

Zophar Topping
War of 1812
1773-1814

Zophar Topping was born on June 17, 1773. His life began in Simsbury, Connecticut. Topping's marriage to Lois Roberts in 1799 produced seven children, three boys and four girls. While in Connecticut, he became a member of the Scioto Company. In 1803, the Scioto Company made a huge land purchase in Ohio, bringing the Topping family to Worthington.

Prior to entering the War with England, Zophar was the caretaker of the library. He became a Private in Ezra Griswold's (his brother-in-law) Militia Company on May 27, 1808. Topping later served in the War with England from December 6, 1813, until his death on September 7, 1814. Zophar Topping died of natural causes while enlisted in the militia, leaving behind his wife and children.

Eli Barker
Civil War
1843-1862

Eli Barker was born in the year 1843. He entered the Forty-Sixth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry on September 27, 1861. Barker served as a Private in Company E during the Civil War. His life was cut short at the early age of 19, when he was killed at the Battle of Shiloh on April 6, 1862.

Henry C. Burr Civil War 1836-1862

One of Worthington's many war veterans was Henry Clay Burr, born to Charles and Sophia Andrews Burr on June 30, 1836. The family lived on 120 acres of farmland in Sharon Township where I-70 and Dublin-Granville Road is located today. As with many farm families of this period, Henry was raised and schooled at home. His grandfather was one of the original founders of Worthington who came over from Bridgeport, Connecticut with the Scioto Company in 1803. Henry's mother, Sophia, was born to Noah and Ruth Andrews, another couple who came with the Scioto Company. Henry was one of eight children. Charles Sherwood Burr and Henry Carlton Burr, Henry's two brothers, died before their first birthday. Henry grew up with four sisters and one brother. Their names were Fredonia, Juliette, Elizabeth, Katharine, and Charles.

In 1860, Henry answered the call for soldiers when he enlisted with the 46th Ohio Volunteer Infantry. The 46th was primarily made up of men from Worthington, and was commanded by Thomas Worthington, Jr. Henry was commissioned a Corporal of Company E. The regiment trained at Camp Chase before they were shipped out to Paducah, Kentucky. At Paducah, the 46th O.V.I. 40th Illinois, and the 6th Iowa infantry joined together to become the division of the Army of Tennessee with General William T. Sherman as their commander.

The 46th saw its first action at the Battle of Shiloh. They had taken up a position to the right of Shiloh Church. On April 6, 1862, the Confederate Army staged a surprise attack in the early morning. The 46th fought valiantly that day to hold their position, but it cost them 246 of their 562 men. Unfortunately, Henry Clay Burr was one of these men who lay dead on the Tennessee soil. The 46th later went on to play a major role in taking Vicksburg and the Mississippi River.

George W. Mcilvain
Civil War
1833-1862

George W. Mcilvain served our country well during the Civil War conflict. Mcilvain was born in 1833, and at the age of 28 decided to enlist on June 13, 1861. He was assigned to the 3rd Ohio Infantry Regiment. George served as Corporal in 1861 and was promoted to Sergeant on November 1, 1862. However, he retained this rank for only a brief time. On December 31, 1862, Sergeant George W. Mcilvain was killed at the Stone River Battle in Stone River, Tennessee. He will be remembered for his bravery in representing our state and community.

Walter A. Tuller
Civil War
1841-1862

Walter Arius Tuller was born the third of six children to Homer and Eliza Ann Kilbourn Tuller in Worthington, Ohio on January 1, 1841. Tuller was named in part after his mother's older brother, Dr. Arius Kilbourn, a Worthington dentist. The Kilbourn family members were direct descendants of Thomas and Frances Kilbourne.

Walter Tuller became involved in farming at an early age. During his teen years, Tuller joined the Worthington Templar Lodge, a Masonic organization.

The Worthington Library owns a collection of letters written by Tuller, which show that he must have been an excellent student, by his usage of good handwriting, excellent spelling and an advanced vocabulary.

At twenty-one years of age, on January 28, 1862, Walter Tuller was moved by the Union cause to sign on for a three year "hitch" in the 5th Ohio Volunteer Cavalry. Two hundred days after signing on, Tuller was killed by Confederate forces near a small bridge in northern Mississippi, on August 16, 1862.

