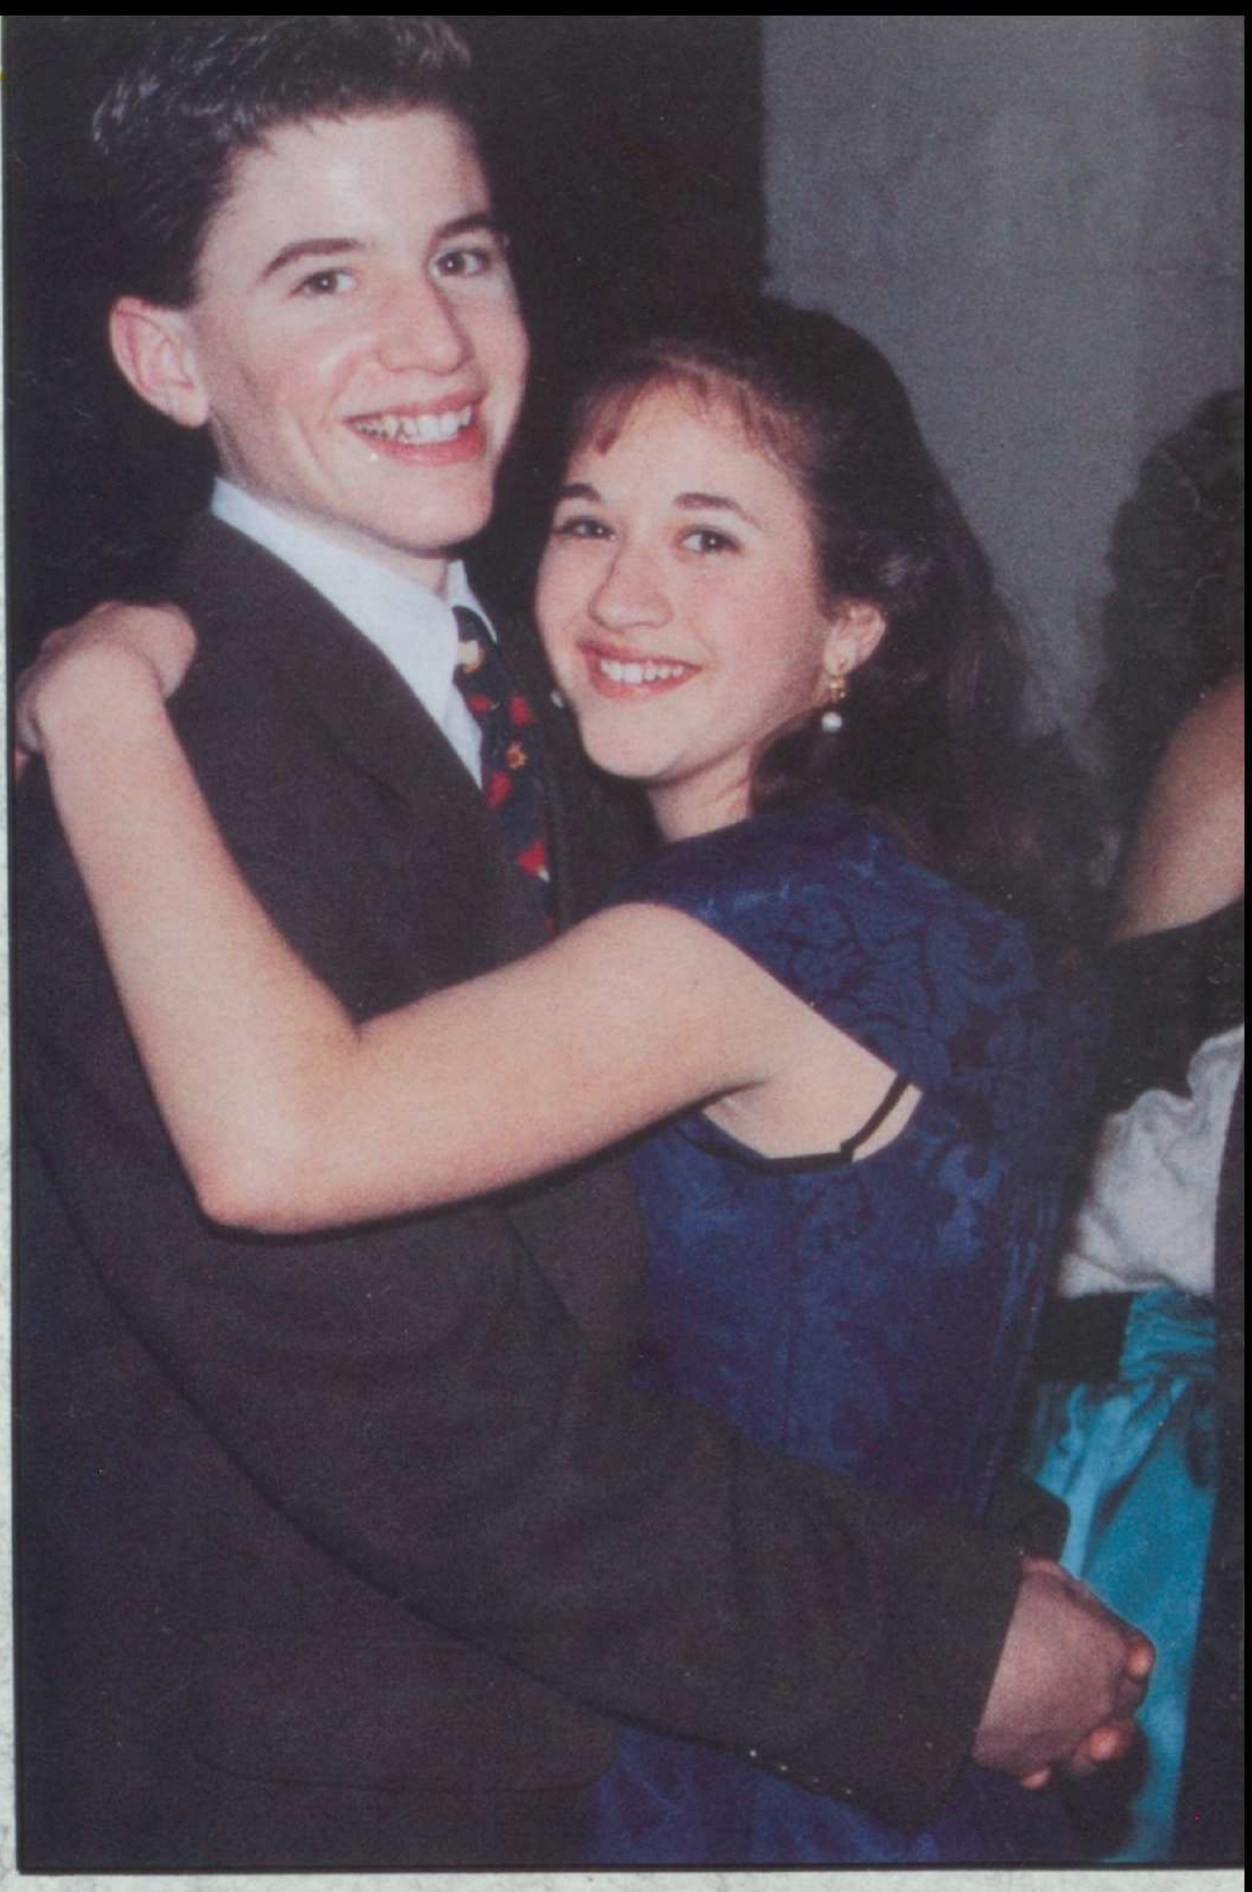
The rioting crowd of Geoff Geer, Derek Richardson, Thomas Worthington student Brian Crooks, graduate Michelle McKeever and Doug Ellis along with many other wild students cheer our football team onto victory.

The Valentine's dance is always the place for couples to become close. Pete Wilson and Brian Buchholtz cuddle with their dates, Alicia Kirk and Erin Daughtery.

The artistic abilities of Darren and Mark Baldwin, Michele Setzer, Amy Geers, Heather Stewart and Natalie Davis allowed the senior class to win the commons bay contest for the Homecoming week competitions.



S.A.D.D. and Student Council participated in a mock train accident. Kilbourne students, John Kirby, Jason Trott, Alan Beymer,Chris Frost, Brian Waltermire and Rebecca Klailee, were excused from class to view the gruesome scene.

Who did this? Who wrote on the school rock?

Spirit

Homecoming

Week long celebration proved to be fun and exciting.

Throughout the week of October 12-15, WKHS students, teachers and faculty displayed their school spirit. They began with the locker bay decorating and window painting competitions among classes. They participated in the daily themes of Dress Up Day on Monday, Hippie Day on Tuesday, Hat Day on Wednesday and Royal and Black Day on Thursday.

Wednesday also included the traditional Bonfire with contests including bobbing for apples, tug of war and pumpkin tossing between the classes. The staff competition of who could eat an apple quickest with their eyes closed was secretly switched to an onion eating contest. President Adam Branson presented the Homecoming Court nominees and then announced the Queen's Court.

On Thursday, a formal assembly honored the court, and Mr. Porta began a new tradition by announcing the year's Homecoming Queen, Michele Setzer. At the assembly the Seniors walked away with the spirit bone by taking first place in the locker bay competition, the window competition and the tug of war, thus reigning as the 1992 Spirit Week winner.

Freshman Jackie Piero stated, "Spirit Week was fun but everyone knows that the Seniors always win." Senior Julie Riddle disagreed, "We won fair and square because we went more with the theme and we put more effort into our work."

This week long celebration proved itself a fun and exciting way to bring the classes and school together as one.

Homecoming

Haunted

Decorations make Homecoming a night to remember.

With crisp, cool autumn weather in the air and Halloween just around the corner, "Haunted Homecoming" seemed an appropriate theme for this year's dance.

Flashing white lights, cobwebs, and orange and black balloons lined the staircase greeting students as they entered the commons area. White ghosts and enormous black spiders hung hauntingly over the dance floor, and the decorated windows in the commons added a nice touch to the festive decor. Hot 105 supplied the dance music for the evening and presented Queen Michele Setzer and her court onto the dance floor.

Students seemed to enjoy themselves. Senior Amy Hill said, "The music was a little twisted, but other than that it was a pretty good time!" "I had a really good time at the dance with my friends - everyone looked beautiful, " commented junior Sandy Holmberg.

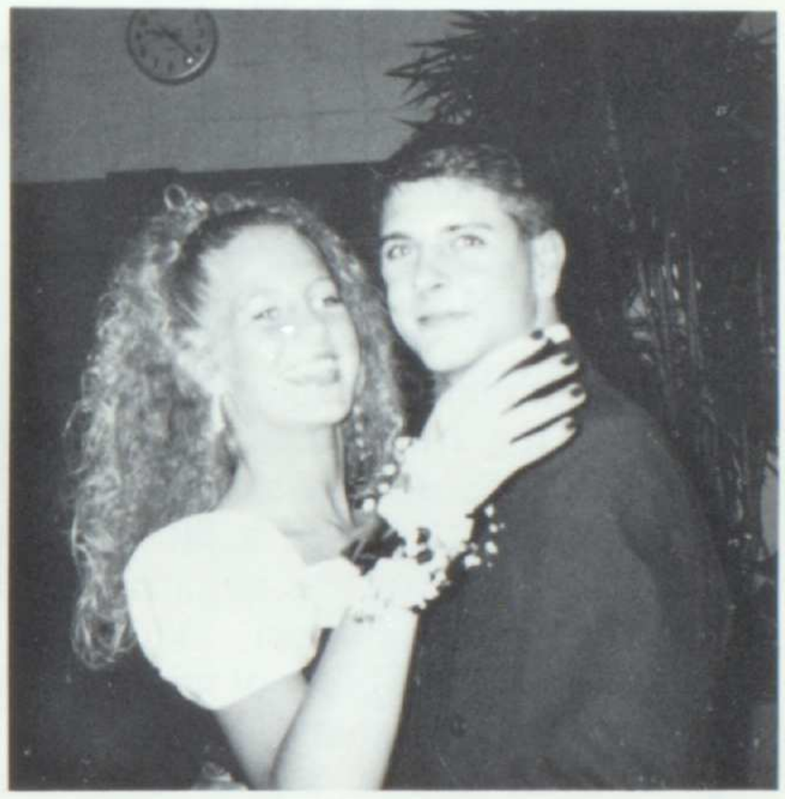
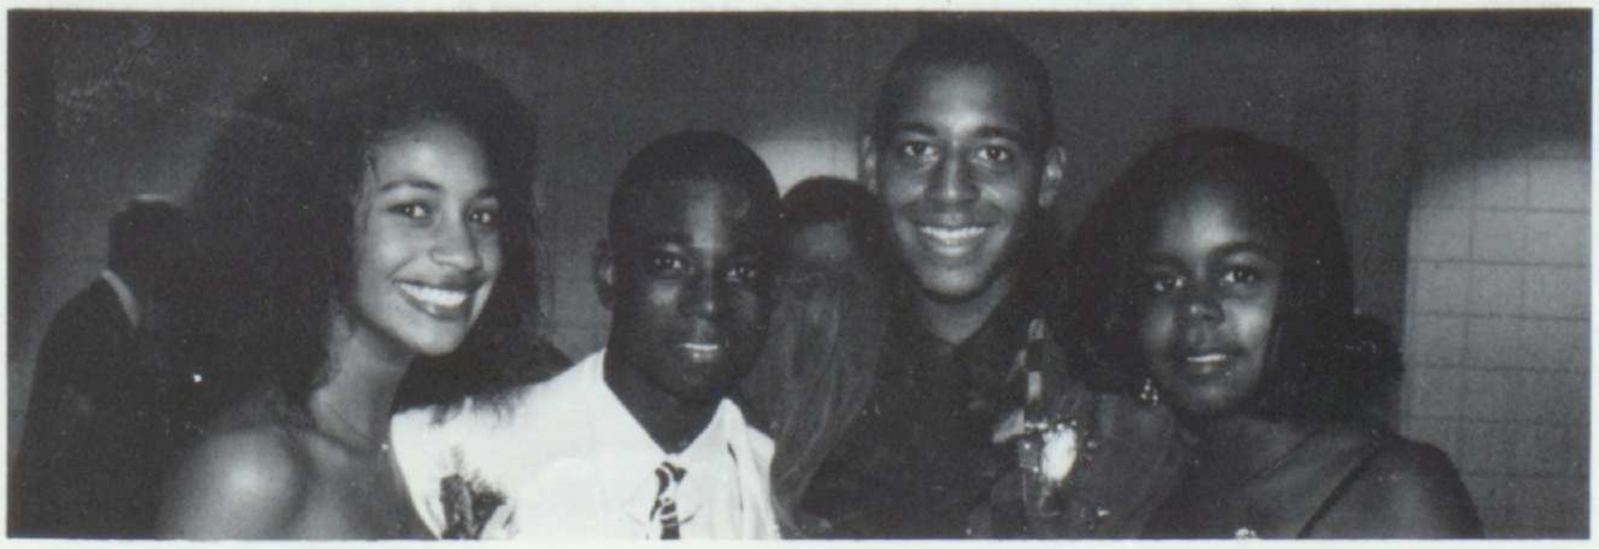
Is Chad Puckett's date for the evening Shannon Decker or Heather Noel? Lucky guy!

No other couple looks as perfect on Homecoming night as Danielle Frantz and Jason Smith.



Accused of being a terrible dancer, Tom Kotch will prove otherwise to Sarah Kirsh.



Enjoying each other's company, Sara Freund and Chris Ejzack dance the night away.

Taking a break from dancing to pose for the camera are JoAnne Poulton, Eric Lipscomb, Clifton Banks and Kelli Daneills.

Winter Dance

Jingle

The spirit of the holiday dance made it an enormous success.

With holiday spirit ringing through the halls, the Jingle Jam on December 12th was an enormous success. The annual dance was handled a bit differently this year because of the negative reputation it had earned in the past. Steps were taken to avoid the possibility of any alcohol or drug use by dance goers. Members of Student Council made signs, and the video production class produced and played a video over the dynacom in which they interviewed students about their feelings on their classmates arriving at the dance drunk. All this publicity really solved the problem.

Students arrived happy and alcohol free, not wearing the traditional formal attire of other dances, but instead long underwear, Christmas boxer shorts, and Santa Claus hats. Filled with holiday spirit and decked out with mistletoe, students spent the evening dancing, laughing, and kissing as many classmates as possible. This dance is always one of the highlights of the year.

Showing his new dance technique is senior Jamie Tyack.

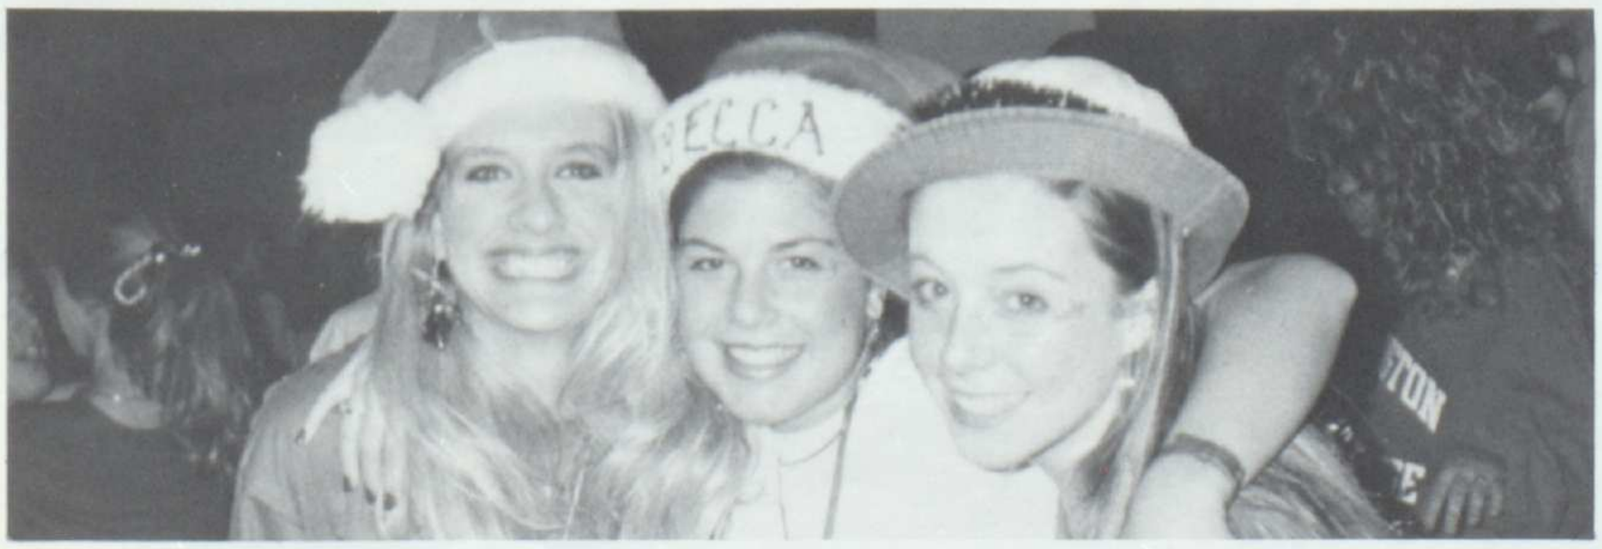
Full of holiday spirit are sophomores Courtney Hayworth and Kelly Harris.

Jam

With these innocent smiles, there's no question that Amy Bancroft, Lori Reed, and Julie Harmon will receive a visit from Santa Claus.

Seniors Stephanie Shaver and Katie Chitwood have a ball at their last Christmas dance.

Wishing everyone happy holidays are Rebecca Korb, Bethany Overstake, Lori Belford, Sara Freund, Amy Palcic, Mandy Diller, Korrine Miller, and Heather Andes.



Everyone has fun at the Jingle Jam. Kim Lyons and Joel Trimarche are no exceptions.

Arriving at the Jingle Jam are Santa's little elves, Heather Hanna, Rebecca Korb and Jessica McGurk.

"In the Still

Sadie Hawkins

Sophomores set high standards for upcoming classes.

Fun and excitement filled the commons on February 13, 1993, in a celebration of the annual Sadie Hawkin's dance. As tradition goes, the sophomore class sponsors this formal, facing its greatest responsibility of the year. Class President Amy Calhoon and Vice-President Katherine Joseph were in charge of all the arrangements necessary to make the dance a success. They created committees to take charge of specific areas such as music, decorations, photographs, tickets and publicity.

Boyz 2 Men inspired the dance's theme of "In the Still of the Night," and disc jockey RPM provided the music. Senior Jessica McGurk stated, "Although there weren't a lot of slow songs and the majority of songs were rap numbers, everyone looked like they had a great time - especially the seniors."

The decorations added the Valentine's spirit; hearts, white lights and a gazebo lined with red and white flowers transformed the commons to a spectacular atmostsphere of beauty and romance. Senior Jaime Davis claimed, "The decorations at this dance were the best I've ever seen at Worthington." Parker Photographs offered professional pictures to couples in a number of different packages. With all of the publicity the dance had a large student attendance. The sophomore class brought in a profit of $1,100 - the largest ever in Worthington's Sadie Hawkin's history. "I think it really went great. We had a bigger turnout and profit than we ever expected," reported Joseph.

By Shawn Tiller

With their ear to ear smiles, it's obvious junior Dirk Traimarche and freshman Mandy Dutcko are having a great time. Since the dance Kirk and Mandy have been dating each other exclusively, and Mandy has already accepted Dirk's invitation to Prom. Mandy expects that they will have an even more enjoyable time together at Prom.

Taking advantage of a slow song to get close, sophomore Ellie Ryan and junior Jason Ash take a moment for a picture but remain cheek to cheek.

of the Night"

Waiting for their ride to their first Valentine's dance, freshmen Peter Wilson, Alisha Kirk, Brian Buckles, Erin Darty, Mike Cipkala and Julie Ucker pose for their parents.

With his date freshman Mica Luedeke, sophomore Mike Lockwood doesn't seem too shy tonight.

Junior Jeremy Trimble forgot something, but his date sophomore Jennifer Cassidy doesn't seem to mind.

"Hold On

Junior-Senior Prom

Prom 1993 was a night that will never be forgotten.

"Hold On To The Night" was the theme for this year's Junior-Senior Prom. An ideal setting, the Buyers Holiday Chevrolet was transformed into a romantic atmosphere. An array of red and white balloons enveloped the entrance and the dance floor was a glitter of lights, extravagant decorations, and a massive clock. Performing an exciting selection of songs was Second Nature. "Everyone seemed to break loose and dance to the band," said junior Brandon Bird.

The tradition of Prom King and Queen was continued. Around 10:45 Mr. Porta crowned King Darren Baldwin and Queen Tracy Mackin.

Junior class officers, Debbie Bowers, Erin Figula, Holly Prunty and Nate Tansky, worked with advisors, Mrs. Vance and Mrs Sweet, to make prom a huge success. All those who attended received souvenir mugs, balloons and roses. "It was a night I will never forget and a wonderful way to end my senior year," said Michele Setzer.

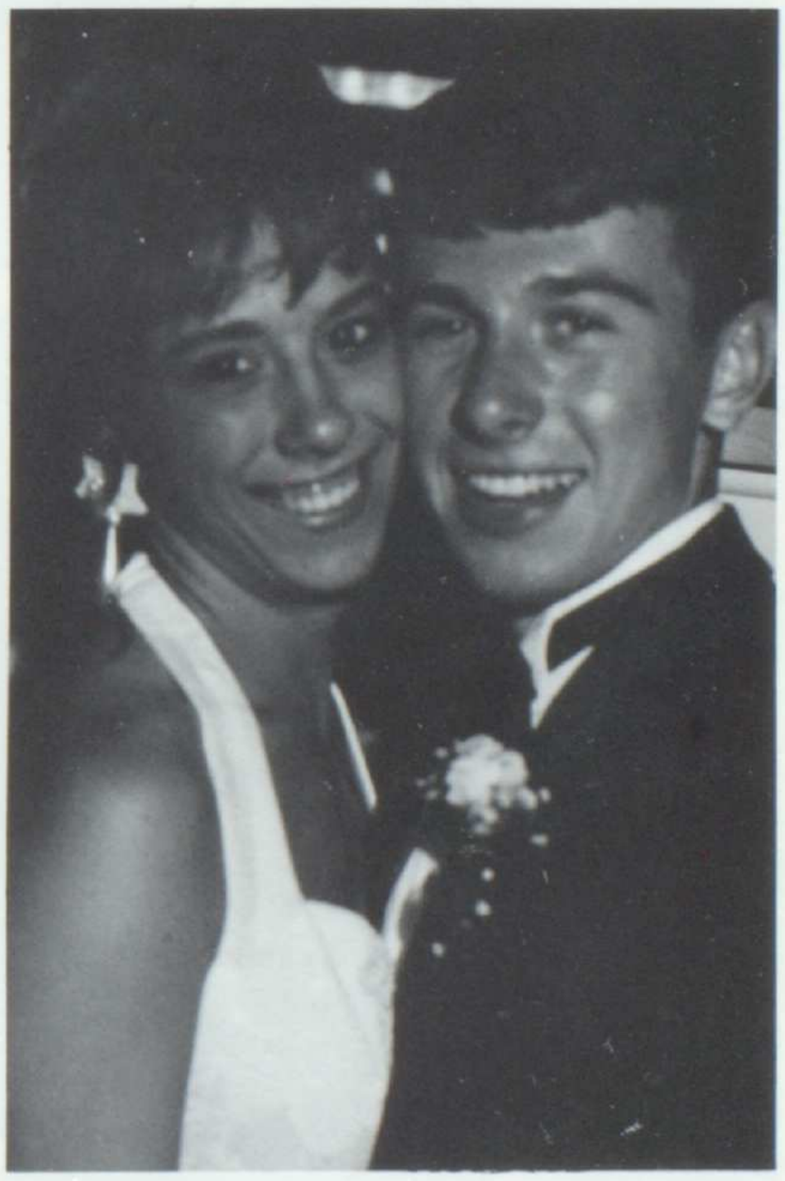
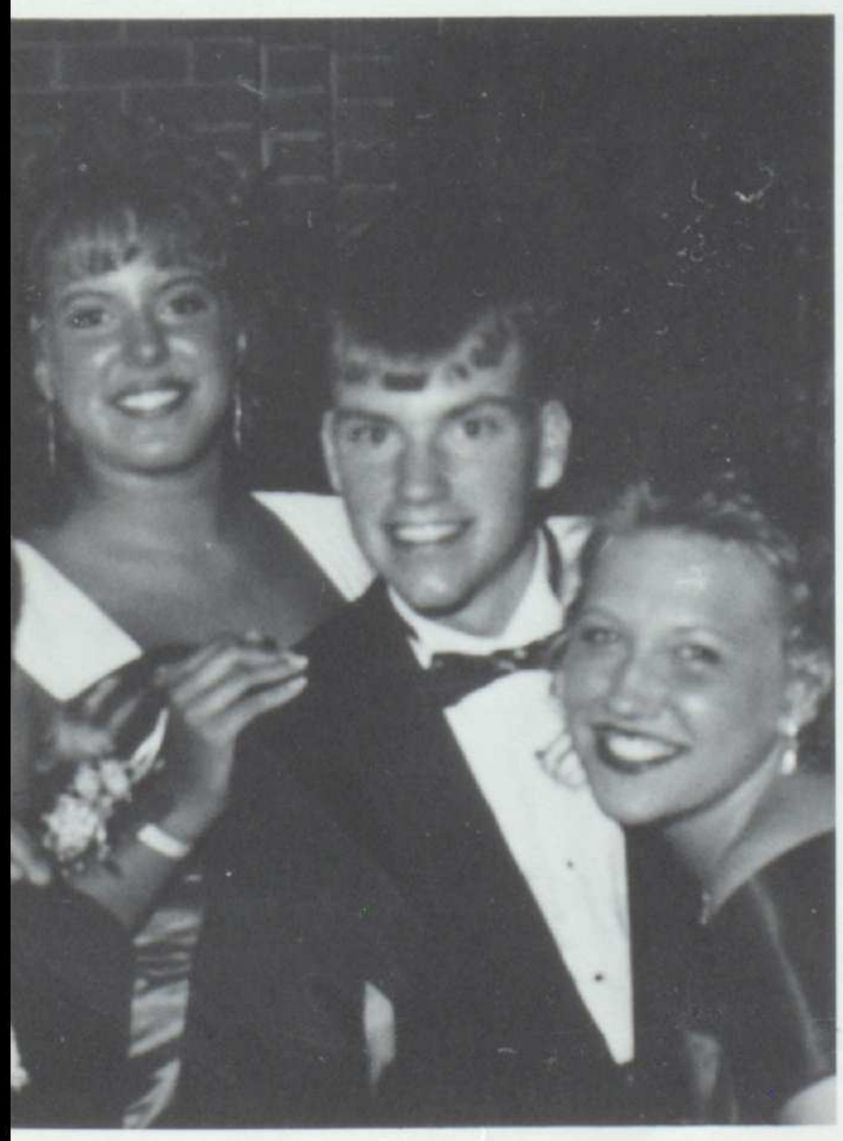
To The Night"

"Excuse me, this is my date, not yours! She's mine so go away!" demands senior Jeff Lewis.

This extremely excited group, Brandon Bird, Melissa Bell, Alan Beymer, Megan O'Riley, Kerrie Towler and Rob Mondillo, show how happy they are to be together.





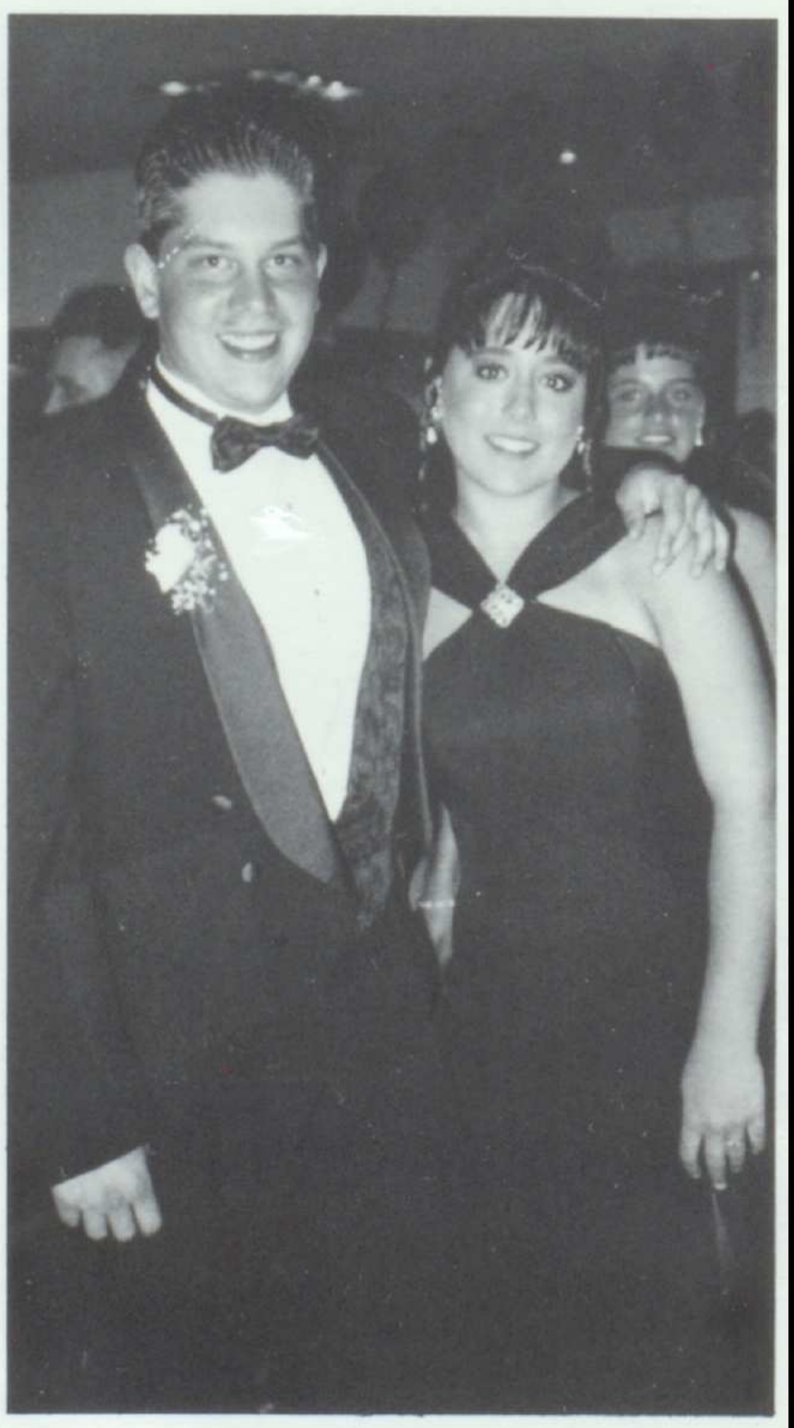
Loosen your grip, senior Emily May! You're scaring your date senior, Dale Ellis!

"Aren't we cute?" senior Joe Tran and junior Racquel Panaligan ask the cameraman.

"Isn't it wonderful to be here together!" exclaim juniors Kristen Bielek and Steve Morris.

Enjoying each other's company, junior Ben Hawsworth and sophomore Natalie Letner dance the night away.

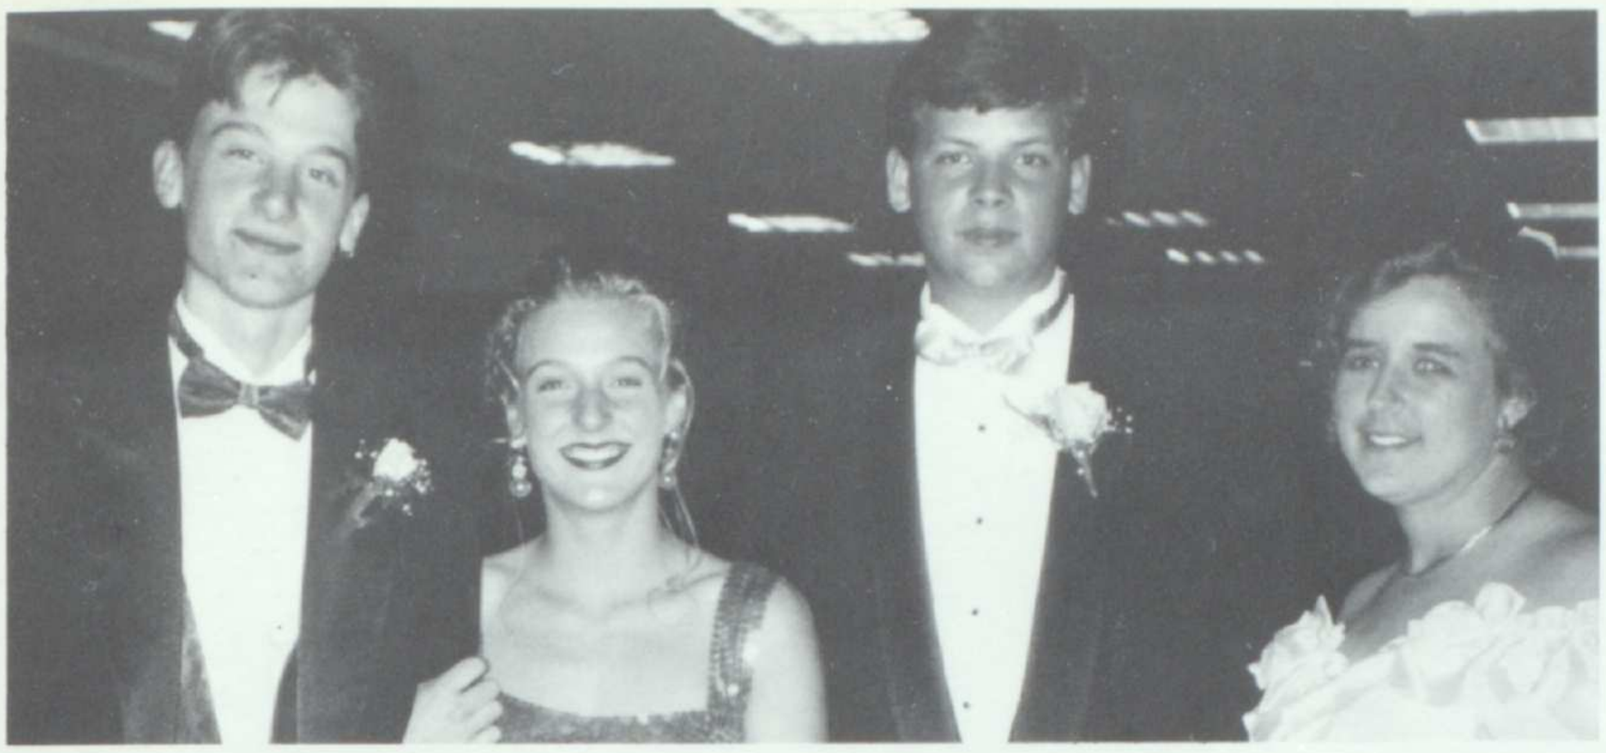
Smiling pretty for the camera is senior Shawn Tiller, but what is making her date make such a goofey face?



Keeping a grip on her date is senior Sara Provenzale, but why is senior Kim Lowen giving her date, junior John Ness, the shaft? Is it because of the fashion risk he is taking with his bowtie?

Determined to show all of their pearly whites are seniors Emilie Greenwald and Ian Brown.

Dressed to the T, senior Todd Cowie and sophomore Amanda Bishop head for the dance floor.



Ready for the fun and exciting night ahead of them, senior Anne Axelson takes senior Jeremy Kingham by the arm and senior Amy Carle takes her date by the hand.

Are these two really having a good time or is junior Jared Himes covering up his fear of junior Cara Sieberth's death grip?

Showing off their Prom smiles are Thomas Worthington graduate Troy Miller and senior Hollie Grimes.

After their wonderful dinner at Christopher's, seniors Eric Valine and Suzanne Piero enjoy their last prom.

Celebration of Excellence

Leaning over to receive his medal from Mrs. Snouffer is Dale Ellis.

Walking tall and proud after being recognized as seniors who participated in extra-curricular activities during their high school years are Kari Searles and Courtney Sawyer.

Hard working student Shawn Binder receives his award from Mr. Bates.

Class Valedictorians Smita Sahai, Christine Neumann, Christine Lee, Sarah Kirsch, Archna Goel, and Ranjana Chauhan wait patiently for the senior class to receive their awards at the Celebration of Excellence assembly.

"Forever

Graduation

"The strength of the wolf is in the pack."

The night of June 8 was a hot, muggy one in the WKHS gymnasium. Promptly at 7:30 P.M. the processional of graduates began. The traditional ceremony opened with the symphonic choir performing the Alma Mater. The 1993 class president, Michele Setzer, offered the class welcome which included an especially appropriate saying: "The strength of the wolf is in the pack." Next, Dr. Damon Asbury offered a few short remarks about the future and its impact on the class of 1993.

Karin Boerger, Adam Branson, Debbie Burdette, Indraneel Chakraborti, Ranjana Chauhan, G.J. Gettman, Archna Goel, Sarah Kirsch, Christine Lee, Christine Neumann, Divyesh Patel, Smita Sahai, Dan Sarko, and Mike Szabo presented an entertaining skit, a parody of the functions of the school and differences in attitudes and appearances between freshmen and seniors.

After making some congratulatory remarks, Mr. Porta presented the class of 1993 to board member Mrs. Mc Naughten, who accepted it. The best part of the graduation ceremony followed with the awarding of diplomas. After the presentation of the last diploma the graduates switched their tassels, and screams of joy rang out. The recessional followed as friends and family members watched the graduates walk to the open doors of their future.

"See, it even has my name on it. Do you believe me now?" graduate Michelle Krumm asks her favorite teacher, Mr. Griffin.

Gathering together before graduation are AP students Dan Zink, David Bow, Jerry Mueller, Andy Freuchtnicht, Tucker Peterson, Dan Sarko, Anne Axelson, Nisha Sharma, Jennifer Klein and Wendy Chamberlain.

Friends"

Talking her way past the school rule of a hall pass, Sarah Kirsch plays the role of the typical senior at WKHS.

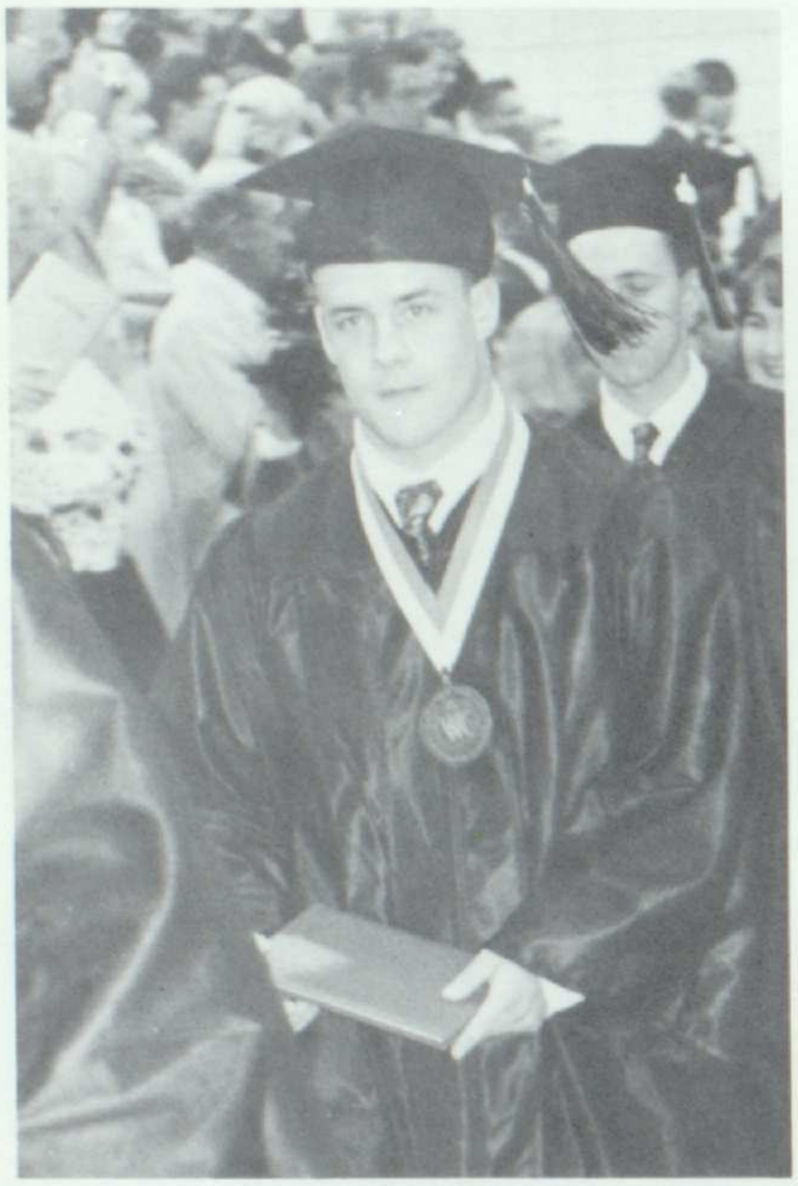
With diploma in hand, Aanon Frivold takes his first steps towards the rest of his life.

Feeling proud about all her accomplishments, Erin Kane graciously accepts her diploma from Ms. Chapman.

Enjoying the biggest moment of their high school career are Charlene Harris and Janine Hancock.

Remembering humorous events that occurred freshman and senior years are valedictorians Adam Branson, G.J. Gettman, Archna Goel, Mike Szabo, Christine Neumann, Dan Sarko and Ranjana Chauhan.

Mike Schmitz keeps his cool as he follows out the recession.



After the reception, Mr. Shafer congratulates seniors Kiera West and Janelle Jenkins.

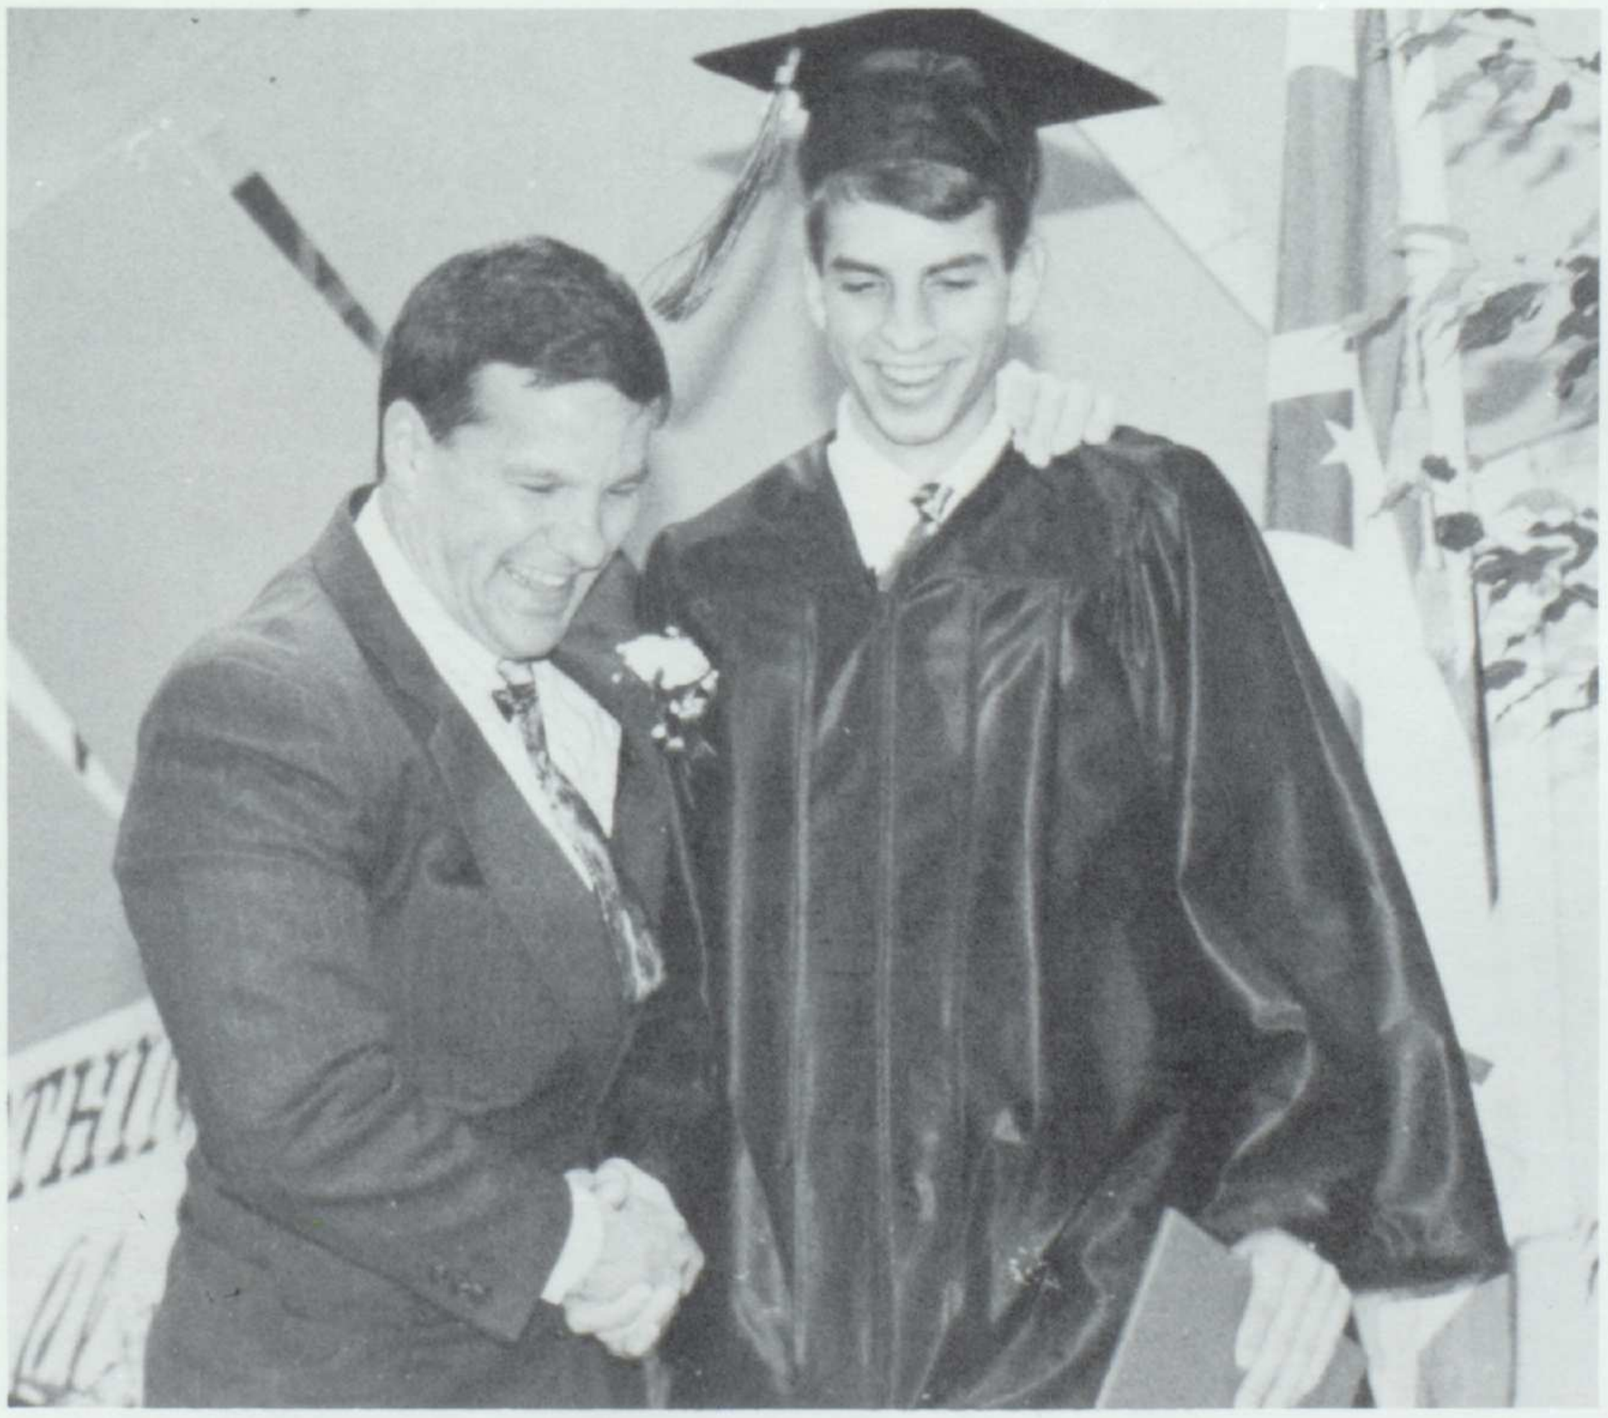
As Jeff Wilcox appears cool, calm and collected, Tim Walker looks worried as he looks ahead to what lies in his future.

In perfect harmony, Karla Henley sings the Class of 1993 's theme song, Forever Friends.

Waiting patiently for the big moment to occur are Ray Grieselhuber, Joel Hobart, Satoru Ikejiri, Scott Jacks and Brian Johnson.

While Ian Dettloff looks forward to his bright future, Courtney Sawyer smiles simply thinking about hers.

Preparing to make their grand entrance are Heather Carey, Shelly Fritz, Balinda Emrich, Nate Davis, John Kirby, and Otis Dreher.



Do you think Ted Girves and Mr. Stroll are a little excited that his graduation day has finally come?

Grateful to receive her diploma in America, Maiko Yoneyama thanks Mrs. Kincaid.

American Women

Educating us about women who have contributed to America.

Hoping to educate high school students and all those who watched, J.G. Barefield wrote the play, American Women!, a factual presentation of the history of famous women who helped make the United States what it is today. Represented in separate sequences, the characters of Susan B. Anthony, Bridget Bishop, Margret Fuller, Dame Knight, Penelope Penwick, Molly Pitcher, Dolly Madison, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Sojourner Truth presented a creative overview of their contributions to the United States. Performed in MezzaTheater, a technique of presenting dramatic material without lighting, scenery, props and costumes, American Women! opened this year's theater season.

