BLUE RIBBON

Building Bridges to Success

After seven years of growing and improving, Kilbourne finally has made a name for itself. In May of 1998, our high school was selected along with one hundred and sixty-six other schools as a Blue Ribbon recipient.

Prior to the election, the U.S. Department of Education made a thorough evaluation judging Kilbourne's strengths, weaknesses, and plans for the future. The chosen schools were rewarded for their excellence in leadership, teaching, curriculum, student achievement, and parent/community involvement.

In order to accept this prestigious award, Dr. Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. Porta, Kim Myers, and Maxwell Avon traveled to our nation's capital. The ceremony was held on November 12, 1998, followed by a reception and luncheon in our honor. Kim Myers commented, "The opening session was full of congratulations and encouragement to never stop improving."

Not only did the Kilbourne representatives attend the ceremony, but they were also able to venture out into the city and do some exploring. Maxwell Avon was enthusiastic, saying, "There's a great feeling about D.C. that you get from just walking around. It makes you proud to be an American." Kilbourne will greatly treasure and honor this award for many years to come and will continue our walk toward success.

At the December Student-of-the-Month recognition, Dr. Lindsay congratulates Kacie Cook on her achievement of positive and noble character.

Working hard to keep up on their academics during option periods are (left to right) Jeff Lyons, Peter Wilson, Matt Saunders, D.J. Skorupski, and Stephanie Urban.

Kilbourne gratefully exhibits the flag recognizing our excellence, awarded by the U.S. Department of Education.

The Times We Remember Most

TRADITIONS

Throughout the high school years traditions never fail to bring people together. Our rich, deep-rooted tradtions come alive even before the bell rings, signaling the start of school, and they continue to stay in our hearts and minds when the first day of summer begins or, for seniors, when the last day of high school ends. This year, thanks to the innovative and creative minds of our students, we have added to the list of WKHS traditions. Without such events as homecoming spirit week, Winterfest, Adopt-A-Kid, and Miss America, as well as designing senior shirts and painting the rock, we would be just like every other school. What fun is that?

This year's football team was not as successful as last year's, but that didn't seem to affect the student's school spirit in the least. Continuing to chant "KFR" and "We Believe," students stood through entire games, regardless of rain, snow, or shine. When homecoming spirit week arrived, we "Tamed the Cats" and danced our way into the magic of "Caribbean Nights." During the week preceeding the big game and dance, students crowded the halls in outfits that ranged from grass skirts to pajama pants. It was a week filled with good times and good memories.

After the excitement of homecoming passed, the seniors began a new tradition--one that will continue on for years to come. Fifty-one girls dressed up in eighties prom dresses bought from thrift stores for Halloween. Making sashes with the names of the states on each one, they called themselves Miss America contestants. Even in the rain, these fifty-one seniors wore their costumes to the football game that same night. At the end of the game each girl gave her sash to a junior who will wear it next year. Elysabeth Shelton, one of the girls responsible for the new tradition, said, "It was so much fun organzing this. I definitely think it will help to bring the juniors and the seniors together."

Two other school-wide traditions not only are fun but help our community as well. Early in the year we hold the annual Battle of Hard Road Canned Food Drive with neighboring school, Dublin Scioto. As an incentive to bring in cans, we have a friendly competiton with Scioto; the winner receives a trophy presented at an assembly by the class president of the rival school. Once again, Kilbourne was victorious with an outstanding total of eight thousand cans--five thousand more than Dublin Scioto.

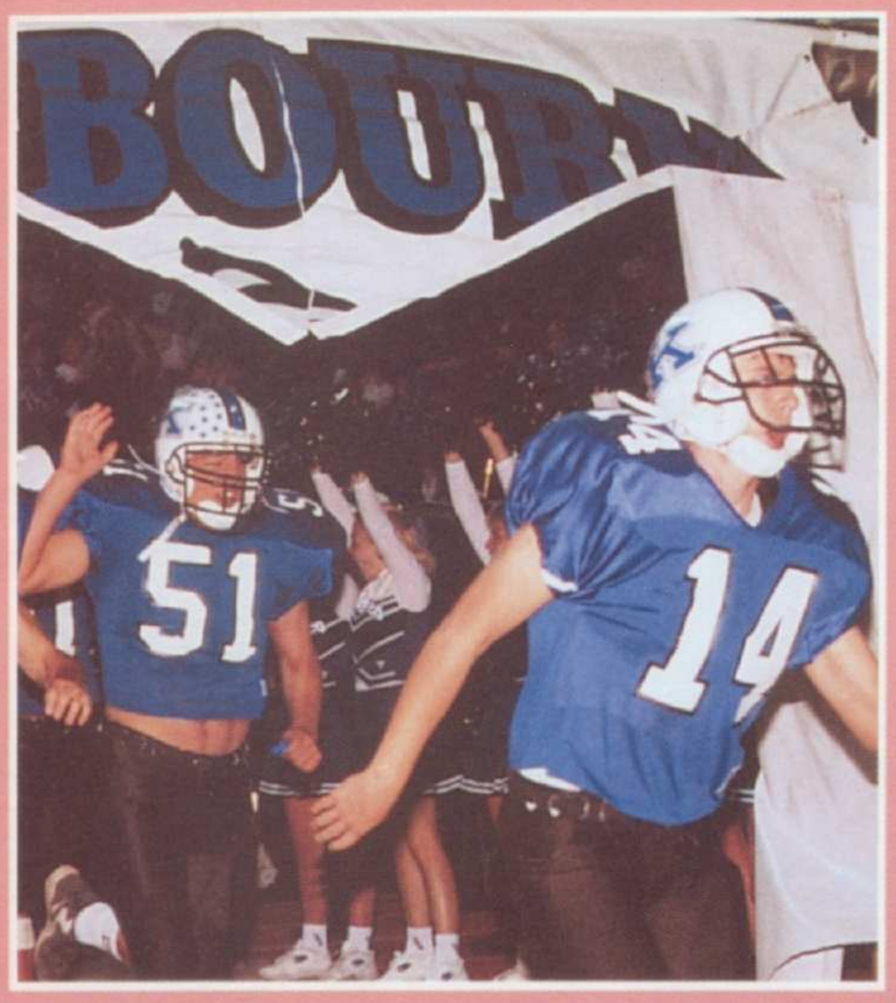
Another fundraising activity we value each year is Adopt-A-Kid. During the winter months right before the holidays, each homeroom collects money to buy clothes and toys for young boys and girls whose parents are in financial trouble. After collecting the money, the students purchase and wrap the items. This year the student body collected almost $8,000. "The best part about this is the feeling I get knowing that I'm part of a school dedicated to helping those less fortunate than I," exclaimed our class president Kim Myers.

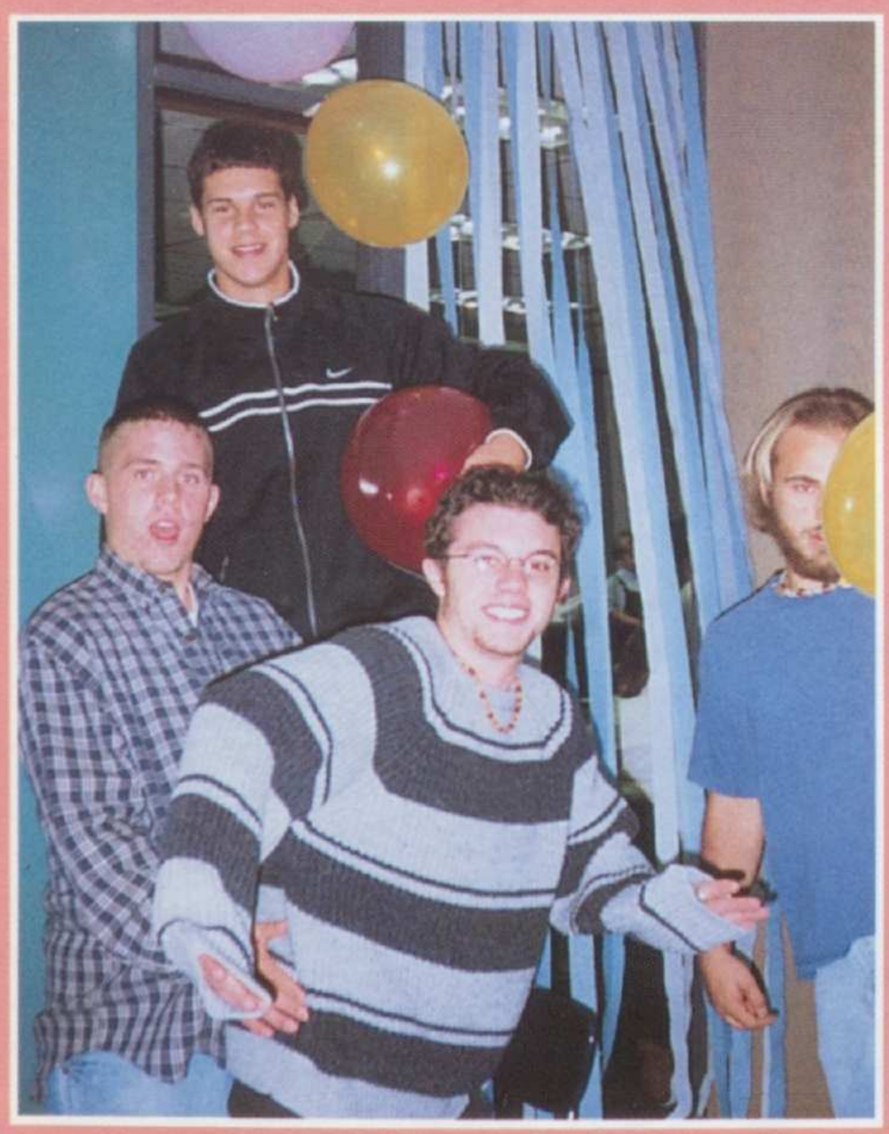
Our list of traditions goes on and on. Freshmen are welcomed with open arms on Freshman Day; our King and Queen of Hearts are crowned based upon the amount of money they collect for Habitat for Humanity. We promote cultural awareness through African-American History Month and Multi-Cultural week, and we display unity between students through senior shirts and sports teams. We are a school rich with traditions, and for most, it is a privilege to be a student here. The saying, KFR, should be changed to WKHSR--Worthington Kilbourne High School rules!

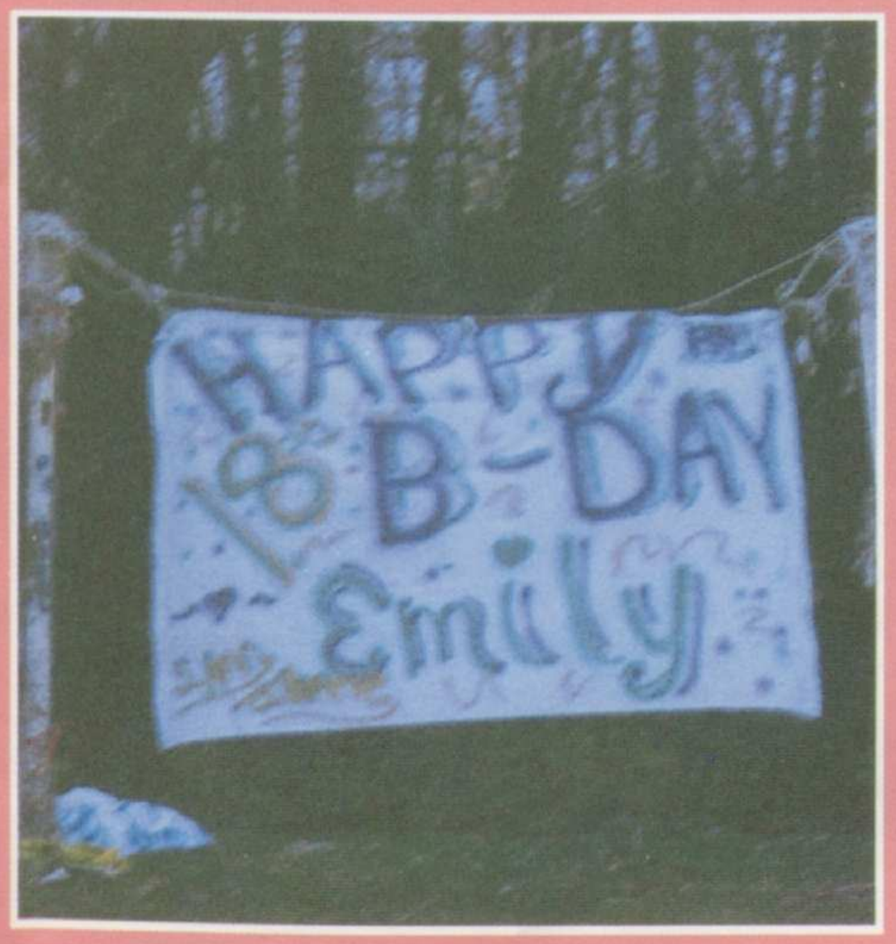
By Liz Shirey

It's a big misconception on the part of many that dances are just about romance and mushy stuff. For some they mean friendships and memories. From the looks on their faces, it's easy to tell that Katie Calhoun (left to right), Lindsay Broadfoot, and Holly Trott had a great time making memories at homecoming.

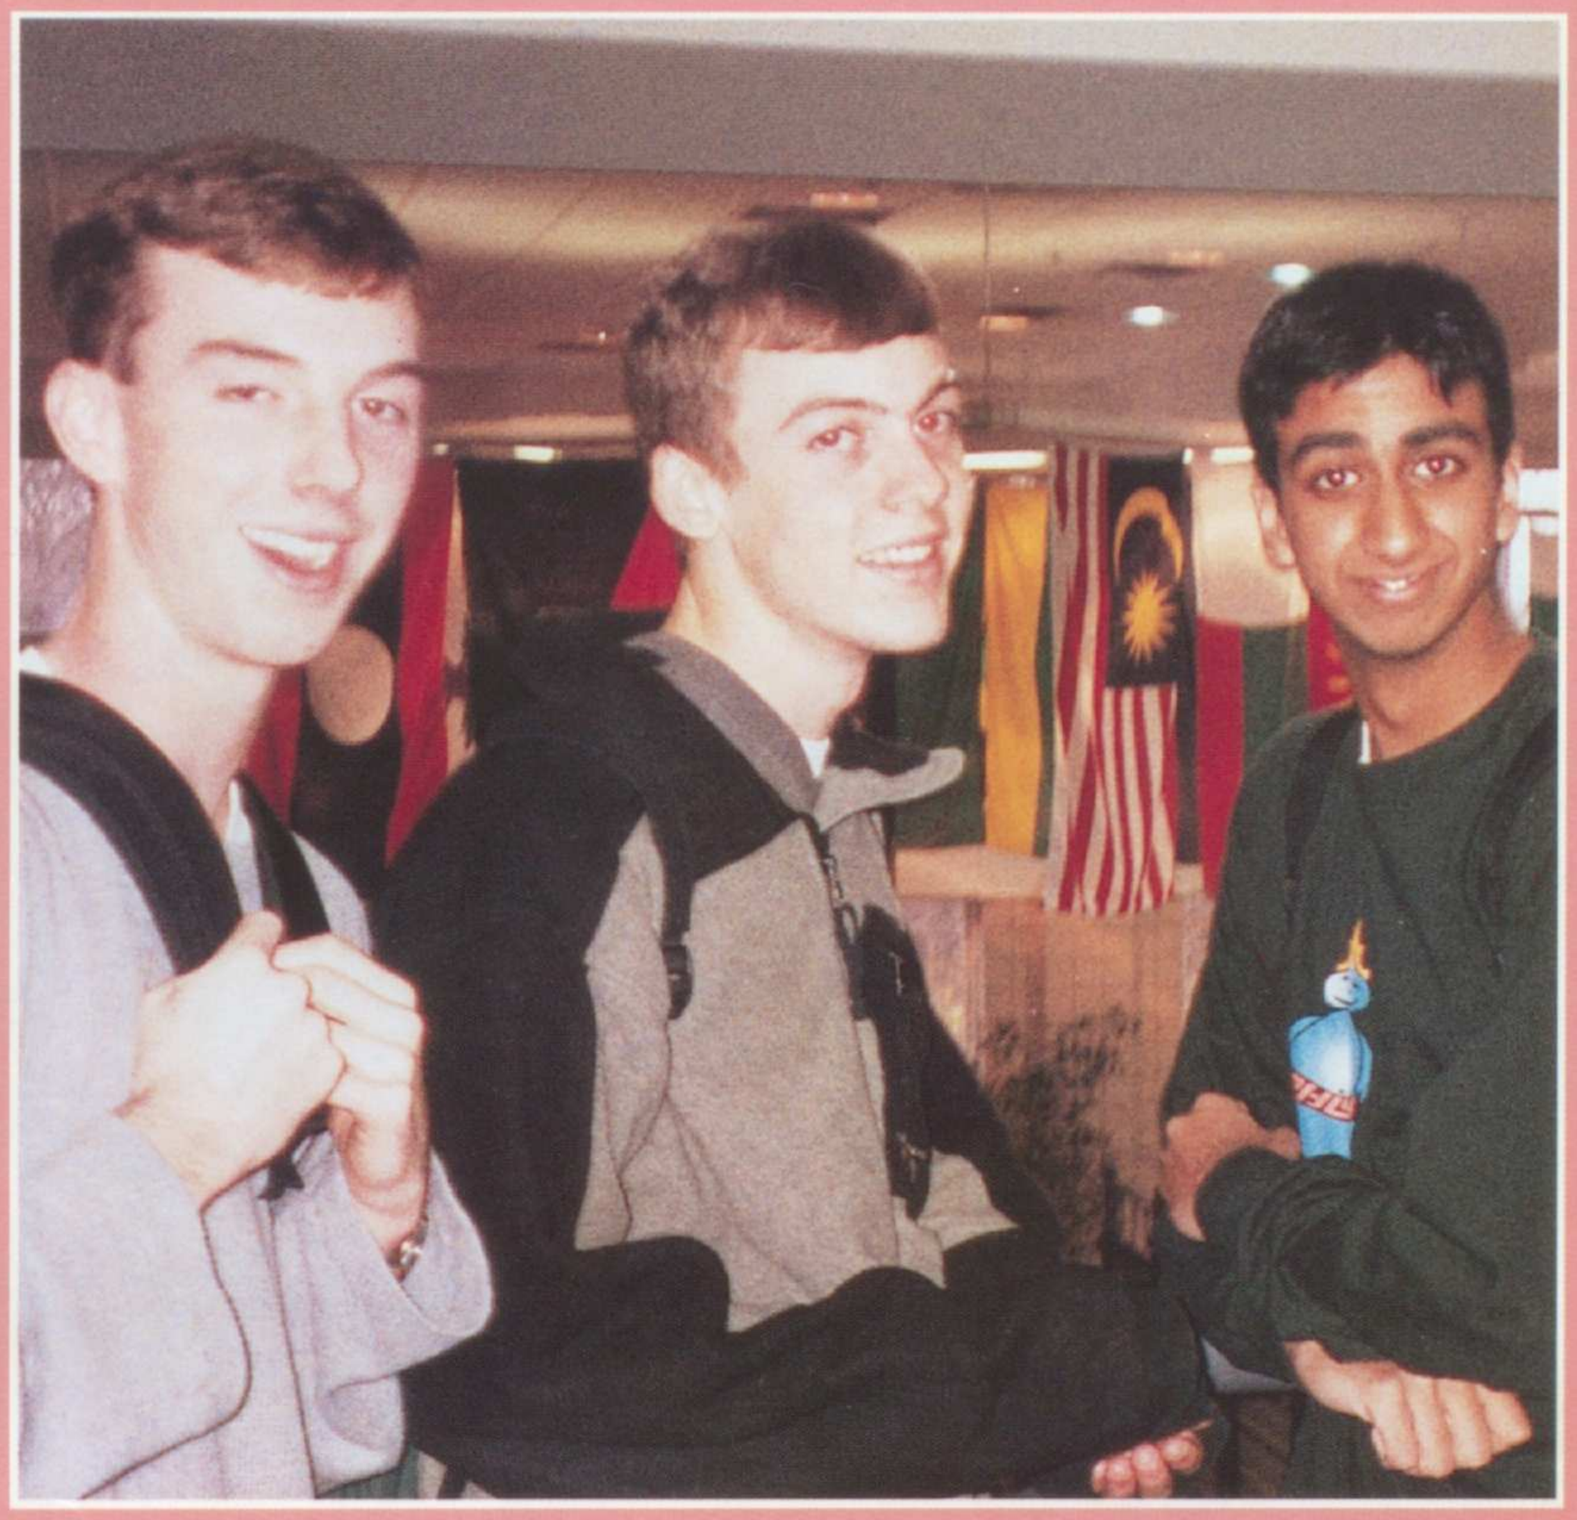
Come rain or shine, our football team never gives up. Credit should be given to players Steve Muntean and Justin Dauer who bring the team together with their incredible spirit. Way to go, guys!







Claiming their spot at the balcony are seniors, (left to right) Jeff Lyons, Drew McGill, and Arun Goel. It's become an unwritten rule that during the ten minute breaks, seniors stand at the balcony. Watch out, freshmen; if we catch you anywhere near our sacred spot, you'll have to be punished!



It looks like Rob Clouse (Counter Clockwise from top), Nate Jackson, T.J. Kauffmann, and Adam Dixon are working hard decorating their homeroom door. Put them in front of any door and they're sure to win first prize with the ladies!

There are a lot of guys wishing for the day when Bryn Mills (left to right), Briana Tindall, and Lauren Kelley will be all over them. LoBo has school spirit, though, and that's obviously what these girls are attracted to. Or maybe it's his hairy chest?

No matter what the occasion, you're sure to find something written and hanging on a sheet at our school. These infamous signs, besides being a long-time tradition, have become somewhat of a message board for the students.

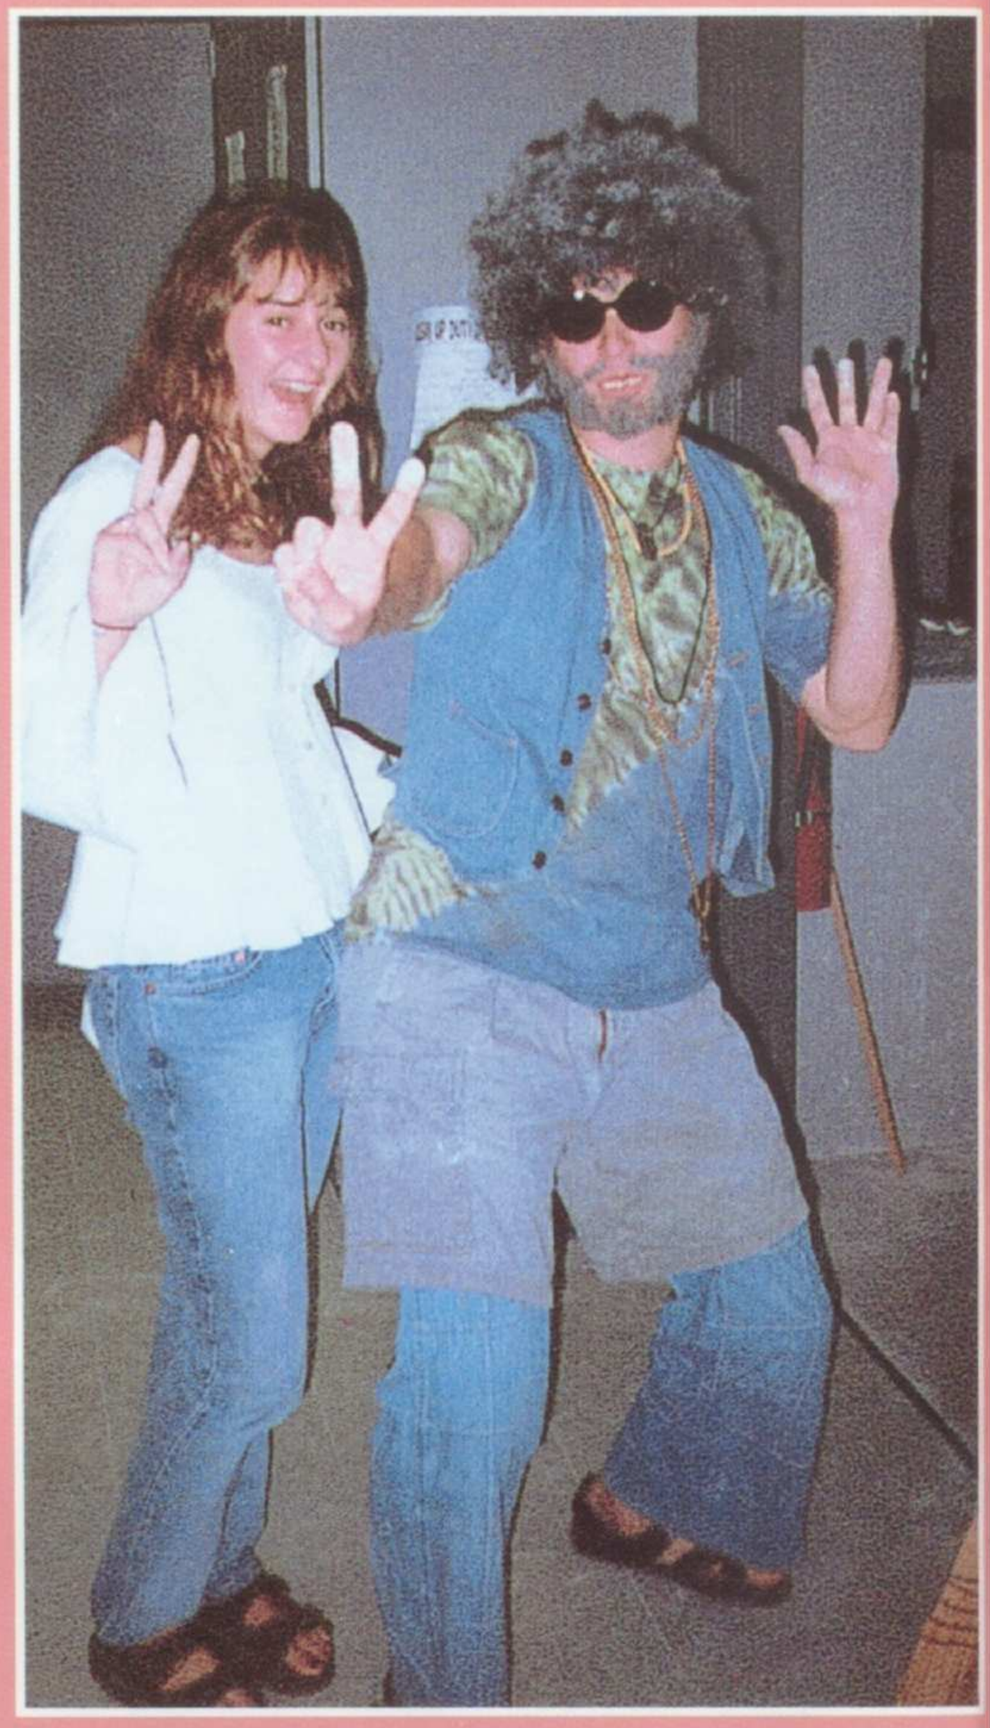
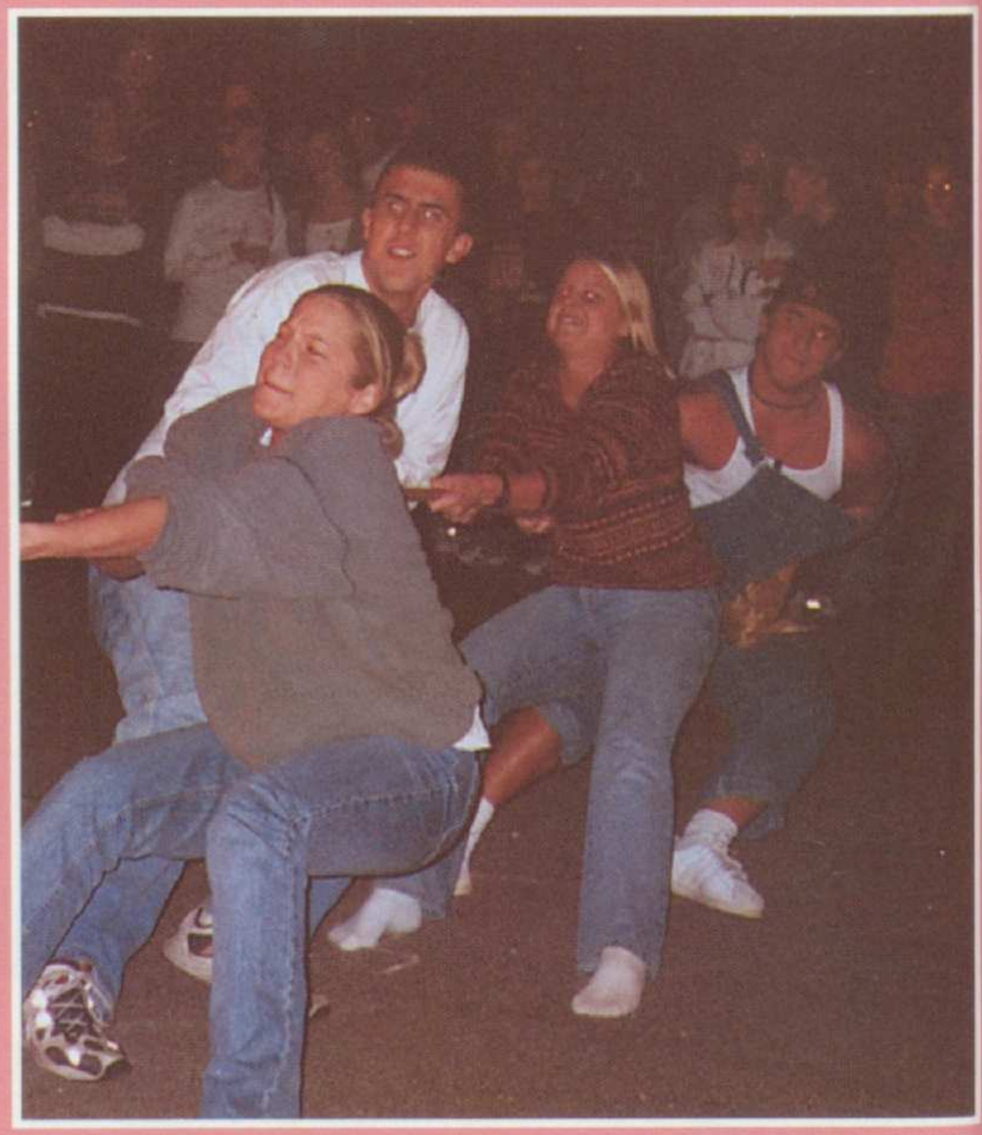
Have you ever seen more authentic hippies than Brooke Smith and Mr. Riegel? I bet we could send these two back in time to Woodstock and no one would ever be the wiser. But then, what would we do without them?



One of the most compassionate and selfless traditions sponsored by students council each year is Adopt-A-Kid. Children who normally wouldn't have anything for Christmas are showered with gifts, thanks to the money raised by the student body. Hatsuho Seino (left to right), Theresa Blackwell, and Amy Sharpe gave up their free time to wrap the presents. They should feel good knowing they will be bringing joy to so many kids.

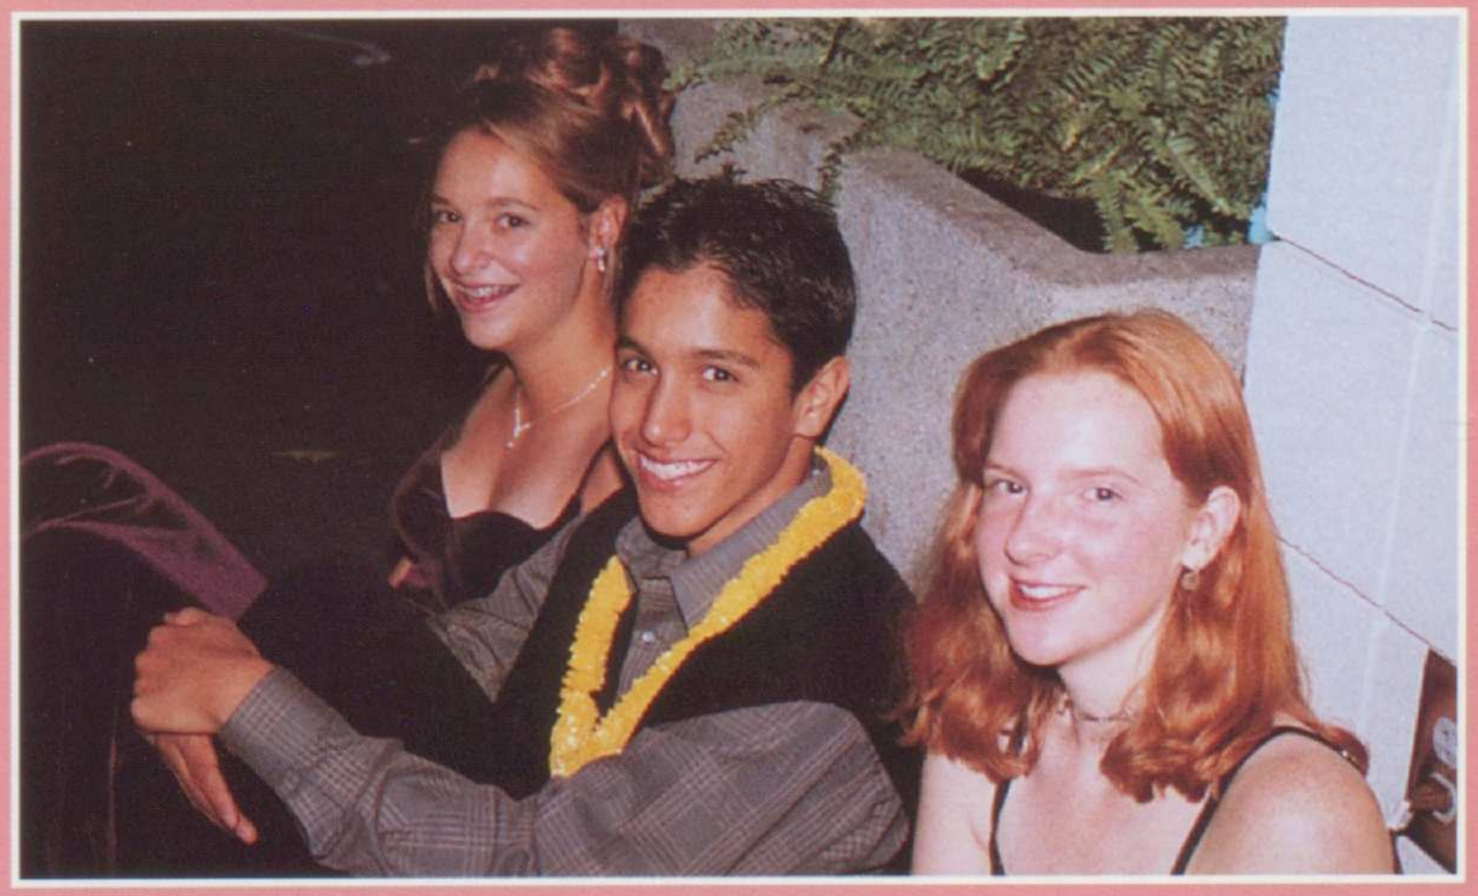


The annual homecoming bonfire is a night of fun and excitement for everyone. It's a great place for (left to right) Karla Macrae, Mitch Moore, Kristin Blum, and Nate Taylor to show off their bulging biceps in the infamous tug-of-war. May the strongest team win!

One of the best parts of high school is being a part of new traditions. This year for Halloween, these fifty-one seniors dressed up as Miss America contestants. Watch out, Miss Ohio, you have some serious competition.

This year's freshmen sure catch on quick. It's great to see (left to right) Julianne Wallace, Julie Marks, and Alex Cordray taking time out from their busy athletic and social schedules to help make lunches for those in need. Compassion is something the administration hopes to instill in every student, and so far, so good!

This year's homecoming king and queen, Joel Kovacs and Abbe Stewart, accepted their titles at the 1998 homecoming game. Although the Wolves weren't victorious, it was a memorable night for everyone. I think Joel looks pretty good in his football uniform; I wonder if he was planning on wearing that to the dance. Don't worry, Ryan, Abbe still has her eye on you, no matter how good Joel looks!



Tired from all of the dancing, (left to right) Kathleen Mitchell, Joelle Torres, and Kelly Hoffman take a moment to rest their legs. I'm sure it only took about five minutes of checking out the competition for the two girls to realize they were sitting by one of the best looking men in the house. Do you think they took turns or danced together?

Sunshine, Sand, and Surf

SUMMER FUN

The bell rings at 3:00 on June 10th and students quickly file out of the classrooms; it is officially summer! This means freedom from nerve-wracking tests, cramped classrooms, and project deadlines for three whole months. Students waste no time before tackling the theme parks, going on road trips planned months in advance, attending concerts, and hosting the biggest summer bashes ever. Senior Katie O'Brien commented, "We now have time to lounge around and soak up the sun that we have been staring at for weeks through the windows of Kilbourne."

Summer is not all about fun and games though. Many students hold summer jobs, ranging from work at Galyan's and The Hill's Market to lifeguarding and babysitting. Senior D.J. Skorupski offered his advice to the underclassmen about summer jobs: "You need to find a job that doesn't seem like work so you can have fun and get paid for it. It makes the day go by much faster." Those students not holding down jobs attended mandatory practices for sports teams such as swimming, football, soccer and field hockey. An intense practice under the hot sun doesn't exactly sound appealing. Despite these burdens, students work hard to organize their busy schedules and find time for fun.

Just as friendships and other relationships seem to be growing closer and the weather reaches the perfect temperature, students must begin to think about returning to school. Students set out for Tuttle Mall and City Center to buy new school clothes, and some even make their way over to Office Max and Staples for all of those cool school supplies. Before we know it, the days of relaxation and fun in the sun have passed. It's time to head back. Obviously, time flies when we're having fun.

SCHOOL BONDS

Sharing Memories with Friends

Seeing the same faces day after day for four years usually has an effect on people. Many of us have been blessed to find lifelong friendships and relationships. Even freshman Jolie Schwarz understands the rewards; she says, "High school has allowed me to meet new people and create better relationships with my old friends."

High school is a time where students celebrate good times and meet new people. For most, this involves making a group of dedicated friends who we can depend on for the rest of our lives. Others may be lucky enough to meet their significant other inside the walls of Worthington Kilbourne. Senior Micah Faler says, "Having a girlfriend can be a great experience because I expect high school is one of the best times of my life and I can share that with my girlfriend."

Whether or not we meet our significant others or build lifelong friendships, high school is a great place to meet others as well as share our adolescent memories with our closest classmates. And remember, "The friends who stick by me through thick and thin will stick by me forever," says senior Heidi Weis.

A Freedom of Individual Expression

FASHION

Welcome to the wonderful world of fashion! This year a huge controversy has surfaced at our school. The handbook has always allowed students to wear just about anything, as long as the item did not contain any drug or alcohol paraphernalia. Shortly after the beginning of this school year, however, the administration shocked us with a rude awakening by issuing the "No Tank Top Rule." Apparently, Dr. Lindsay and other staff members felt that the tank tops some students were wearing were too revealing. While this rule does not affect the guys nearly as much as the girls, it is the principle of the matter (no pun intended) that has all of the students worked up. Senior Ross Wilcox expressed his opinion loud and clear: "What's next, uniforms? What they really should outlaw is big, baggy pants, Marylin Manson shirts, and all types of Gothic wear."

Yet, with or without tank tops, students have been able to compensate for this loss splendidly. Many have delved into the art of making their own clothes. Sophomore Kim Gray wants us to know that it's not as easy as it looks: "It takes a lot of time for me to make my own clothes, but it's worth it. I can wear exactly what I want and feel comfortable at the same time." It is not uncommon to find kids roaming the halls in homemade dresses, shirts, and corduroy pants.

Still, no one is surprised to see guys and girls alike covered from head to toe in Abercrombie and Fitch designer wear. Although most of their clothes are high or over-priced, something magnetic draws students to this store. "The selection is great, and the clothes are always so cute and stylish," explained Stephanie Urban. Some other new looks waltzing along our school fashion runway include weaved hair, dark jeans with the ends rolled up, black and brown boots and platform shoes, hemp necklaces, and anything gray.

Most schools set a standard relating to dress. At our school though, almost everyone, teachers included, believe in the concept of individuality. The more of it there is, the more we can all learn to appreciate people for who they are, not what they wear. Mr. Sprunger agrees whole-heartedly; "I want my students to wear whatever they want, as long as it is not morally offensive. A certain wardrobe has no affect on a student's performance, and, if I'm not mistaken, that's the main reason we're here, right?" Yes, Mr Sprunger, you are absolutely right!

By Liz Shirey

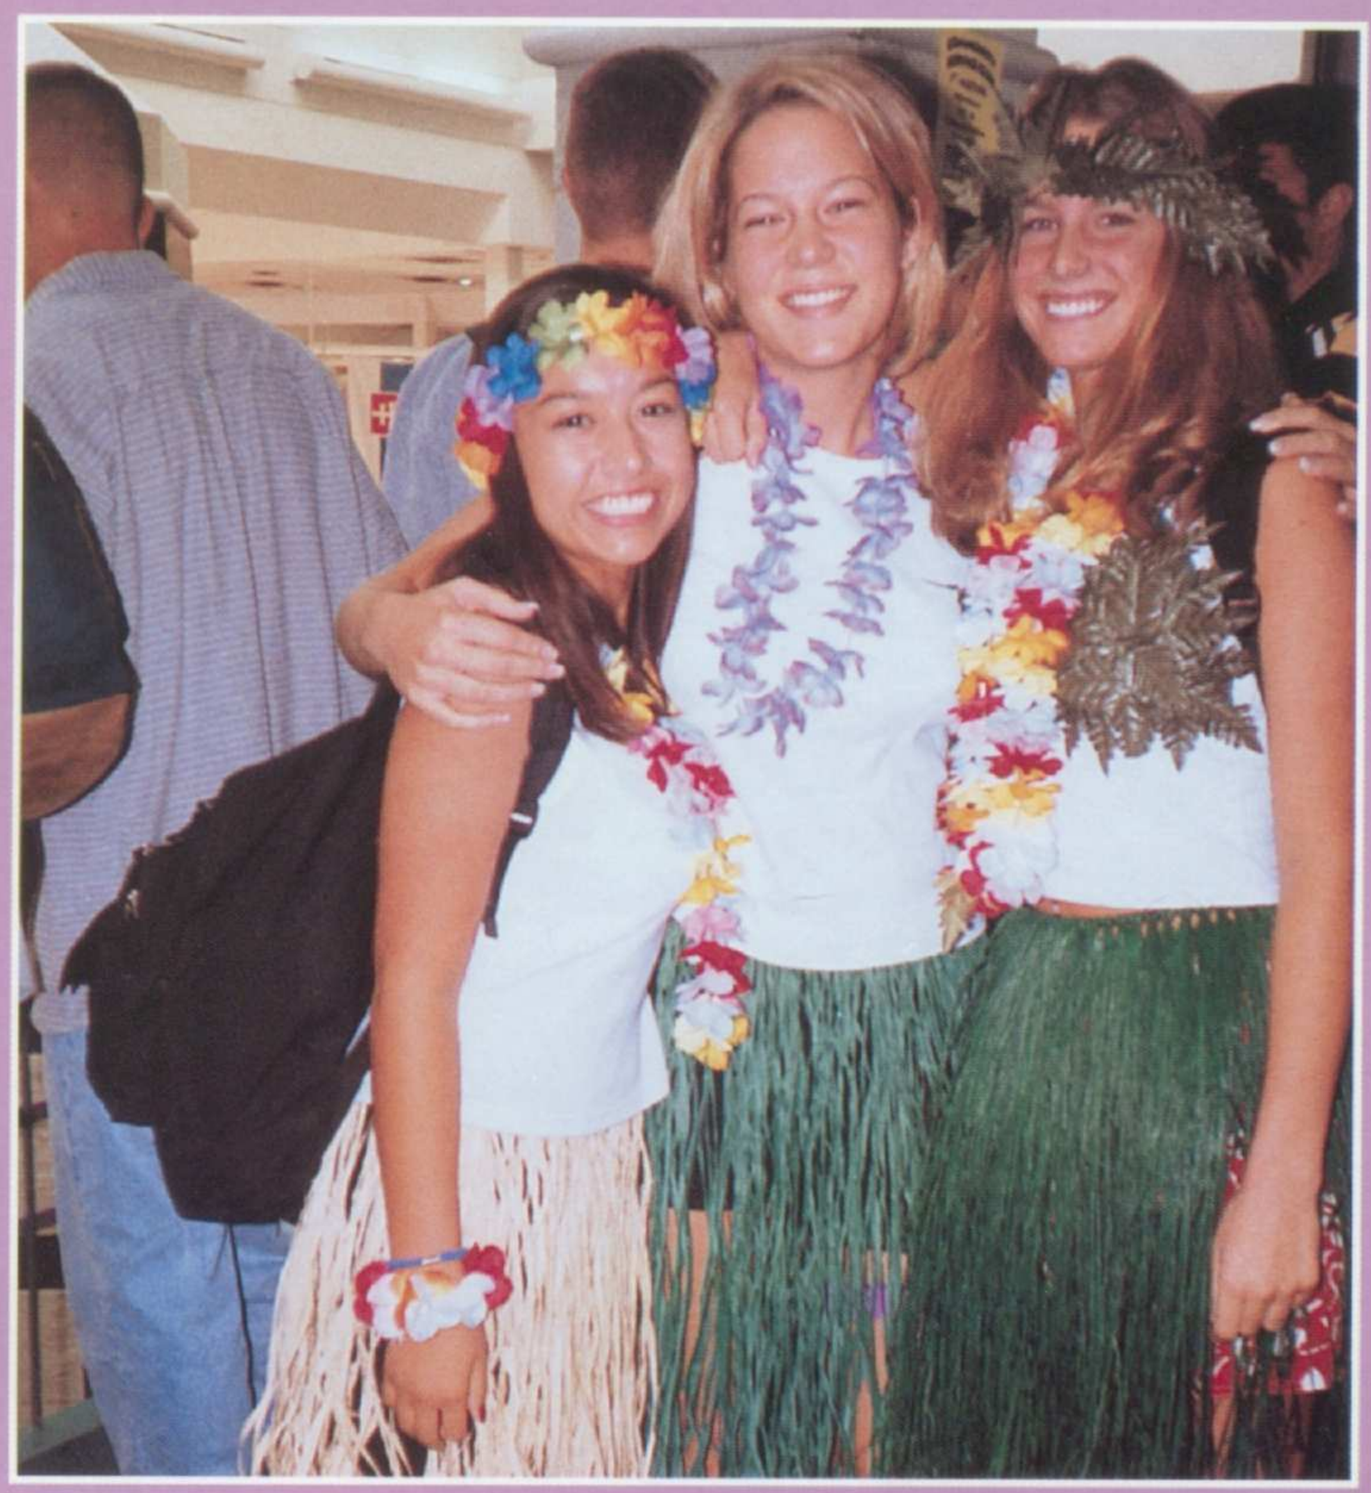
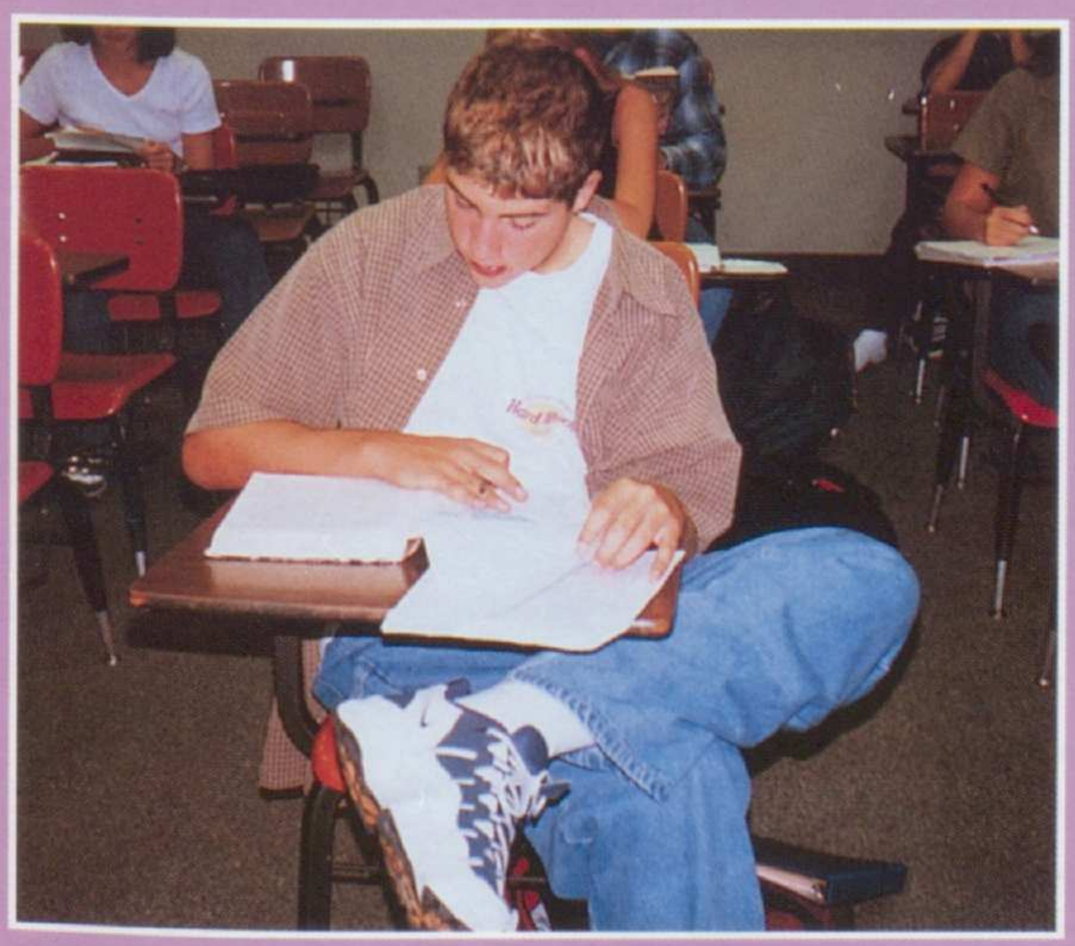
Ladies, if you're looking for a young, talented, not to mention good-looking guy, then Steve Horstman is the one for you. His clothes are homemade, and just look at that adorable smile. I think he's looking at you!

Caribbean day during Spirit Week was sure a lot of fun, but according to the new handbook, it was a big fashion "no-no." I'm surprised (left to right) Elysabeth Shelton, Karla Macrae, and Ashley Antonez got away with wearing tank tops. Enjoy it while you can, girls!



Where would we be without shoes? We'd be completely without style, that's where! Shoes make the person. There are tennis shoes for the athlete, dress shoes for the sophisticated, and boots for the trendy. What a great variety!



It's no wonder why (left to right) Kim Andriot, Kate Basom, Joelle Gotwals, Katherine Thorn, and Becky West look so much better than their dates at dances. I hope they weren't in the bathroom too long!

Some people have a gift for fashion. Anthony Graniere has so much potential. Look at his weaved hair, Abercrombie shirt, and tennis shoes. Picture perfect!

Good Luck Class of '99

GOOD-BYES

There comes a time in each of our lives when we must say good-bye. For the class of 1999 the time has arrived. They have passed the classes, taken the tests, and planned for the future. Now, they must pack their bags and move on to new adventures and successes.

After spending four years behind the walls of Worthington Kilbourne, we have developed a sense of attachment. For many students, high school has been a way of life. Some felt it was the longest four years they will ever experience, while others claimed, "Where did the time go?" These students feel that high school was the best time of their lives. This is where they made life-long friendships, experienced victories, and gained valuable knowledge for the real world.

According to senior Obi Chukwumah, "High school was a very intergal part of my life. It was a period in my life where I found out a lot about myself, and I have learned that the more I put into my high school experience, the more fun I have had." When students devote all their time to something, they may find it difficult to say good-bye, though it is necessary.

WEEK OF FUN

Celebrating Our School Spirit

A new surprise fills each day of spirit week. Students roam the halls wearing a variety of clothes from different themes to show their school spirit. Monday was pajama day; Tuesday, hippie day; Wednesday, Carribean day; and Thursday was black and blue or senior shirt day. On Friday the students received a day off school to rest up for the football game against Hilliard.