Lawrence G. Leasure
World War I
1894-1918

Lawrence G. Leasure was born on August 8, 1894, and lived on State Street in Worthington, Ohio, where he grew up. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leasure. As a member of St. John's Episcopal Church, Lawrence was popular and actively involved in athletics, school, and later as a business associate. He enlisted in the National Army on September 27, 1918 and received the award of a gold star while fighting overseas. He was a private when he died of lobar pneumonia on October 22, 1918. He was survived by his wife, Helen M Leasure.

Arthur C. Wolford
World War I
1898-1919

Arthur C. Wolford was born in Gallia County, Ohio, in 1898. His mother, Mrs. Laura B. Wolford, later raised him in Worthington. On May 27, 1918, Arthur enlisted in the National Army. He was a Private, first class, when he died of pneumonia on January 4, 1919.

William H. Yauger
World War I
1896-1918

William H. Yauger was born in 1896 in Baden, West Virginia, to his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah M. Yauger. The family eventually moved to Worthington.

On May 29, 1918, Yauger enlisted in the National Army based in Delaware, Ohio. Mr. Yauger was a prisoner of war from May 1918 to November 19, 1918. He died from wounds inflicted during battle.

Tad Blackston
World War II
1922-1943

As a graduate of Worthington High School in 1939, Tad Blackston lettered in baseball and basketball, and was an honor student.

He was employed as a banker at Worthington Savings Bank after graduation from high school until he entered the service. According to The Worthington News in 1943, “He was a young man of sterling character, with a most promising future. He was courteous in his duties at the bank, interested in the welfare of Worthington, and unusually devoted to his home. He held the respect of all who knew him.”

Blackston enlisted in February 1942 as a cadet in the Army Air Corps, and was inducted in March at Fort Hayes. Two months later, on May 24, he was sent to Maxwell-Field Alabama for Pre-flight training, where he was classified as a pilot. He was Worthington’s first casualty of World War II, dying in an airplane accident at Will Rogers Field, Oklahoma. He died in April 1943, only days before his 22nd birthday.

Tad was the son of Mrs. Faythe Blackston and resided at 682 Oxford Street. The Worthington Post of the American Legion held his funeral service at the Worthington Methodist Church. He is buried in Walnut Grove Cemetery. All businesses in Worthington were closed during the funeral as a mark of respect.

Curtiss A. Brown
World War II
Died 1945

Although not much information is known about Curtiss A. Brown, his name is listed among those who died in service in an article in The Worthington News on October 18, 1945. “The Maple Lee Florist Shop devoted one of its windows in the Harding Associated Building to a floral memorial to the 16 boys from Worthington and vicinity who lost their lives in World War II.” Unsure of all that this man did, we appreciate his enlistment and service to our country.

Ted R. Chapin
World War II
1925-1945

Staff Sergeant Ted R. Chapin was a brave man who fought for the United States during World War II.

Chapin and his mother, Mrs. Leroy Chapin, lived at 30 Lincoln Avenue. He attended Worthington High School, where he played football, and graduated with the class of 1943.

Ted Chapin served as a ball turret and a waist gunner on a B-17 in the eighth Air Force in November of 1944. Mr. Chapin received an award for his allegiance, earning the Medal with the Oak Cluster for his skill and courage shown in bombing missions over Germany. On March 31, 1945, Ted Chapin was reported missing in action over Dresden, Germany. It was later determined that he was killed in action while defending his country.

Lewis C. Christian
World War II
1924-1944

Lieutenant Lewis C. Christian was the son of Carlton and Elsie Christian.

Lieutenant Christian graduated from Lakewood High School in 1942, and was married to Miss Marianne Tichy of Lakewood in September 1942.

Lewis then entered the army in November 1942, receiving his training in base camps throughout Texas. He earned his wings at the Waco Field Airfield and became copilot of a B-24 Liberator Bomber with the 8th Air Force. Just weeks after joining the 467th Bomb Group, Lieutenant Christian was killed in England on December 29, 1944, at the age of twenty years.