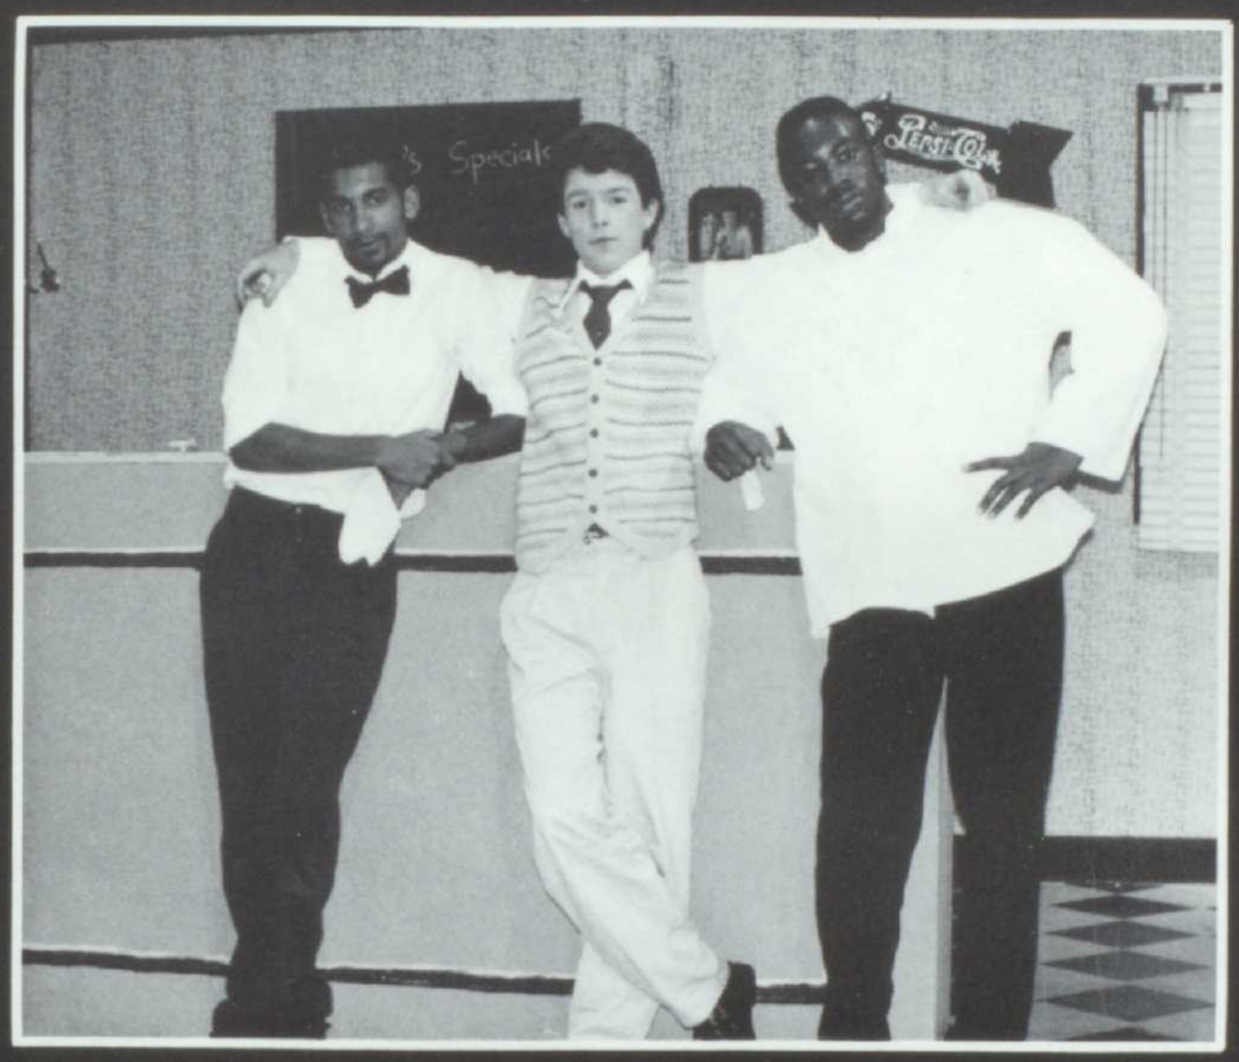
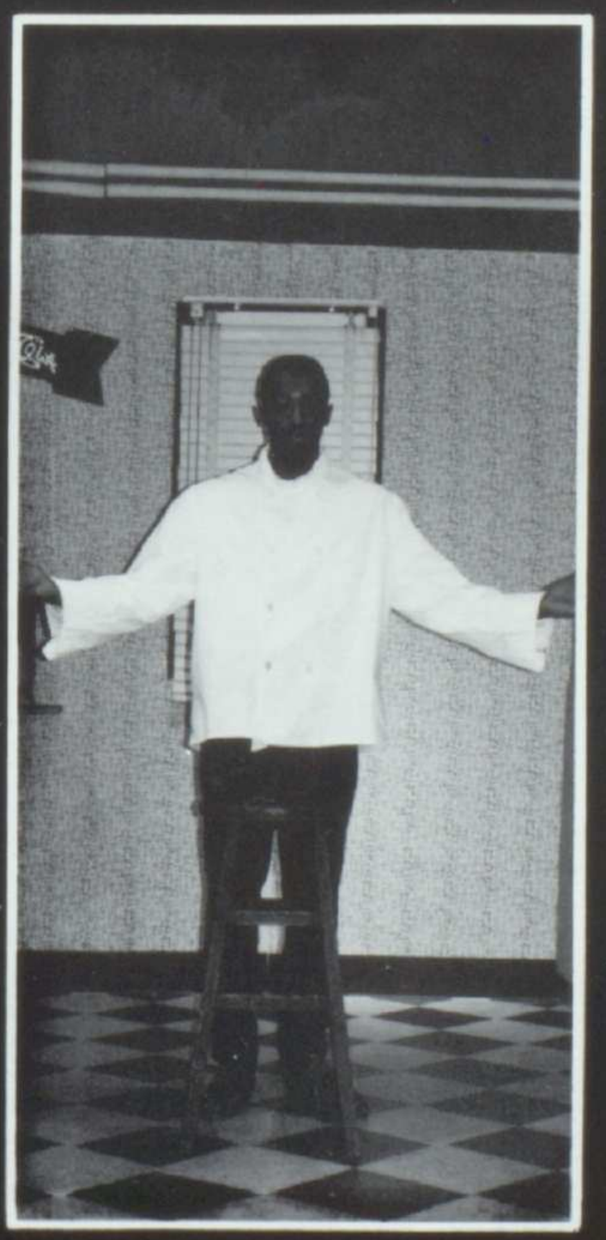
Master Harold & the Boys

Drama

After another outstanding performance the three stars Brandon Beyor, Chris Dick and Ali Shakoor, take a moment to pose for a picture.





Pondering the idea of the equality of blacks and whites is Chris Dick.

"Raise your hands if you're sure!" suggests Ali Shakoor.

A strong play urging the equality of blacks and whites.

In late October the Theater Repertory presented the production of "Master Harold...and the Boys." Set in 1950, the play centers around a young boy named Hally and the painful memories of his South African childhood that shape his conscience forever.

The human story in "Master Harold...and the Boys" is strong. Hally the main character has been raised to treat blacks decently, but his racists environment also encourages him to consider them inferior Throughout the play Hally's loyalties become torn between two black men, Sam and Willie, his childhood companions, and the dominant white society represented by his father.

Having lived the same experiences as his character Hally, Athol Fugard, decided to use the theater to raise others political awareness His plays, such as The Blood Knot, Boesman and Lena, A Lesson from Aloes and Master Harold...and the Boys, have been performed in South Africa, the United States and England. Audiences abroad respond to his plays because they are not diatribes on South Africa's problems, but investigations into how people react to injustice and suffering.

Oklahoma

Musical

Lasting standing ovations given to both performances.

On November 20th and 21st, the performance of the musical Oklahoma brought the audience to its feet. Despite the nervousness before each performance, the cast was honored with a standing ovation both nights. To help ease their worries, all of the actors and actresses received flowers from friends and family before opening night.

Despite their pre-performance jitters, the cast members had an enjoyable time staging the musical. "It was a lot of fun to work on. I was pleased with our performances. We worked hard and it showed," reported Natalie Davis.

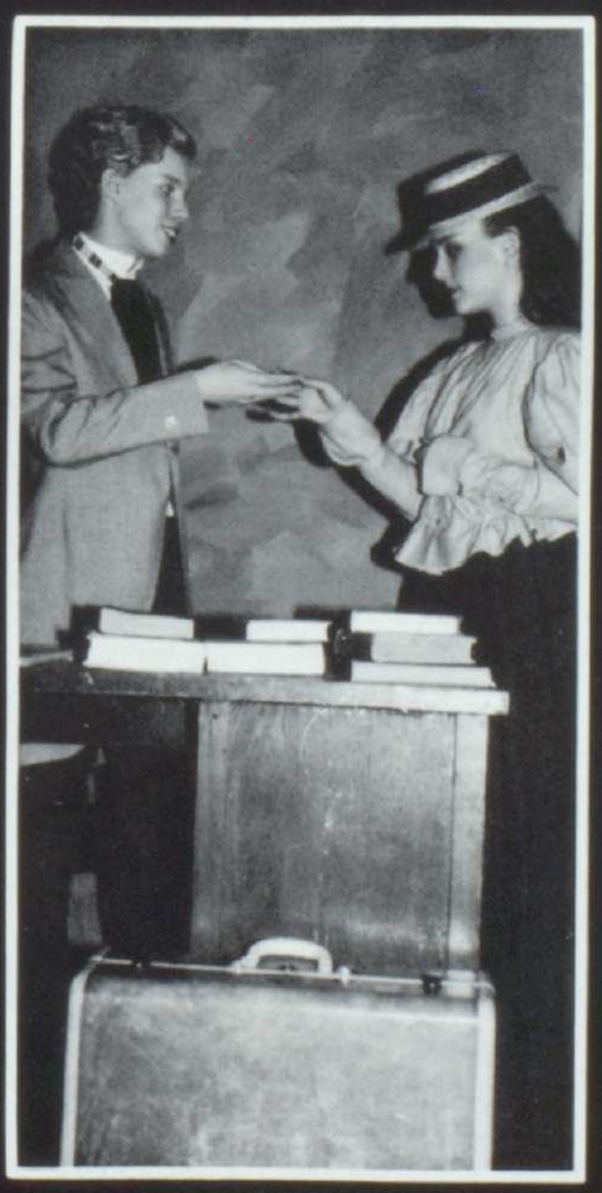
Hoping to con Jud into committing suicide, Curly tells him of the girls who will be crying over him at his funeral.

Miracle Worker

Drama

Preparing to leave the blind girls at the Perkins Institute, Annie Sullivan says goodbye.



Consoling Helen during a traumatic experience are teacher Annie Sullivan and mother Kate Keller.

Thanking Anagnos, Annie Sullivan leaves for her new job at the Keller's.

Miracle Worker displayed some of the best acting of the year.

The Miracle Worker is a sobering play about the life of Helen Keller who lost her sight and hearing before she was two. For almost five years she grew up unruly. Eventually, Annie Sullivan a teacher from Boston was able to make contact with the girl's mind through the sense of touch. Gradually, Helen learned the alphabet which helped her read and write in Braille.

This play had some of the most extraordinary acting of the year. Cornelia Tutshka who portrayed Helen stayed in character throughout the entire play. This was a tremendous accomplishment since the character demanded that Cornelia display extremes of emotion while appearing blind. Sasha Cesare as Annie gave an equally good performance as she demonstrated her character's lack of self assurance because of her own problems. The audience began to feel her frustrations as she tried to connect with Helen.

Together all the actors helped produce an outstanding play, one which both young and old could enjoy and will remember.

Children's Play

Magic Theatre

"It was obvious the children liked the performance."

Once a year the threatre repretory class performs a children's play for those elementary school students who will attend high school at Worthington Kilbourne. This year's play, Magic Theatre, made up of several different sketches, focused on the fears and the obstacles facing most young children - monsters, darkness, dreams, anger and cooperation.

Throughout the performance, the cast brought the crowd into the show by bringing members of the audience on stage during the skits. Cast member Sheri Schneider said, "It was obvious the children liked the performance. It gave me a great feeling to know that I was able to make so many kids laugh and smile." The children responded with their full attention and great enthusiasm. Jon Yount claimed, "I would love to be a part of next year's children's play, but I think others should have the opportunity to participate in this special performance."

Rumors

Comedy

Matt Leachman fights to hold back Michael Gilbert as he desperately grabs for the food that Natalie Davis tempts him with.

Ryan Yount cautiously helps Natalie Davis into her chair as Adelle Reardon, Michael Gilbert, and Nicole Revish stand back.

After an outstanding performance the cast of Rumors, Brandon Beyor, Nicole Revish, Sasha Cesare, Matt Leachman, Ryan Yount, Natlie Davis, Adelle Reardon, pause for a quick picture.

The combination of the script and cast were excellent.

"It had a wonderful cast and a fun script - all the qualities needed to make a memorable play, "explains Natlie Davis who played Cookie Cusack in theater repertory's first adult comedic production, Rumors. This mystery comedy by playwright Neil Simon, is a story about a character named Charley who is shot in the ear. Four couples arrive at Charley and Myra's home at different times, each of them trying to figure out what really occured.

"This was an amusing tale that had the audience falling off their seats with laughter,"stated Mike Gilbert. "What really happened?" was in everyone's mind throughout this imaginative play. The actors carried this play to all extremes, leaving the audience amused with its ending full of suspense.

Drama

A strong finale to the second great theater season.

The Theatre Repertory ended the year with a drama, The Rainmaker. Although the performances were held May 13, 14, 21 and 22, the cast received their scripts in January and began after-school rehearsals in April. With many of the actors and actresses taking part in other school activities, it was rare to have perfect attendance at these sessions. Most of their practice came from the teasers held during school hours for the students and staff. Despite the hectic times, the play was a success. All of the cast members enjoyed working on their portrayals and were applauded for their hard work by friends and family at each night's performance. Student Director Emily Greenwald remarked, "It was a nice wrap up to a successful theatrical season."

Reviewing a layout is editor-in-chief Heather Stewart and adviser Mrs. Snyder.

THE RAVINE

Writing beyond class requiremens at WKHS, students take time to compose various genres as a forum for student expression and entertainment. The literary publications include the literary magazine, Prospice; the newspaper, The Ravine; and the yearbook, The Sentinel. Although teachers supervise these productions, students organize, write and publish the final products.

Prospice features short stories, essays, artwork and poems. Any student may submit writings, and the editors who work during after school hours select the best for publications.

Staff members for the newspaper and yearbook spend both class time and after school hours working on their products. The Ravine, published every month, includes features stories, news stories, school and community information and student opinions through editorials and letters to the editor. The Sentinel also requires time and dedication through out the year. Members of this staff sell advertisements and design the yearbook to reflect the history of the entire year for the student body.

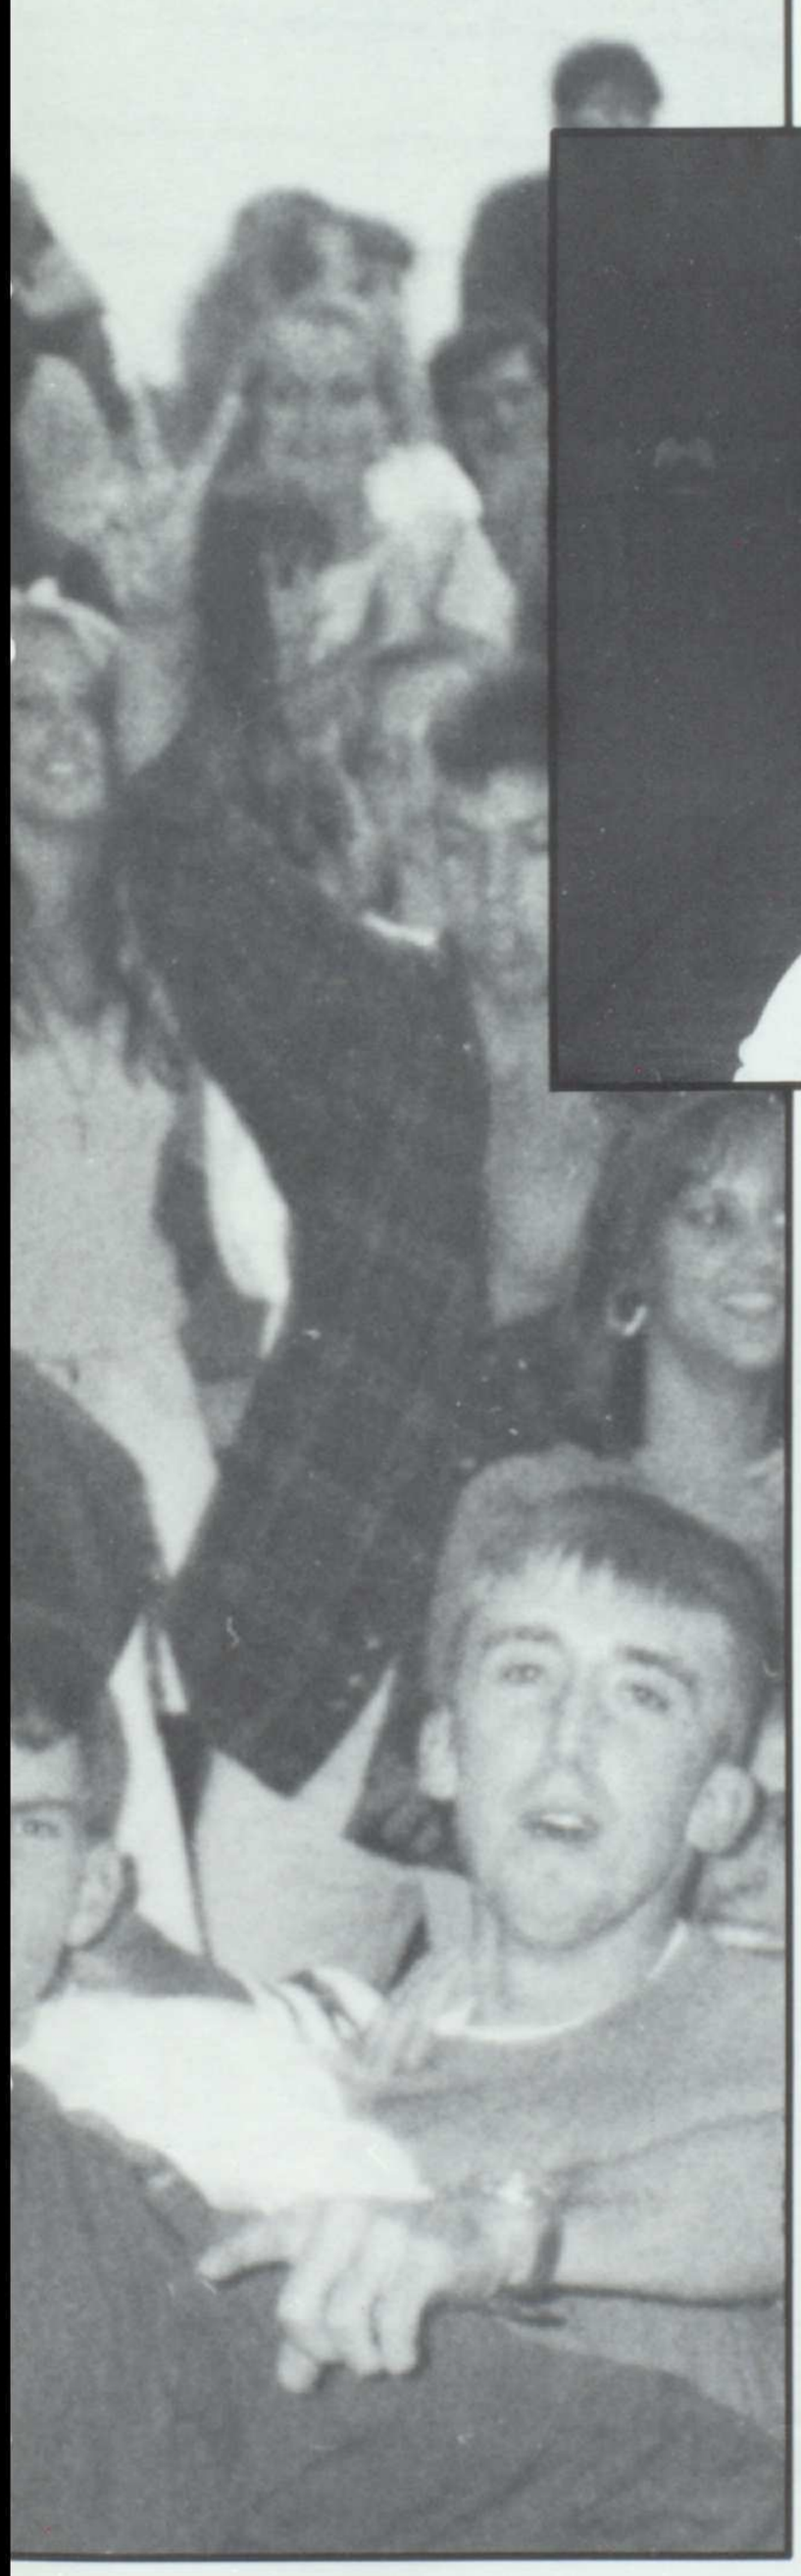
UNDERCLASS

HEAD TO HEAD



"I'm not hungry now, so maybe I'll save some of this for later!" announced Erik Strickland.

Stephanie Walcott grins shyly when she realizes she's been caught seducing Kevin Guffy.

Showing his strength is Jamey Bach, holding back the rioting crowd consisting of Brandon Loynes, Alan Beymer, Jeff Hollenbach, and Matt Rieser.

"You can learn to cross stitch just like we did in Home Ec," explain Michelle Parkin and Harmony Ridgeway.

"If you drink apple juice, you too could look as good as I do," Amanda Avon mystically replies.

"Say cheese!" order official yearbook photographers Chris Petty and Brandon Loynes. Tacy Whitaker, Corkey Tutschka, and Holly Bell flash smiles at the gorgeous sights of Chris and Brandon.

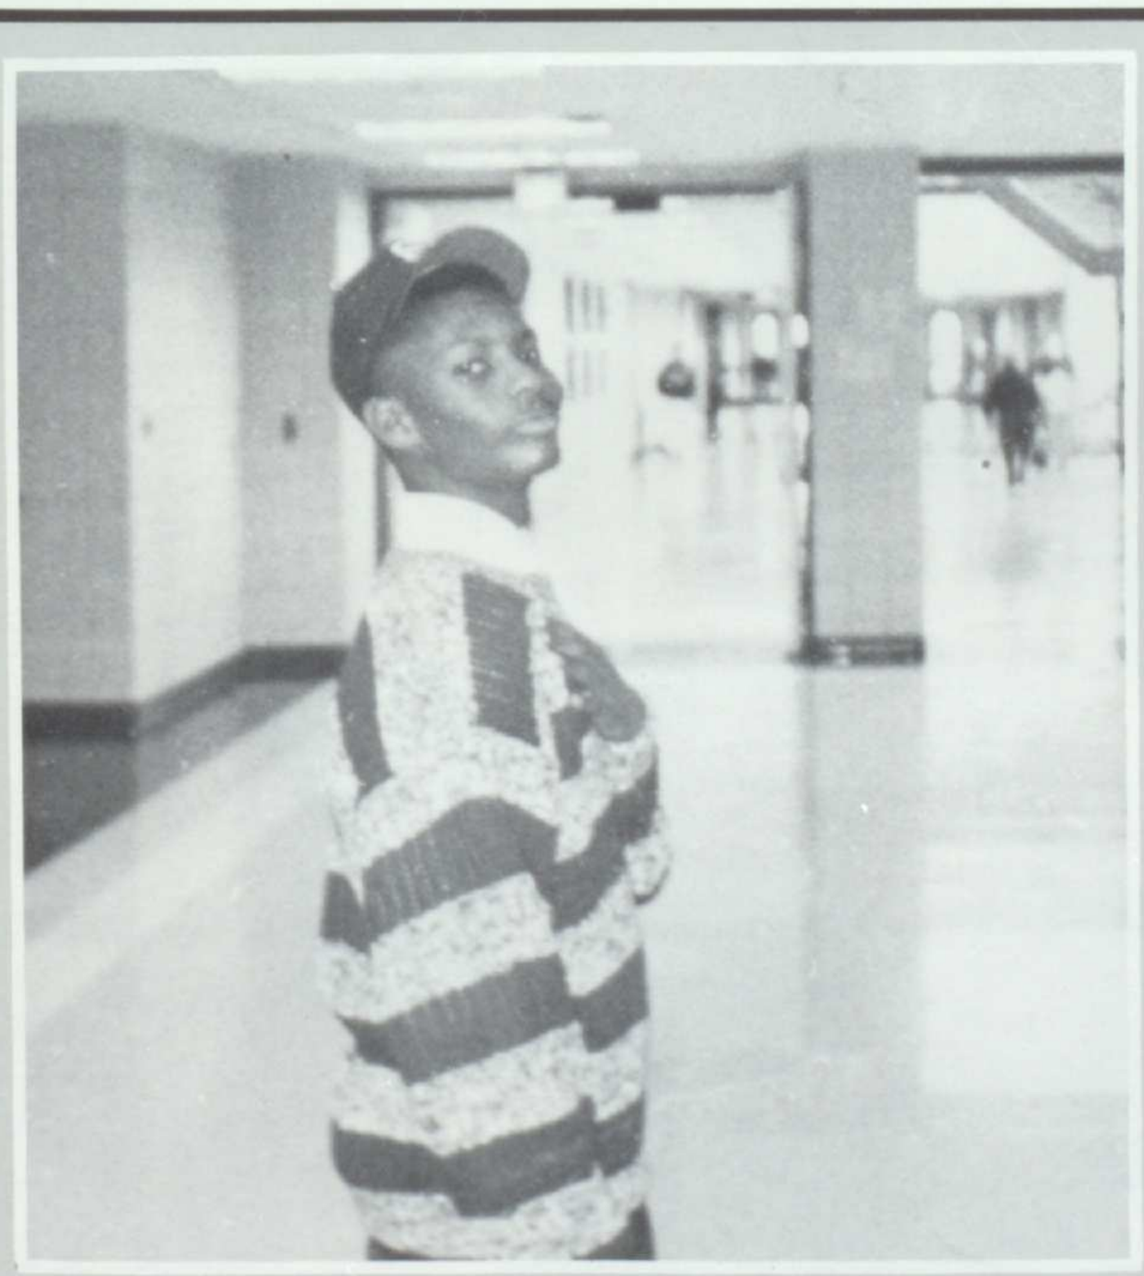
"I'm crushing your head!" yells Holly Bell as she runs around the cafeteria recklessly.

Caught with her hands full of goodies, Carrie Newman insists she didn't steal them.

Working extremely hard on the Haunted Homecoming decorations is April Tang, while her friend, Julie Ucker, seems to be content staring off into the distance counting the days left until the homecoming dance.

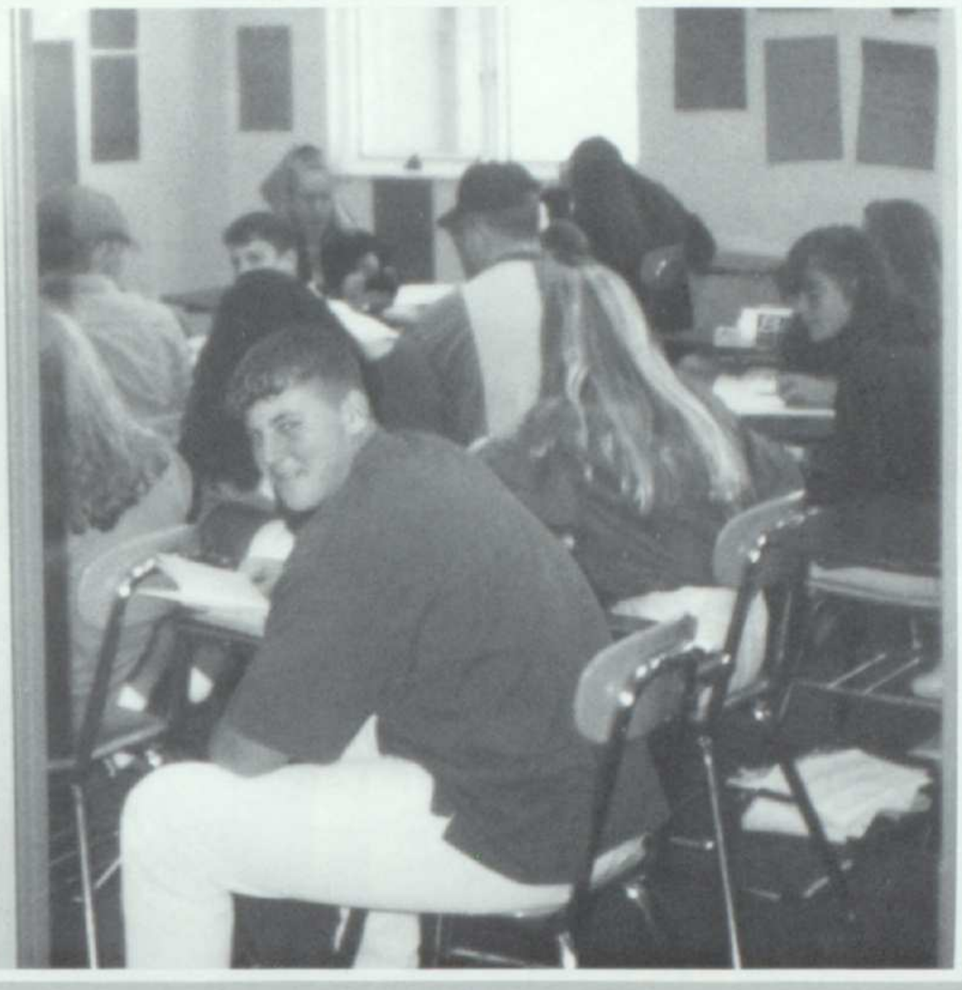


"These are my halls," says Delon Prince," and anyone who walks in them will have to answer to me."

"I think I can, I think I can..." recites Kim Ballantyne hoping that it will give her enough confidence to jump the volleyball net.

Sophomores

Although most people don't realize it, Eric Waltermire must belong in an enriched class since he has time to stare out into the hallway.



"Mnnn-mmm! My fingers taste so good. Boy, I just can't eat enough of that tasty cafeteria food," says Dawn Minturn.

A different type of volleyball is played as Sheri Schneider is helped over the net.

Coming out of the cafeteria are Jen Russelo and Julie Roewer, holding food-like substances in their hands.

It's tug of war time again as Joe Igoe, Eric Strickland, Tom Bensen, John Robichaud, Matt Cowgill, and Erik Waltermire are less than successful in trying to beat the seniors.

The hesitant smile on Erin Otten's face and the look of sheer concentration on Anjali Goel's show how much fun yearbook deadlines are.

Wandering around, Penney Southard smiles as she looks for her date.

"After I take this class, I should be able to make a sweater just like the one I am wearing," explains Amy O'Connor.

Looking ever so stylish, Ben Dusthimer poses as Dylan McKay from "Beverly Hills 90210," his favorite show.

When asked if they liked the school food, Chris Gagle/Frost's face is self-explanatory. Cory Elzey shows us what she is eating, and Nick Pecko just says, "It is either this junk or get a Saturday School for going out."

Blitzkrieg

"Blitzkrieg" which means intensive surprise attack by air and ground is a perfect name to describe some members of the junior class and two members of the sophomore class.

These classmates, Jason Ash, Alan Beymer, Brandon Bird, Ben Dusthimer, Chris Gagle/Frost, Steve Min, Brian Niess, Matt Rieser, Paul Smith, Andrew Speith, and the lone sophomores, Dustin Butler and Matt Daniel, joined an indoor-soccer league at SPORTSITE. Even though most of us don't play soccer for the school, we played when we were younger. But that didn't stop us. We even had two camera men, Mike Casey and Mark Schumacher, and a waterboy, Brandon Loynes.

Blitzkrieg has earned a reputation on the field. SPORTSITE officials appoint the best refs for Blitzkrieg games because they know a fight is going to happen. The team only lost one game, but we would not lose a fight. Blitzkrieg's record went 10-1-1, but in the fighting category, we prevailed, 11-0.

SPORTSITE is located off Henderson Road and has indoor sports facilities that adapt to offer sports in different seasons. This group of guys just happen to have chosen indoor soccer as their out-of-school activity. Everyone had a blast doing it. At least these students chose to spend a little money on something fun and legal, instead of wasting money and risk getting arrested.

When Blitzkrieg made it to the final tournament, we won the first game. In the hardest one of the season when the ref even walked out at half time. Because of our reputation, we were banned from the session and lost the game by forfeit. But we know who the real winners are!

By Brandon Loynes (Waterboy #62)

The Blitzkrieg team, proud of what they accomplished, stand in formation in the front hall for a picture to be included in the wonderful school yearbook.

One of the fans of the Blitzkrieg, Cory Kahoun, poses the way he did on the cover of Jet Magazine.

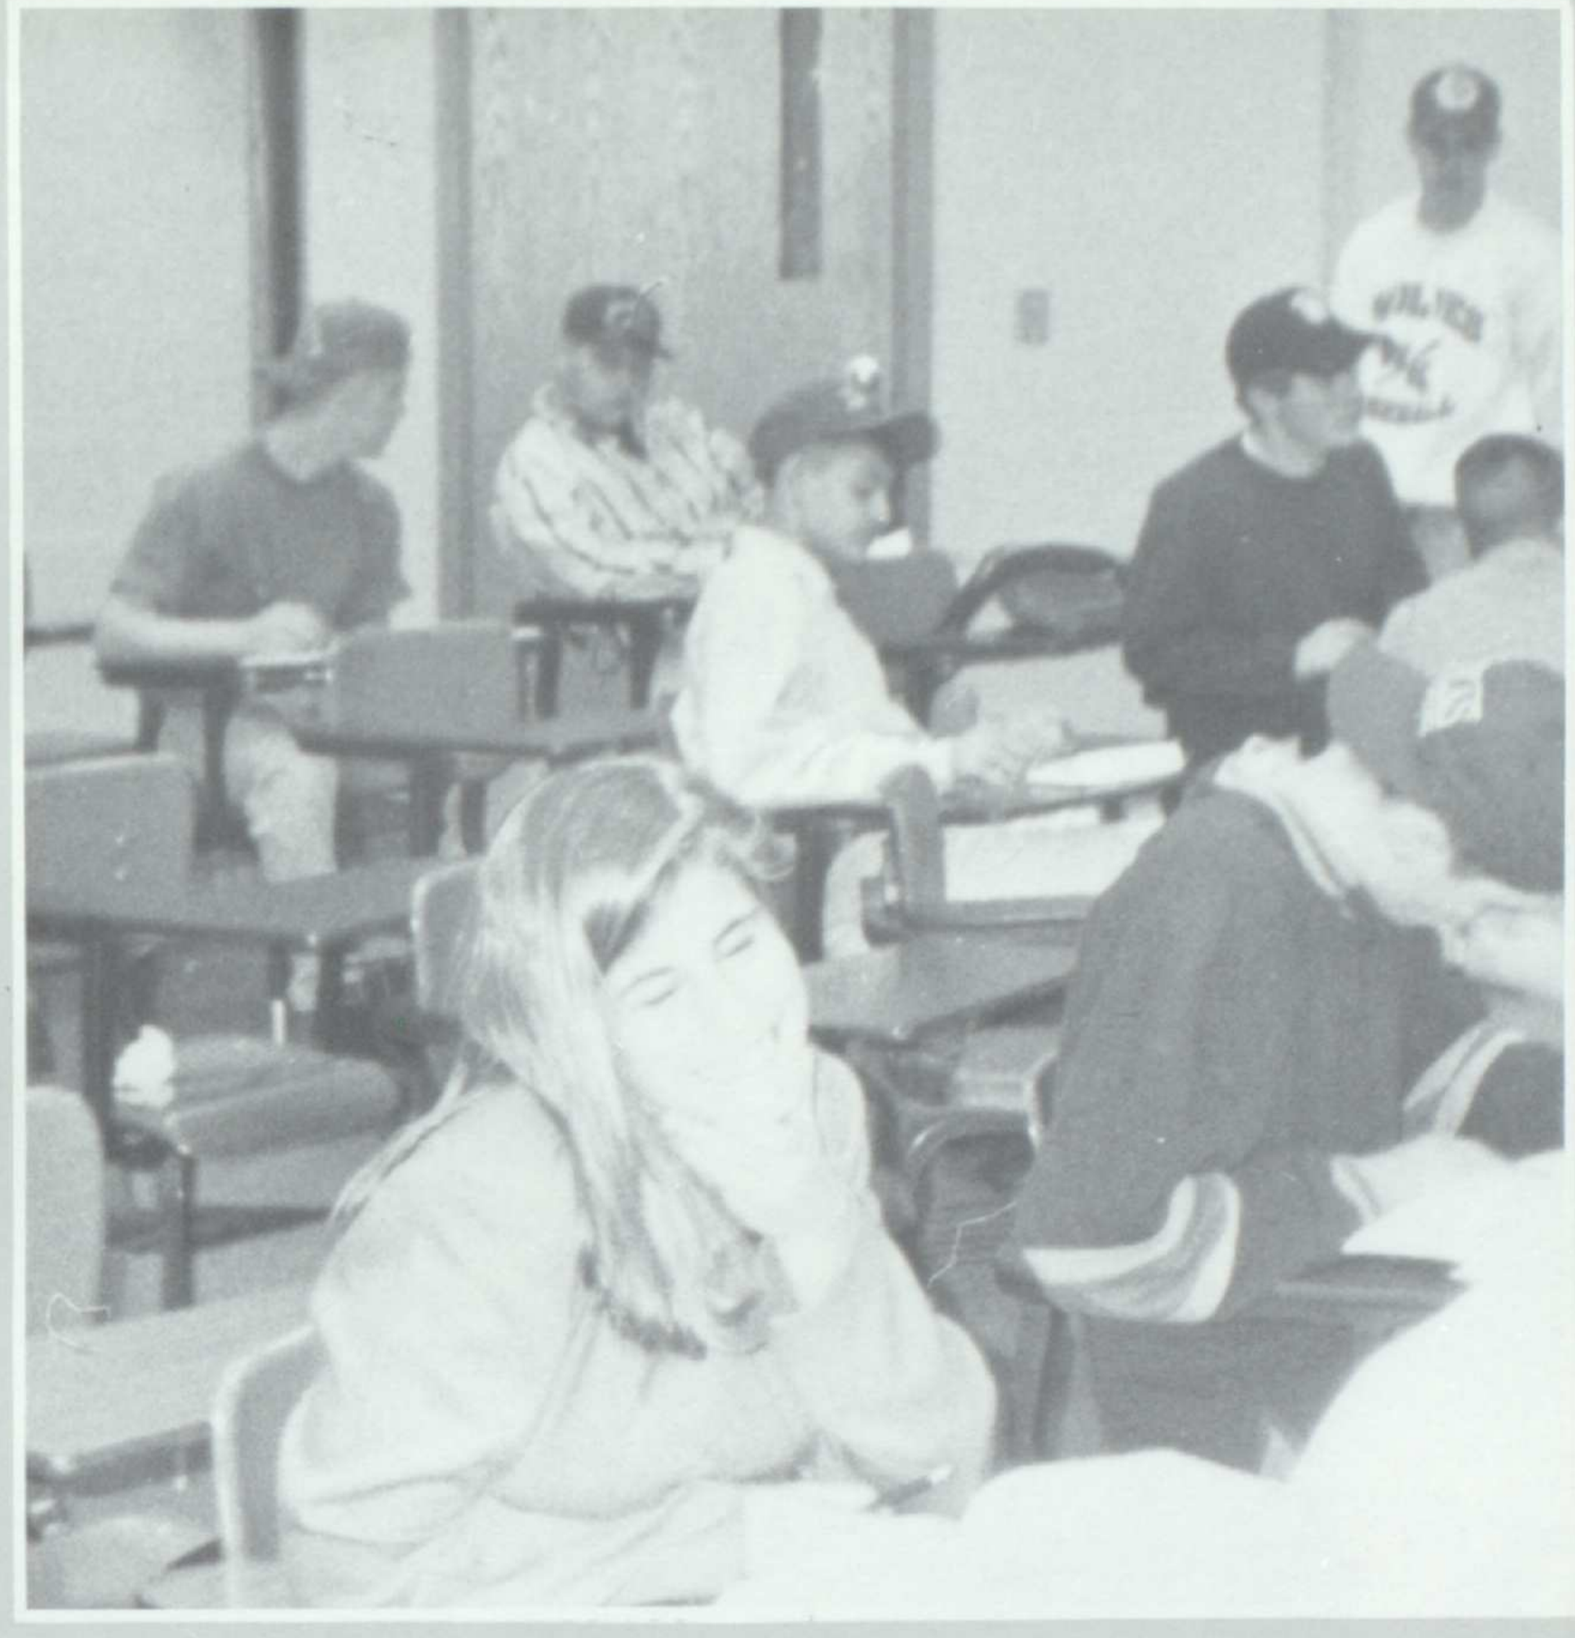
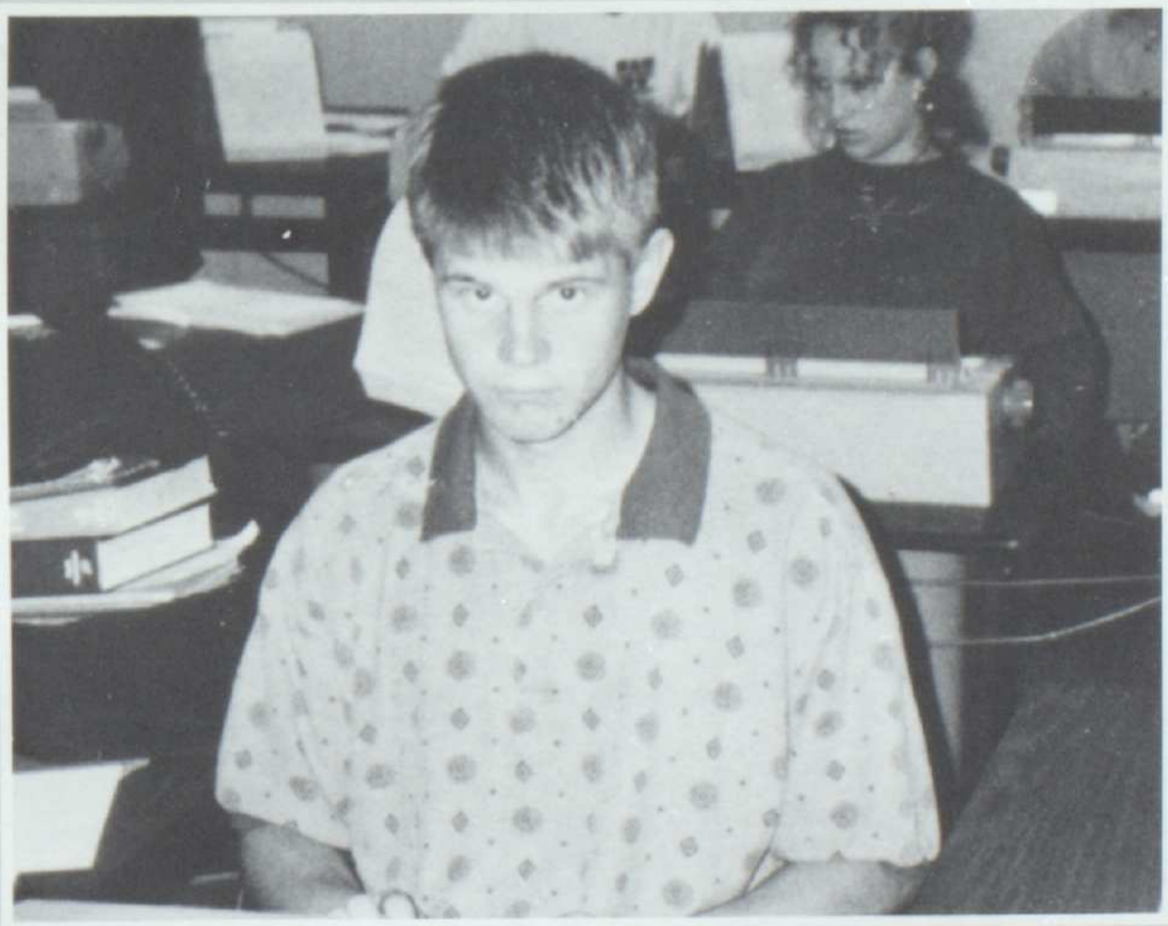
"I always kick things when I get mad," Jeff Hollenbach says to himself.

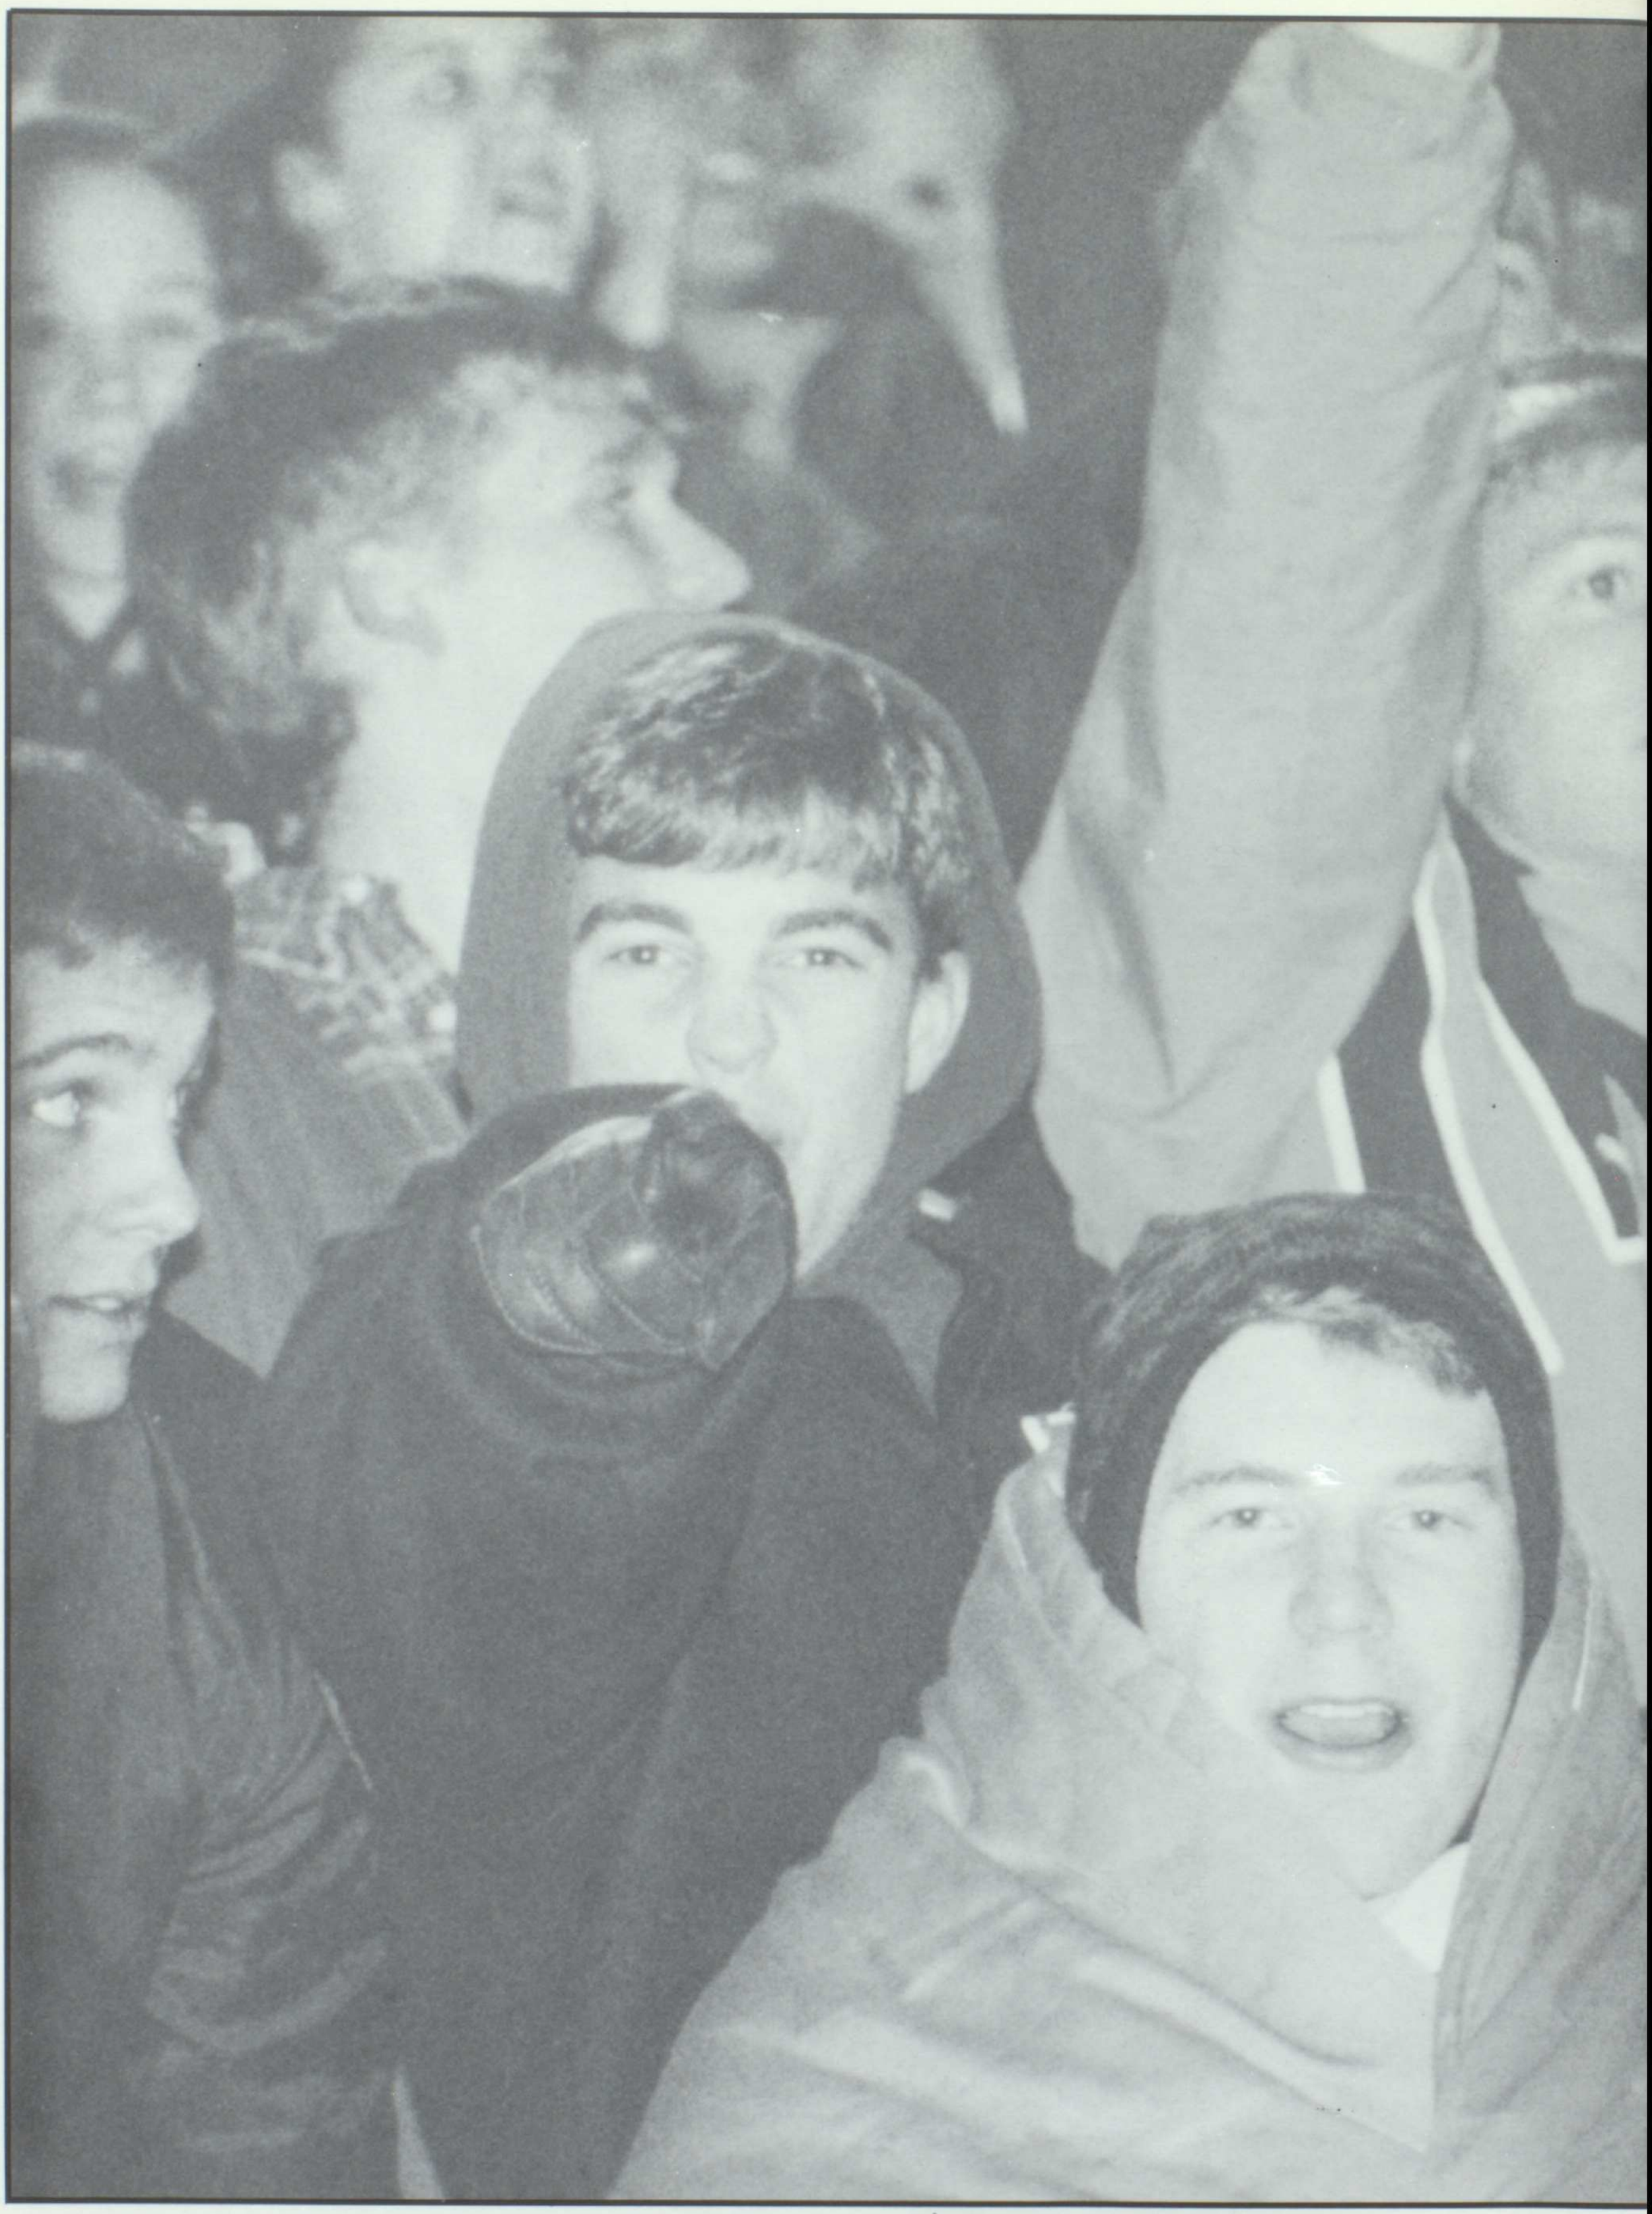


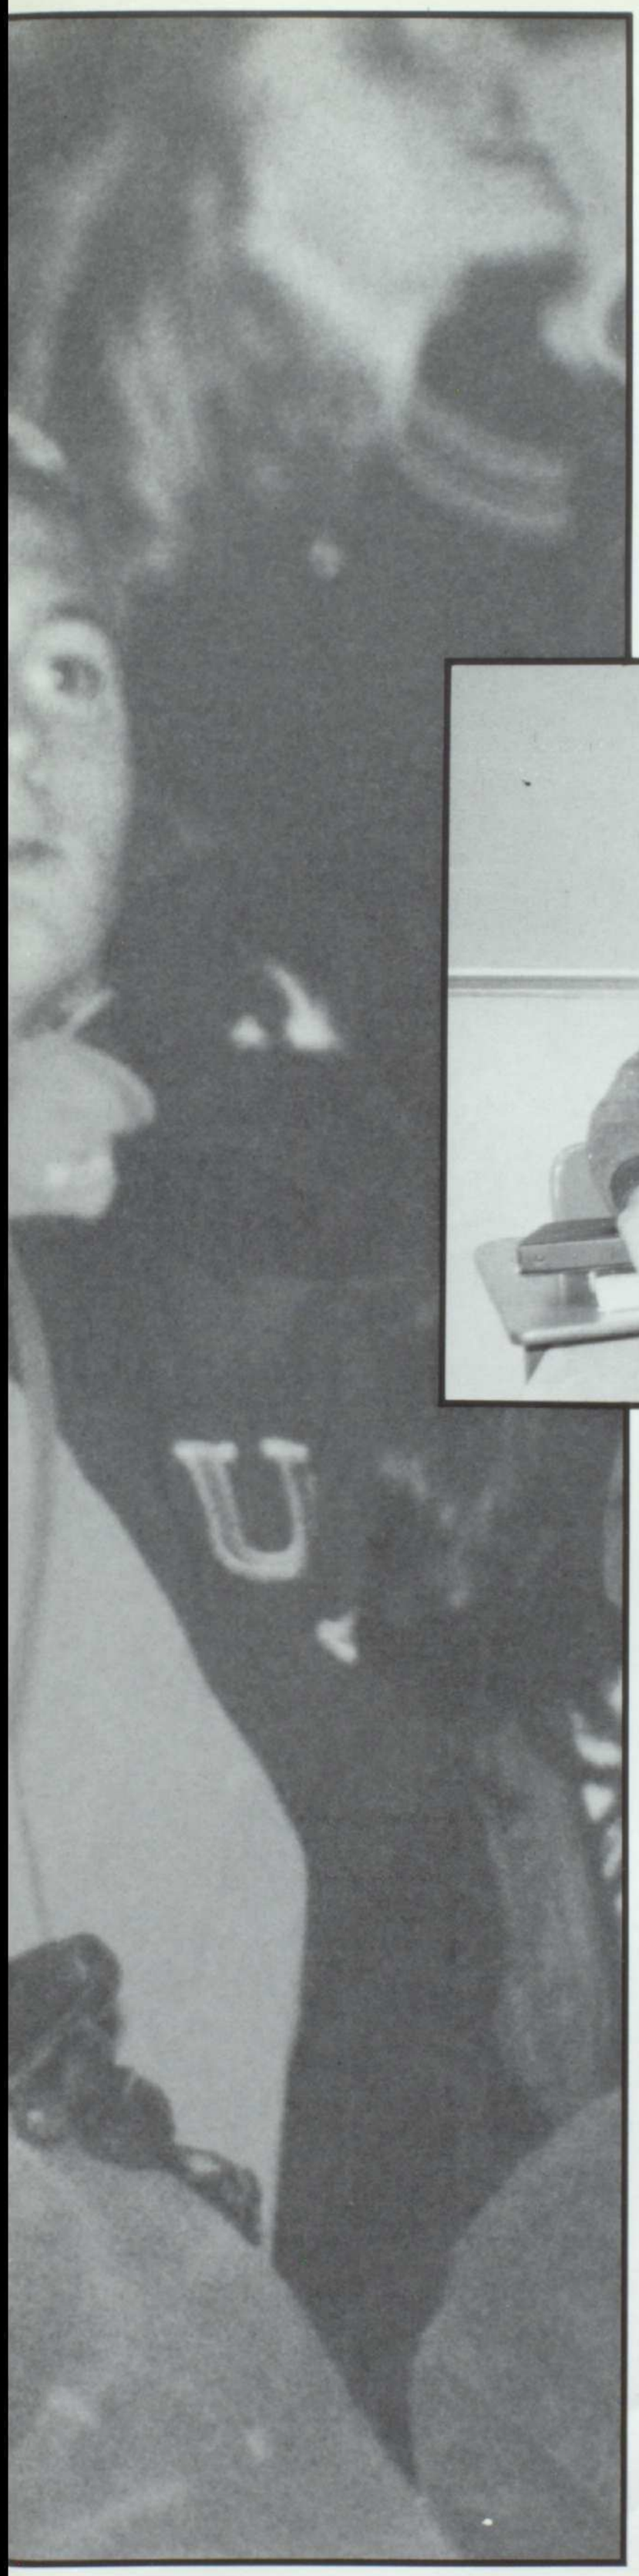
Hey, Erica Hardesty, did you know that kid is looking at you? "Well, I don't blame him. I am the only girl in this class. All his friends are studying. I guess I would rather stare at a pretty girl like me than a wall."