On Tuesday night, students crowded around a blazing fire on the tennis courts behind the school. Ryan Sprague, Abbe Stewart, and Joel Kolvacs were the ringmasters of the ceremony. The festivities included performances by the dance team and cheerleaders, pumpkin toss, tug-o-war, and many other activities. Participating in some of the events was cheerleader Angela Smith: "I was happy to see the students more enthusiastic than ever." Then, Kim Myers, student counsel president, announced the homecoming court.

Thursday brought the homecoming assembly and the long anticipated announcement of Abbe Stewart and Joel Kolvacs as queen and king. Then, the class of '99 received the spirit award for the second year in a row. Sophomore Jenna Gueth summed up the activities by saying, "Spirit week gives students a chance to get wild."

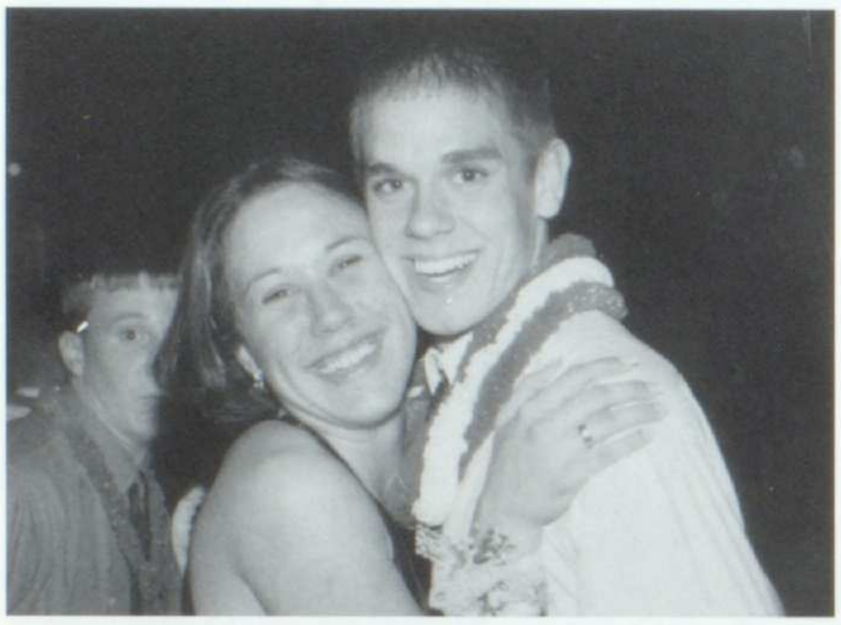
HOMECOMING

Can't Help Falling In Love



From the looks of senior Paul Laurent's and junior Melissa Ankrom's smiles, they're having a great time dancing the night away.

The homecoming dance was the perfect end to a perfect week of fun-filled festivities and an array of spirit. It was a night full of excitement and romance. Who knows how many new couples we have roaming the halls as a result of this dance.

Caribbean Nights. . .Can't Help Falling In Love proved to be an excellent theme for the evening. Student counsel transformed the commons into a beautiful Caribbean night, complete with palm trees and an authentic Jamaican hut, fish of all colors and sizes, and flowers galore. As the students entered, they were greeted in pure Caribbean style. Leis, given to the students at the door, were the fashion of the night.

At 10:30 P.M., the '98 Homecoming Queen Abbe Stewart and King Joel Kovacs followed their court down the main staircase. The royal couple then danced to UB-40's Can't Help Falling In Love. Most students made it in time for the king and queen's magical entrance, but a few were still eating at five star restaurants like Barcelona, Kahiki, and Mortons.

Senior Bryn Mills commented, "It was an unforgettable night." Senior Karen Hellickson agreed. Unforgettable it was as freshmen experienced their first homecoming dance and seniors made memories to last a lifetime as they experienced their last.

MISTLETOE MADNESS

JINGLE JAM

Showing us how strong Santa really is, senior Matt Hammond flexes his muscular arms.

"When I walked into the commons, I could feel the energy in the air. I knew this Jingle Jam would be the best one ever!" exclaimed Katie Chambers. The commons gleamed with holiday lights, tinsel, and body glitter.

Free-spirted groups spent hours shopping, sewing, and putting the final touches to their holiday attire. A group of three angels stayed up all night to make their costumes. Everyone was ready for the best dressed competition. Seniors Kelly O'Neill, Lindsay Ritzert and Kristi Parlier, dressed as bright green Christmas trees, won the girls competition. "All the hours of making our outfits really paid off," gushed senior Lindsay Ritzert. Dan Staloch, one of the sophomore village people who won the boys competition, suggested, "We just came out to have fun, not to win the competition. It was a great time." A close second was the senior Christmas toga group.

The shade of lipstick this year was red hot. The girls coated their lips with gloss before planting kisses all over guys' cheeks. D.J. Skroupski dressed in his toga won the Kissing Fest competition with seventy-six kisses plastered to his face. A modest D.J. Skroupski remarked, "I can't take all the credit. Denise Lantzy guided me by taking me around to all the freshmen."

More people attended the Jingle Jam this year which made the dance better than ever. It was a great way to kick off the holiday season.

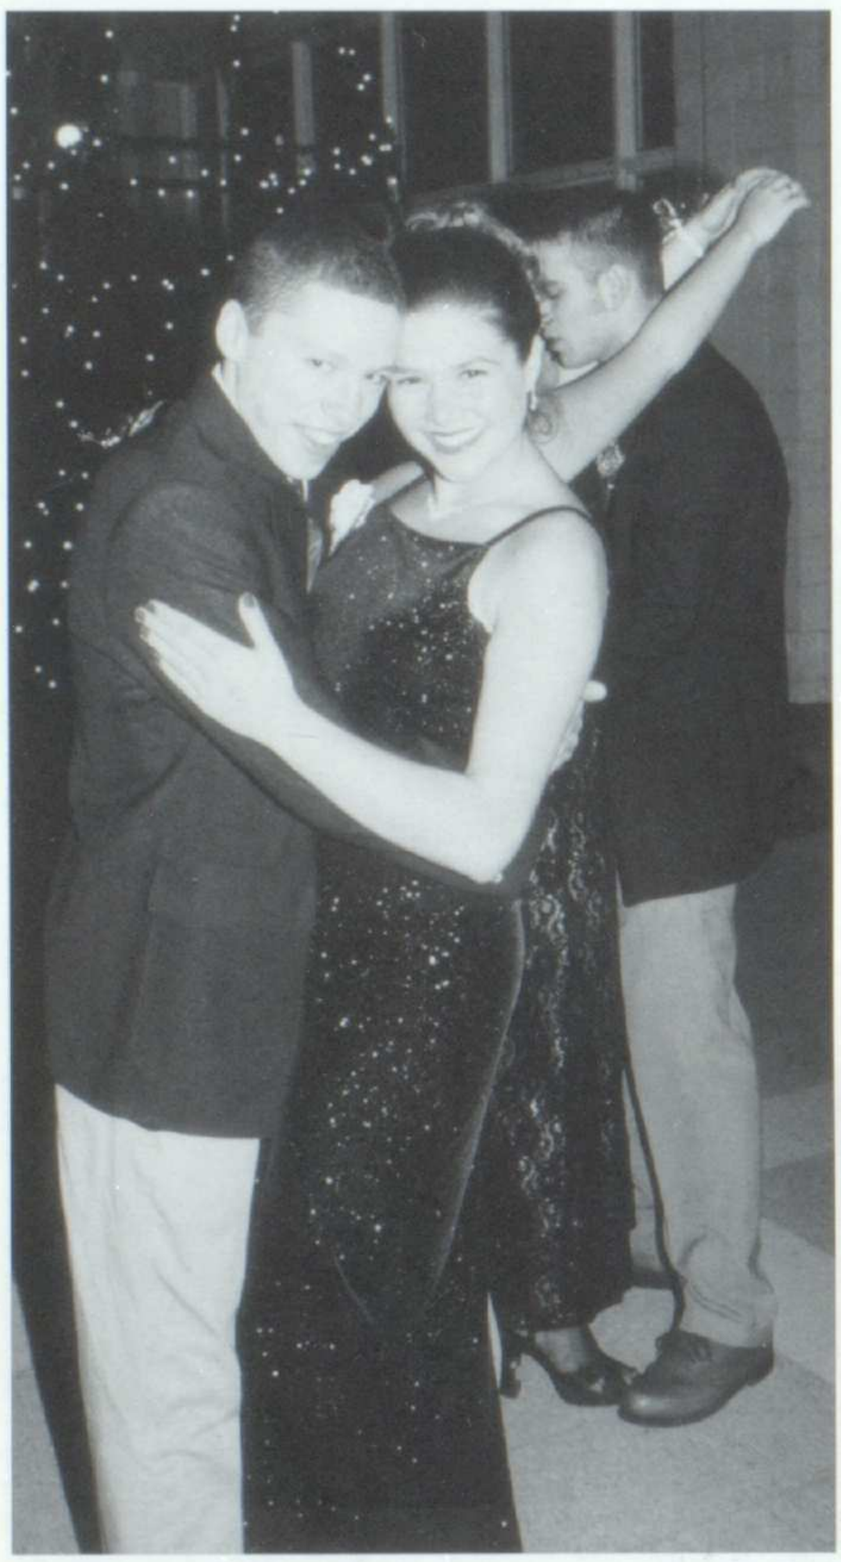
CUPID'S COUPLES

"Wonderful Tonight" in Paris



Taking advantage of a slow song to cuddle are juniors Link Staffen and Lindsay Broadfoot.

It's obvious that seniors Jeff Parish and his date Denise Lantzy have been struck by Cupid's arrows.

The beginning of February finds girls frantically scouring the hallways of Worthington Kilbourne, trying to find a last minute date for the annual Valentine's dance. The senior nominees for queen and king of Hearts were busy raising money for Habitat for Humanities. They raised a combined total of $4,000. After a week's worth of hard work, Lauren Kelly and Katie O'Brien tied for Queen of Hearts. Ryan Mills was the lucky man crowned King of Hearts.

Students filled the commons with excitement, fun, and romance, creating an unforgettable Valentine's dance. As tradition goes, the sophomore class sponsored this formal, facing their greatest responsibility of the year. Charming decorations added to the Valentine's spirit: stars with each couple's names on them covered the walls, a disco ball sparkled throughout the room, and twinkling lights illuminated the Eifle Tower, creating the feeling of a romantic evening in Paris. Commenting on the atmosphere, junior Molly Rudell said, "The decorations were better than ever, and I liked how we could take our stars home as keepsakes of the evening."

Senior Denise Lantzy summed up the evening when she said, " The night was filled with good times and good memories."

PROM NIGHT

UNCHAINED MELODY

Looking ever so studly in his black hat and tux, senior Brian Shane shows his date that WKHS students know how to have a good time.

The 1999 DECA Prom Fashion Show was the kickoff to the much awaited junior-senior prom. It was held on March 25 in the WKHS auditorium. Stores like Gantos, David's Bridal, Tuxedo Classics, Rave, and Sunsports were generous enough to let our students model their latest fashions. The elegant dresses and sophisticated tuxedos reminded students that prom was just around the corner.

On May 8, the Franklin Park Conservatory hosted the dance. As upperclassmen and their dates entered the celebration, an array of beautiful flowers greeted them. Junior Sarah Hartong commented, "The Franklin Park Conservatory was beautiful and the evening was fabulous."

As the night wore on, the anticipation of the naming of the prom king and queen grew. At approximately 10:30 P.M., junior Theresa Blackwell announced Brian Gibson and Kim Myers as royalty. The couple then danced to Unchained Melody sung by our very own Joel Estes and Joel Kovacs.

The smiles illuminating all our faces were enough to show that this year's prom was a big success. Senior Josh Branham summed up his evening by saying, "I couldn't have asked for a better senior prom. My dinner was great, the music was great, and my date looked beautiful. It was awesome!"

By Kristen Dever

Honored to be chosen king and queen are Brian Gibson and Kim Myers.

Enjoying their last prom together are seniors Seth Tenpenny and Nikki Zuniga. I'm sure they made it one to remember.

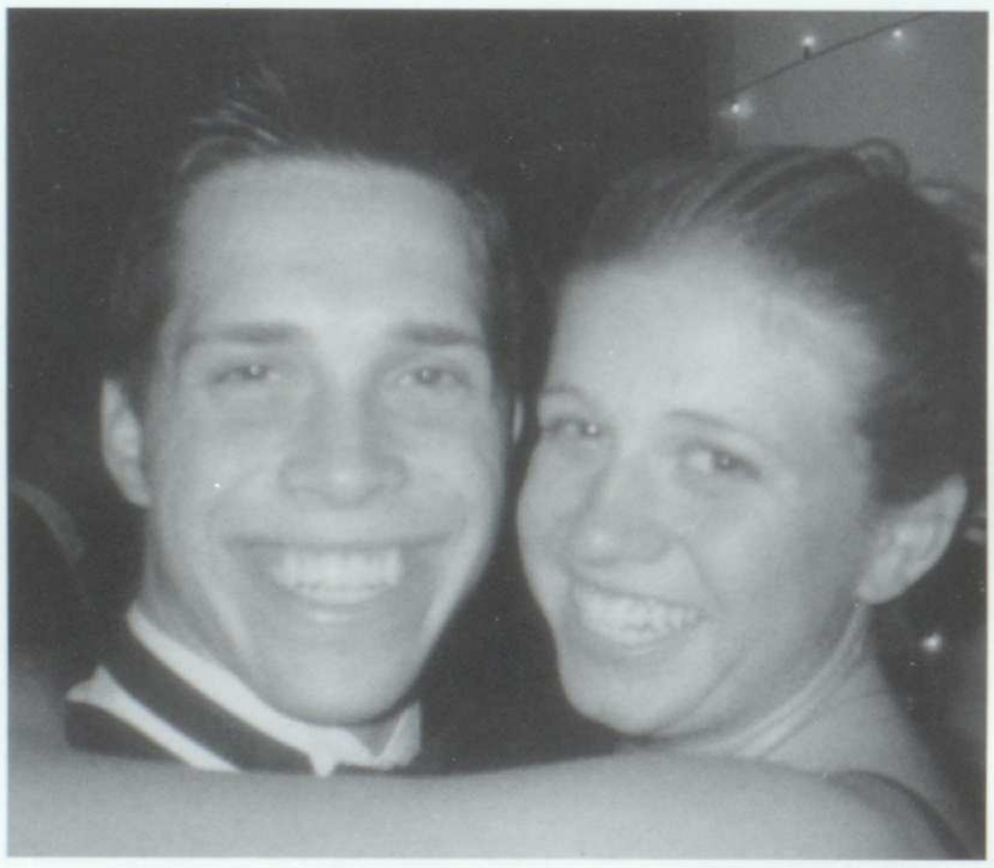
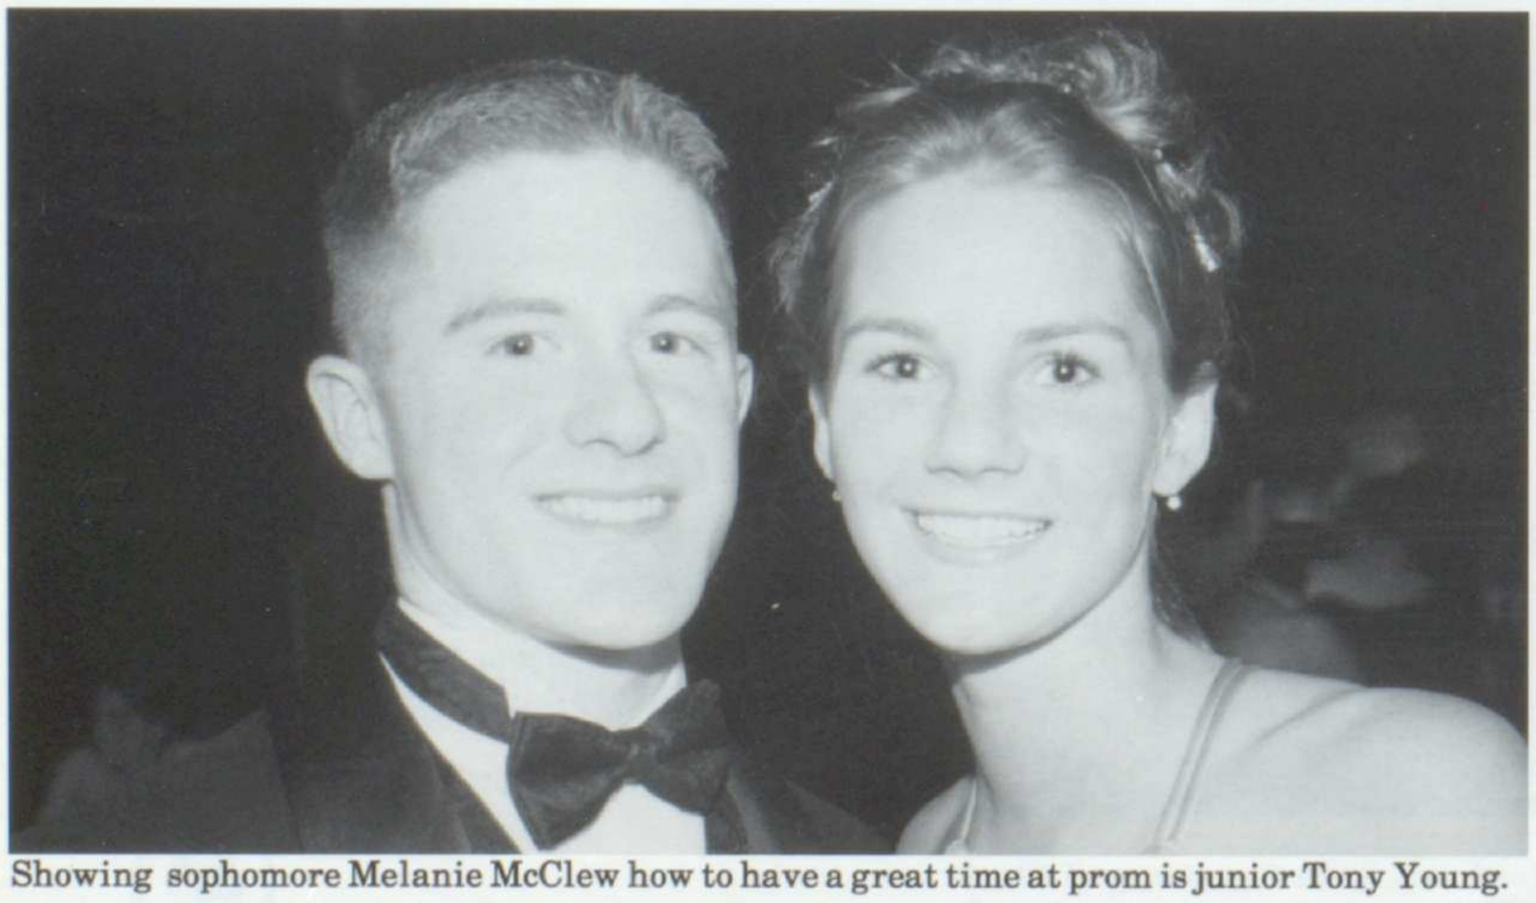
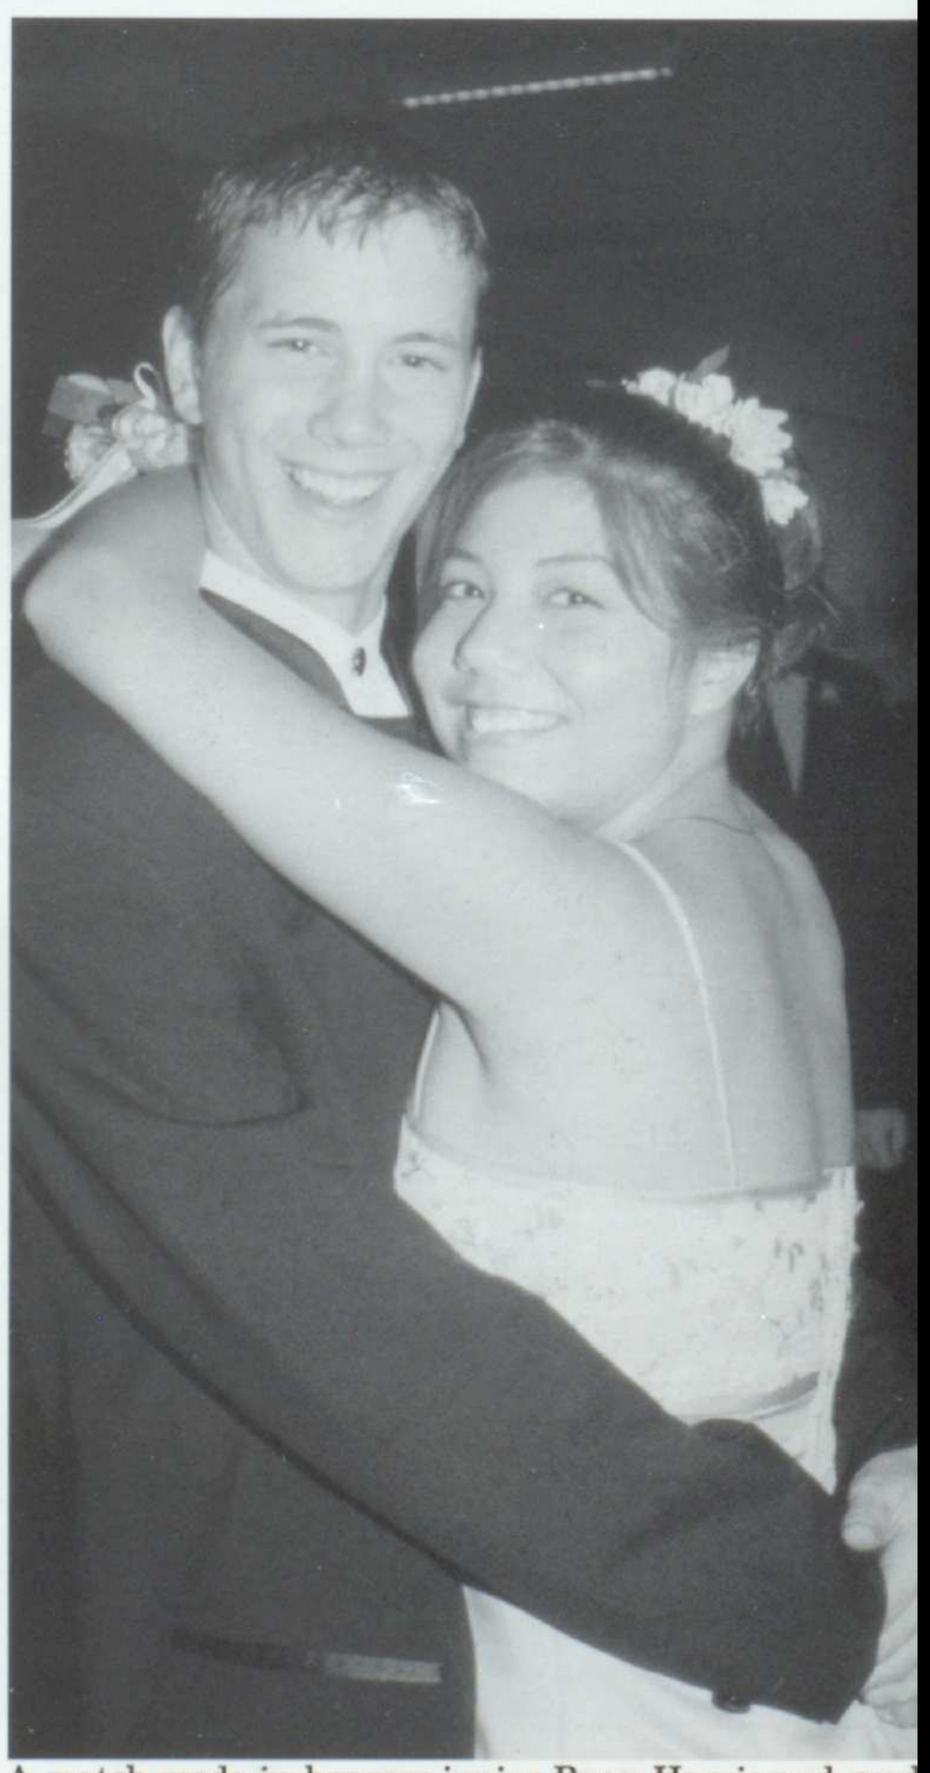
You can tell by these happy faces that seniors Ryan Martin and Kelly Carter are enjoying their last prom. Don't get the wrong idea though . . . These two are just friends.





Showing sophomore Melanie McClew how to have a great time at prom is junior Tony Young.



A match made in heaven: junior Ryan Harris and graduate Annie Kobayashi dance closely together.

Entering the dance with a lot of anticipation and glamour are Craig Rader, Kristen Fishman, Kristen Yates, and Mark Woody. They can't wait to get down and boogy!

Having a splendid, romantic evening are seniors Jeff Parrish and Denise Lantzy. They will cherish this moment forever.

WOLFAPALOOZA

HAVING A FIELD DAY

As the school year ended, Kilbourne students celebrated on May 25th by having a mostly indoor field day sponsored and coordinated by student council. Threatened by a rain-out of so many of the events, Wolfapalooza came inside to the competition and auxiliary gyms. Only two of the activities, bouncy boxing and the big wheel race, still occurred outside. "Wolfapalooza was just as much fun as last year, even if it was inside," exclaimed Stacey Todd.

The exciting activities included a hot dog and pie eating contest, cake walk, karaoke, and singled out with contestants juniors Jess Moore and Jaime Martino. The food, much like that of the past, included Papa John's pizza, cotton candy, snowcones, chips and pop. The students enjoyed both the junk food and variety of games.

Many bands such as The Skamunist Party, Triple Threat, Ugly Stick, and BMH performed in front of the crowd in the auxiliary gym. "The bands were incredible, better than last year! They had been practicing for this," Sarah Butler insisted. All the bands had their own unique sound which made listening enjoyable. No wonder this year's Wolfapalooza was a complete success.

By Moira Joyce

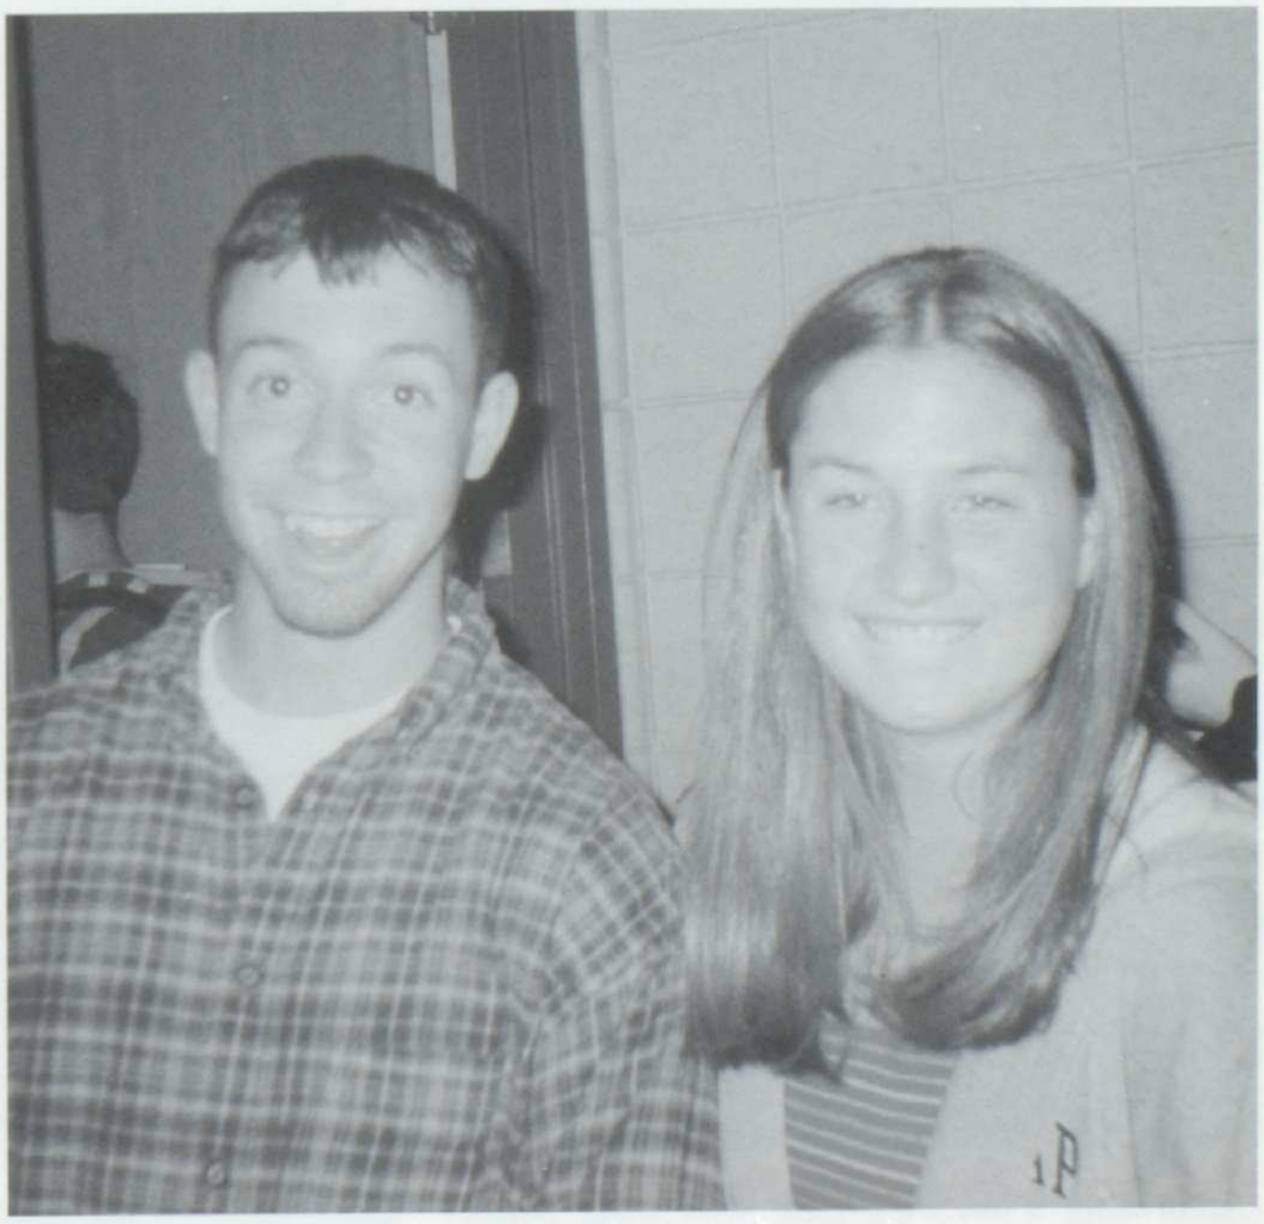
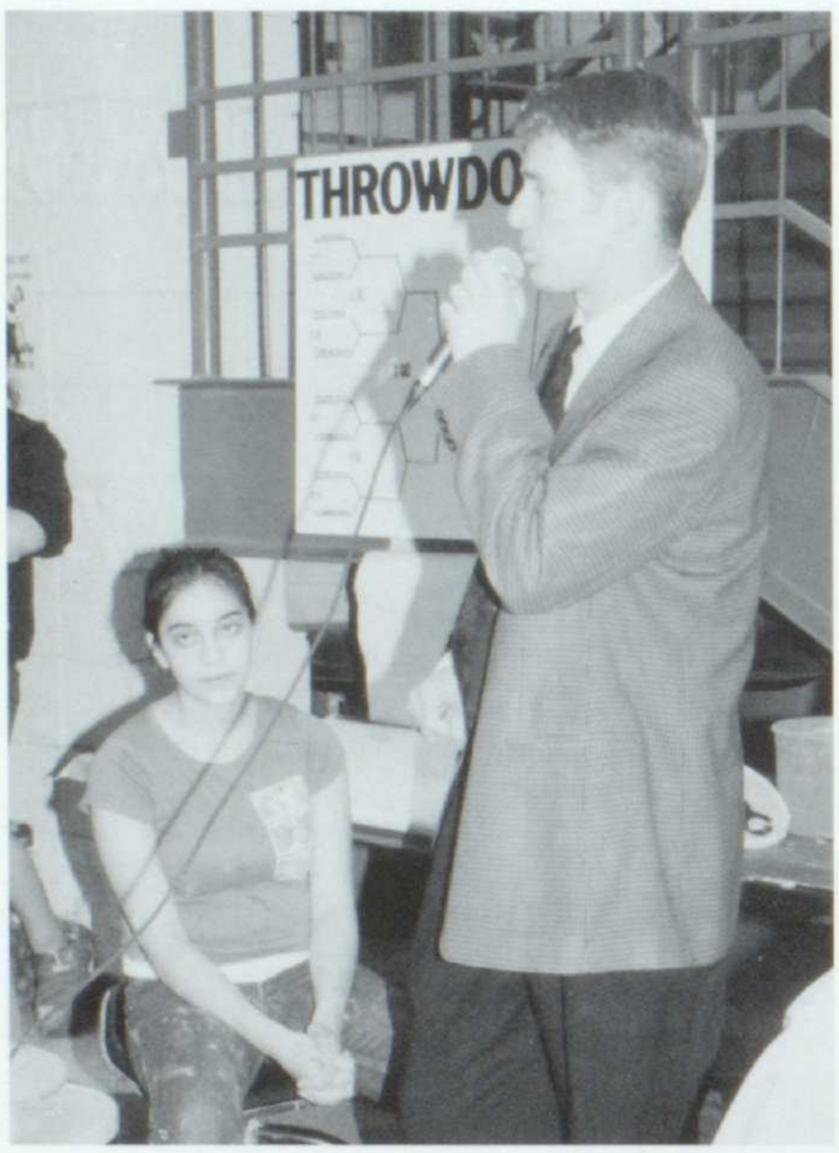
Stopping to rest after a day full of activities are senior James Moore and sophomore Lauren Drenik.



Tye-dying shirts are (clockwise) Mr. Green, Hollie Witchy, and Jenny Linley.

ARTS-IN-ACTION

CELEBRATING CREATIVITY



As emcee of the second annual throwdown, Mr. Riegel announces as Nohal Al Shahal waits to compete.

Celebrating a job well done after their performance are (left to right) Sara Stanley and My My Huynh.

"Aren't our classmates so creative?" Lindsey Cheek (left) asks Glennon Sweeney.

Thursday, May 20, 1999, marked the beginning of the two day celebration of artistic talents and individuality. Opening in the evening at 7:30 P.M. with performances, the choir, band, and orchestra enjoyed a reception which followed to honor all the people involved and to thank the audience for their attendance.

Throughout the day on Friday, May 21, WKHS was a buzz with many activities to explore. Hanging from the ceiling in the commons were many AIDS quilts intended to help us remember the men and women lost their lives to this horrific disease.

The staircase in the commons was home to the second annual throw-down where students competed against one another to see who could construct the tallest, best-looking pot with the thinnest walls.

At a poetry "Coffee House" students read their original poetry. This was their chance to share their creative side with fellow students.

Tables displaying ceramic pots, sculptures, and various other art forms filled the commons. The hallways overflowed with drawings, paintings, and photography. Other activities included performances by the Acafellas, still-life drawings, and a chance for students to make their own jewelry. Arts-in-Action offers something for everyone to enjoy.

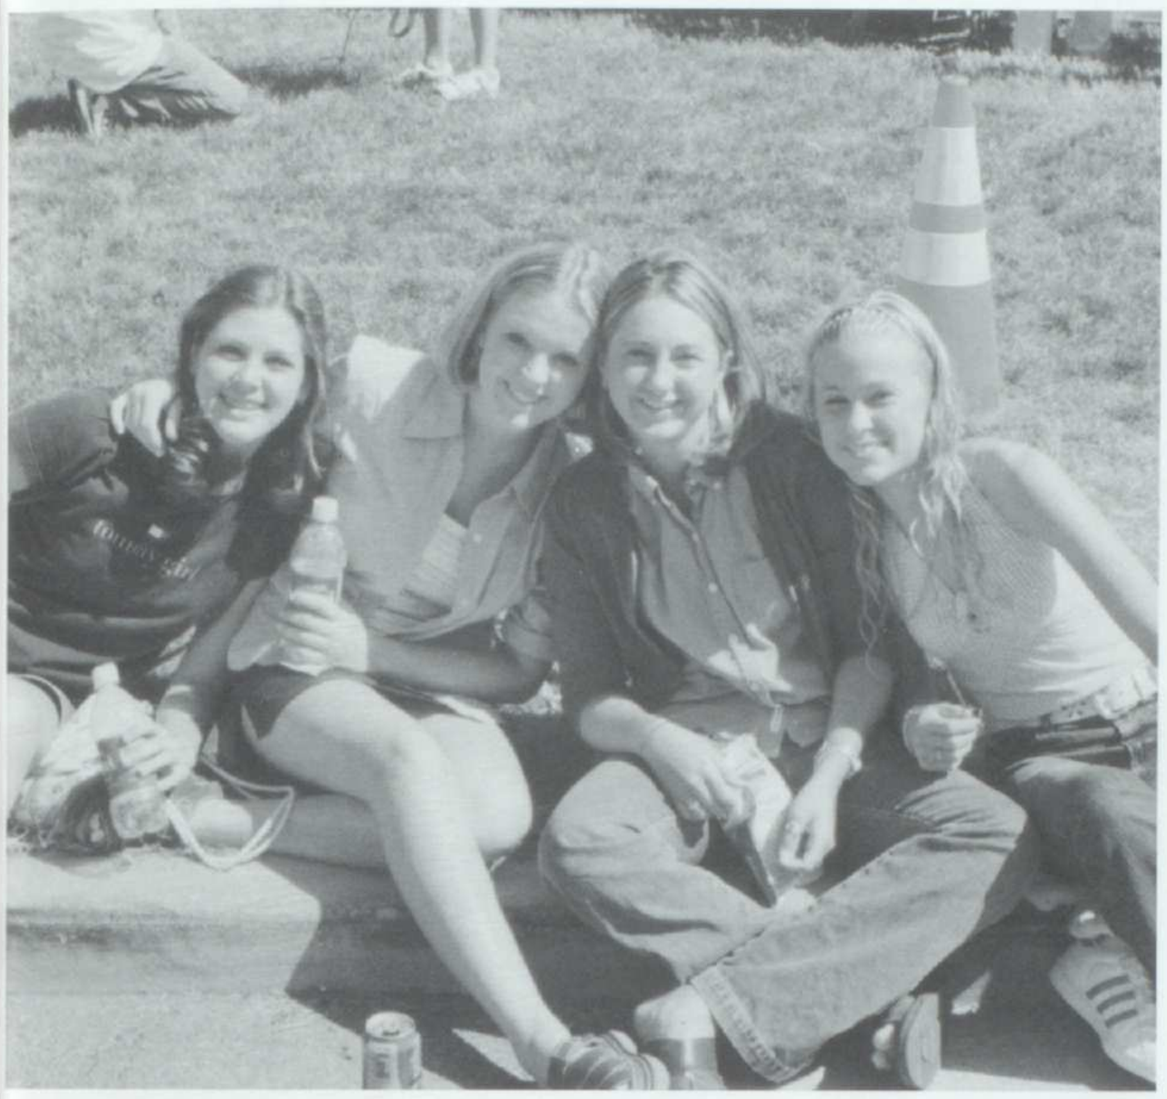
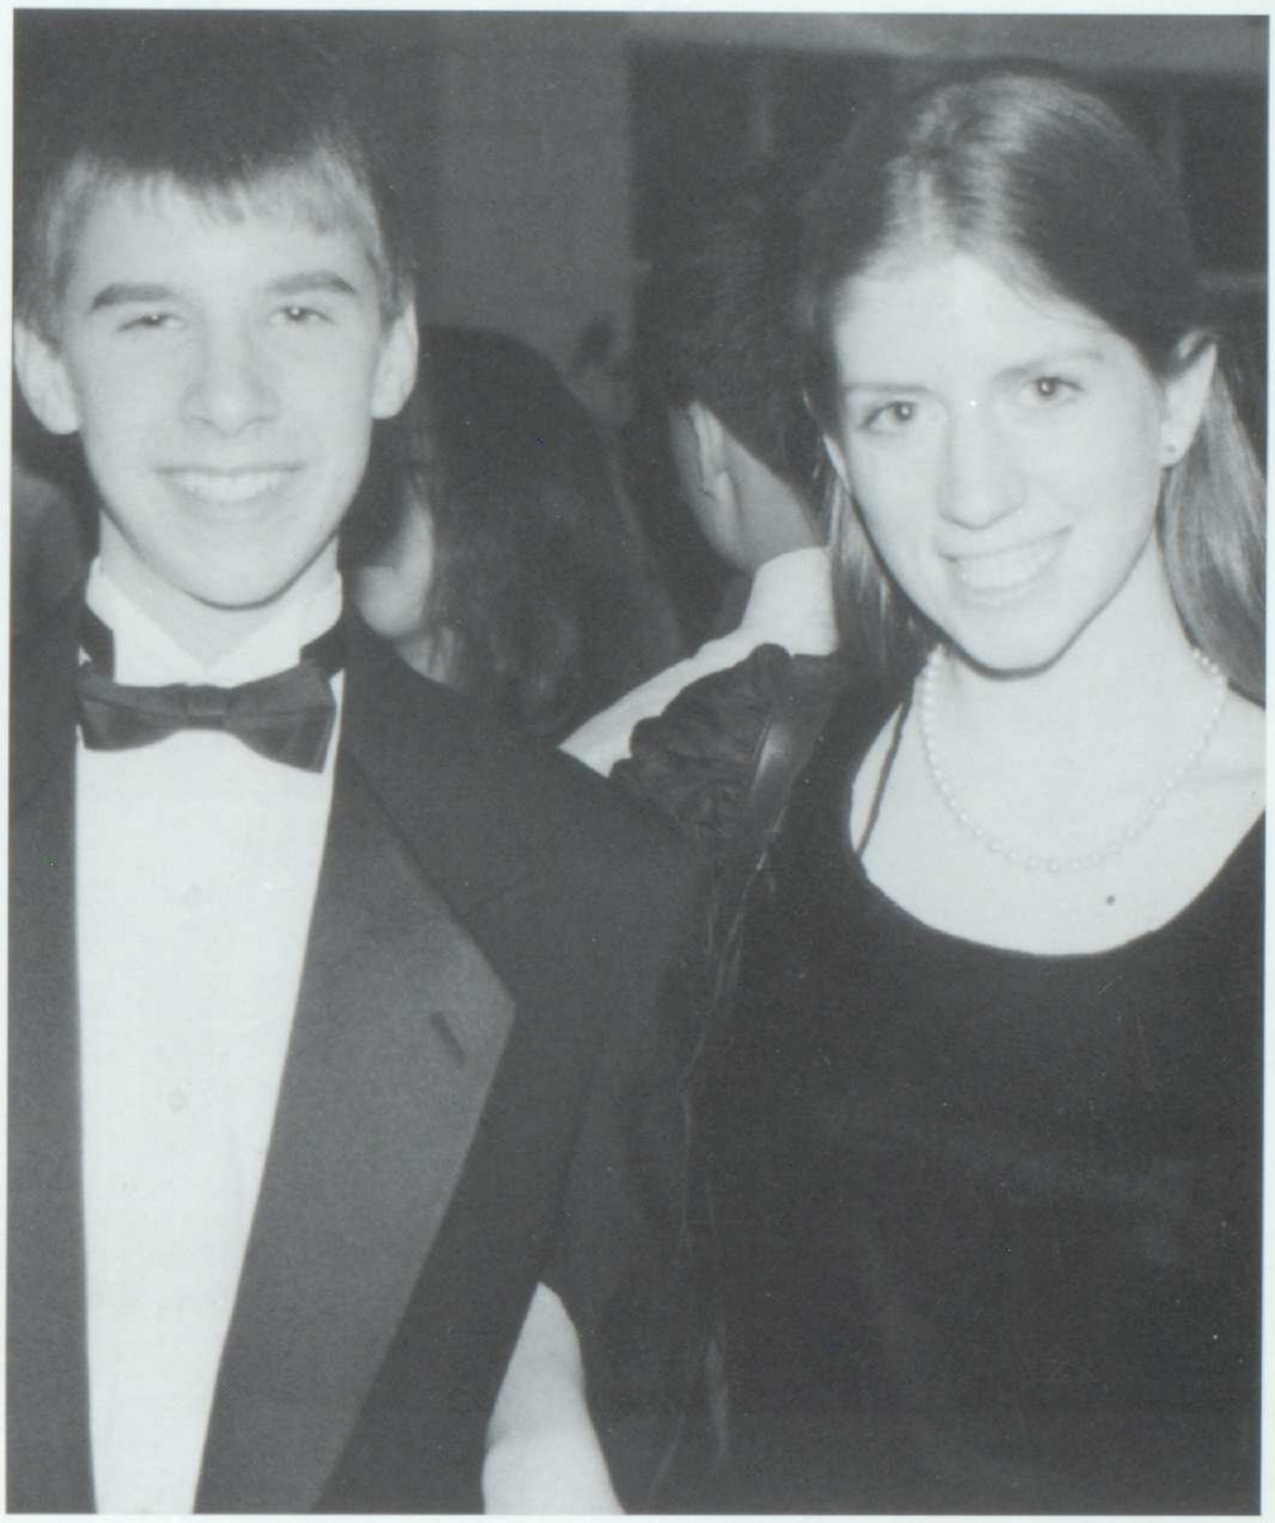
These four girls (left to right) Lindsay Walton, Molly Clager, Kelly Holowicki, and Kari Larson are enjoying their break from class to eat and admire their fellow students' hard work.



These two choir members, Chris Mowery and Kathleen Whitman, look very happy with the performance they just gave for their parents and friends. "America the Beautiful" gave everyone goose bumps.



Is senior Rhya Lund unhappy that her boyfriend Adam Dixon is laughing at her artistic masterpiece?

Senior Chris Michaelides is very intent on playing the cello for his fellow students at the Coffee House.

Accepting her faculty scholarship from the prestigious Indiana University is Leslie Vetter.

Accepting their awards are (above) Rebecca Berger and (below) Amanda Chow. Their parents must be so proud.

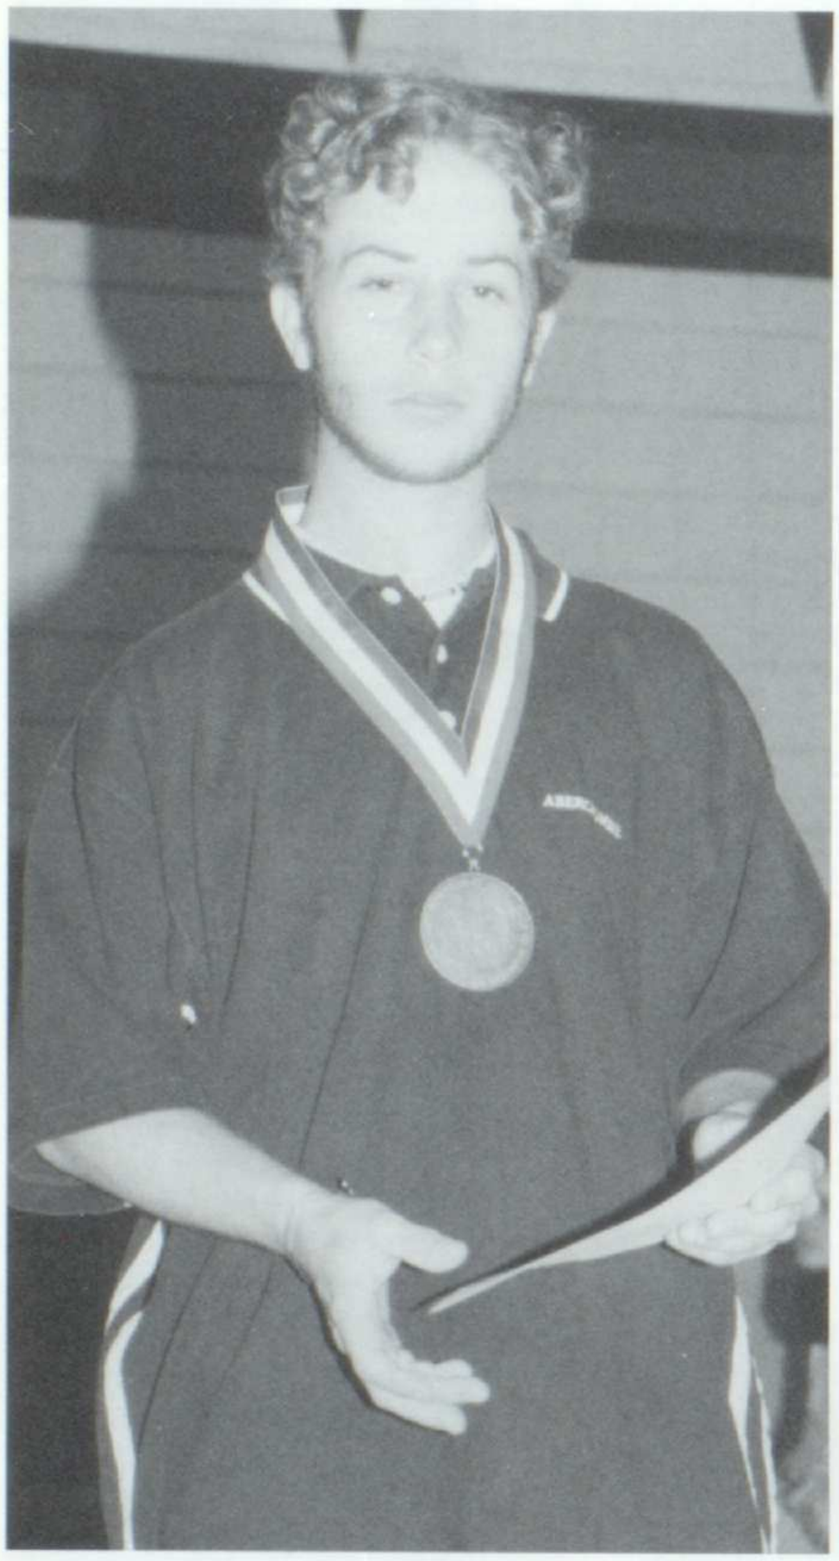
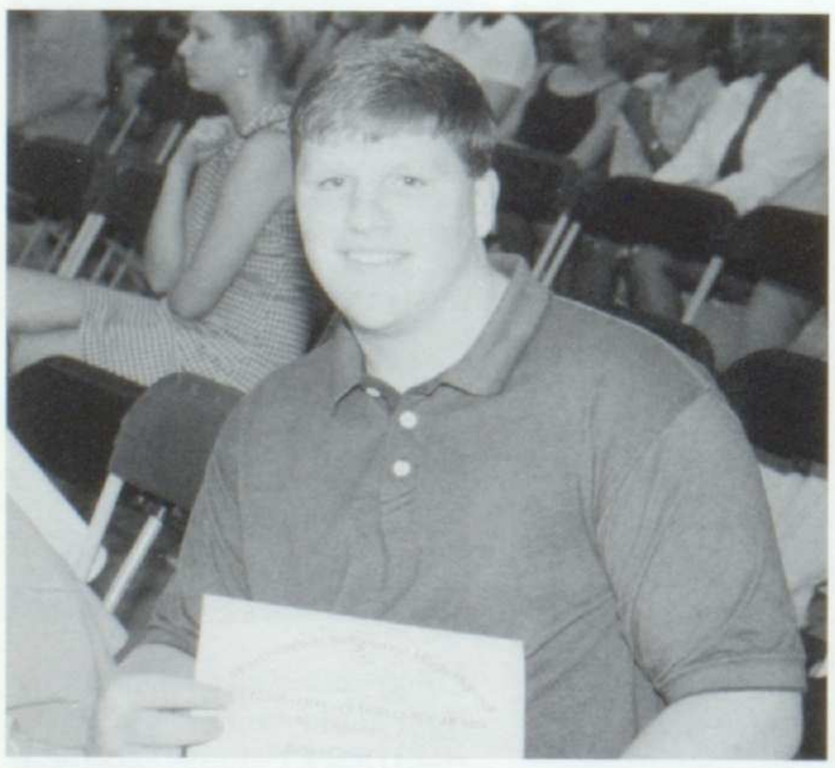
Celebration of Excellence



Proudly showing his medal for lacrosse is senior Dustin Willis.