Max D. Clark
World War II
1918-1944

Max D. Clark was the brother of Alice Burton, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, who owned the Chevrolet Garage in Worthington.

Clark graduated from North High School in the year 1936. He then attended the Ohio State University prior to his military service.

Max joined the military in the summer of 1941. He was present at the attack of the Japanese on Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941. He carried on and was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the spring of 1942. Mr. Clark volunteered to be a paratrooper, and received his wings in June of 1943. He left for overseas in February of 1944, and soon became involved in the invasion of Normandy on June 6, 1944. Max was killed in action on June 7, 1944, at the age of 26. He now lays in peace in an American cemetery in France.

John N. Erskine
World War II
Died 1944

John N. Erskine was killed in action in France on November 11, 1944, while serving our country as a gunner with General Patton's Third Army.

Sgt. Erskine was a native of Lowellville, Ohio, and attended Bliss College before entering the Army fifteen months before his death.

His wife, Mrs. Bertha Gantz Erskine, was a former resident of Linworth, and was advised of Sgt. Erskine's death by the War Department.

Clarence R. Graham
World War II
1919-1945

Two generations of the Graham family of Worthington gave up their lives in the two great wars of the Twentieth Century. Lieutenant Graham's father died in a hospital during the First World War without ever seeing his son. Years later, in 1945, son Clarence R. Graham was killed January 29, in Germany.

Lt. Graham, 26, was a combat engineer who won a commission on the battlefield on the Western Front. He had been in the service four years and overseas for two years.

His stepfather, L.W. Rucker, a Columbus contractor, employed the former Muskingum College student, where he was working before being called into the service.

His mother, Mrs. Grace Rucker, was notified of his death by the War Department. Other survivors include Lt. Graham's wife, Jean, and their son Clarence Jr., who was two and one half years of age at the time of Graham's death.

Norman B. Griggs
World War II
1925-1945

Norman B. Griggs was born in Worthington, Ohio, in 1925. He was born into the family of Mr. and Mrs. E.C. Griggs, who lived on East Granville Road. He was also the brother of Kitty Griggs Hoessly.

Norman was a profound leader and for that reason was one of the first young men from Worthington to be selected to attend Boys State during the summer of 1941. Griggs graduated from Worthington High School where he took part in several activities.

Norman was a member of the football and basketball teams, as well as a participant in the Junior and Senior class plays. Not only was he an activist in his high school, but Norman also worked part-time at the Home Market during his high school days.

Norman proudly followed in the footsteps of his father, who served in the Marines during World War I. Unfortunately, Griggs did not live to see all his dreams come true, as he died at an early age of 20 on February 6, 1945. The veteran was a US Navy pilot in World War II and died in an airplane accident that took place at Lee Field in Jacksonville, Florida.

Joseph J. Harrold
World War II
1921-1944

Sergeant Joseph J. Harrold was a brave American fighter who, like many other heroes, sadly died at an early age.

Harrold was born in Huntington, West Virginia, where he attended West High School. Before going to war, Joseph went to Ohio State University. There he was associated with the Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity.

Joseph Harold was a member of the 508th Paratroop Regiment, 82nd Airborne Division. Harrold participated in one of the greatest operations during the war as he and his fellow members of the 82nd parachuted into Normandy on D-Day, June 6, 1944. In a letter to his mother, sent shortly before he died, he wrote, “my friends can now be told that I was in the hottest and toughest spot in the Normandy operation.” Sergeant Harrold was killed in action on July 4, 1944, at the age of 23 years old.

Sergeant Harrold was survived by his mother, Mrs. Flavia Bass, who resided at 89 Rosslyn Avenue. Survivors include his stepbrother and stepsister, as well as his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank DuVall. Joseph Harrold’s military funeral took place at Southwick Funeral Home with Chaplain Roy Allman, Ft. Hayes, in charge. He was buried at the Green Lawn Cemetery.

Joseph Harrold was a courageous soul who proudly died for his country.