"Sometimes I wonder what I would look like as a girl????" wonders Dan Everett.



"I thought this was going to be a blow off class," says Paul Wojciechowski. "I heard wrong!"



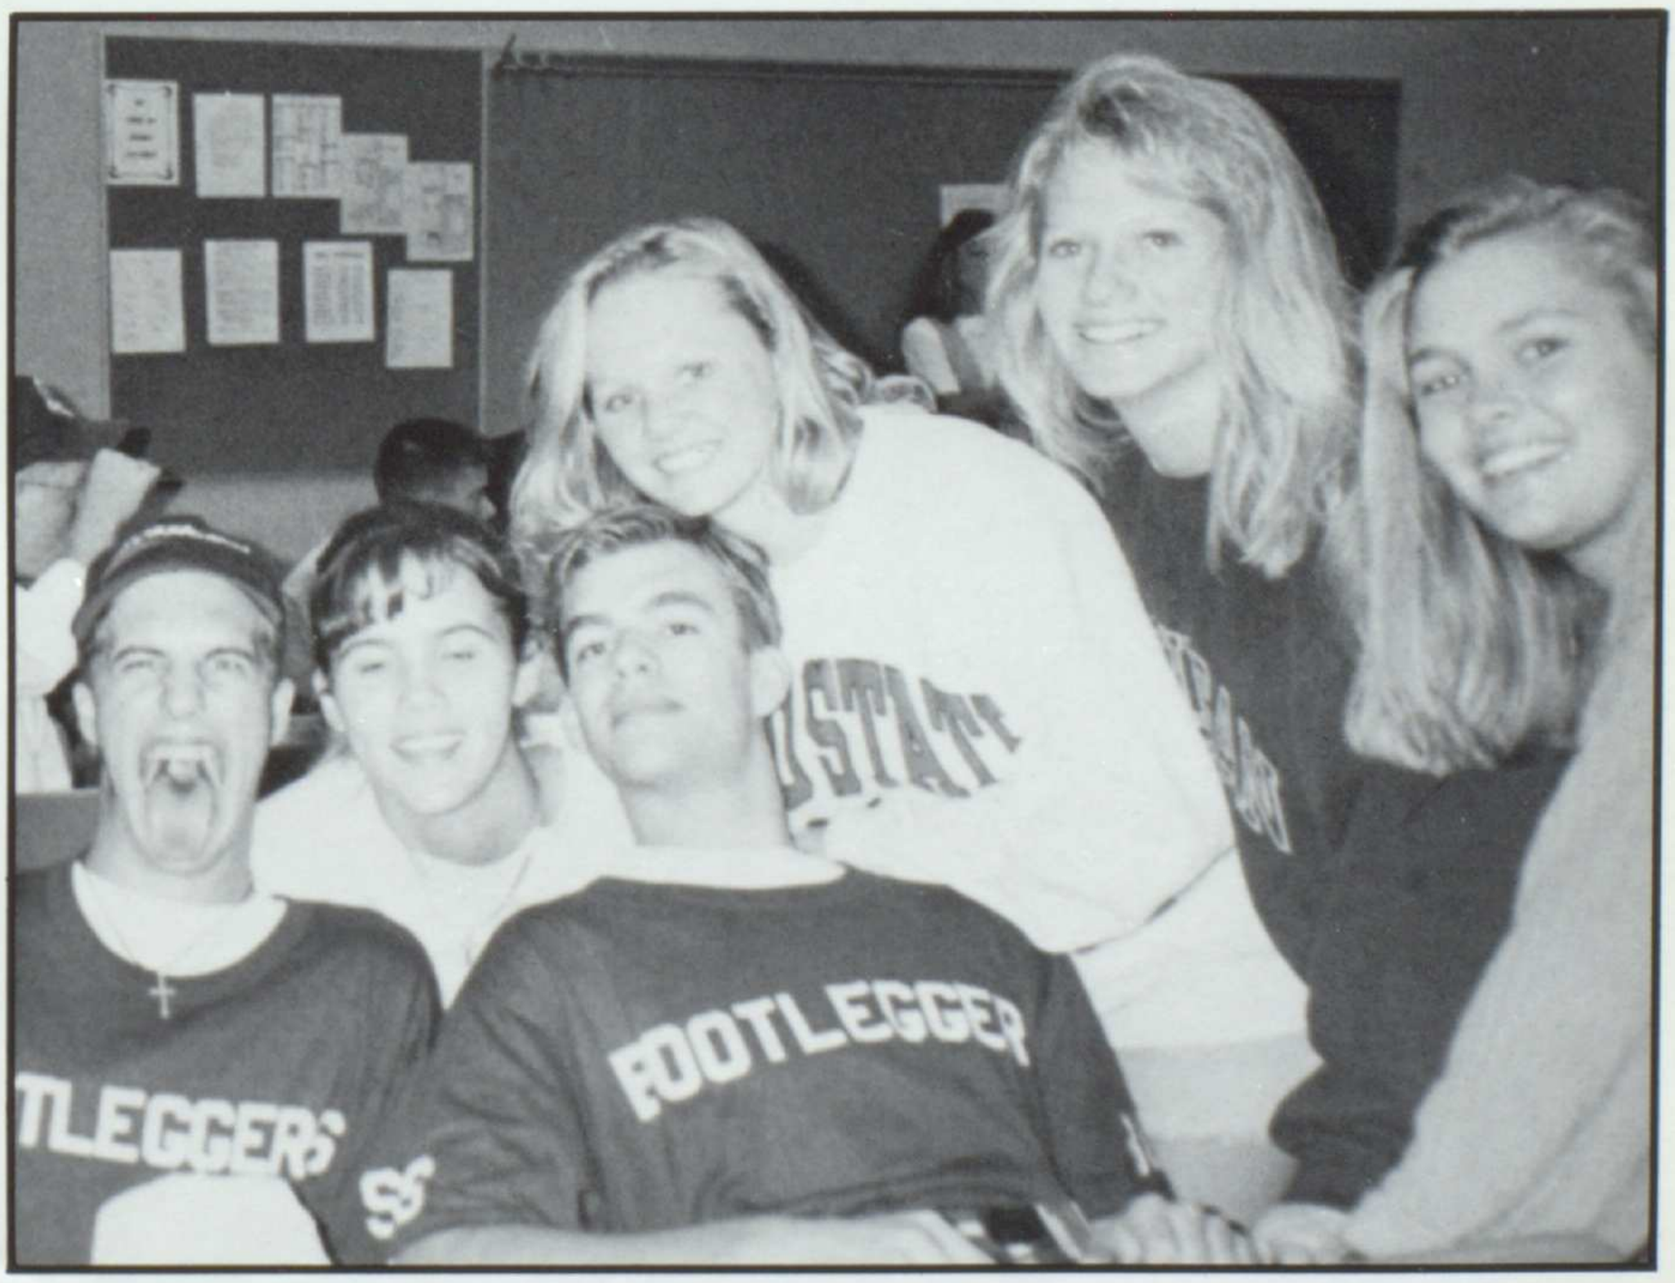


SENIORS

HEAD OF THE PACK

Hat Day participants, Doug Ellis and Judd VanSycle, express their school spirit by posing merrily for the camera.

Smiling happily is Sarah Kirsch, Kim Lowen, Kelley McClelland, Ed Benson, and Kate Chitwood. Wait a minute-- Is Nate Davis smiling or is that the way he usually looks?



Cheering for the Wolves at a football game, are Chris Davis, Scott Flemming, Justin Depenhardt, and Scott Thompson.

In Memory of Brady Hartig

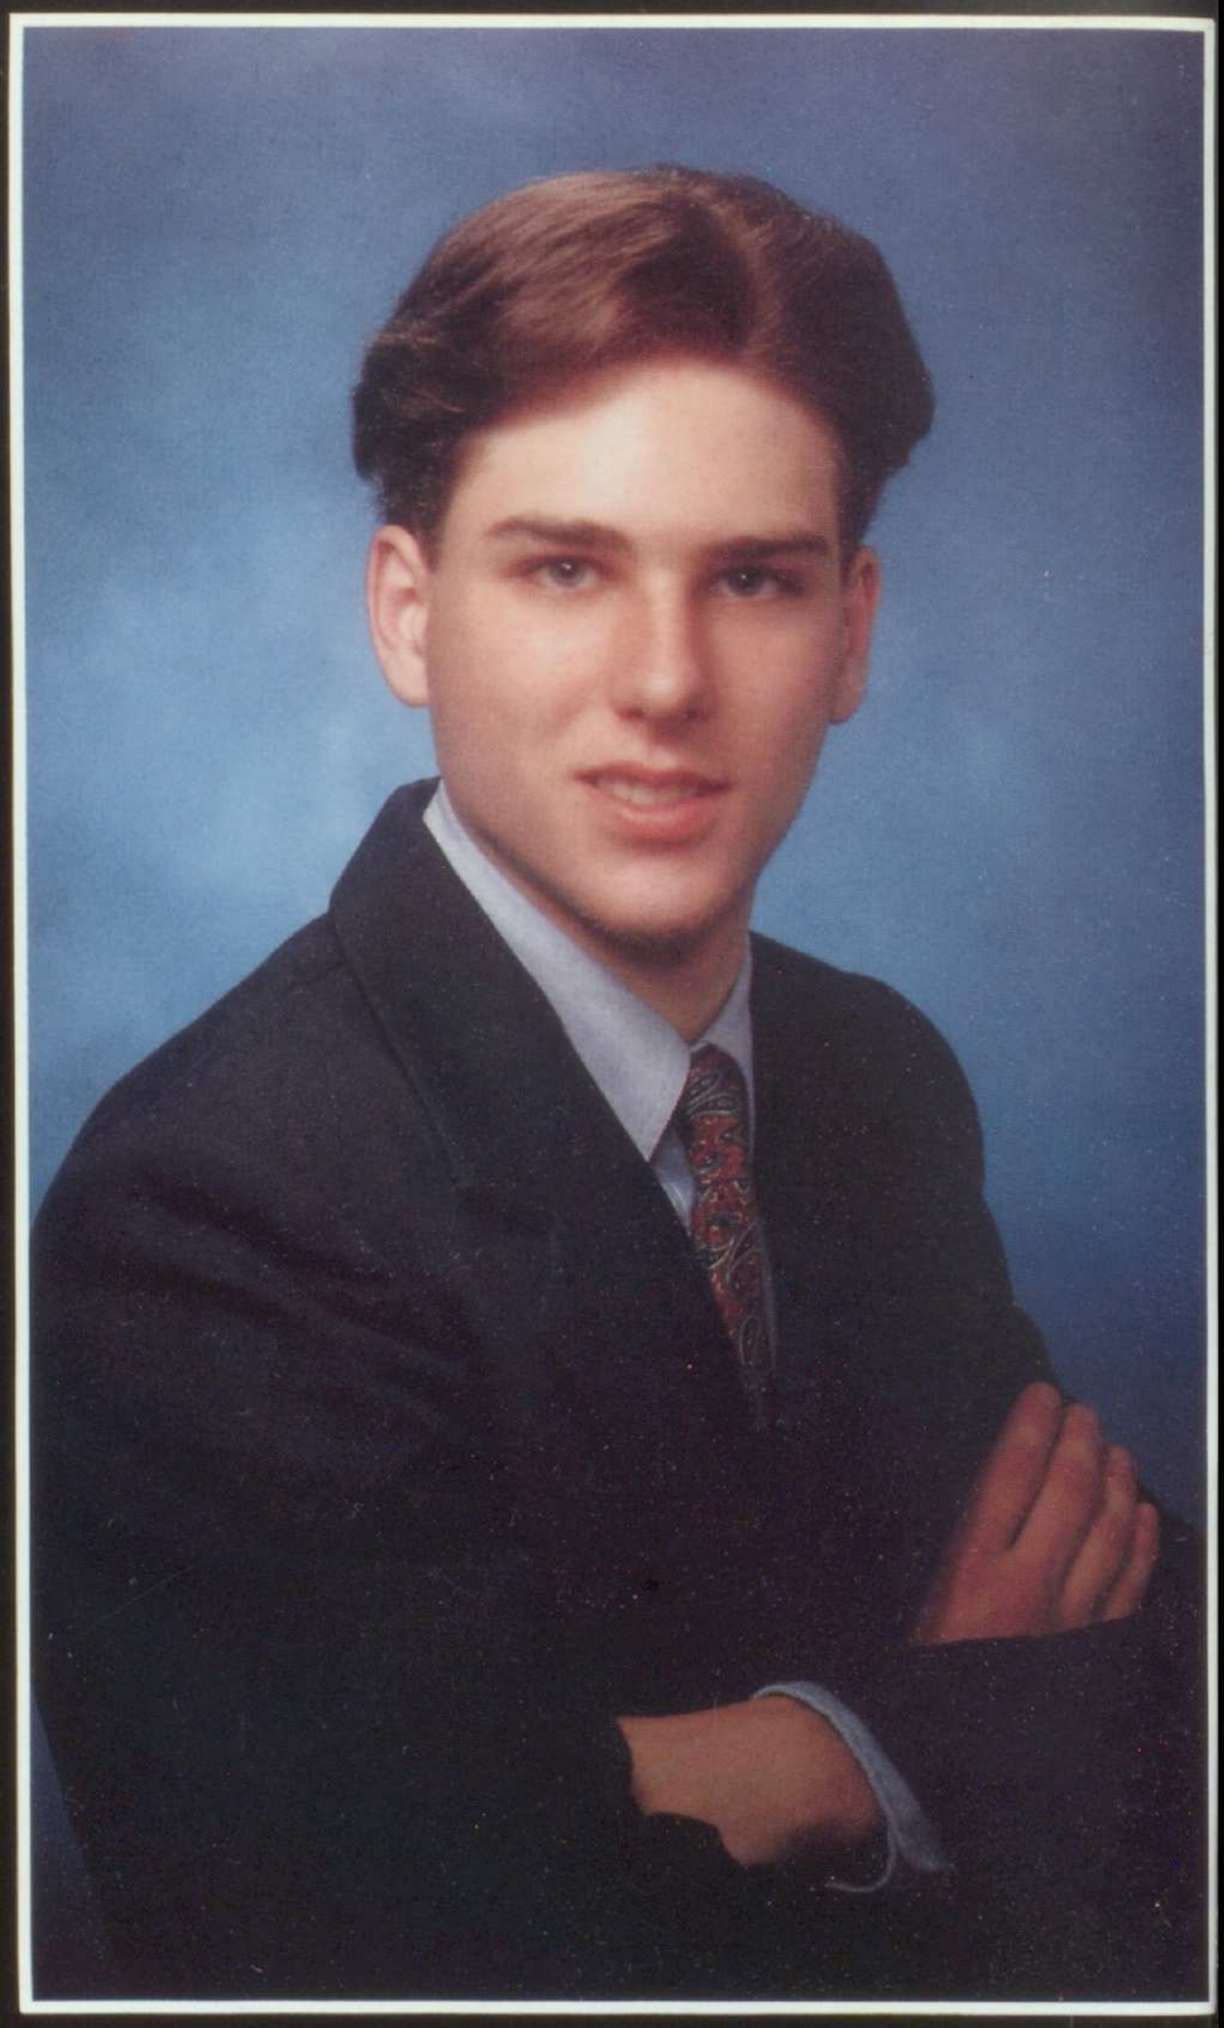
June 30, 1974 - January 13, 1992



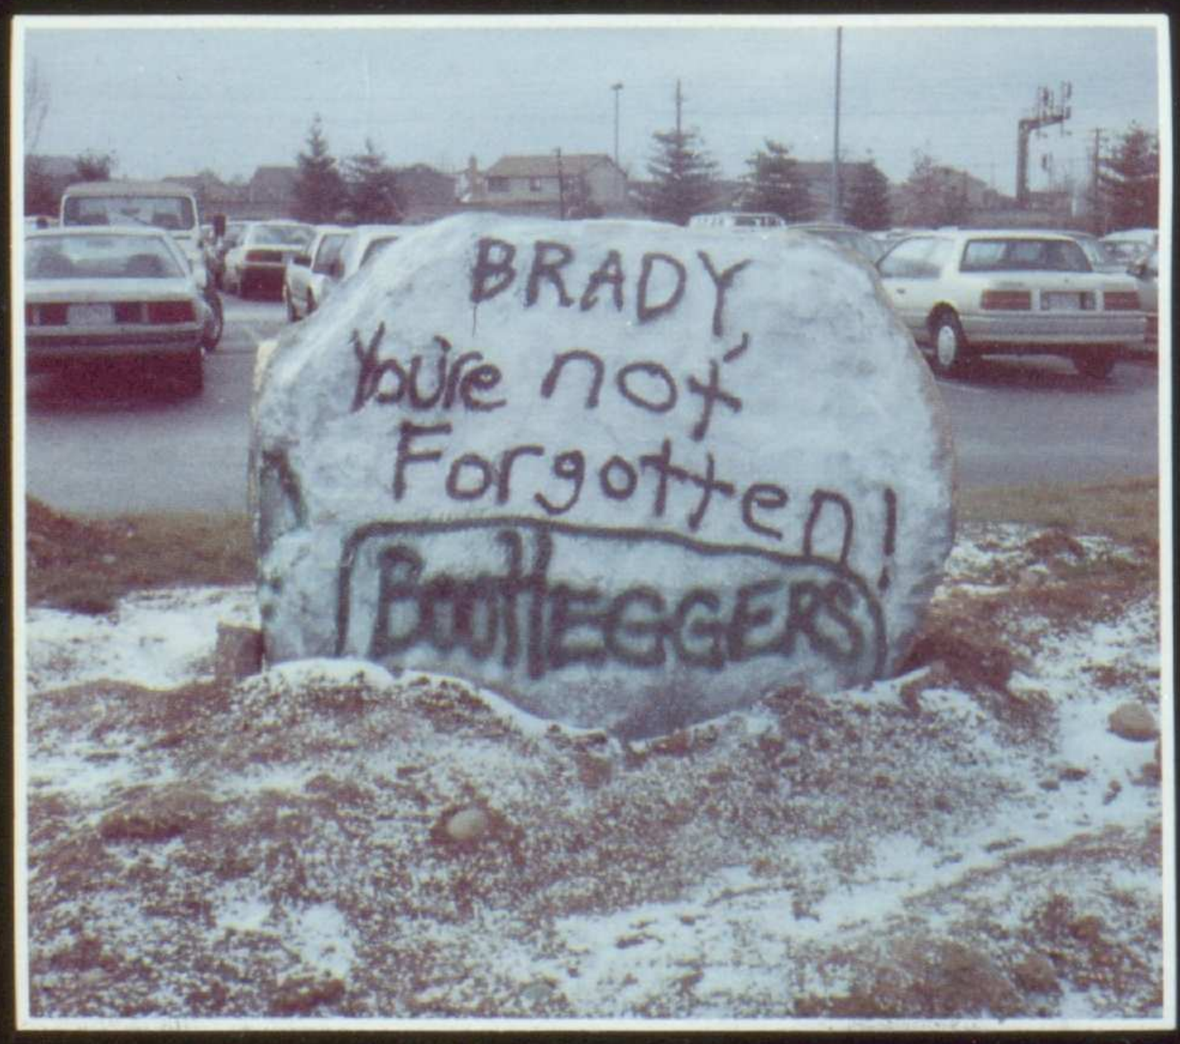
Brady. His name means a lot to me, the memories even more. I wish to share with my classmates what kind of a friend he was to me. I hope my precious memories will make yours all the fonder. He was many things, but only he could be Brady.

Brady was a protector as well as a friend. He cared about the people close to him, and they cared for him as well. He comforted in such a way that he could bring happiness out of my despair.

He loved to add exictement and spark to my life. His spark was the sign of his free spirit, how he loved being free. I remember his leather jacket flying in the wind. I smile when I think of cowboy hats, combat boots, and flannels.

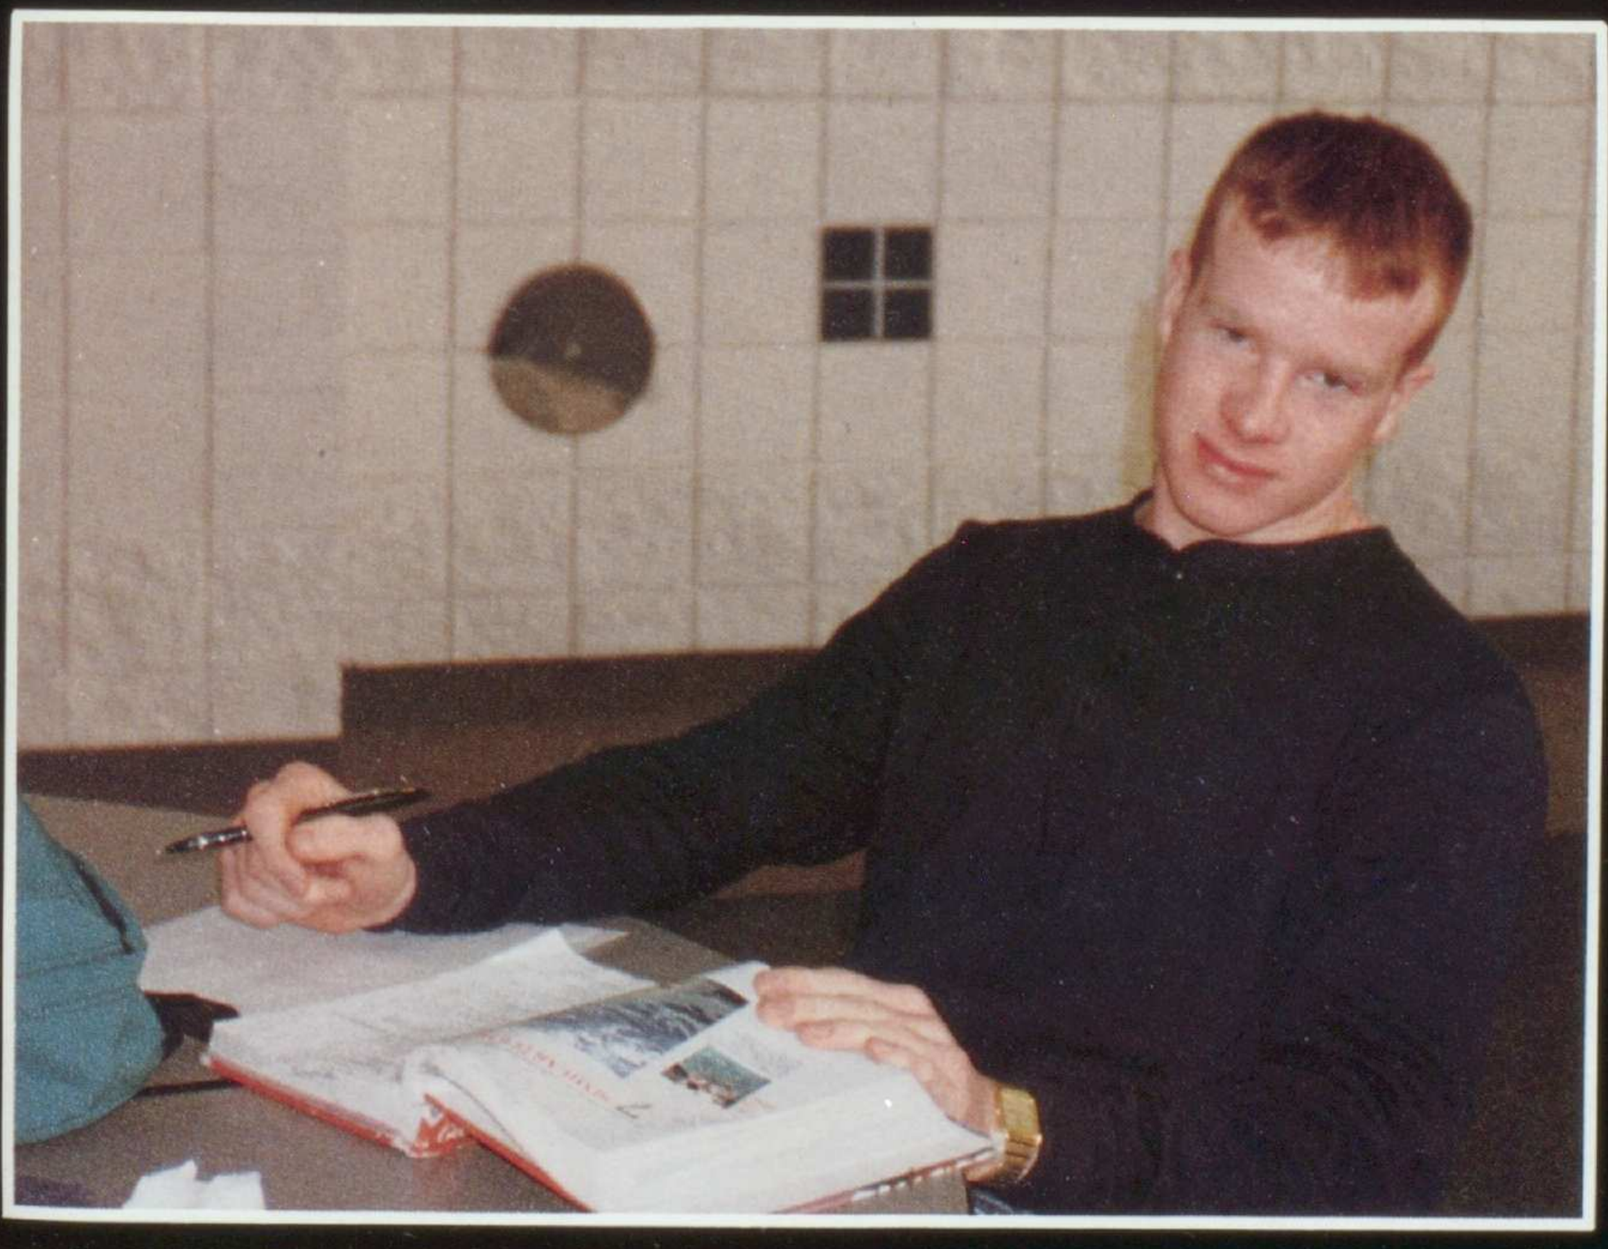
I will never forget my friend. I hope that all of us who were fortunate enough to know him will always keep our fond memories alive.

By Nate Davis

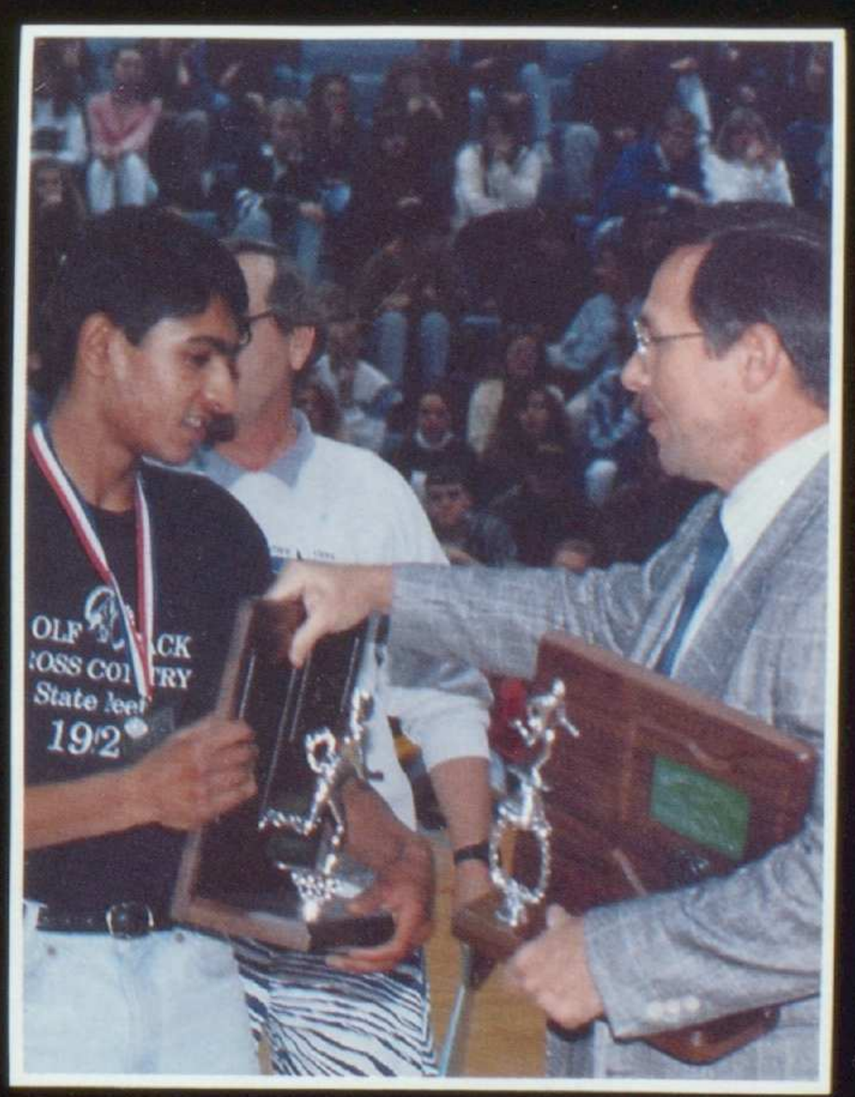


On a recent family vacation with his family, Brady enjoyed the time he spent with his sister Kelly, father Steve, and brother Brian.

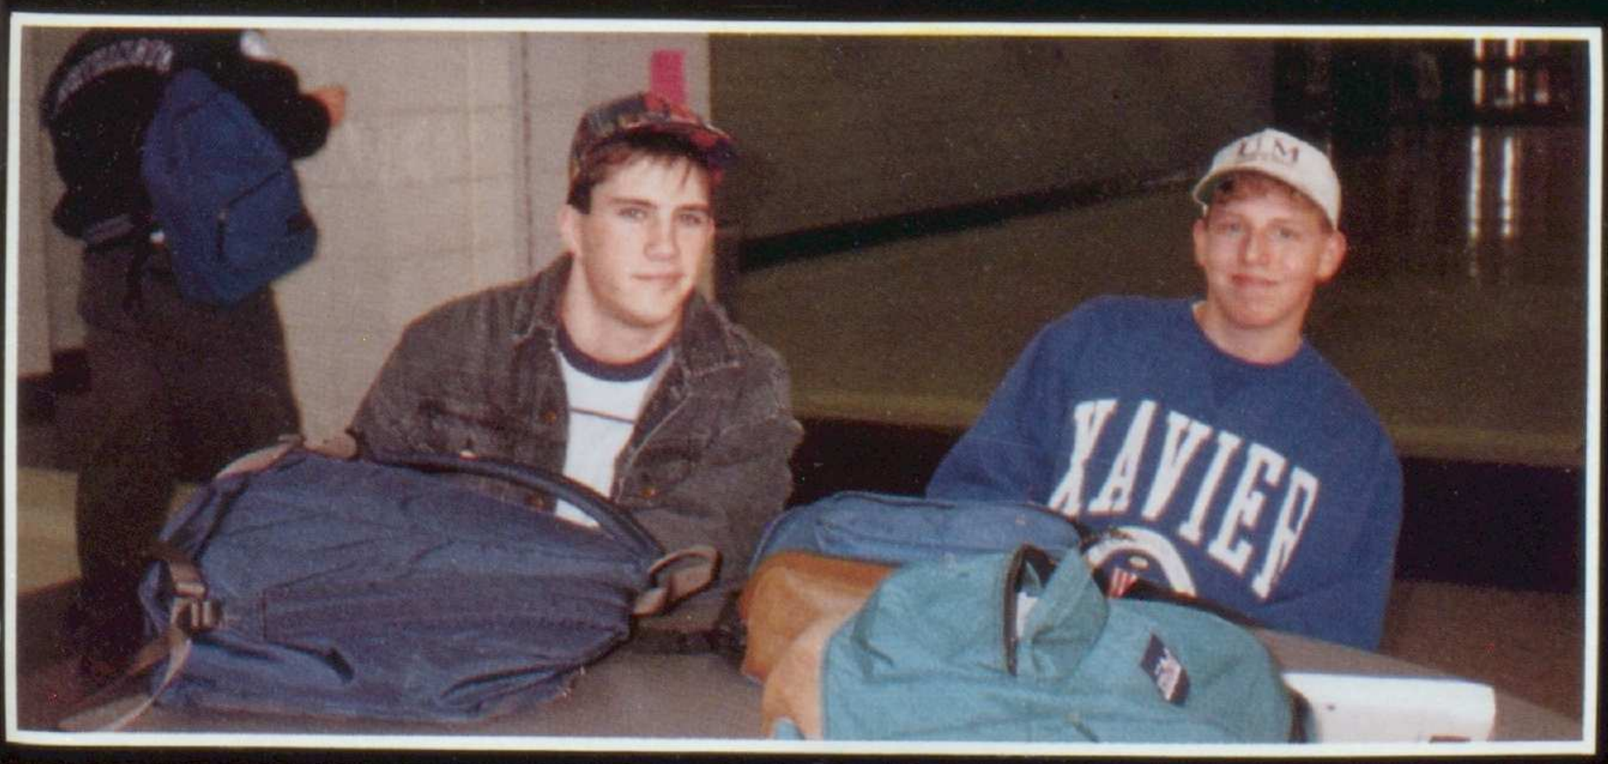
The camera catches Andrea Kotys with her usual cheery smile, but Tammy Groves doesn't seem to care.



Caught by surprise in the commons, Brian Johnson seems more interested in the camera than in doing his work.



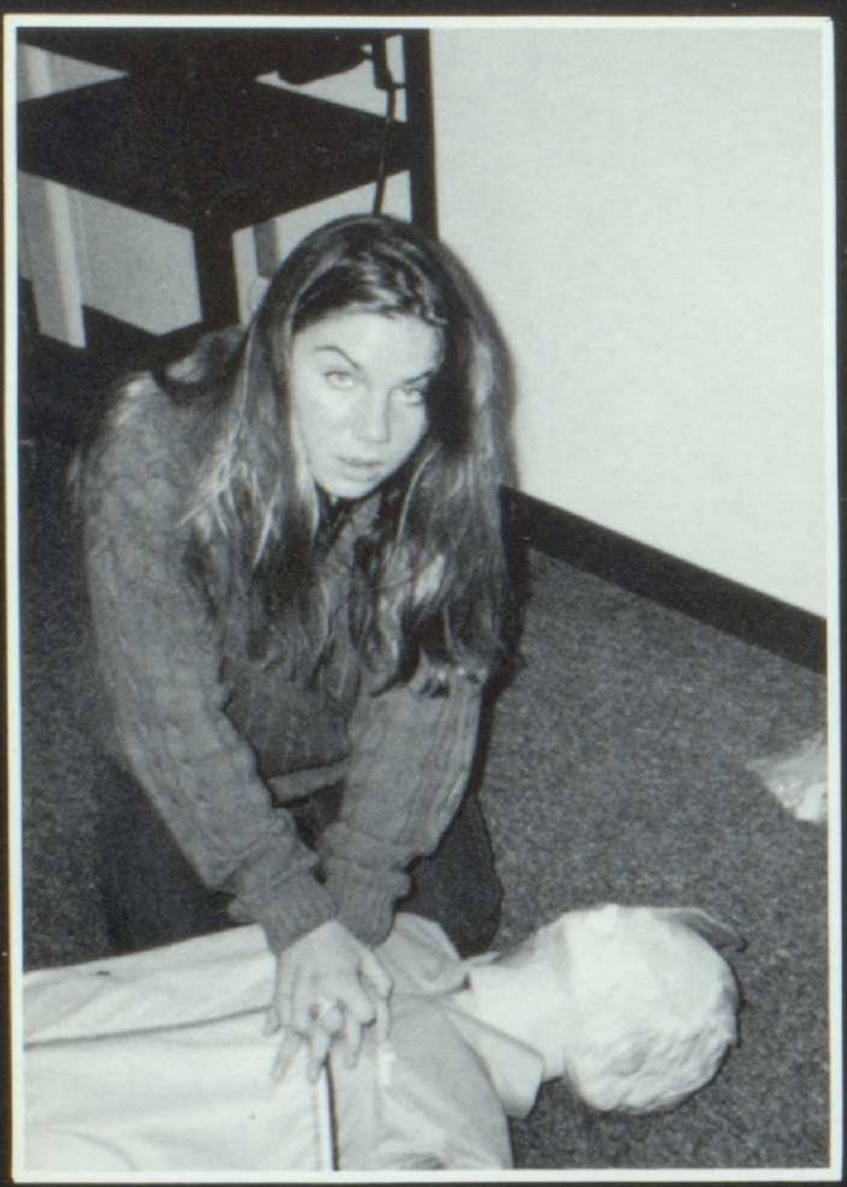
A winner in Cross Country, Divyesh Patel receives his award.

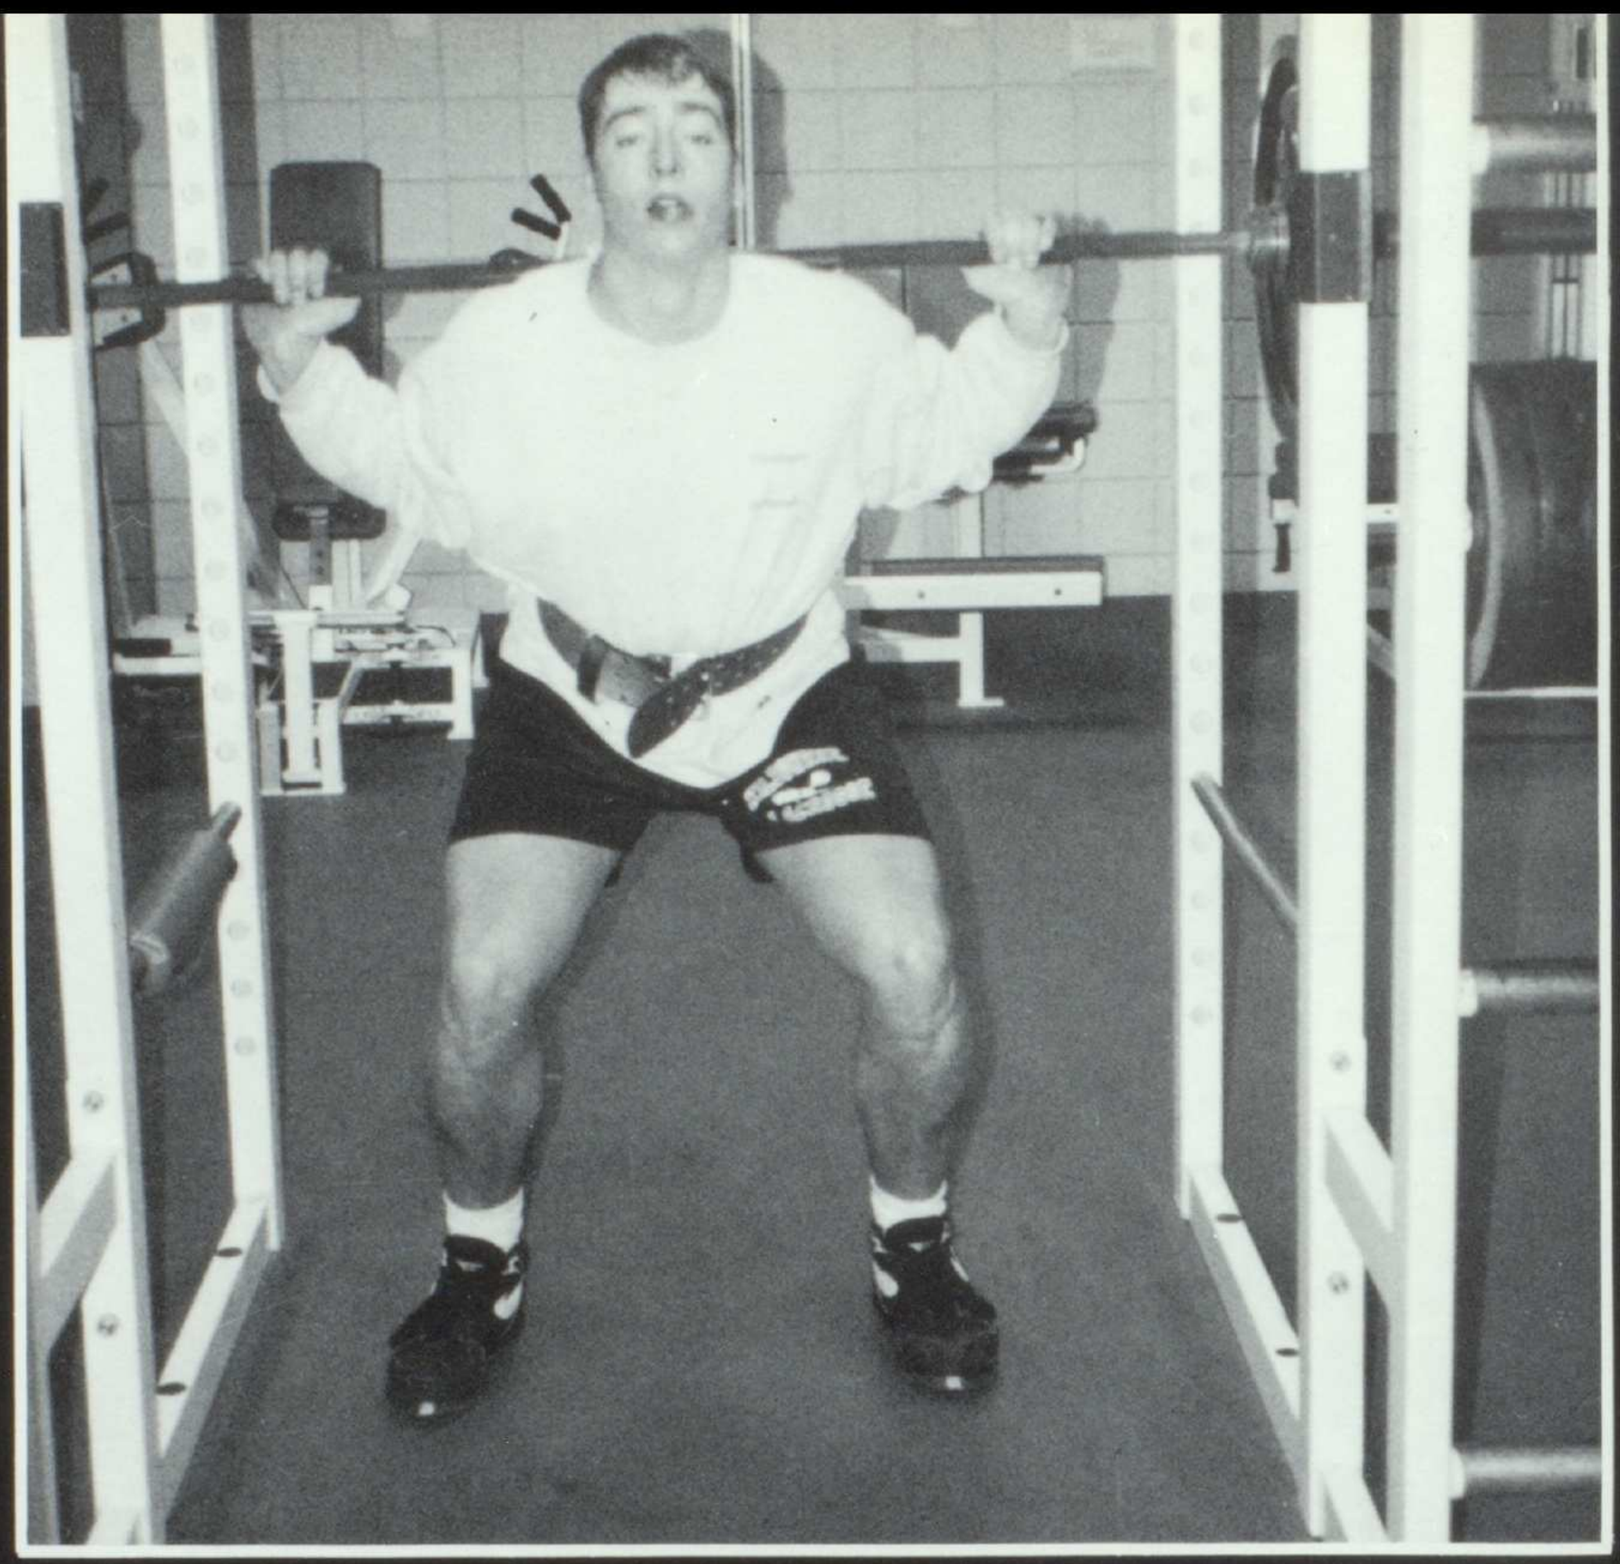


Are you two as innocent as you look, Chris Adolf and John Hobday?