Excited to receive his own award certificate is senior Blake Smith.

Seeming pleased to be honored during the assembly is Felix Lin.

Students and faculty gathered in the competition gym on June 3, !999, to help celebrate the achievement of the soon-to-be graduates. Students were presented with medals and award certificates for their participation as individuals or as members of a team in co-curricular activities. They also received medals for OCC recognition and for superior rating in musical competition or ranking in the state competition. "Seeing how many seniors got medals and certificates motivates me to excel in my co-curricular activites," Diana Stobart exclaimed.

The Jazz Band, directed by Mr. Nathan, performed for the crowd. They added an upbeat tone to the ceremony. As always the Celebration of Excellence was a great way to encourge underclassmen to become invovled in co-curricular activities.

By Moira Joyce

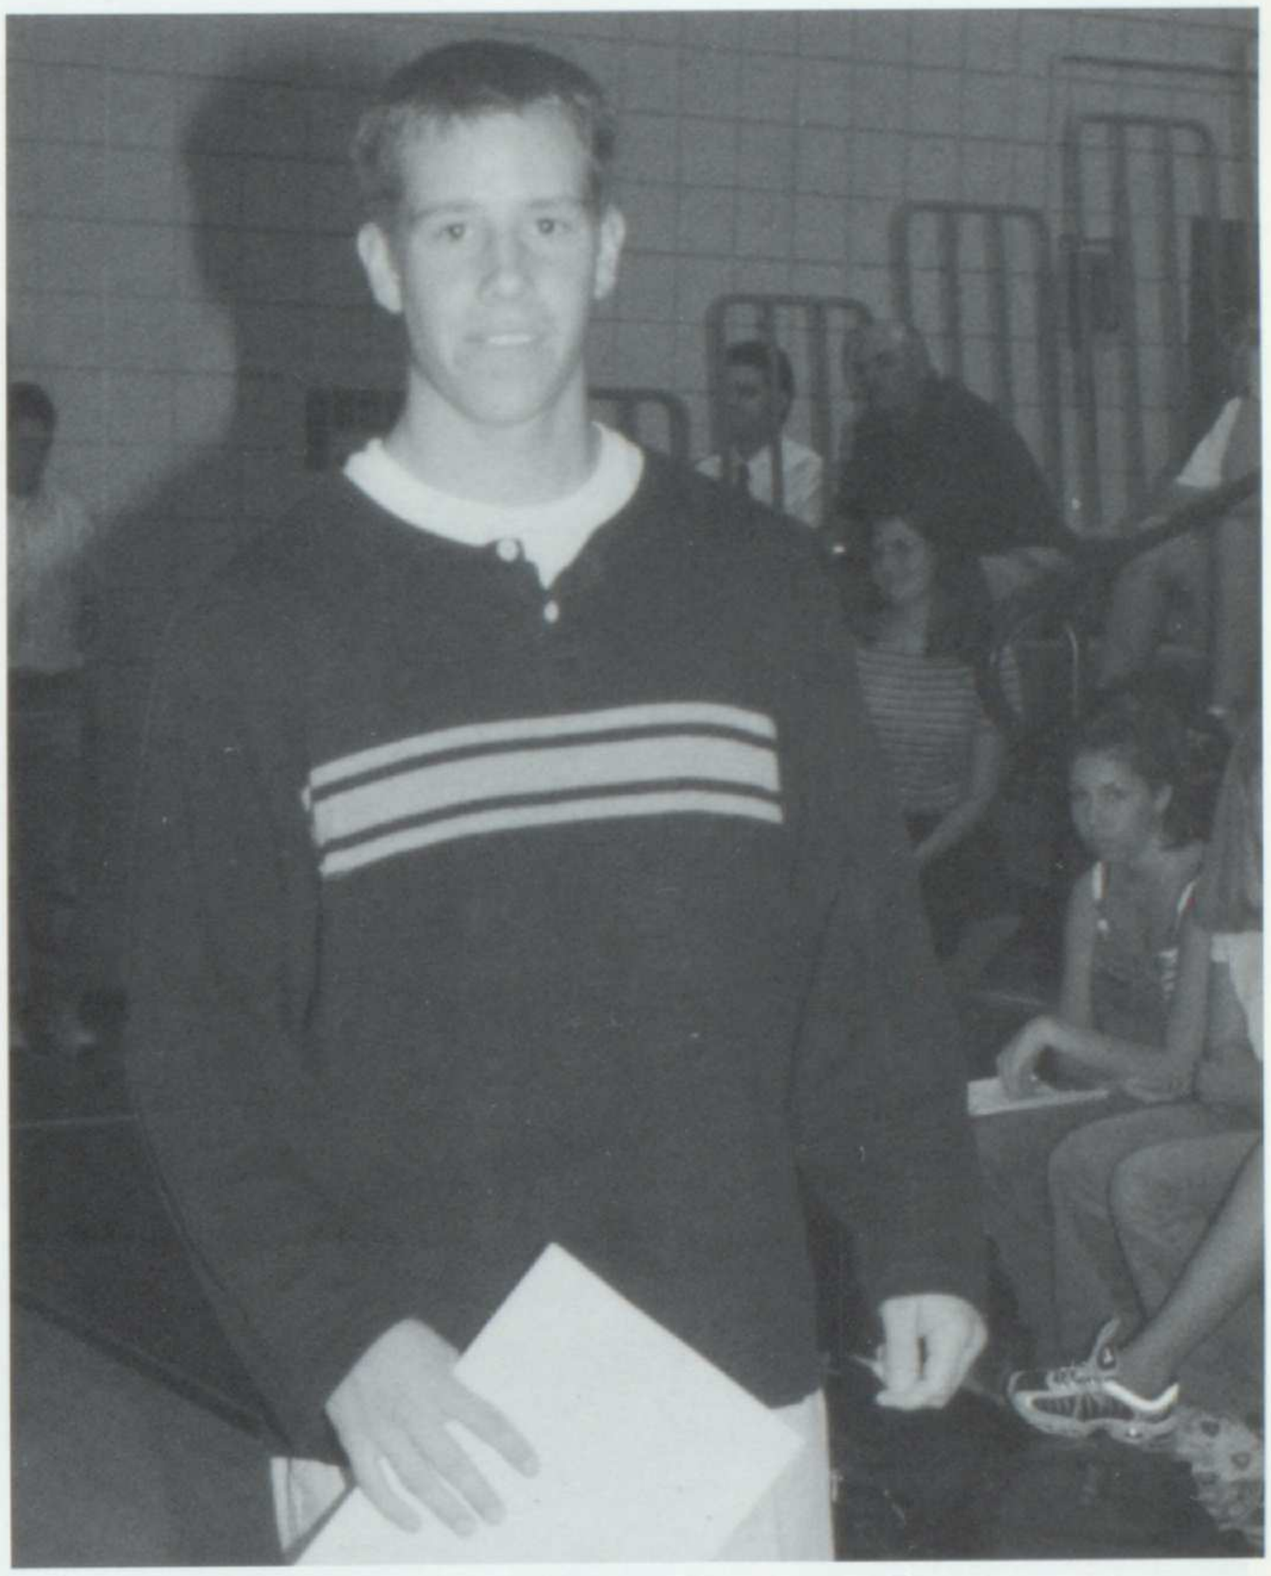
"My mom sure will be proud of me when I get home" Ryan Mc Fadden thinks in his mind as he walks back to his seat.

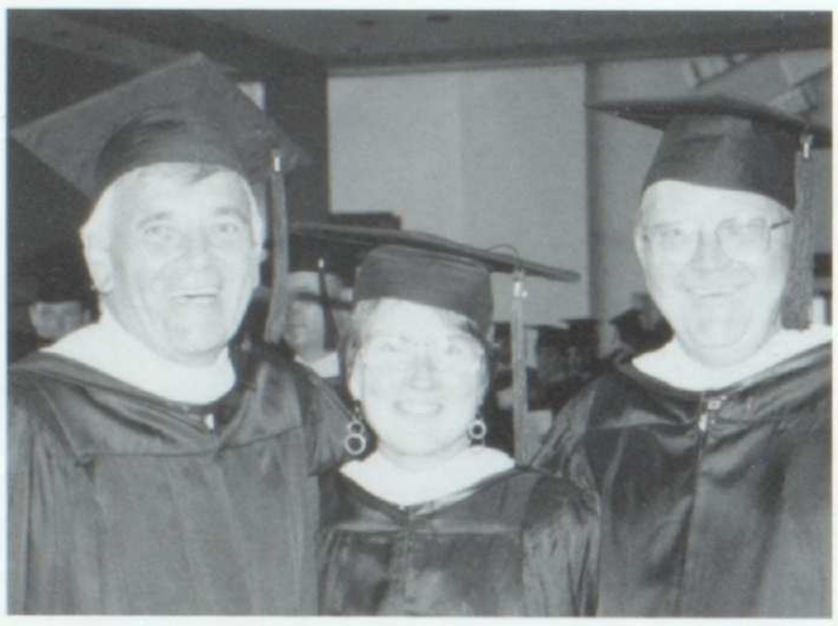


Concentrating on not tripping while walking up the stairs to the stage is senior Katherine Stebbins whom Mrs. McLain is congratulating.

"Here, walk this way" Mrs. Seils says to Svetoslav Matejic as she points another clueless senior off the stage.

GRADUATION

SENIOR CLASS OF 1999



Saying goodbye is difficult for all of us, but our three retirees, (left to right) Bill Frye, Frauke Palmer, and Jim Scowden, appear to be happily anticipating it. Thank you for your years of service.

Sunday, June 6, 1999, marked the eighth annual commencement for Worthington Kilbourne High School. At promptly 2:00 P.M., the class of 1999 marched into Batelle Hall at the Greater Columbus Convention Center to the tune of Pomp and Circumstance played by the WKHS orchestra. Leading the class of '99 in were the two honorary marshals, class advisors Dave Devine and Marjorie Krebs.

This year's senior class had a total of twenty-six valedictorians, who were in charge of the entertainment. Brian Ahnmark and Mike Dominach started a new tradition by producing a video instead of doing a skit.

Kori Billiat, Joel Estes, Kristen Fishman, and Joel Kovacs wowed the audience with their voices when they sang The Star-Spangled Banner. Then our symphonic choir joined them on stage and sang our Alma Mater.

Parents, teachers, students, friends, and family members listened attentively to the speakers and their heartfelt messages. Abbe Stewart began with her speech entitled "Remember." She brought tears to everybody's eyes as she took us down memory lane and reminded us all of what we should never forget. The line-up then included Dr. Lindsay, Kim Myers, Damon Asbury, and Sue McNaughten.

Ending one chapter of life and moving on to another, the senior class of 1999 is now history. Although these seniors are happily moving on, they will remember the friendships, bonds, and lessons learned at WKHS forever.

It looks as if senior Eric Froman is happy to be receiving his diploma and is ready to move on to the future.

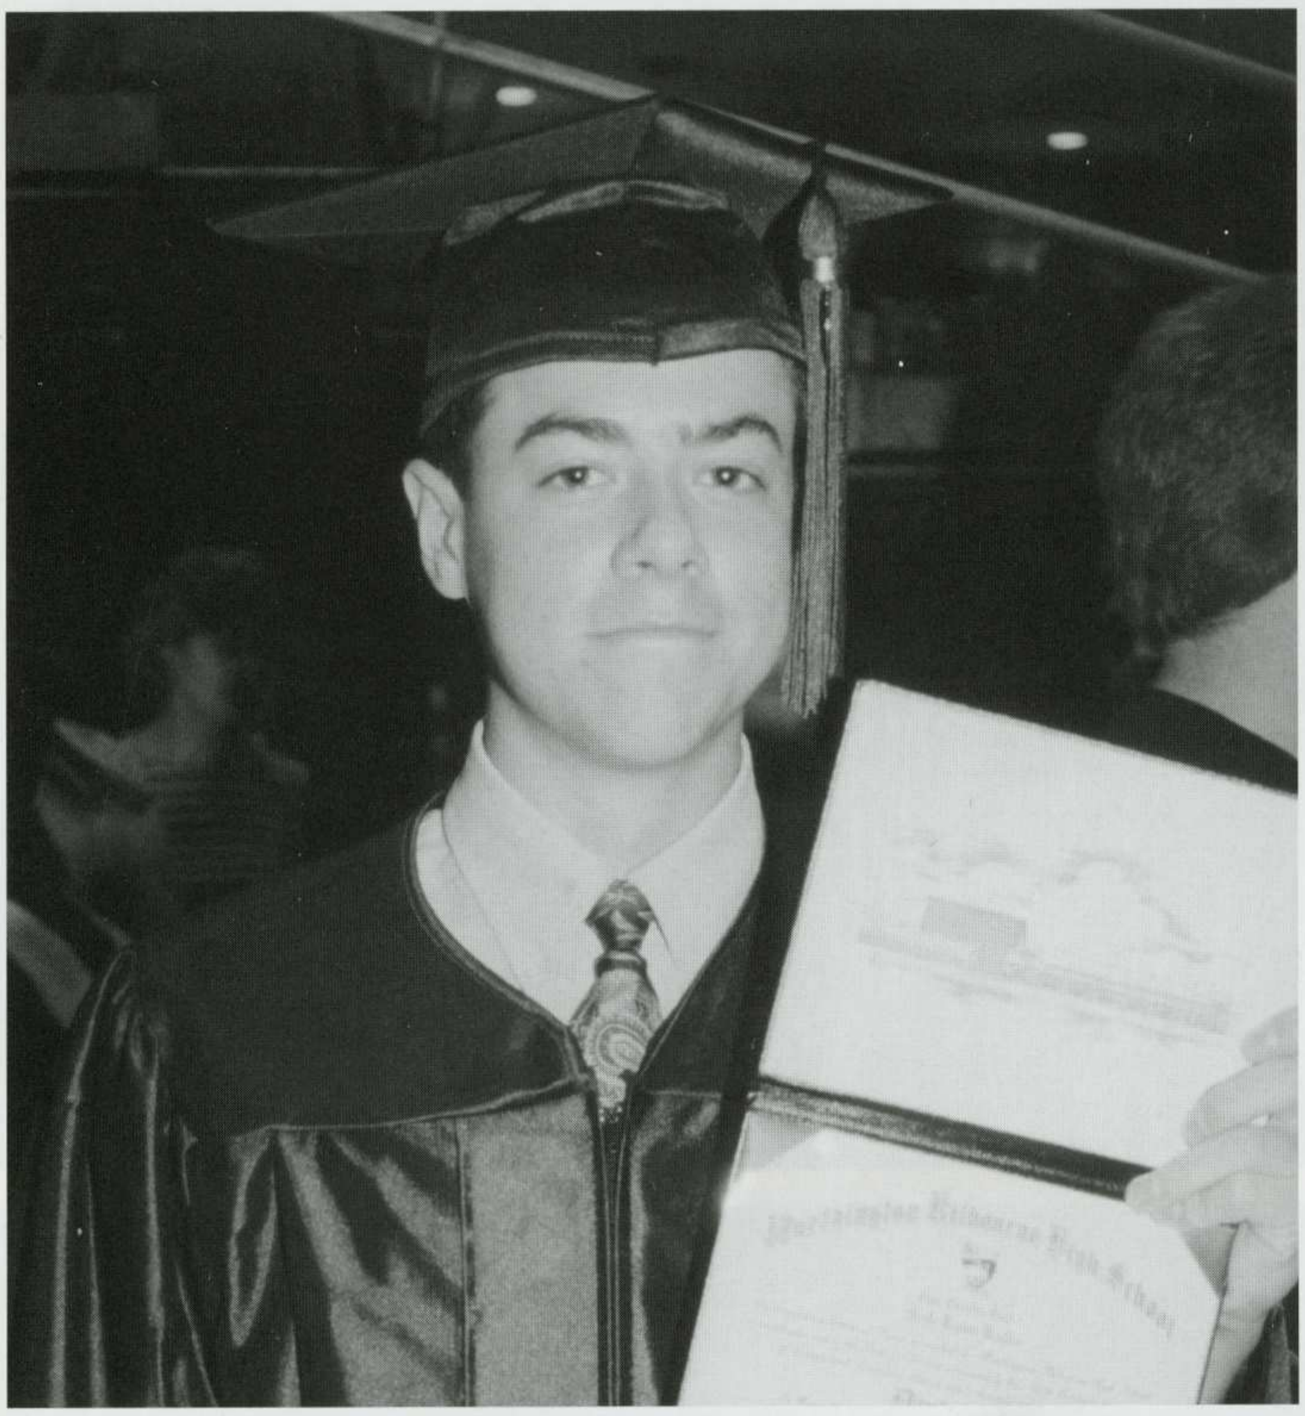
Just having accepted his diploma, Seth Kulka shows great enthusiasm. "I'm finally out of here," he says, congratulating himself.



"My mom is sure going to be proud of me," Wes Appell thinks to himself as he is excited to be receiving his diploma from Mrs. Smith

Feeling so lucky to be able to graduate a year early is Jennifer Evans whose walk shows her pride.

Oh, NO! The copier! Ginny Pietrangelo is retiring. We'll miss you!

Presented with a diploma from Mr. Stevens is Jose Fernandez.

"You never really lose until you quit trying."

-Mike Ditka

"So what is everyone doing after the game?" asks quarterback Micah Faler to his O-line. "Maybe we can catch that new Brad Pitt flick. I heard it's supposed to be really good."

A STRONG START

-A Battle to the End-

The Wolves opened their season strong with five consecutive wins. However, they did not finish as planned. Their losing streak started when they faced Grove City (5-0), their first conference league game. The Wolves fought a strong battle but lost 7-14 to the eighth-ranked Dawgs. "We can't turnover the ball as much as we did and come out with a victory." said senior captain Micah Faler.

Even though the Wolves were disappointed with their record, they felt they played well against some teams. In a terrific performance game against Westerville North, Ryan Spraque blocked a kick and returned it for a touchdown to help the Wolves beat North 35-3. Senior Eric Noel said, "All the pieces fell into place. Both offense and defense came to play. When we do that, we are tough to stop."

The football team had individual standouts. Obi Chukwumah received Honorable Mention all State, First Team all District, and Second Team all OCC. Kyle Turano earned Honorable Mention all State, First Team all Disrtict, and First Team all OCC. Jordon Stockwell received First Team all District and First Team all OCC. Ryan Spraque placed on Second Team all District and First Team all OCC. Micah Faler earned Second Team all District and Honorable Mention all OCC. Steve Muntean, Andy Londergan, and Joel Kovacs received Third Team all District with Justin Dauer placing on Third team all District. Doug Adams earned a spot on Second Team all OCC. Obviously, many talented players filled the Wolves' football roster.

KICKING AWAY

-High Hopes Kick Off the Season-

Before the season opened, Coach Chris Molls said, "With the number of returnees, we're farther ahead than last year. That's pretty good." The 1998 girls soccer team had a proud season. The girls, led by captains Mary and Karen Hellickson, stood strong in their performance and placed third in OCC this year. They also fought a hard game against Watterson in the district tournament.

"We worked hard during each practice, and although we didn't prove ourselves by the scoreboard, we proved that we could stick together as a team," claimed Ali Shaffer. With the loss of only two seniors, Mary and Karen Hellickson, most of the leading scorers, Jenny Dreyer, Kim Chianese, Kate Basom, Ann Basom, and Erin Whitaker, will still be playing next year. Hopefully, next season will be more successful.

The girls put their best effort into practices and games by working hard and perfecting their skills, but they fell short of a winning season. The 1999 girls soccer team is looking forward winning more games in the future.

By Diana Stobart

REACHING GOALS

-Another OCC Title-

Despite losing eight players the previous year, the guys soccer team accomplished what they set out to do. Knowing they had their work cut out for them, they still managed to plow through the season with great effort and determination.

Winning the OCC title for the second year in a row brought them great satisfaction. "We had a great year. We stayed determined and played hard. It paid off in the end, " insisted Rob Clouse. Coach Vincent agreed, saying, "My players put forth their best effort which lead to their success."

The players improved their skills at each game. "We played our best game against Dublin Coffman. We came together as a team, worked well as a unit, and defeated a 'favored' opponent," said Justin O'Neil. Losing to Pickerington and Dublin Scioto, each by only one point, was terribly disappointing.

Still, they ended on an up-note. Because of seeding, the team earned a bye in the preliminary round of the tournament. They followed with wins against Big Walnut in the sectional and Olentangy in the district semi-final, but they lost to Thomas, the eventual state champ, in the district finals.

Losing only three seniors should make next year's team a tough one to beat. Hopefully, the positive attitude that the players embraced this year will make 1999 even better.

MAKING A SPLASH

-A Wave of Victories-

Kilbourne's ladies water polo team finished strong this season with the girls exercising admirable dedication and teamwork. They earned state runner-up for the second consecutive year, an amazing accomplishment for such a new team. This is the first time that water polo has been recognized as a varsity sport by our school system. For the previous fourteen years, polo has been considered a club sport at both Thomas Worthington and here at Kilbourne because of the limited number of interested participants.

Led by coach Jim Callahan, the girls exuded hardwork and a true love for their sport. "Out of my four years of playing water polo, this year we had the most team unity," said senior Michelle Inzetta. Their early morning practices at Thomas Worthington's natatorium made their fellow Kilbourne students look lazy and weak in comparison.

The team had a strong foundation of seniors this year. Kristin Blum, Sarah Butler, Abbe Stewart, Moira Joyce, Martina Erickson, and Michelle Inzetta all acted as the team's captains and led the girls through the ups and downs of the season.

Aside from the team's accomplishment of state runner up, a few of the individual players received special recognition. Seniors Sarah Butler and Abbe Stewart both earned First Team all State, and Kristin Blum and Michelle Inzetta played their way to Honorable Mention all State, a result of their exemplary dedication and athletic talent.

SPLASHTOVICTORY

-Having a Ball-

Even though the 1999 boys water polo team consisted of mostly younger athletes, they enjoyed some well earned success. For most of the players, the season was a learning experience, but they played quite well. As predicted, they grew and made great improvements since last year. Coach Callihan commented, "We had a real young team with a lot of underclassmen. Next season will be real exciting with all the people who are returning."

One of the team's major accomplishments was placing seventh in the state, only one spot away from quailifiying. Other honors included receiving seventh place in the Princeton Invitational, fourth place in the Erie Invitational, and second place in the Annapolis "B" group. This gave the players a record of nearly 500.

The leadership of the few upperclassmen, Link Staffen, Jess Moore, Jeff Hollback, and Clement Cheng, was invaluable to the younger players. "I learned a lot from my teammates, and we had a lot of fun. I can't wait for next season to see how much we improve," said freshman Eric Vickre. With so many players returning, they should improve!

One of the most important characteristics of this team is that no matter what the outcome of any game is, they always manage to have fun. This is the key to teamwork and success.

STICKIN' IT TO 'EM

-Drivin' to the Goal Helps Lady Wolves' Season-

Athough the record doesn't show it, this year's Wolves field hockey team took many steps in the right direction. The Wolves completed their play with a record of 5-7-1 and finished sixth in the league. Exciting victories and dissappointing loses filled the season.

The Wolves played their best game beating Bexley for the first time ever in a 3-0 victory. "It was a great win as our team clicked. We got the job done, and we were proud," explained senior Sara Potter. However, the Wolves were knocked out of the state tournament with a devasting lost to U.A.

The team loses six seniors and coach Dawn Pederson. "Some really great players are graduating, but hopefully our team can come together and keep making our program strong," said junior Lindsey Groves.

Several of the players received awards for their great performances: Kori Billiat and Stacey Todd earned First Team all O.C.C.; Lucy Morrow and Jamie Walters grabbed Second Team all O.C.C. Kori Billiat and Stacey Todd were also selected to play in the All Ohio All-Star game.

SOLID STROKES

-Taking the Good Shot-

With the loss of All-State Noah Lucas, this year's golf team's success was questionable. Everyone wondered how the team would fare, but the boys enjoyed another successful season. Led by seniors Matt Sands and Jeff Shirck, the golfers compiled a 19-1 OCC record which put them into first place. The team also qualified for districts this year and placed fourth but did not advance to the state tournament.

All five players received OCC honors this year. Sophomore Doug Christopher qualified for the district and state meet; he also earned a First Team all OCC and Second Team all District. Junior Nash Dykes received First Team all OCC and Second Team all District. Jeff Harp also earned Second Team all OCC honors as did seniors Matt Sands and Jeff Shirck.

Even though the team did well this year, the future looks even brighter. The Wolves will be returning juniors Nash Dykes and Jeff Harp; sophomores Doug Christopher and Trent Wiser; and freshman Brian Elsea.

Jeff Shirck reflected, "We had a great year. It was so much fun. I'm really going to miss the van rides to the matches and all the friendships that I have made on the golf team. Good luck next year. I'm predicting a state championship!"

IT'S TEE TIME

-In the Swing of Things-

A great golf season is the result of teamwork. "We all played well as a team, had a lot of spirit, and got along great," claimed Kate Simpson. The 1998 girls golf team was really in the swing of things this year. They putted their way to an impressive 56/4 win-loss record.

The two biggest rivals, Pickerington and Columbus School for Girls, were especially successful matches for Kilbourne. The biggest team honor was winning second in the MOGGL (Mid Ohio Girl's Golf League), one place behind Dublin Coffman. However, not making it to states was their biggest disappointment this season. Fortunately, Stephanie Elsea and Katie Schmidt qualified to play individually in the state tournament.

Everyone worked hard as individuals and as a team. The underclass golfers plan to continue to build the program in the future. Freshman Christa Nadler says, "We did our best and achieved success this year."

Seniors Stephanie Elsea and Katie Schmidt will be missed by the team in 1999; they will continue their golf interests as they attend college. In November of 1998, Stephanie Elsea signed to play golf for Bowling Green University and Katie Schmidt signed to attend Western Carolina on a scholarship.

DIGGIN' IT UP

-Settin' High Goals-

The theory that a team's success is measured only by the team's record is not true for the girls volleyball team. Even though the win-loss column reflects a lack of success, the Wolves never lost their sense of determination and dedication. Yearning to reach their goals, they set high standards for themselves individually as well as for the team, and they feel that they accomplished what they set out to do. Through positive attitudes, the ladies developed a team spirit that made the hard work enjoyable. "I have never had so much fun in one season, and I know that the team spirit we developed this year will continue next year," insisted Megan Landis.

Not only will the team spirit carry on but so will much of the talent. "I'm glad we improved our record from last year, but we had so much talent. I just wish that we could have pulled it all together at sectionals," said Kristen Yates.

The Wolves wrapped up their season with Kristen Coulman earning Second Team all OCC and Second Team all District. Kristen Yates was named Honorable Mention OCC, and Sara Fetter studied her way into the Scholar Athlete award.

This team's success can be summed up in the aphorism: "Always remember that winning doesn't start around you. It begins inside you."

SEE HOW THEY RUN

-A Year in the Running-

The cross country team carried on Kilbourne's tradition of excellence as the Wolves qualified for the regional meet for the eighth year in a row, finishing ninth in their division. "The kids were focused," declared the team's new head coach, Paul Roman, and their hard work and dedication led them to numerous victories.

The transition from former coach Roger Johnson to Paul Roman went smoothly, and Roman is optimistic for the coming years. "We're enjoying this right now and are looking forward to the future," says Roman.

Despite the loss of Johnson and a few key seniors, the team's co-captains, Brenden Luft and John Warner, and returning members Joel Estes, Matt Baumbusch and Scott Robison, led the Wolves through an excellent season. The Wolves' cross country team placed second in the OCC meet this year, and third in districts. Congratulations, runners!

KEEPING STRIDE

-Runners Finish Second at Major Meet-

Running in early morning mist at 6:00 A.M. before the sun rises, the girls cross country team demonstrated their commitment to their program. The hard work and dedication these girls gave to running inspired all those around them. Opening the season at the Ashland Invitational, the girls felt they were on their way to success. Their best invitational was their second out of twelve team finish at the Marysville Invitational. Hard work was paying off, and they were accomplishing their goals.

The girls did nothing but improve, grow, and strengthen throughout the season. Finishing fourth in the O.C.C and eigth at districts, most felt like they had strived to do their best. However, Bethany Gaskill was the only runner to advance to regionals and qualify for the state meet for the third time.

The honors won by the girls include Bethany Gaskill, First Team all O.C.C.; Kelly Spiers, Honorable Mention, and Kim Myers, Scholar Athlete.

Reflecting on this year, senior standout Bethany Gaskill explained, "The friendhip our team had was incredible, and I'm really going to miss them next year."

GAME, SET, MATCH

-The Right Swing of Things-

The Lady Wolves 1998 tennis team hit their way to a victorious season this year, one of the best that Kilbourne has ever seen. The girls really worked hard and accomplished a lot while having fun at the same time. The team, mostly composed of underclassmen, sure didn't let their youth impede their success. "The season was really exciting because we had a young team with a lot of talent. We were successful because they worked hard," coach Bobbie Davis explained.

"The positive attitude and determination of each girl on every court at every match and practice affected the outcome of every match. We always put in 110% of our effort to make it a beneficial and fun season," Erin Weiss proudly said.

Next year the tennis team should be even better prepared since the they are going to Hilton Head, South Carolina, to work out for the 1999 fall season.

SIDELINE SPIRIT

-Cheering for Football Victory-

The 1998 Kilbourne football cheerleaders worked hard to prepare for their first year of competing in the OCC's, which resulted in success. The girls accomplished this with hard practice and new skills learned at camp this year. The cheerleaders attended camp at Ohio State in the French Field House where they competed with other squads and learned new cheers and chants." And luckily, we survived the horrors of the dorm," explained Melanie McClew.

The girls also cheered hard for those football players, but the season just didn't end as victorious as we all had hoped. The cheerleaders worked just as hard as the football team and were out on that track practicing every day right along with the football players. They also got the crowd up and cheering at every game. "I don't think the fans have ever been so enthusiastic before. Thanks to the cheerleaders, the parents don't sit on their hands anymore," exclaimed Coach Gafford.

Hopefully, the fall squad will share the same comraderie next year, but losing five good seniors will make it difficult.

The team opened with a stunning victory over St. Charles, setting a standard for the many games to follow. After struggles in the past, the Wolves basketball team improved this year's record, finishing the season with a 10/12 win/loss record. Though the team suffered the loss of five seniors through graduation, the Wolves, nevertheless, proved their strength with a powerful offensive performance.

"The positive attitudes and leadership from the seniors helped this season run smoothly," said coach Bill Nest. Key players Dan Stockdale, Joe Chianese, and Ryan Sprague led the team through one of its most successful years. Dan Stockdale set a record for single season total rebounds at 210, and Joe Chianese broke old records with 266 career total rebounds. Chris Deppenhart received the OCC Scholar Athlete award. With the return of seven seniors, the team hopes for an even better season in the coming year.

NOTHIN' BUT NET

-A Game of Intensity-

Although their record was 5-20-1, the Lady Wolves demonstrated no sense of regret this season. The girls basketball team fought hard by putting forth their best effort in every game. Despite losing three seniors from the '98 team, coach Sheila Sferrella still felt vey confident in her players. "It's nice to start the season with players from last season. All have varstiy time, some for three years. It's nice to see some experience and maturity."

Being a young team might have set them back, but that wasn't an option for them. "Our team really came together and focused on what had to be done," said Miranda Walker.

They reflected their intensity, one of their main goals this year, when they played Brookhaven in the tournament. Even though they left the gym with yet another loss, they managed to leave Brookhaven with a dominant impression. Their closeness and strength on the court left a mark on everyone they played.

What helped them become a stronger team is that they became close off the court as well. "I'm so glad that we became friends. It let us play more with our heart, and it made the season twice as fun," said Stacey Todd.

Many players' hard work was well recognized. Becky Roeder, a junior, captured Second Team all OCC and Honorable Mention all State. Stacey Todd earned Honorable Mention OCC, and Megan Baloy studied her way to the Scholar Athlete award.

This year's team is just a preview of what's to come with up-coming seniors Becky Roeder, Jamie Martino, and Lindsay Hall. They should have a strong team in 1999-2000.

WINNING STROKES

-A Splish-Splash Season-

The Kilbourne boys swim team had great success, finishing off the competition and earning second place in the league. Now in their eighth season, the Wolves have established a standard of teamwork and dedication that has enabled them to have a smooth and successful season.

The Wolves worked hard, starting each day with early morning practices. Their diligent practicing made a difference. "Practices were really tough this year, but the hard work paid off in the end," says senior Jonathan Heller.

Hard to beat this year, our talented swimmers received numerous awards. "We had a great time, while breaking records and expectations," says junior John Bradley. The team finished second in the conference and second in the district, proving to others that the Wolves are still on top. Kyle Riddle, Tim Kelso, Chris Cook, and Greg Bowne earned the title of First Team all OCC. Also receiving individual awards were Mike Joyce, Link Staffen, Greg Bowne, Mark Cahill, Chris Cook and Kyle Riddle, all honored as district finalists. In an amazingly successful season, Mike Joyce, Link Staffen, Kyle Riddle, and Chris Cook also qualified as state finalists.

This year was one marked by unprecedented success thanks to the many talented individuals who dedicated their time to help the Wolves remain the leader of the pack. The younger members of the team say they are going to take this year's successes and use them as motivation for the season to come. The tradition of winning this team has achieved will urge them on.

MAKING A SPLASH

-Just Add Water-

The girls swimming and diving team had a winning season with first place in the OCC's, second in districts and twenty ninth in the state. They were able to accomplish this with the help of OCC champs, Abbe Stewart, Martina Erickson, Emily Moore, Michelle Inzetta, Jill Collins, Alison Campbell and Kristin Blum. Along with the OCC champs are the state finalists, Abbe Stewart, Emily Moore, Martina Erickson and Michelle Inzetta.

The closely knit team had a strong representation from each class. "This year was great. So many underclassmen were able to step up and meet the competition. I am so proud of everyone," stated Moira Joyce. Though most of the meets were at home, the girls team still did their traveling to three away meets. Waking up in the dark every morning and practicing at 5:45 A.M. is most surely worth an OCC title, and they got just that.

TAKE DOWN

-Two Advance to State Meet-

Hard work was the definite driving force behind the wrestling team's success. Coach Bukky explained, "The season was successful because of the hard work and dedication of the wrestlers." The Kilbourne wrestling team advanced six wrestlers to the district meet and had two tremendous wrestlers advance to the state meet, giving the program bragging rights.

Dan Salmon qualified for the state meet at the 171 weight class while Martin Smith qualified at the 152 weight class. Dan finished third in the state. Martin was knocked out early by two of the top wrestlers in Ohio.

The contributions of Dan Salmon and Martin Smith along with the three other seniors kept the excitement and energy high throughout the season. Coach Bukky believes all the seniors have been an excellent group. "They're going to be hard to replace."

Several wrestlers earned post season recognition. Dan Salmon was named the OCC Player of the Year along with First Team all OCC, First Team all Metro, and Super 12 of Ohio. Martin Smith was named First Team all OCC and Honorable Mention all Metro. Joe Huffman earned First Team all OCC; Tony Schonardt and Anthony Cautela received Second Team all OCC; and Dwyane Myers earned Honorable Mention.

Predictions for next year are high. Solid leadership from the juniors Tony Schonardt, Van Daniel, and Brad Schonauer will help contribute to next year's success. Together, they will create a team that is strong and willing to fight for victory.

DOIN' FLIPS

-Superior Performance-

Despite being young this year, the 1999 girls gymnastics team had an outstanding season. They achieved their goals with a combination of hard work and determination. "The girls were determined. They improved with each meet, and I was very proud of their performance," explained coach Cindy Fushimi.

Reaching states was not a main focus this year so the team had the opportunity to focus more on individual achievements. The level of expertise in competition was superior. Their best performance occurred in a duel meet against Dublin Coffman and Upper Arlington. "That was by far our best meet, but we competed with our hearts in all of them," responded Tiffany Miller.

As a result of working well together, the team earned the District Spark Plug award. They were recognized not only for their team spirit but also for their athletic abilities. Tiffany Bunting, Lisa Loyd, Tiffany Miller, and Rohini Vagarali earned district titles. Tiffany Bunting and Lisa Loyd also captured state titles. Rohini Vagarali studied her way to the OCC Scholar Athlete award and the OHSAA Scholar Athlete award.

The hard work and dedication of the gymnasts will strongly affect next year's success. No doubt about how they will perform: these determined athletes will contribute significantly to the team in the future.

SLAP SHOT

-Infant Hockey Team Matures into Varsity Sport-

Initiating a first year program can be a difficult task, but a new coach with a new team is a good start for an infant program. The Worthington Kilbourne Ice Hockey Team finished with a 5-20-1 overall record.

The Wolves hockey team committed themselves to hard work and dedication to a first year program. Driving twenty minutes to practice and paying large sums of money to participate in the ice hockey program were hurdles that the players skated by.

The hockey team felt the most satisfaction with the defeat of Thomas Worthington in the first round of the state tournament. However, ending the season with a 14-0 loss to Toledo St. John's knocked them out of the competition. They hope for even more success next year.

"We do lose key players this year, but we have a lot of talent returning," said coach Todd Baker. Kilbourne will lose the bulk of its scoring power by graduating three seniors: Josh Ellis, Craig Ullmann, and Jason Lester. Together, Josh Ellis and Craig Ullmann made 33 goals and had over 28 assists.

"I'm glad I got the chance to play on a first year team. Although our record didn't show it, we had a lot of talent, and I'm going to miss it next year," said senior Craig Ullmann. The team has high expectations for next year and hopes summer workouts will help them reach their goals.

LET'S GET FIRED UP

-Spirit Hits the Courts-

The 1999 winter cheerleading squad had a very busy season. They gave up many weekends to cheer the boys basketball team to victories. The main reason why these girls did so well is because of their closeness and the strong friendships they bulit. "We had a great season. We all clicked very well and became great friends," commented Cyndi Savage.

The cheerleaders succeeded in encouraging the basketball boys and firing up the crowd. The main focus for the girls is to make the game more exciting for everyone, and they did just that. Their cheers are oriented for crowd involvement.

No matter what the outcome of the game, the girls managed to have fun. Rachel Green claimed, "We had a fun season and our squad worked well together. I am looking forward to next year."

The cheerleaders also performed in the OCC competition. They put forth great effort and spent many hours of preparation for the event. The girls were pleased with their third place finish. Even though the squad will miss senior Katy Leininger, everyone is excited for the 2000 winter season.

INTO THE NET

-Shooting to Score-

The 1999 boys lacrosse team enjoyed their success this season. This year was a first for an all-freshman team and a winning season for J.V. The varsity team defeated Thomas for the second year in a row. "We played a lot of really great games. I can't wait for next year!" Kyle Turano exclaimed. The boys were finally able to make it to the "A" bracket of the MSLA. The players accomplished goals that were previously unattained.

One reason why the team did so well was because of the talented captains, Bryan Basom, Steve Block, Ryan Sprague, and Mike Wheaten. Individual honors in the MSLA were earned by Matt Kirkpatrick, First Team Attack; Steve Block, First Team Midfield; Ryan Sprague, Second Team Midfield; Kyle Turano and Mike Morris, Second Team Defense; Mike Shirey, Second Team L.P.; Bryan Basom and Mike Wheaton, HM Attack; and Dustin Willis, HM Goal. OHSLA awarded honors to Ryan Sprague and Steve Block, First Team Midfield; Kyle Turano, First Team Defense; Bryan Basom, Second Team Attack; Mike Morris, HM Defense; Mike Wheaton and Matt Kirkpatrick, Third Team Attack. Steve Block won Division One Midfielder of the Year, and Mike Wheaton earned Academic All-American.

The record of thirteen wins to eight losses reflected the team's skill. "We did well, and I hope we do even better next year. It should be a pretty good season, or at least I hope it will be," commented Mike Morris. The main goal for the boys next year is to beat UA and Scioto. With the improvements the team has shown, this shouldn't be a very hard task to accomplish.

STICKIN' WITH IT

-Making Long Shots-

Struggling a little as the girls seemed to be re-learning the game, the 1999 girls lacrosse team ended their play with a fair season. They tried hard and did their best, but the scoreboard did not reflect the team's talent and ability. The girls' record was three wins to ten losses.

Individual honors on the team went to Stephanie Allen, First Team all OCC; Lindsey Groves, Second Team all OCC; and Kim Myers, Second Team all OCC. Kim Myers and Stephanie Allen also participated in the state level senior All-Star game.

The season ended with a 10-9 loss to host Dublin Coffman in the first round of the Central Ohio Regional Tournament. Less than a week before, the Wolves lost 7-6 to Coffman in the regular-season finale. "I think we made the corrections we wanted to," coach Troutner said. "The biggest thing was our shot selection. We ended up shooting just under 50 percent, which more than doubled our percentage from the first meeting."

This extremely close team is losing many talented players this year. They will miss seniors Elysabeth Shelton, Kim Myers, Stephanie Allen, Abby Stierman, Abbe Stewart, and Alicia Sims. "We all were so close. We're all going to miss each other a lot. I'm glad I had such a great experience with lacrosse this season," exclaimed Lisa Nagy.

SERVE UP A STORM

-A Victorious Year-

After the loss of key seniors, Jayan Rammohan, Ron Chattergee, and Shane Kerr, the 1999 tennis team faced what could have been a difficult season. Captains Drew McGill and Matt Larson stepped up to lead the team through the difficult adjustments. With only two returning seniors, the team filled a number of positions with young talent.

Even with untested players, the tennis team began with high expectations and with the hope of winning both the league and tournament this year. "The team set their goals early and went out to do everything they could to make sure they happened," said Metzmaier. Opening the year with a long streak of wins sent the team's morale flying and helped the eight varsity players and eight JV players form a close bond. Overall, the Wolves were happy with their performance, finishing the year with an 11/5 win/loss record.

"A good combination of senior leadership and skilled and competitive underclassmen led to the success of the season," said JV coach Gatewood. Though losing two of its key players to graduation, the team is hopeful for next year. A combination of the incoming talent and a strong junior varsity team gives the Wolves the chance to win the conference title.

SWING BATTER

-Diamond Determination-

After losing six fantastic seniors last year, the 1999 softball team didn't know what to expect for this year. Captains Jaime Martino, Ashley Shoemaker, and Leslie Vetter stepped up to lead the team, playing perhaps the toughest schedule yet, through a rough season. Despite their best efforts on the field, the team ended with a 10-15 record. Their losses did not discourage them, however. The girls kept a positive attitude throughout the season.

"We were close but not where we wanted to be. The girls set high expectations for themselves, and that may have set us back," said coach Bob Lee. Even though they did not go as far as they had hoped, they came together as a team and fought hard for the entire year.

"I was very proud of what we accomplished individually. It was a great season to remember," said senior Karla Macrae.

Individual honors went to Ashley Shoemaker who earned First Team all OCC and most valuable player from the team. Karla Macrae was honored most improved from the team. Leslie Vetter earned Honorable Mention all OCC and Vicki Rehkopf studied her way to the Scholar Athlete award.

The softball team is looking forward to a promising future in 2000. With many returning players, only good things can come.

Comprised mostly of seniors, this year's team had great leadership and lots of talent which helped them though a difficult season. With the addition of new head coach Mario Paliotto, the players faced uncertain times but finished with an amazing final record of 15/11.

"I could not have coached a better group of young men," said coach Paliotto of this year's varsity team. The Wolves worked well together on the field as they faced a difficult schedule. The boys gave one hundred percent in every game. Their dedication showed in their opener against Delaware Hayes, which they won 13/3. Unfortunately, the season ended in a disappointing loss in the tournament to Marion Harding, preventing the boys from winning the much coveted conference title.

"Towards the end we started to come together as a team, and I think we had a successful year," said Justin Dauer of his senior year on the team. Coach Paliotto is hopeful for next year's team even with the loss through graduation of so many seniors.

With an abundance of fresh talent next year, the Wolves hope to capture the title. Congratulations on a great season, and good luck next year, Wolves!

SERVING HIGH

-Dedication and Desire-

Anticipating yet another great year, the men's volleyball team ended with a record of nineteen wins and only six losses. With so many experienced players returning, the team had a head start on its season. New leadership stepped up, and each player portrayed a sense of determination and dedication on the court. "The team really played at their highest level at all times," explained Brian Rousey.

As underdogs, they faced many favored opponents on a tough schedule this year. Losing to Dublin Coffman in the OCC finals only triggered a come back and encouraged the guys to fight harder. They stomped all over Coffman in the reginal semi-finals. It was a huge victory for them. "We were determined to fight for the win, and it paid off," said Jim Cornett.

The team's offensive and defensive skills increased tremendously. They demonstrated new talents every day on the court. Jim Cornett earned regional and First Team all OCC along with Brian Rousey who earned Second Team Regional and Second Team all OCC. Justin Wilson captured Honorable Mention all OCC and Ryan Mills studied his way to the Scholar Athlete award.

The mens volleyball team has a reputation of displaying strength through hard work with determined athletes. Their success can only continue into next season with leading seniors, Justin Wilson, Peter Wilson and Mohamad Ali.

A RECORD SEASON

-Stepping Up When It Counts-

This year the girls' track team finished the season 1-4 in dual track meets, fourth at the O.C.C. meet and seventh at districts. Consisting mostly of freshmen and sophomores with only six seniors, the athletes still enjoyed some success.

The goals for the season focused on having a positive attitude and developing physical strength. Coach Chrispin said, "The team's performance in the Worthington Invitational and the Tiffin Relays was the result of hard work, not only in practice but in the weight room as well.

Seven athletes broke school records this season: Crystal Winfrey, the 100m and 200m dash; Lisa Lloyd, the high jump; Bethany Gaskill, the 3200m run, 1600m run, and 800m run; and Crystal Winfrey, Erica Basinger, Lisa Lloyd, and Diana Lafyatis in the 4x100m relay. All the girls worked to achieve their best, and most met their personal bests.

Crystal Winfrey, Erica Basinger, Diana Lafyatis, Lisa Lloyd, Megan Baloy, and Bethany Gaskill all advanced to the regional meet; however, Bethany was the only one to advance to the state meet after winning the regional with a mile time of 5:04.

Goals for next year include continued strength training in the off season, participating in other sports, and increasing the number of participants.

Competing in the 300 hurdles, Tiffany Bunting makes her way over the hurdle with determination and desire to reach the finish line.

ON THE FAST TRACK

-Pushing It to the Limit-

The boys track and field team had a very successful season this year by spending a lot of hard work and long, tiring practices outside on the track. "This year's track team really improved, scoring marks at each big meet and finishing their dual meets undefeated. These accomplishments earned the respect of area coaches who seeded this young squad fifth of thirty-eight teams in the central district," stated Coach Chrispin.

The track team couldn't have made it all the way with out the help of a few star players who qualified as meet champions. At the Trotwood Madison Relays, Joe Craig won the discus and Emanual Glason, Scott Robison, Robby Rouault, and John Warner took home the trophy for the 3200M relay. Robby Rouault won the 300M hurdles at the Dublin Invitational and the Bill Krause Memorial Relays. Eric Boulware, Todd Boulware, Emanuel Glason and Robby Rouault won the 3200M relay at the Worthington Invitational. At the Ohio Capital Conference, Robby Rouault took home another 300M victory and Scott Robison left with a victory in the 3200M run.

Two school records were set this year: one by Robby at 38.8 in the 300M and the other by Obi Chukwumah, Darren Hicks, Robby Rouault and Kyle Smith who clocked in at 3:25.4 in the 1600M. This was a great season for the guys. "For now, stick together and dedicate yourselves to becoming better athletes," urged Coach Chrispin.

STUDENT OF THE MONTH

Purpose

To honor students, the Academic Boosters organization sponsors The Student of the Month recognition program. Students are selected who display qualities of leadership, good citizenship, positive attitude, effort, academic improvement and/or excellent overall performance. Students of the Month are nominated by teachers in each academic department of the school. This is a significant accomplishment since only a very few select group of students receive the honor each month.

SOCRATIC SOCIETY

Purpose

To honor faculty, staff, and students, faculty members nominate students and colleagues as candidates for Socratic Society. Students who qualify are distinguished learners who demonstrate a positive attitude, display exemplary citizenship, concentrate efforts towards an improved academic or behavorial performance, and maintain a helpful and cooperative spirit when working with others in our school community.

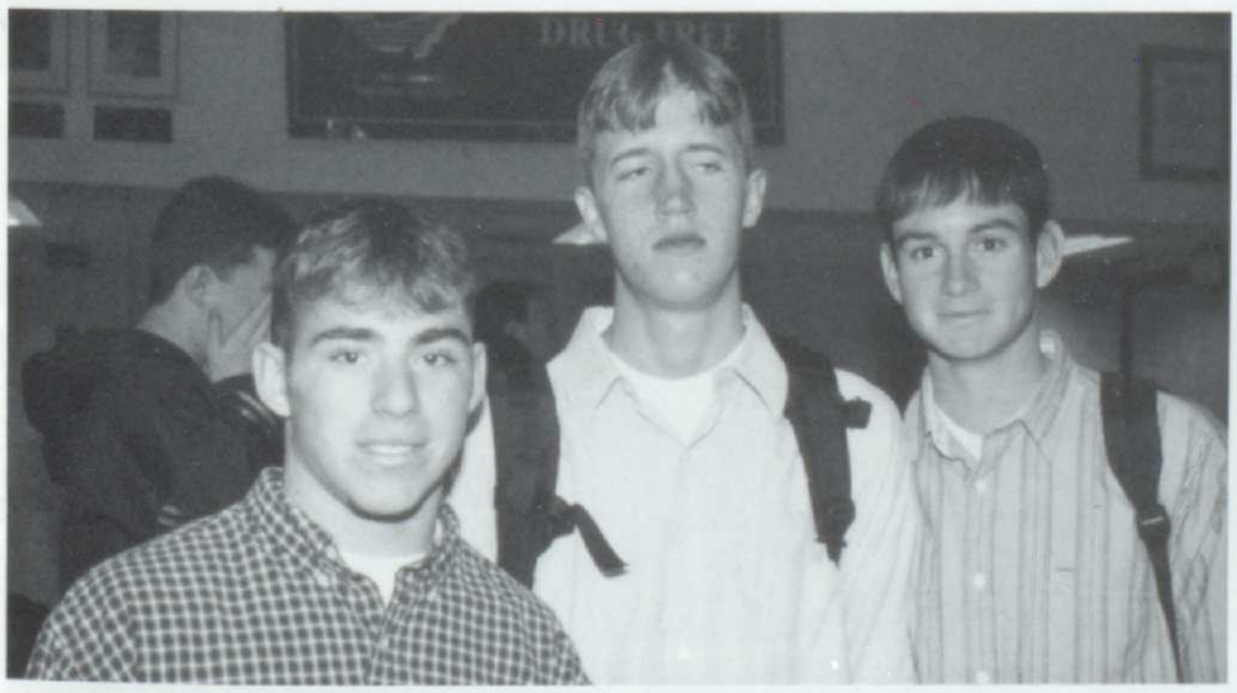
Bubbling with excitement, Mrs. Kucinich-Horn pins Evana Stanonik's Socratic Society badge. It seems as if Mrs. Kucinich-Horn herself has been inducted.

Surprised at their recent induction into the Socratic Society, (left to right) Jess Moore and Robert Hall seem pleased. What else could you expect from great guys like these two?

Amazed and astonished with each other's intelligence, (left to right) Mrs. Graves, Amanda Graves and close friend Rian Orders can't help but smile. These ladies have a lot to be proud of.



What a wonderful accomplishment for Mrs. McElligott's exchange student to have such a great honor. Katrin Warnecke, you should be very pleased with yourself.

It seems these men aren't quite sure what Socratic Society is. Hopefully, (left to right) Joe Huffman, Brendan Luft, Matt Larsen will soon understand what a great honor they have just been awarded.

Justin O'Neill, (left to right)Dustin Meadows, Clint Meadows, and Tony Schonhardt feel like studs because they have just been inducted into Socratic Society. Watch out, boys, all the women are going to be swarming your way.

"What you keep to yourself, you lose; what you give to others, you keep forever."
-Alex Munthe

Even if you have a bad memory, you'll never forget the faces of Morgan Brown or Jessica Mosier. Making an award-winning appearance in The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail, Morgan and Jessica act their hearts out on the main stage. In a few years we could be applauding these talented young actors as they walk up the steps to accept an Oscar. If you're really nice to them, they might include you in their speech!