Daniel Hodges
World War II
1920-1943

Cadet Daniel Hodges was one of many heroes from the City of Worthington. He was the son of Brigadier and Mrs. Sampson Hodges who were commanders of the Columbus Salvation Army. A graduate of Ohio State University, Cadet Hodges enlisted in the Navy Air Corps. Unfortunately, nearing the end of his flight training, on July 21, 1943, Hodges was killed in a mid-air plane collision in Corpus Christi, Texas. He was only 23 years old when he lost his life while training to defend our country and our community.

John W. Keys
World War II
Died 1944

John W. Keys was one of many brave soldiers to come from Worthington. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Burdette Keys was a 1935 graduate of Worthington High School and a member of Ohio State University's class of 1939 before becoming the arts supervisor for Piqua Schools. He joined the service in March 1942 and was sent overseas in April of 1943. Keys was a member of the glider unit of the 319th field artillery battalion, 82nd Airborne Division. He participated in invasions of Africa, Sicily, Italy, and was in France at the infamous D-day. He was injured and reported missing September 18, 1944 during Operation Market-Garden in Holland. He suffered severe leg wounds and died the next day after so bravely serving the United States and the city of Worthington.

Frank Kruse
World War II
Died 1944

Frank Kruse grew up in Worthington on Hartford Street, and attended Worthington Public Schools.

After graduating from high school, Kruse joined the armed forces, as part of the Infantry that served in the Pacific Theater. He was killed in action. Kruse is memorialized in the Honor Roll, dedicated in February 1944 to the men and women from the Worthington area who served their country and community.

Richard E. Livingston
World War II
1919-1943

Richard E. Livingston, son of Mrs. Agnes Roberts, lived in the Worthington community. A member of the ground forces, twenty-four year old Livingston was killed in action in Hawaii. The Columbus Dispatch reported his death on July 4, 1943.

In February 1944, Livingston's name was memorialized on an Honor Roll plaque, which lists the names of those from Sharon Township who served in the war. The Worthington News, on October 18, 1945, also names Livingston in a listing of "sixteen boys from Worthington and vicinity who lost their lives in World War II."

Richard Lee Lynam
World War II
Died 1945

Richard Lee, also known as Dick Lynam played high school football for three years at Worthington High School. He graduated in 1942. Dick worked several jobs while being a student in Worthington. He was a driver for Dr. L. E. Turton. He also worked in the Worthington Hardware store and worked for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Dick Lynam was drafted into the service in 1943. At Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, he joined the Paratroopers. He was sent to Camp McCall, North Carolina to complete his special training. On August 6, 1943 Dick was injured during his training and was hospitalized for four months. Before going to Camp Polk, Louisiana he visited with his parents for a week in Worthington. Dick Lynam was sent overseas in March of 1944. He took part in the war effort in Sicily, Italy and in the Invasion of southern France. On October 12, 1944, Dick was wounded in the invasion. Upon healing, he went back into action. Dick Lynam was mortally wounded in Belgium on January 5, 1945.

William Edward Mantel
World War II
Died 1945

Before entering the war, William Edward Mantel, a practicing Methodist, was a student at Northern State Teachers College in Aberdeen, South Dakota. He joined the war effort in May of 1943 as an army air force Flight Officer. He received his commission at Mission Field, Texas in August of 1944 and went overseas in 1945. On July 31, 1945, William Mantel died in a plane crash near Asamol Field, India.

James E. Orr
World War II
Died 1945

James E. Orr was the son of Rev. J. W. Orr, who was the former pastor of the Linworth and Bethel Church. James Orr graduated from Worthington High School in 1942 and was very strong in athletics. James Orr left Worthington to head overseas on December 1, 1944. He departed with the medical detachment of an Armored Infantry Division. Orr was wounded in France. Later, a telegram was sent to Orr's family stating that he was only wounded and was believed to soon recover. Orr then suddenly died on January 31 in France from the wounds he sustained on January 25. Orr had many friends in Linworth and was an active member of the Linworth Methodist Church.

Jeremy O. Pruden
World War II
1925-1945

The Prudens were a strongly military family of Worthington. They were members of St. John's Episcopal Church on High Street. They lived at 537 Hartford Street and Jeremy Pruden was a graduate of Worthington High School. He participated as a manager for the football team during his high school years. He graduated in 1943, as the vice president of his class.