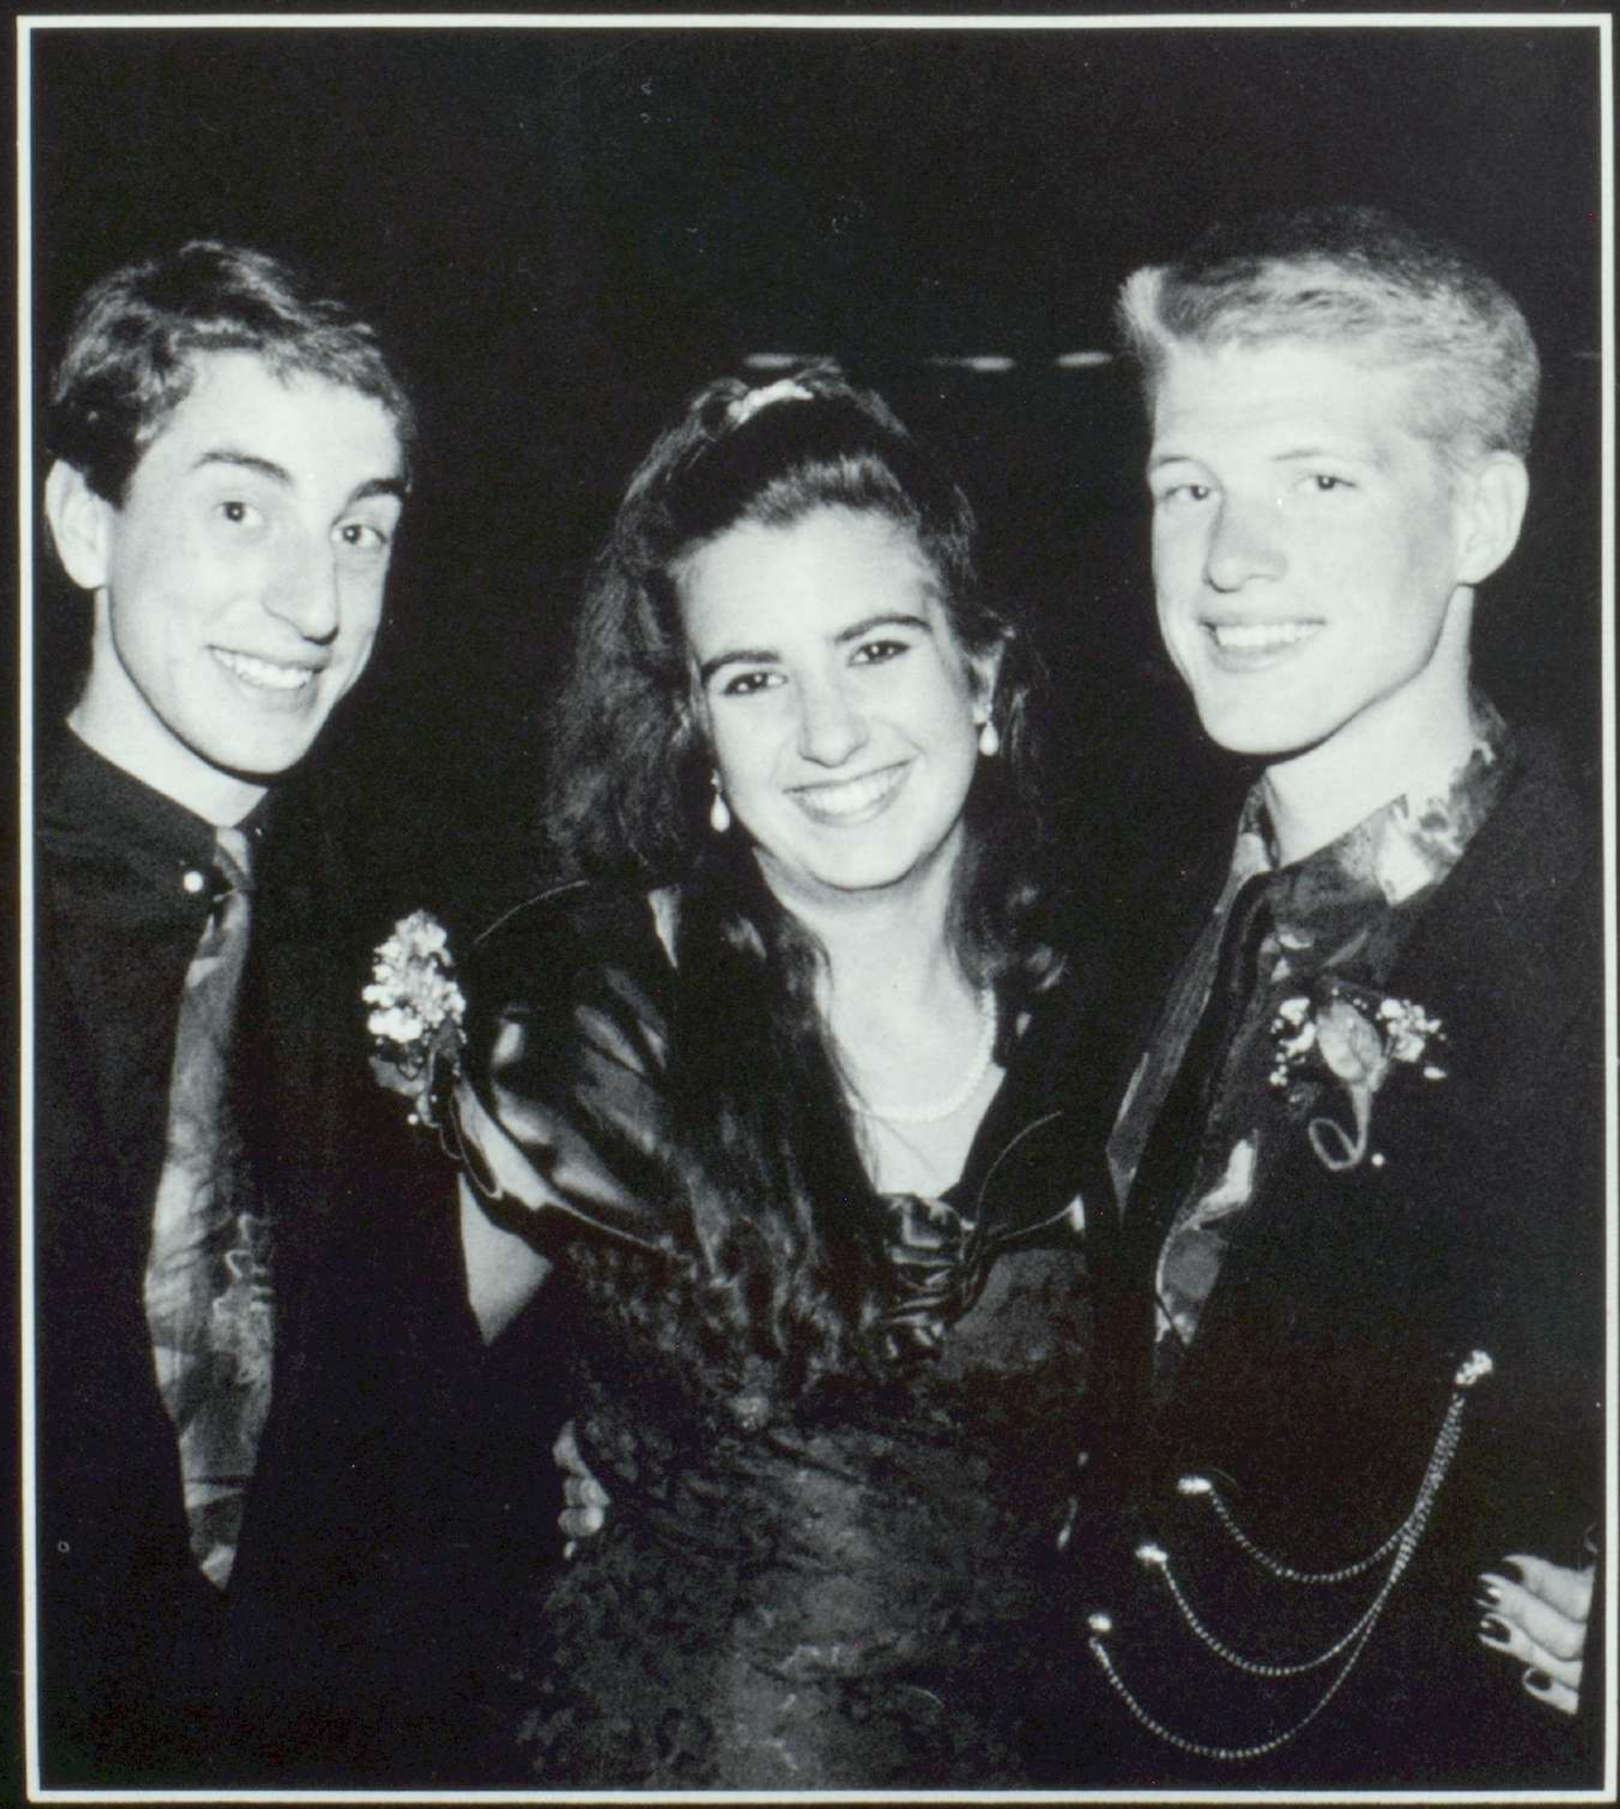
"I think I can. I think I can. I know I can," says Brian Waltermire.

"No matter how hard I try, I can't seem to get her to breathe," complains Angelique Berne.





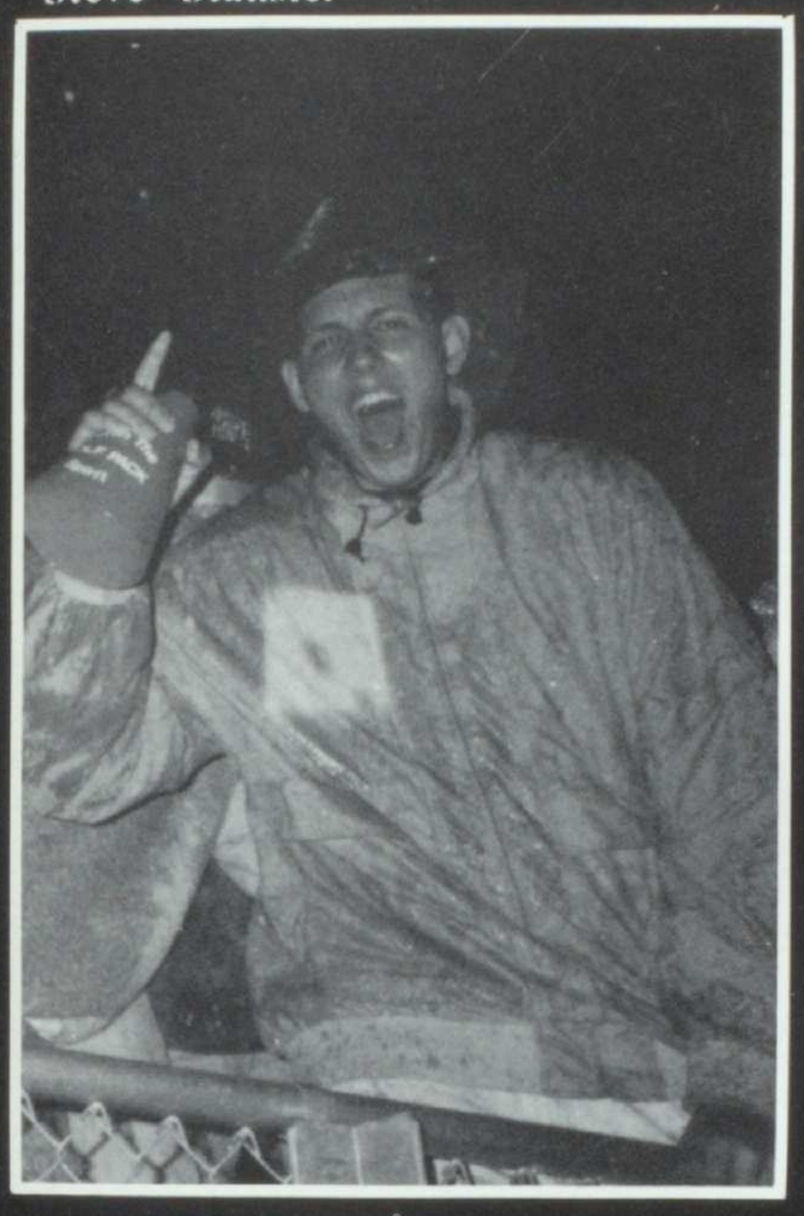
Saluting the crowd at half-time is Sasha Cesare, who is preparing to lead the band across the field.

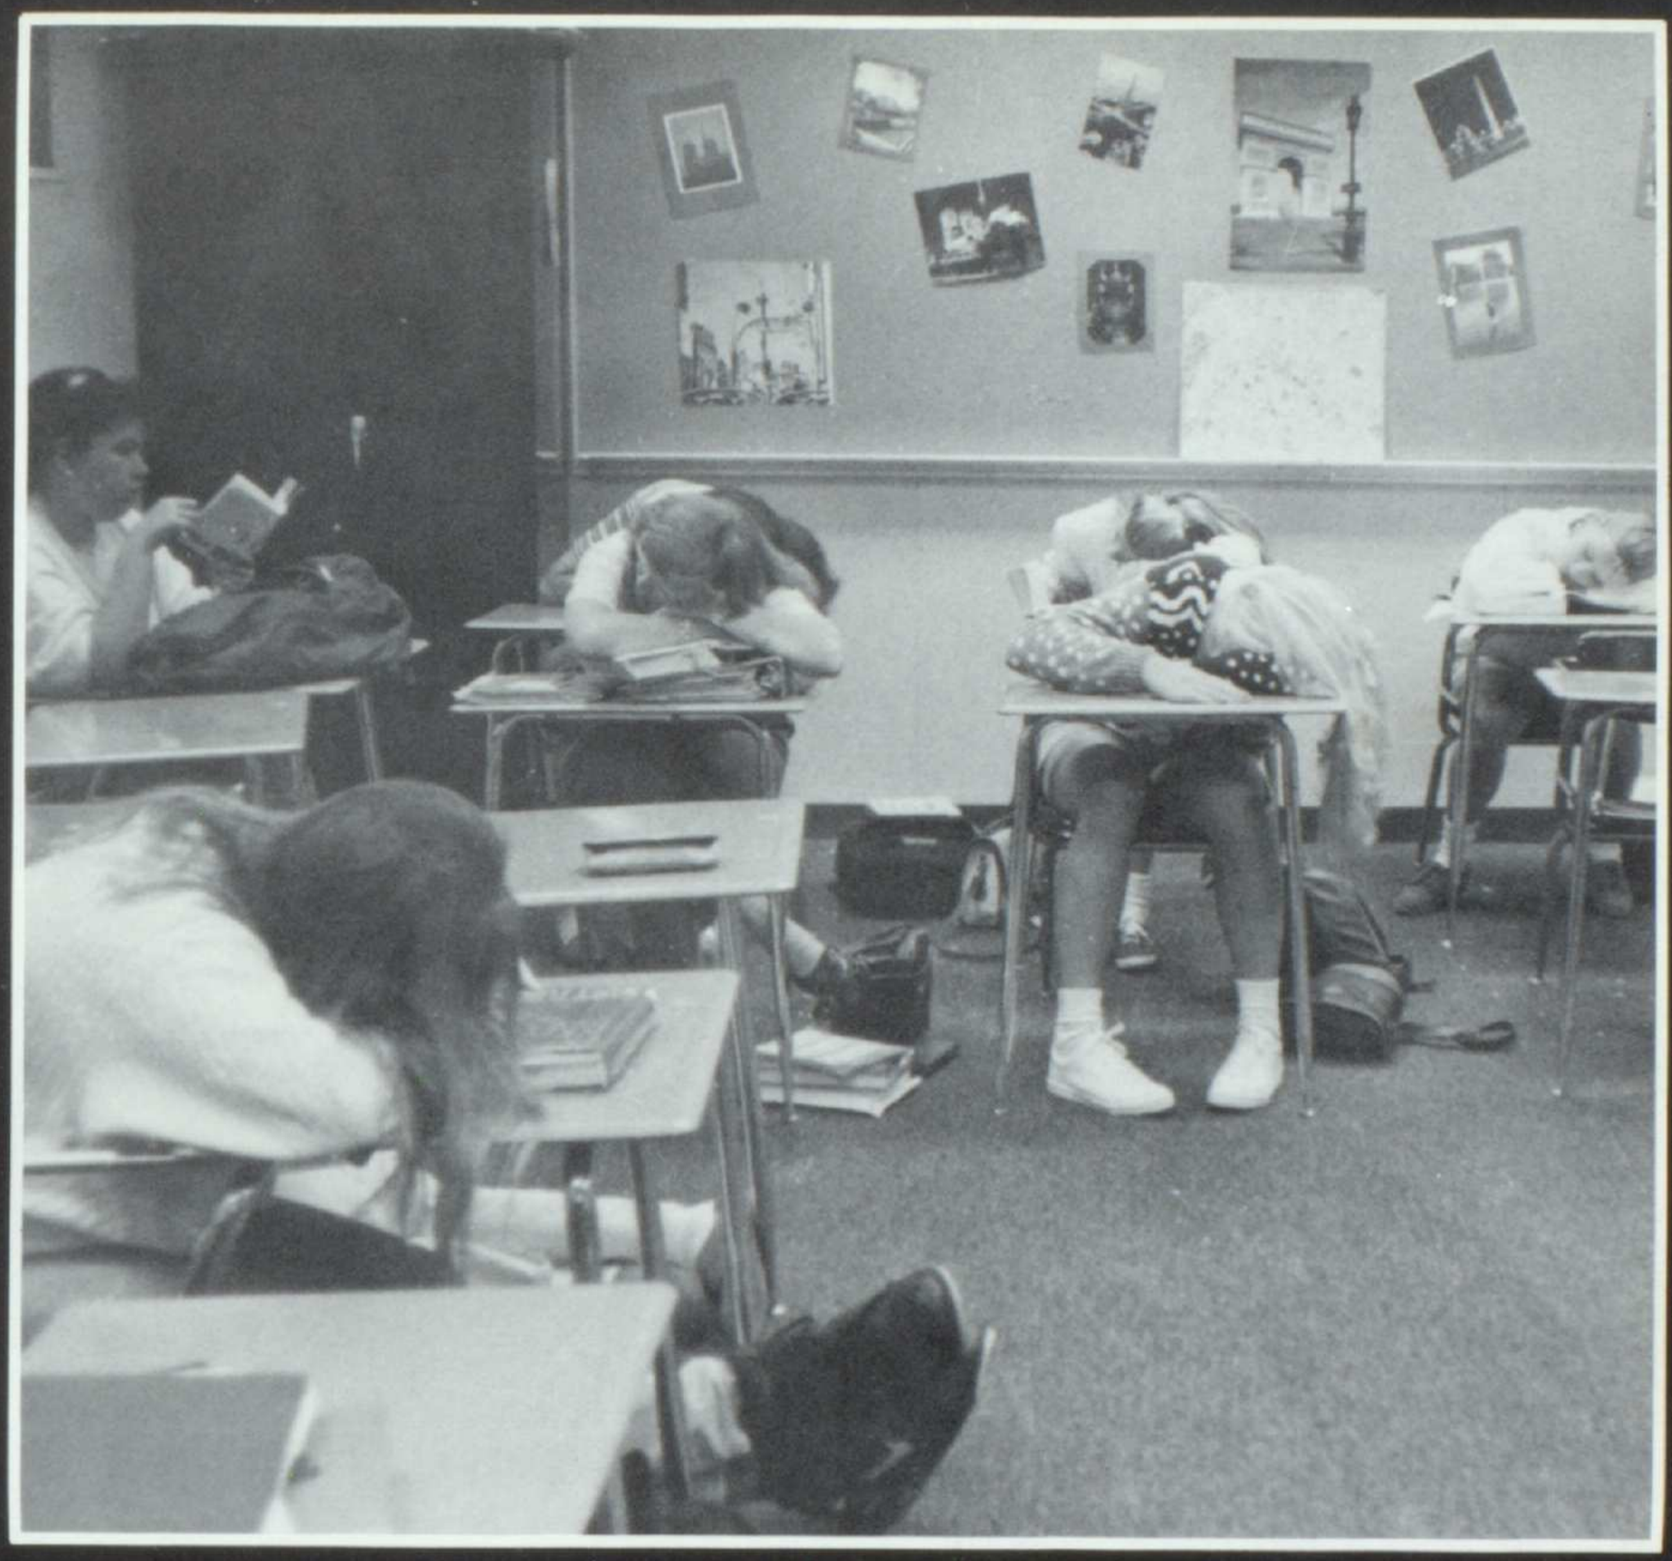


While Phil Steele tries to hold on to his date Amy Stevens, Matt Capsel makes his move.

A typical senior English class are dreaming about their studies while studious Nicole Mitchell stays awake to read.

"Wolves are number one!" says Steve Stansic.

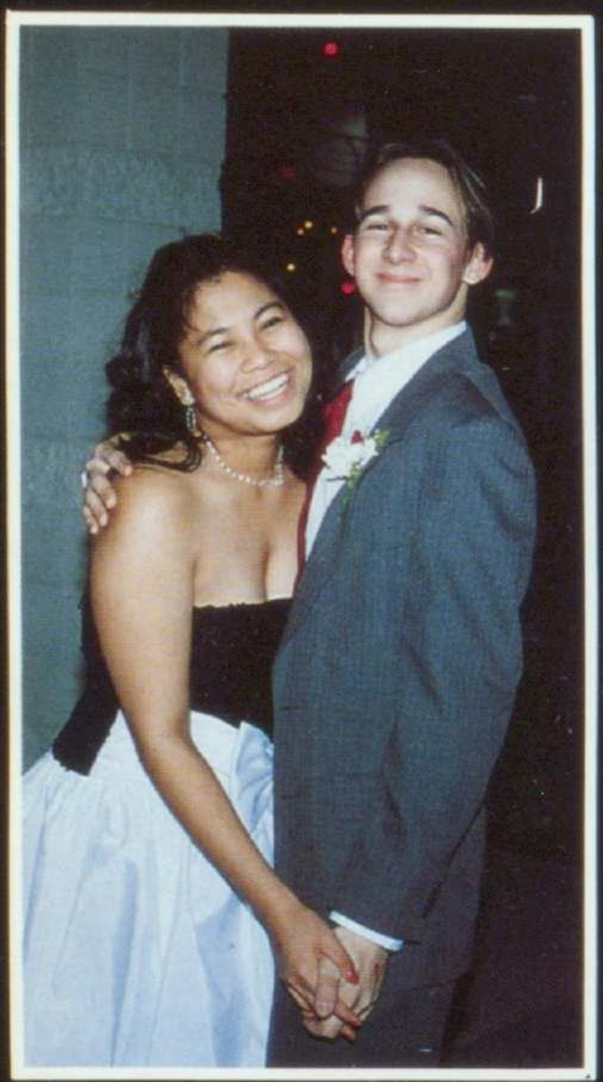


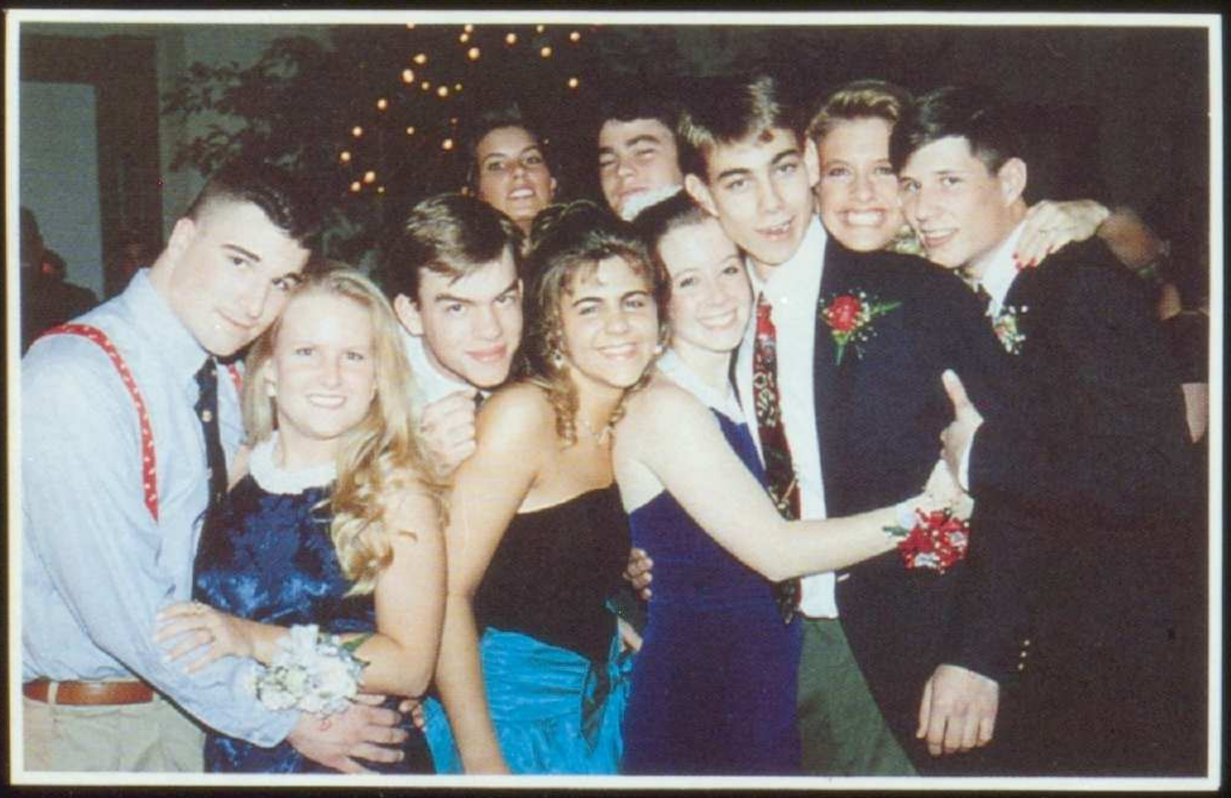


Sporting the new hat look are Michael Gilbert, Ian Brown, and Erin McGuirk.

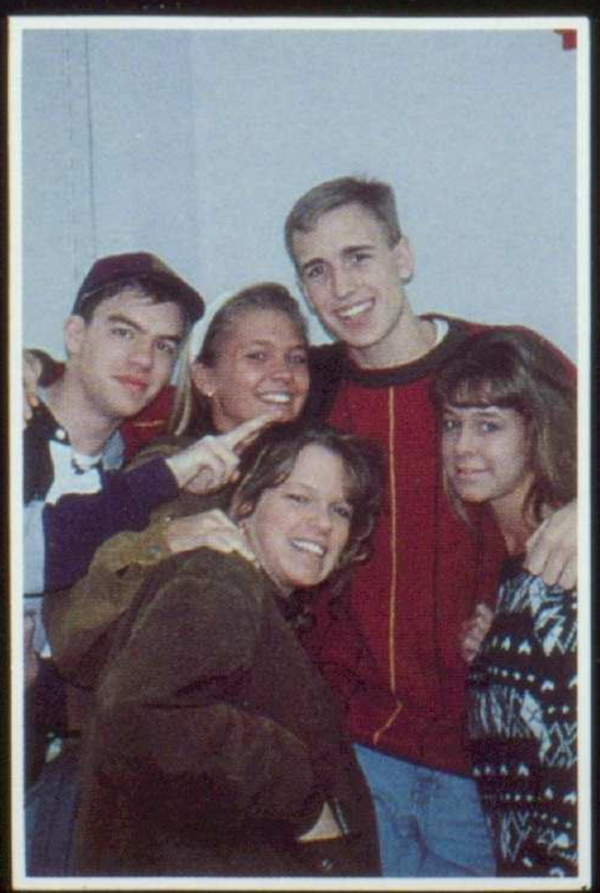
Smiling and trying hard to ignore Jeff Lagusch are Melissa Bell, Mike Schmitz, Kristi Donlon, and Derek Richardson.

All dressed up and ready to go are Cheryl Panaligan and David Brill.





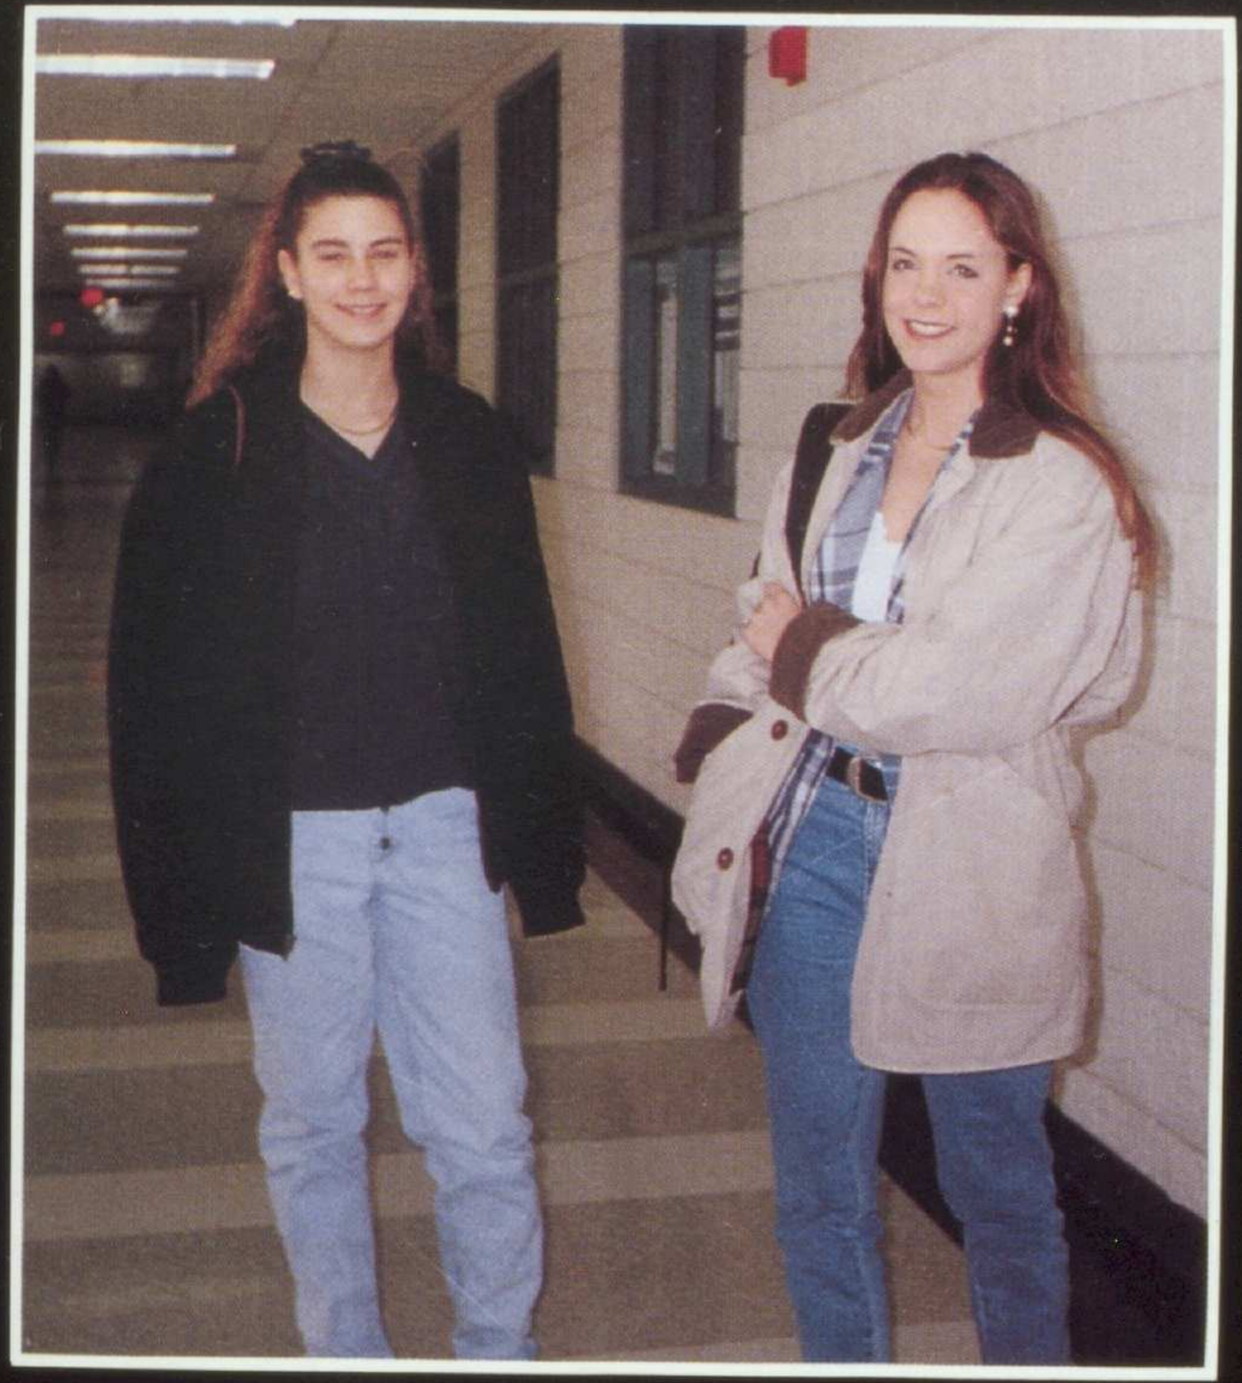
Undoubtedly enjoying themselves are seniors Todd Amos, Emily May, Ed Bensen, Sara Freund, Ashley Norris, Shawn Williamson, Jessica McGurk, Dave Luedeke, Heather Hanna, and Mark Schumacher.



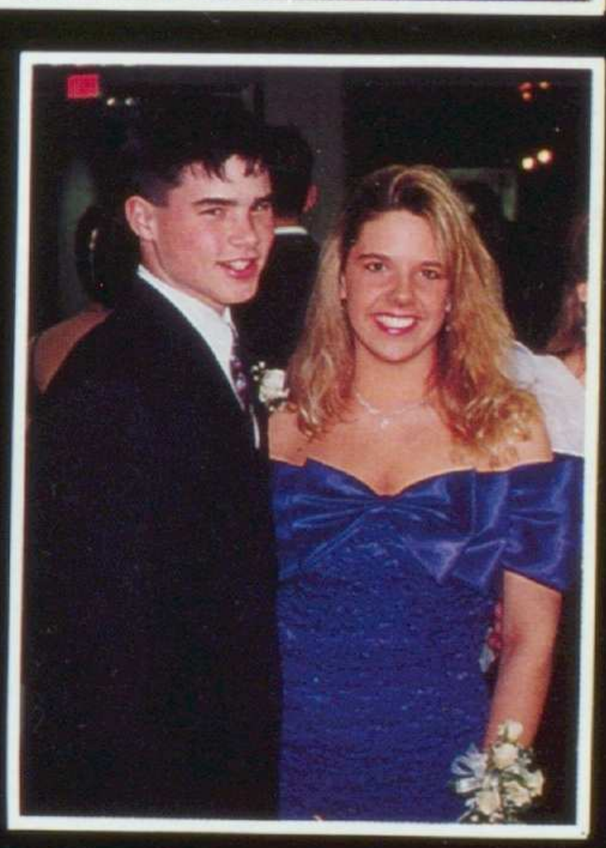
Charm radiates from Suzanne Piero as she pauses to smile for the camera.

Out in the hall instead of in class are Ed Bensen, Kate Chitwood, Stephanie Shaver, Brian Irwin, and Kim Goad.

Are these two, Latisha Ligget and Andrea Ireland, caught in the act of cutting class? Their smiles say "No way!"



Fired up for the pep rally are fans, Karin Boerger, Tiffany King, Kate Chitwood, Kim Goad, Lynn Gesler, Stephanie Shaver, Laura Tobbe and Kristi Donlon.

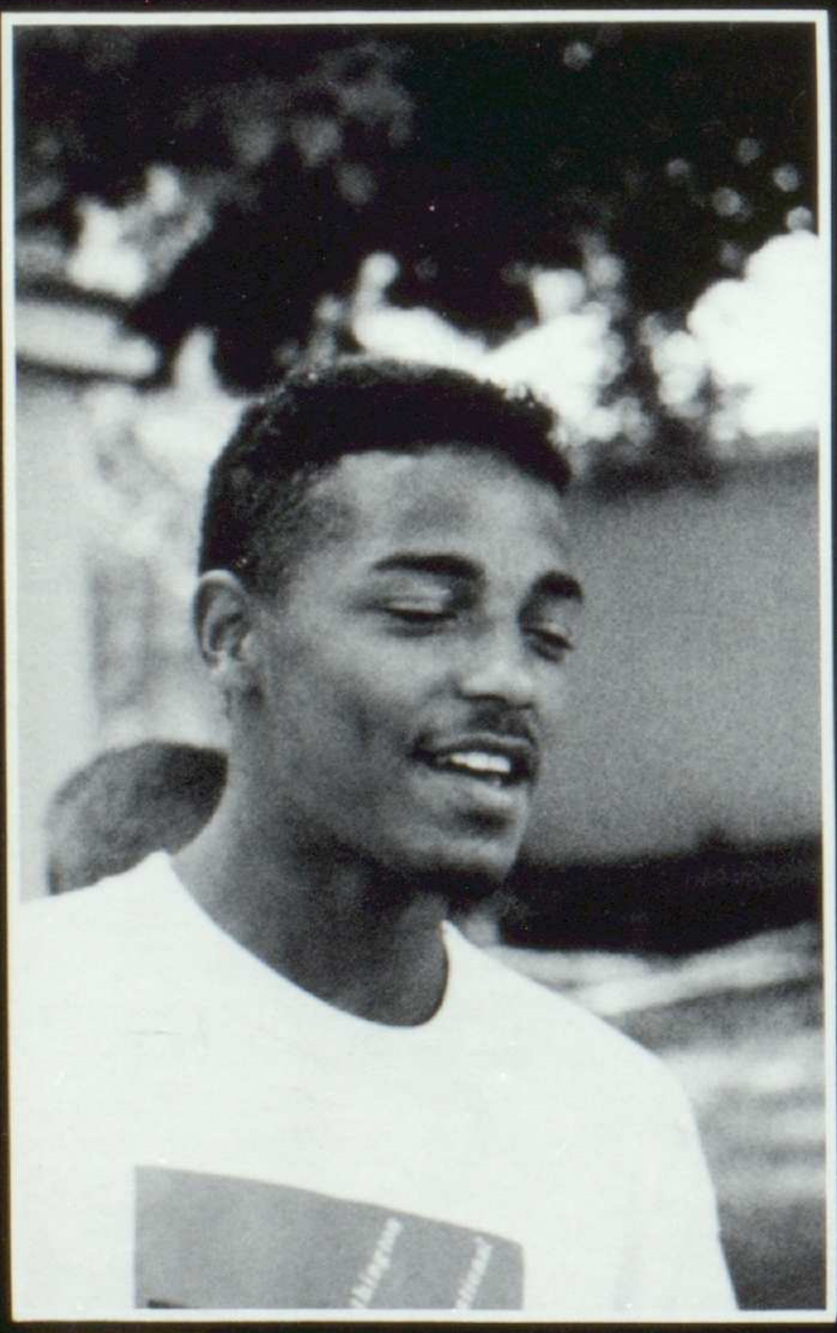


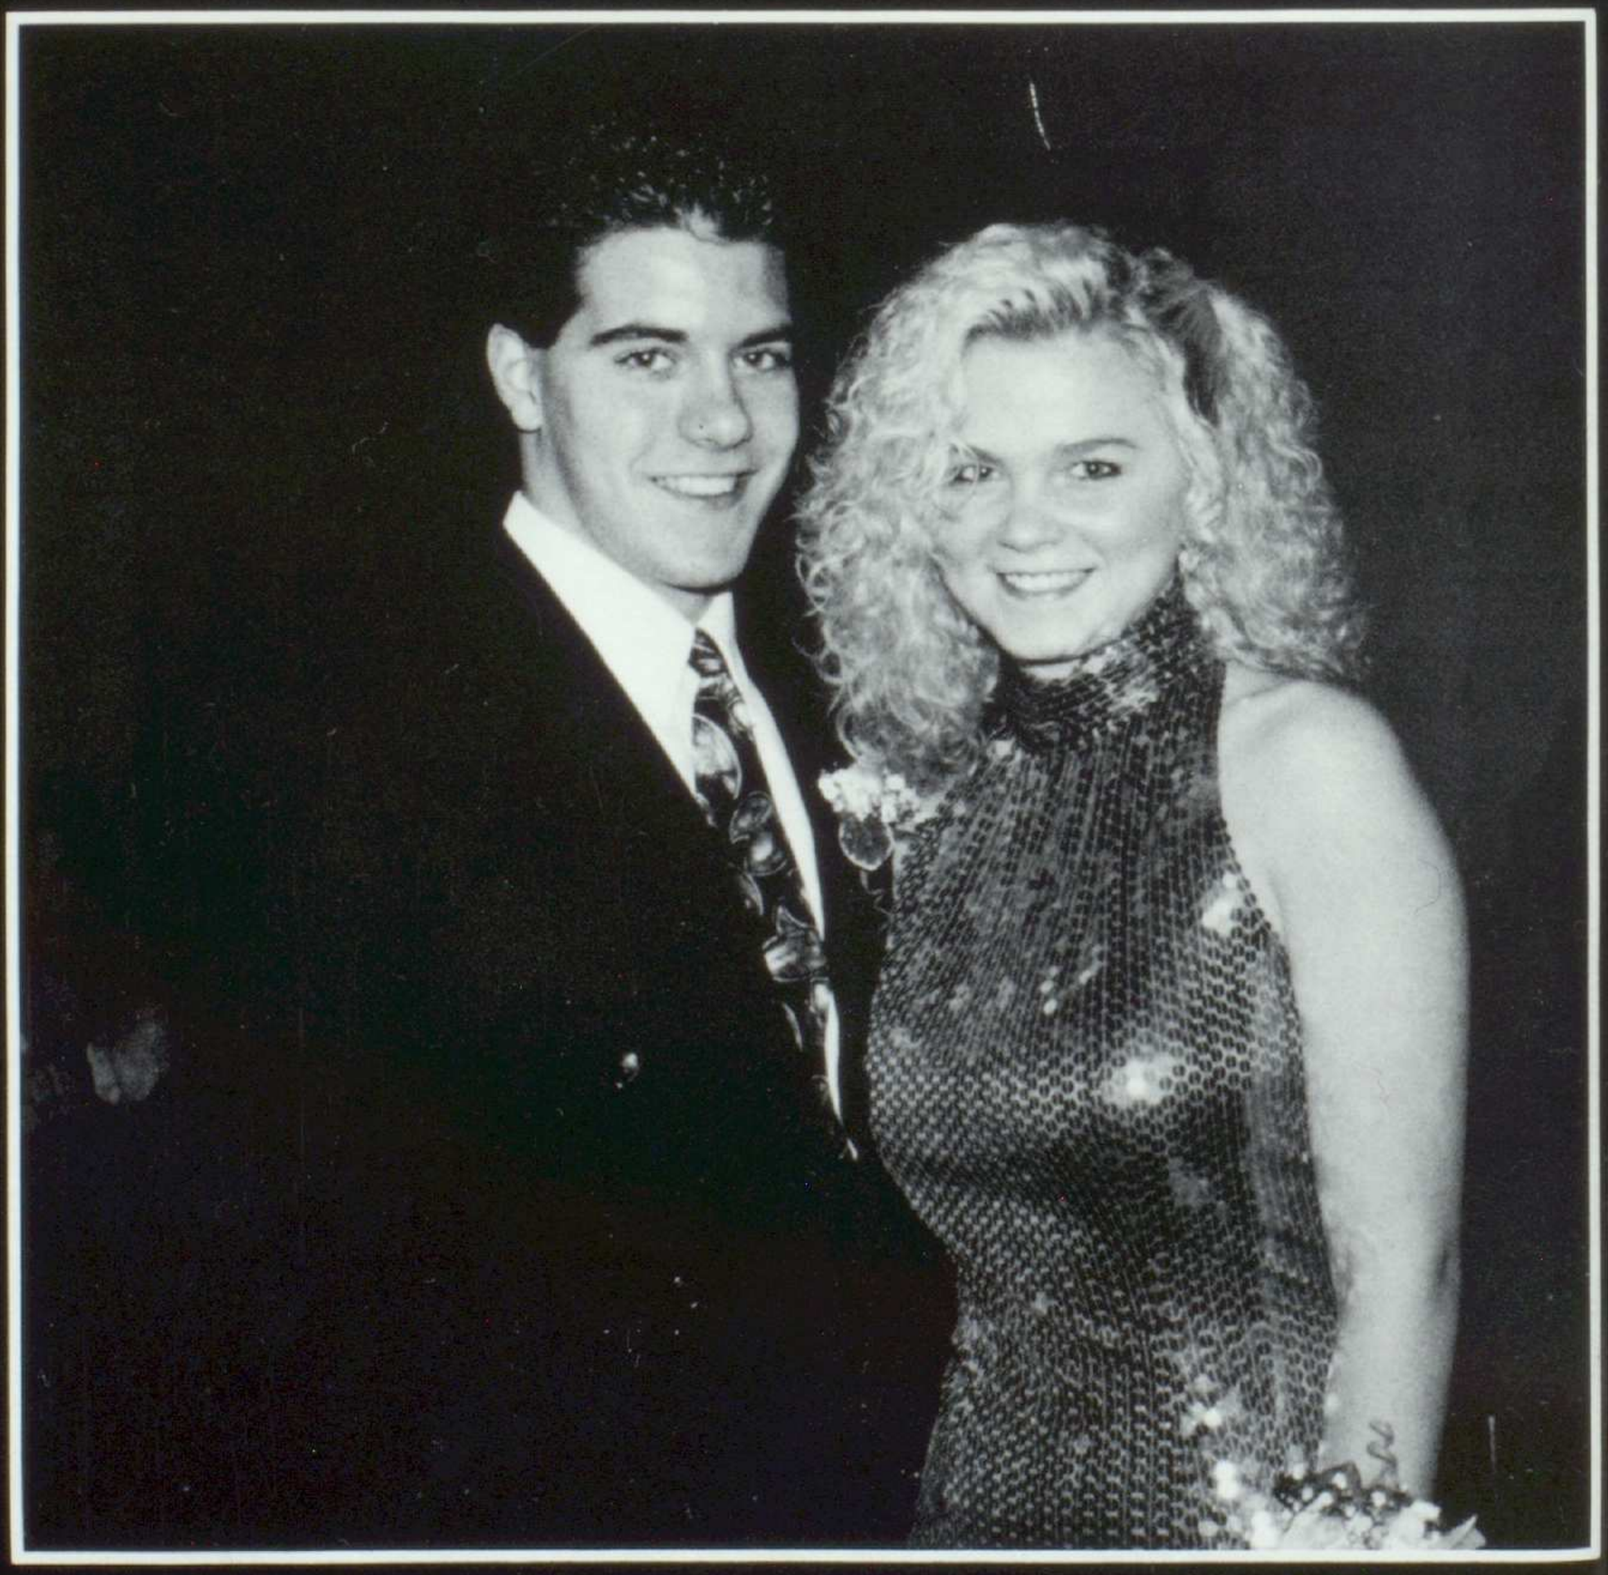
Arriving at the Valentine's dance are John Postlethwait and Kim Lyons.

Having a great time playing volleyball at the senior picnic are Adam Branson, Tracy Mackin, John Basom, Darren Baldwin, Michele Setzer, Jamie Tyack. Jeff Todd, Darian Hunter, Danielle Frantz, Kerrie Towler, and Brian Waltermire.

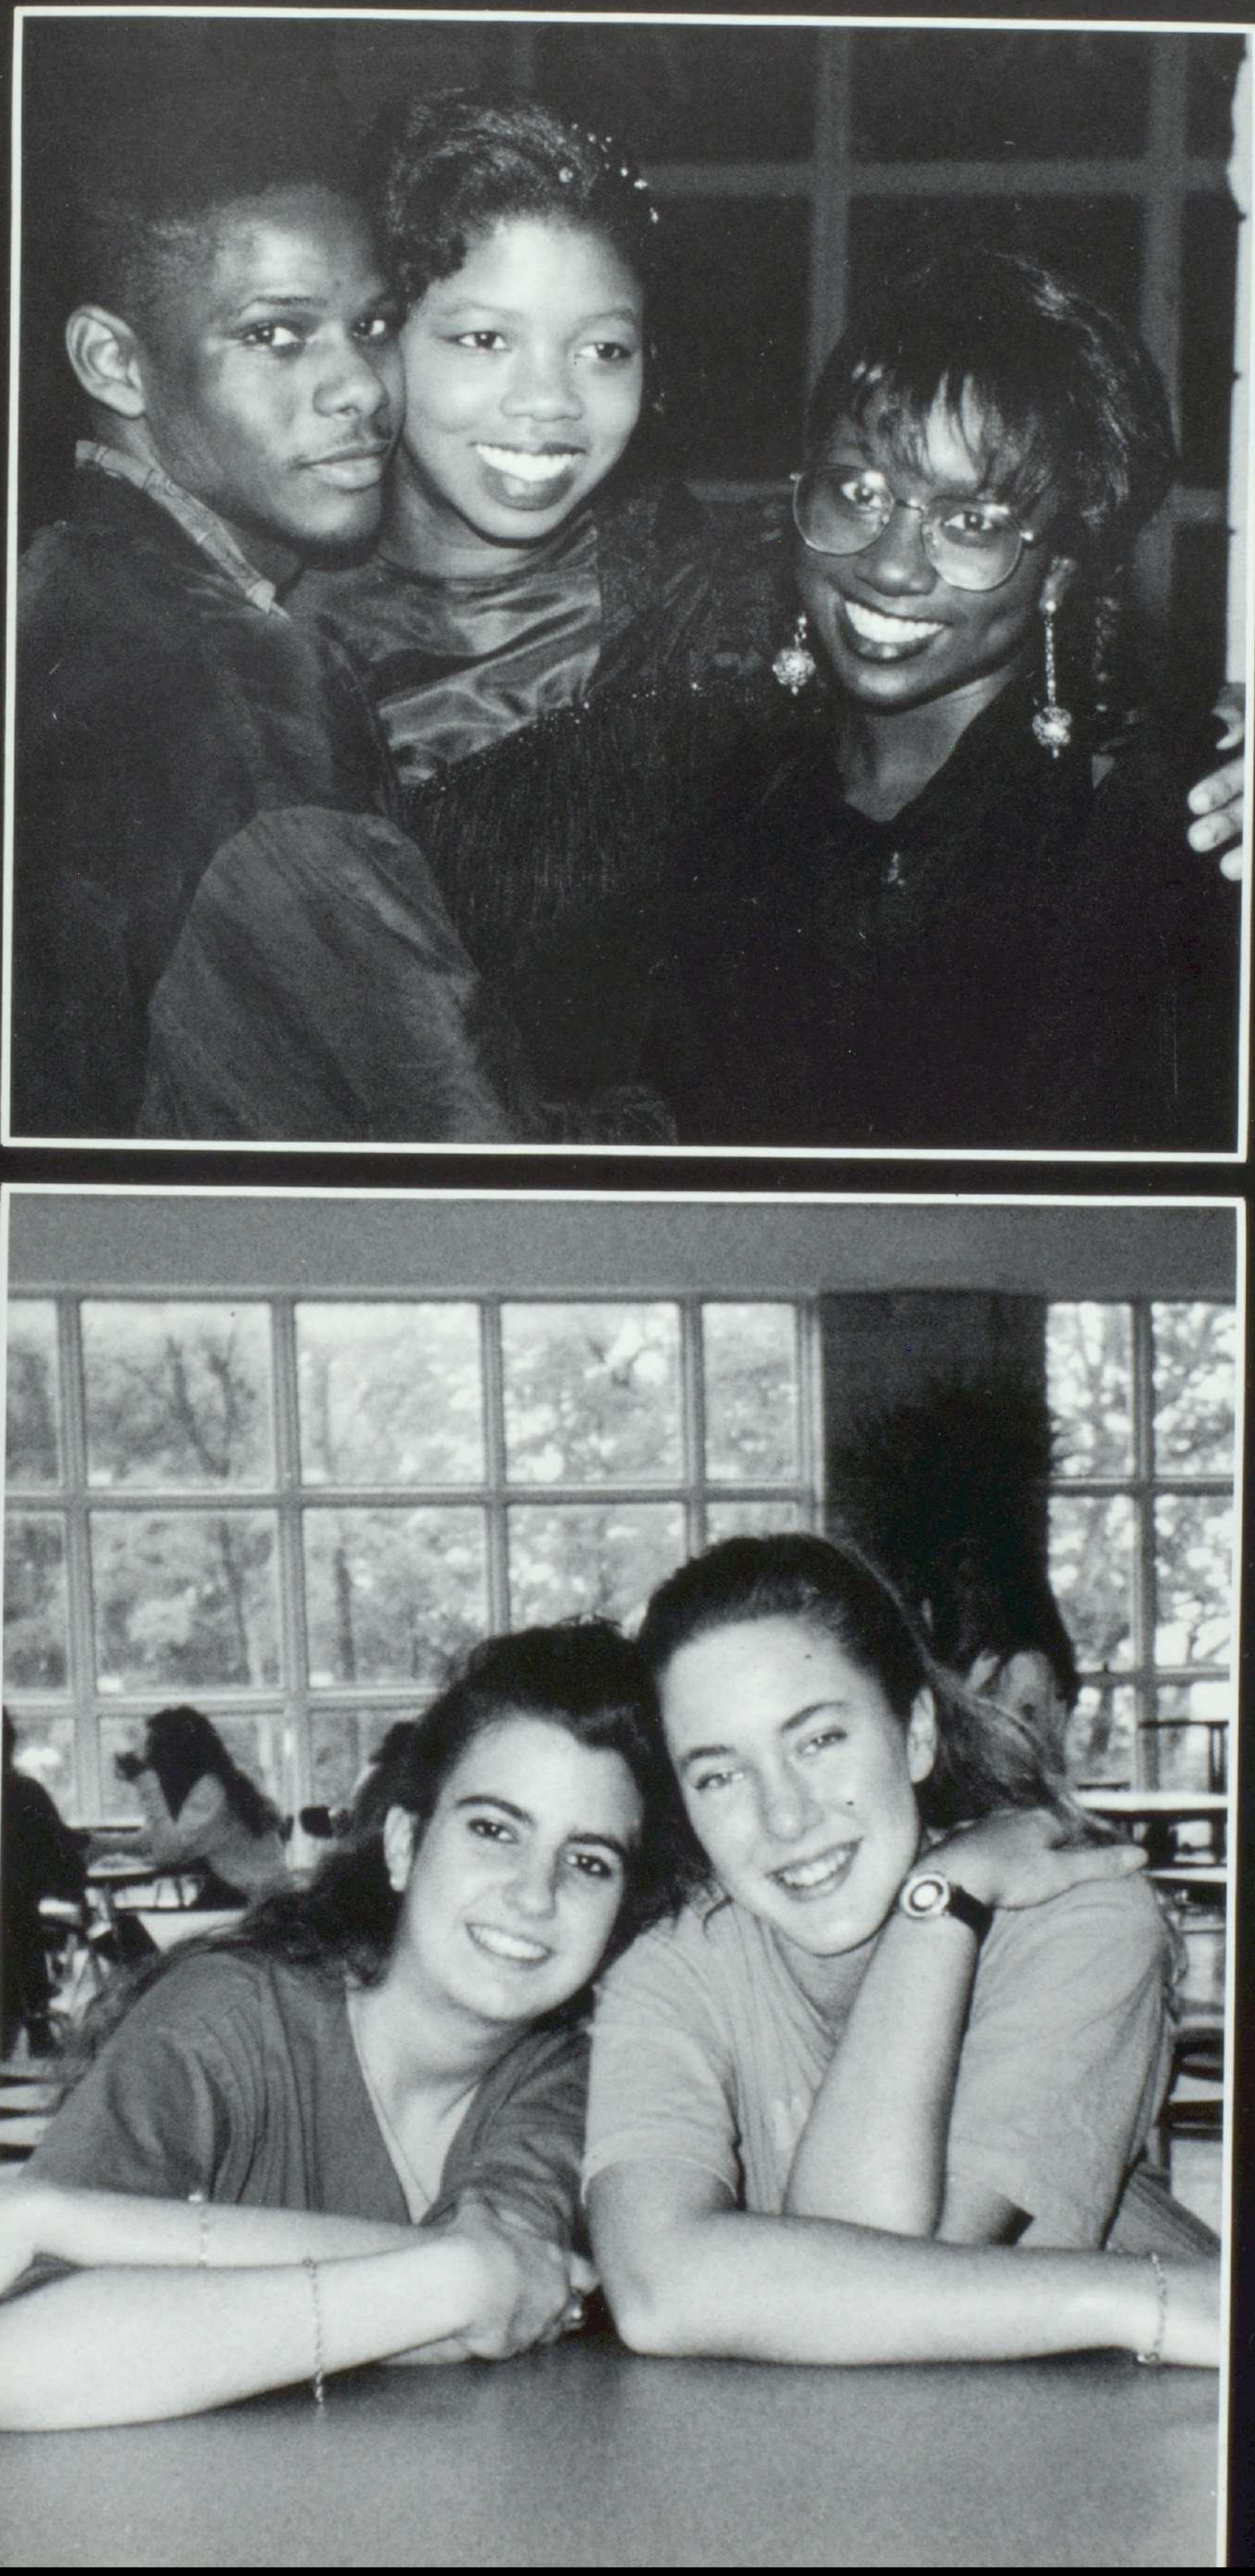
"We dress alike, we sit alike, we even smile alike," say Emerson Lisboa and Liz Reed.