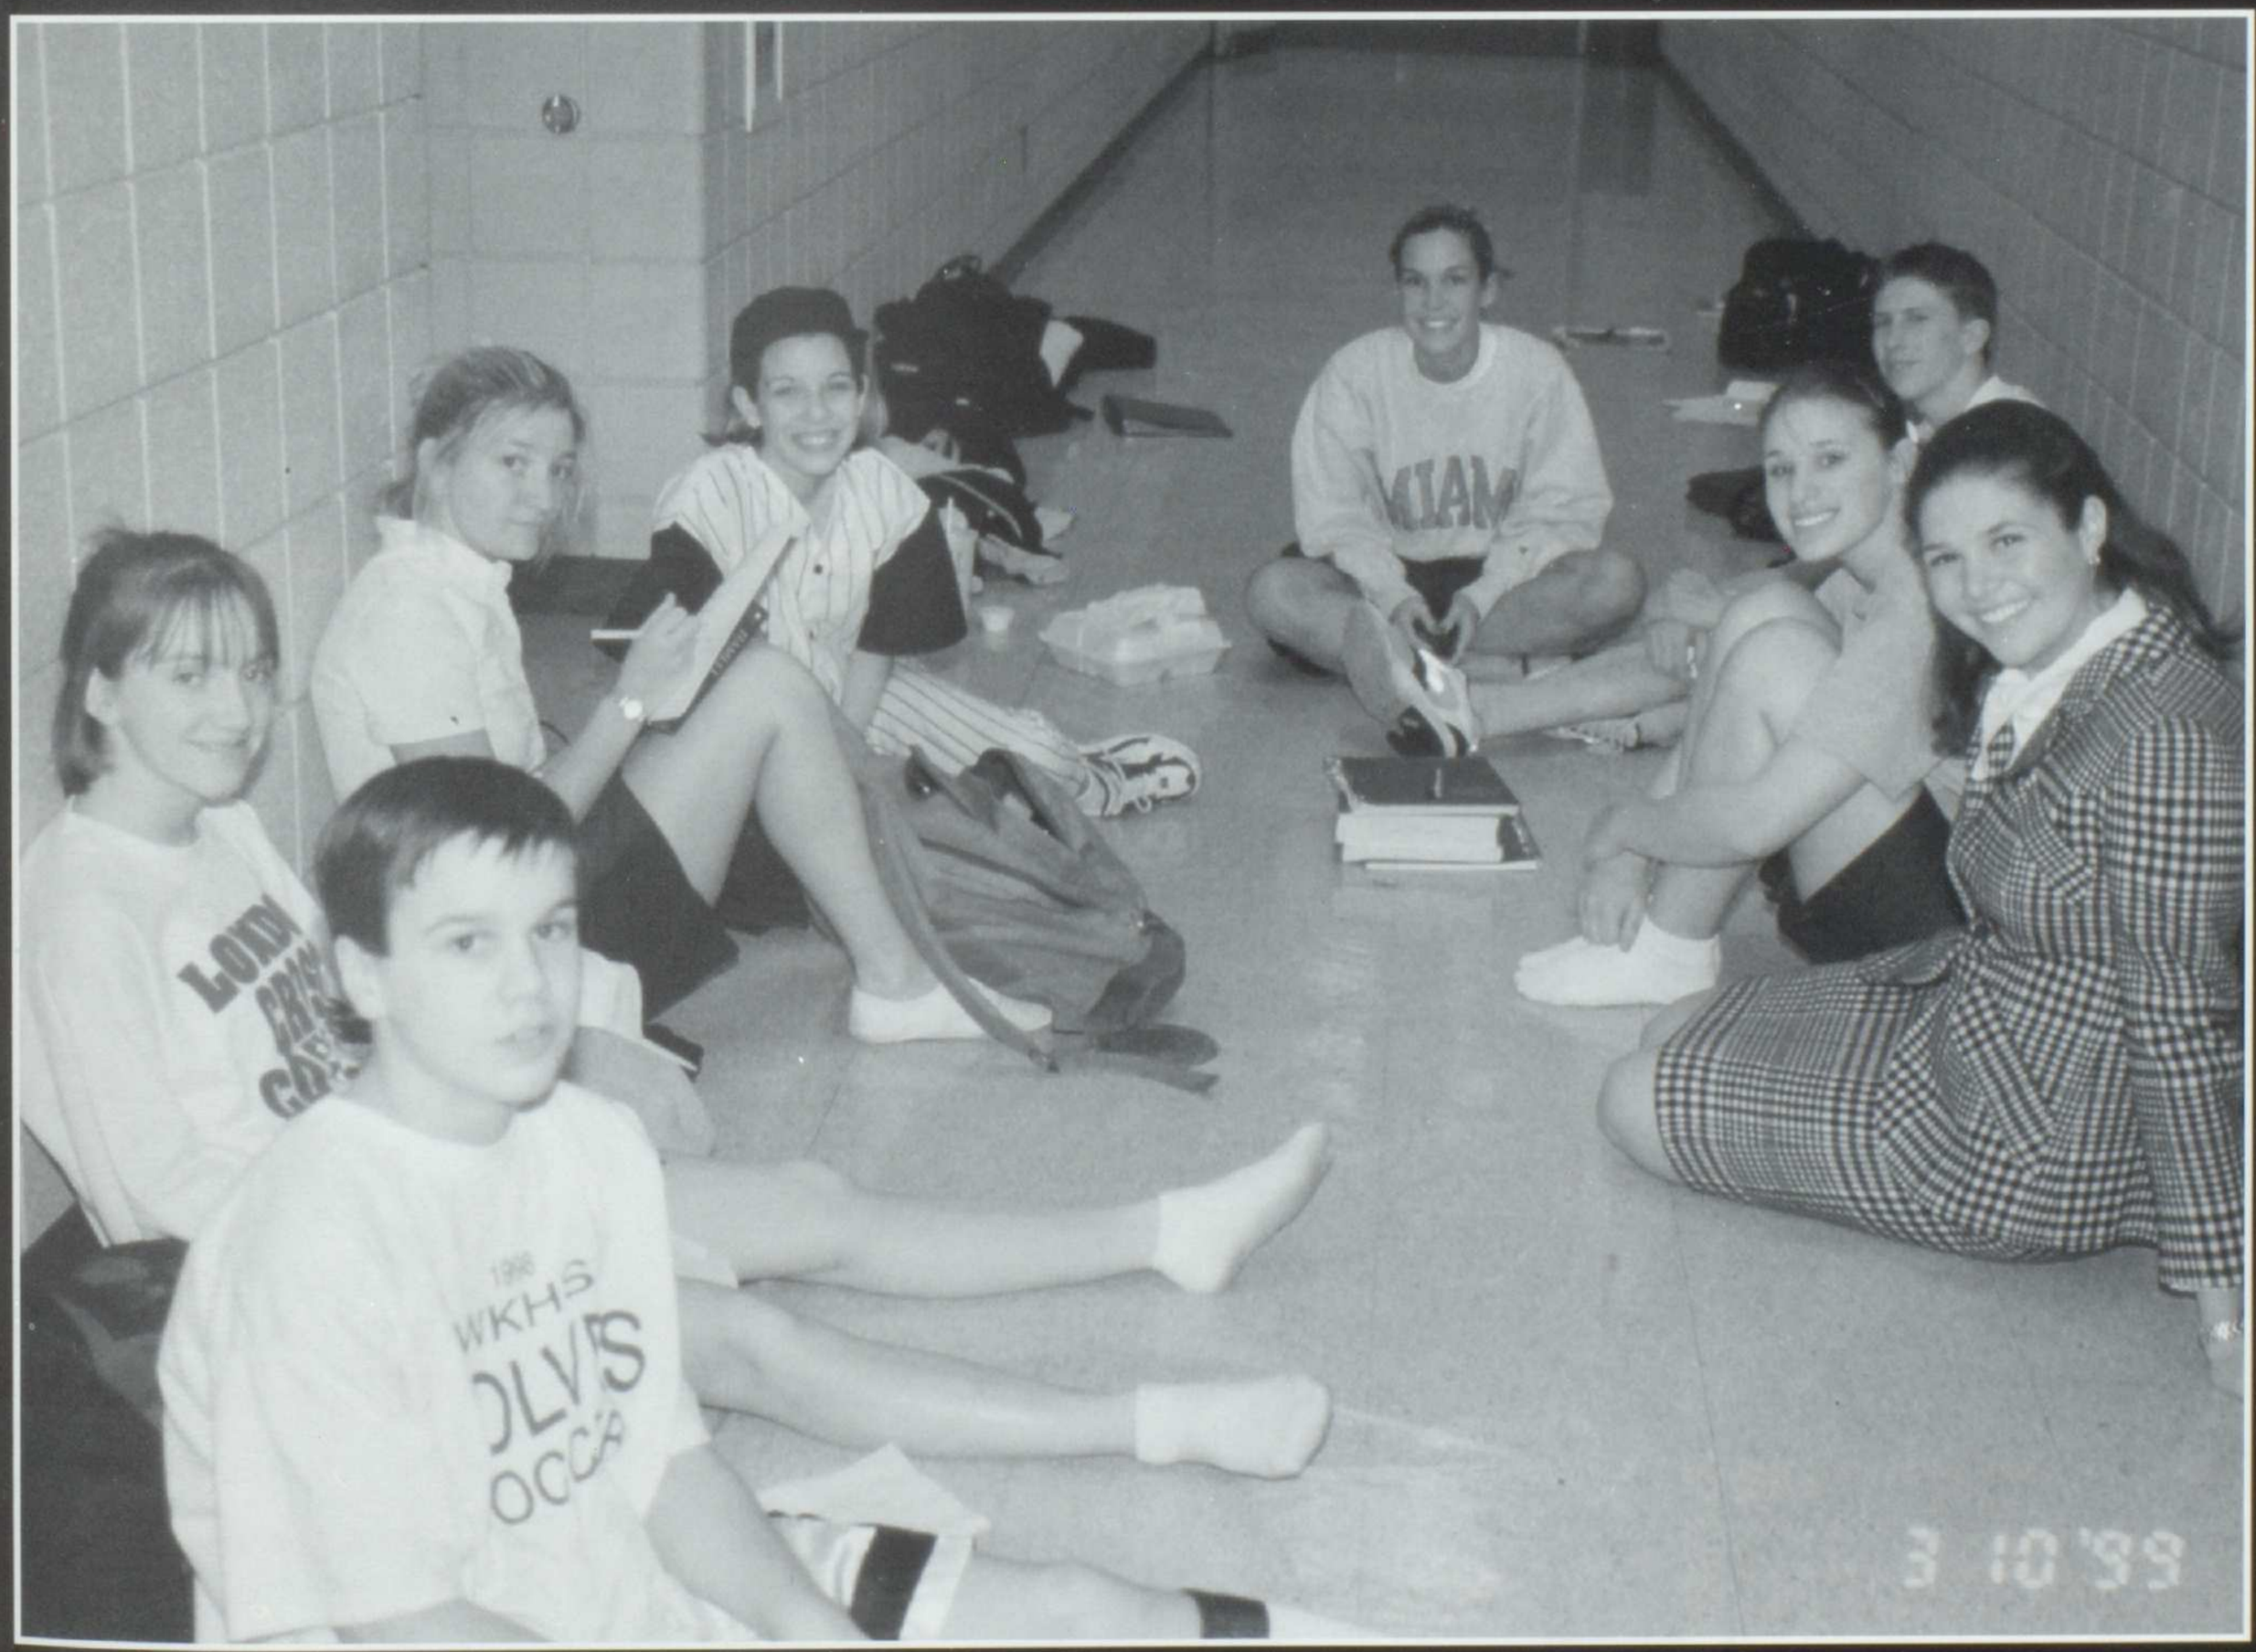
Again this year, our bands have been successful in competition as well as in entertaining the students and faculty at assemblies and sporting events. This success is due to the hard-working, dedicated and talented young people like (Front Row, left to right) Ben Stewart, Brady Oxender, Tony Davis, (Row 2) Jamie Mowery, and Sara Barker . Although they must take it very seriously, everbody needs some time to cut loose and go crazy. The pep rallies help to show off the band participants' spirit and goofiness.

Standing outside of their hotel rooms in Orlando, Florida, dance team members (left to right) Stephanie Orders, Margot Inzetta, Sonya Tomazic, and Stephanie Mosel gear up for the big competition. Every year the dance team travels to Florida to compete in a nationwide competition. This year as well as last the team brought home the bronze in the dance without props category. We could be looking at future dancers for Janet Jackson. What do you think, girls?



Thanks to the long, strenuous hours of work and practice put in by the cast and crew, this year's musical production of Damn Yankees was one of the best ever. (Counter clockwise from right) Lindsay Broadfoot, Rebecca Kovacs, Joel Estes, Katie O'Brien, Alicia DiMarco, Kori Billiat, Kelly Spiers, and Stephen Chesnut go over lines and discuss ideas for props. Working with a close-knit group for that long must have made for the development of some pretty great friendships.

Michael Reiss and Jon Tewart (left to right) are defVinately seeing different plays on the field. Michael seems shocked at the play that just occurred while Jon is obviously excited that the team pulled it off.

Seeming more interested in the Wolves football team than he does about playing his instrument is Andrew Sturges. We are hoping it is not his turn to be playing.

Majorette Shelly Given leads the Steppin' Wolves during half time. Shelly Looks like she is holding on to those batons tight so she doesn't drop them. Great job!

Fluffing Eric Van Holton's hair before he goes back out to the field is Kim Carvey. Eric, you look great. Don't worry about your hair.

Singing the National Anthem proudly before the game begins is Traci Davis. It is easy to see that her concentration is deep as she stares at the flag.

The Importance of Being Earnest

Have you ever fancied "bunburying"? Have you ever invented another persona to enable you to escape your relatives' clutches? If you have or wanted to, then you have a lot in common with John Worthing, J.P. and Algernon Moncrieff, our two heroes. If you have ever tried to form an attachment to a young man that others may think unworthy, then you have a lot in common with our heroines, the Hon. Gwendolen Fairfax and Cecily Cardrew .

Take a mother, Lady Bracknell, a prim governess with a very romantic streak who is anxious to marry her daughter off to a suitable "match." The country parson, Rev. Canon Chasuble, D.D., needs persuading that he is indeed a good catch. Servants Merriman and Lane know they are exploited but are better off than their peers. Now you have The Importance of Being Earnest.

Add to that some of the best loved lines in English literature, a little confusion and a great deal of fun. Written and performed for the first time around a hundred years ago in Victorian London, it retains a freshness and rebellion against conventional order clear to see even in these liberal days. In fact, the play went against society so much that in old days, a male played Lady Bracknell and used a female pseudonym. So close was this play to the original production, that even though Jason Parrish played Lady Bracknell, he is listed as Sharon Jaspir in the program for the play! Beau Blanchard who played Rev. Chasuble enjoyed his participation; he said, "It was a fun and interesting experience."

Laundry & Bourbon

Laundry and Bourbon is a Texas comedy by James McLure. Staged on a back porch, Elizabeth is attempting to fold a week's worth of laundry that she has neglected because of the recent escapade of her husband Roy who has left and has yet to return. The weather is scorching hot, not the ideal environment for gossip, but Hattie, Elizabeth's best friend, doesn't mind a bit and blows in to catch up on the latest.

The dialogue, a collaboration of male bashing and flashbacks to the teenage years, is brutally interrupted when the girls receive an unexpected visit from Amy Lee Fullernoy, new money so-to-speak. Amy Lee offers her load of gossip and enjoys a bourbon and coke with the ladies. Things heat up even more on the porch when Amy Lee begins to attack Hattie, and the scene turns into an all-out brawl that senior Vicki Rehkopf, playing Elizabeth, has to literally "get in between." The day isn't complete though until Amy Lee leaves her mark in Hattie's shoe after getting sick from a combination of the drinks and the hiccups.

Senior Melissa Long took Hattie's character to a whole new level and helped senior Bethany Colilla, as Amy Lee, make the show as much of a comedy as the writer ever intended. They worked through several set-backs to create an absolutely outstanding southern comedy with a bit of a twist.

The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail

The theater department quickly followed with their third performance, The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail. This piece was the first production performed on the mainstage as well as the first true drama of the season. This heart-felt show chronicles the early life of Henry David Thoreau, the great philosopher and existentialist. The setting is the 1840's as Thoreau refuses to pay his taxes. He knows that the tax is supporting the ongoing war with Mexico, a war criticized by many as an excuse for the president to expand the country's borders.

From inside his jail cell, Thoreau relives much of his life that has brought him to his present position. Through his mind and the minds of his friends and family, a stunning representation of Thoreau's life is portrayed. Climatic events such as the death of Henry's brother John, his friendship with Ralph "Waldo" Emerson, and his interaction with his family occur as Thoreau "transcends" his present state to travel back to the moments that shaped his life.

This fantastic ensemble cast made this historical play enjoyable, entertaining, and educational. Even today, Thoreau and Emerson give us something to think about.

Learned Ladies

Learned Ladies is a delightful play full of exciting twists and turns. Famous French playwright Moliere wrote the original version in 1659, but the cast performed a translated and modernized adaption by Freyda Thomas. The 1920's setting called for flapper-style dresses and music. The story tells of Clitandre, who, after being rejected by Armande, falls in love with her sister Henriette. The two young lovers wish to marry, but Clitandre must first gain the approval of Henriette's overbearing mother Philamente and wacky Aunt Belise. These two, however, disdain marriage and hope that Henriette can instead learn to love philosophy as they do. Philamente creates a scheme to marry Henriette to her favorite poet, Trissotin. The hilarious climax comes in the last scene when the play reveals Trissotin is a fraud who is only interested in the family's wealth. Henriette and Clitandre may now marry, thus resolving the family conflict.

Entirely written in rhyme, this play was especially interesting to watch and difficult to perform. Despite limited rehearsal time, the cast pulled together and presented a great show. On the last night of the show, they were adjudicated and earned the honor of performing at the state thespian conference later in the year. The conference went well, an enjoyable experience for our thespians. Four stars to the cast of The Learned Ladies!

Littrle Shop of Horrors

"Don't feed the plants." The main theme of the first musical theatre production of the year, Little Shop of Horrors by Howard Ashman, fits quite well. The story begins as Seymour, the sweep and mop boy for old Mr. Mushnik's flower shop, puts Audrey II, a strange plant named after a young woman who also works at Mushnik's, on display to help bolster the failing business' sales. It works; however, Audrey II, as Seymour finds, has a taste for human blood. As the plant grows larger and larger through feedings by a bandaged-wearing Seymour, it requires more substantial food. The plant convinces Seymour to kill others for meals. The first to go is Orin, Audrey's abusive boyfriend, followed by Mr. Mushnik. Seymour and Audrey fall in love soon afterward, and Seymour decides that the plant must go. Eventually, Seymour feeds a mortally wounded Audrey, by her own request, to Audrey II. Seymour then realizes the evil plant's intentions for world domination and dives into the plants pod wielding a machete. His attempt at salvation fails. . . .

Though the plot is rather grim, the up-beat music, wonderful voices, and unparalleled acting make this an incredibly entertaining show. It's an amazing experience to see a six-foot-long puppet that can really eat and swallow actors. Snow days presented obstacles to overcome during production, but extra rehearsals and hard work paid off when the time came to perform. Ask anyone involved, and they'll tell you this was one of their favorite shows ever.

"What is this?" questions Jason Parish of Joel Estes.

"Hey, Seymour, have I got a deal for you" says Brad Marquis to Joel Estes.

"Just knock, okay" Jason Parish tells Joel Estes .

Damn Yankees

The theater department opened the second semester with another mainstage musical, the popular dark comedy, Damn Yankees, the story of the 1959 Washington Senators' miraculous winning season. Senior Joel Kovacs played the role of Joe Boyd, the self-proclaimed greatest fan of the Senators, despite the obvious discontent of his wife, Meg. Boyd is positive that if the Senators only had one home run hitter, they would finally have all the tools to defeat those "Damn Yankees." Boyd gets his wish in the strange form of a visit from the mysterious Mr. Applegate, played by sophomore Jason Parrish. It is only later that Boyd discovers Applegate's true identity, for Mr. Applegate is the devil himself. He has a proposition for Joe, offering to make him the greatest baseball player who ever lived. At stake is the Devil's usual bargaining chip, Joe's soul. Boyd can hardly refuse as he agrees to Applegate's fiendish demands and forsakes his loving wife at home. Boyd goes through a magical transformation into Joe Hardy, a much younger, more athletic version of Joe's former self. Hardy and Applegate go off to Washington, where Joe hopes to land a spot in the Senators' dugout.

Once in Washington, Hardy and Applegate encounter the struggling ball club, led by manager Benny Van Buren. Although it takes some convincing, Van Buren can not refuse Hardy's powerful bat and skilled fielding ability. Just like that, the Senators are on a winning streak. Soon, the devil's fiendish plot comes into play. He is out to wreck Joe, and to accomplish this task, he enlists the help of his number-one homewrecker, Lola. At the same time, Applegate piques the curiosity of ambitious reporter Gloria Thorpe. He starts a rumor pertaining to the possibility fo Joe's seedy past, which of course is balderdash. Gloria sparks an investigation and soon everyone is questioning the credibility of this new-found hero. Will the Senators win the pennant? Will Joe ever get back to his loving wife, Meg? Will Applegate's evil plans succeed? All of these questions racked the brains of the numerous students, family members, and friends who attended this remarkable performance. In the end, all the questions were answered and everyone had a fabulous time.

The Bold Soprano

On April 17th and 23rd, absurdity and acting met when Worthington Kilbourne Theatre Repertory presented The Bald Soprano by Eugene Ionesco. The small but talented cast presented a story which chronicles an evening in the Smith household after dinner. They are visited by the Martins who, while the Smiths are out of the room, become convinced that they have met each other before. Later that evening they are visited by the fire chief of the city who becomes depressed when he learns that there are no fires needing to be put out. Instead, he proceeds to tell several stories to the families. After he leaves, the Martins and the Smiths become involved in a shouting match that ends in meaningless babble.

The play had a Seinfeldesque theme, often revolving around nothing. The conversations jumped from one topic to another, often contradicting the past conversations. "It was a fun show to perform," said junior Steve Goodall, who played Mr. Martin. "The audience seemed to really get into the performance. I'm glad I was given the opportunity to perform in such a great show."

By Mike Diamond and Michelle Inzetta

"I'm your little firehouse," states Athena Pogany to Nolan Saunders.

Cast

Mr. Smith.....Brad Marquis
Mrs. Smith.....Melissa Long
The Maid.....Athena Pogany
Mr. Martin.....Steve Goodall
Mrs. Martin.....Kavita Mudan
The Firechief.....Nolan Saunders

"It's settled then. I'm going to recite you a poem," announces Athena Pogany (standing) to (left to right) Melissa Long, Steve Goodall, Brad Marquis, and Nolan Saunders.

"It seems to me that I have met you before," thinks Steve Goodall and Kavita Mudan.

Waiting for Godot

Kilbourne thespians presented one of theater's most studied plays, Waiting For Godot. The plot centers around two men, Vladamir and Estragon who are unable to leave this one spot, convinced that if they leave, they will miss this "Godot." After a time, a man approaches them, holding another man on a leash. Pozzo, as he arrogantly proclaims to be, is going to the market to try sell Lucky, his servant, and decides to stop and converse with Vladimir and Estragon. Eventually, Lucky is allowed to speak and is soundly beaten as a result of his grammatically incorrect thoughts. A boy comes to tell the two that Godot will not be coming today; he will be by tomorrow. The next day, Estragon and Vladimir are still waiting, glued to this one spot as though their only purpose in life is to see Godot. They again meet with Pozzo and Lucky, who are not remembered. A boy again comes and tells them that Godot will not be coming, but definitely tomorrow. Vladimir and Estragon resolve to hang themselves, but they abandon the thought as they have no rope.

As strange as the plot sounds, many in the cast thought that performing this show would be very difficult. However, with few cast members, the actors could spend much more time molding and perfecting characters to optimum levels. All in all, Waiting for Godot was one of the finest perfomances of the year.

We Were Young That Year

We go through life meeting new people, and we never know when we will meet our first true love. Andy, a delivery boy for the Deluxe Cleaners, meets Nancy, a new girl in town visiting for the summer. Need I say more? The season's agenda falls into place and the seed of love is planted for the two young lovers. Nancy spends the summer trying to become popular for Andy, our football hero, and they take turns trying to understand one another. Through movies, truck rides, dances and other such nonsense, we see a friendship and love blossom into a beautiful new beginning.

Linworth Introduction Pages 150-151

Linworth Candids Pages 152-153

Don't look so stunned guys! I know (left to right) Phil Geier and Trent Luckey are just admiring his moves, but I'm sure that if they practice enough, they can be just as good as Jason Mauer.

Nervous seniors, Kristi Pfund, Anna Rikoshinskaya, and Alaina Niebauer, anxiously wait back stage before the graduation ceremony. What a proud moment this must be as these three realize all that they have accomplished in the past thirteen years of school.

Linworth

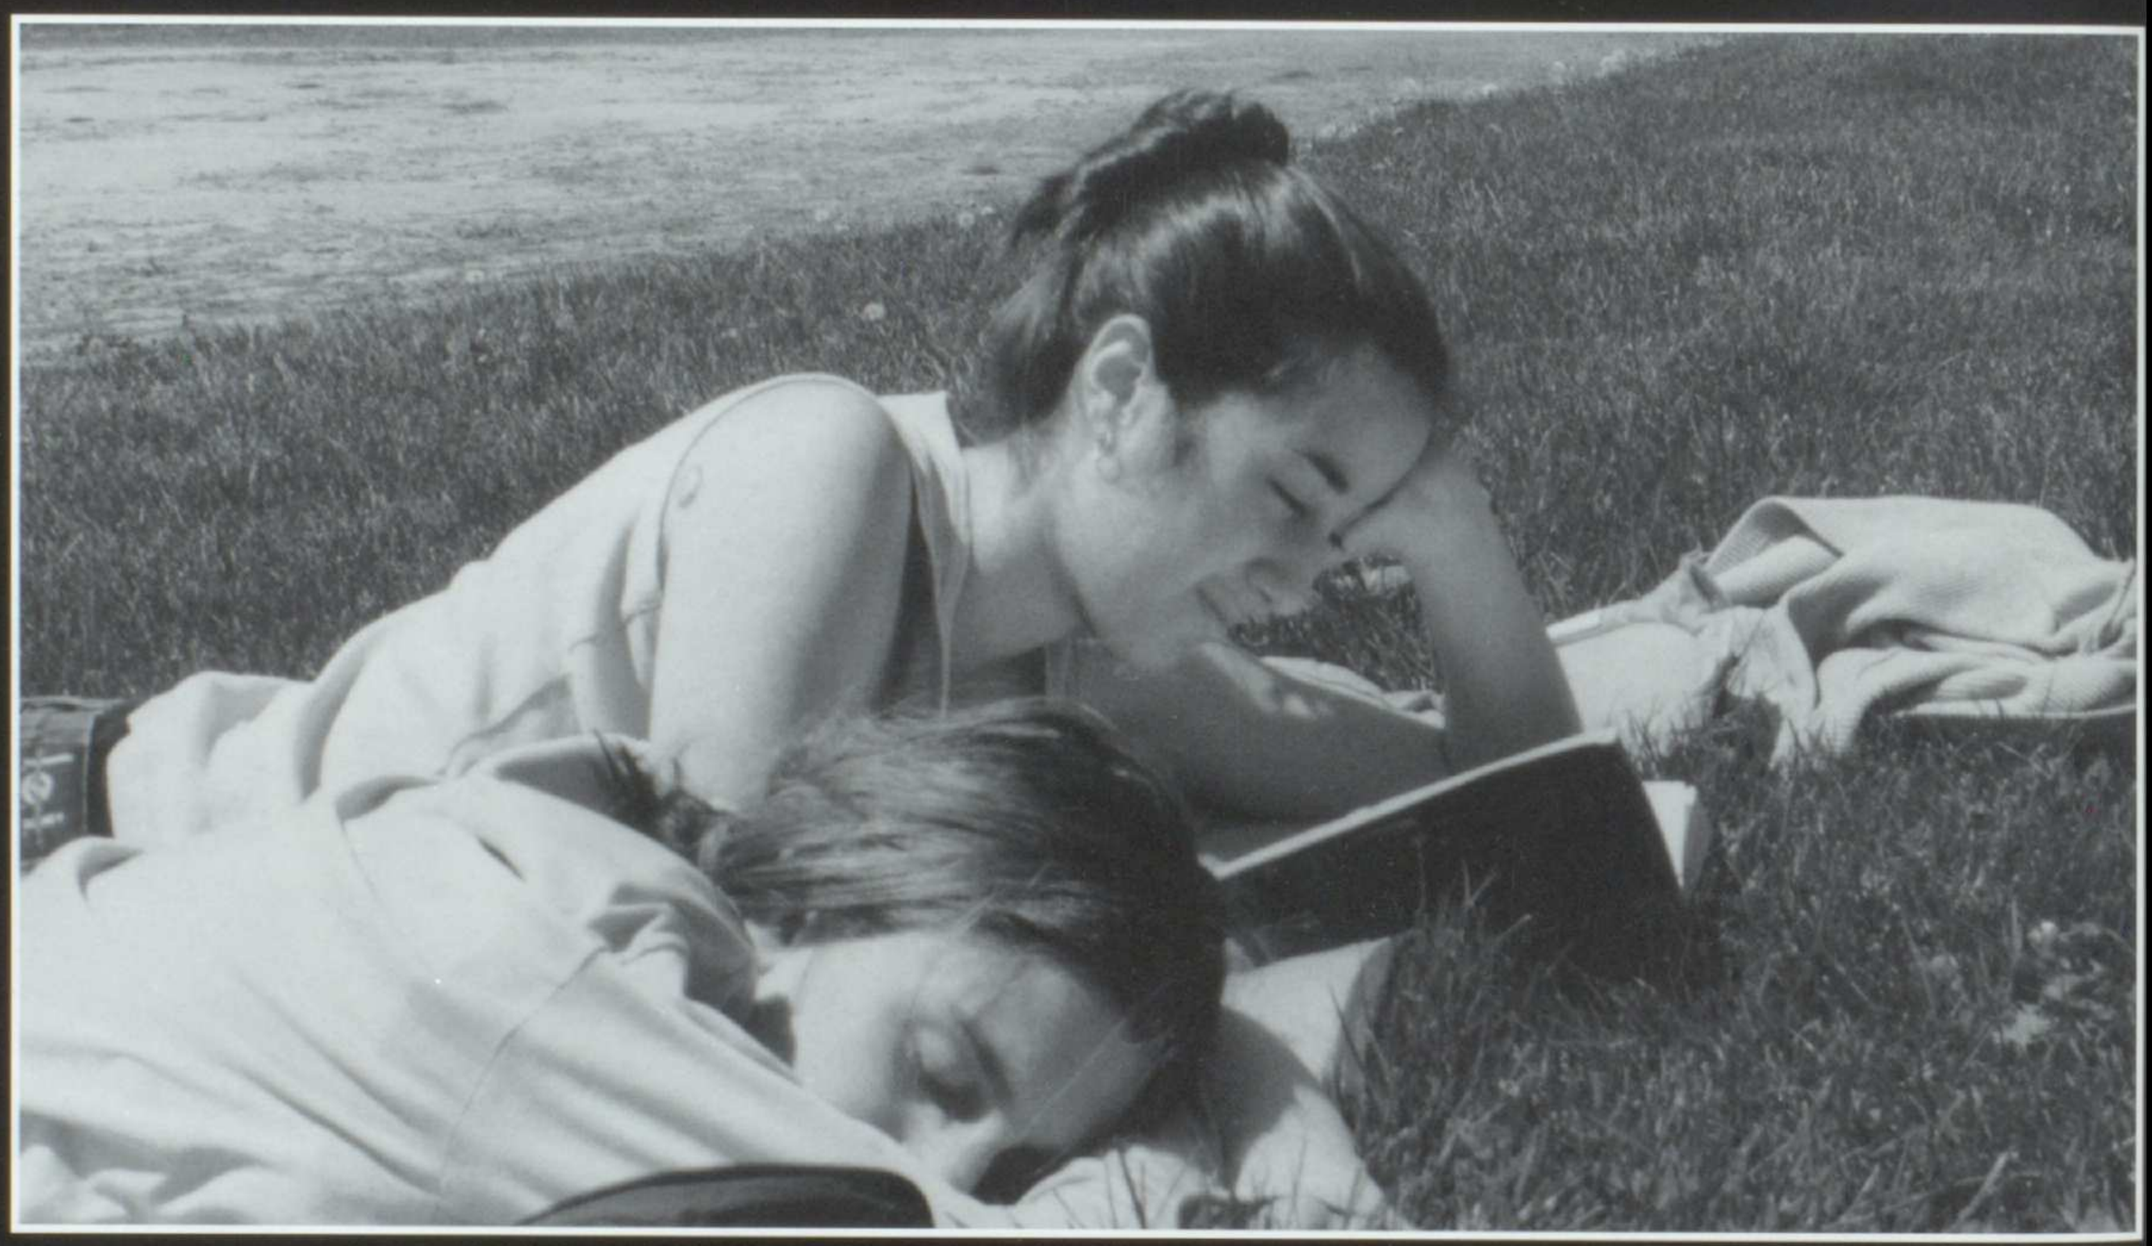
Although the Linworth Alternative Program is a place most often associated with the words different and unique, many of the students enjoy their experiences and appreciate the education they receive at Linworth. They feel the AP gives them the freedom and independence to be who they really are.

Every year since 1973, Linworth has offered students the opportunity to take their education into their own hands. "Linworth provides a positive environment for independent students who are seeking a change from the typical school day," says teacher Chris Hasebrook. The smaller classes and unusual schedule help to create a better relationship among students and teachers.

Students share a major role in running Linworth, particulary through town meetings held once a week. Teachers and students speak to inform everyone of up-coming events as well as to solve situations with which students and teachers are unhappy. Rules have been changed as a result of a student's belief and interests.

Like all schools, Linworth isn't a problem-free environment. It does have the usual issues facing all of today's high schools. Yet, Linworth's entire approach to learning is something unparalleled and special. Linworth is an excellent alternative for students!

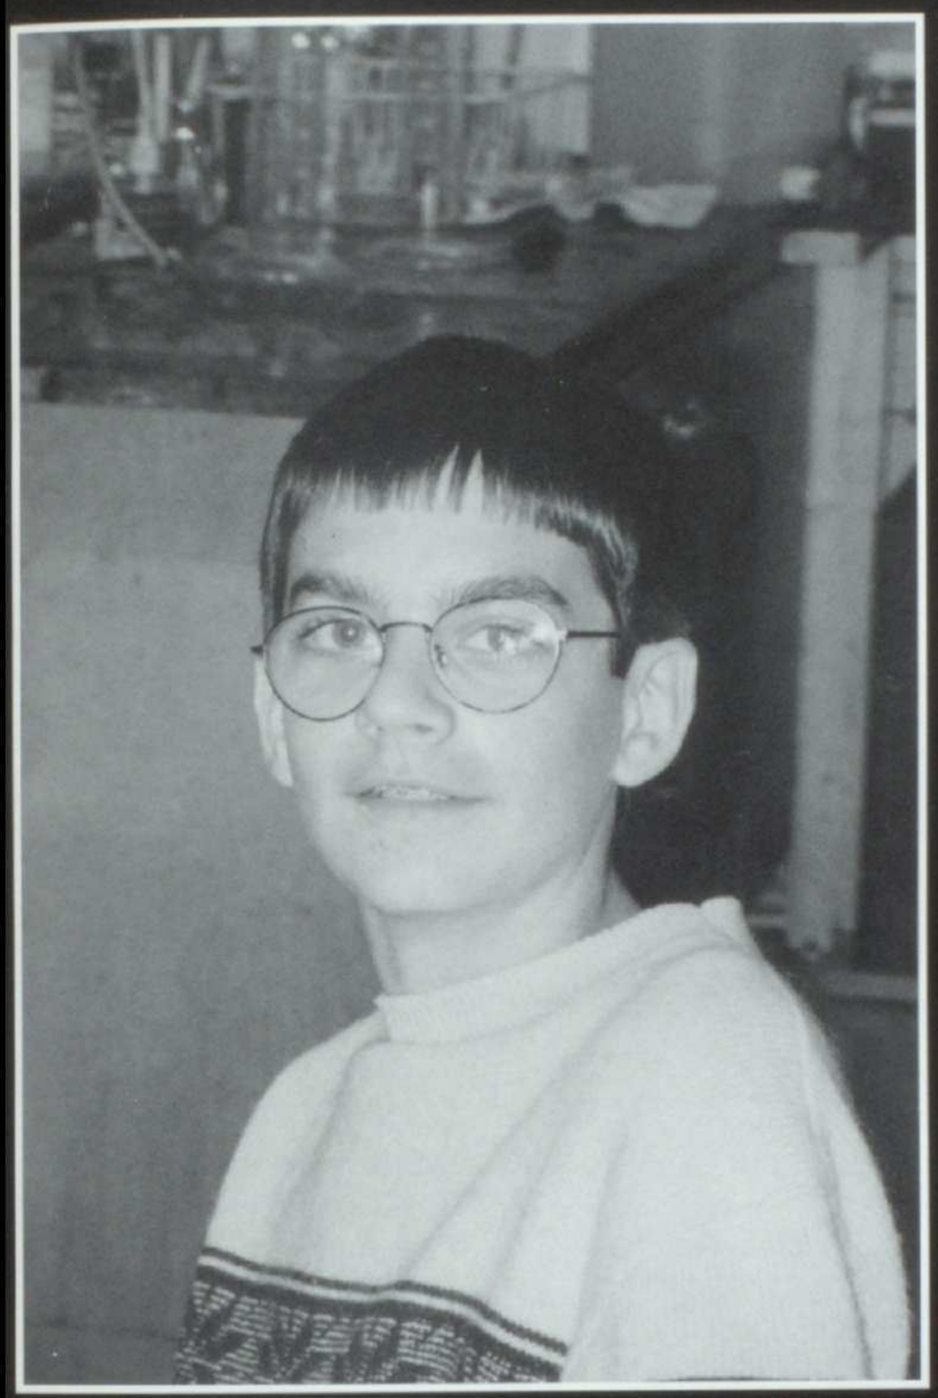
By Kelly Bame



You look really into that book, Sarah Terman, but your friend Grant Luckey doesn't seem to be as excited about it. Wake up, Grant, and enjoy that beautiful sunshine!

Senior Alaina Niebauer takes a minute to show off her beautiful artwork. Thanks Alaina!

Working on the computer is Eric Brown. You seemed to be really into that game you were playing!



Don't look so tired, (left to right) Aaron Huber, Nick Reed, and Jason Farrington. It must have been a long day at Linworth. That pole seems to be the only thing holding Aaron up.

Posing with his cello is junior Tristan Conlter.

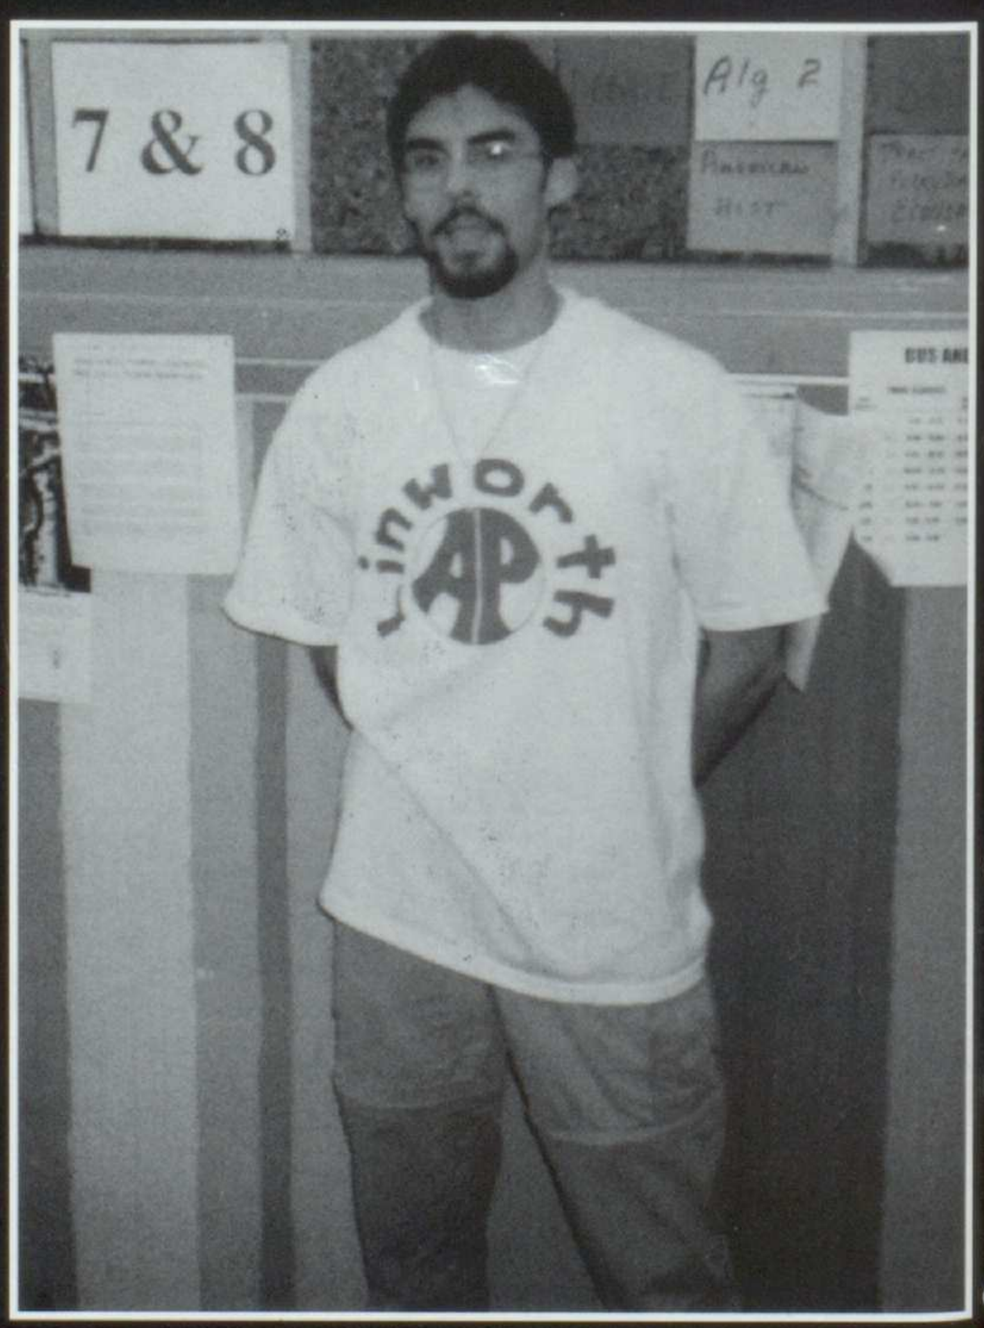
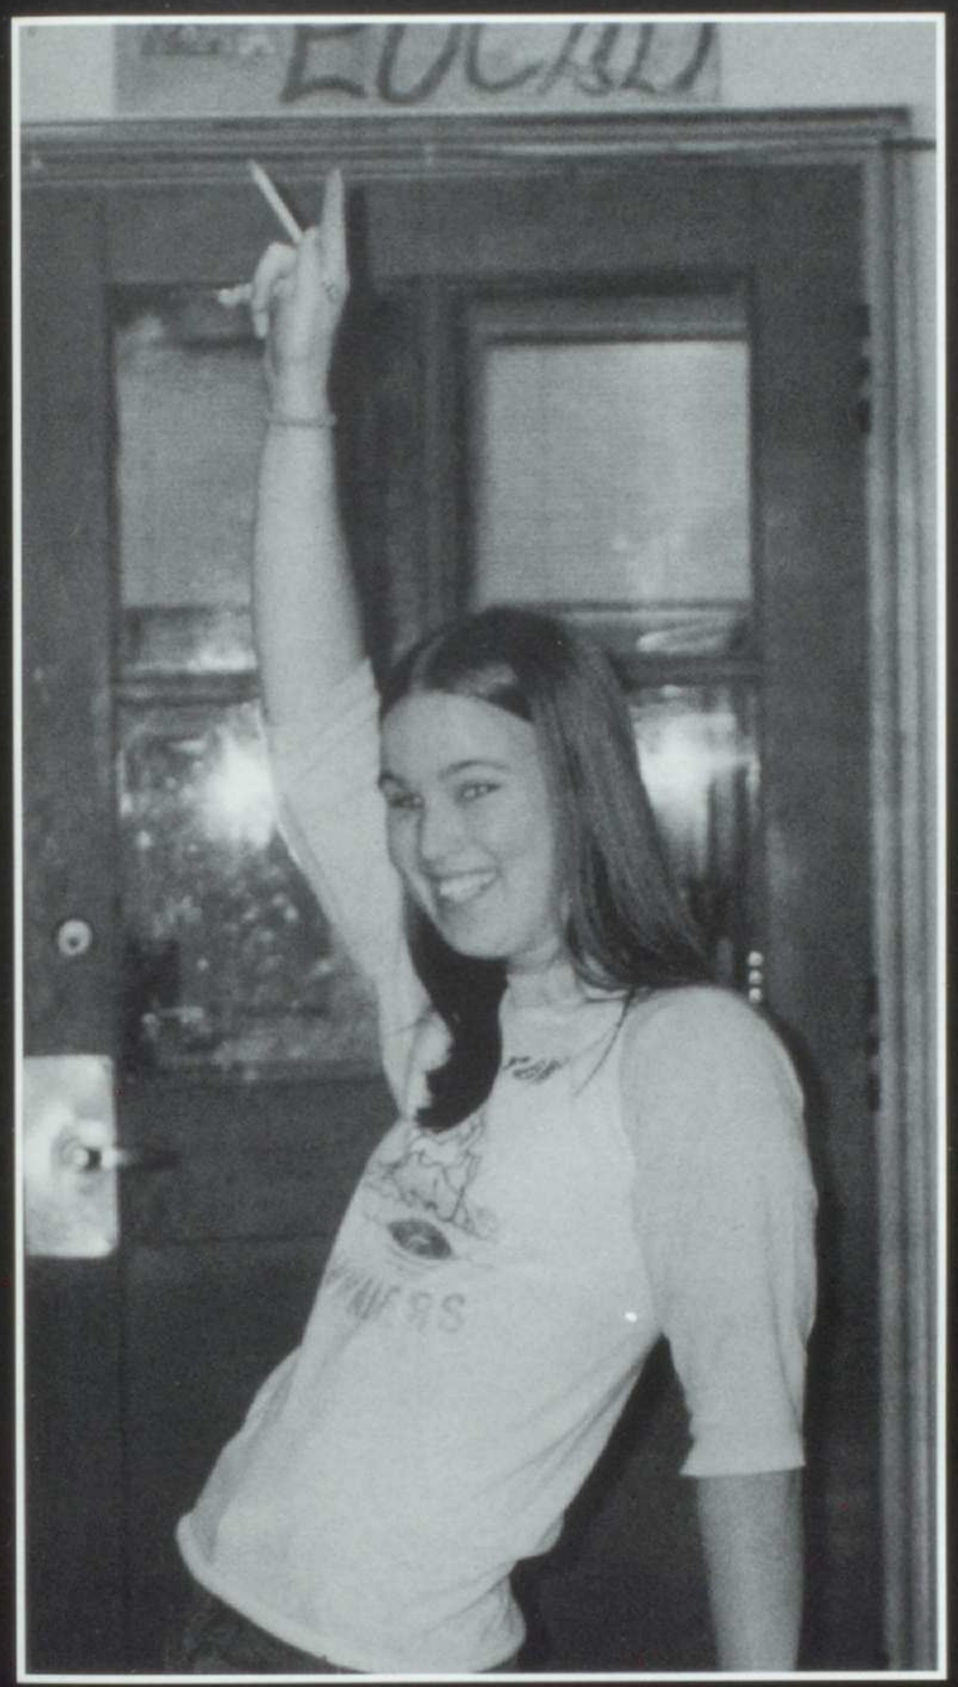
Surprise! I bet you weren't expecting to have your picture taken while you were milling around the lockers, were you, (left to right) Chad Davis and Ryan Greene?