Jeremy was a Private First Class by the end of his service during World War II. He was a member of the 10th Armored Division in the United States Army. Born on June 10, 1925, Jeremy was killed six weeks before turning 21 on April 30, 1945. He was killed two days before the fall of Berlin and on the same day Adolf Hitler committed suicide. He was the lead driver in a unit of tanks moving through southern Germany. His tank was hit by Germans defending a military school, but he was able to escape it and took cover. He stood to warn later approaching tanks away from the trap but was killed as he stood. He posthumously received a Bronze Star for gallantry in action.

Ben Pyle
World War II
Died 1943

Ben Pyle, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Pyle, graduated from Worthington High School in 1938. He left Worthington on March 23, 1942 for training in the air core. Pyle trained at Lukefield Airbase in Phoenix, Arizona and was later named 2nd Lieutenant. Pyle was reported missing on April 28, 1943 while he was flying a pursuit ship over northern Africa.

Captain David Spellacy Gulf War 1962-1991

David M. Spellacy was born in Spokane, Washington to parents Robert and Mary Spellacy. He had two brothers, Chris and Dan, and one sister, Shari. David was a 1980 graduate of Worthington High School. During his high school years he was on the cross-country team, the wrestling team, and the track team. David had a very creative mind. His friends called him “handy-man Hank” for his love of fixing things. He also spent his time building planes and models. Aside from school, he was a boy scout and an active member of his church. Because of his fascination of flying, he joined the Civil Air Patrol. At age 16 he received the Mitchell Award, which is the highest award you can achieve in the Civil Air Patrol. After high school he received an Air National Guard Scholarship to Ohio University. After four years of college he went straight into the United States Marine Corps (USMC). On January 5, 1991, he was called into action at the start of the Gulf War. He took part in Operation: Desert Storm. His mission was to fly over enemy lines and radio back information on enemy positions. The plane in which he flew was an OV-10 Bronco. In this aircraft, the pilot sits in front and the man who sits behind the pilot collects the information. David was the one who collected the information. The OV-10 was also a very slow plane and had to fly at very low altitudes. On February 25, 1991, his plane was shot down by an Iraqi missile in the skies over Kuwait. David was killed on impact. For his services in the USMC, he received many medals and awards including the Purple Heart, the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the National Defense Service Medal. His descendents and relatives living in Columbus include his wife, Megan and three kids, Amy, Matt, and Michael who live in Upper Arlington. His mother Mary, and his siblings Dan, Chris and Shari also live in Columbus.

Branden F. Oberleitner
Iraqi War
1982-2003

The most recent Worthington veteran to be killed in action is Branden Oberleitner. Branden was a 2001 graduate of Thomas Worthington High School.

During his high school career, Branden was active in the Fire Training Program at the Delaware Area Career Center and with an internship with the Upper Arlington Division of Fire.

Oberleitner entered the army in January 2002 in the aftermath of September 11, 2001. His first assignment brought him to Ft. Campbell, Kentucky on May 16, 2002.

Eventually joining the 101st Airborne Division, Branden died June 5, 2003, in Al Fallujah, Iraq after being wounded by a rocket-propelled grenade. Oberleitner was buried in the Walnut Grove Cemetery.

A scholarship in his memory has been established at the Delaware Career Center to support students participating in their fire training program.

Worthington Veteran Memorial

Worthington Youth Service Council

Worthington Youth Service Council (WYSC) undertook this project during Worthington's Bicentennial year to help the community remember its veterans. In researching the histories of these veterans, the students learned about the lives of real heroes.

Worthington Heroes

Watercolor and ink on canvas

Marisa Holmes, Artist

Veterans of Worthington who fought and died in action are venerated in this piece. From the War of 1812 to the present war in Iraq there are a total of thirty-four deceased military personnel represented. These men made the ultimate sacrifice in giving their lives for the lives of the community at large, and are mourned in their passing. This piece seeks to provide a visual tribute to these Worthington heroes.

The research for the Worthington Veteran Project was done by following students from the four high school campuses in the Greater Worthington Community: Linworth Alternative High School, Thomas Worthington High School, Worthington Christian High School, and Worthington Kilbourne High School.