Trying hard not to sneeze, Aaron Smith pauses to try and hold it back.



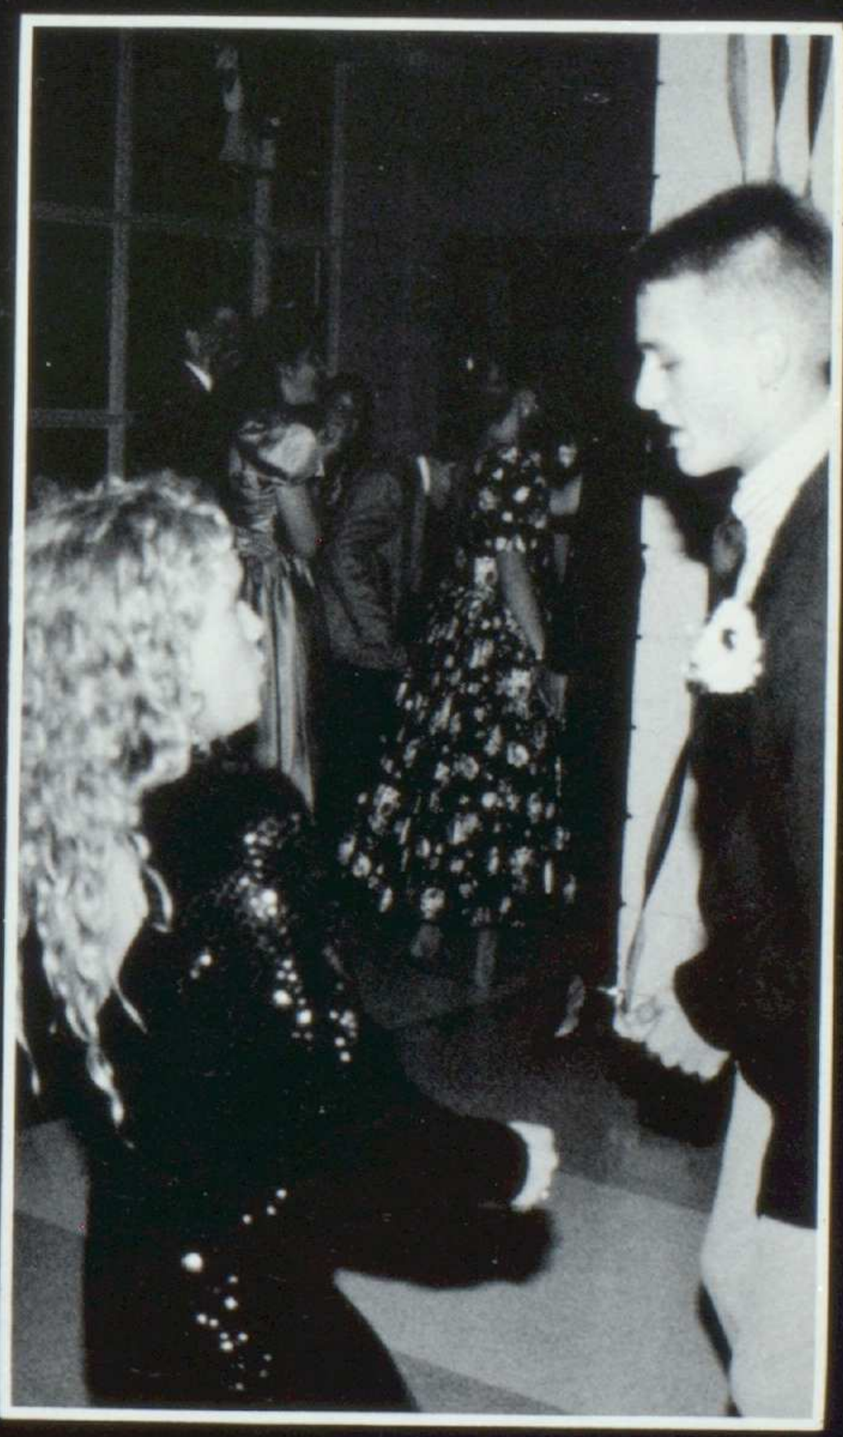


Anxious to hit the dance floor and start having some fun, Tiffany King and her date pose for a quick picture.



Enjoying one another's company and posing for a group hug are Tyronza Bailey, her date and Adrian Hancock.

Is Josh Wyen feeling the pressure of graduation or what?



Competing in the Saturday night dance fever contest is Suzanne Piero and Michael Gilbert.

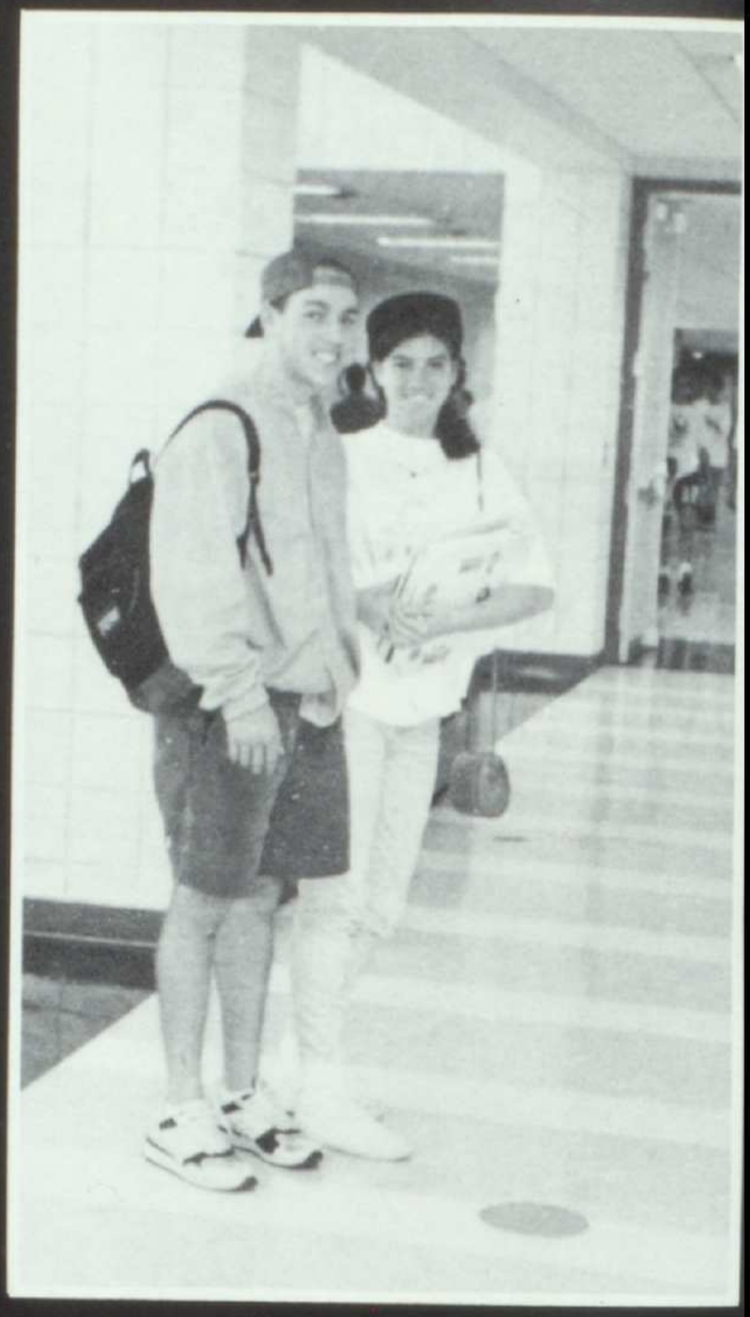
Tragically connected at the head from birth, Amy Stevens and Kim Morgan grin and bear it.

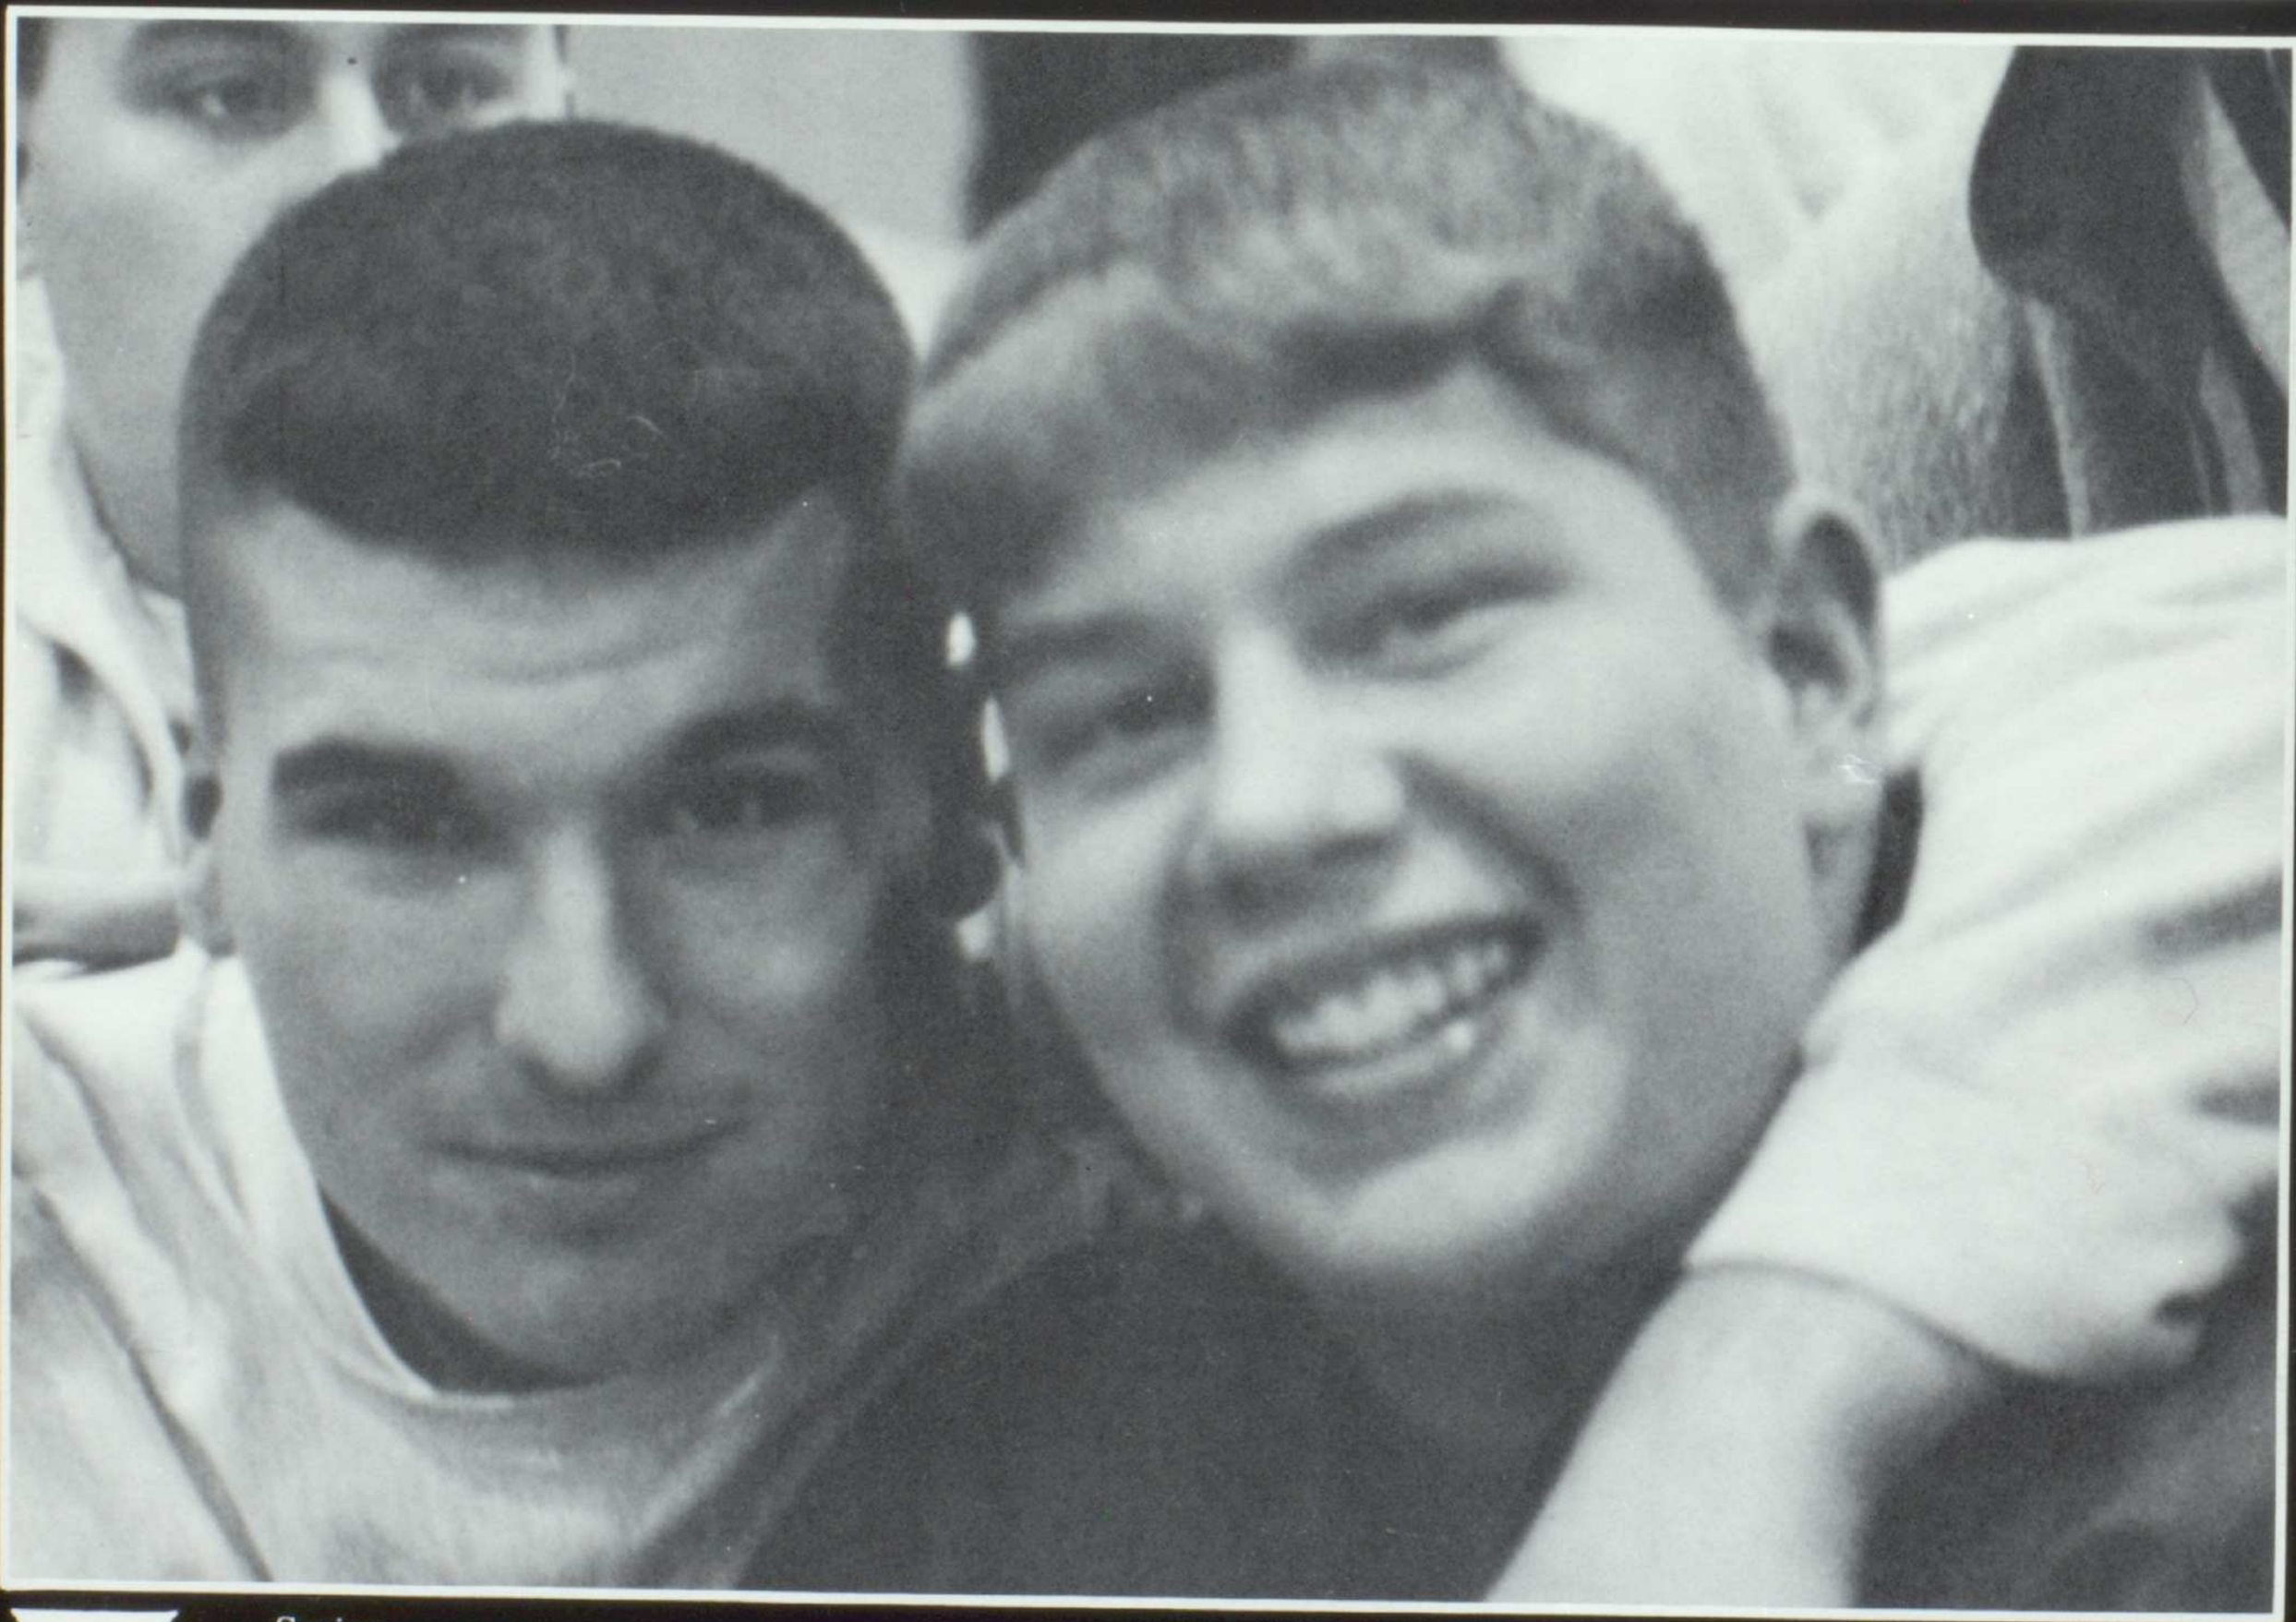
Class

Of 1993

Showing us what friendship is all about are Karin Boerger and Smita Sahai.

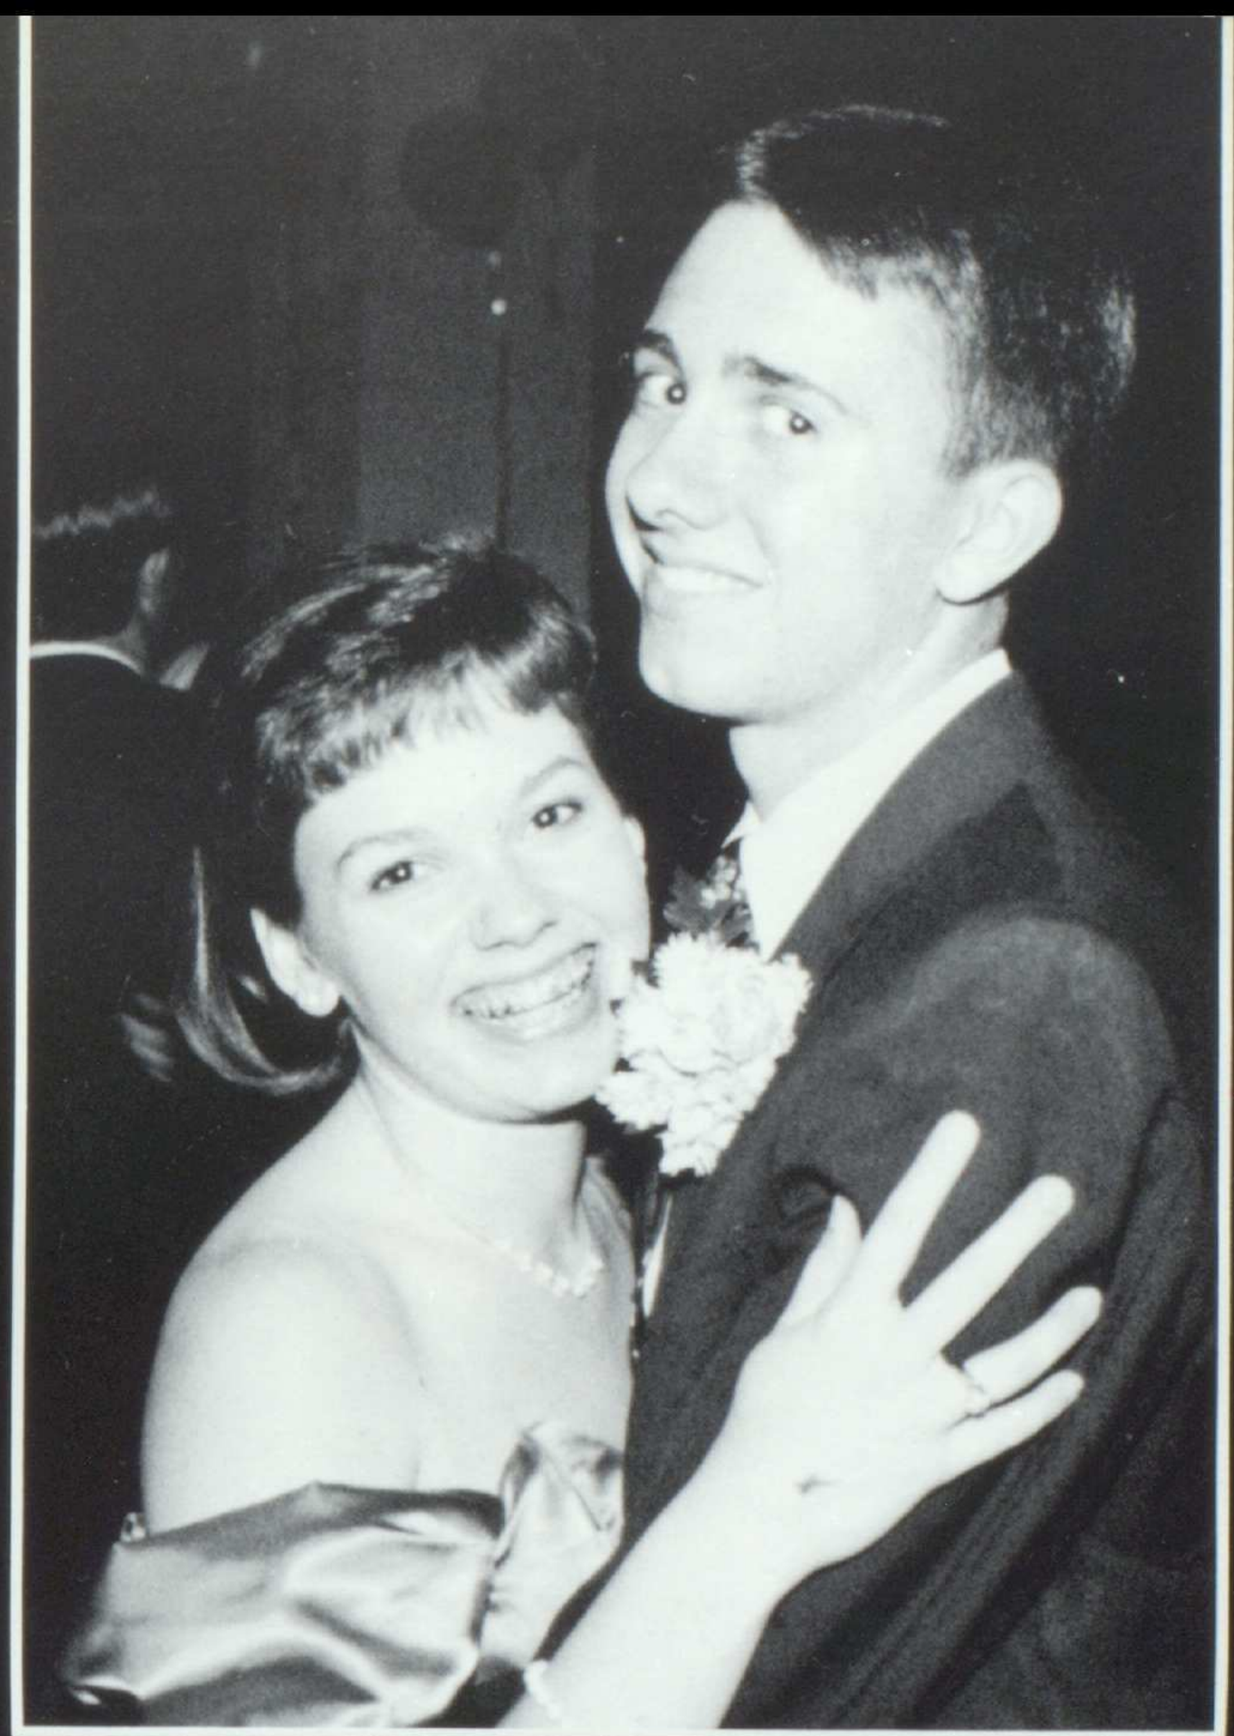
Once again seen together are Scott Nowell and Sheri Coy.

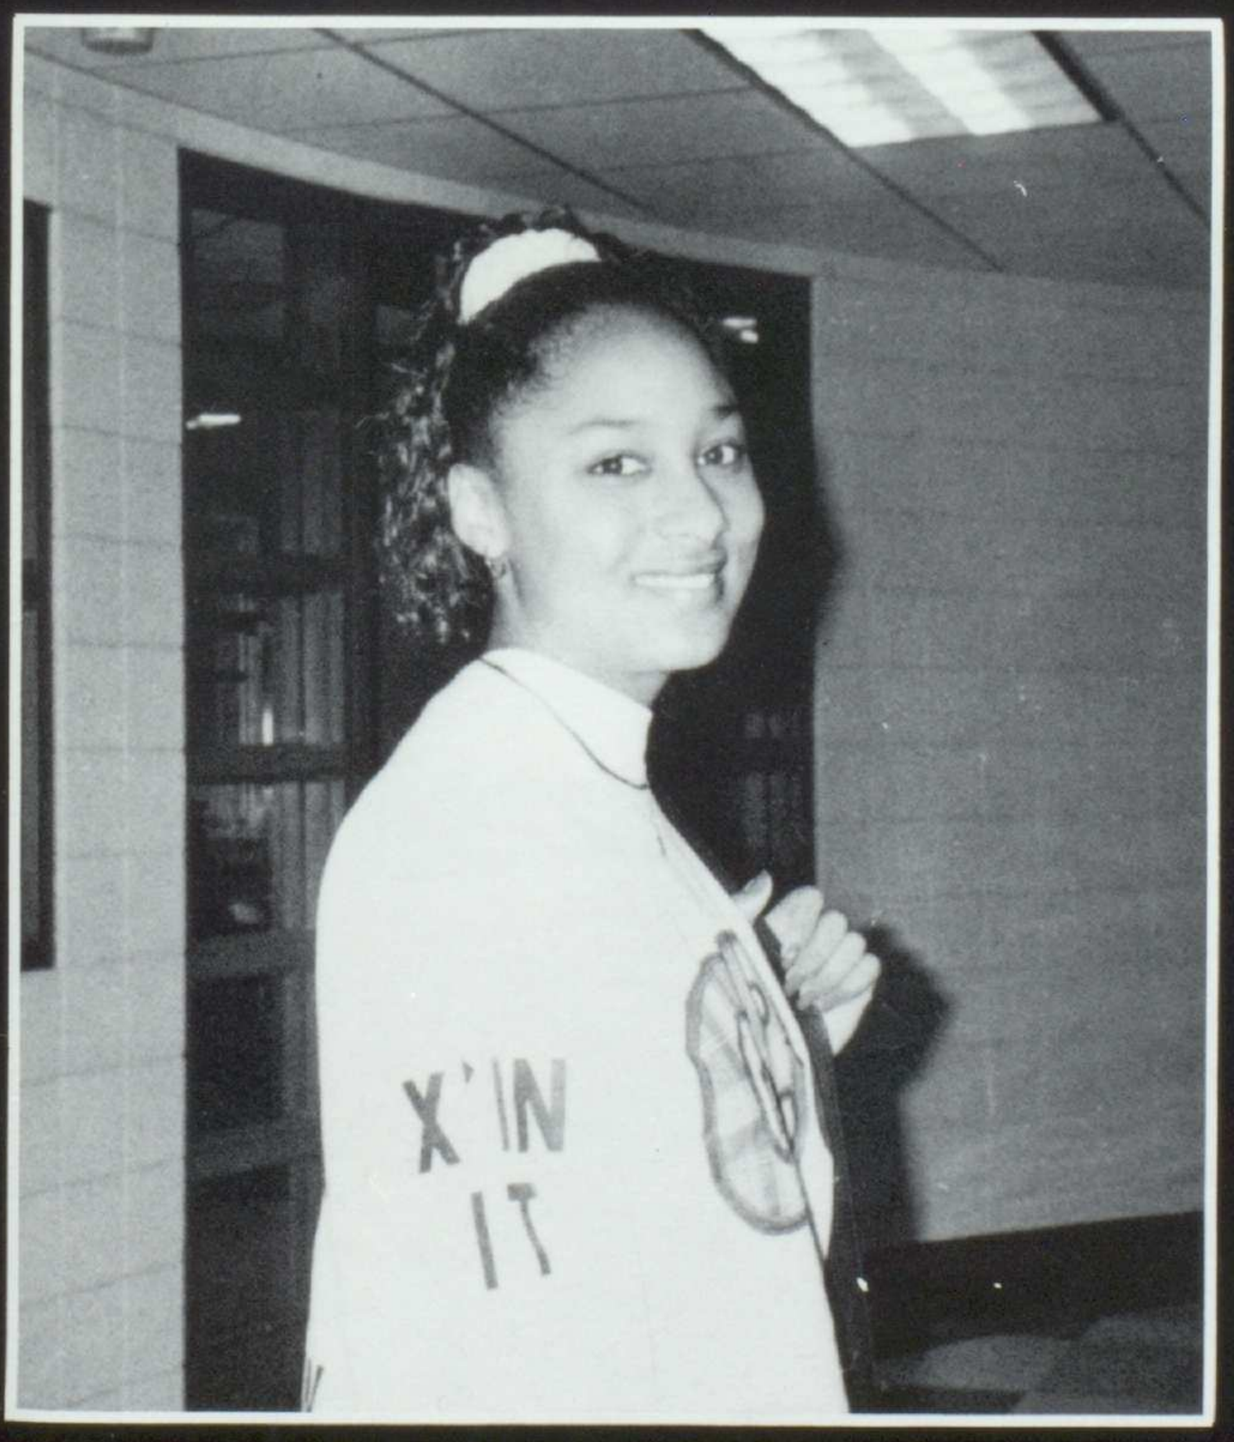




Not afraid to let everyone know how close they are, Todd Amos gives Todd Cowie a hug.

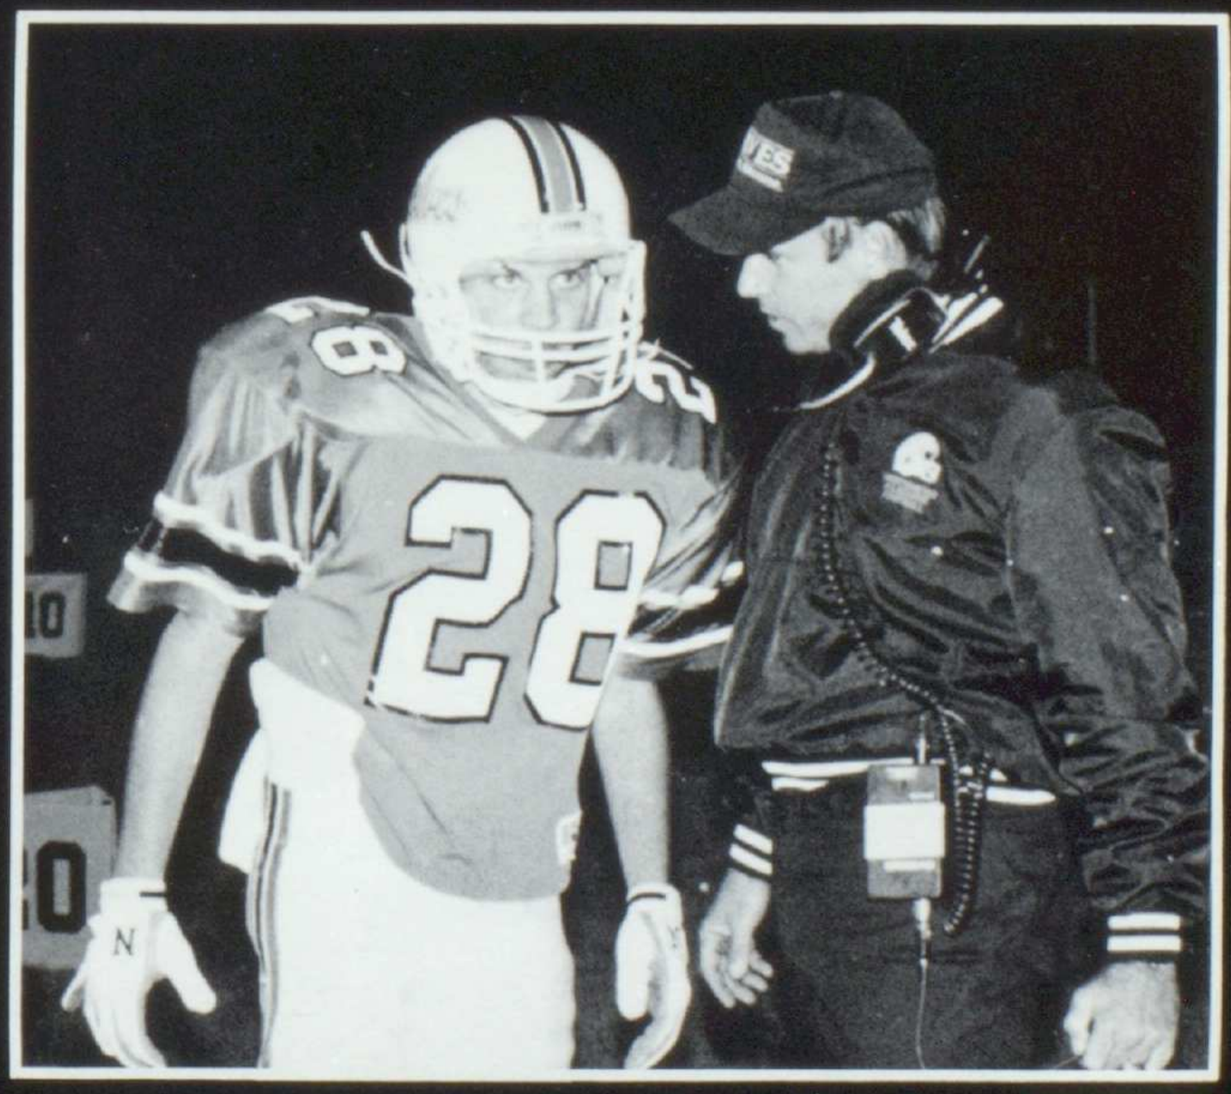
Look sharp, wrestle sharp is John Basom's and Jason Allen's philosophy.





Nothing can keep Amy Delbert and Joe Schroff from dancing the night away.

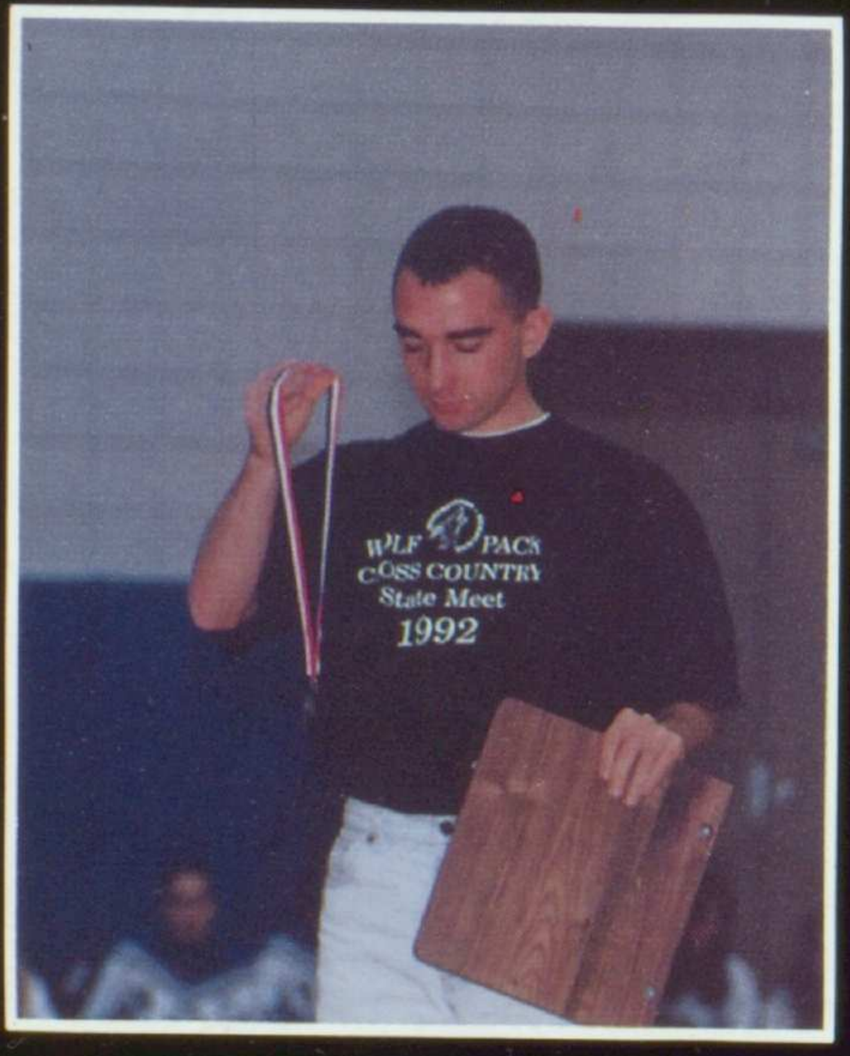
During a big game Mark Baldwin goes to the sideline to receive advice from Coach Gafford.



"I will smile only because I have to smile," mumbles Janine Hancock.

Boy, Shawn Tiller really seems to be on top of things.

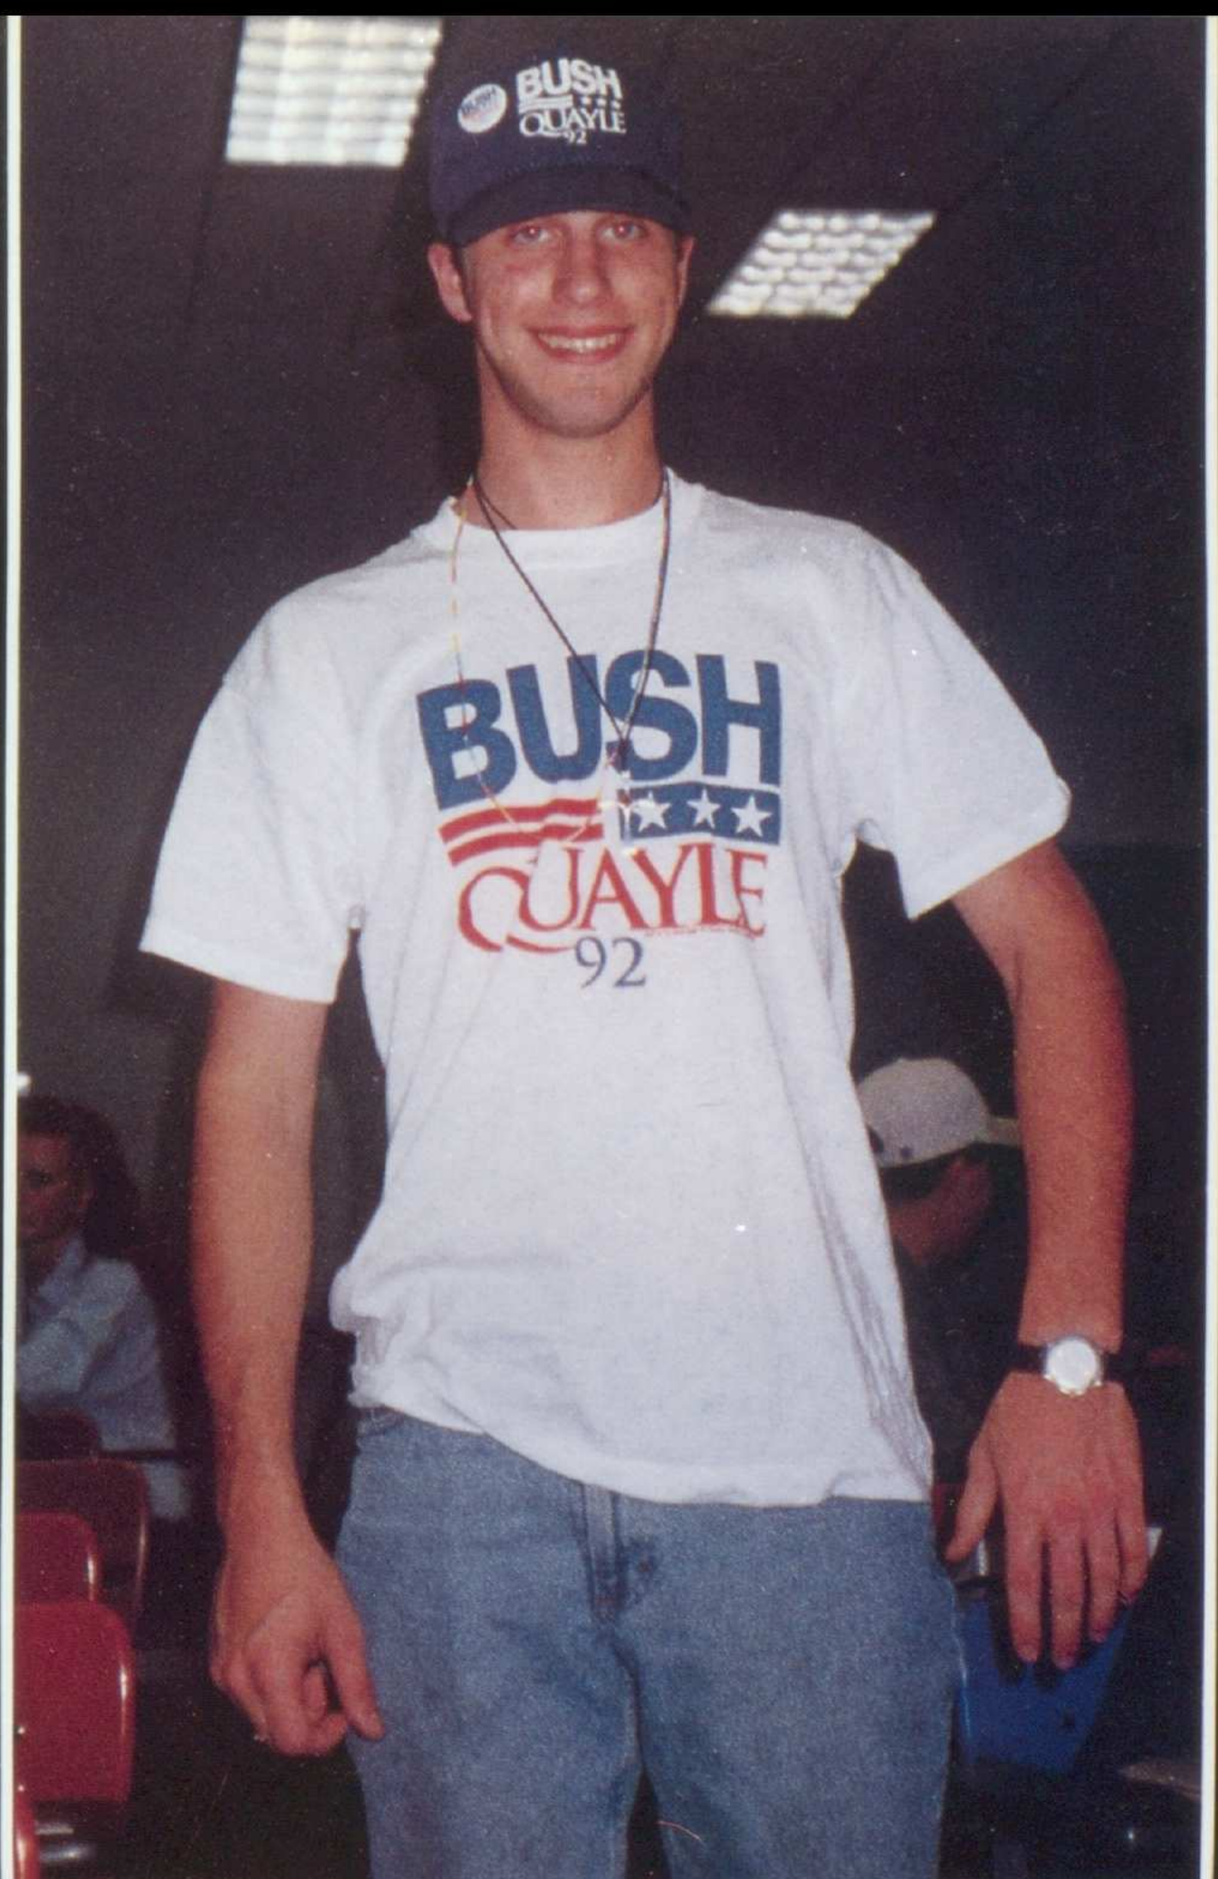
Just hanging out in the commons are Ron Tang, Liz Reed, and Shawn Gawel.

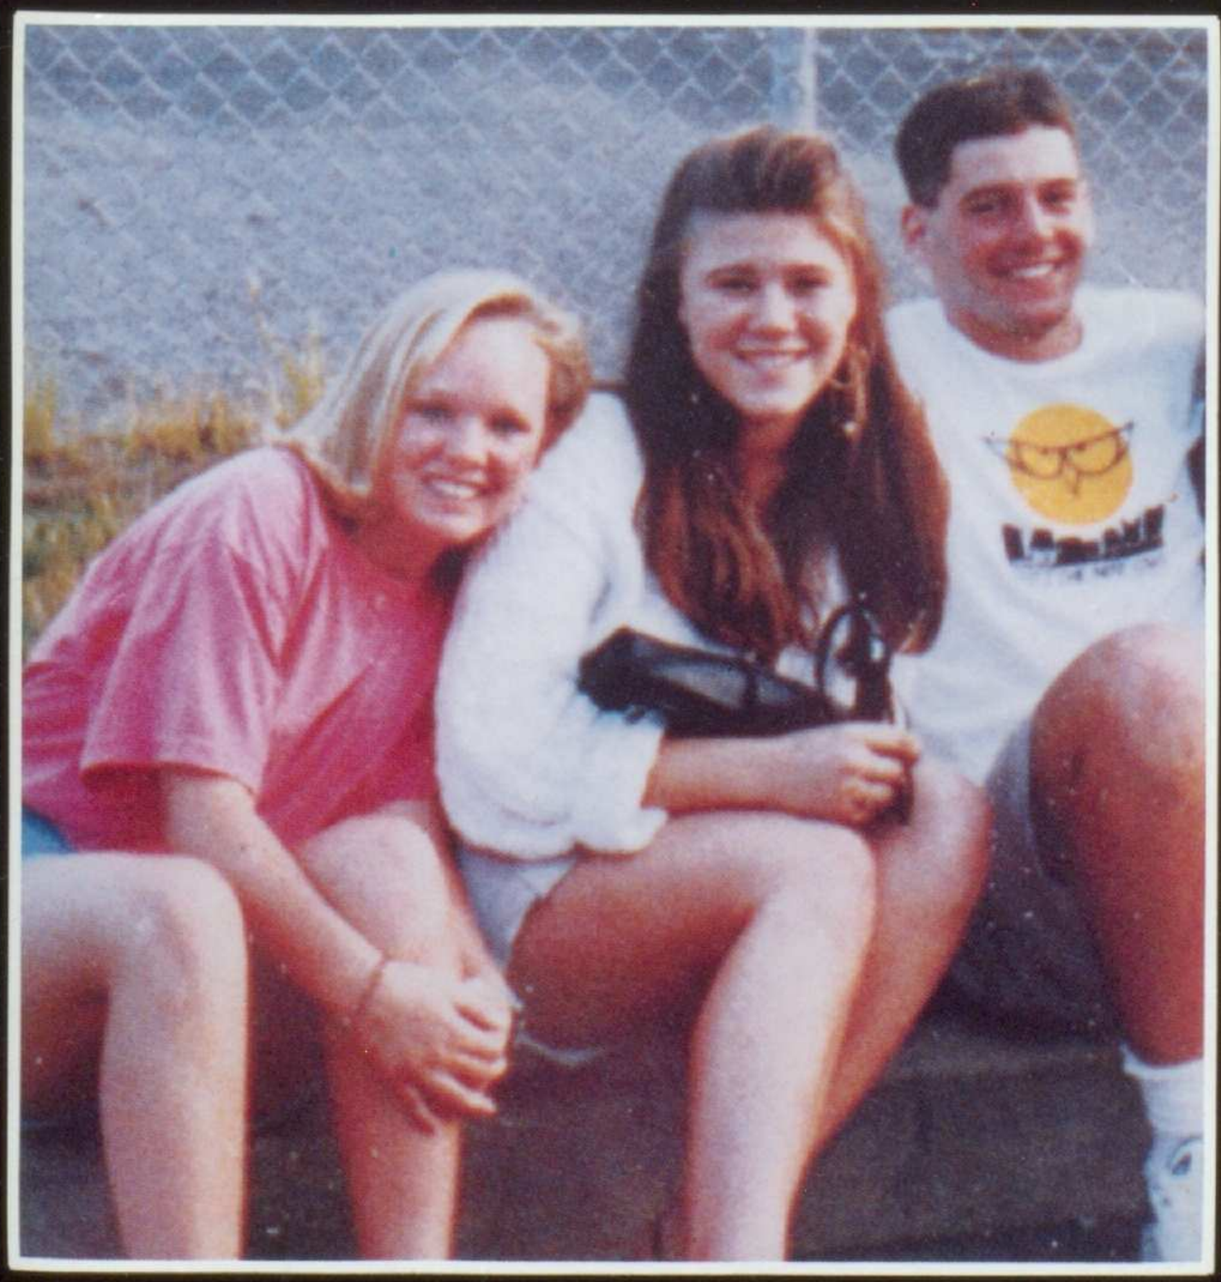


Happy to have had such a good season, captain of the Cross Country team John Kirby receives his awards.