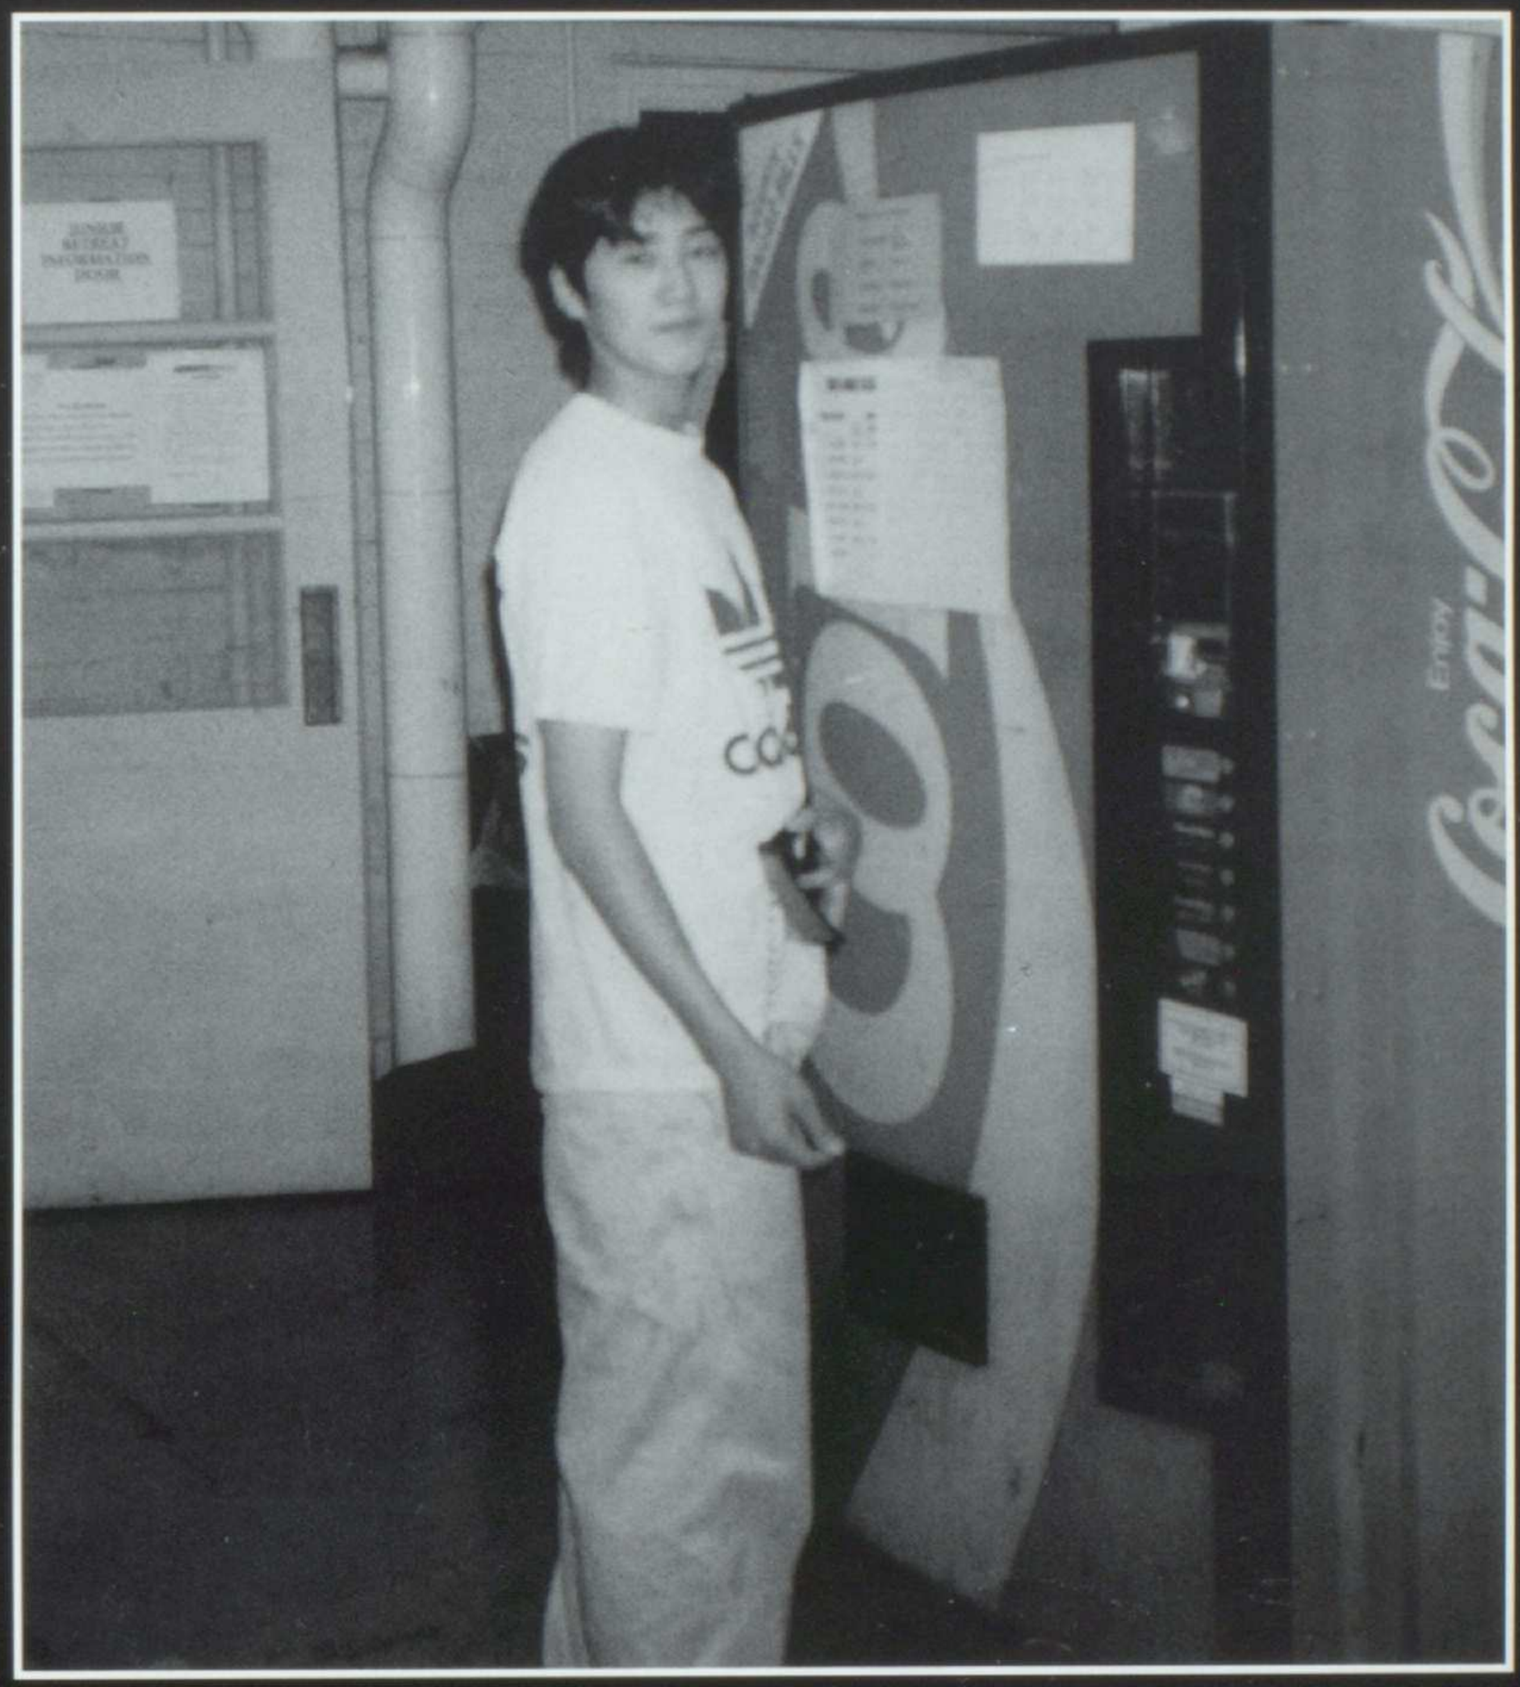


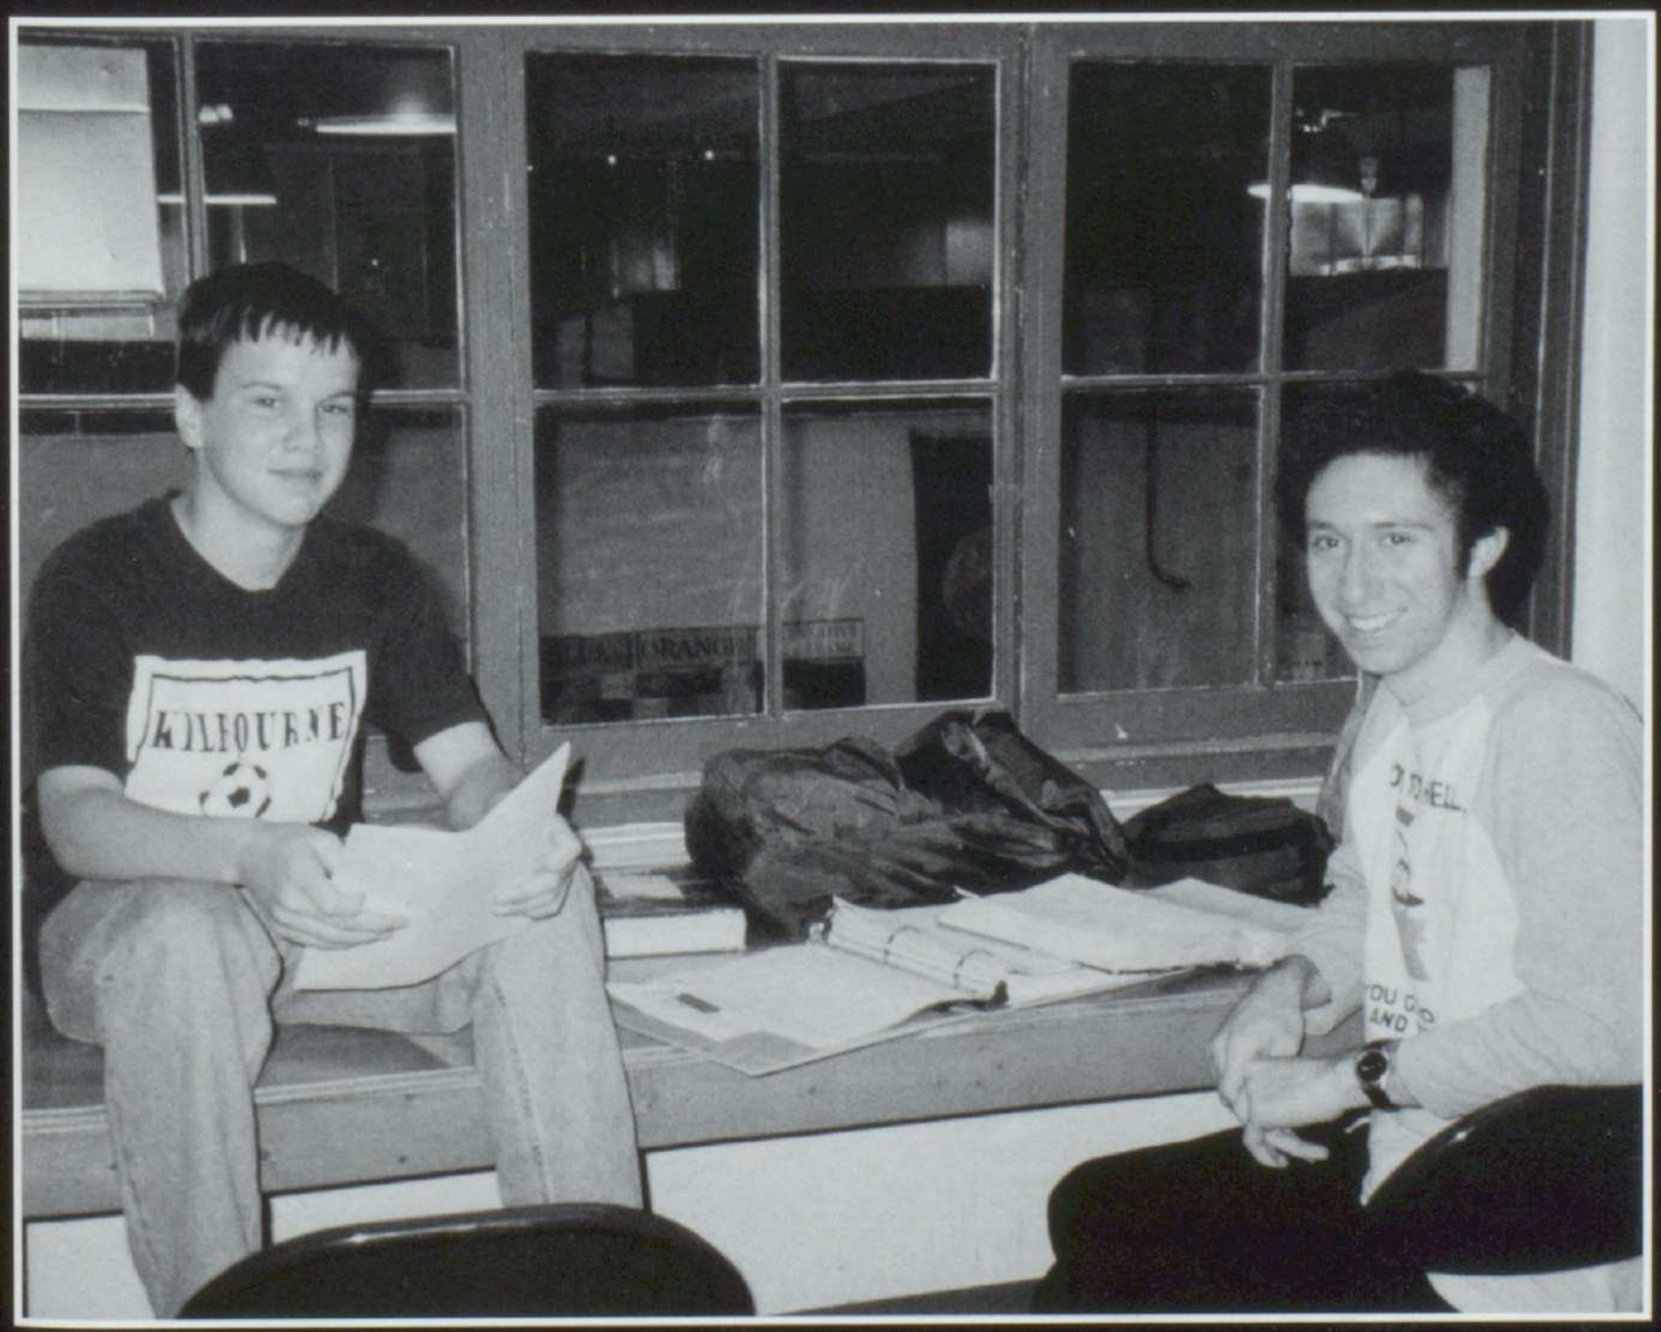
Showing Linworth pride, Alejandro Pradas is all decked out in his school apparel. Lookin' good, Alejandro!

"I am the woman," exclaims Erin Chestnut as she poses in front of the geometry room.



"Does anybody have change for a dollar?" thinks Takeshi Sasaki. "I wonder if I could trick the machine into giving me a free pop?"





Quizzing each other for their up-coming geometry test are (left to right) Stephen Chesnut and Eric Fox. Good luck, guys. I know you are worrying about it!

Playing his bass during a break is senior Chris Michaelides. Those are some cool shades, Chris!

"We are each of us angels with only one wing, and we can only fly embracing each other."
-Lucia De Creschenzo

Hard at work are student council members, (left to right) Sarah Hartong, Hunter Allen, Evan Schlarb, and Stacie Linnabary. They want to make homecoming week as perfect as possible, and it really paid off. The week was one of the best ever. More students participated and were involved than ever before. Thanks for all your hard work and dedication student council.

These five girls, (left to right) Kate Basom, Courtney Moreland, Jessie Adams, Blythe Irwin, and Ann Basom, must be dedicated to soccer if they are willing to go out in public looking like this.

Sophomores

Have you ever gone out to lunch with a senior?... Legally?

"Yes, it was a Saturday so it was pretty legal." Jason Bowman

Lunch is such a great time to get together with friends... and maybe even get close in some cases. These students seem to like each other: Lisa Lloyd, Pat Gerke, Hollie Witchey and Charisse Kreemer. Maybe these friendships will survive into adulthood and the new millenium.

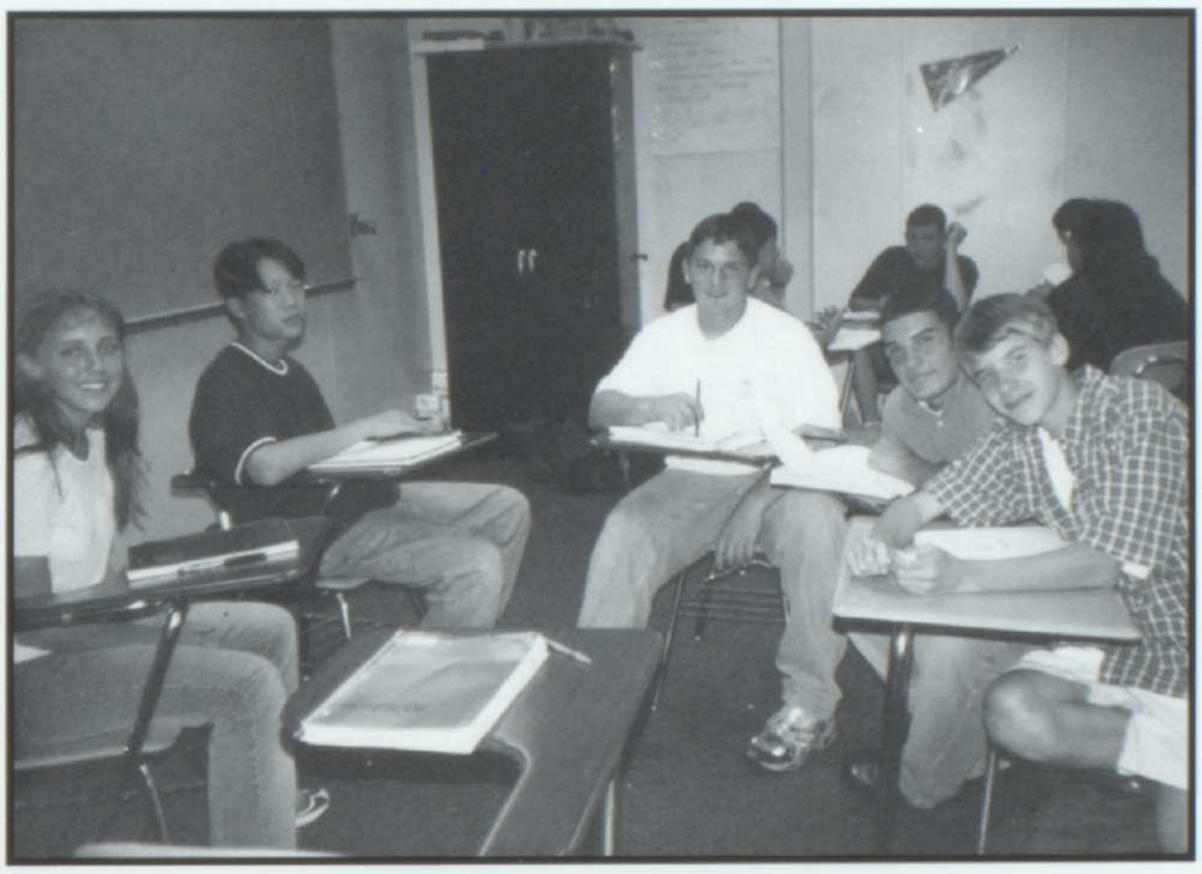
Class of 2001

"Take our picture. We love the camera," says Kristen Durst (right) as she drags Becca Adams into an embrace. Gentle, gentle! But it's OK. That's the way to grin and bear it.

Working together, (left to right) Sarah Ruof, Dan Um, Josh Schnack, Scott Shaffer and Chris Mowery love group work in Mrs. Snyder's class. The question is... how much are they really working?

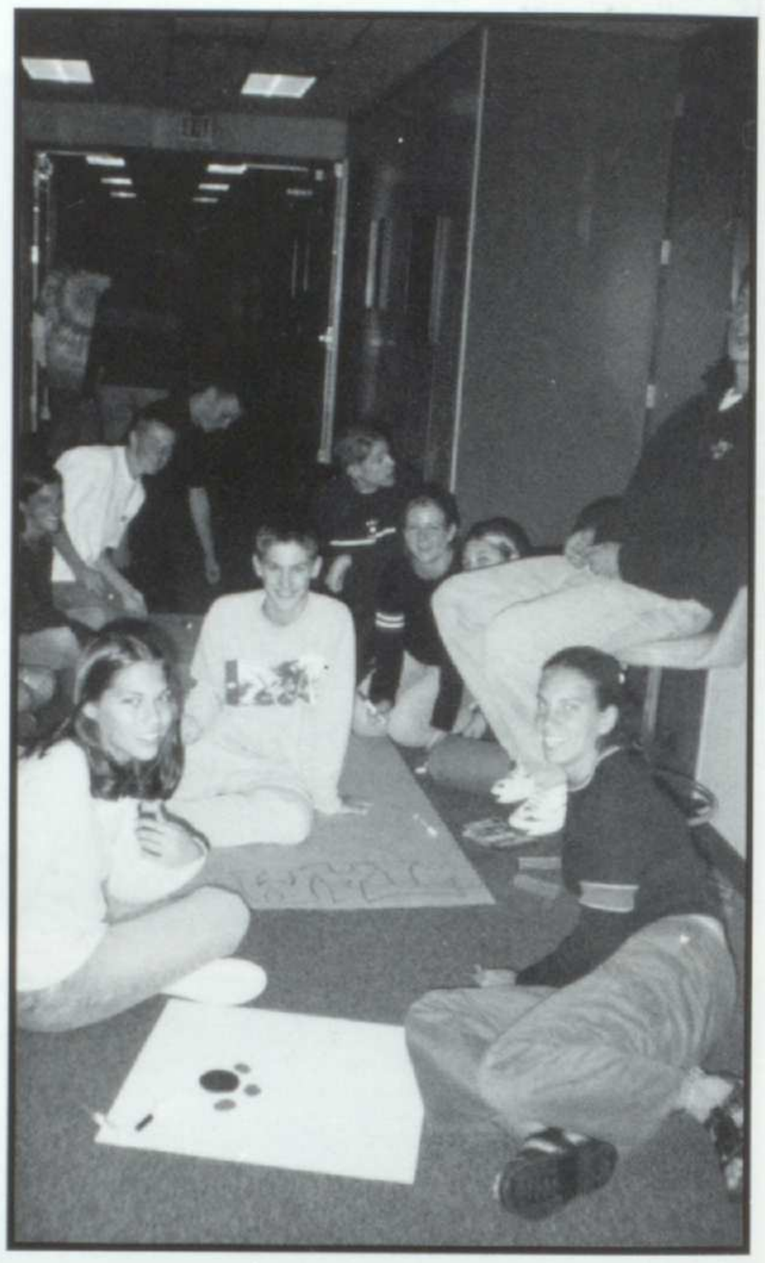


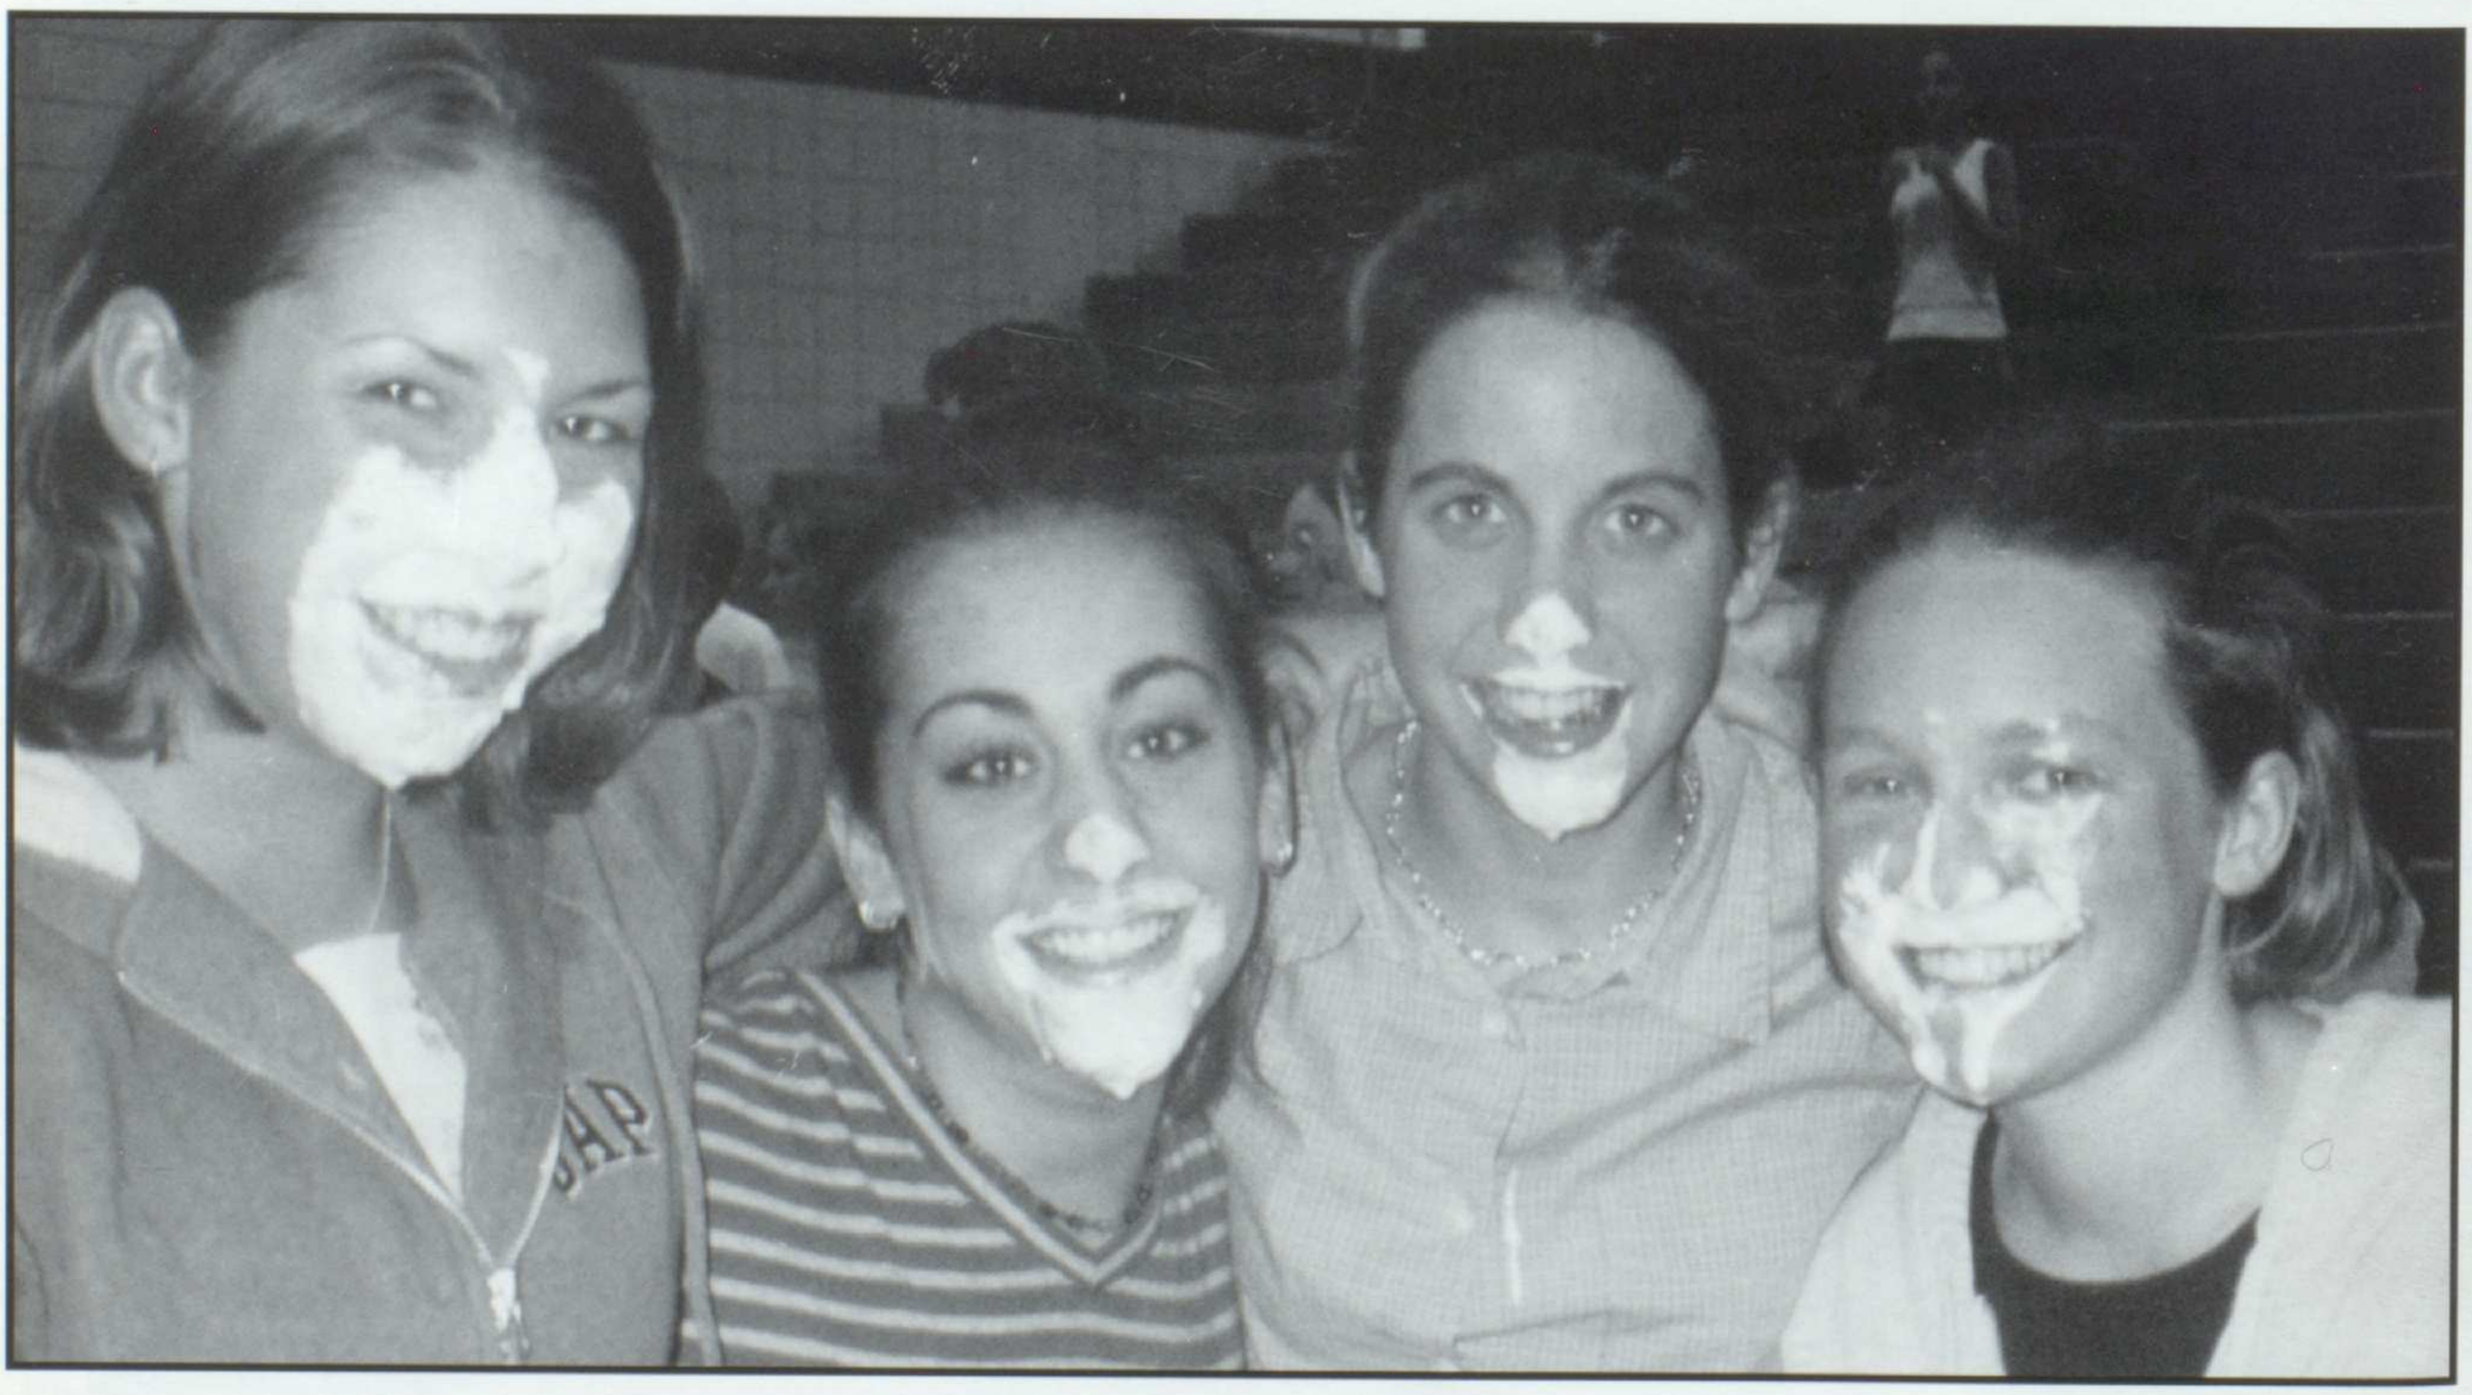
We all love the breaks we seldom have but when we do, we use them to get close and keep friends warm. Enjoying the bon fire are (left to right) Casey Gregory, Jenny Smith, Natalie Blake, Andrea Richardson and Jenna Gueth.

Sophomores

This couple is cute as can be. Kathy Thorne seems to be holding onto Matt Chilcoat. Hope this night was as good as they make it look.

Working hard are (left to right) Jenny Rupp, Tyler Rink, Robby Roualt, Mindy Price.





Participating at Wolfapoloza, (left to right) Jennifer Spellis, Becca Forte, Emily Moore and Sarah Smith may not have won this pie eating contest, but they sure did have tons of fun doing it. If this wasn't Wolfapoloza, I would be a little worried about these creme-covered faces and think maybe they weren't human at all. Maybe canines with rabies?

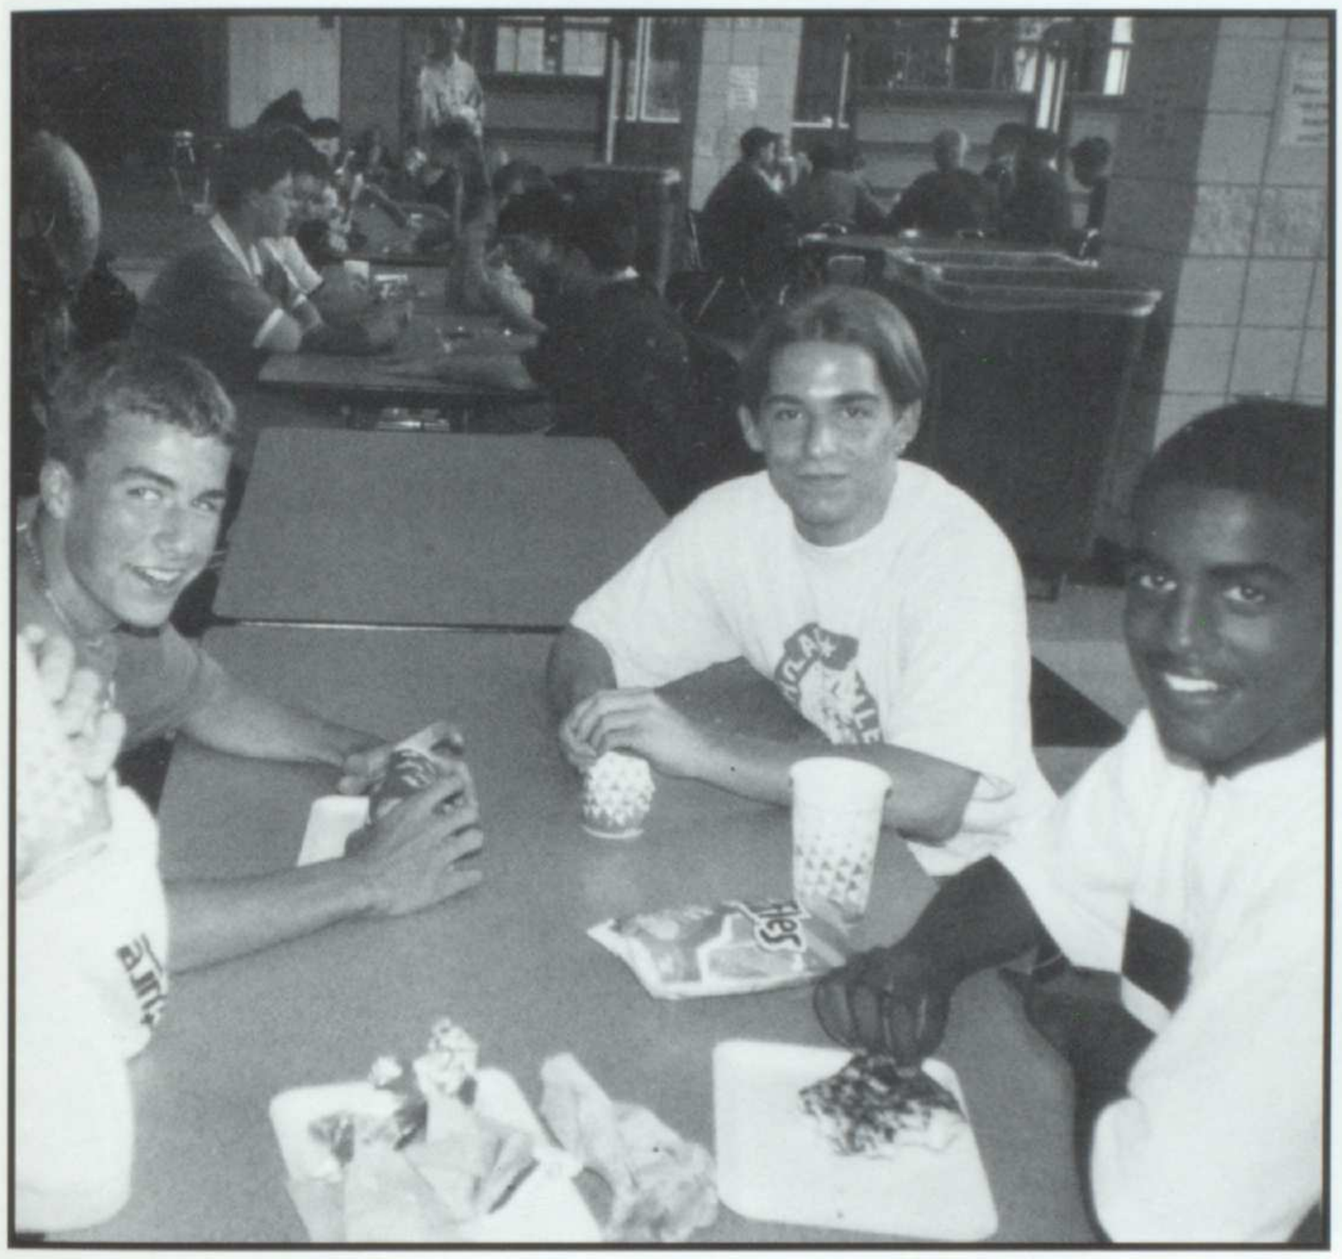
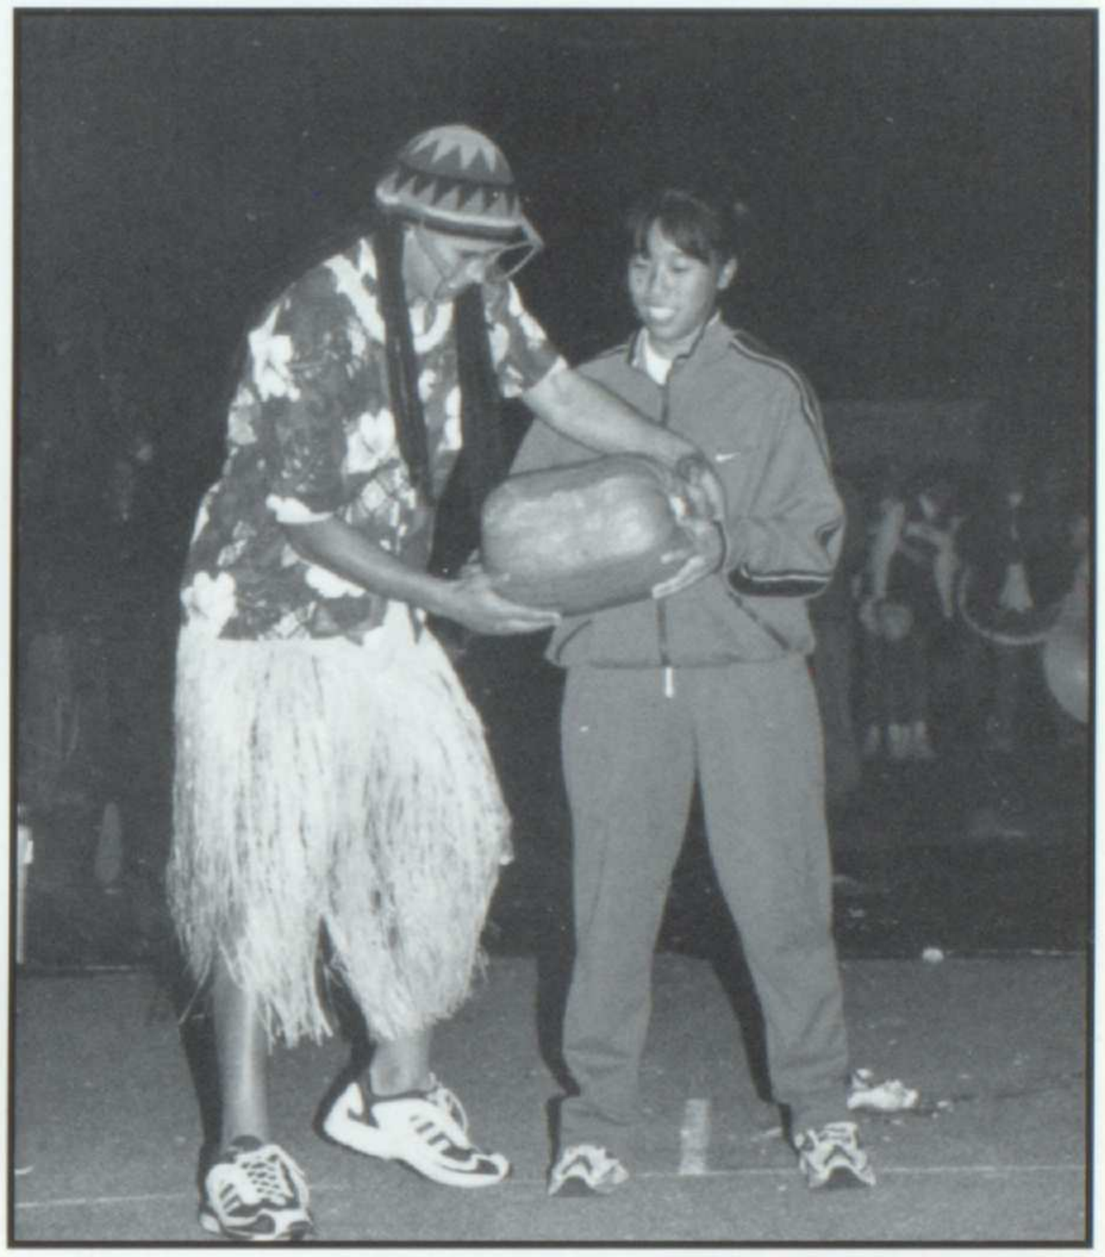
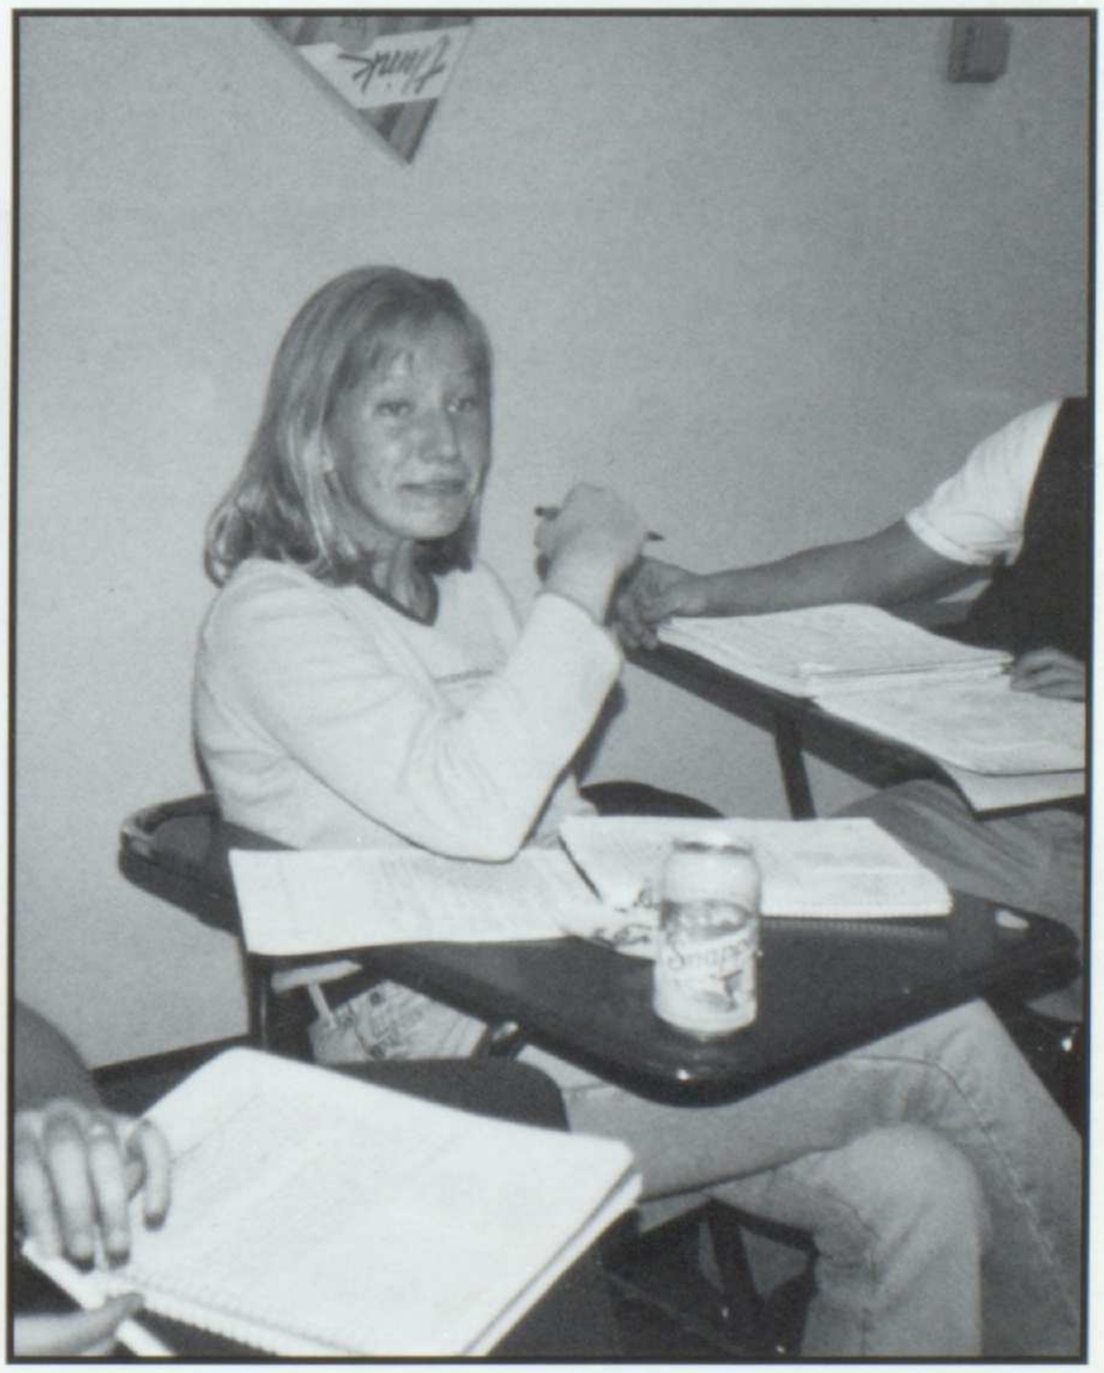
Hungry boys? Eat up, (left to right) Chris Hutchison, Jeff Huffman and Siem Woldemariam. You still have almost a whole year of school left.



Being handed a pumpkin by Jamaican man Joel Kovacs, Mika Kania is ready for the pumkin toss.





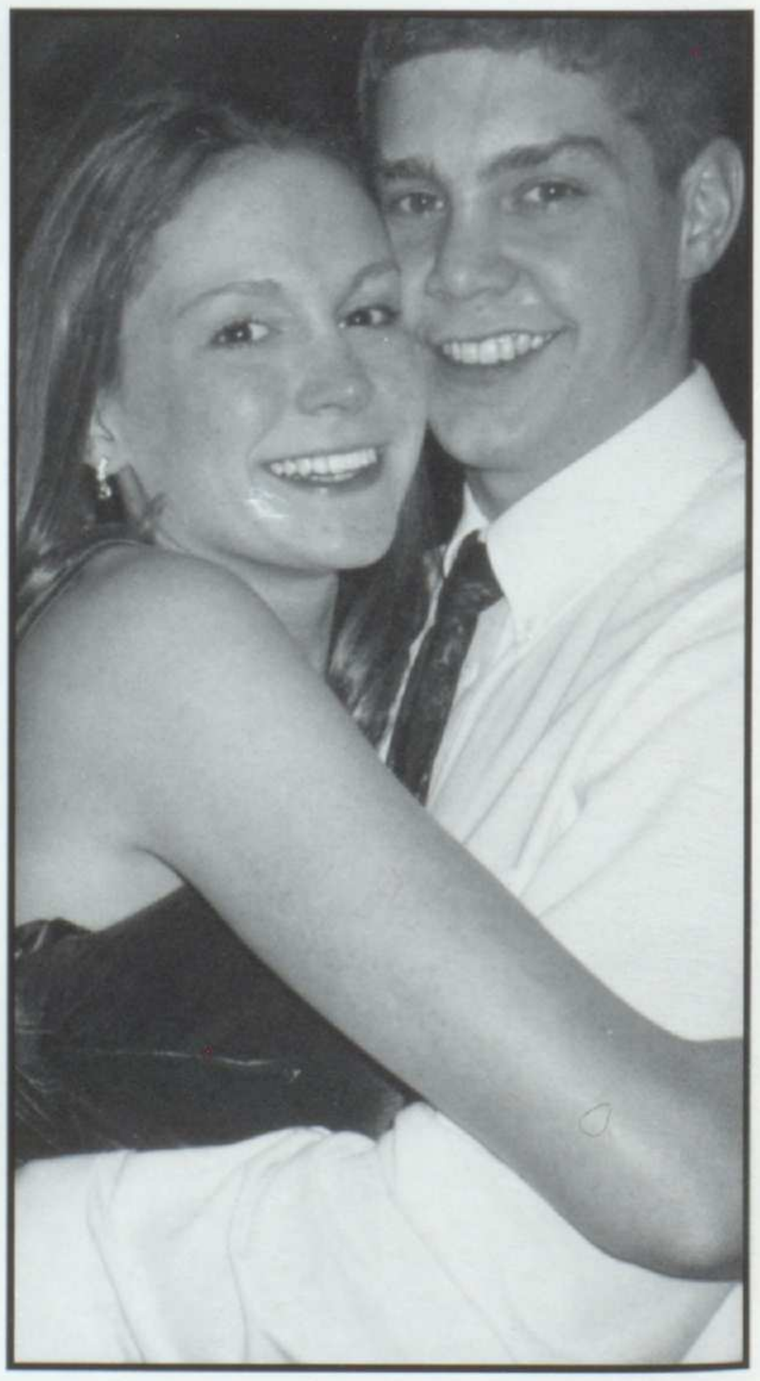
Look at this happy bunch: (left to right) Ken Stempel, John Myers, Spencer Andrews, Lisa Asmus, Sarah Ruof and Kim Kirkwood all seem to be very amused with something.

"What?" Lauren Fenstermacher says as she seems to be a bit confused with her surroundings.

Sophomores

Now here are two faces you will never see not smiling. Everyone likes to be around happy people. Keep it up, (left to right) Mary Young and Jen Linley!

Lunch is a popular place. Eating and not so shy are (left to right) Nicole Williams, Ashleigh Wise, Laura McHarg and Heidi Breitstadt. Well, finish up. Your lunch period is almost over.



Now here's a couple, Allison Campbell and Paul Blanton, that look perfect together.