Giving the camera a thumbs-up, Matt Vermillion smiles openly while Joe Palcic attempts to maintain his well-known "Attitude."

Who do you think Nate Davis supported in the 1992 Presidential campaign?

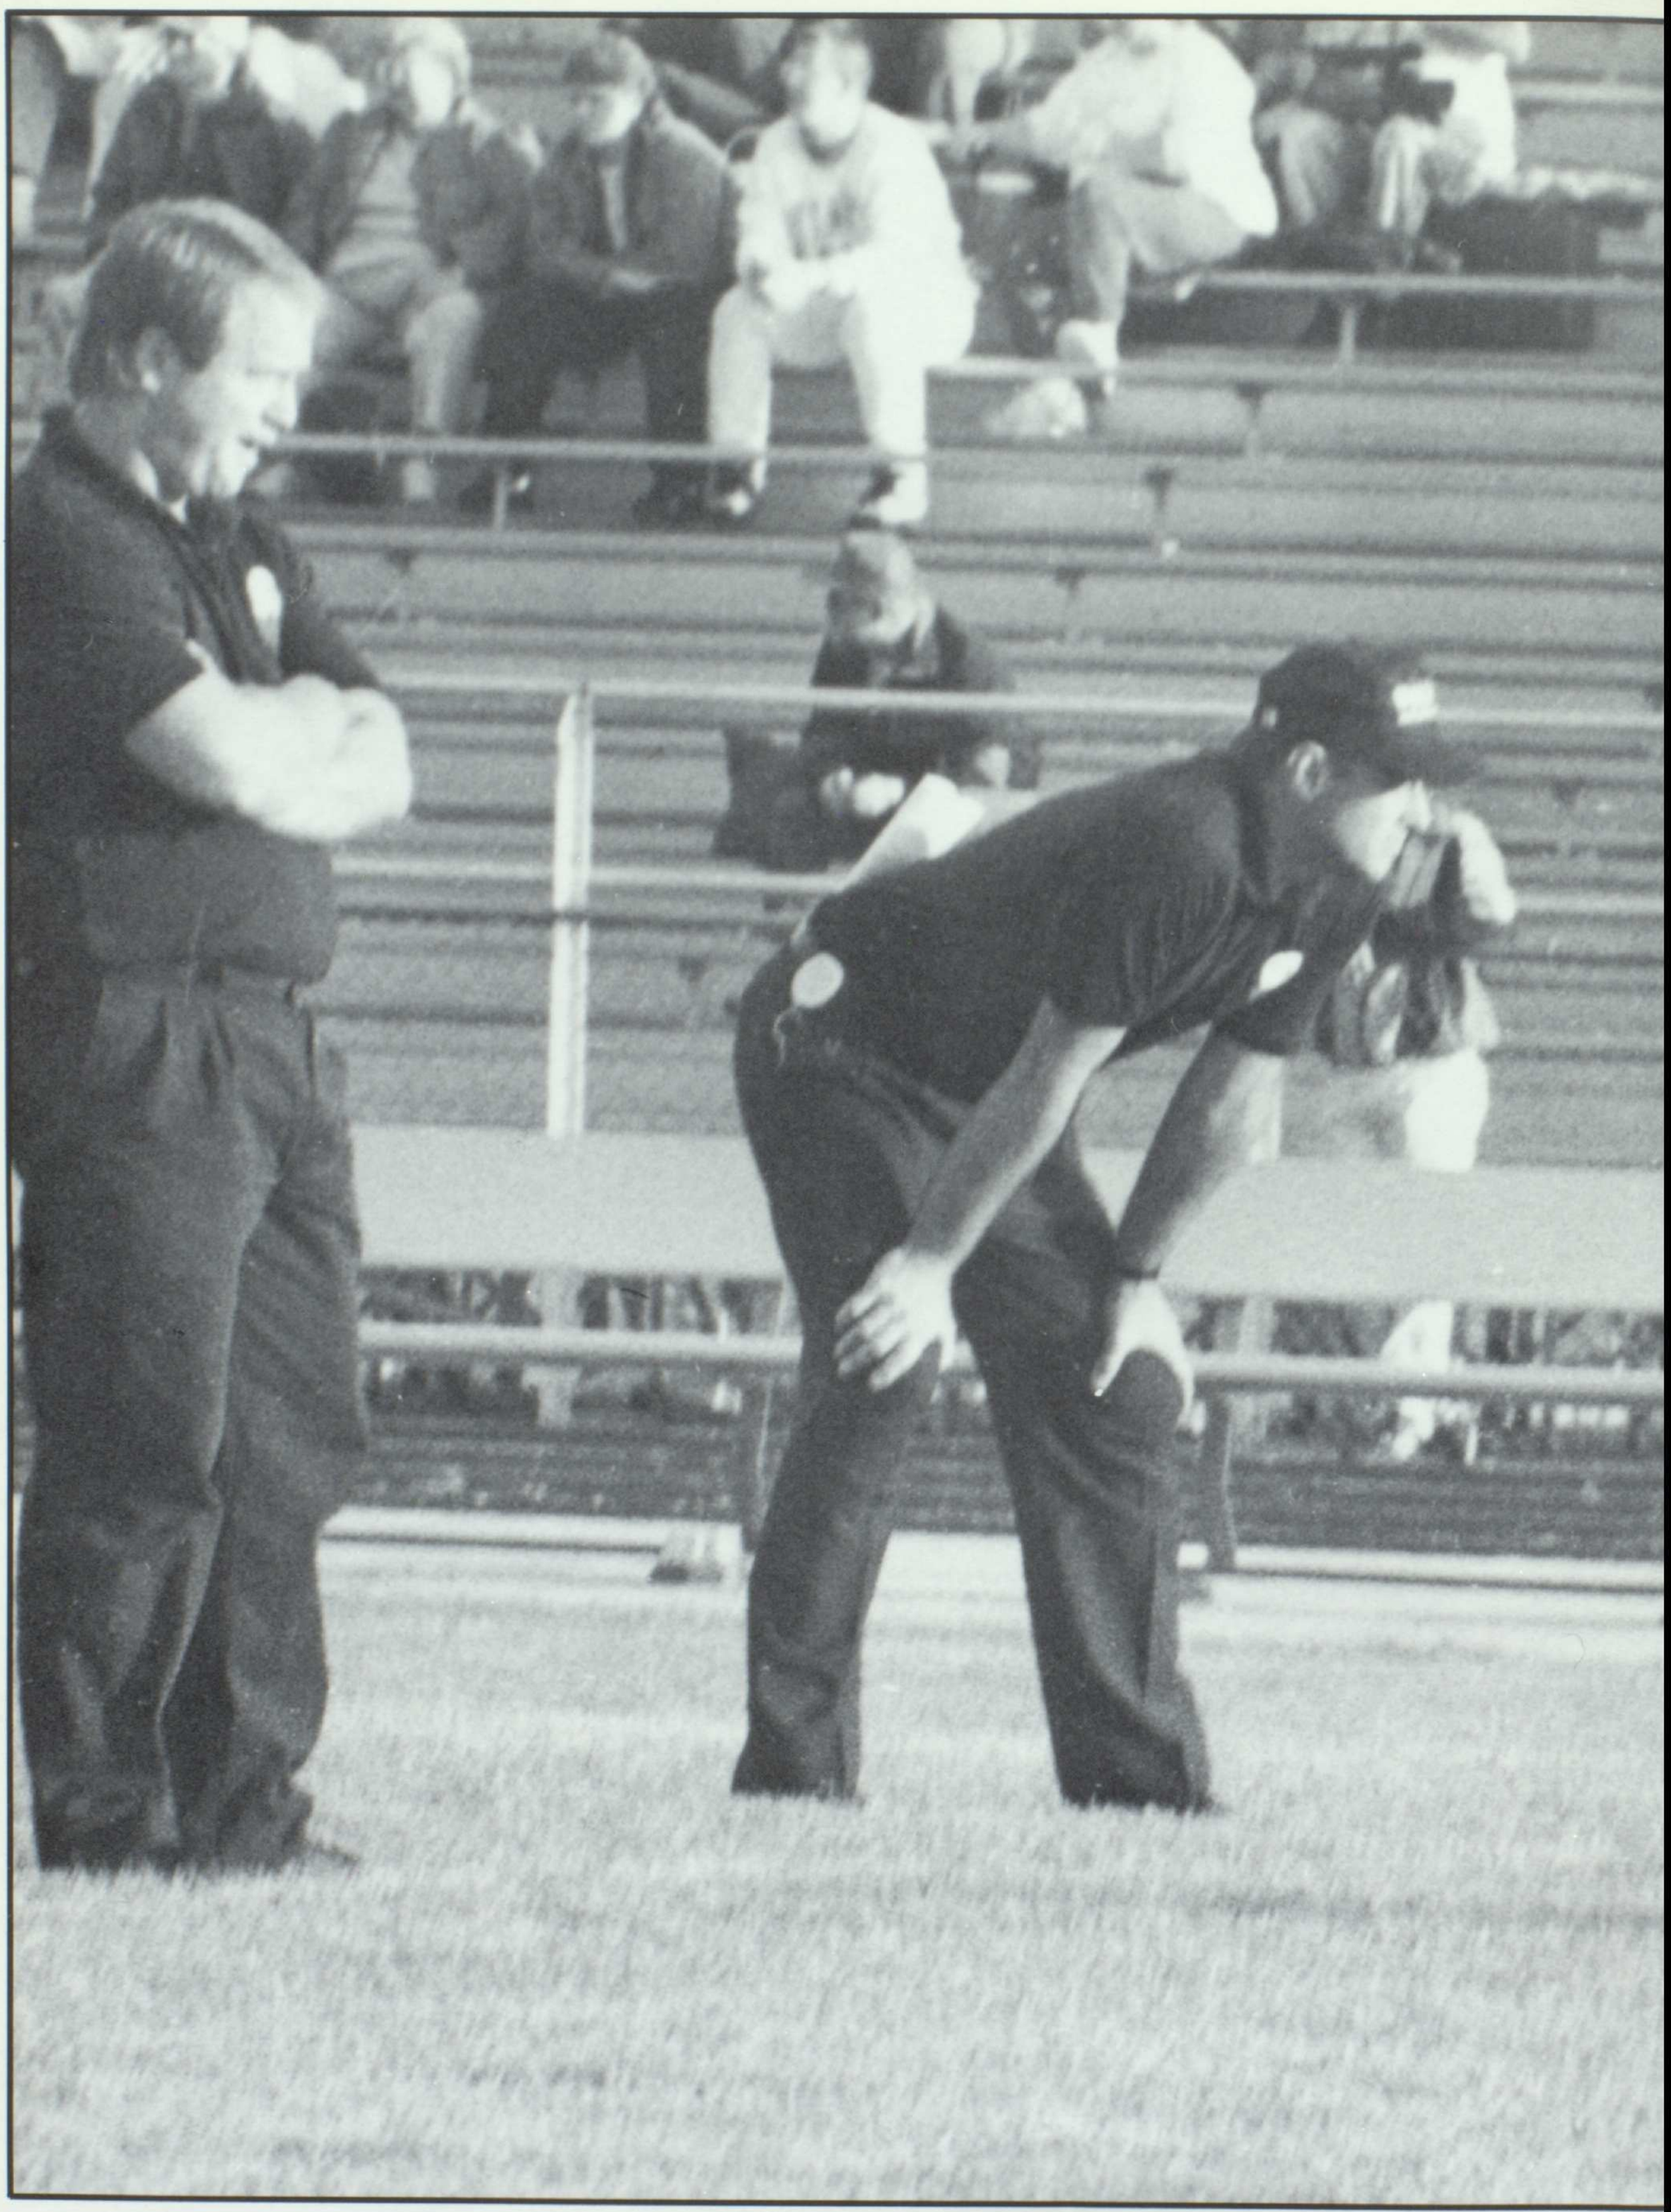




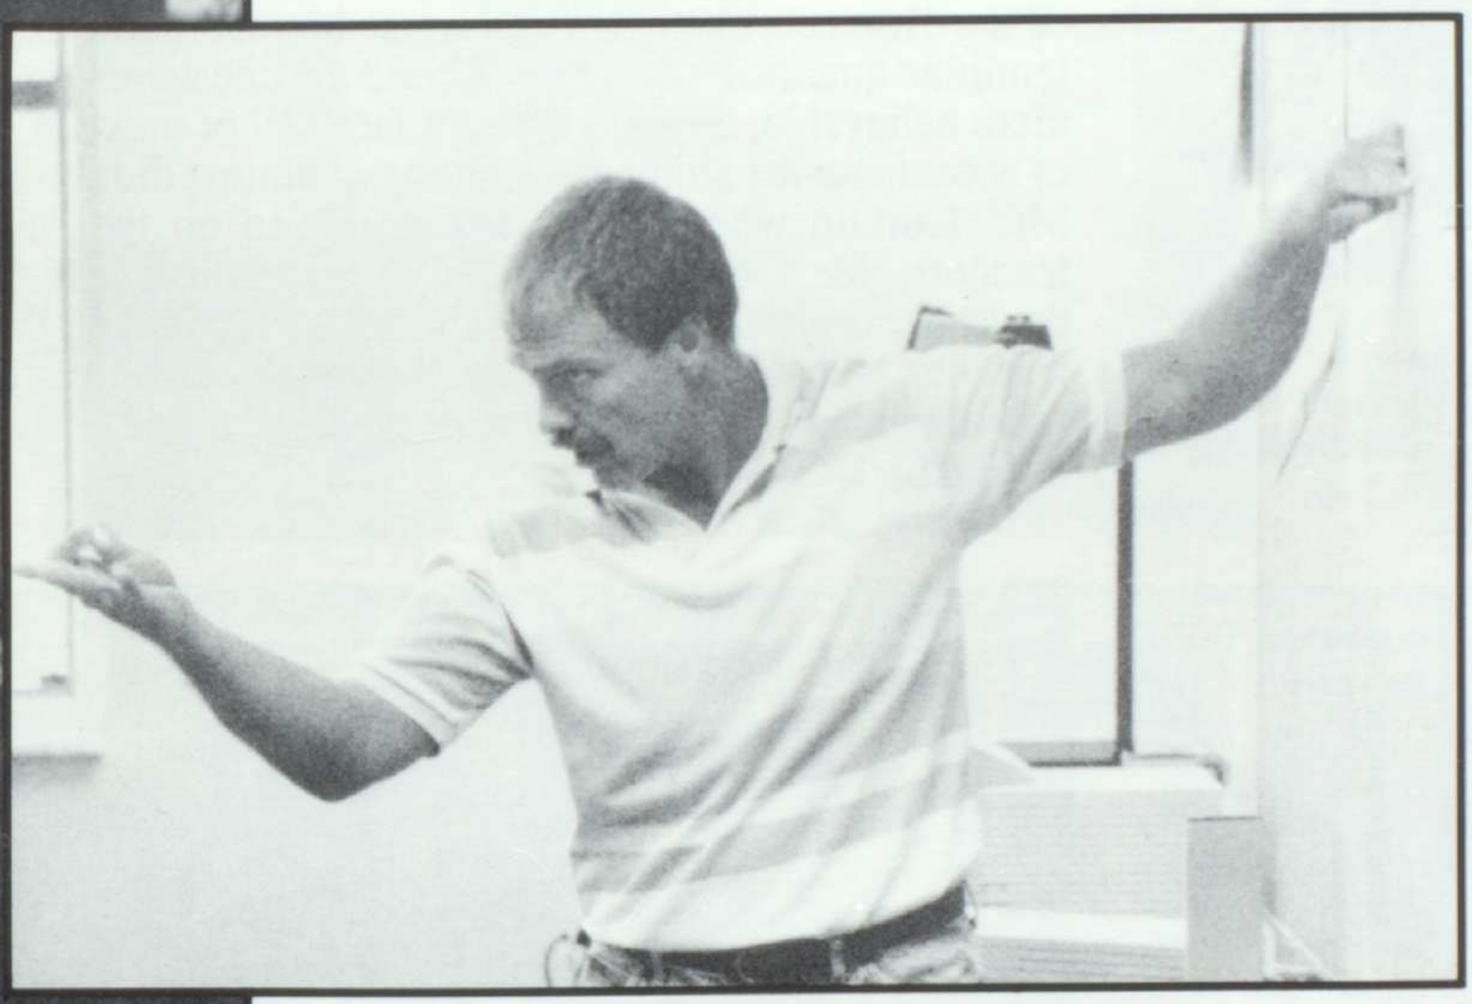
Surpisingly, Adam Miller is surrounded by his fan club of two, Kim Lowen and Heather Stewart.

Modeling their new senior shirts are Connie Wolfe, Balinda Emrich, and Remellee Lazaro.

Do the innocent expressions of Natalie Davis and Sasha Cesare tell us that they are hiding something?



HEAD OF THE CLASS

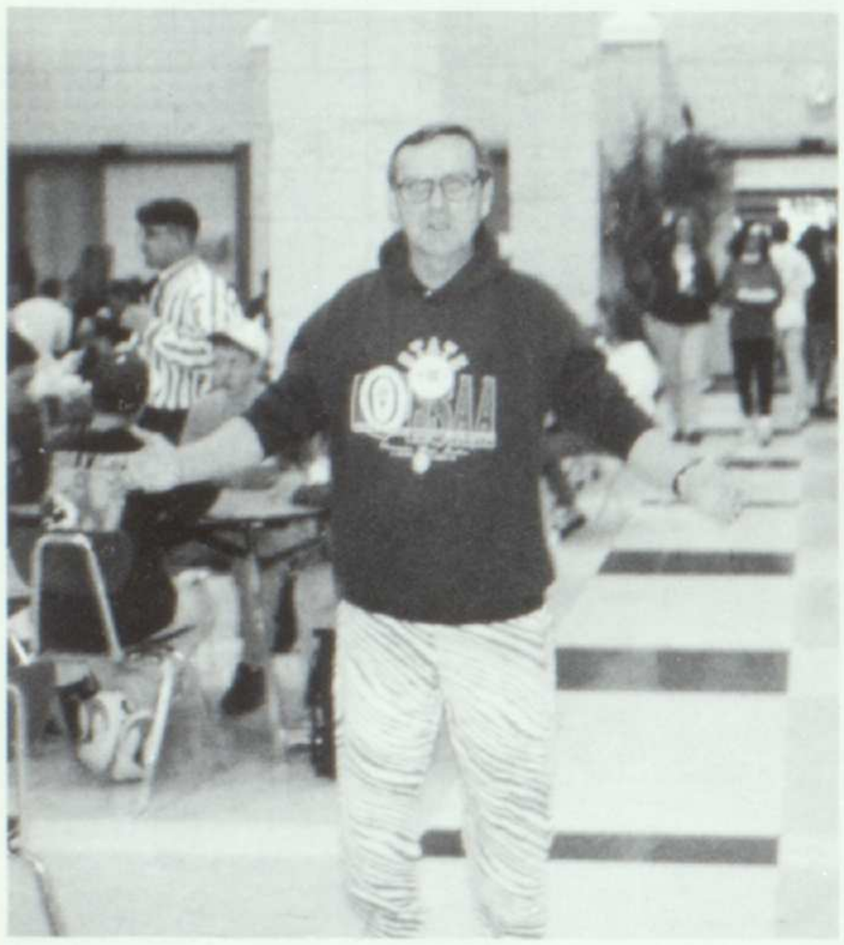


Demonstrating his passion and enthusiasm for teaching, Mr. Aquilla conducts his class.

"I don't want my picture taken!" expresses AP student Dan Zink as he glares at the cameraman.

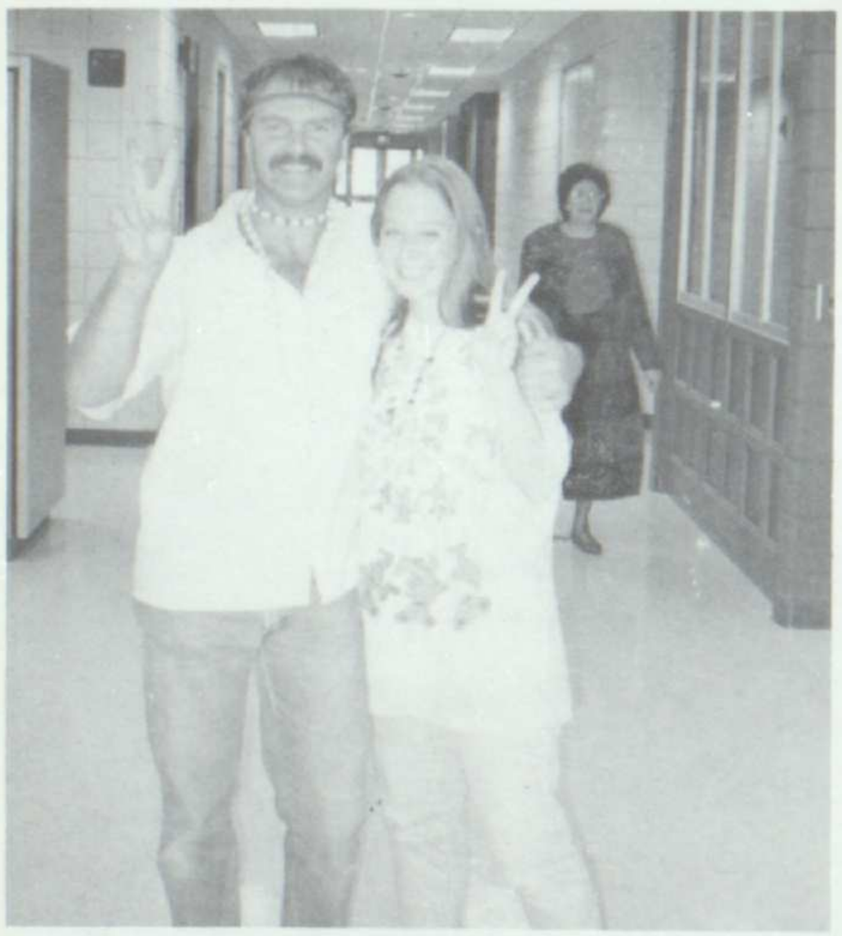
Concentrating on getting the team warmed up are Coaches Cottrill, Trombetti and Gafford.

THE SPIRIT INSTIGATORS



"It wasn't my idea to wear these pants. Mr. Gerhardt made me!" Mr. Johnson explains.

Where's your hat, Mrs. Krebs? Mrs. Vance and Ms. Bernard remembered their hats for spirit day.



"Tell me about Woodstock again," Jessica McGurk asks Mr. Aquila.

"Eat this, Mr. Roman. It's good for you," says football cheerleaders Jessica McGurk, Tracy Mackin, Kate Marsh, and Jamie Swords as they merrily feed him an onion.

New schools often have a hard time establishing their own identity, but thanks to the faculty at Worthington Kilbourne, we have created many new traditions. Since many members of our faculty are involved in sports or clubs, they have a good reason to promote school activities. On spirit days many of them wear black and blue zebra stripped Zubaz pants. These teachers, who realize it's okay for them to look foolish in the name of their school, aren't afraid to show that they have school spirit .

"The craziest thing I've seen a teacher do to promote school spirit was at one of the Homecoming bonfires when Mr. Gerhardt dressed up as a female with feminine qualities, especially around the chest area. In order to make his costume more believable, he wore a wig, a face full of makeup, a skirt, and a tight sweater to accentuate his womanly features. I almost didn't recognize him!" exclaimed Mrs. Curtain when she was interviewed on the subject of school spirit and teachers. Mr. Gerhardt definately goes to great lengths to help the teachers and the students gain pride in our school. By organizing the Zubaz pants tradition for teachers, he has become the leading faculty instigator of school spirit. But when asked which teacher has the most spirit, Mrs. McDonald summarized it the best : "WE ALL DO!!!"

"Out of my way, buster. I'm on my way to science," Mr. Hyatt explains.

"I was here on Monday, Mr. Porta. I swear I was here!" Mr. Johnson tries to convince Mr. Porta.

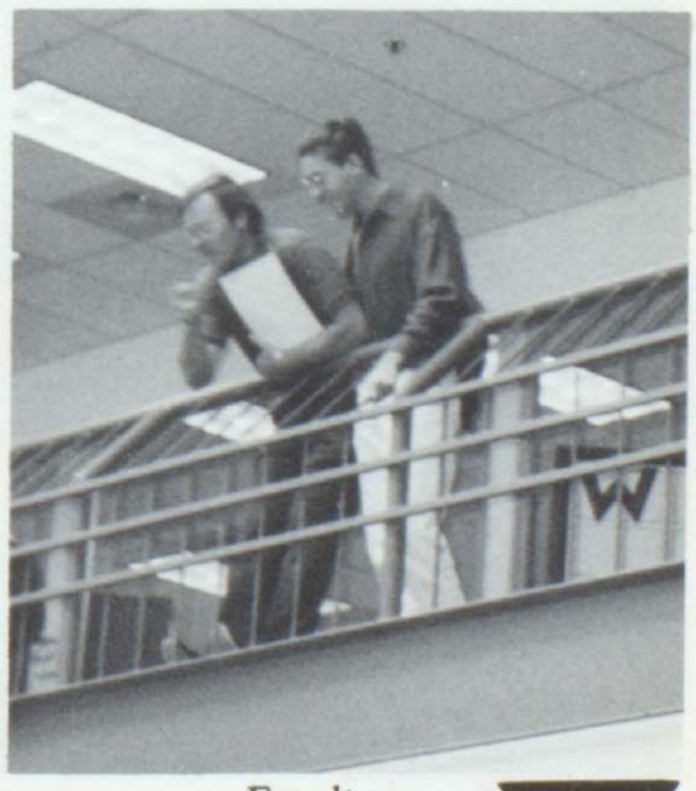
Is study hall monitor Jody Dascenzo reprimanding Electra Stillwagon for being late to study hall again?

"Oops, it landed on Mr. Porta's head. Let's get out of here!" Mr. King exclaims to Jeff Hollenbach.



A FRESH PERSPECTIVE

"I finally understand, Mr. Snapp! Two plus two equals four, not five!" exclaims an excited Kristi Donlon.

Typing her latest witch's brew is Mrs. Windisch.

"Look! It's Tom Cruise by the pizza!" exclaims Dyanne Lewis, but Montas Smith just smiles, knowing that it's April Fools Day.

This year we have welcomed many new teachers, and the faculty and students have put forth extra effort to make them feel at home. "Everyone made me feel extremely welcome by treating me with same respect as they would treat anybody else. The faculty acted as if I had been teaching here forever," explains special education teacher Lynn Lacy. "Everybody around here was very friendly towards me. They all knew my name before I learned theirs!" remarks science academic assistant Mrs. Fledderjohann.

Not only have teachers contributed to our school, but they have also helped our community. "I feel that I have given students the employment skills which they will need to become better workers. I hope my students feel that I will always be there for them if they are in need of a friend," explains Mrs. Brandt who is in charge of the Bagel Shop.

Even though the students are supposed to learn from the teachers, surprisingly, the teachers are learning from the students as well. "The students have taught me that everybody is a person. They all learn in different ways, and they all deserve the same treatment," explains BESS II teacher Ms. Bilica.

Students usually enjoy being taught by somebody who is new to the school system. Among other things, young teachers offer the student fresh, modern approaches to learning. They are willing to experiment with new teaching techniques like cooperative education. "I like having a new teacher like Ms. Bilica. She is able to bring a different outlook into our science class, one that is easier for me to relate to," says sophomore Kari Arneson. "I like young teachers because the class environment is more relaxed," remarks junior Suzanne Provanzana.

Hopefully our new staff members will enjoy their careers here at WKHS.

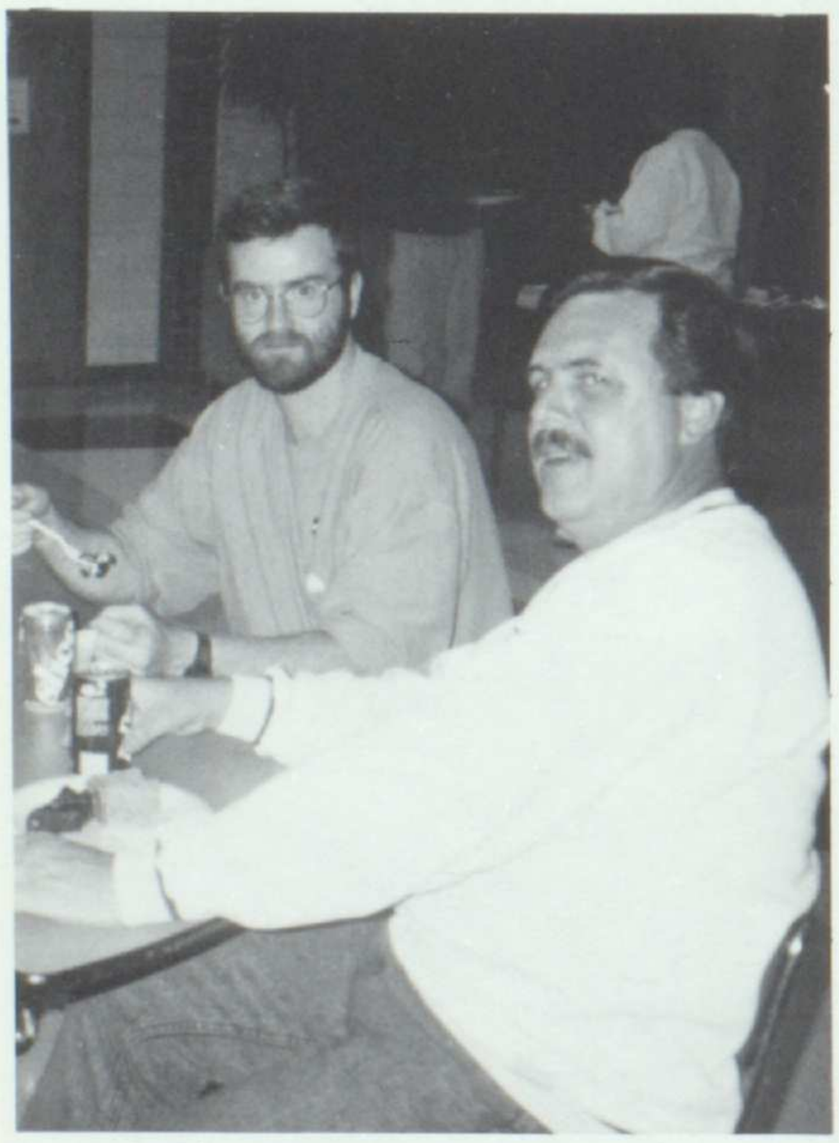
Queen for a day, Mrs. Meinelt stands regally with the rest of her court, Mr. and Mrs. Stark, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Mr. Meinelt, Mrs. Wampler, and Ms. Schoenhoff. What teachers will do to entertain themselves while chaperoning!

Has study hall got you down, Mrs. Looker?

"Look at her! She thinks that they are taking a picture because of her. We know the real reason. It's because of us!" Mr. Scott whispers to Mr. Christman as Mrs. Senn flashes a pretty smile for the camera.



As Mr. Kincaid shows off his best modeling pose, Mr. Buford tries to ignore him.

"Peace, man!" exclaims Ms. Manley, Michelle Setzer, and Ashley Norris.

LEARNING CAN BE FUN

Teachers go to great lengths to keep students interested in the work they are doing. Usually the teacher who is remembered the most fondly is the one who kept his/her class interesting and lively. "My favorite teacher is Señor Devine because he is energetic and entertaining. Plus he can climb the pyramids at Teotihuacan in a single bound!" exclaims junior Suzanne Provanzana. "My favorite teachers are those who are entertaining, but at the same time help me learn," explains sophomore Erin Otten. "My favorite teacher is Mr. Aquila because he makes learning interesting and fun!" informs junior Anna Fullenkamp.

Time after time, the teachers with the most lively teaching methods are the ones who help their students learn the most. Because the students enjoy the class, they will enjoy learning and spend more time and effort mastering the subject. Sometimes teachers resort to the most unconventional methods. "In sixth grade, a kid in my math class kept forgetting to turn the fraction over when dividing so the teacher turned him over. He held him upside down," sophomore Jen Sedlak fondly remembers. "The craziest thing I've ever seen a teacher do is dance around and sing in order to get his class to remember a formula," reveals junior Megan Ayers, remembering chemistry class and the wild antics of Mr. Andrews.

All teachers have qualities which make them unique to their students. That is why they will remain in our memories forever.

By Anjali Goel

"How could you say 'NO' to this lovely face?" exclaims Joel Hobart of Mrs. Hegerty.

"They're baaaaaaack," Mr. Trombetti frightfully yelps on the first day of school.

As Mrs. Snyder explains the intricate details about publishing a yearbook, Jamie Bach, Brandon Loynes, and Chris Petty give her their undivided attention.

While Dan Everett takes a break from Spanish class, Señora Marker lectures about the importance of a foreign language in one's life.

Heading in a Different Direction

Founded in 1973, the Linworth Alternative Program was designed to give the students a chance to learn in a more unconventional environment. It does just that by allowing the students to have more say in their educational choices while at the same time letting them learn in a less formal atmosphere. At the A.P., students enjoy more independence, more responsibility, and more individual attention than they would have in a traditional setting.

The A.P. is designed to meet the needs of the individual. It gives the students a chance to exit from the more structured educational atmosphere and to develop their own interests so that they can achieve their individual goals. A.P students must meet the graduation requirements determined by the state of Ohio, but the way they go about meeting them is different from the way that students at the traditional campuses meet theirs. Because of the small class size, teachers can give more individual attention to students. "Every aspect of the A.P. somehow relates back to its small size. Any school could accomplish the same things if it could operate on a scale that allows people to truly interact and get to know each other. The educational process is severely handicapped when it takes place between strangers," explains Linworth history teacher Larry Gay.

The A. P. also has a more relaxed environment which allows students and teachers to develop a family-style type of learning that also leads to more in-depth discussions inside as well as outside the classroom. The homey style of Linworth allows every student to be himself without putting on any pretenses. "The A.P. is a cool place. Here you can act how you want, and nobody will say anything!" answers freshman Bill Spratley when asked what the best thing is about the A.P. program.

One of the best aspects about the Linworth Program is that students are allowed to design the direction of their educations. Besides having classes at the A.P., students are allowed to take classes at a variety of other places including their base school (they are allowed to enroll in up to three classes per semester), and in some cases The Ohio State University and The Columbus College of Art and Design as well as many other fine institutions in this area. A.P. students may also conduct their own independent in-depth studies on subjects that interest them. If a certain class is not taught at Linworth, students may suggest that course be included in the Linworth curriculum. To do this, students submit proposals to the faculty outlining the teaching methods and objectives of the class. Students may also design seminar classes in which they and the faculty mutually agree on the time and goals of the class. "One major alternative that Linworth represents is in the curriculum. We recognize that different approaches can be used to climb the same mountain. But, with that opportunity comes the most important freedom we can offer - the freedom to fail," informs A.P. teacher Ed Shay.

Students at the A.P. culminate their high school years with the senior walkabout program. In this program seniors spend their second semester exploring careers by going to different places: some stay close to home while others fly off to such places as Arizona and California. By spending time on the job, the seniors acquire a realistic look into that profession. The senior walkabout program gives students the chance to see what careers are right for them.

THE PACK AS ONE

They knew they could pass all expectations

This year's season kicked off like last year's - with a loss. Many people thought, "Oh no, here we go again with a losing year." But when the Wolves beat Westerville South, some of those same people felt the team had a chance. Then by beating Upper Arlington at Homecoming, fans thought, "Well, we're all right." By putting an end to Grove City's thirty four game winning streak, the Wolves began to gain the reputation that Worthington football has worked so hard to achieve in previous years. At this point the team set their standards higher than they had originally. Fellow students would not just hear players saying, "We're gonna kill'em this Friday." Through the halls echos of "districts and states" were being muttered.

But this all came to a stand still when the team lost to the Hillard Wildcats, 23 - 27. At this point some believed the team couldn't achieve their previousely set goals. The next week the Wolves beat Chillicothe in a suprisingly close game. With victories by Grove City and Upper Arlington, our football team had won a share of the O.C.C.

If that was not enough good news for one weekend, on Sunday evening they learned they had captured a berth in the playoffs. Their opponent was Brookhaven, a team which has earned the reputation of powerhouse, having made playoff appearences the past three years. Although the Wolves were leading in the fourth quarter by 15-7, they couldn't hold on, and the close power-packed game ended in a 22-15 loss.

"The difference between our team this year and the teams in the past is that no one player stood out. We played as a team which is why we won," explained Joe Palcic. The season was a definate success as Kilbourne football took its first step to establishing its reputation as a dominating force in the O.C.C.

FINALLY ONE

No longer individuals - now a team

The boy's soccer team began its season with a serious handicap: they weren't a team. Each player was playing for himself as an individual. Senior Chris Davis explained, "At the beginning of the season, our program was composed of individuals. As the season progressed, we became more unified, more of a team."

Fall play began slowly for the boys, not only because of a lack of senior leadership, but because the schedule was much tougher this year. After suffering from a variety of injuries and problems with yellow and red cards, the team pulled together. Their number one goal was to win their league, which they accomplished. Also, they defeated Westerville North who is traditionally the team to beat.

The Wolves opened the playoffs, winning against both Eastmoor and Independence. In district semifinals, the Wolves' loss to Upper Arlington ended the season. Both the team and coach felt as though they prepared well, but Upper Arlington wanted the win more. This was definitely a disappointment for them, as well as for the parents and fans.

The players made excellent individual improvement throughout the season. Looking forward to next year, Coach Jeff Vincent said, "We need to work as a team and sacrifice for each other on the field in order to be successful."

YOUNG KICKERS

Lady Wolves use skills to achieve success

The Lady Wolves soccer team had one of its toughest seasons ever this year, facing Westerville North who was first in the state and Watterson who always plays hard against Worthington.

Without any seniors the Wolves pulled off a winning record overall. They fought hard against the more experienced teams and achieved more success than they had hoped for. Head varsity soccer Coach Ted Christman felt that one of the most exciting moments was the close loss to DeSales. "The intensity of the play in the DeSales game was more indicitive of the girls effort in the games further into the tournament," explained Coach Christman.

Several players earned recognition for their outstanding performances: Sarah Thompson, First Team O.C.C. and First Team District; Dana Maurer, Second Team O.C.C. and Disrict Honorable Mention; Amy Roth and Megan Welsh, Second Team O.C.C.; and Cara Sieberth, Honorable Mention, O.C.C.

Everyone on the team is excited for the next year's season because the players are coming together more as a team.

NEW SEASON

The pack runs as one to victory

If we looked at the girls' and boys' cross country team's record last year and then this year, we would assume the performances reflected two distinctly different teams. Junior Alan Beymer said, "We came a long way between this year and last." The results display how outstanding they have become. The boys' team finished as district and reginal runners-up and 10th in the state, a major accomplishment for the whole team. The girls also achieved their goal of advancing to regional competition.

The honors won by the boys include Brandon Bird, First Team all O.C.C.; Divyesh Patel, Aarron Smith, Matt Dykes, Second Team all O.C.C.; Alan Beymer and Brian Sieberth, Honorable Mention O.C.C. Brandon Bird, Alan Beymer, Matt Dykes, Arron Smith also ran away with all district honors. The girls earned the following honors: First Team O.C.C., Michelle Martin; Second Team O.C.C., Maureen Hackett; O.C.C. Honorable Mention, Heather Bell and Jenni Moore. Michelle Martin and Maureen Hackett also received all district recognition.

Reflecting on this year, sophomore standout Michelle Martin explained, "This season was really exciting since we made it to regionals and improved steadily."

The Lady Wolves field hockey team of thirty-one strong girls surpassed their own expectations for the season. Although the results didn't show it with a 0-12-3 record, they had a fun and successful season under Coach Beth Senich. As the season wore on, many of the players demonstrated the improvement they had made as a result of gaining varsity experience and being lead on the field by captains Laura Tobbe, Christine Lee, Kelli Little and Michelle Wear.

Mickie Tumbry summarized the season by saying, "The highlight was the tournament game because it really showed that we were good players." The ladies played against TWHS in a tough 3 overtime contest before they lost 1-2 in the end of the game with a shoot out. The ladies were happy to give the Cardinals a competitive game.

Captain Kelli Little explained why she enjoyed being on the squad. "Our team was more like a family. We all had our differences, but we always over looked them when we were out on the field. Next year we will definitely have to win a game. We've been in this sport too long, not to win at least one game."

As the season concluded, the honors were awarded in the Central Ohio Field Hockey League to Christine Lee and Jenny Rosselo for All League and to Amy Calhoun for All League-Honorable Mention.

Regardless of their record, the players viewed the 1992 field hockey season as successful.

JUST DIG IT

Spikers had high hopes for this season

Jumping into the 1992 season with six returning lettermen, the Lady Wolves had one major goal, to try to improve their record from last year. Led by senior co-captains, Suzanne Piero and Debbie Burdette, the Wolves succeeded with a 6-14 record.

Head coach, Cindy Papp, commented about the season. "We made several improvments this year. We advanced our standing in the conference and our win-loss record. We also have a core group of returning letter winners with playing experience for next year."

The Lady Wolves owe their improvement to a strong sense of family among the players and great support from their parents, friends, and coach. "As a senior and a player, I saw so much support from our fans for our volleyball team. It was a great feeling, and we really appreciate their support," stated Cheryl Panaligan.

Several players earned special distinctions for their performances: senior Debbie Burdette was named Scholar Athlete: senior Cheryl Panaligan achieved Honorable Mention O.C.C.: and junior Tammy Pham earned Second Team O.C.C. A four year varsity player, Suzanne Piero, worked hard and walked away with First Team O.C.C. and Honorable Mention-All Districts.

Coach Papp was pleased with how hard her Lady Wolves worked all year long, and will focus on mental play instead of physical play as one major goal for next year's season.

They also played at Mount Vernon in the Colonial Invitational, coming away with a score of 13-6. Fifth man, Jamey Bach explained, "We didn't always play up to our potential, but it was still a good season." The Wolves ended with a winning record, 6i-25, and were district qualifiers.

Although they faced tough competition, they worked hard and improved their skills. Mr. Robert Pritchard, second year coach for the Wolves, was pleased with the effort. "One of the goals was to improve and everyone on the team was successful." Third man, Ben Kyler agreed, "We had a lot of fun and played well at times. We grew tremendously from last year and met many of our goals for the season."

WHAT IT TAKES

Hardworking & aggressive, but friends

The season opened with the girls' tennis team's four arch rivals - Upper Arlington, Wellington, Bexley, and Westerville North. Even after losing to these tough opponents all in one week, the girls didn't give up. They only worked harder.

Not only did they become more aggressive, but most importantly, they became much closer. They became friends. Senior Karin Boerger, recipient of the Scholar Athlete Award for O.C.C, explained, "I've played high school tennis for four years, but my senior year was my favorite because of the people on the team. I'll miss them next year."

This type of closeness motivated the Wolves to turn the tide and complete a successful season by sending seniors Ashley Norris, Karin Boerger, and Rebecca Korb to the district tournament. They had their first state qualifiers this year in the doubles team of Rebecca Korb and Karin Boerger. They represented Worthington Kilbourne by qualifying as District Champions and making it to the quarterfinals of the state tournament.

Coach Bobbie Davis summed up the season with these words, "This year's senior class were leaders both on and off the court, and they'll be missed next year. But their legacy will live on. Next year's team will benefit from the traditions and standards upheld by this senior class."

HEADS UP

As friends, players work toward consistency

The overall record indicates little of the boys' varsity basketball season. The improvements each player made individually can't be judged by the numbers on a scoreboard. Although the Wolves didn't enjoy the success they'd hoped for, they were gifted with the unique quality of friendship. Senior Brian Irwin explained, "We had a lot of fun this season because the team was closer."

Comparing the last two season, Varsity Coach Bob Lee said, "The team was more competitive this year - but was still inconsistent." The Wolves lost six games by only five or less points, but they had lady luck on their side when they won two extremely close games with baskets at the buzzer against Olentangy and Hilliard. Although the losses outweighed the wins, this year's team improved the record from the previous year.

Senior Ryan Meister shared his feelings by saying, " Although I will forget the record I'll always hold on to the memories."

PIVOTING POINT

Lady Wolves make a huge turn around

The girls' basketball team learned that hard work does pay off. Last year the girls were 3-18 and couldn't play as a team or come together as a family. This year was definitely a big turn around for the Lady Wolves. By proving they could compete, they started to earn respect from other teams. Senior Captain Sarah Kirsch remarked about the season, "Last year we learned; this year we played; next year they'll dominate." The ladies compiled better than a 500 record with 12 wins and 10 losses.

In his second year, Tom Gerhardt received the Coach of the Year award, an honor bestowed by the fellow coaches in the league. He took young inexperienced players from last year and created a mature, under control team this year. The whole coaching staff worked well together. "Margo, Kirk, Shannon, and Mario all did a great job of coaching," Gerhardt admitted.

The Wolves earned second place in the league with a 7-3 record. Sarah Kirsch broke the school scoring record with 35 points against Whestone. Some of the ladies received individual honors and awards: senior Sarah Kirsch, First Team O.C.C. and Scholar Athlete Award; sophomores Dana Maurer, Second Team O.C.C. and Sarah Thompson, Honorable Mention.

WOLVES PINNERS

Wrestling team has a impressive season

The season opened with one of the biggest and newest tournaments in Ohio, the Midwest Classic. Held at Thomas Worthington High School, it included teams from as far as Montana to Vermont. Coach Bukky explained, "It's really exciting. There is no other tournament like this one anywhere." With only eight guys, the Wolves faired well with some performing better than others. Jason Allen wrestled well; competing in the 125 weight class, Jason won first place in the field of eighteen competitors.

Wrestling demands weekend participation in invitational tournaments. The Medina Tournament has the reputation of hosting one of the toughest competitions around. The Wolves entered in only eight weight classes but performed well. Even with few wrestlers, the team still finished in the upper half.

Numbers continued to affect the team throughout the entire season. After sectionals only a few elite wrestlers advanced to the district tournament: Jack Cahill at 103, Jason Miles at 112, Jason Allen at 125, and Eric Ewald at 160. Following that tough competition, the only wrestler who advanced to states was Jason Allen.

The state tournament is exactly as it sounds, the granddaddy of all tournaments. The winner of this event is the best wrestler at his weight class in the state. The only wrestler to advance to states was our 125 pounder, Jason Allen, who came away as State Champion.

TEAMWORK

Gymnasts show how good they really are

Gymnastics is a competitive sport that requires agility, flexibility, endurance, and most of all, strength. By the records in their varsity dual meets, the boys' and girls' gymnastics teams showed that they had all these important qualities. With the superior performances of these gymnasts and support from family and fans, this season was a rewarding one.

The girls' gymnastics team wrapped up another exciting and successful year. Once again lead by Co-Captains Michelle Grey and Kari Vaas, the girls were able to improve their standing in the O.C.C. In picking out one memorable meet, Kari Vaas remembers the Grove City/Sheridan competition. "This meet was our turning point. We scored high and regained our confidence after some of the previous discouraging meets." This season was an improving and encouraging one, and the girls owe it all to their first year coach, Cindy Fushimi.

Under Coach Rob Strohl's leadership and fellow gymnasts' outstanding performances, the boys came together and proved their superiority to their competitors. The team consisted of two returning lettermen, Captain Mike Feeney and Co-Captain Ben Prohl, and three new faces, Chris Merrick, Greg Gable, and Cham Bell. Excited by their performances, Mike Feeney said, "I'm really happy about our season this year. We had quite a few opportunities to capture some meet titles and set new records. I was pleased on how Merrick, Bell, and Gable did in their competition and hope next year will be even better." Despite being one of the younger and smaller teams in the conference, the '93 guys gymnasts turned out an outstanding season.

QUICK IN WATER

The team improved from last year

Building a new team in a new school last year wasn't easy for the Wolves. It was especially hard for the swimmers and divers since we don't even have a pool, but our athletes have perservered. The Wolves and our neighbors at TWHS share the natatorium. Practice starts early in the morning before school from 5:45 A.M. to 6:30 A.M. and then occurs again after school from 4:00 to 6:30. Our Wolves obviously have a lot of heart and spirit.

Returning after a losing season last year made it difficult to be very optimistic, but the swimmers were. Their major goal was to beat a competitive Dublin team which they accomplished. Henry Walker explained, "We showed a big improvement between this year and last." That basically was the story of the season. Senior Captain Tracy Mackin said, "This has been one of the most fun seasons of my high school swimming experience. I will miss it next year."

A total of thirteen boys and twenty-five girls on the swimming team and two boys and three girls on the diving team each enjoyed some success by achieving their personal bests. Geoff Gear was seventh in the state for the hundred meter fly and seventeenth in the five hundred meter freestyle. Sandy Holmberg enjoyed similar success, winning second in the district and eighth in the state for diving.

POSITIVE SEASON

What a long strange trip it's been

The Kilbourne lacrosse team faced off in full stride during the spring trip. They beat all three teams they played in North Carolina including Chapel Hill High school who were the state champs in North Carolina last year. After they returned, they defeated Thomas Worthington in a highly explosive game. Sophomore defenseman Chris Petty said, "I really wanted to get even with T.W. for what they did to us last year."

This is exactly what they did with most teams to whom they had lost last year until they met Detroit Country Day who beat them in a very controversial contest. Many players felt that the refs didn't do a good job calling the game. "That was our wake up call," explained senior Mike Szabo. The team then quickly beat some very competitive teams such as Brother Rice and previously undefeated Swickley Academy, resulting in the Wolves being ranked first in the midwest. Pleased with his team's effort, Coach Bill Wolford stated, "We have not yet played our best game." Perhaps their heads were too big because after that game, they had a disappointing loss to long-time rival Upper Arlington.

The team had only three games left before the midwest tournament and with two losses the Wolves could not afford another mistake if they wanted to make the upper bracket. Quickly, they embarrassed University School and Western Reserve Academy. The only one in their way was last year midwest and state champ Moller. The Wolves suffered a dissappointing loss to them in the last game of regular season play.

Now in the middle bracket of the midwest, the team was unable win the tournament. They did manage to get first in their bracket and still had a chance to win the state championship. First they were to play Moller, a contest the players were looking forward to in rematch to prove what they could do. Unfortunately, they did not beat them; however, it was a much more competitive game than before, ending in a three point deficit.

Even without a championship, this season proved to be more positive than last year's.

TOGETHER

The strength of the wolf is in the pack

Exceeding expectations, the girls' lacrosse team opened the year with a quick and powerful start. They began their season with a win against Columbus School for Girls and ended with an even greater victory at the Mid-State Lacrosse Association tournament. Not only did the team defeat Upper Arlington with a last second shot at the MSLA tournament to receive fifth place, but they walked off the field knowing that they were truly the "classiest" team around. "Our opponents as well as the referees always commented on what a fair and polite team we were," boasted Senior Co-Captain Sara Freund.