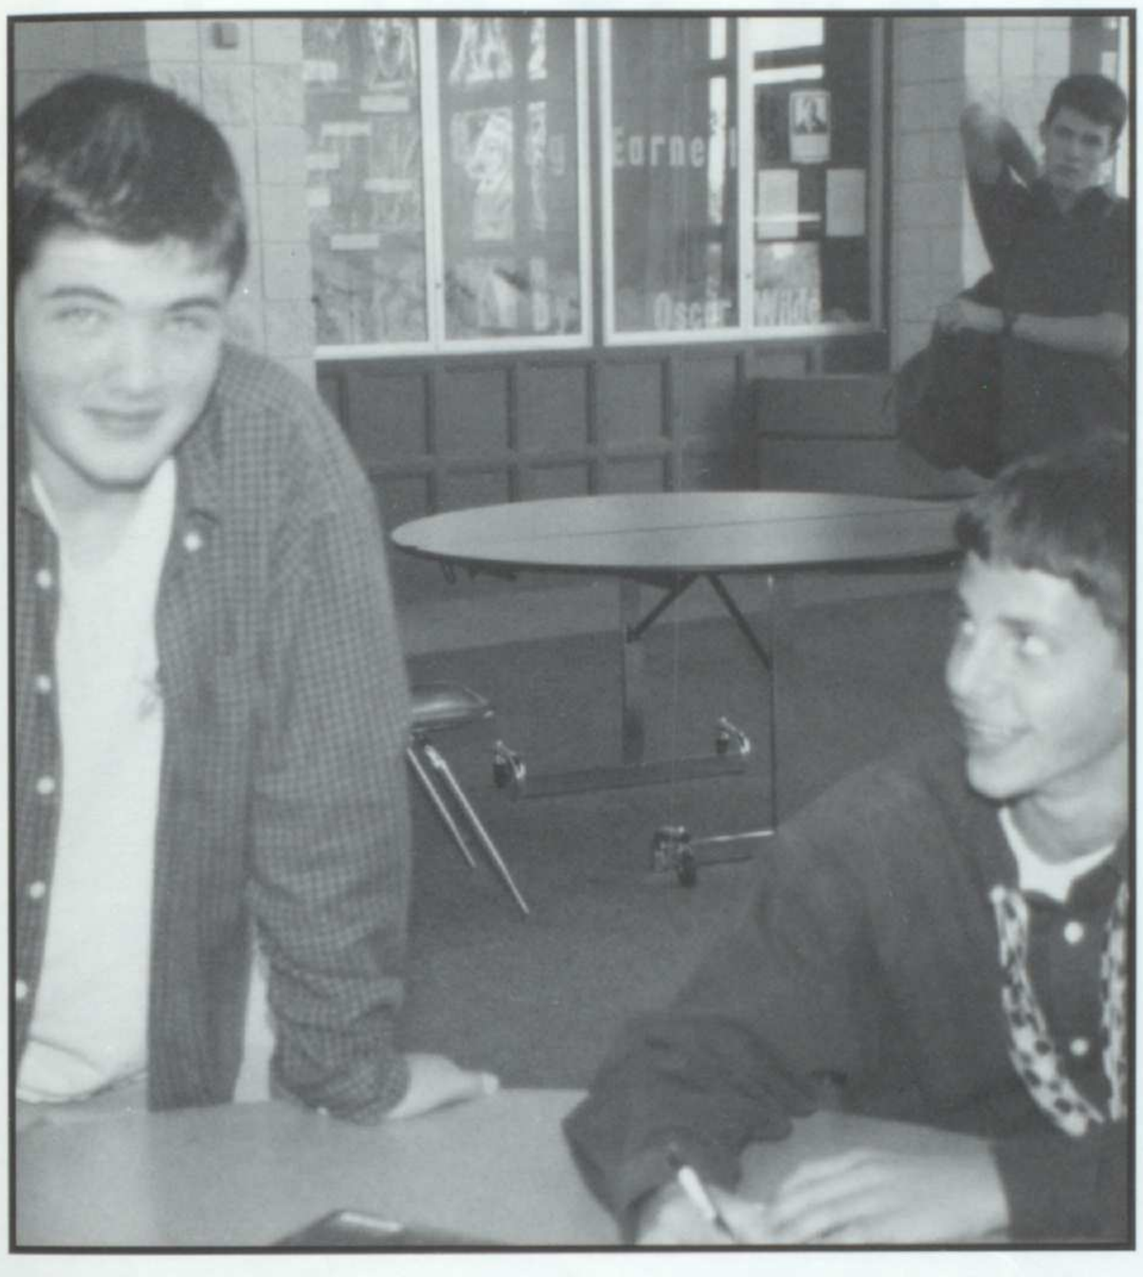
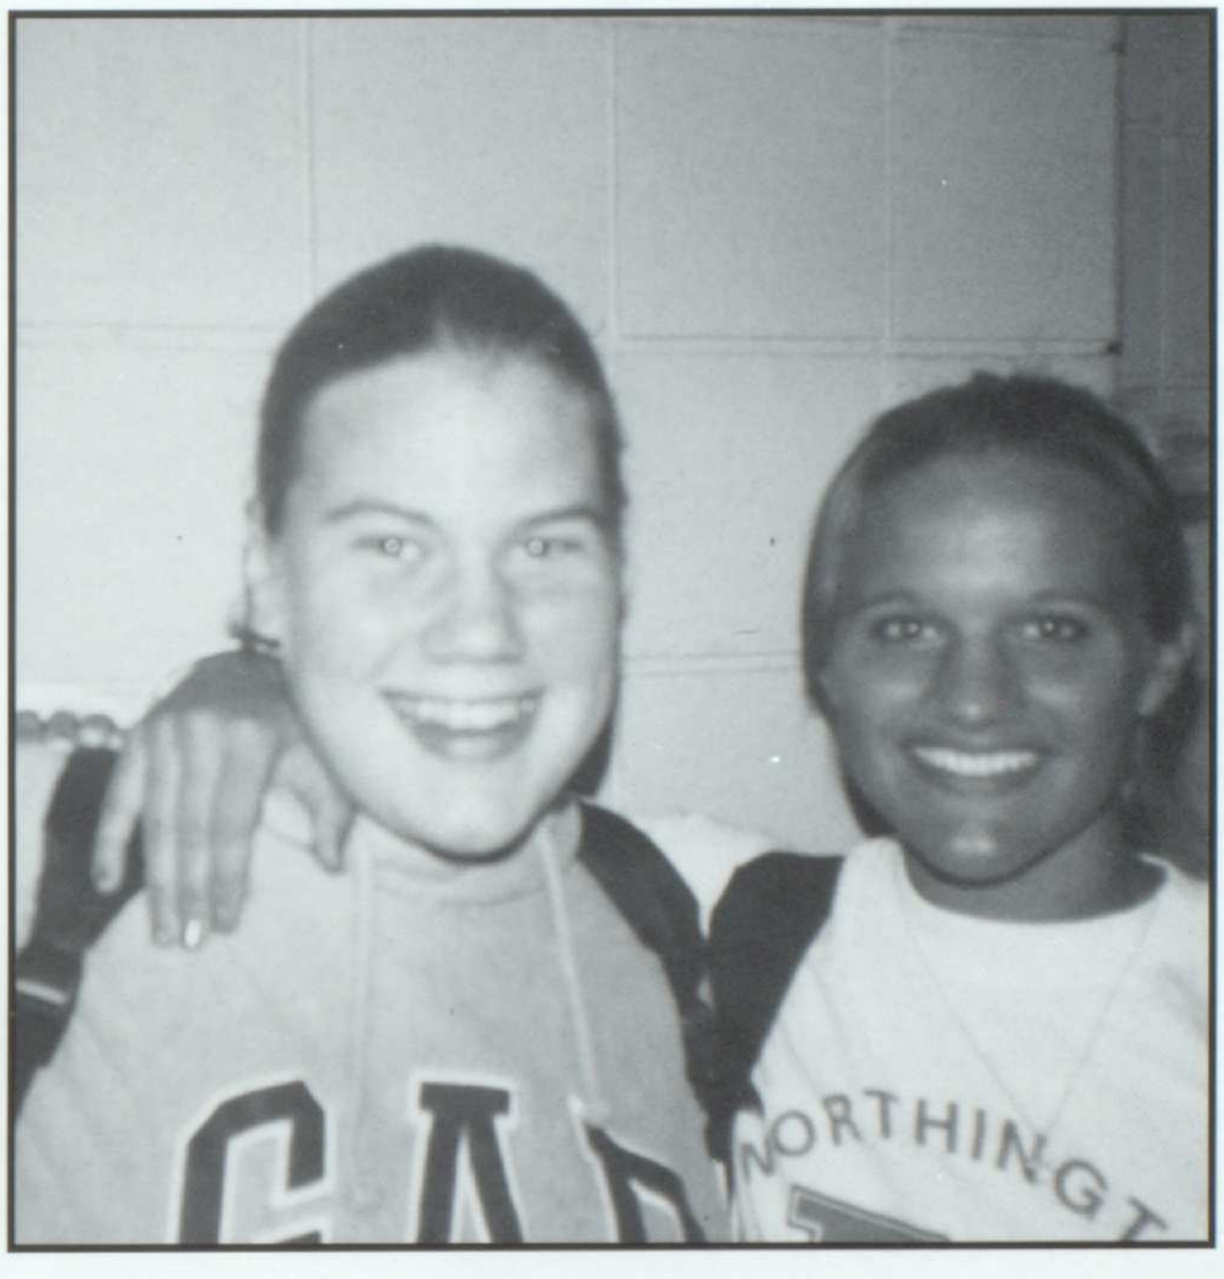
Visiting his friend who is busy studying hard, Lee Frey (left) seems to be putting Dan Staloch off task.



"Do you know which twin I am, Cassie Shawl?" asks Ann Basom (right).



Painting the window for homecoming week are (left to right) David Campbell, Allysson Shelton, Erin Weiss, Ellen Saslaw, Sarah Smith and Kara Freudeman. Did they all just wake up?

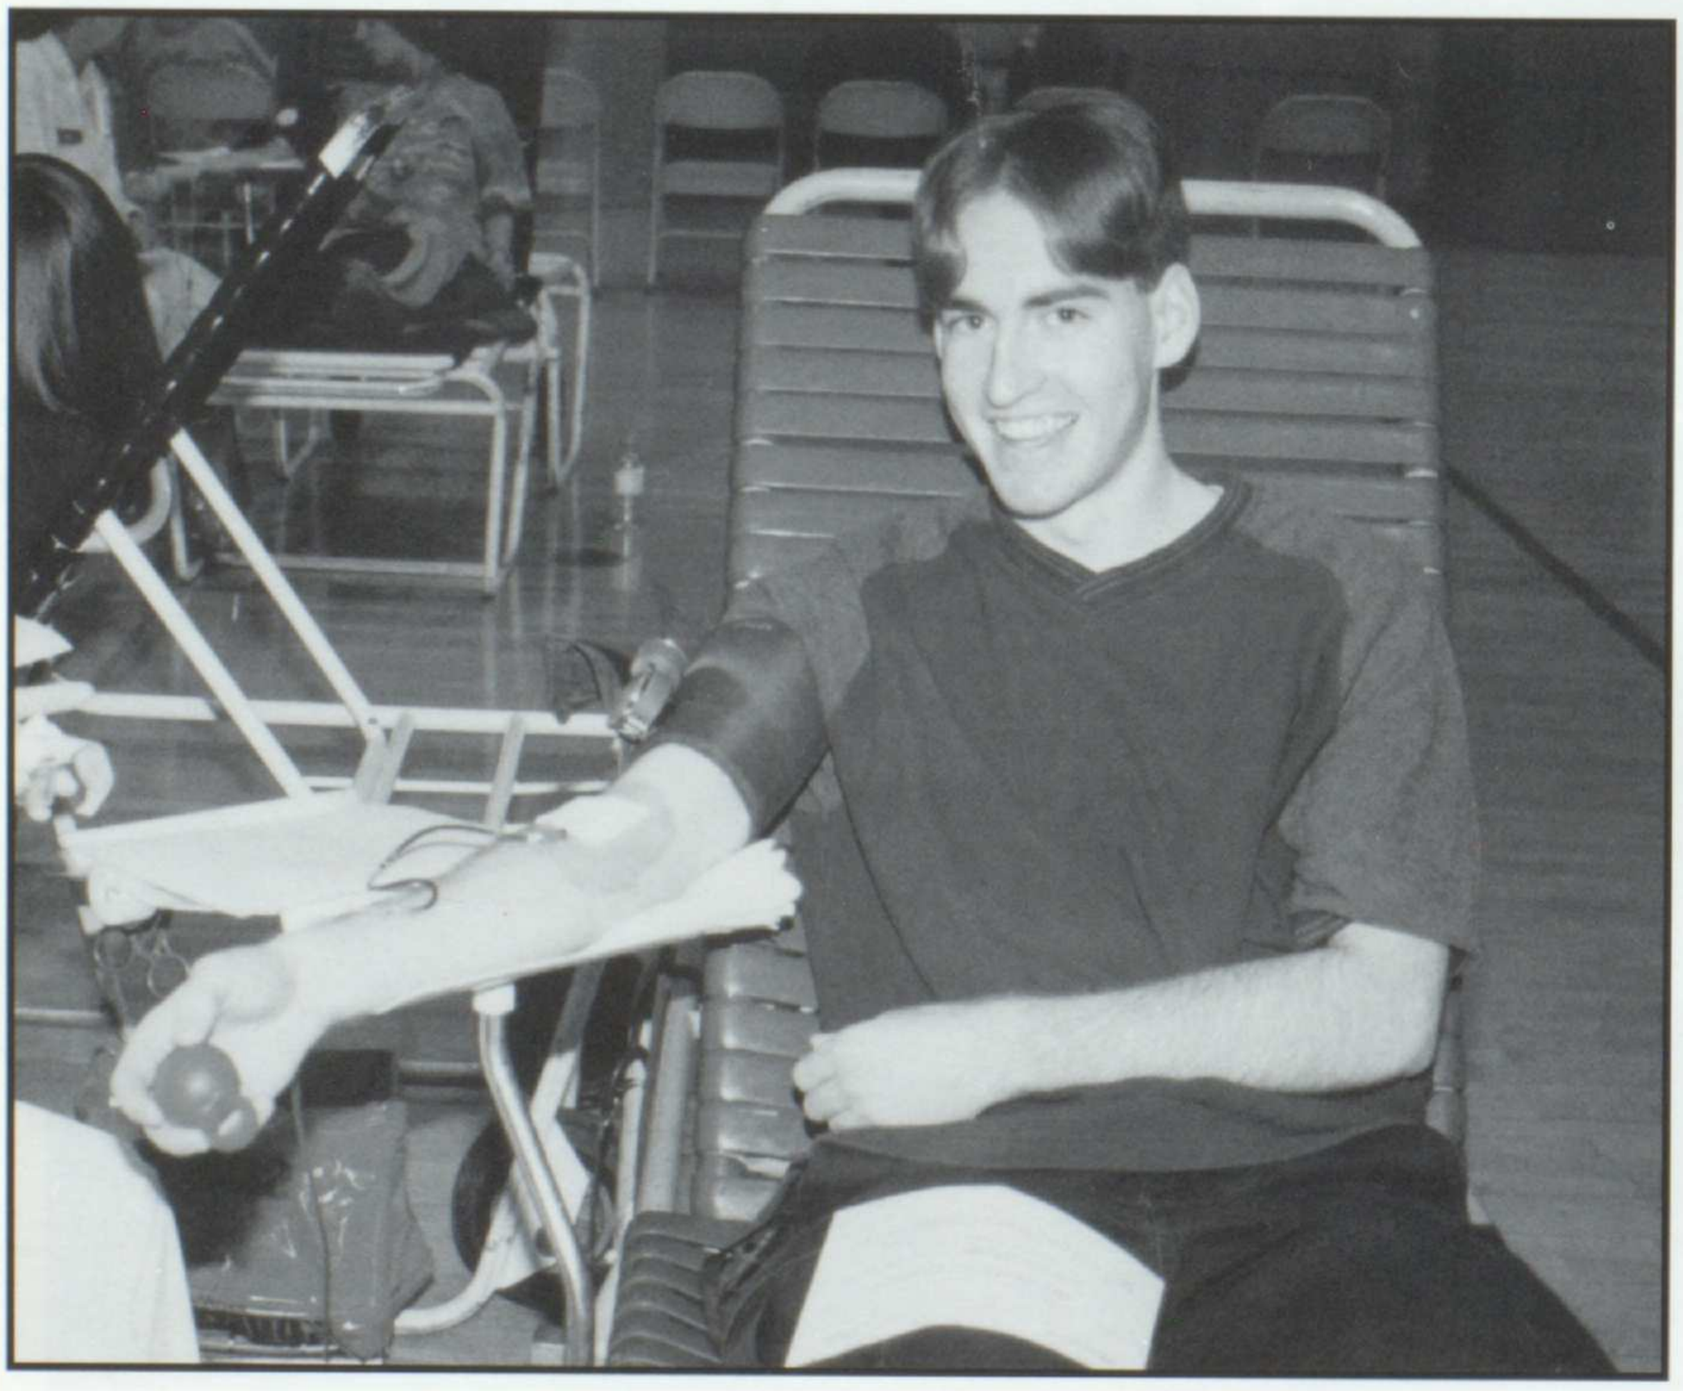
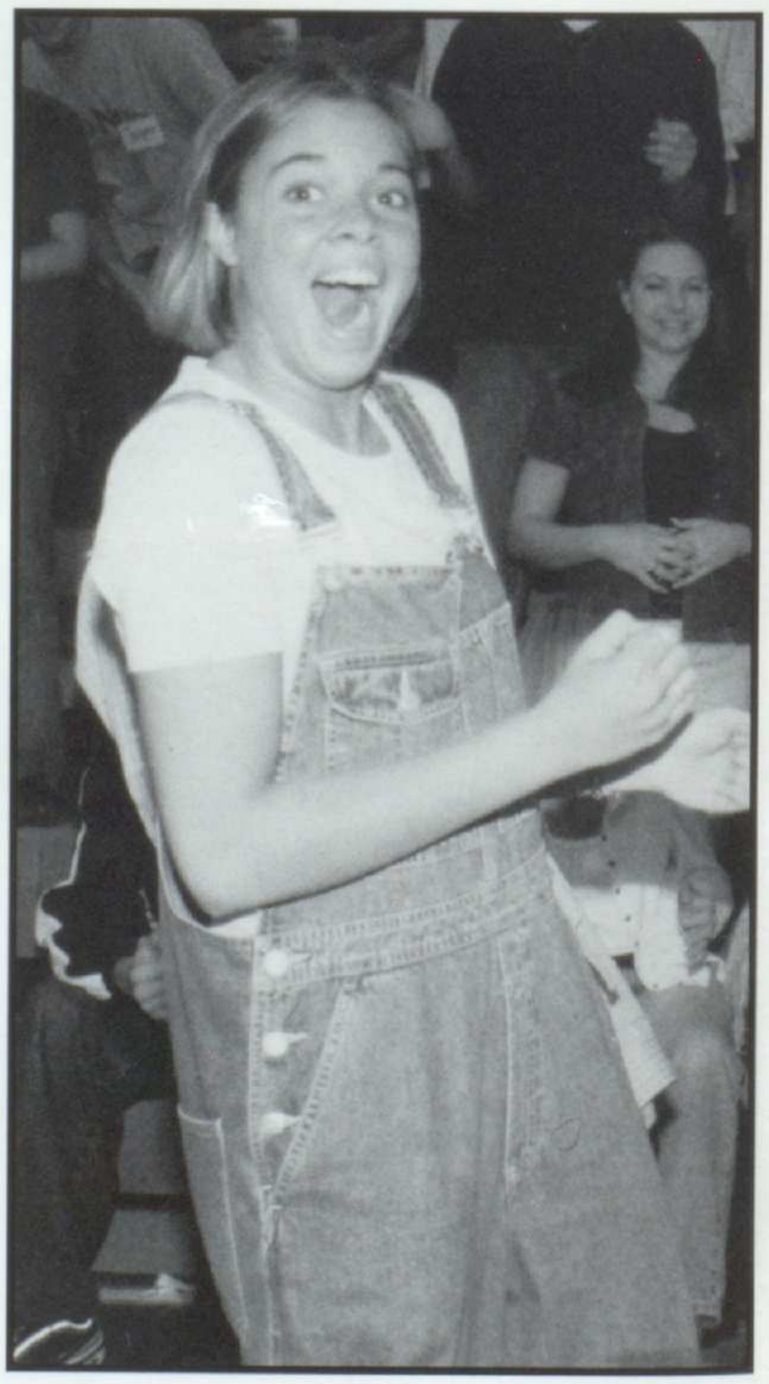
Getting their big start in the music business are juniors (left to right) Paul Meeker, John Kirchhoff, Aaron Shearer, and senior Dustin Keith. Good luck, guys. We can't wait to hear you on the radio.



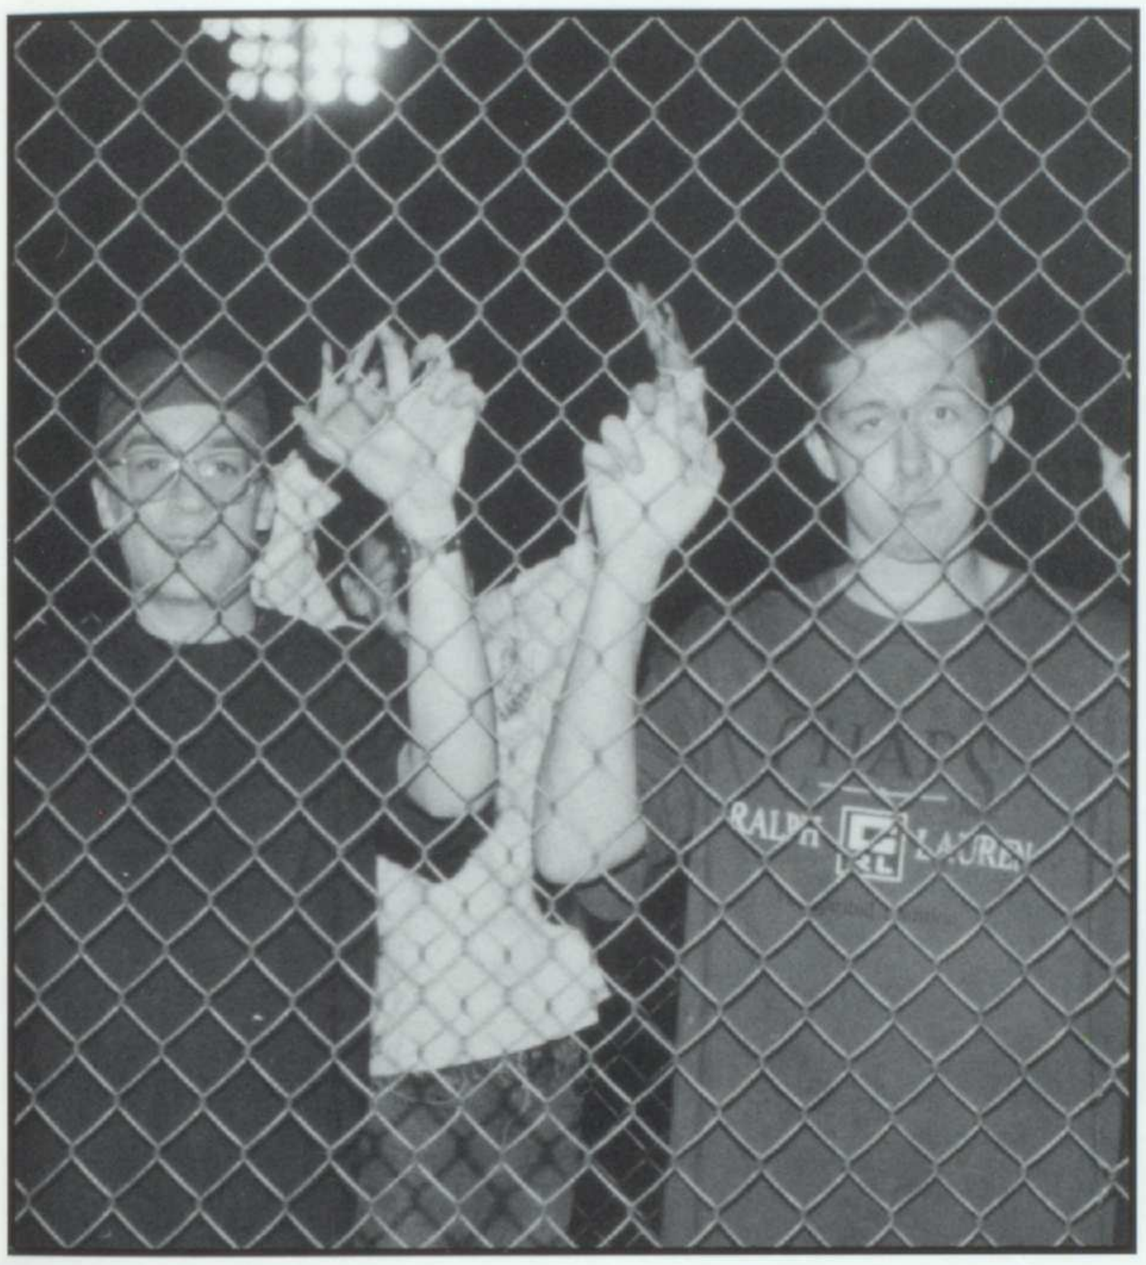
Being the brave Kilbourne student that he is, Kevin Mitchell gives the gift of life at the blood drive. Actually, he looks like he might even be enjoying it. Way to go, Kevin!



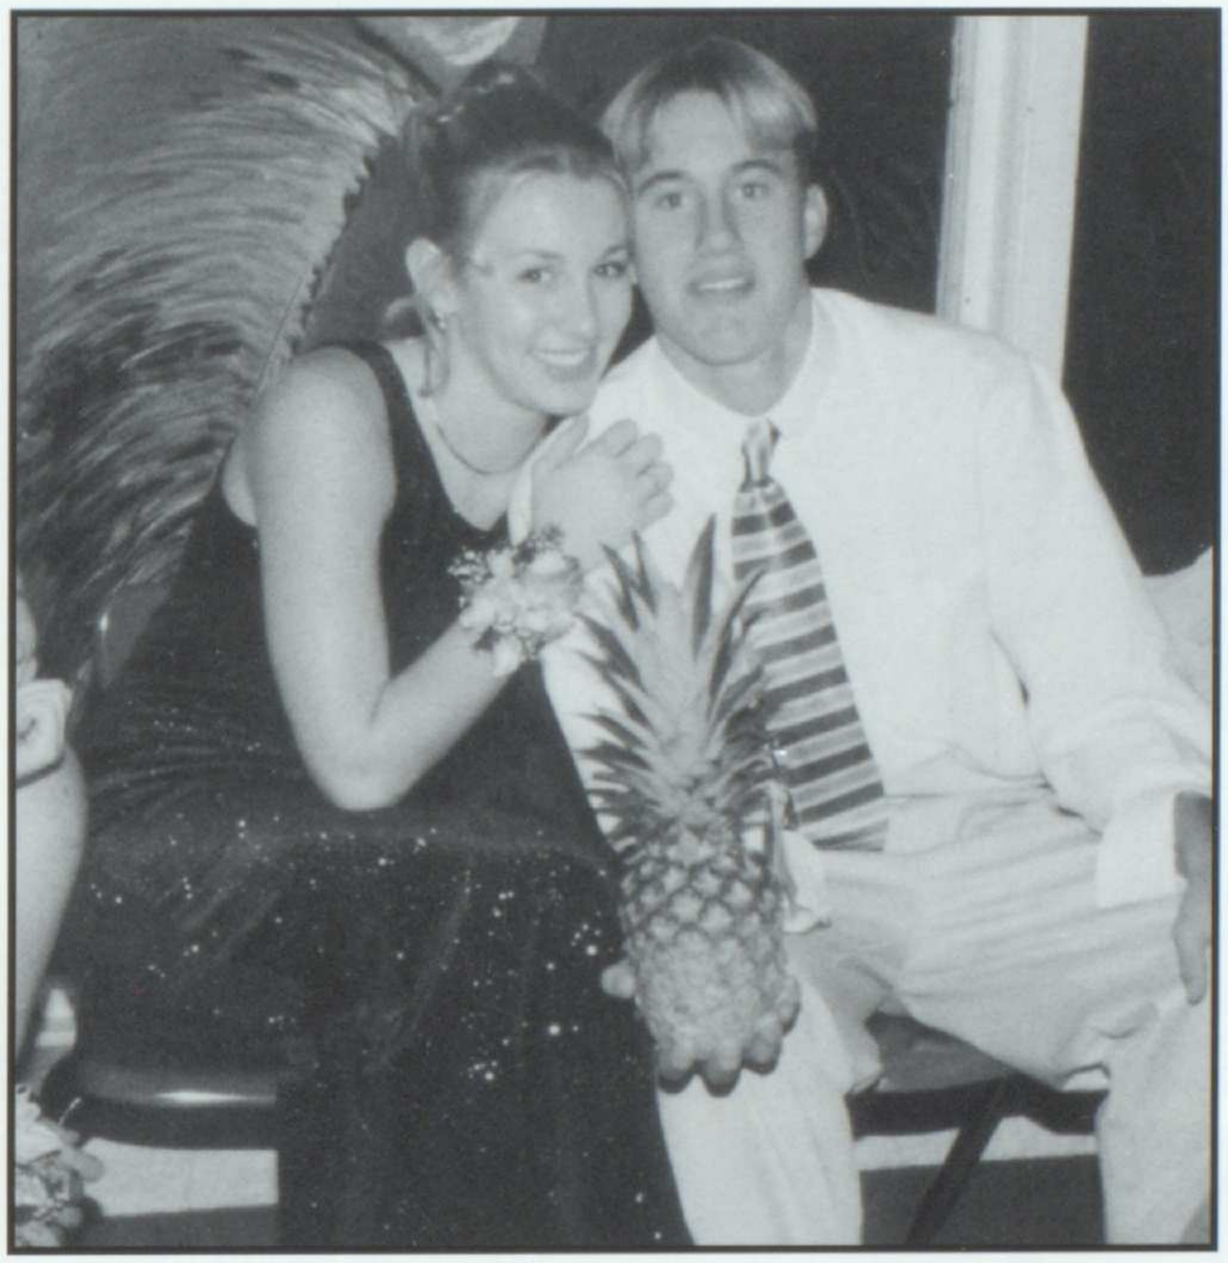
Acting crazy at a pep rally is Erin Kensinger. I sure wish her school spirit was contagious!!

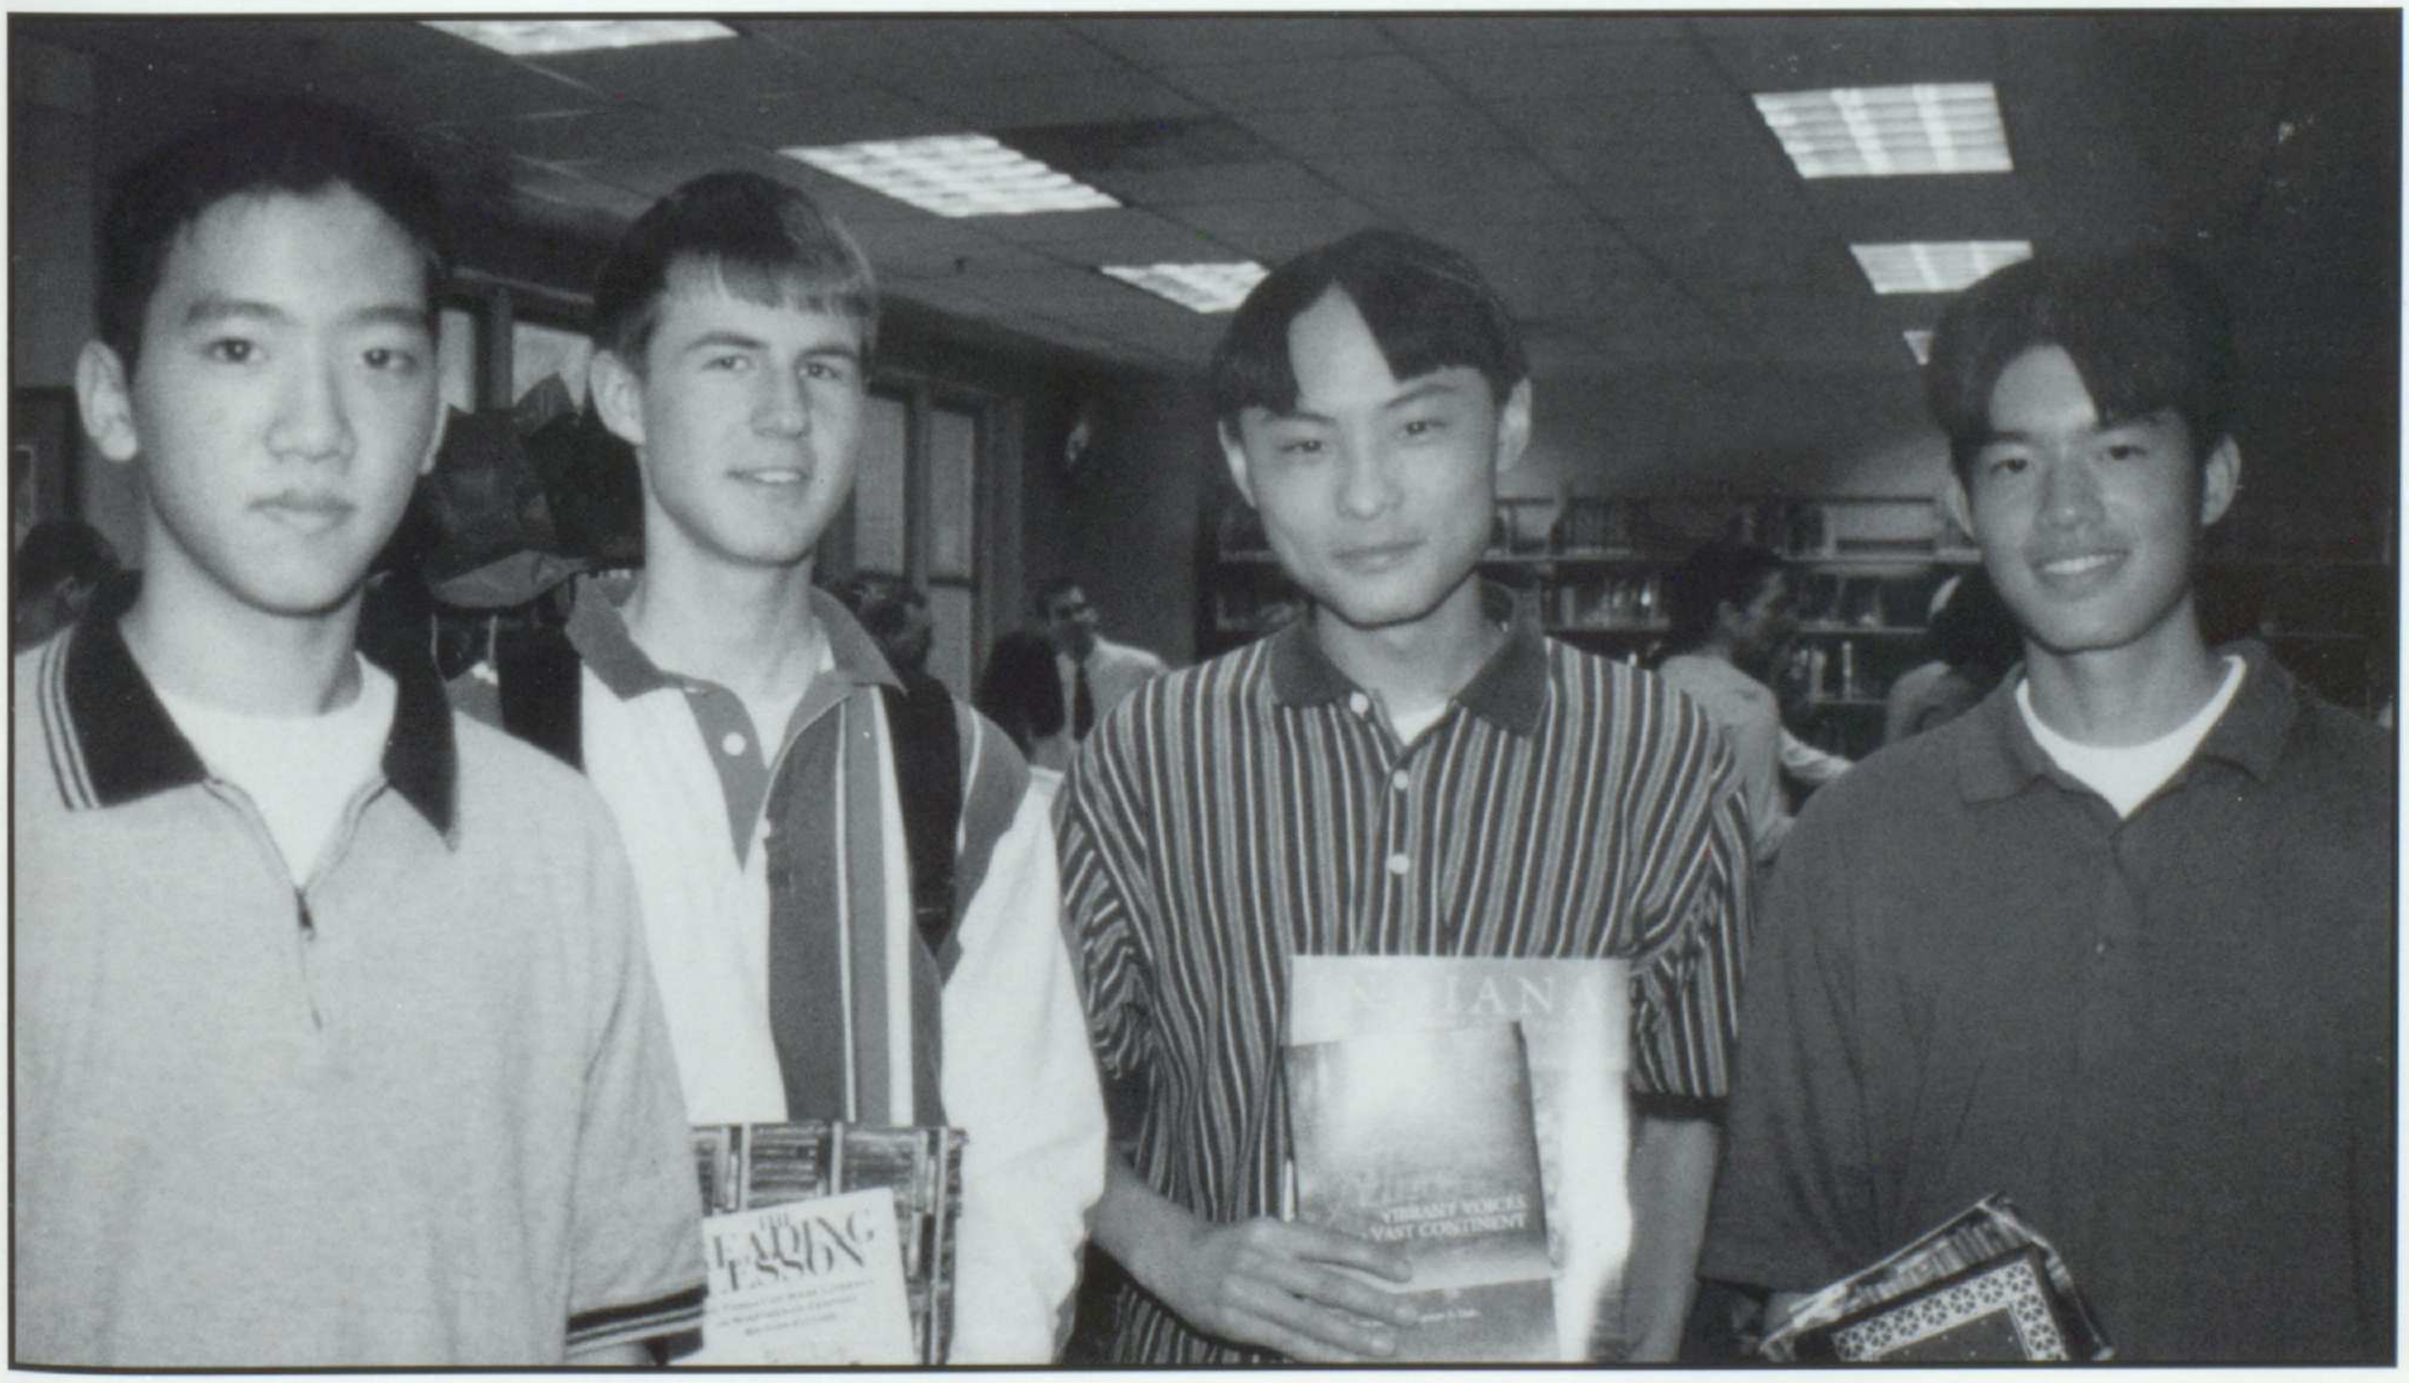
Class of 2000

Begging to enter the football game are (left to right) senior Rob Hale and junior Chris Kozimer. Will they go as far as climbing the fence?



Taking a break from the dance floor are Kristen Coulman and Eric Reutter. What is Eric planning to do with that pineapple?





I bet that (left to right) Jason Huang, Tim Manchak, Meng Dai, and Ted Yang's parents are very proud of them for receiving a Junior Book Award. Congratulation, boys!

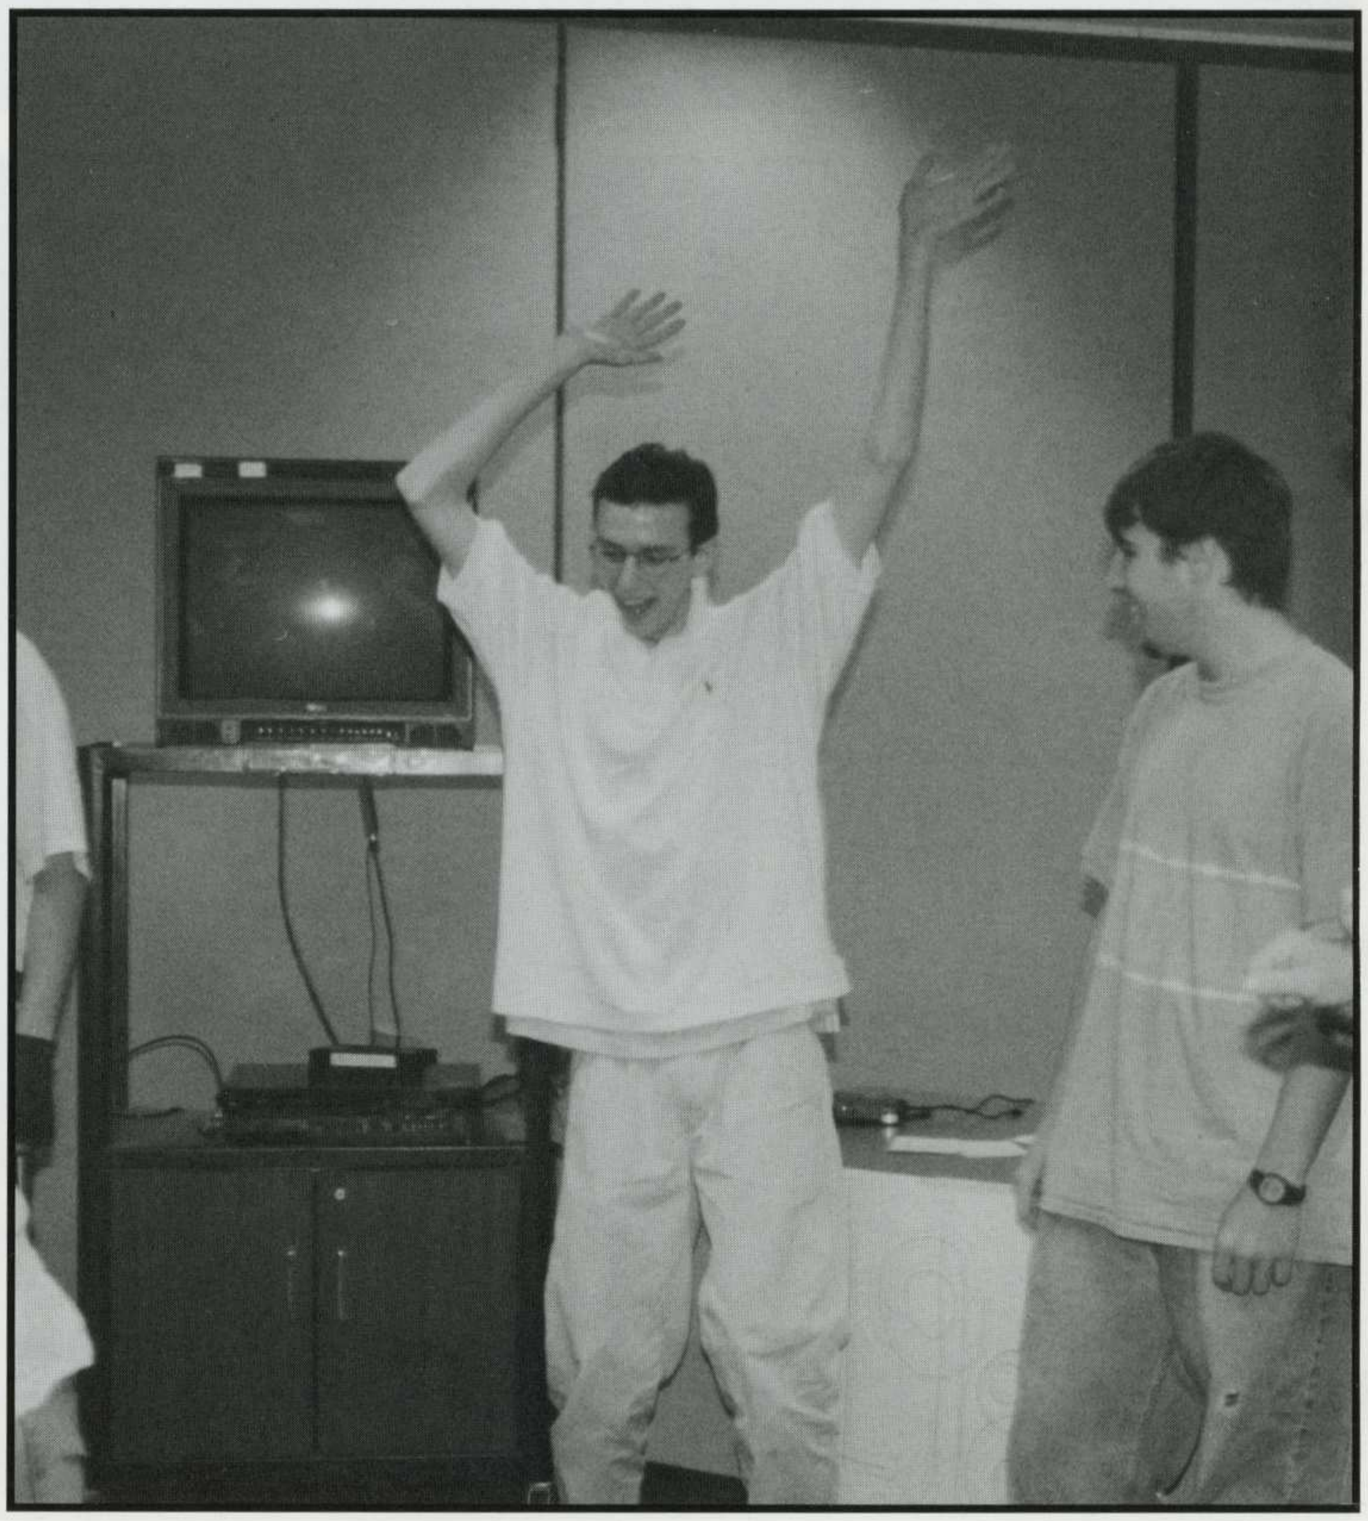
Looking confused is Jess Moore. All you have to do is take a marker and write on the door. It's not that difficult, Jess.



"Put your hands up and shout," Ryan Dickinson sings as Mark Halloran thinks, "I'm so glad I am graduating early!"

Class of 2000

Catching a few zzzz's while riding in the car are (left to right) Mike Morris and Kyle Turano. These two boys definitely need their beauty sleep so they can be their usual out-going selves.