The entire season the girls worked hard to portray the true attitude of a winner. "Our team was one of the most respected in the area," commented Senior Co-Captain Heather Wolover. The Lady Wolves lacrosse players adopted a motto that soon symbolized the meaning of victory - "The strength of the wolf is in the pack."

Coach Doug Troutner was as proud of the season as the players. "This was a wonderful year. We made some nice improvements," he explained.

HOME RUNS

Many players sacrificed for the team

This year the Wolves' baseball team was especially unique. They shared a rare closeness both on and off the field. When not practicing or playing, they could often be found having team dinners and spending time together. They seemed to take a special interest in one another.

The Wolves' worked well together, being unselfish individuals on the field. Doing what had to be done for the good of the team was a kind of unspoken oath among the players. For example, instead of basking in the glory of a homerun, the team would bunt the ball to move players around the bases. They were willing to sacrafice their individual success for the team. Even when times were tough, they hung together.

The Wolves' baseball team found success this spring. They ended with an impressive record of 14-4, winning the OCC and sectional tournament. Senior Jeff Todd shared his excitement, "It was great to win the first baseball championship in Worthington in over 10 years." The excellent senior leadership and high team morale led to their many accomplishments.

Varsity Coach Paul Roman said, "This was the most enjoyable season because of the enthusiasm and great attitudes of the players." He hopes this year's performance will set the standard for all future teams.

BATTER UP

Rounding out first as a team

Softball is a game of hustle, determination, and most of all working together as a team. Although the girls' softball team ended their season, posting a 3-17 record overall, they improved and gave their opponents a challenging game. Second year Coach Teri Cohen believes that the team met their high hopes; with an experienced team she plans on meeting even steeper goals in the coming season.

Individual players who displayed outstanding skills throughout the season earned awards for their hard work. The MVP of the team and second team O.C.C. went to junior Cindy Wolfe, and the MIP was awarded to the two players who really deserved it, Kristin Lusky and Karen Tang. Kristen Bielek walked away with the best offensive player award and Honorable Mention O.C.C. The best defensive player was Amy Rickettes, and the Coaches Award honored Jennifer Sedlak.

Although their record was not a winning one, the girls had a fun season and hope next year will be even better.

A STRONG FINISH

The track team ends on a good foot

"The carry over from last year helped a lot since we lost only four seniors and gained many talented freshmen," explained Lori Belford. Both of the teams put outstanding effort into their performances this year. Their hard work paid off when the girls took second at the O.C.C meet, third at Districts, and ninth in the Region. The boys were runners-up at both the O.C.C. league meet and Districts.

Many athletes earned awards: First Team O.C.C., Debbie Burdette, Sarah Kirsch, Michelle Martin, Michele Setzer; Second Team O.C.C., Lori Belford, Maureen Hacket, and Kari Vaas. For the boys: First Team O.C.C., Alan Beymer, Brandon Bird, Matt Dykes, Steve Min, Steve Morris, and Aaron Smith.

The boys' 4X800 meter relay team consisting of Beymer, Bird, Dykes, and Smith with Morris the alternate impressed everyone this year. They were District and Regional champs and runners-up in the state; each received All Ohio Honors. Beymer and Bird competed individually in the 800 meter dash and 1600 meter run.

Seven boys and girls also earned the All District Team Honors: Belford, Burdette, Kirsch, Setzer, Beymer, Bird, and Jason Margraf (in discus). Kirsch and Setzer also traveled to the state track meet in the discus and the 300 meter hurdles, respectively.

"Both the boys' and girls' teams were excellent this year. I'm very proud of them all," boasted a pleased Coach Johnson.

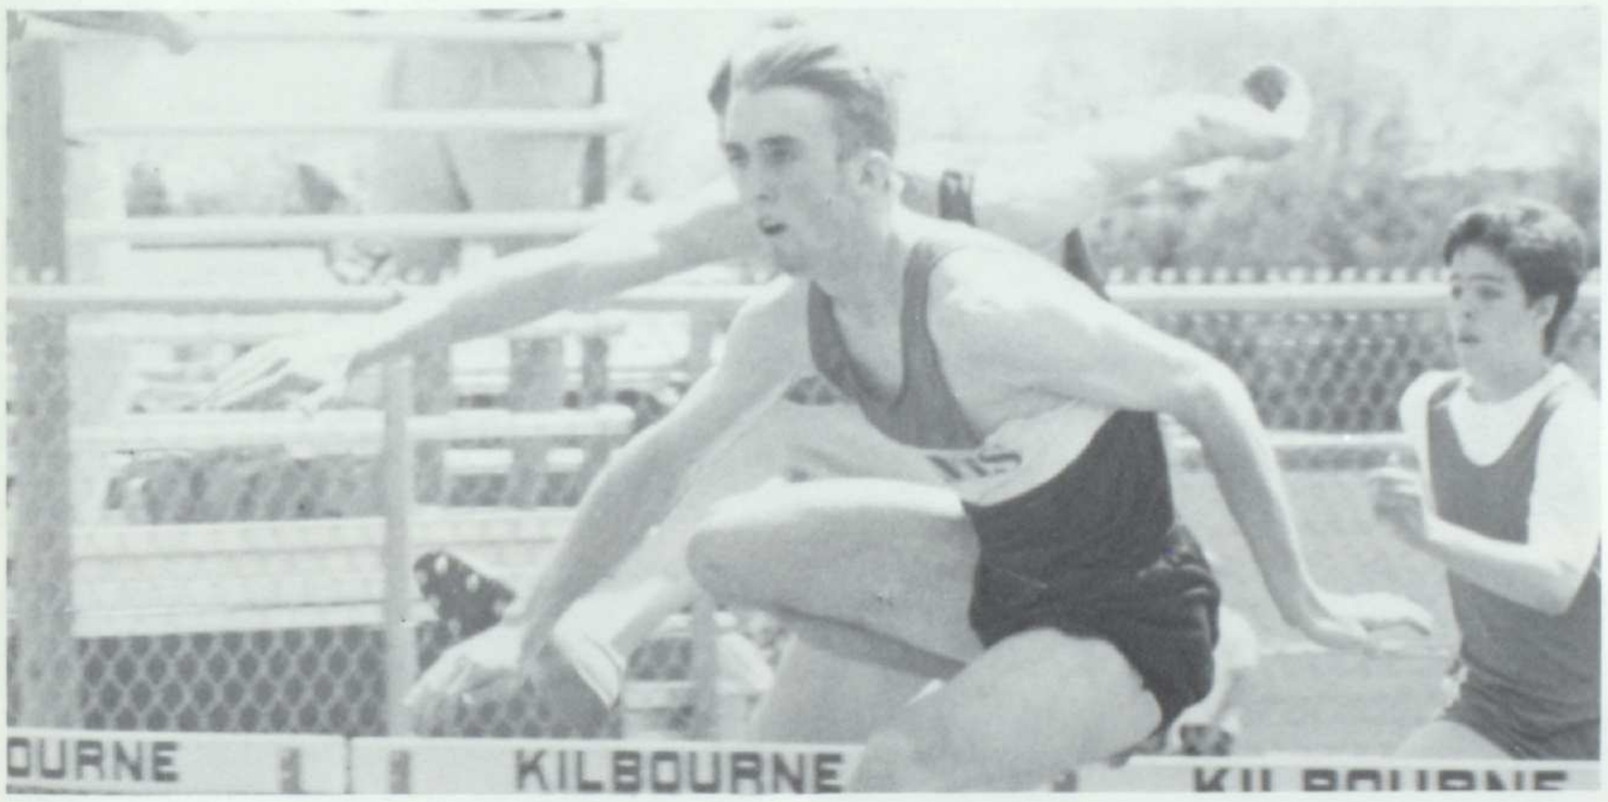
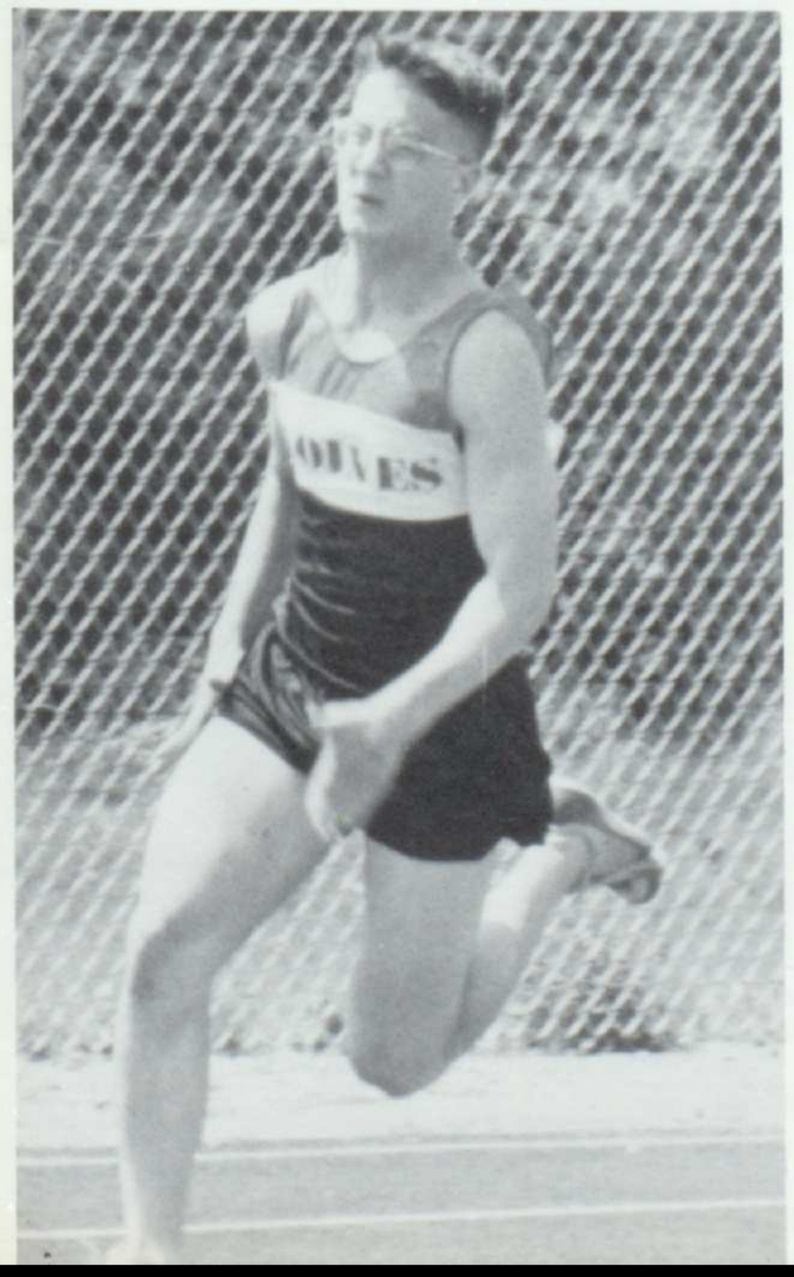
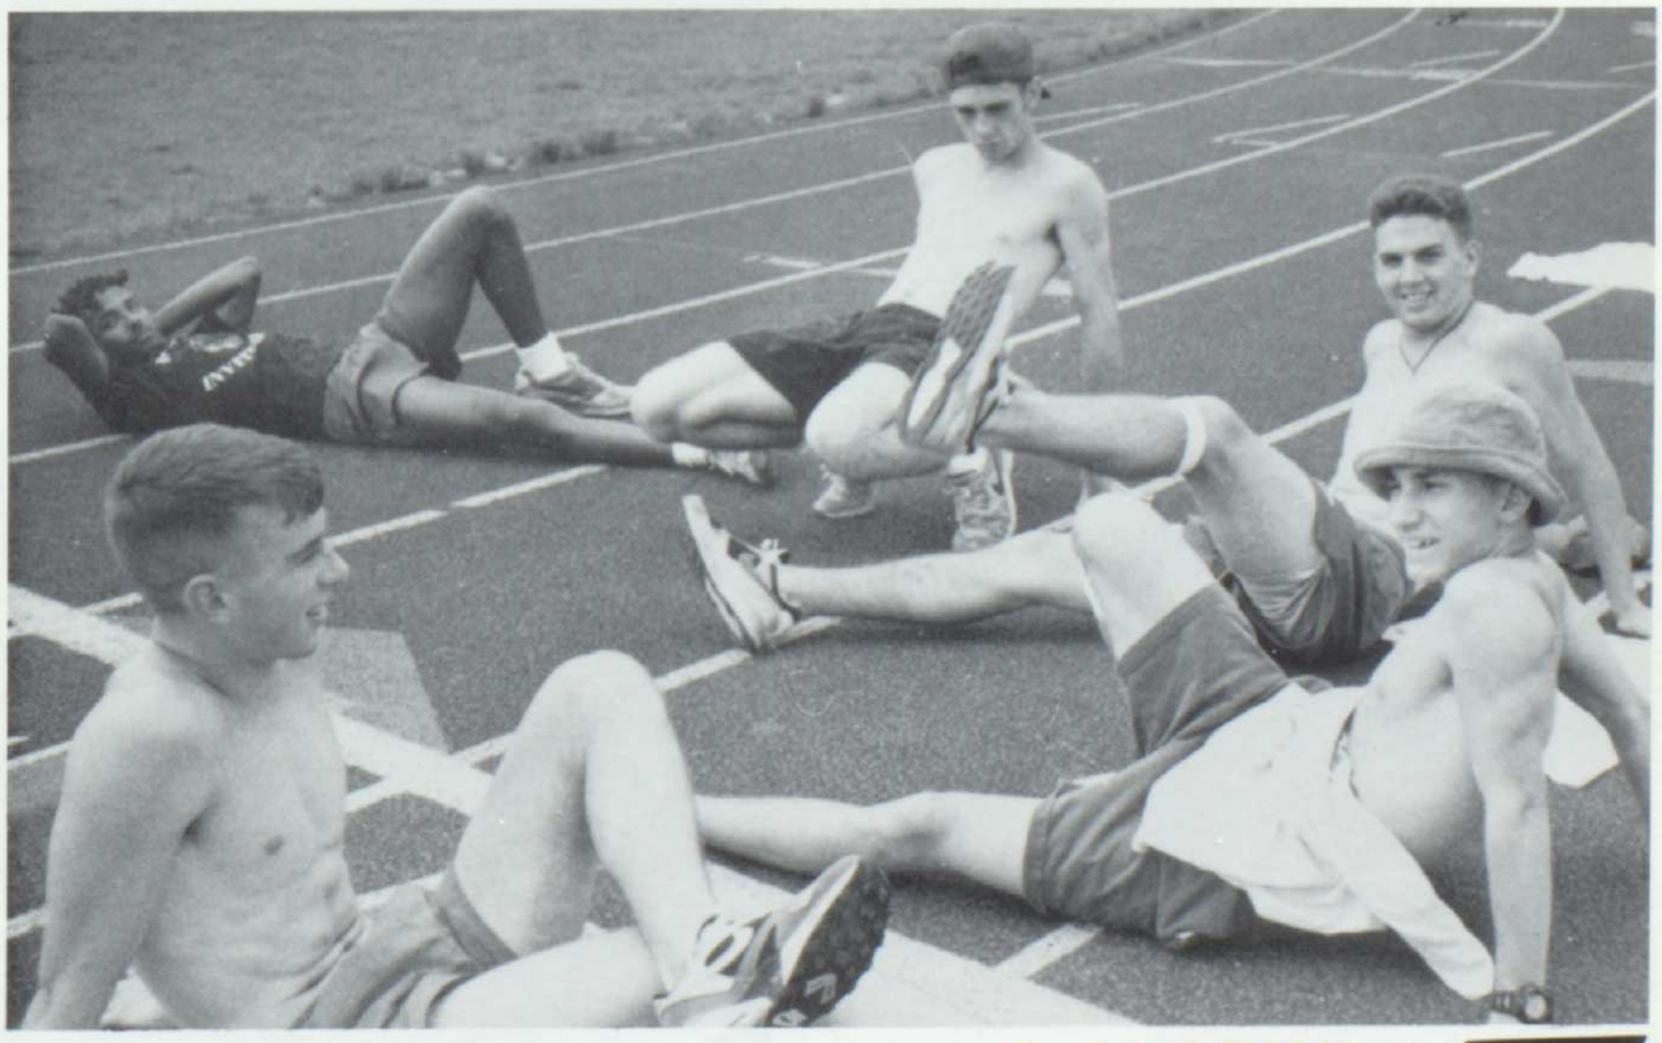
"It was a disappointment to get 2nd at states in the 4X800."
-Alan Beymer



Leading the pack over the 110 high hurdles is junior Matthew James Rieser.

Stretching on the track before a hard work out is the boys 4X800 meter relay team, consisting of Aaron Smith, Matt Dykes, Alan Beymer, Brandon Bird, and Steve Morris.



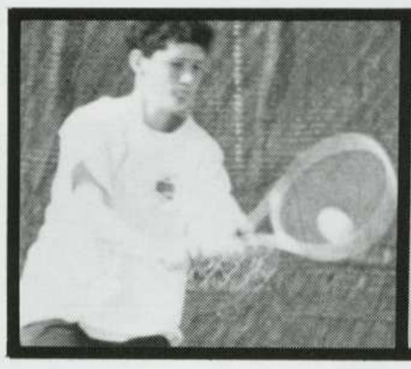


Sprinting to success, junior Steve Min shows us what he is made of.

MIX & MATCH

Improvement: The goal that was reached

'I think we did well, considering how young we still are.'
- Jon Kozich



'We came together and worked hard to reach our goal of improving.'
-Lee Hayes

'Despite our odds, we competed well in the O.C.C.'
-Ari Sinharoy

The Worthington Kilbourne boys' tennis team compiled an 8-7 record for the year, placing 4th in the league. But with each match they improved and gave their opponents a challenging game. Lead by Coach Bobbie Davis, the 1993 squad volleyed their way through an improving season, not just as a team, but also as individuals. The young and inexperienced players from last year proved to their competitors and to each other that they are able to work with one another and that they have what it takes to be on the team and court.

From last year's squad, Lee Hayes once again displayed outstanding skills to qualify for District semi-finalist. In competition he placed 4th and once again walked away with Honorable Mention O.C.C.

Next season should be a successful one with many returning players who have demonstrated the ability to win. Coach Davis was very pleased with the season, the improvement of players' skills, and the development of a sense of teamwork.

A STEP FARTHER

Dedication & desire were the key things in '93

This year's boys volleyball team definitely have matured into something that makes them all proud. Not only did they improve physically, but they also developed mental toughness. After being only one game away from qualifying for the state tournament last year, this teams' desire to reach states were realized. The guys ended their season with an overall record of 23-12. The dedication that the players displayed throughout the season showed that they were meant to be at the tournament. Unfortunately, they lost in the first round of their competition and weren't able to advance further. But second year coach Glenda Rice was proud of the team anyway for accomplishing the team goal to reach the state tournament.

Two talented Wolves achieved special recognition this season. Junior Dan Everett gained All State while Dickson Lao received Honorable Mention All State. The two spikers played in the All State competition.

All in all, the families and fans want to congratulate the guys for a job well done.

Dental Sealants: because cavities are the pits.

No one has to drill you on the discomfort and expense of cavities. Fortunately now, everyone can come out smiling. Because today there are dental sealants--a special plastic coating to protect the tops of teeth where cavities can begin. Before they begin.

Get filled in on this new technique. For questions on sealants, or a full range of dental procedures, call us. We'll Rap.

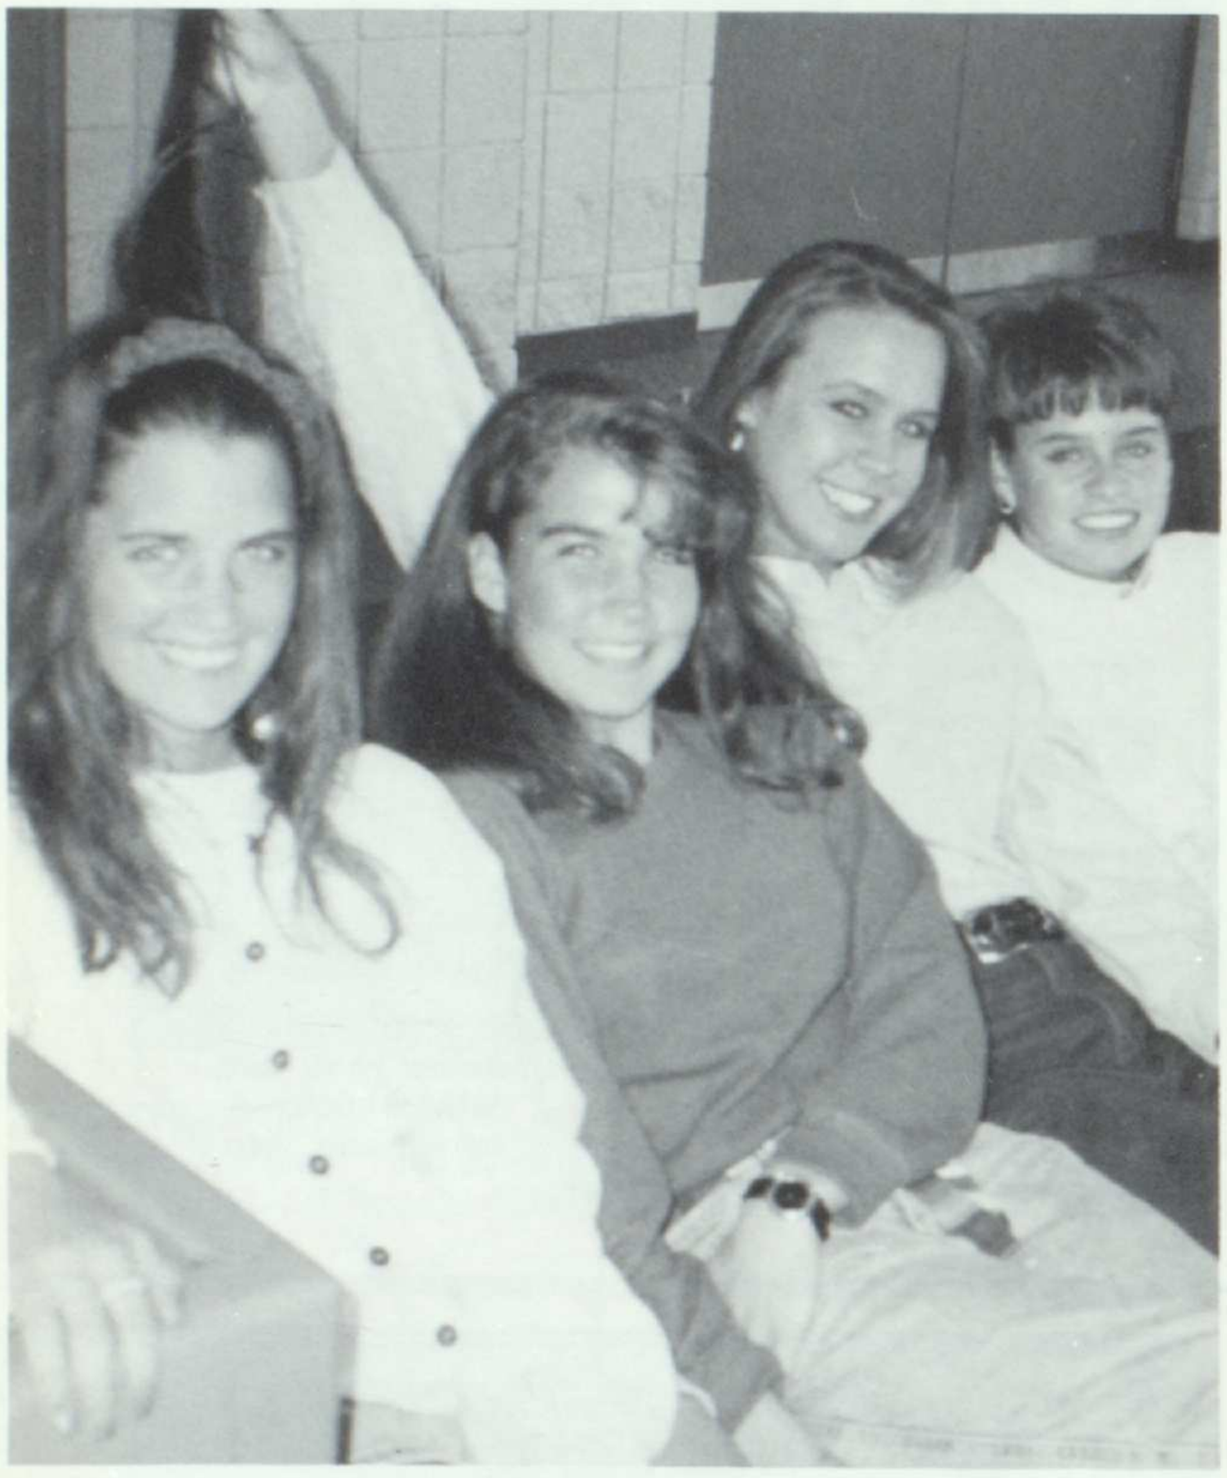
SENIOR CLASS PHOTOGRAPHER

As a modern woman of the 90's, junior Kelly Veach follows the fashion trends set by First Lady Hillary Clinton by wearing a headband.

Resting after a long, hard lunch are seniors Kerrie Towler, Kristi Donlon, Darian Hunter, and Melissa Bell.

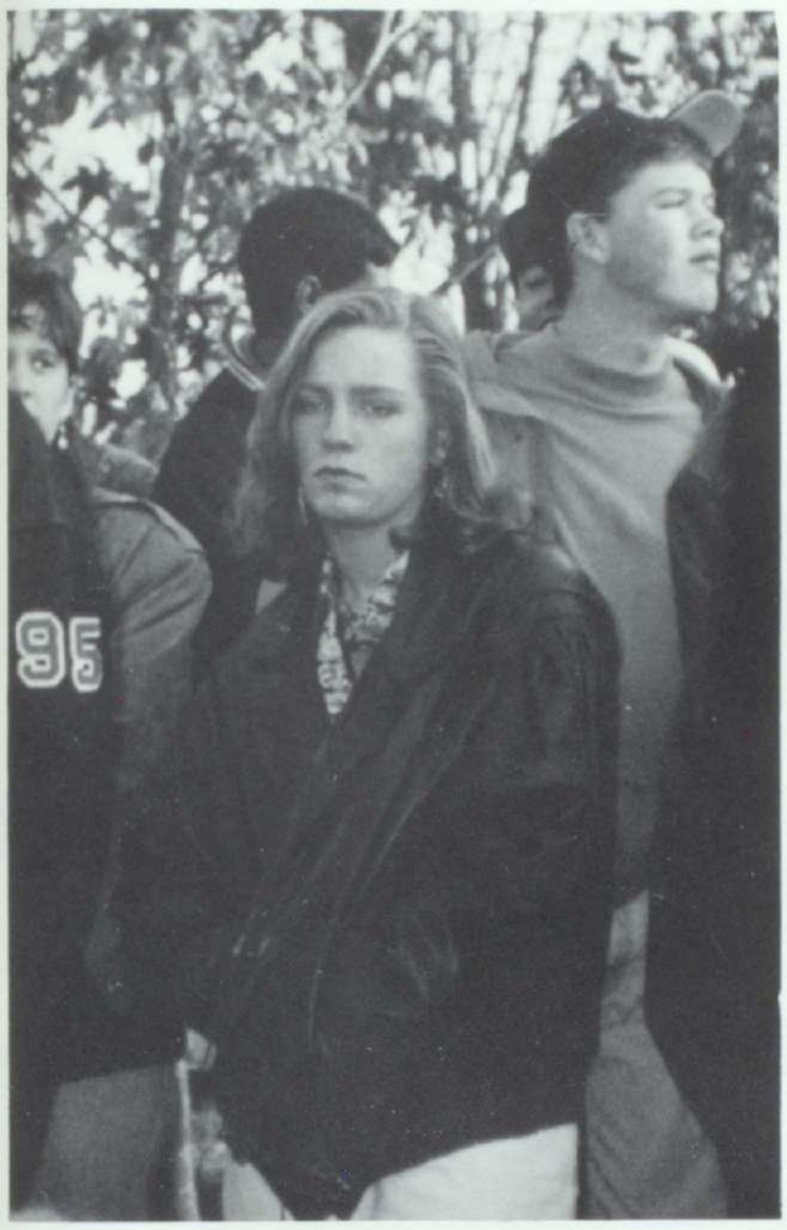


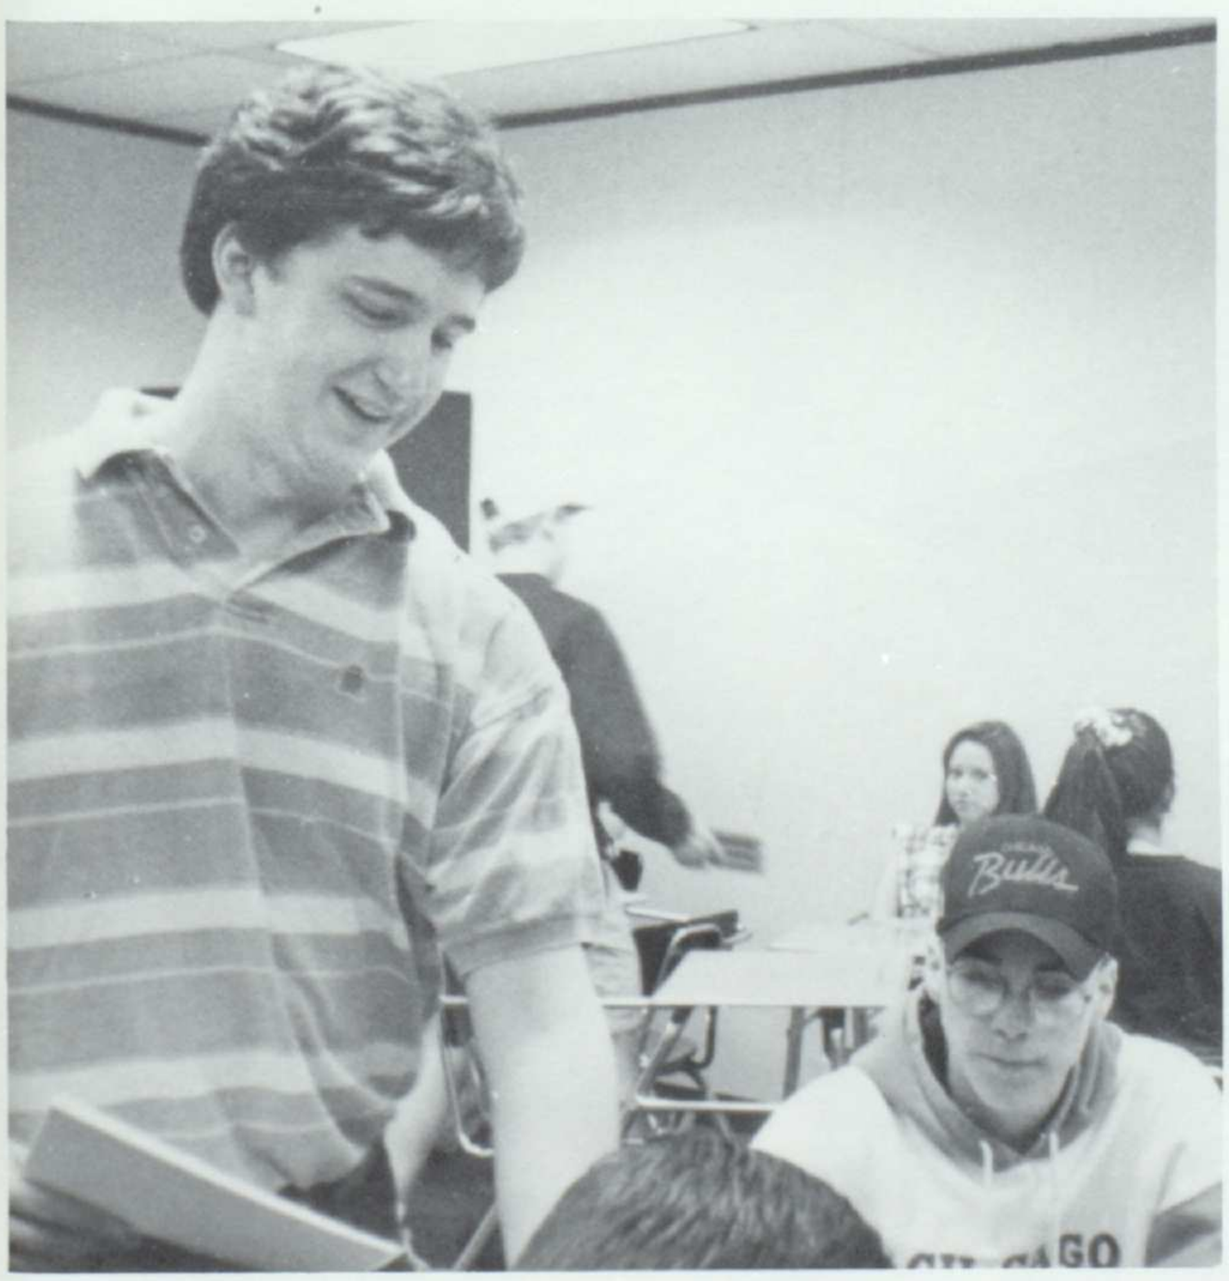
Happy to be seniors are Sara Freund, Heather Hanna, and Jessica McGurk.

Mrs. Papp is not very pleased with what just came out of Jeremy Trimble's mouth.

"Do I look cute in my new hat or what," thinks Kristen Bielek.

"I'm so sick of standing here, I could just scream," complains Jennifer Larrison.





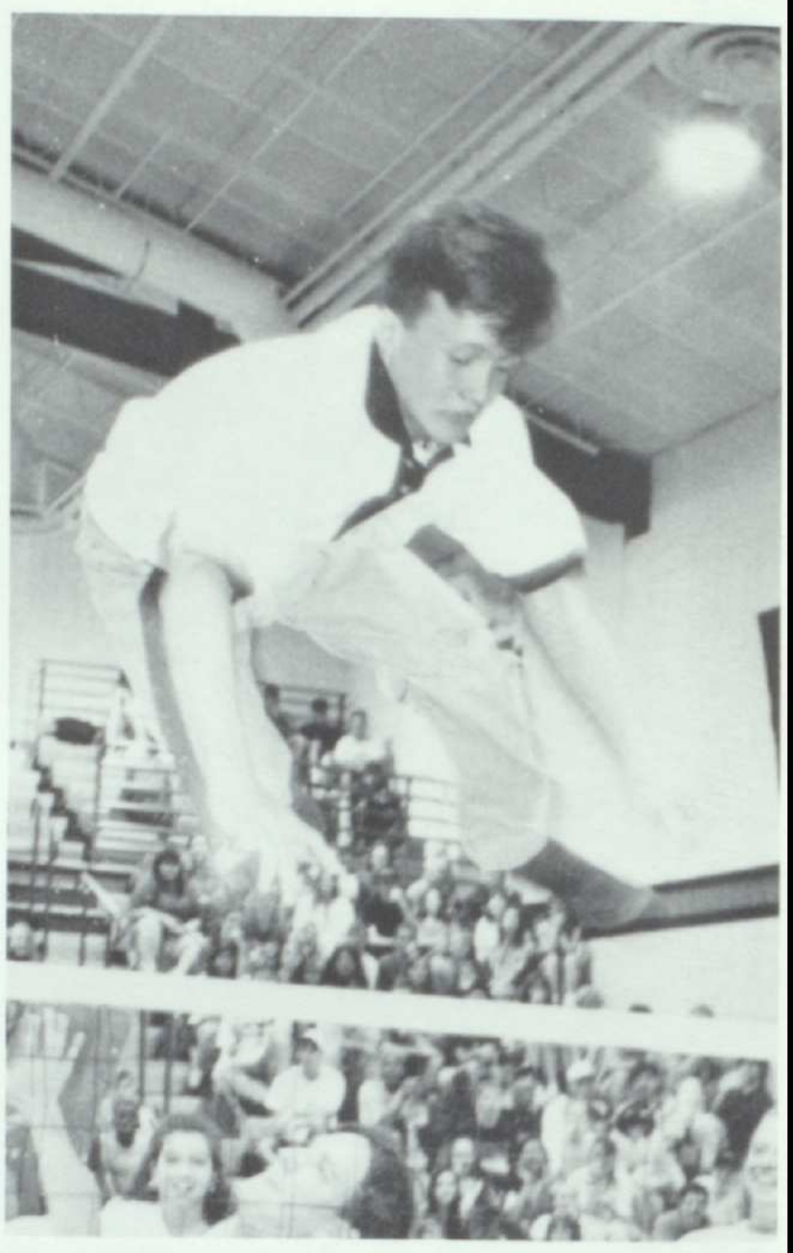
Smiling like always is Mr. Snapp as he helps his student Sean Milligan.

"I'm so glad to be out of here," waves Shawn Tiller.

"I'd rather be at home than in this class," thinks Veronica McWhorter.

Mrs. Maurer and Eula Baranovsky are enjoying the sights of Toronto, Canada.

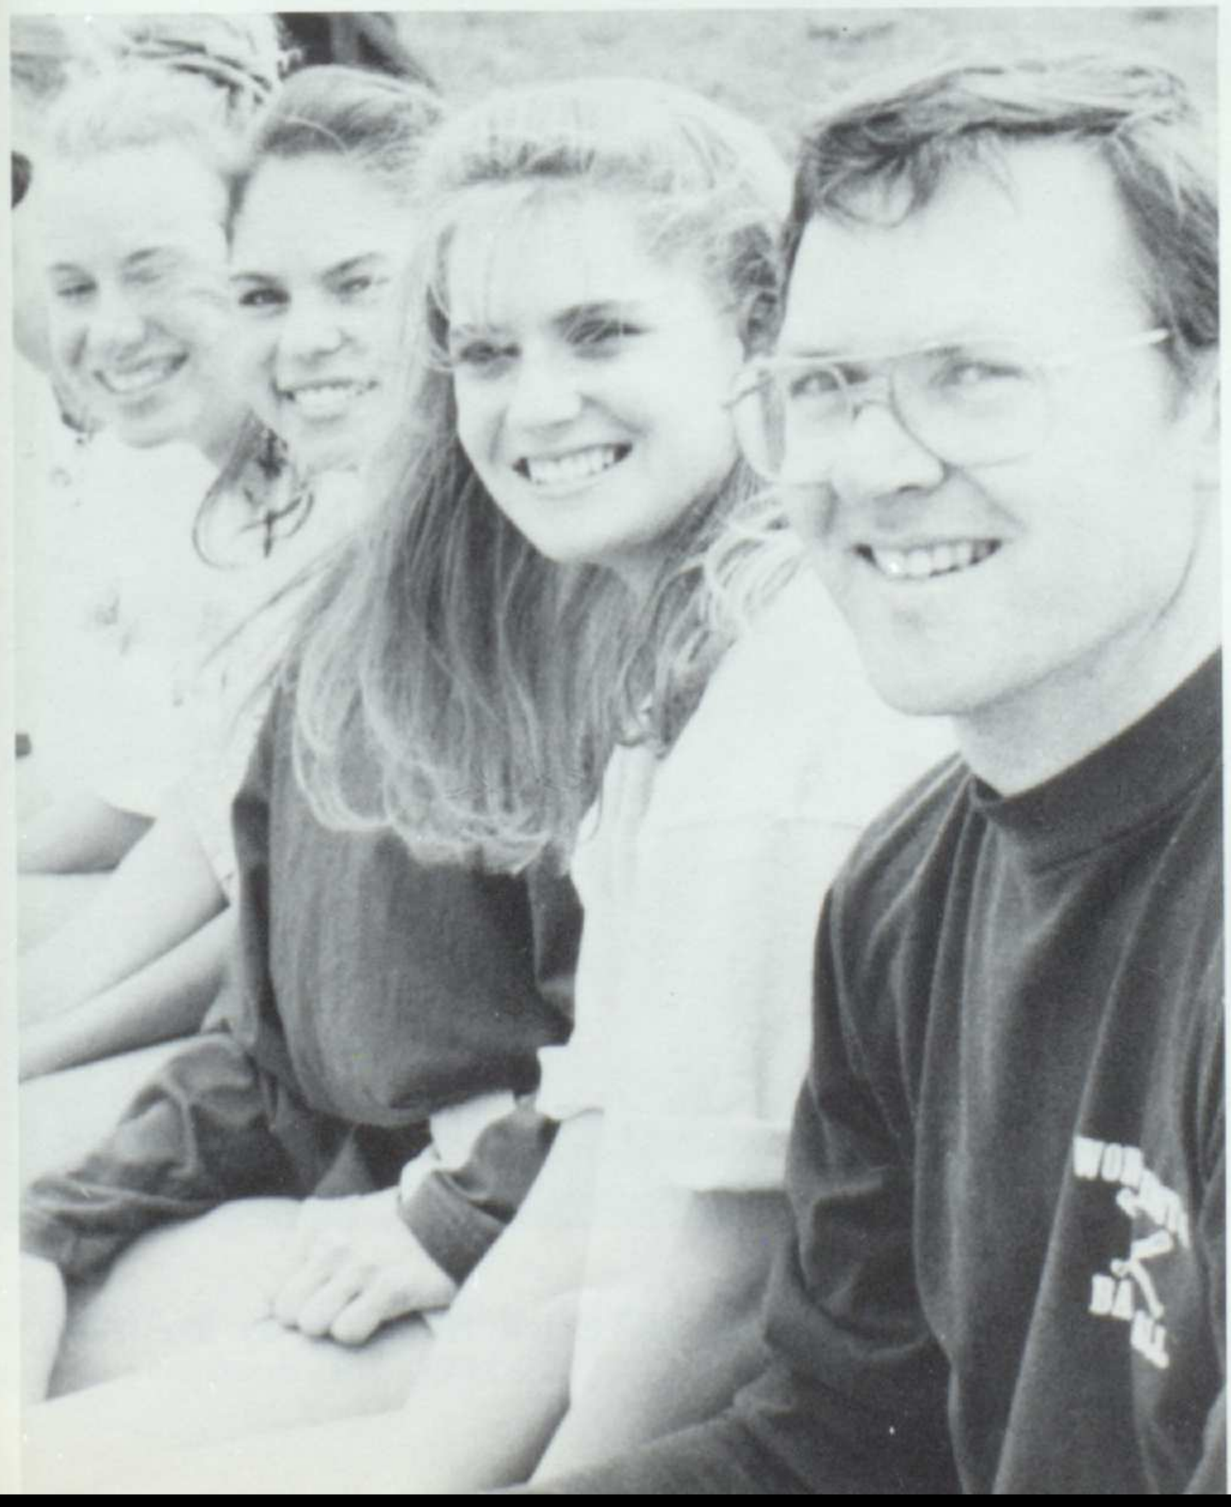
Jumping for joy during the Final Fling is sophomore Ken Coulter.



These senior girls Kim Lyons, Kate Chitwood, Heather Stewart, Ashley Norris, Melissa Bell, And Darian Hunter pull with all their might to beat the juniors.

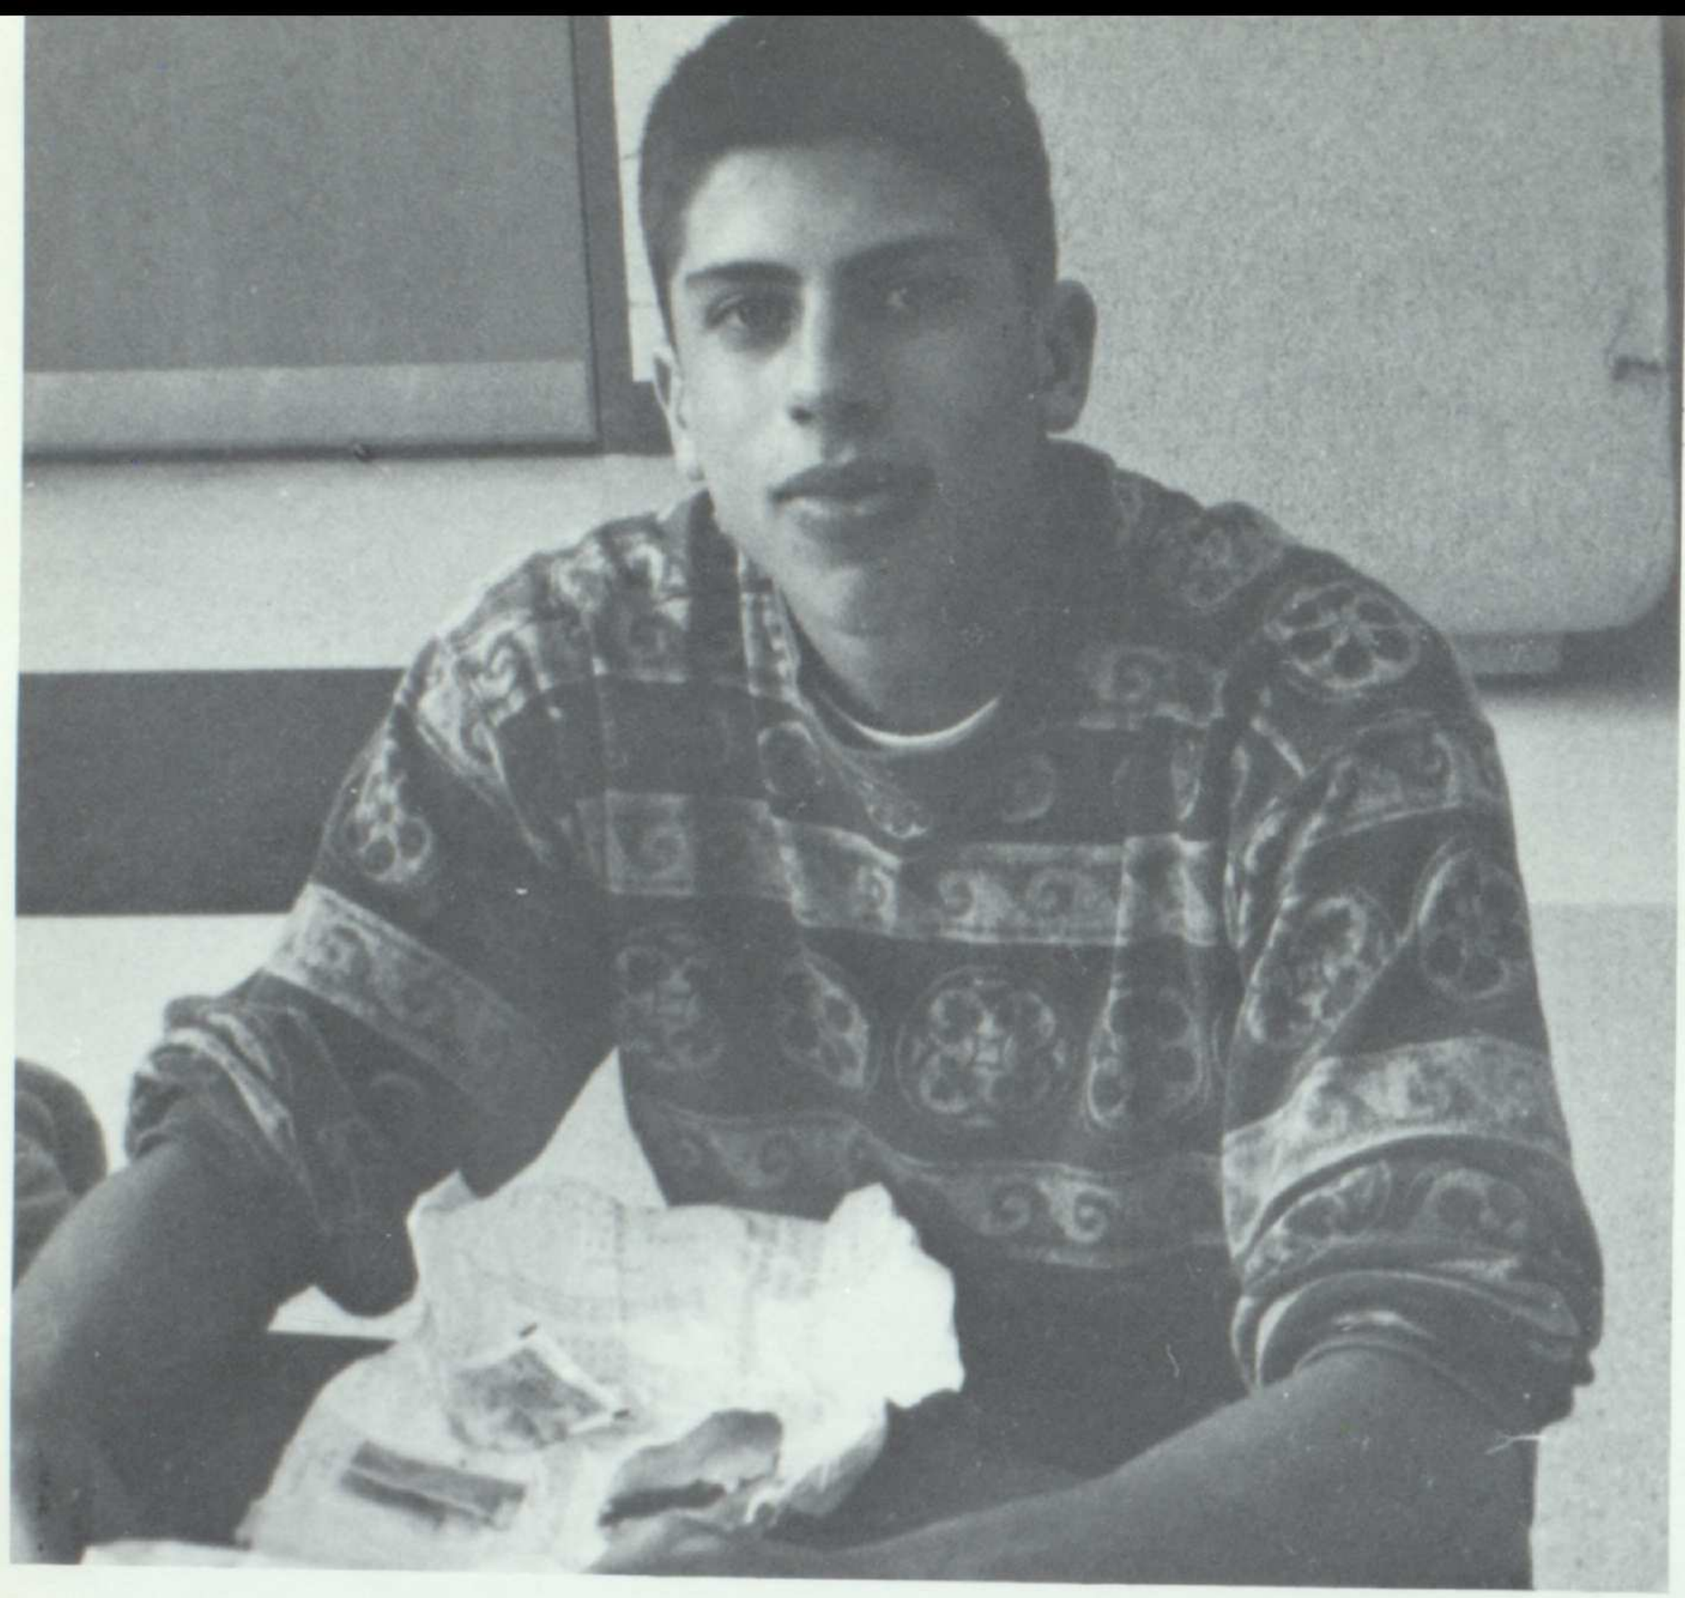
Attending the 1993 Prom are Coach Paul Roman and Ms. Behrend who are soon to be married.

Spotted with unusual birthmarks are Ian Brown, Jon Keeling, Tom Kotch, Jamie Davis, Mike Gilbert, and John Ness.



Competing for the best smile contest are Jenni Cramer, Heather Bell, Heather Jacobson, and Mr. King.

Pointing in the direction of Toronto are a group of lost choir students.

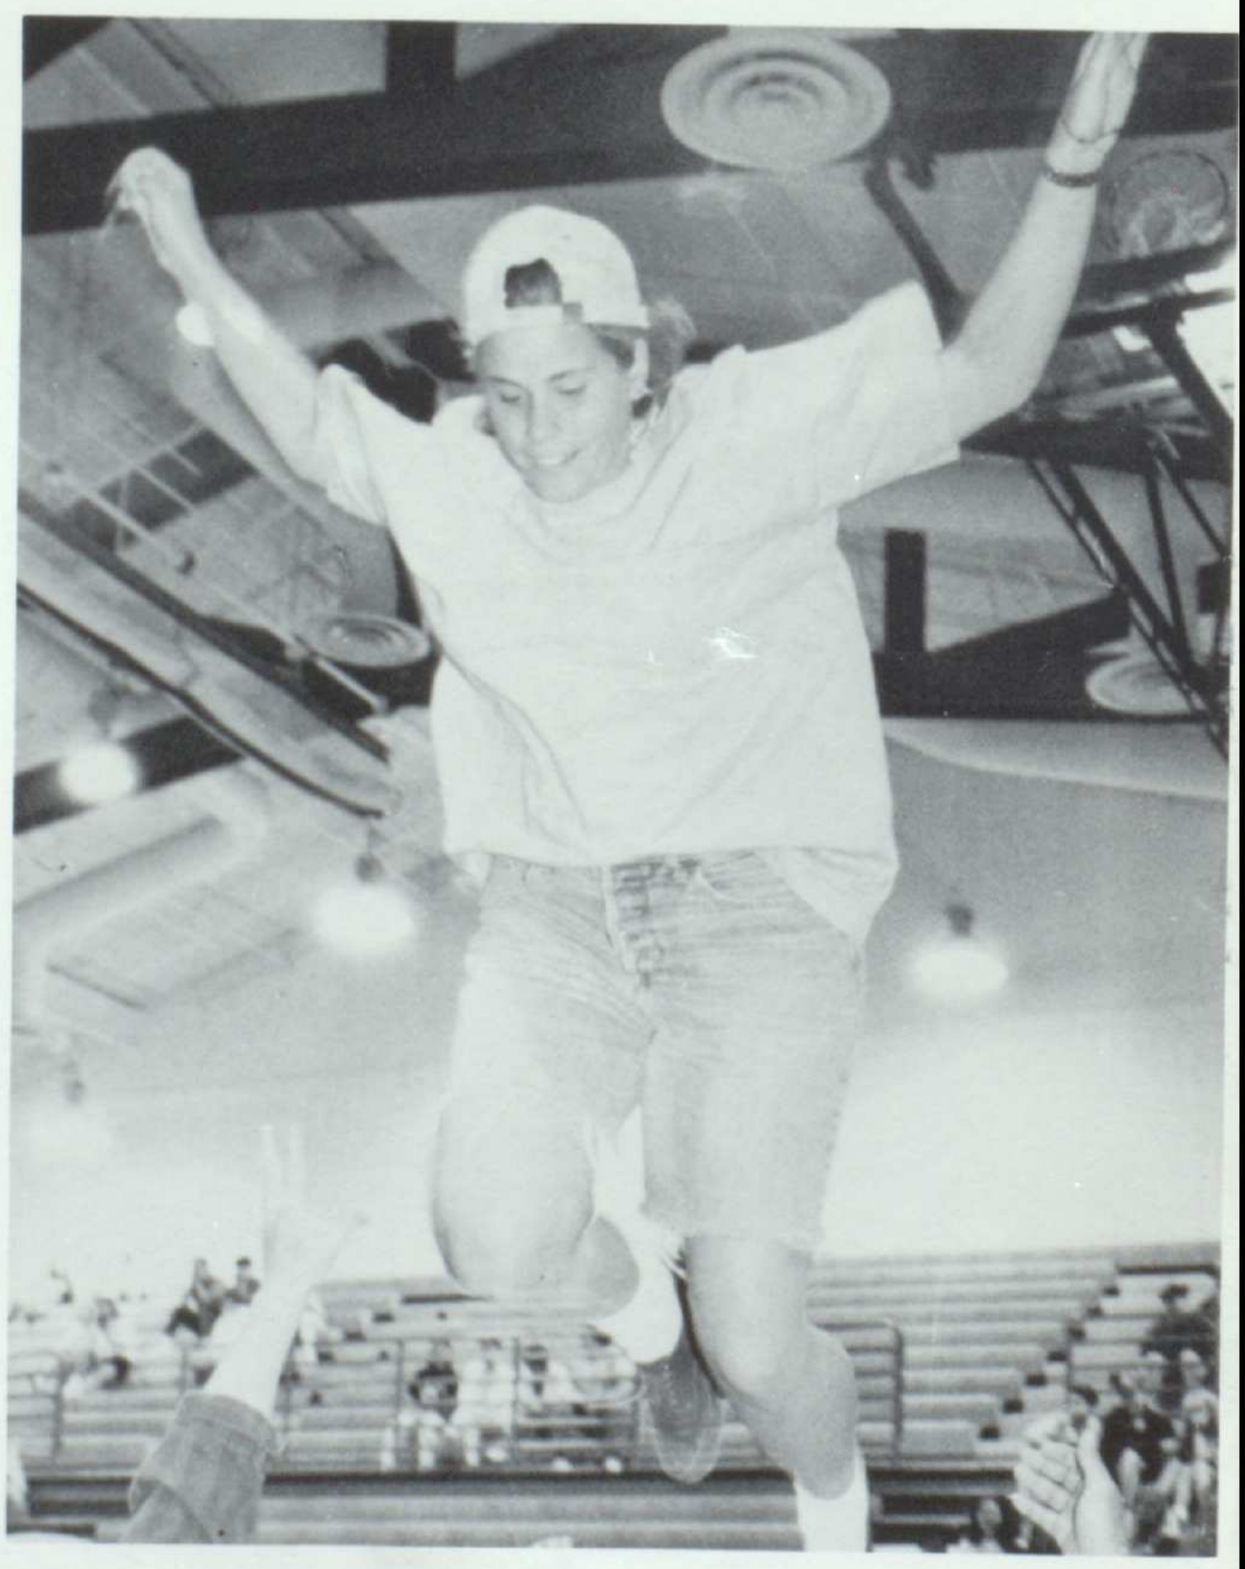


Did someone interrupt Justin Filia's lunch, or is he just resting?

JAMIE DAVIS

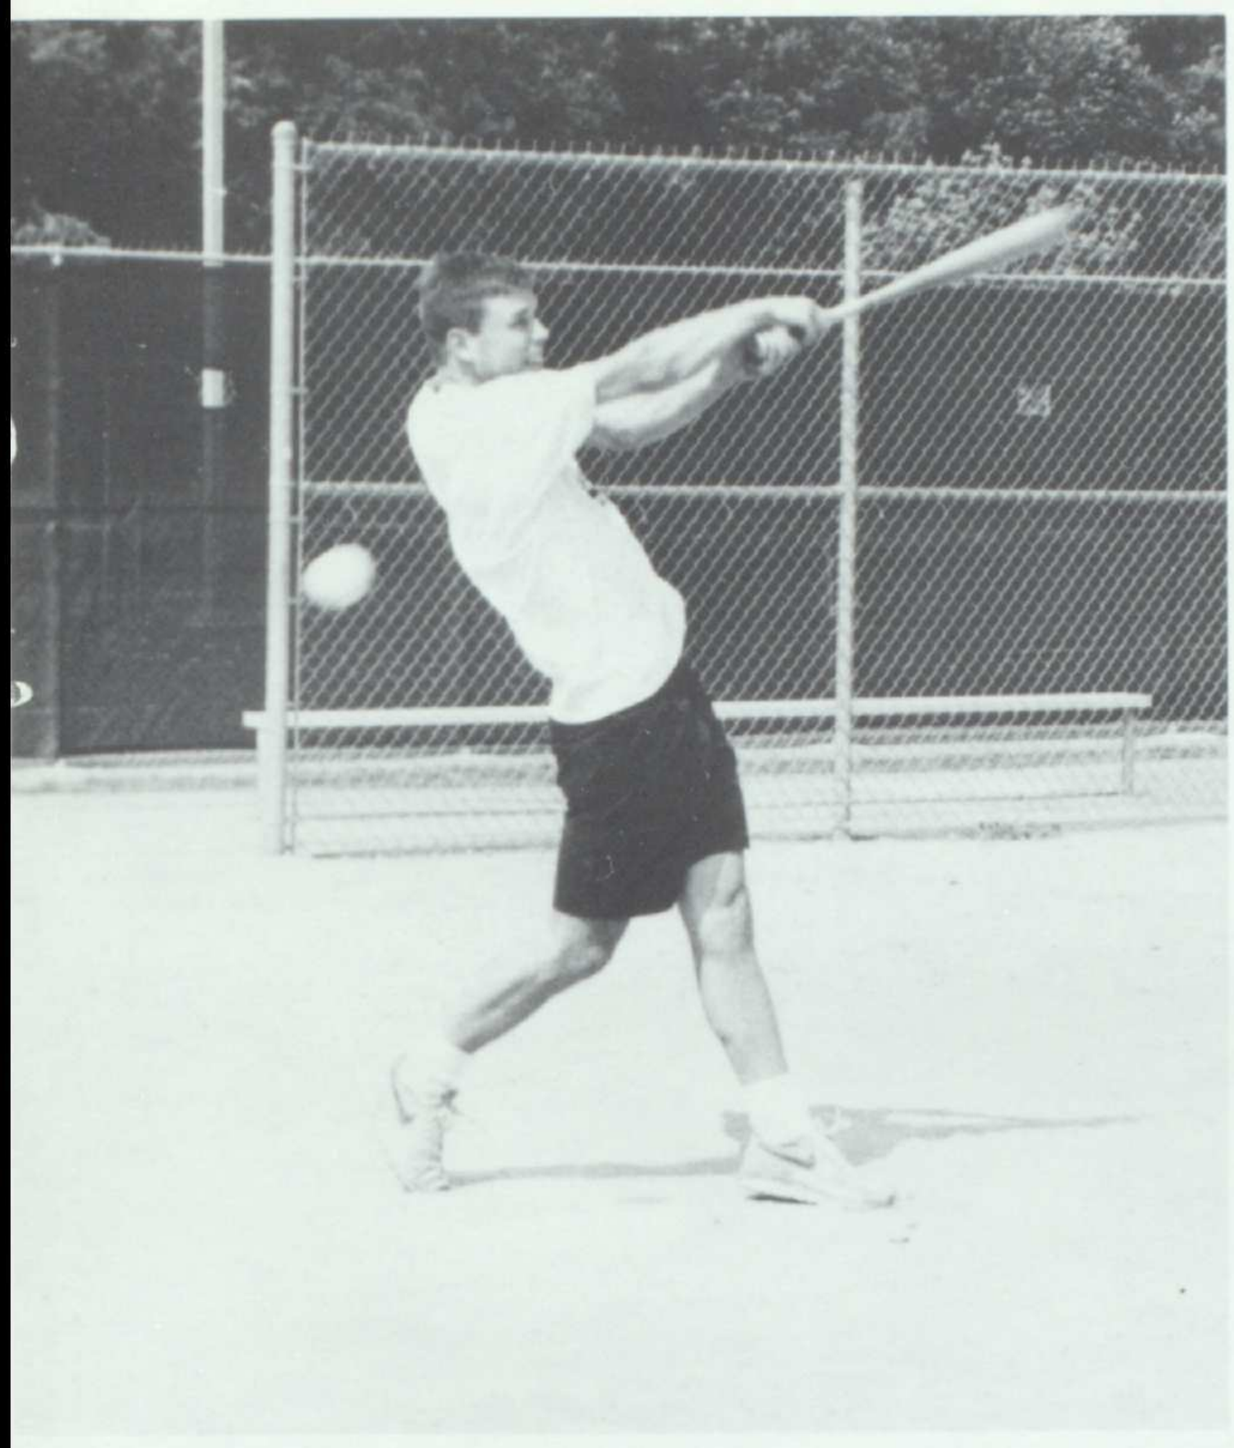
Always keep smiling and never give up on your dreams! Love Mom, Dad, and Heather.

Caught by the camera is Anu Chauhan as she changes classes.



"I know I can fly," shouts Erica Hardesty as she flaps her arms with all her might.

"No matter how hard I try, I can't hit that ball," thinks Jeff Todd.

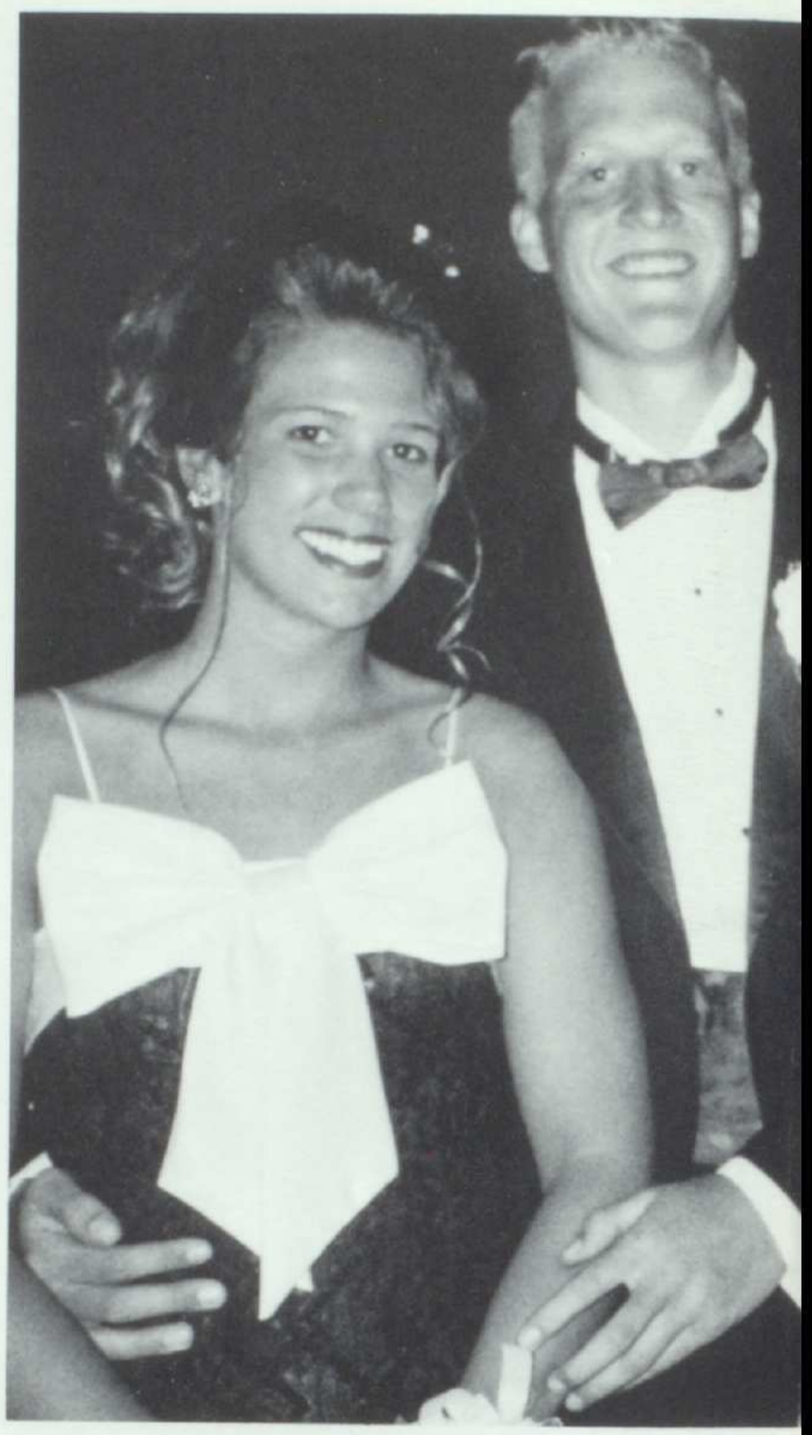


Being forced to crawl across the gym floor in a pyramid are Andy Clager, Ben Lombardi, Kevin Wanner, Benjie Mitchell, an unknown freshmen, and Delon Prince. Grin and bear it!

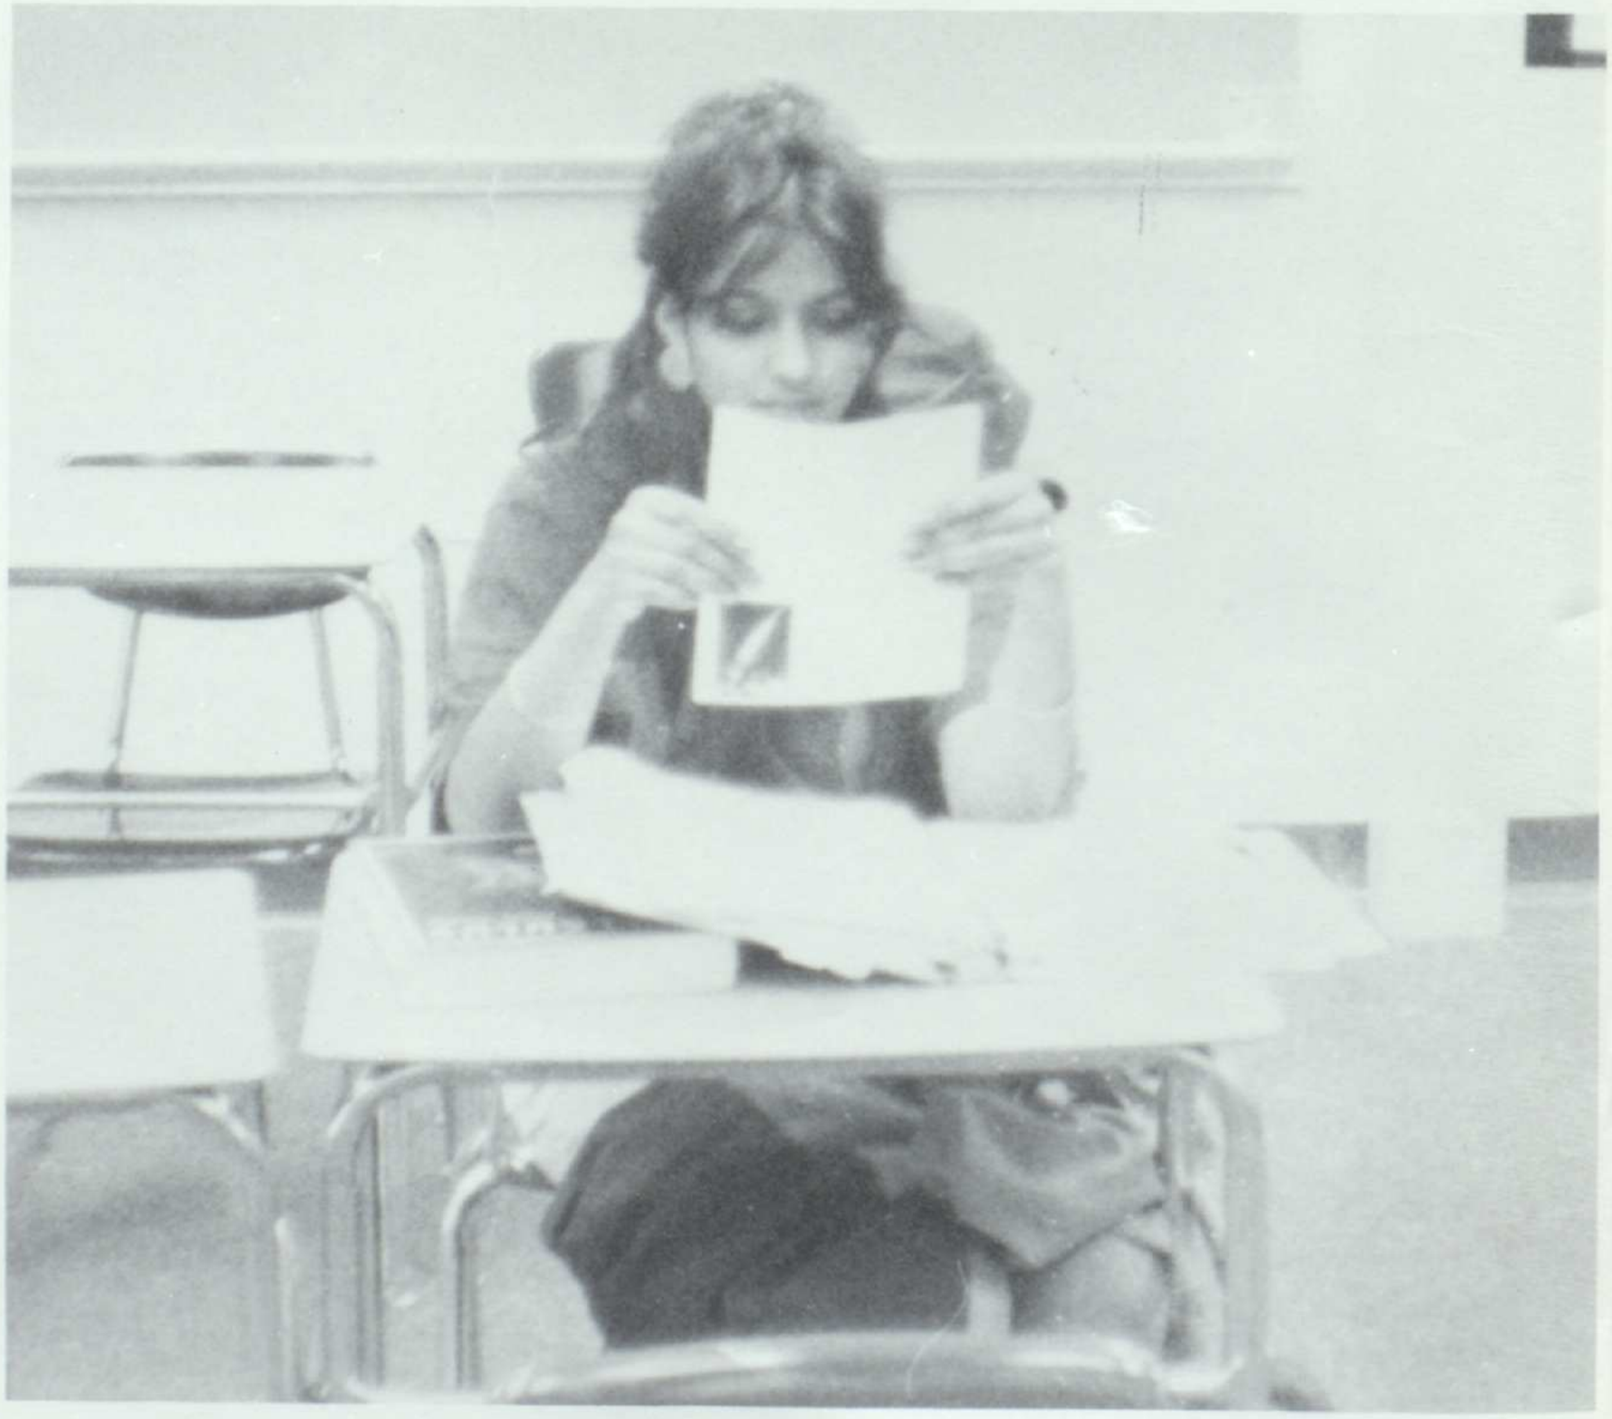
Believe it or not! This wild and crazy bunch somehow managed to put together the great yearbook for 1992-1993.

Going through their normal ritual of ring around the rosy before playing their soccer game are the Blitz Krieg players Brandon Loynes, Brandon Bird, Ben Dusthimer, Paul Smith, Steve Min, Jason Ash, Alan Beymer, Matt Rieser, Brian Niess, Andrew Speith, Matt Daniel, and Chris Frost.

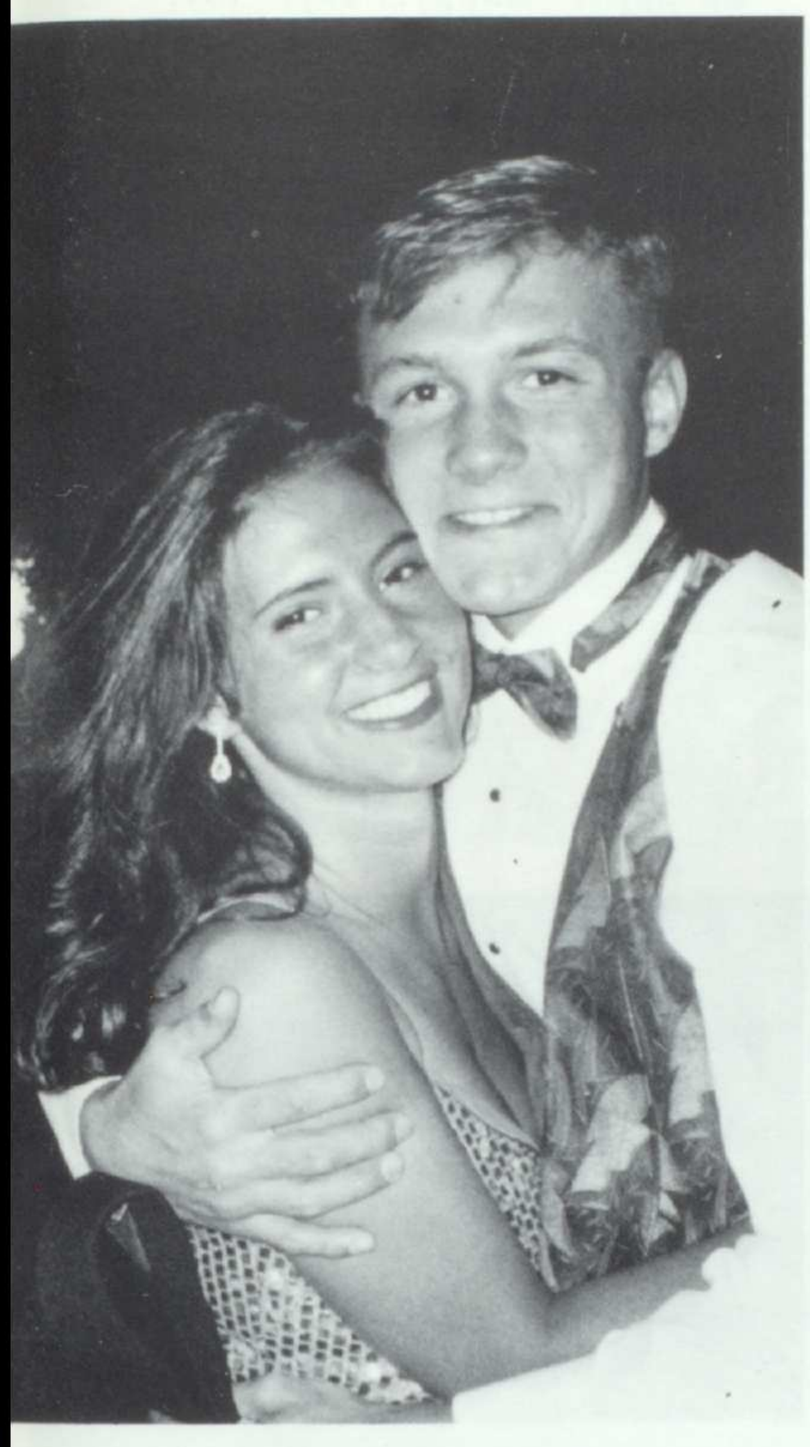
Competing in the best couple contest are Mandi Allinder, Ryan Meister, Marisa Wooten, and Chris Davis.



Joining the senior festivities are a group of underclass girls, Kristi Chitwood, Sarah Castle, Dana Mauer, Kristi Stevens, and Jessica Brown.

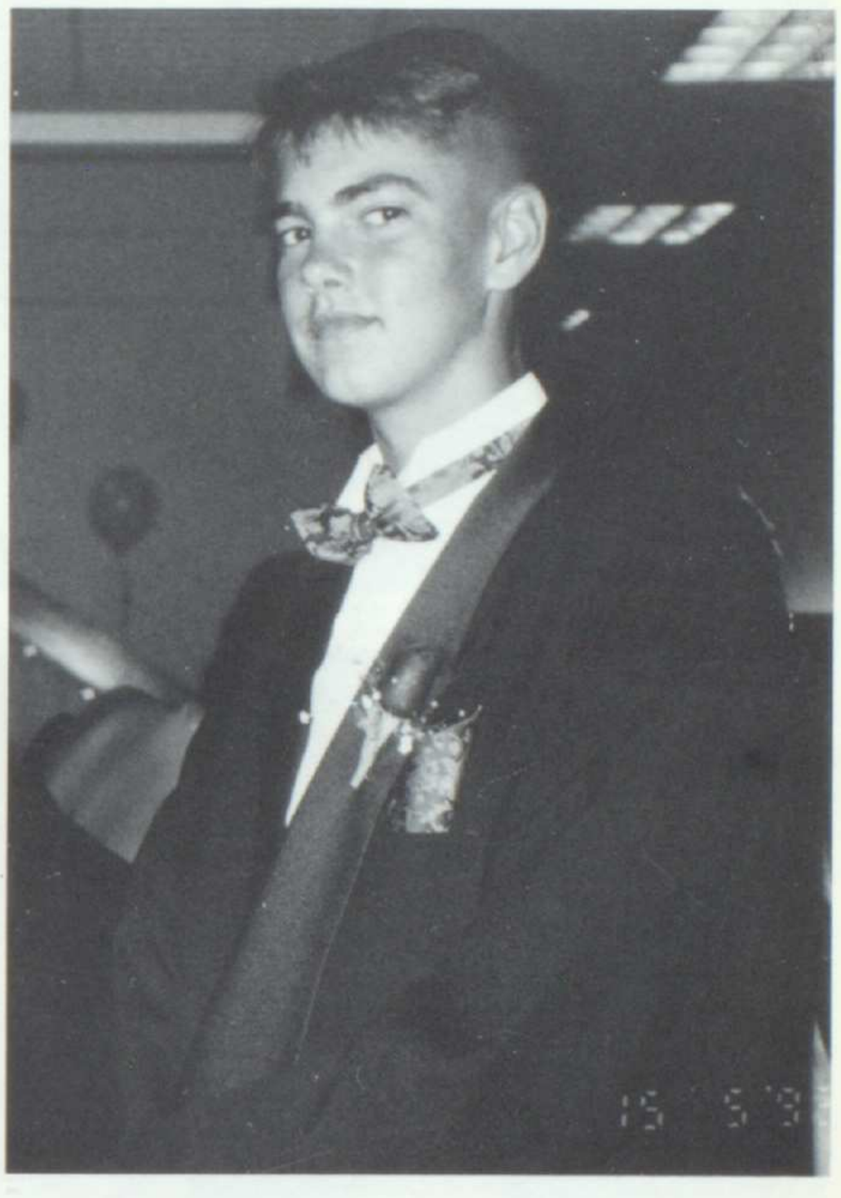


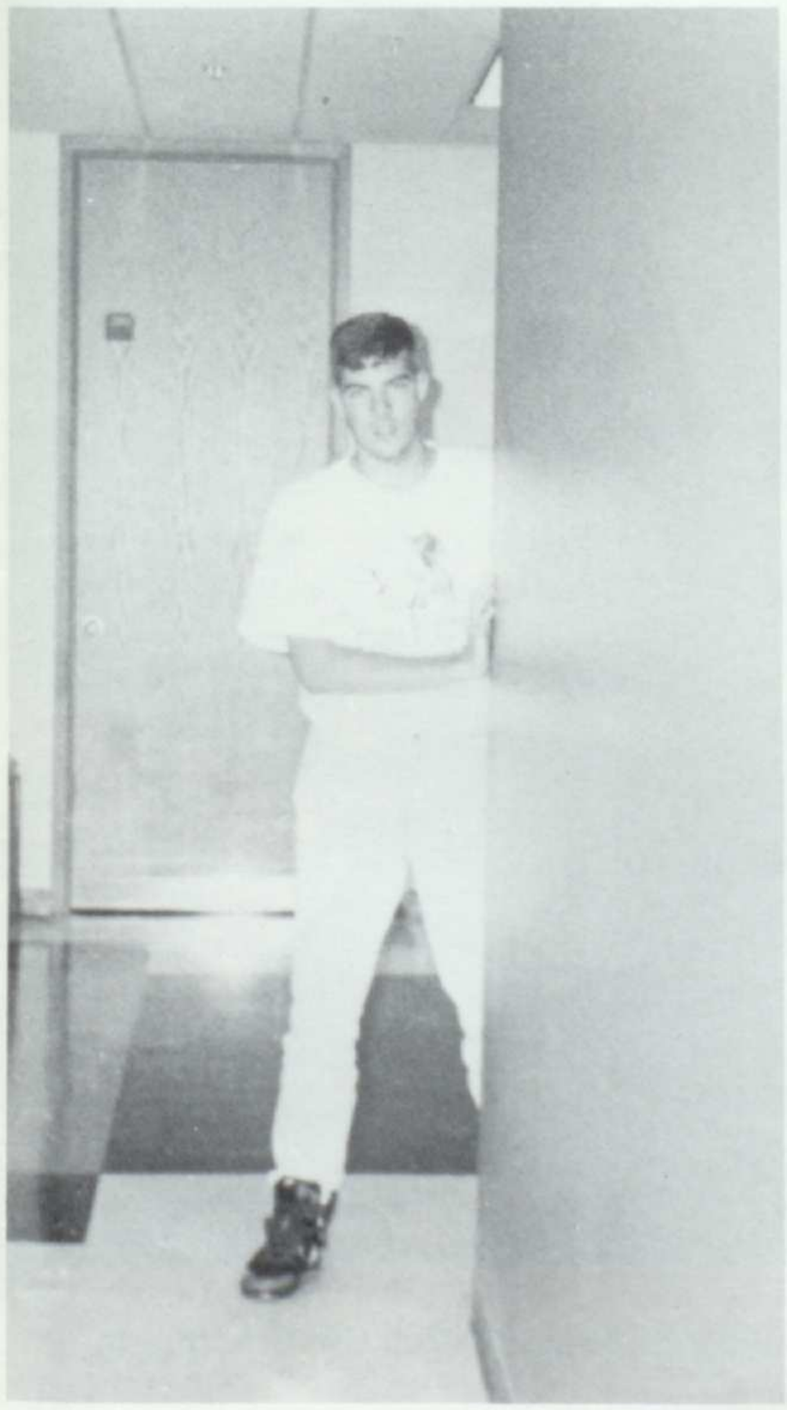
Showing what a good student she is, Ranjana Chauhan stays after class to to study just a little bit longer.



Happy to be at WKHS, Joe Schroff walks down the hall with pride.

Looking as studly as they come is junior Jeff Holowicki.

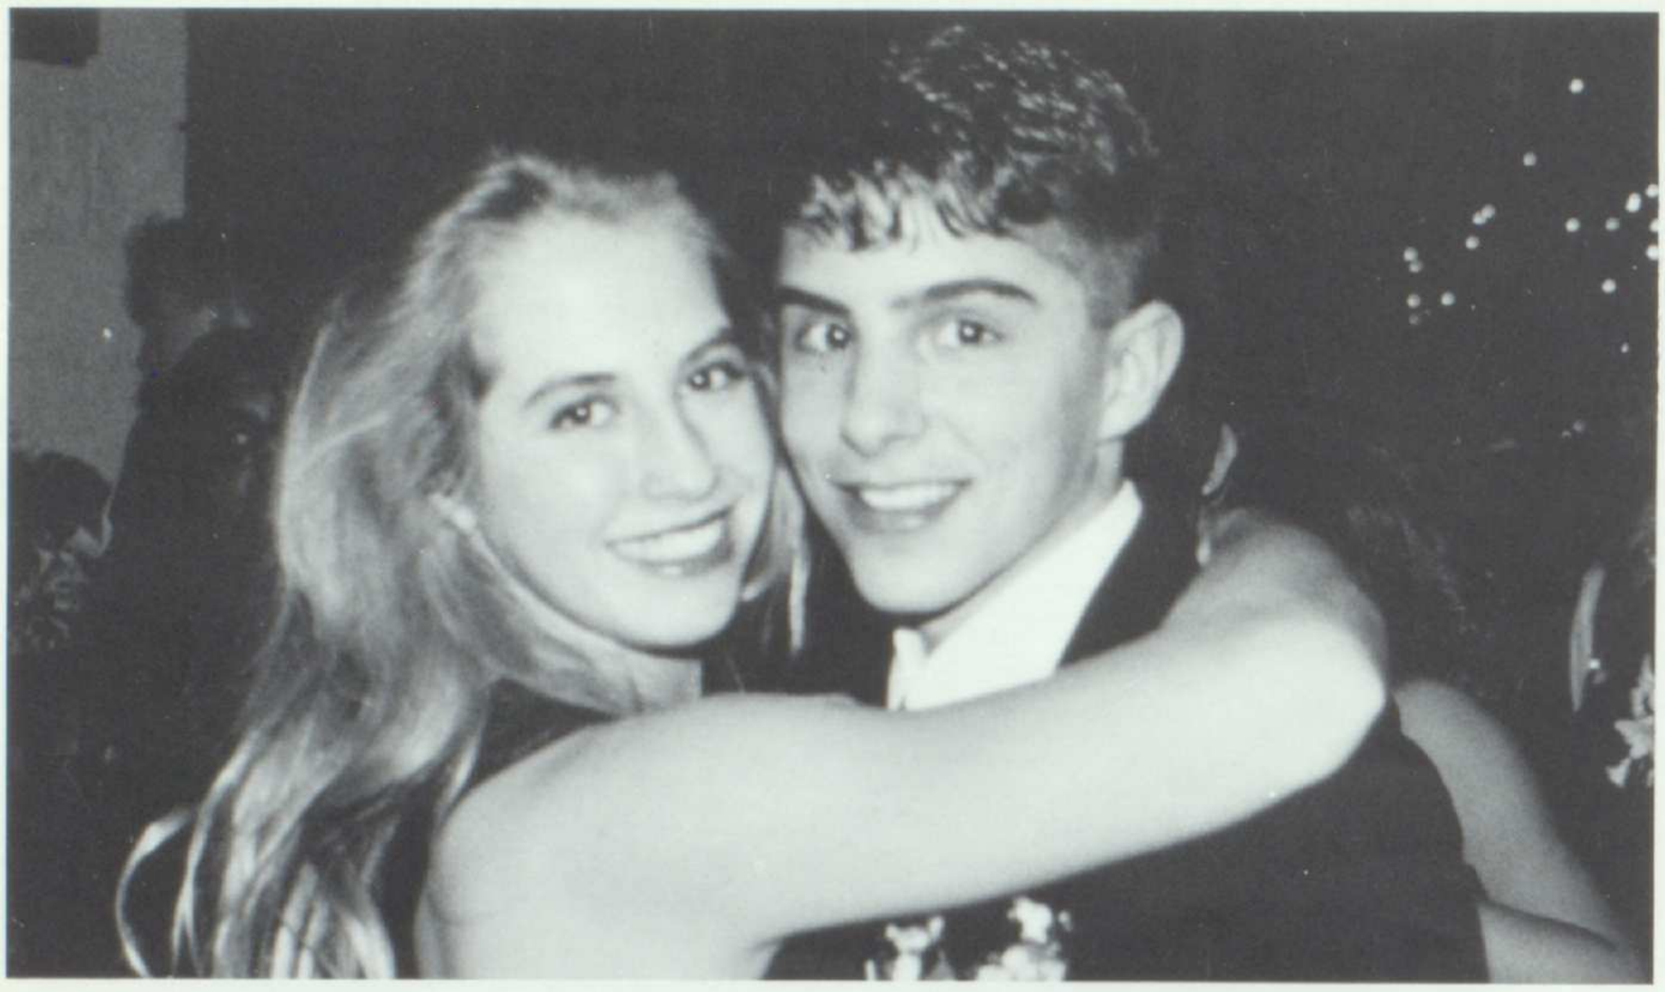




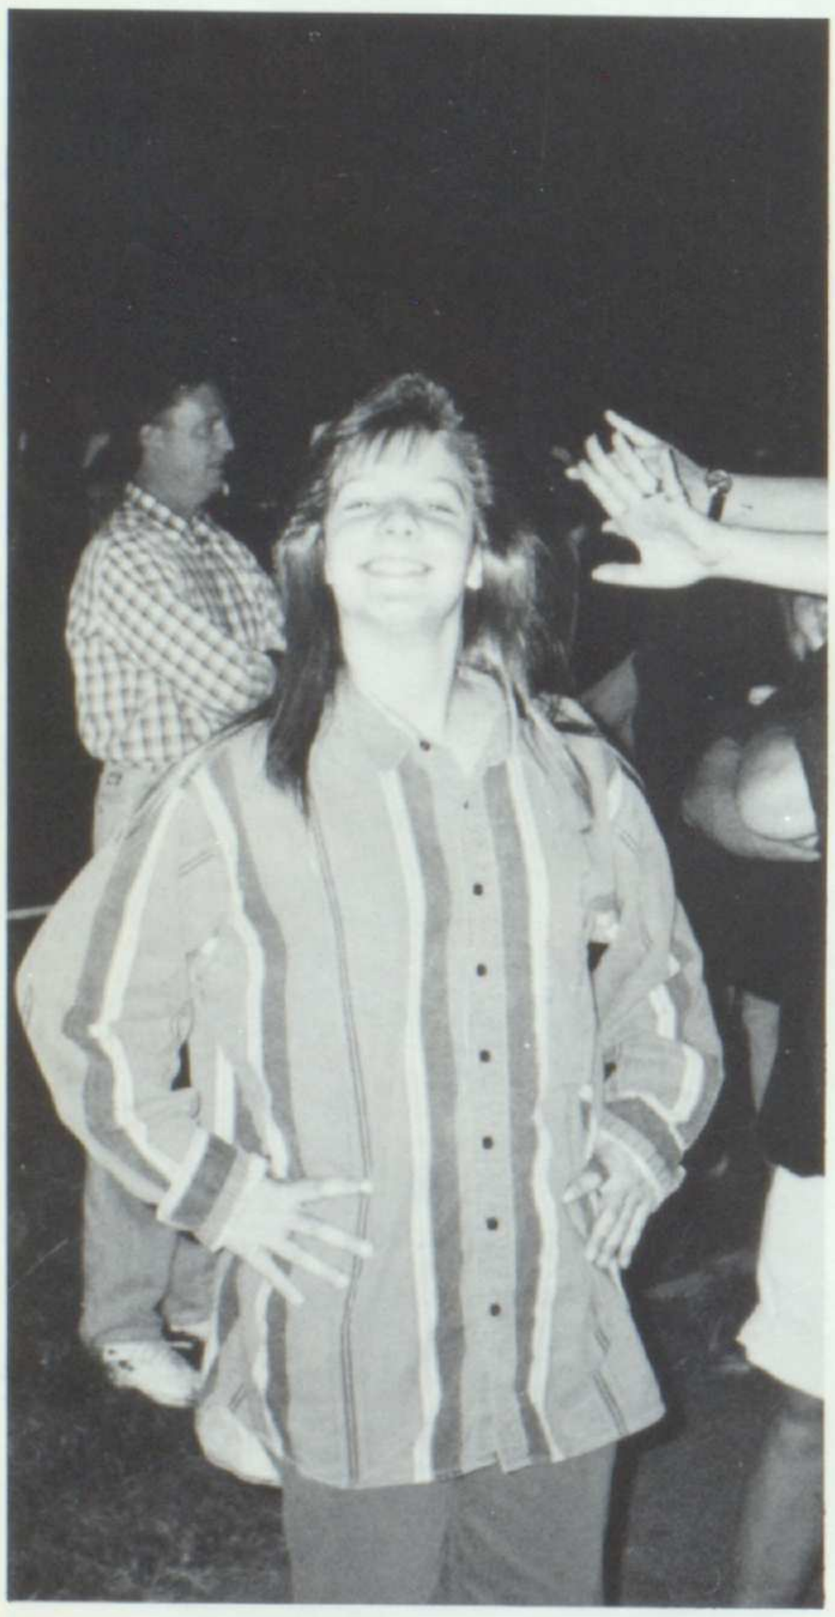
Usually a very shy guy, the camera manages to catch Mike Casey off guard to get a picture.

Painting their mural for spirit week, these juniors have fun just hanging out together.

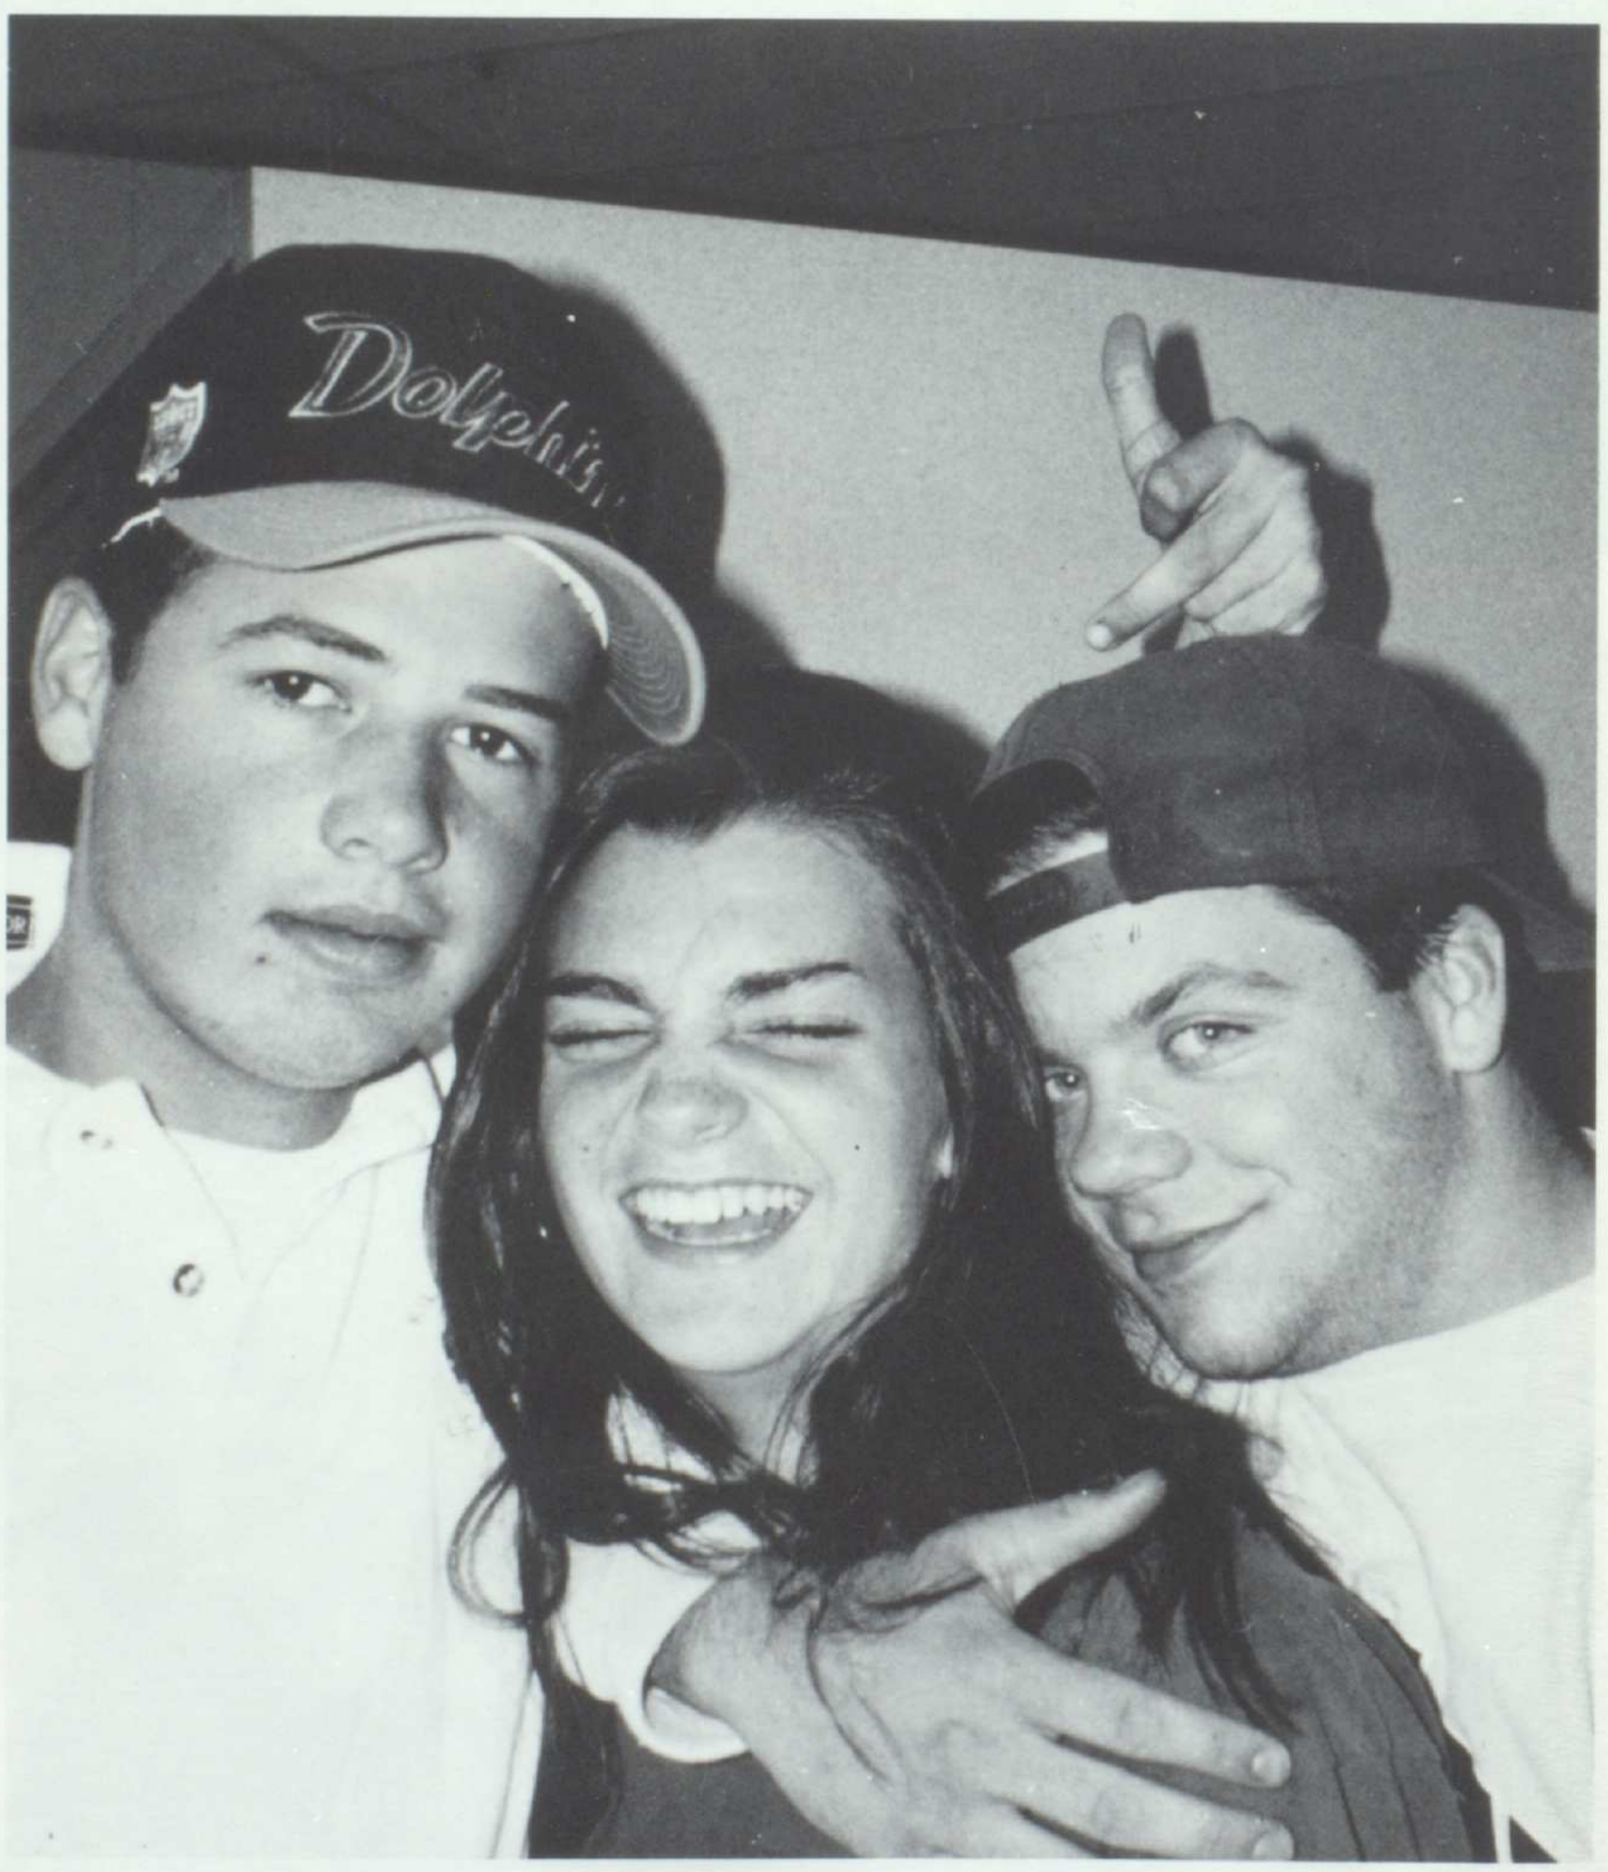
Holding on tight, Heather Rebele squeezes her date Andy Williams.



"Happy, Happy, Joy, Joy," say Nicole Kaitsa and Anita Mathur.



Proud to be a Wolf is Sheryl Smith as her fans reach out to her.



Andres Castrillon and Jim Begley enjoy making Jessica Brown laugh.

Waving the American flag above his head Mike Szabo shouts "I'm proud to be an American and proud to be a Wolf."

ALMA MATER

As we walk the path of life
Throughout the years to come,
We'll sing this song in honor of
Our dear old Worthington.
Across the fields and through the hills
This song will echo clear,
Singing to our Alma Mater
Which we hold so dear
Worthington Kilbourne High!