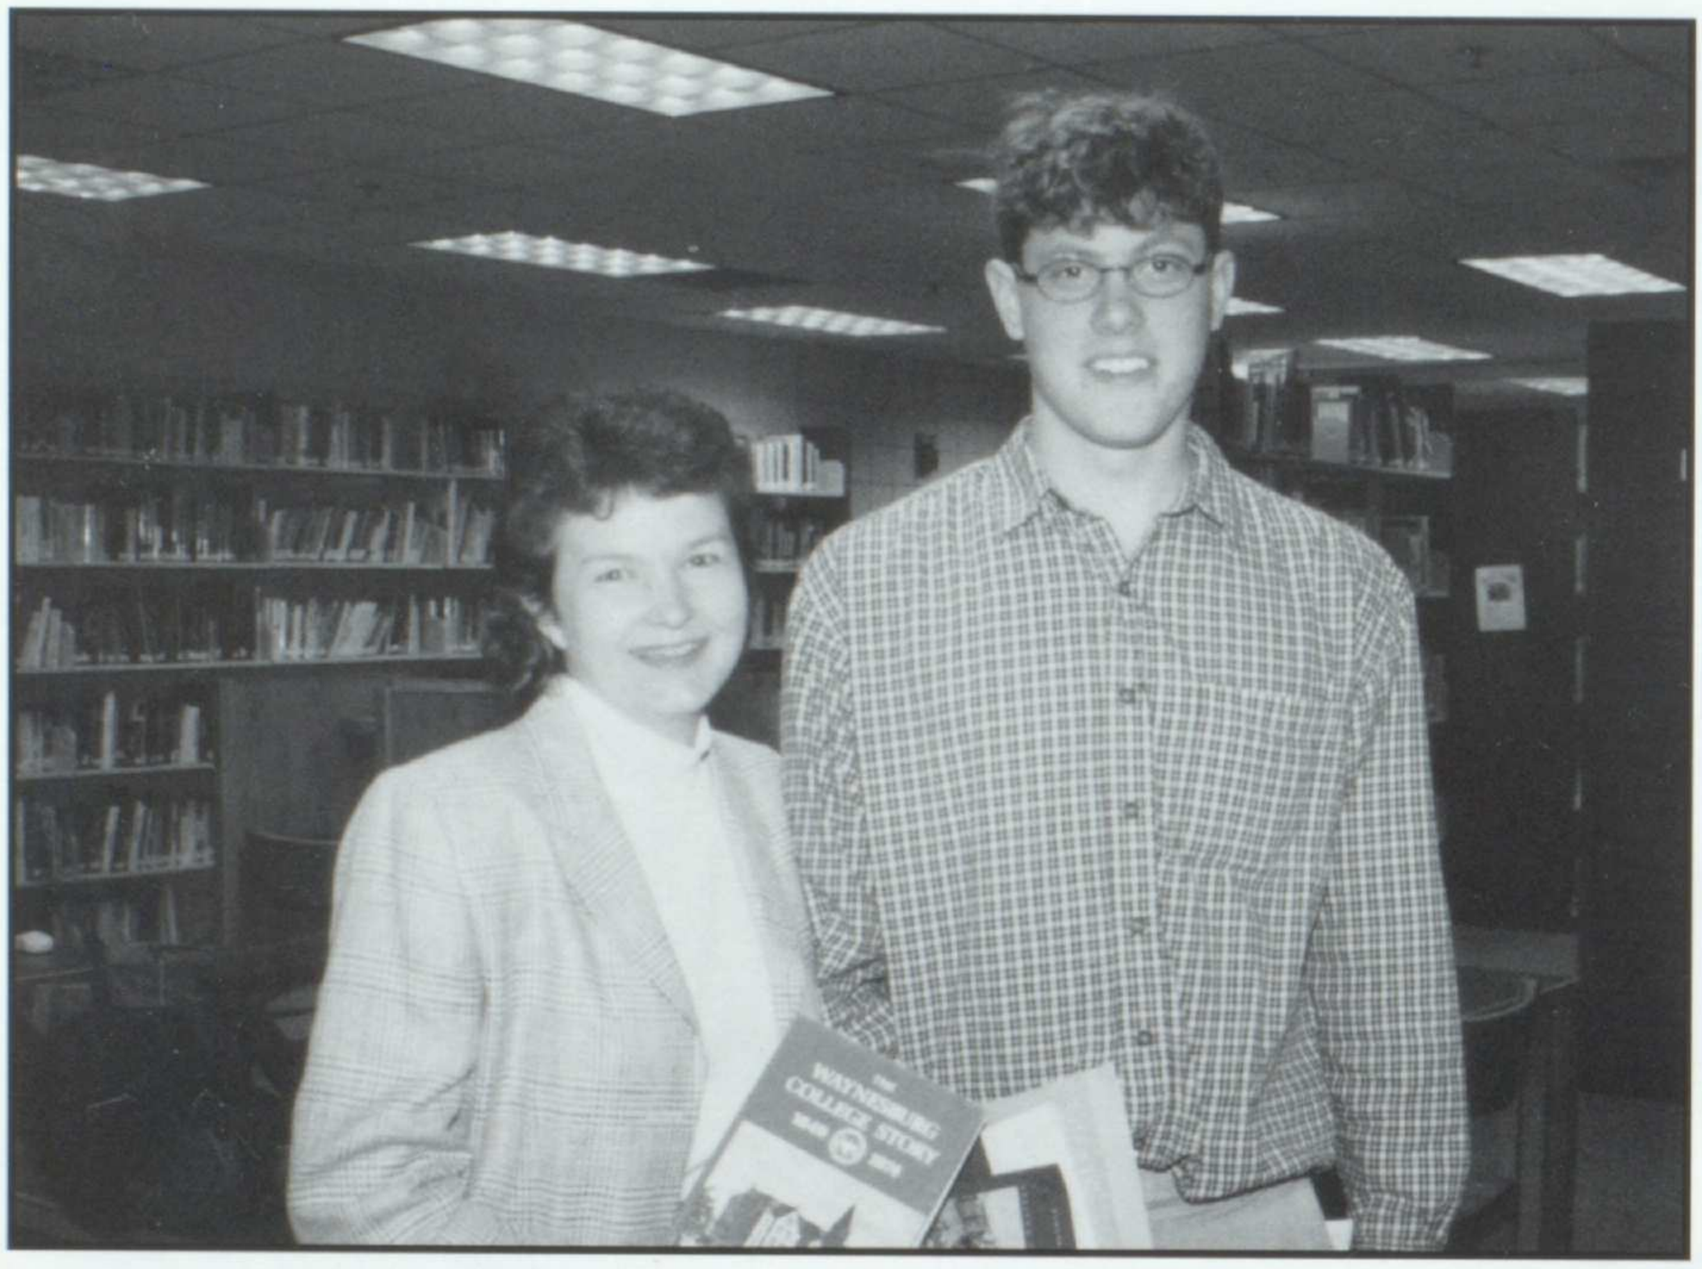
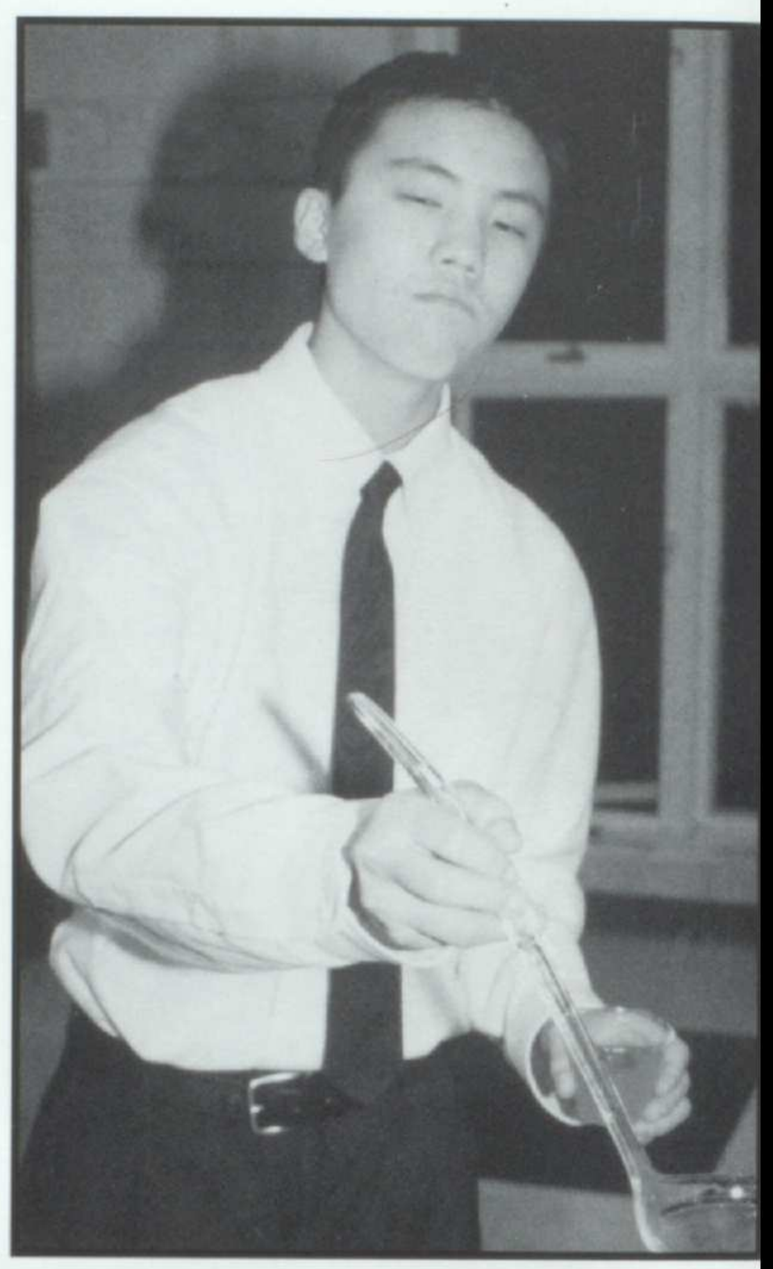
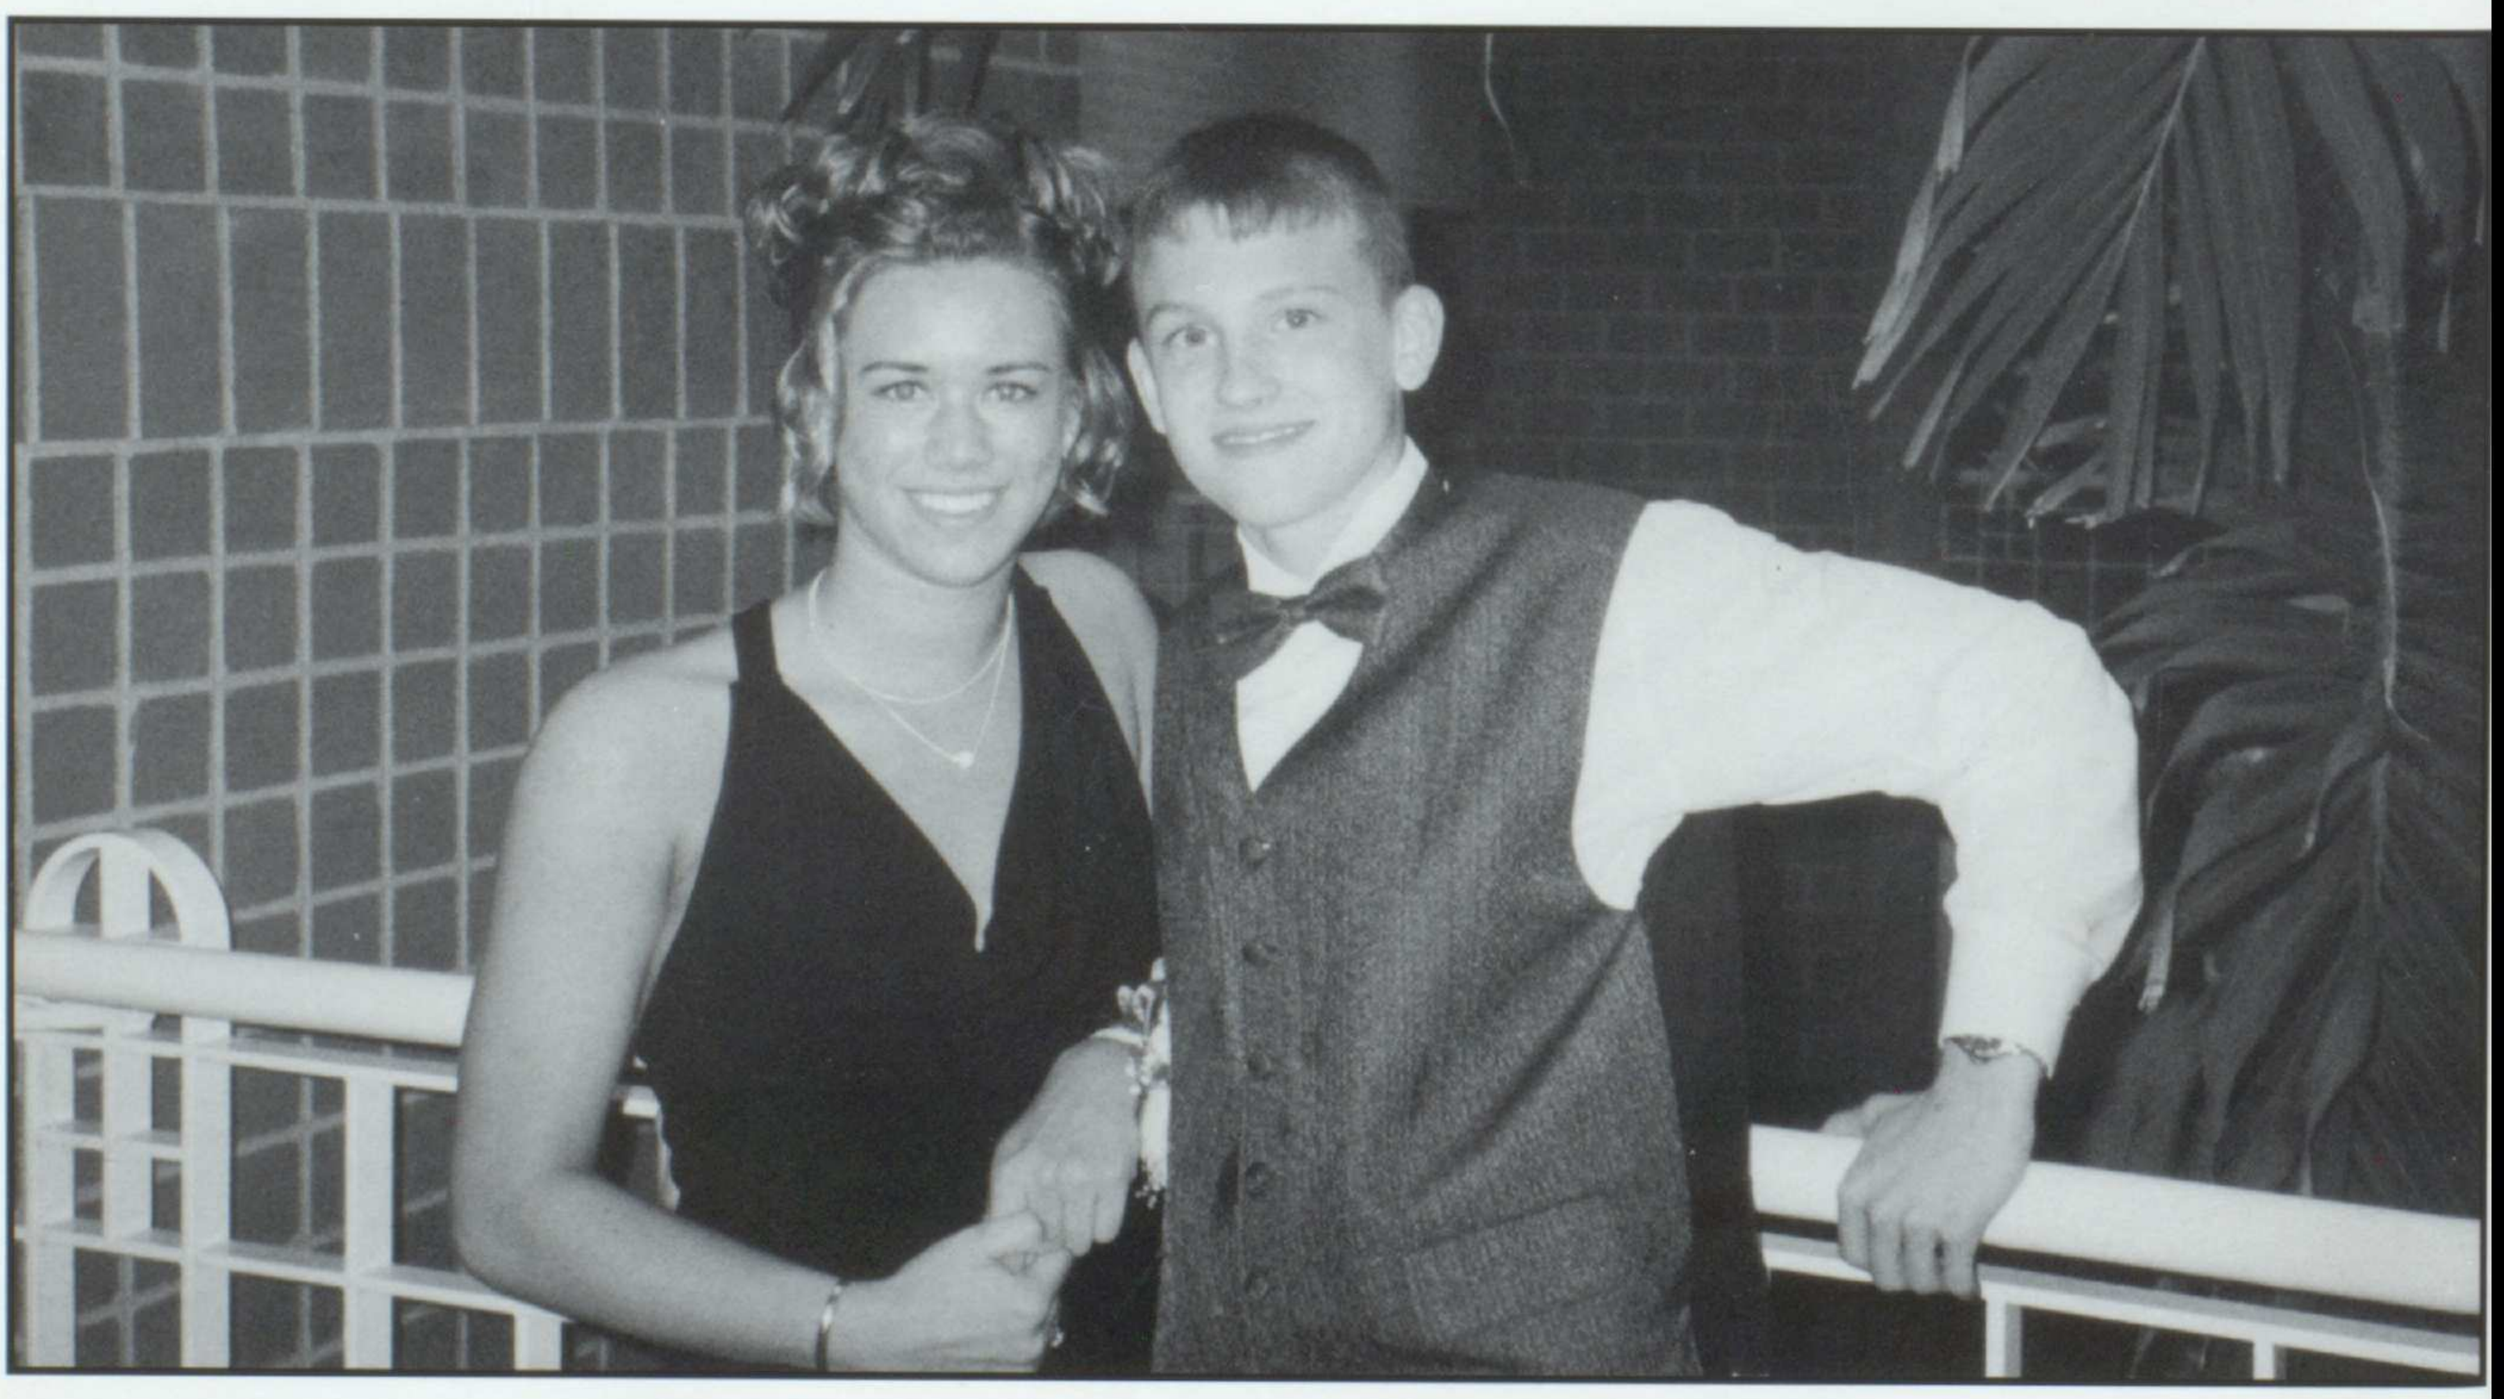
Juniors

After the ceremony Mrs. Krebs congratulates Paul Meeker on receiving a Junior Book Award. Paul thinks to himself "Now, what exactly am I supposed to do with this book?"



Trying to pick up some ladies at the punch bowl is Titus Chang. I wonder if he succeeded.





Enjoying their first high school prom are Erin Whitaker and Tony Schonhardt. Are you two not dancing because your dates are? Heck, you two would make a cute couple!

Competing for the best-looking plaid shirt are (left to right) Takahiro Ueno, Atsushi Yoshino, and Kenji Kishizawa. Just hearing that he won the category of "most colorful," Takahiro smiles proudly.

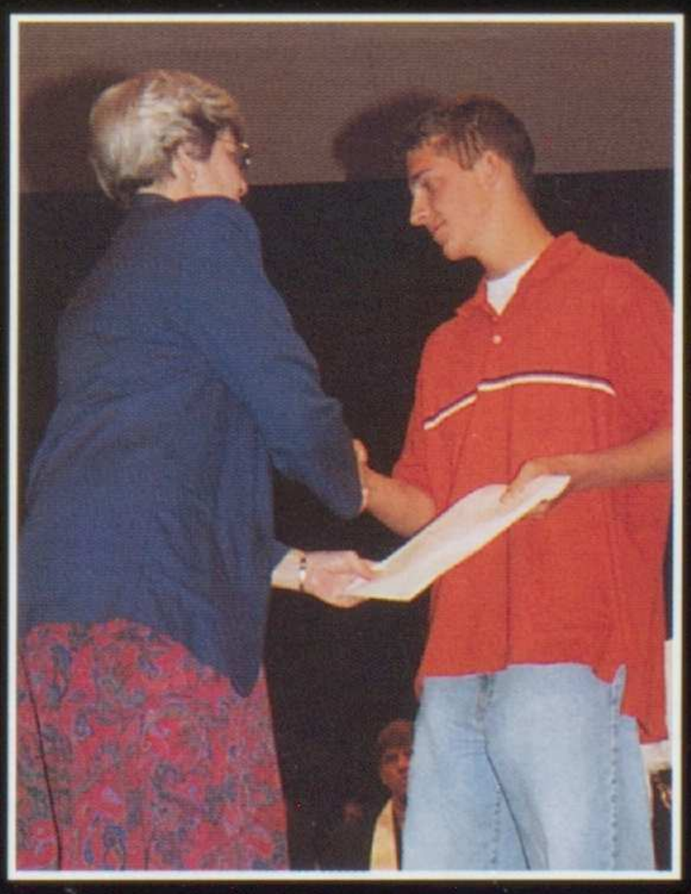
Not only is she bright, but Arazo Ouhadi is beautiful as well. She's happy to be honored at senior recognition.

All "hippied" out during homecoming week are (left to right) Stephanie Urban, Liz Stahura, Jennifer Anderson, Evana Stanonik, and Sara Potter.

Hugging their baby potatoes are Katie Chambers and Joe Huffman.

Sly as ever, D. J. Skorupski puts his arm around Denise Lantzy.



Shaking hands with Dr. Young is Brian Watson who has just been honored at senior recognition held in late May. Our seniors were offered $3,000,000 in scholarships this year.

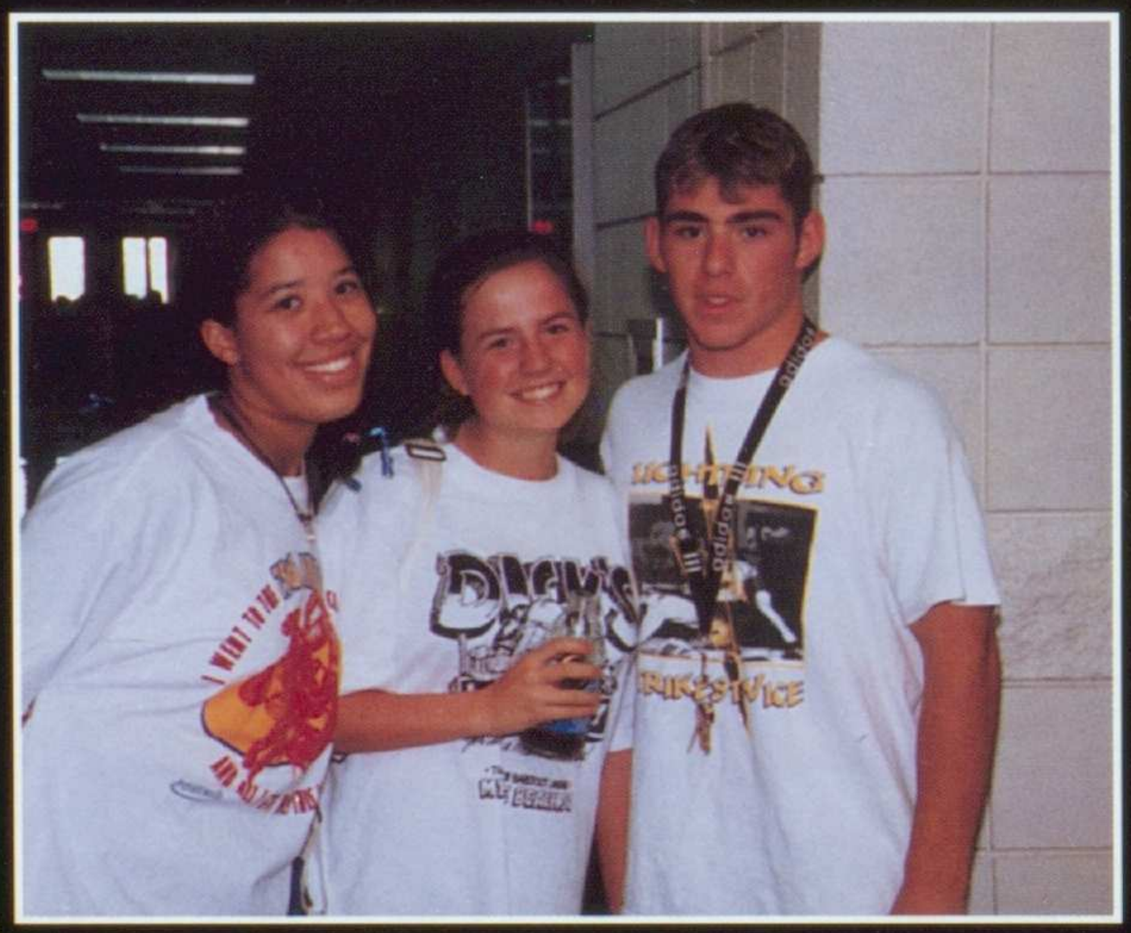
Rubbing their faces together are (left to right) Kristin Lepore, Bethany Gaskill, Elysabeth Shelton, Katie Chambers, and Alison Staloch. These girls just returned from a glue convention and somehow they've managed to get glue all over themselves. The rumor is it's behind their ears and under their armpits. I sure hope we can pull them apart or it could be a long year for all of them. It could also be a long year for the rest of us if we have to see these five girls all together all the time.



Trying to remember which girl is his, Joe Huffman is forced to choose between Whitney Boggess (right) and Jessica Wilson. I sure hope he figures it out soon.

Stiff in the neck from the thought of school are (left to right) Samina Kahn, Yerdanes Tesfamicael, and Crystal Roberts. Wouldn't you think that by her senior year, Crystal would have learned to wake up before coming to school?

Contributing her artistic talents to the sportsmanship quilt is Becky Schoonover.

Getting cozy are (left to right) Michelle Swartz, Erica Seppler, and Desiree Damron. I hope to see these smiles last until graduation day.

Competing for the Jamician look-alike team in the bonfire pumpkin toss, Joel Kovacs prepares to toss his pumpkin. I sure hope those glasses don't get in the way. Do you think Joel realizes we can see his underwear?

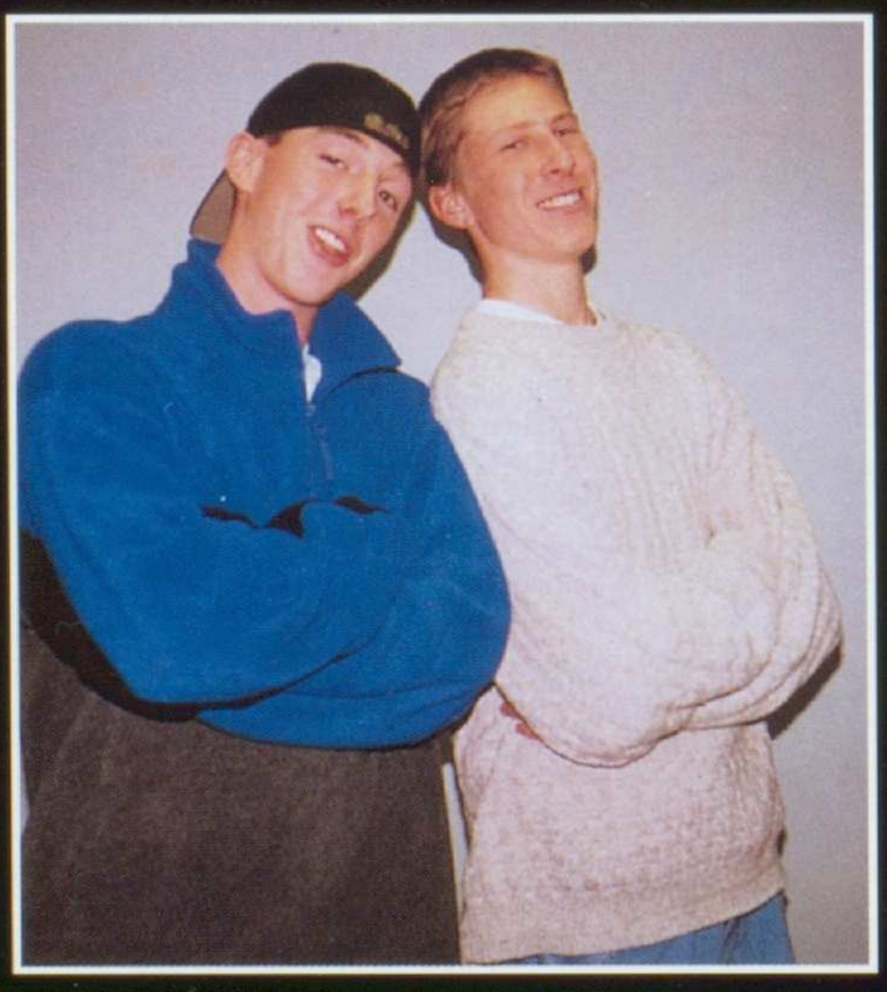
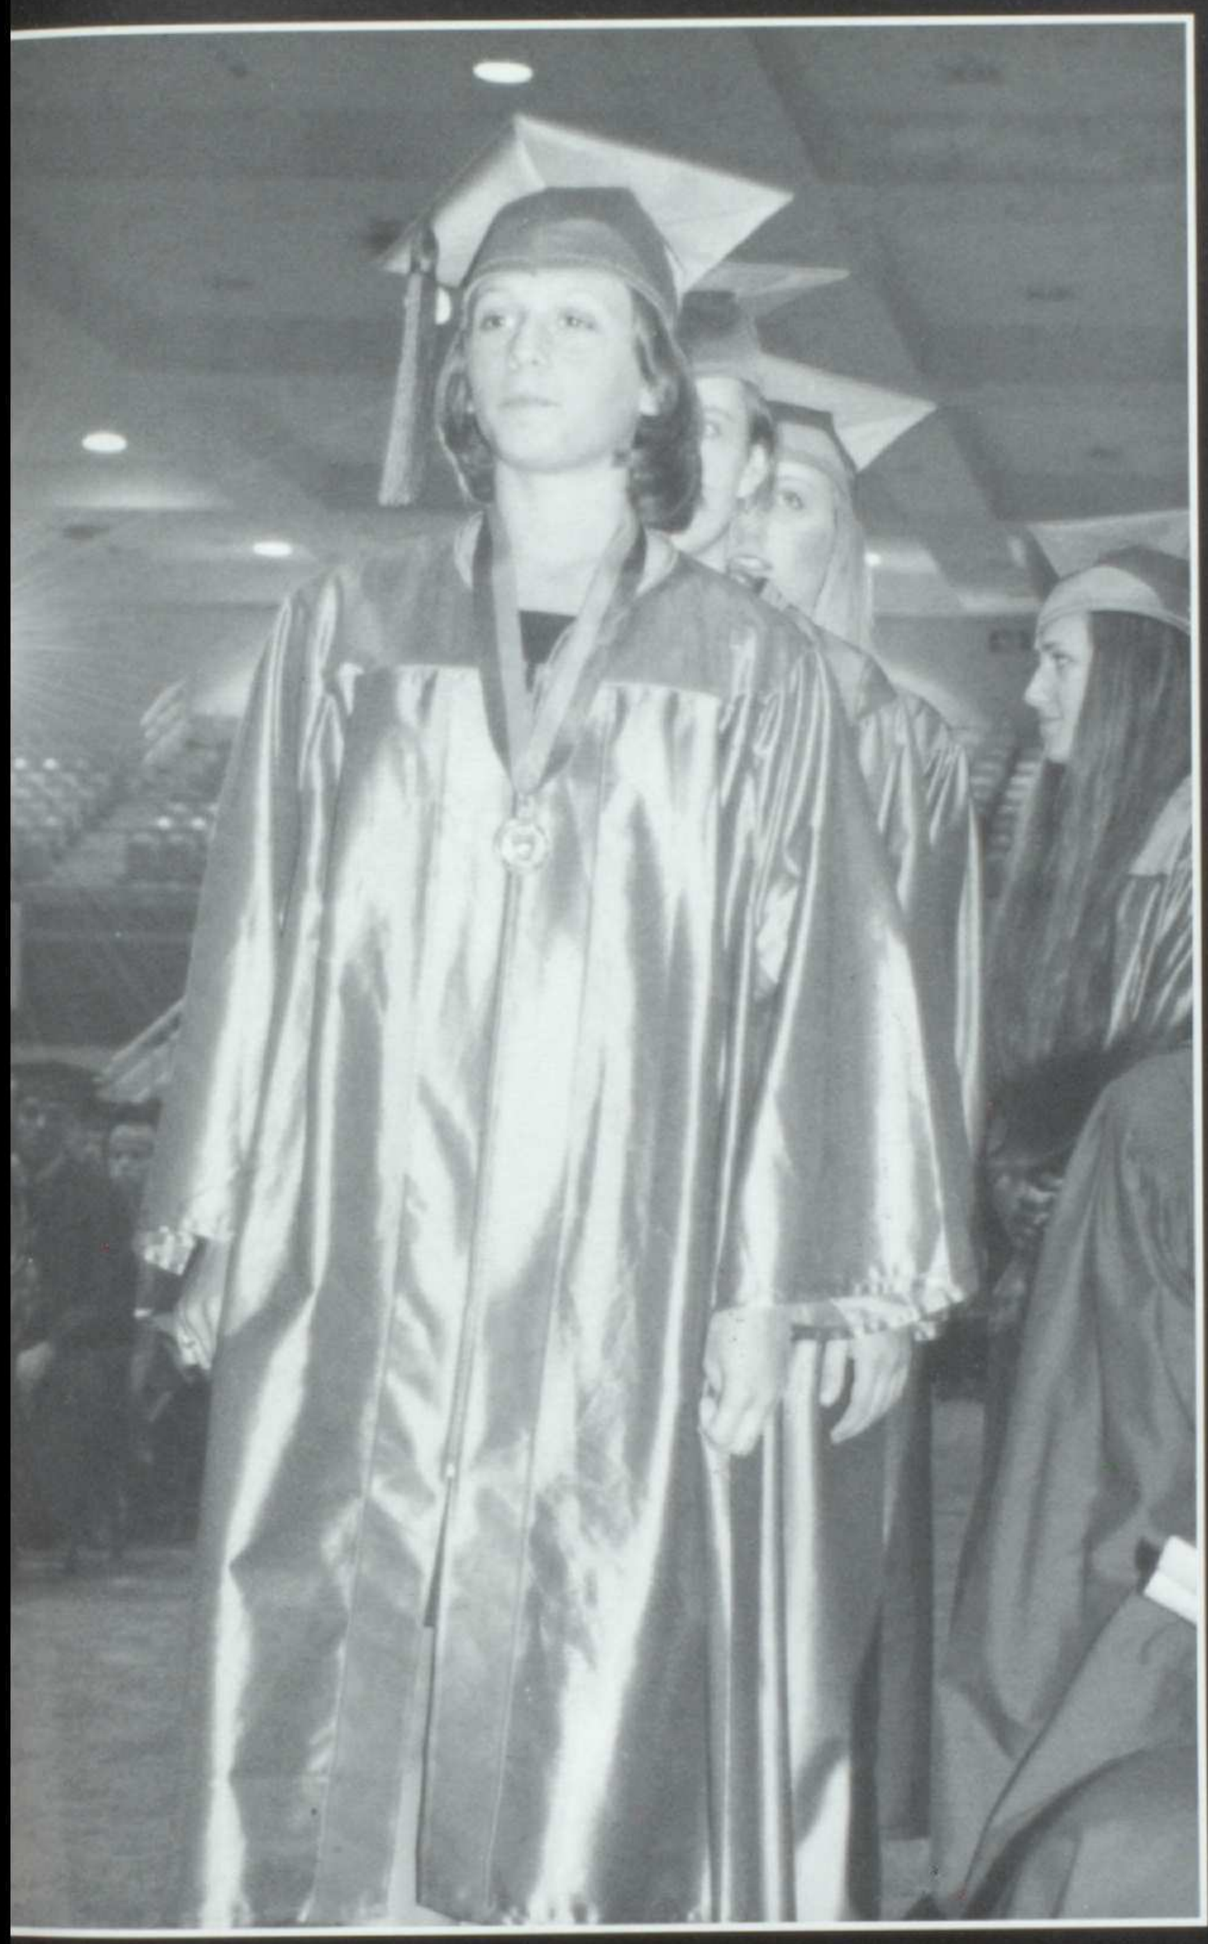
Are these two guys, (left to right) Jeff Lyons and Joel Estes, trying to pick up ladies, or do they want us to pluck their nose hairs?

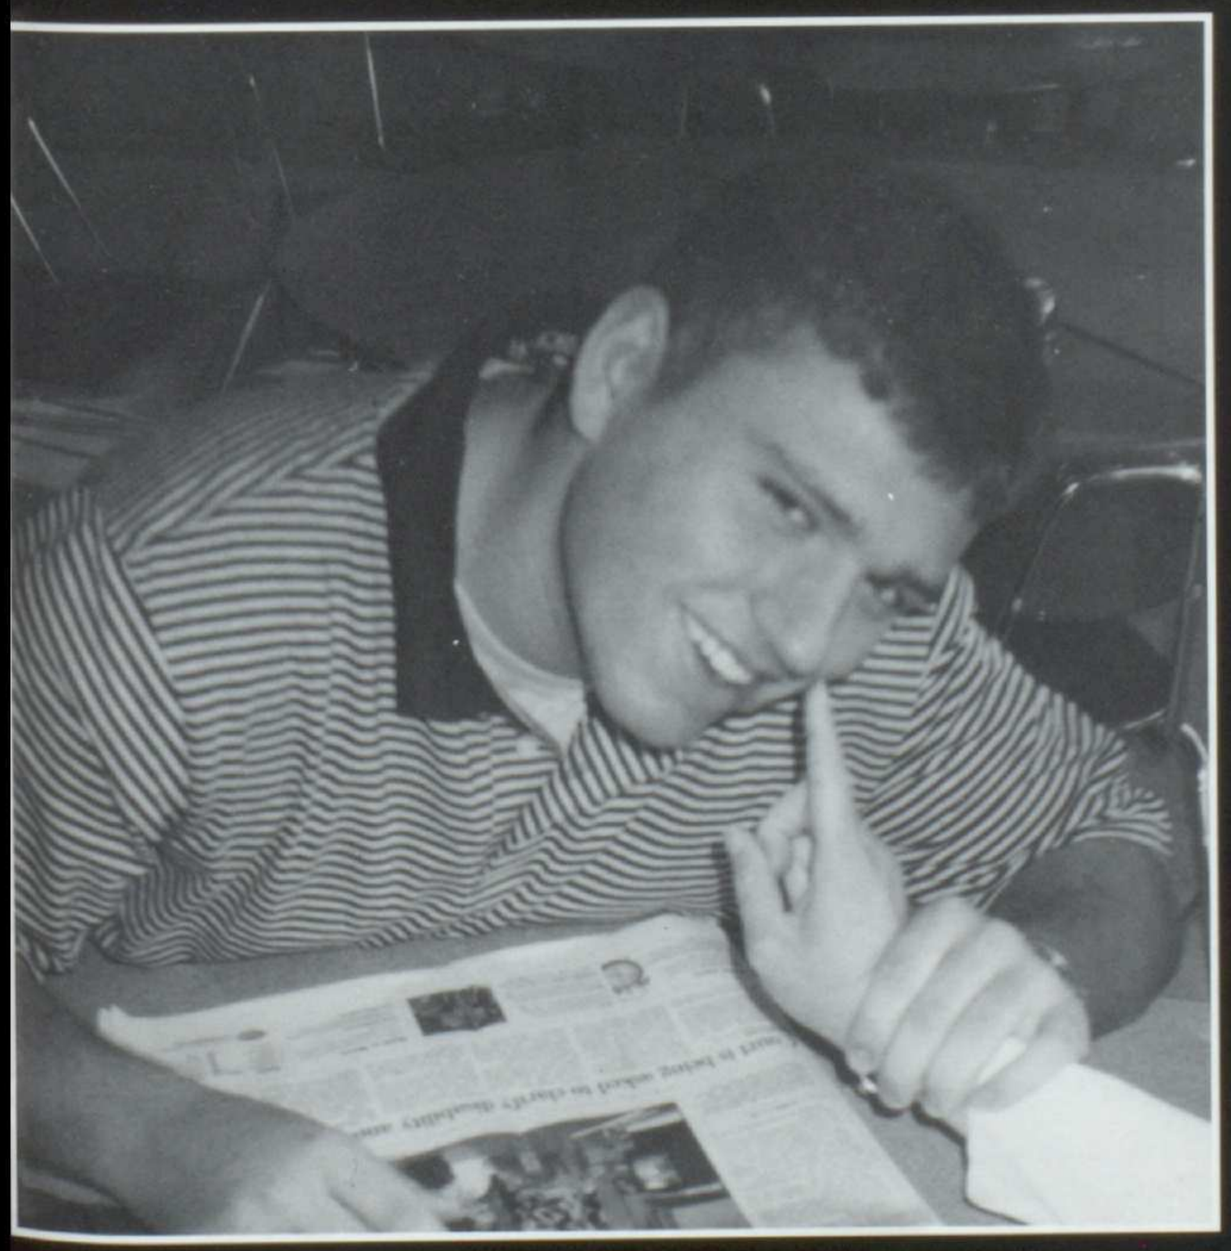


Happy to be back at school after a long summer are (left to right) Sunetta Senapati, Heidi Bookwalter, Rohini Vagarali, and Rebecca Fiebrink. I wonder how long it will be before senioritis kicks in. Can't you just hear them thinking, "Seniors Rule!"?



Graduating early is senior Julie Dunn. If you ask me, Julie looks a little nervous as she prepares to walk up on stage.

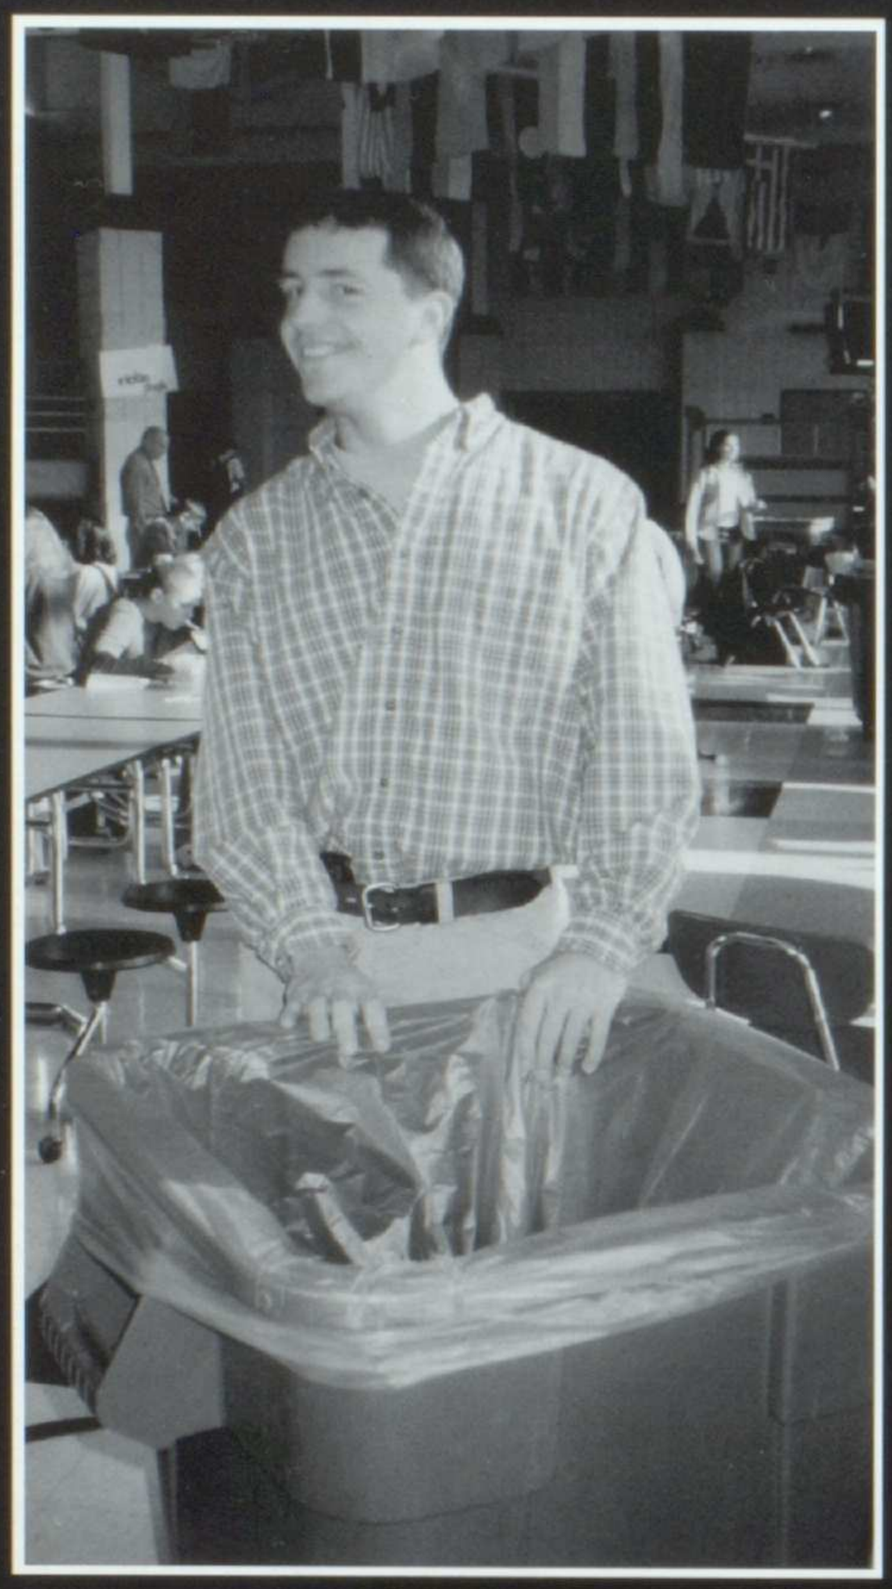
Receiving his diploma from Mrs. Graves, James Hanna proudly shakes her hand.



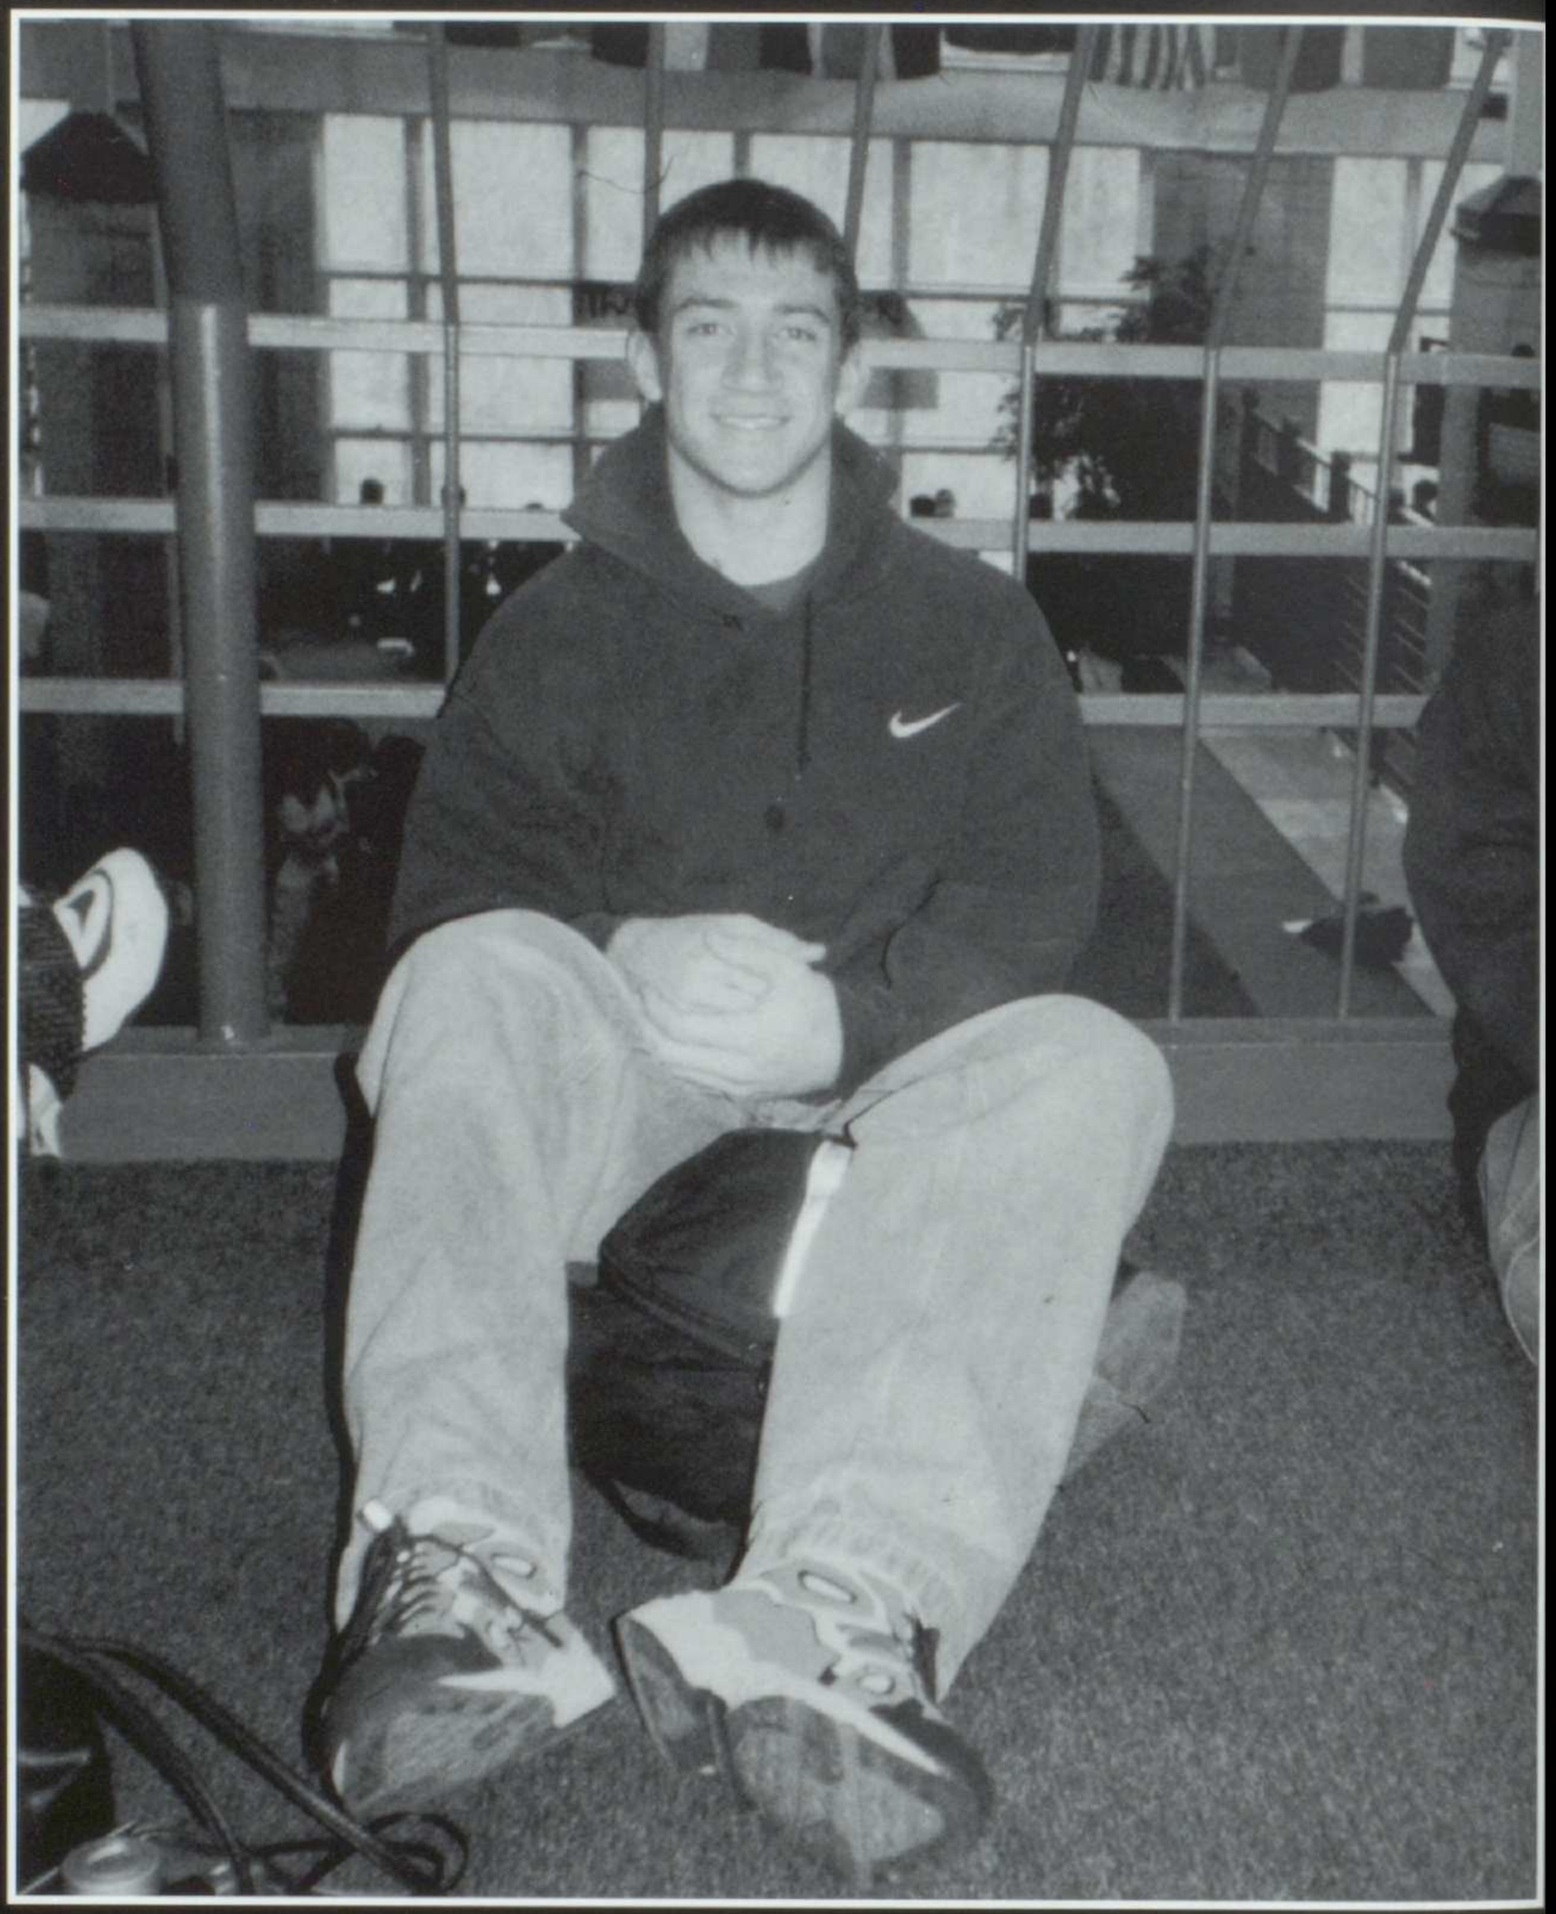
As Andy Oxender reads the breaking news, a finger seems to make its way towards his face.

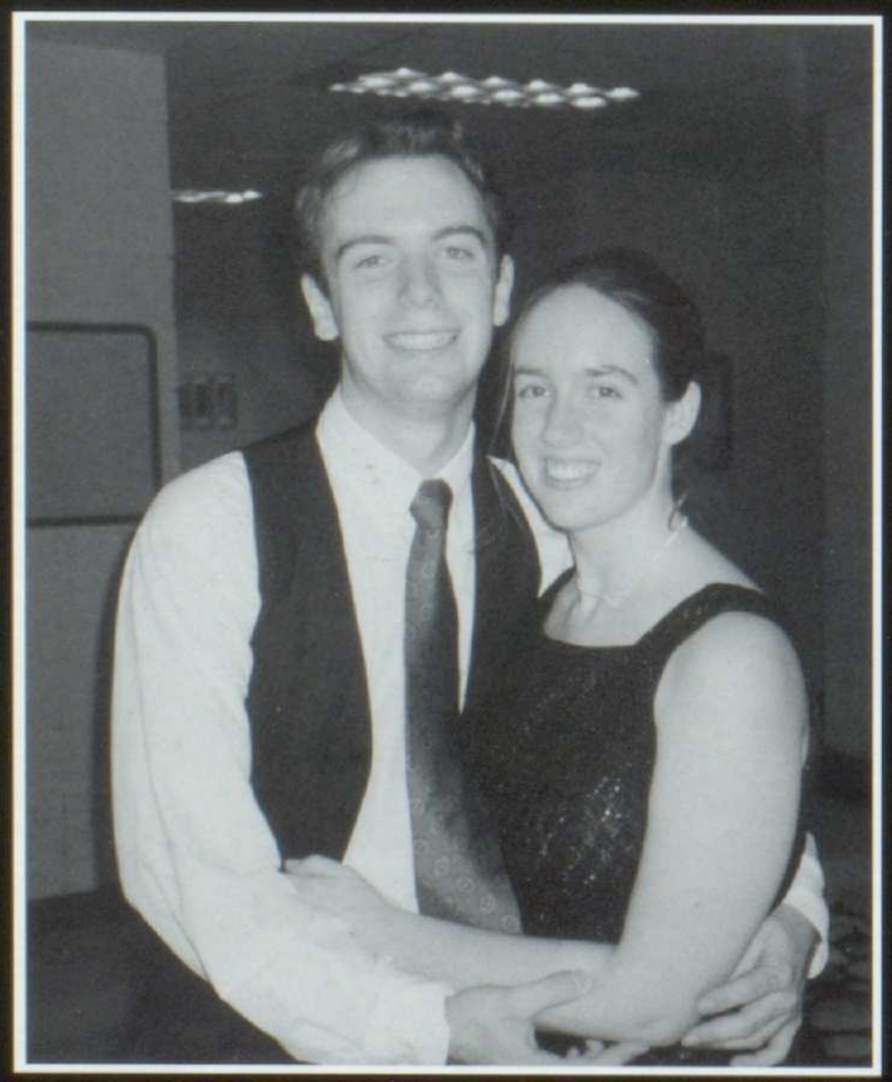
Lookin' very chic are Jill Briney and John Tenwalde. We certainly hope they enjoyed dancing to the rhythm of Unchained Melody.

Attempting to hide from his senior responsibilities is Matt Hammond. Somebody should tell him he might have more luck if he puts up his hood.



Senior Jeremy Bally smiles as he dreams about his long future as a garbage collector. Taking the time to practice and perfect his techniques, Jeremy is sure to excel in what he does.





Enjoying a stolen moment at the Valentine's dance are Morgan Brown and Margaret Soulen. We caught them red-handed.

Taking full advantage of their senior lunch are (left to right) Brian Ahnmark, Doug Niswander, Jason Lester, James Rederstorff, and Clayton McGary. They must appreciate the decor and atmosphere of Kilbourne so much that they will bring their food back to school.

No one could ever say that Worthington Kilbourne doesn't help others. Lauren Meyer is just one of the seniors who helped to donate a pint of blood this February.

Looks as if the replacements for Charlie's Angels are missing one of their companions. I wonder what Katy Leininger (left) and Michelle Inzetta will do.

Busy at work in ceramics class, David Leidheiser (right) creates a piece of art while Nick Tieu instructs him on his mechanics.

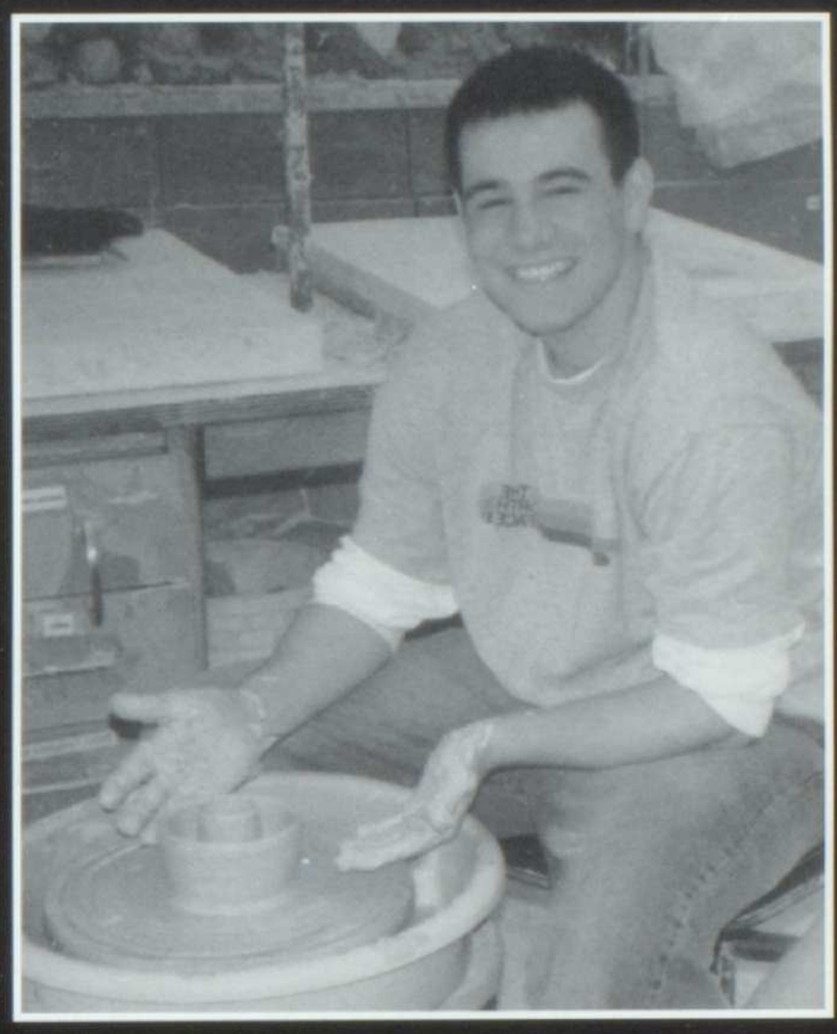
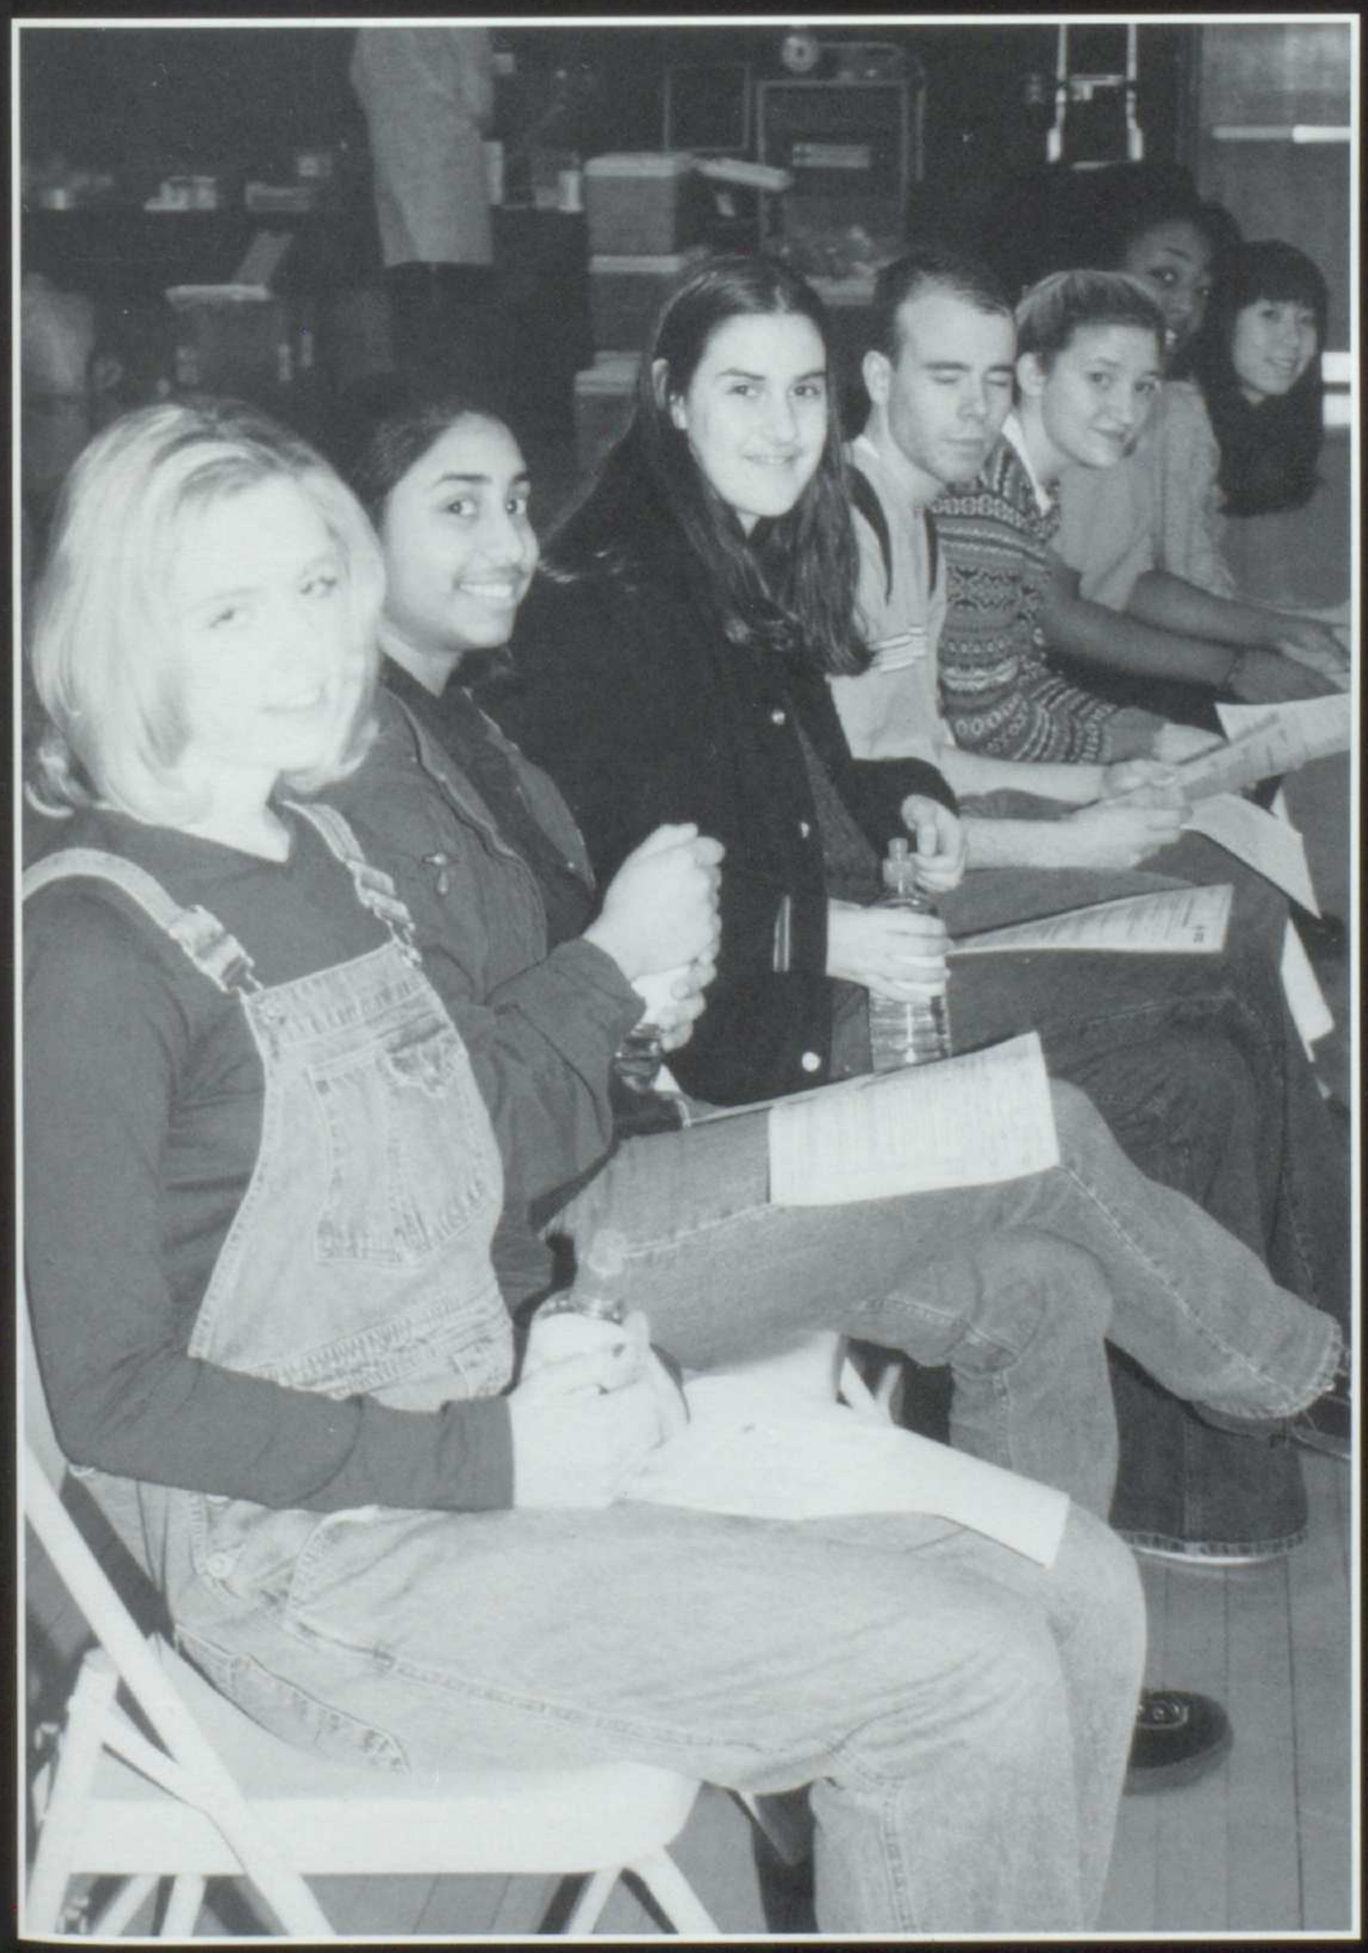
Wondering when the chance will come to wash his hands is Brian Gibson.





Awaiting their turn to give blood are (left to right) Ashley McCabe, Suneeta Senapati, Heidi Bookwalter, Max Avon, Kori Billiat, Kim Brady, and Yoko Kanai. I hope they realize how many lives they are about to save.

Celebrating the beauty of stripes are (left to right) Eris Meier, Chris Venci, Desiree Freeman, and Traci Davis. It makes you wonder why a national holiday was never established..

"It is the supreme art of the teacher to awaken joy and creative expression and knowledge."
-Albert Einstein

The saying goes, "Two's company, but three's a crowd." In this case though, Hunter Allen (left to right), Mrs. Reifeis, and Mr. Jorden look very comfortable together. In fact, they look a little too comfortable. If you ask me, it looks a lot like these three are up to something--or should I say, maybe Mr. Jordan is up to something. Mrs. Reifeis and Hunter have no idea what kind of trouble they are getting themselves into. I would like to offer one word of advice: stay away from the water balloons!

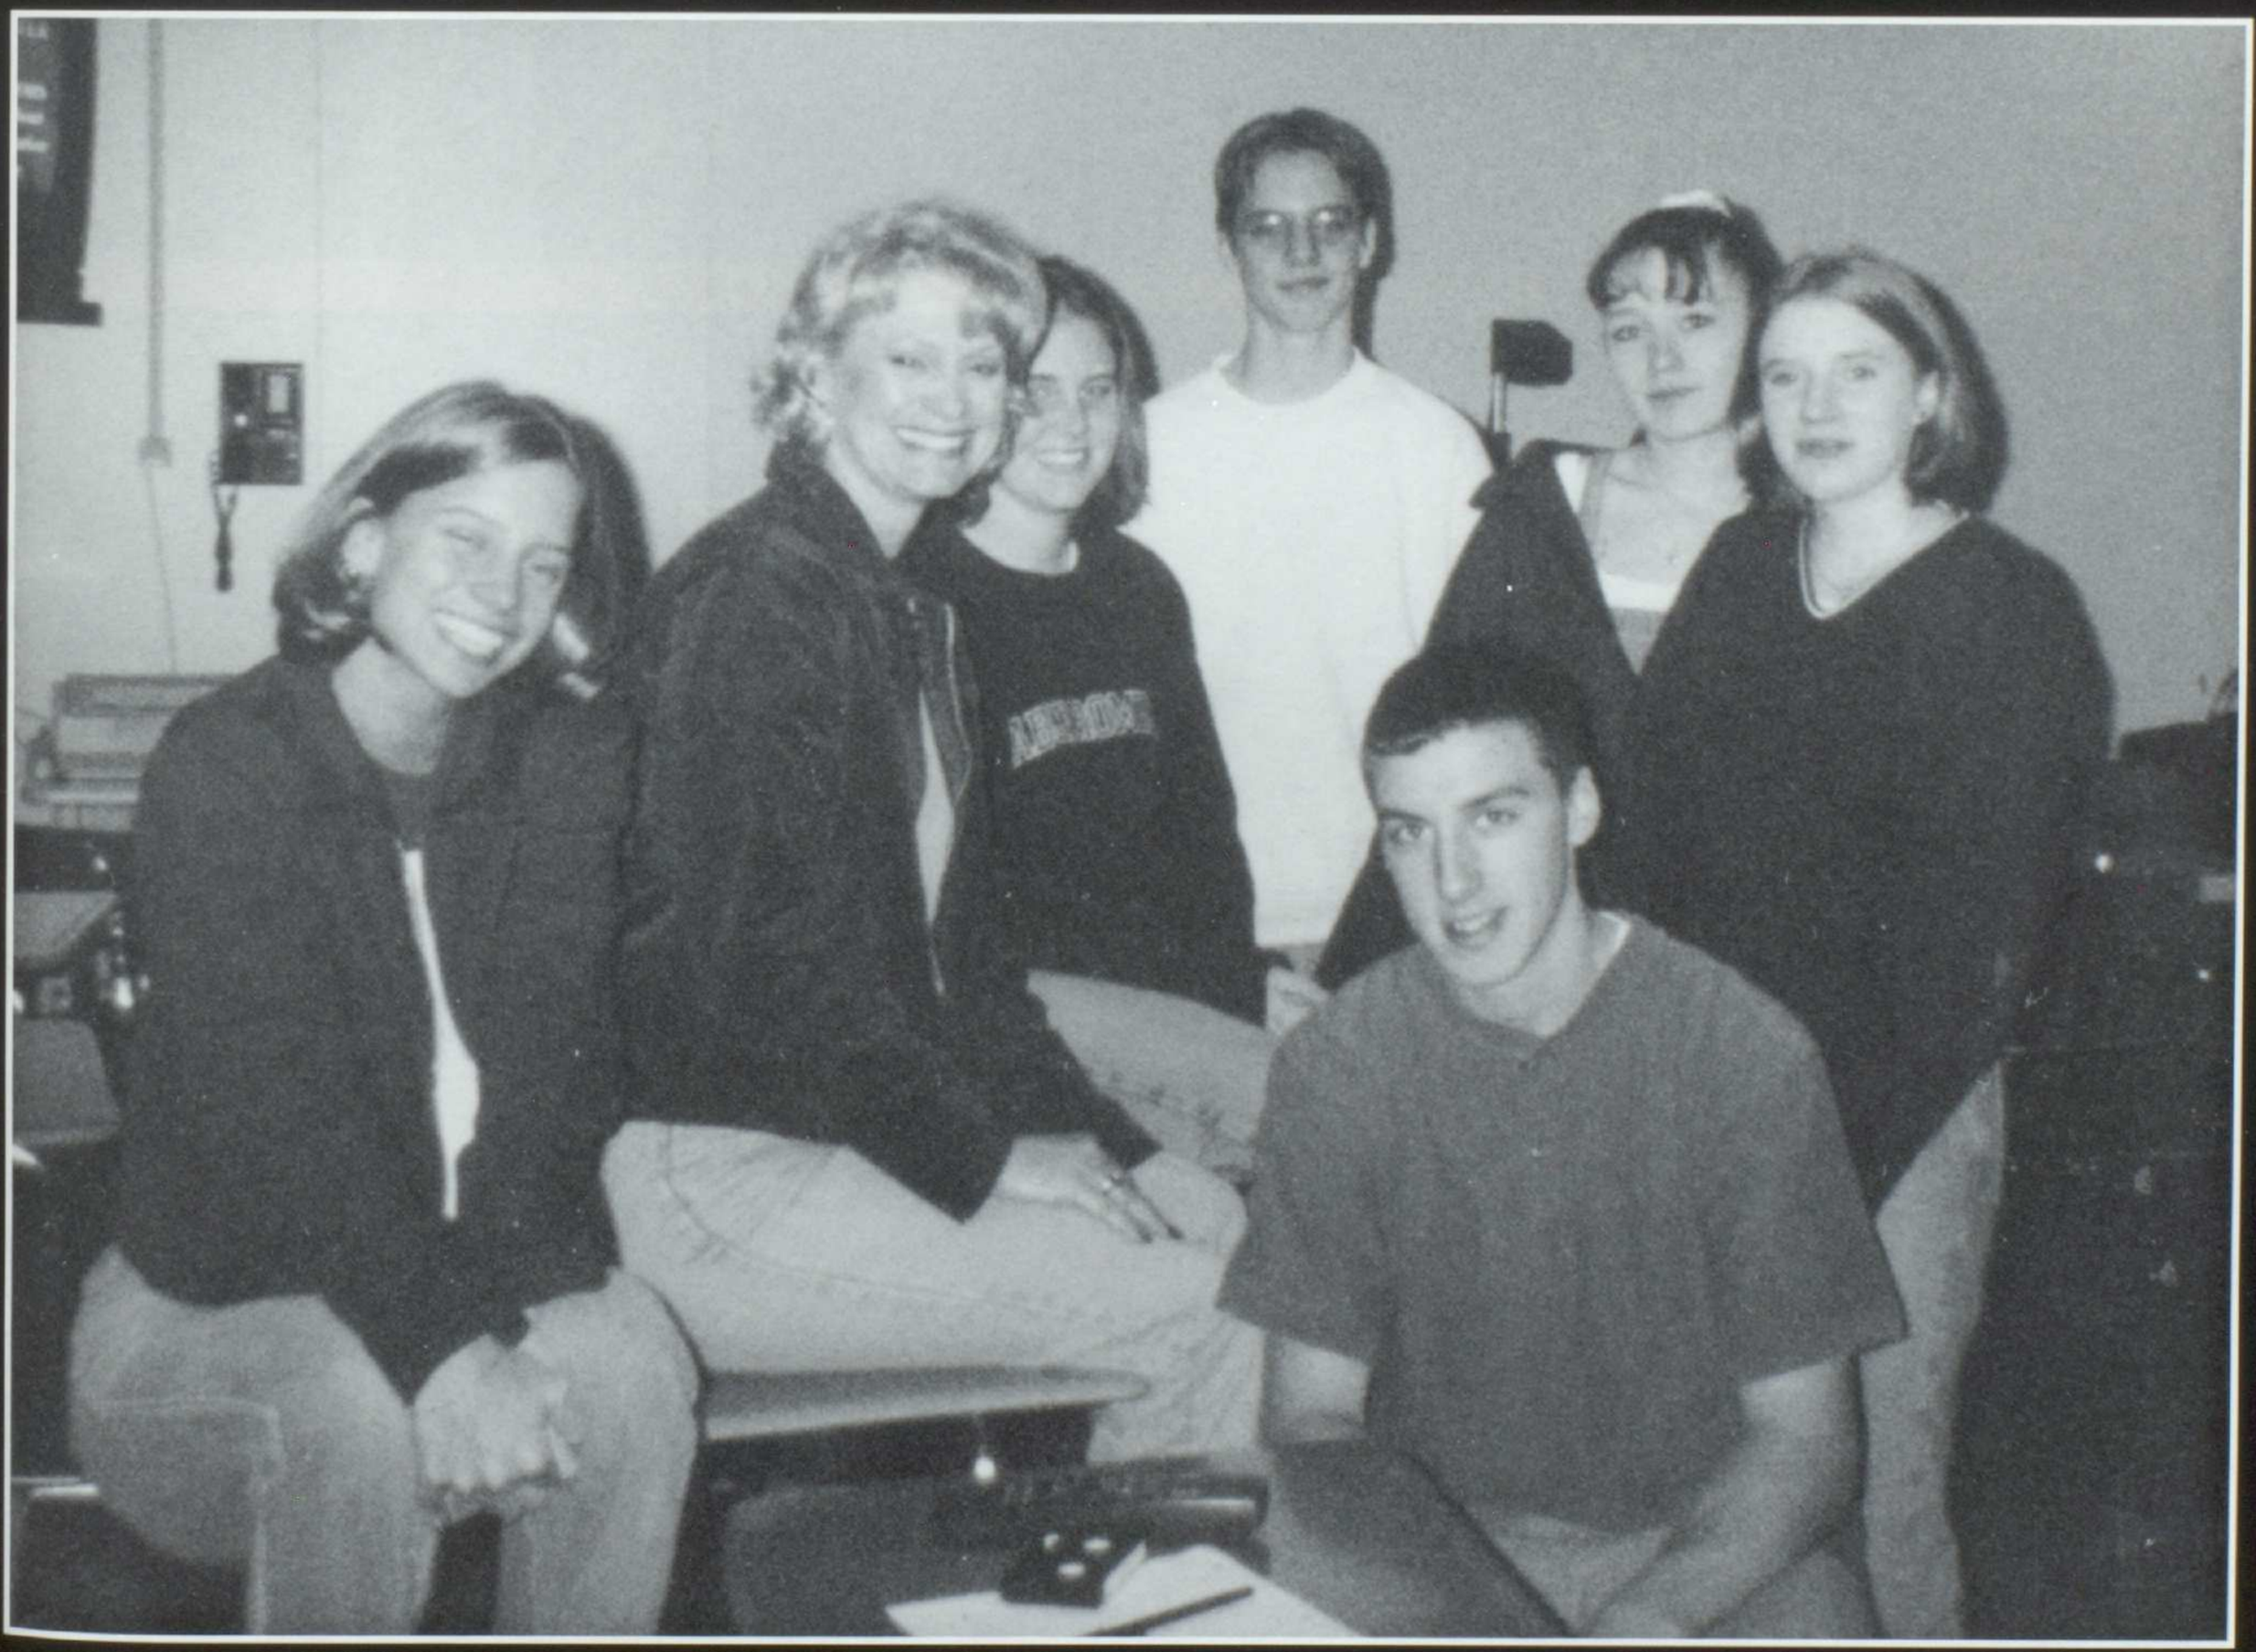
It looks like the students aren't the only ones with school spirit. If an award for best dressed hippie was given, Mr. Buford would win it hands down. His English students must have been very proud of his spirit or very embarrassed. I think you look great, Mr. Buford; long, red hair is very becoming on you! With the retro look making a come back, who knows what will be the next fashion. Maybe Mr. Buford is really a Renaissance man, or maybe he's just wishing for the good ol' times.

So, that's what the teachers do on their breaks! And here every-one thought responsible guys, (left to right) Mr. Parise and Mr. Cave would spend their breaks grading papers or working on lesson plans. At least now the mystery has been solved as to why it takes so long to get our work back! It makes us wonder what else goes on with the faculty!



Surrounded by potential news reporters, (Clockwise from left) Mandy Evans, Heidi Gamble, Jason Furie, Tiffany Wallace, Jenny Wilkins, and Brian Taylor, Mrs. Horn looks right at home. As the advisor of our very own video production class, Mrs. Horn is always hard at work. I'm surprised they had a moment to spare for the camera! The calmness that surrounds all of them suggests that none of those dreaded deadlines is approaching too soon. That's when things really get frenzied!

"I wonder what I'm doing this weekend?" Mrs. Wegley is wishing that Mr. DiMauro would let her teach for once, but because he is having so much fun, she has more time to think about other things.

Enjoying the music and the people at the prom are the senior class advisors, Mr. Devine and Mrs. Krebs.

"I want to be first in line," says Mr. Deisher. It's the beginning of the year and teachers have to celebrate too. After all, they have 180 more days of putting up with us. The least we can do is give them ice cream! Academic Honors

Since 1960 gold, silver and bronze keys have been awarded to Worthington students who have achieved academic excellence. Gold key recipients have had a 3.5 or better at the end of seven full semesters, and silver and bronze recipients have had a 3.5 or better at the end of five and three semesters, respectively.

Through hard work and dedication comes excellence. Mike Rigo seems to agree.

"We told you we could do it, mom and dad." Gleeming with excitement are Kate Anderson (left) and Andrea Baby.

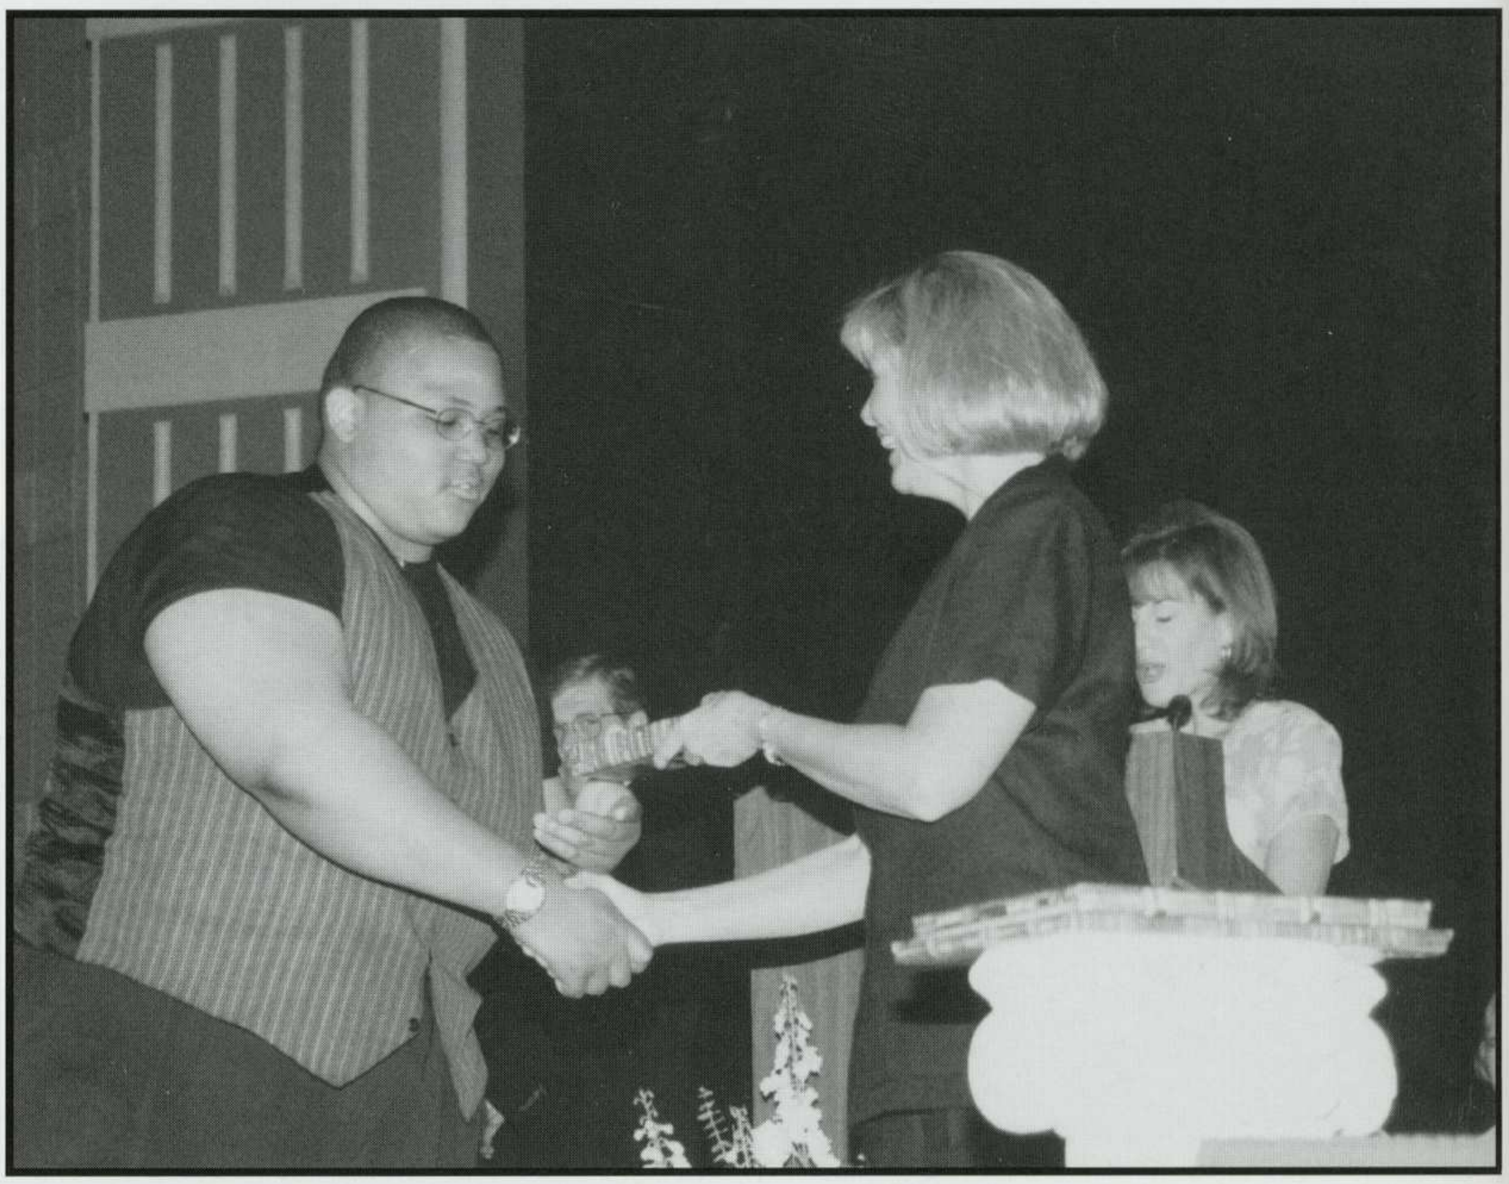
Junior Book Awards

The Junior Book Awards are symbolic of a journey that leads on a path toward the future. With the help of over 145 colleges and universities, over two hundred Worthington Kilbourne juniors received books.

Books included literary favorites, faculty authored, or those specifically chosen for the ceremony. Some of the authors signed their books, and college presidents often included handwritten notes.

A committee of U.S. history teachers, counselors, and Dr. Lindsay selected the outstanding juniors to receive the book awards based on the students' service, scholarship, and potential to achieve in higher education.

Kilbourne is honored with the largest book award ceremony in the midwest, another reason why we have achieved Blue Ribbon school status. Congratulations to all the recipients as well as a pat on the back to Dr. Lindsay who initiated the event when she began as our new principal.



If you set goals, anything can be accomplished. Andre Henry seems to agree as he receives his book award from Mrs. Seils.

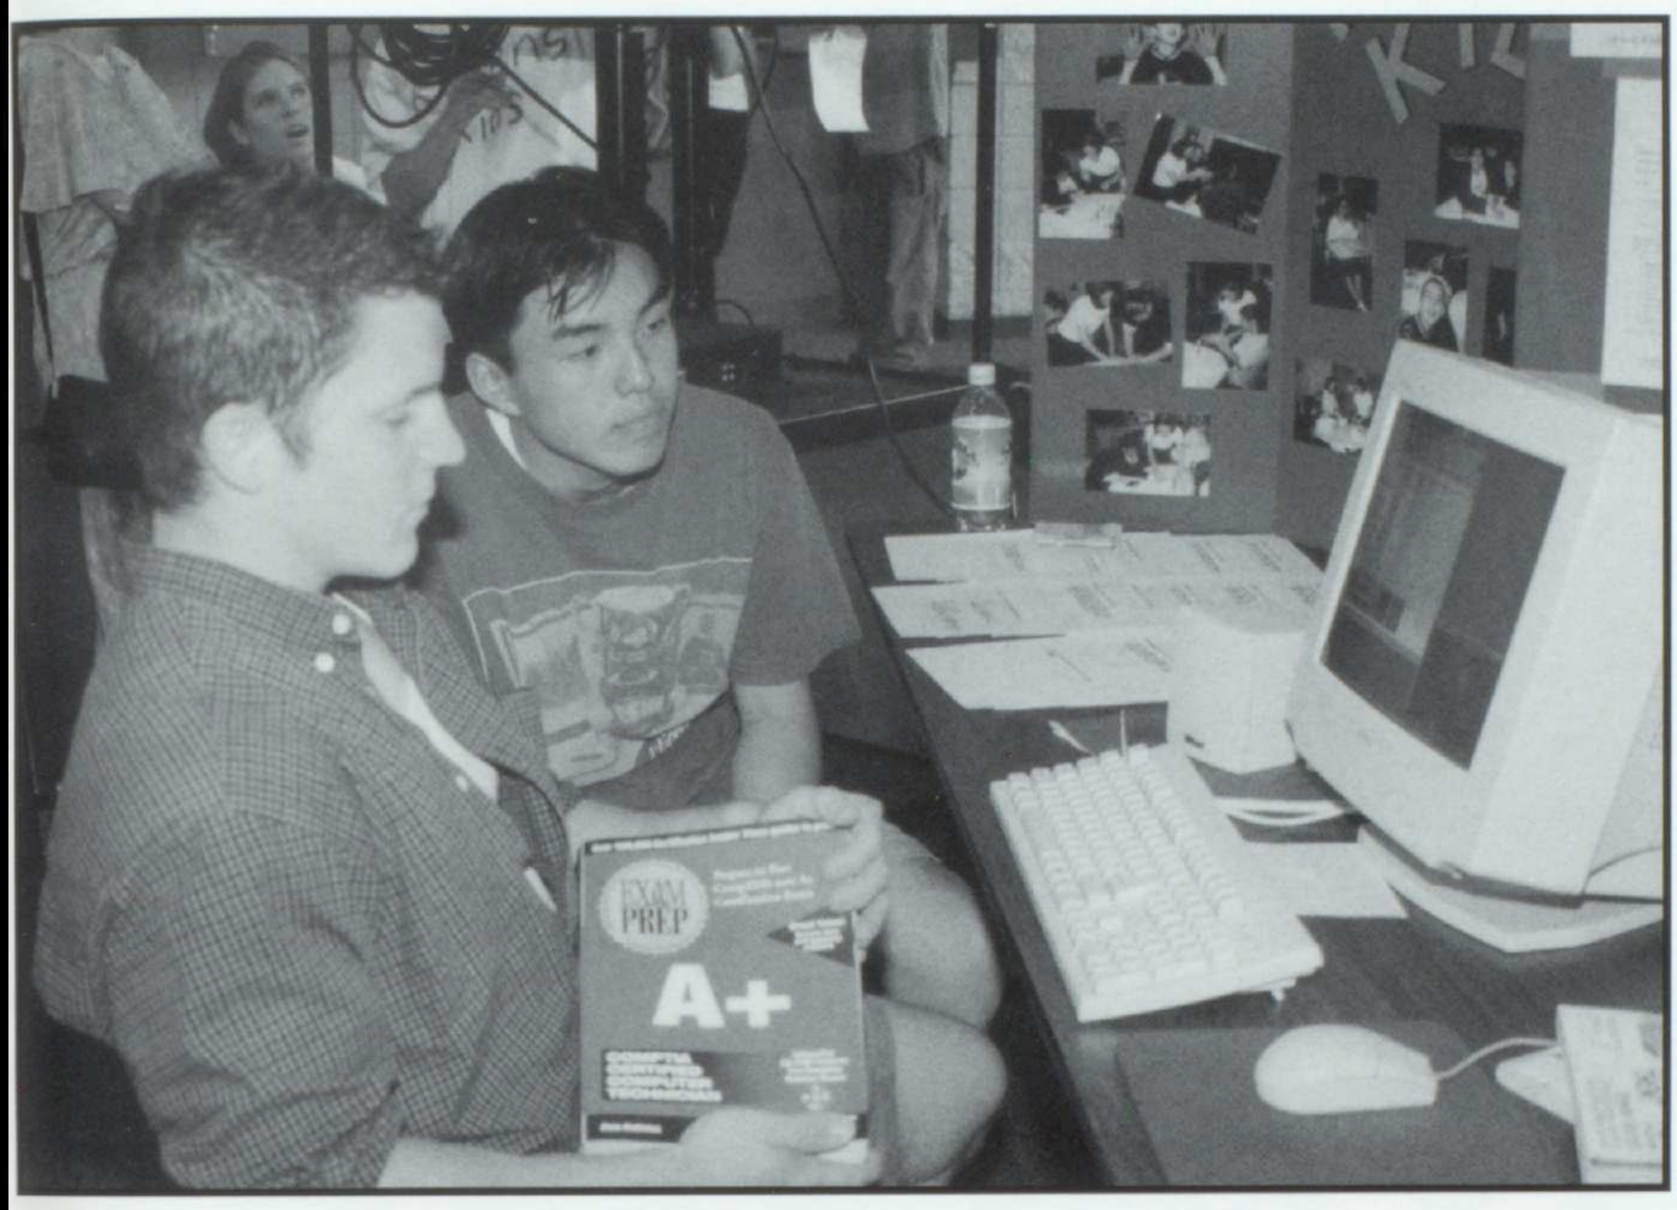
"I'm so proud of you, son," beams Mrs. Wagener as her son Andy poses with his new book.

Senior Project

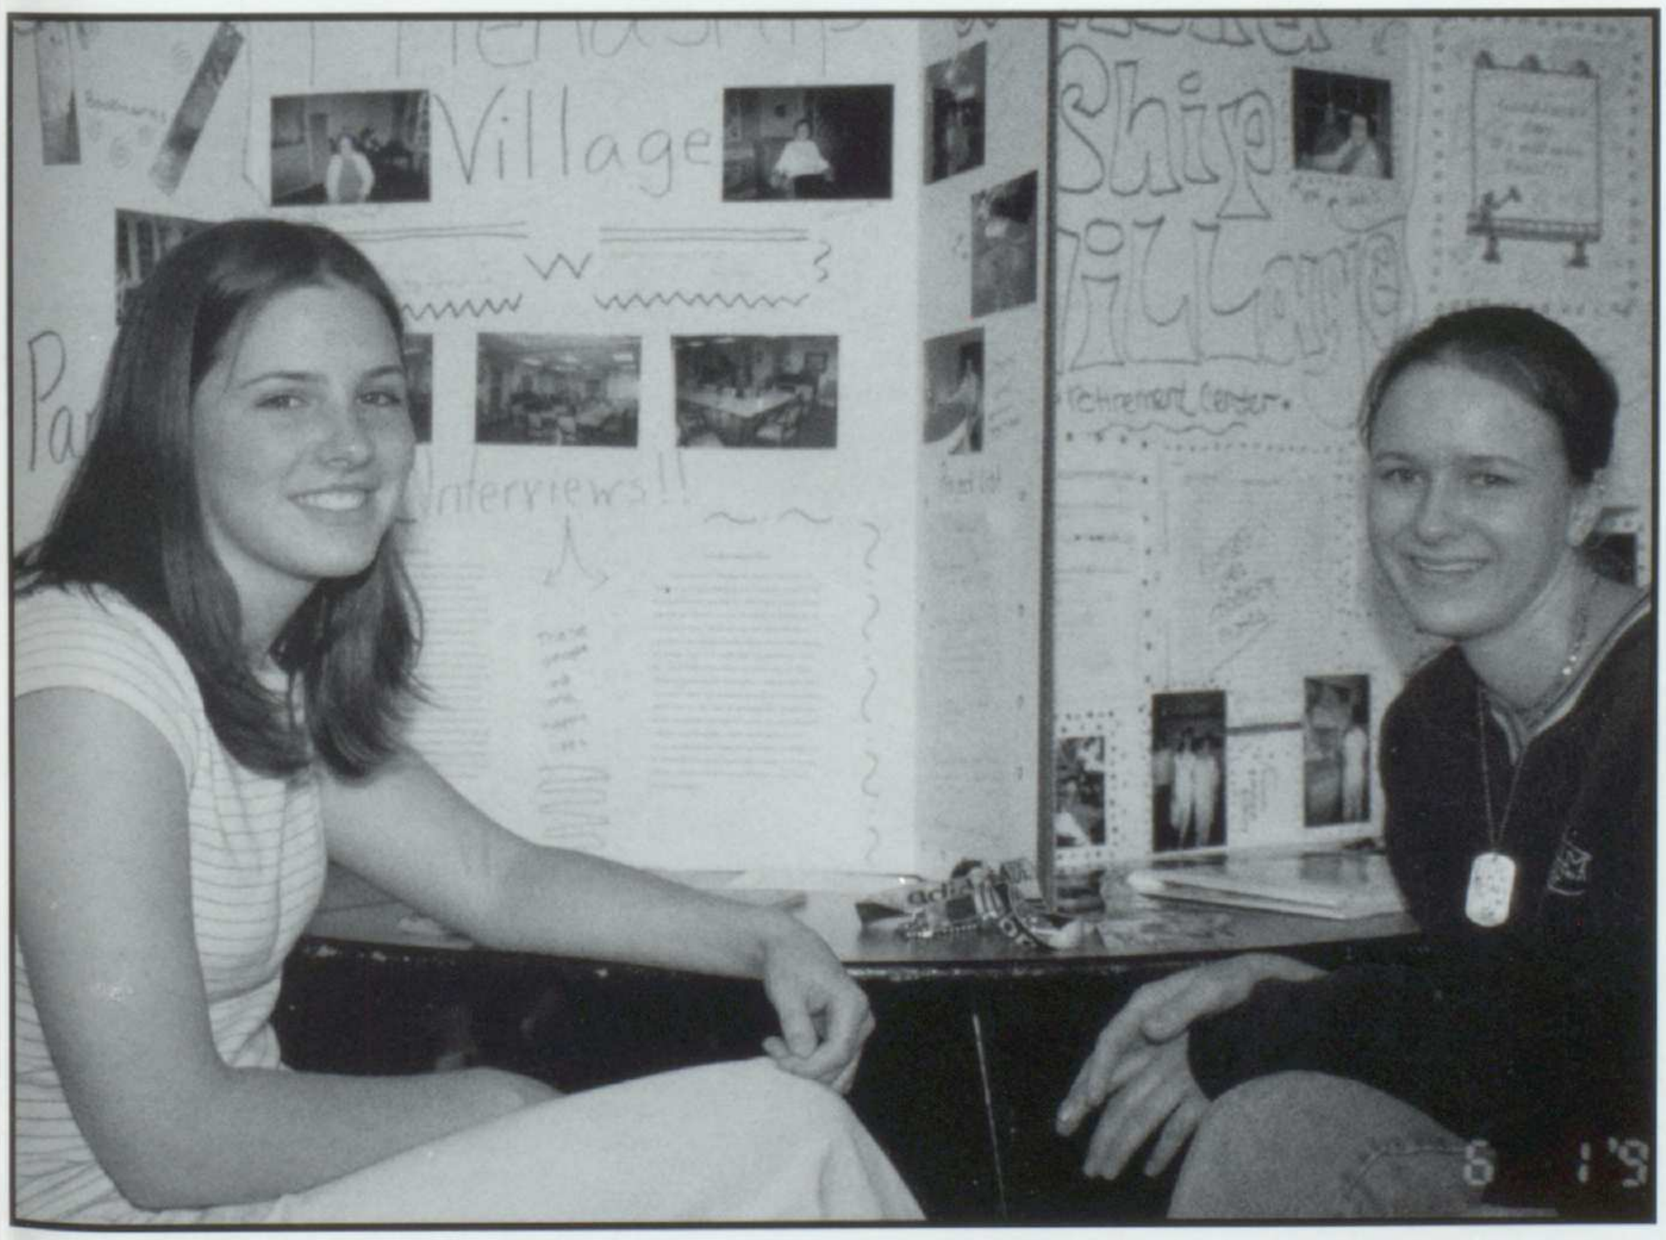


When your time finally comes to be a senior, you will have the option of participating in the senior project. It is an opportunity for you to decide and explore what is out in the real world. It truly is a great program because it is a preview into the working world.

Thirty-one students spent the month of May pursuing projects of their choices: Max Avon, Channel 6; Kristen Baker, retirement center; Kori Billiat, music recording; Mike Blubaugh and Nick Tieu, computer certification; Eric Burnheimer, Ohio State House, Speaker Davidson's Office; Serenity Dylan, florist; Stephanie Elsea, elementary teaching; Sara Fish, archaeology at Ohio Historical Society; Amy Fisher, retirement center; Melissa Long, Channel 6; Clayton McGory, Smoky Row Children's Center; Bryn Mills, Franklin County Prosecutor's Office; Shavonn Perkins, elementary teaching; Addy Pogany, nutritionist at St.Ann's; James Rederstorff, Columbus Symphony public relations; Angela Smith, Channel 10; Emily Schadler, Malabar Farms writing nature journals; Jon Thorn, Interfaith Hospitality Network; Brook Gibbs, OSU Japanese Department; Amber Gilbert, elementary teaching; Megan Hartley, elementary teaching; Karen Hellickson, middle school MH teaching; Mary Hellickson, elementary teaching; Jaclyn Inglis and Annie Lee, Appachalain Trail; Charleen Johnston and Dustin Keith, music teaching; Yoko Kanai nursing at The James; Lauren Kelly, New York Gold Coast; Sarah Kendall, Riverside emergency room; Takahero Ueno, Columbus Japanese School history teacher; Mike Yao, writing a novel.

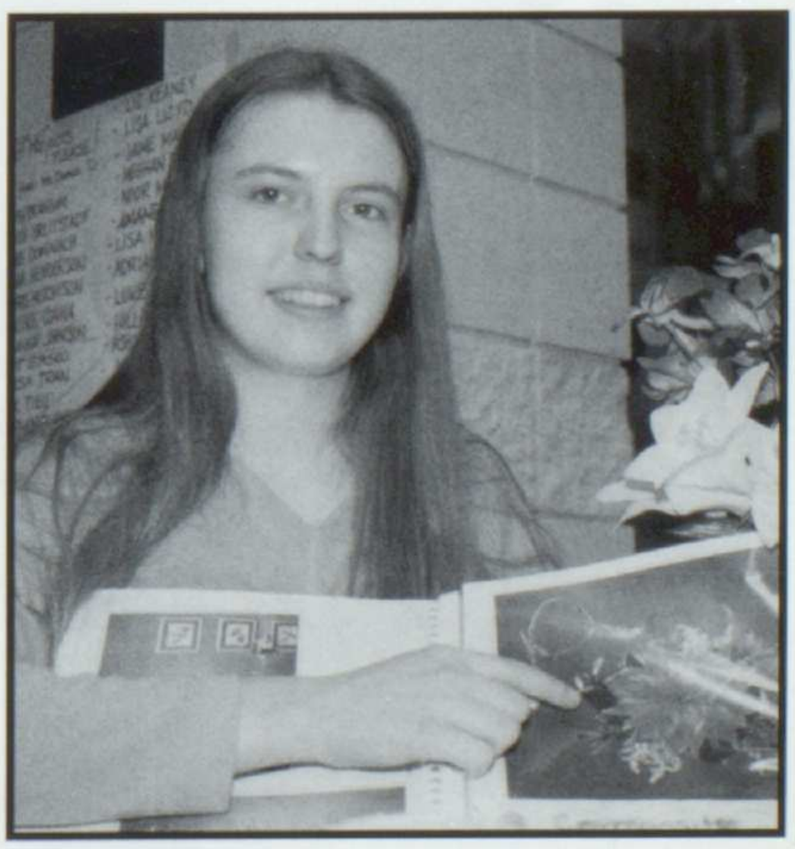
Through experiences comes knowledge. Congratulations to all the seniors who participated.

By D.J. Skorupski



Helping senior citizens is a real gift that Kristen Baker (left) and Amy Fisher have. They truly learned that patience is a virtue.

Understanding computers is what Mike Blubaugh does best. Mike shares his experience obtaining his certification with Mike Yao, another senior on project.



"Creativity is key when you are a florist," says Serenity Dylan.

"When you have reached the end of your rope, don't give up; just tie a not and swing."

Pretending to listen and take notes while they actually discuss their plans for the weekend are Lauren Fenstermacher, Joe Ambrogi, and Rony Sinharoy.

Having just rolled out of bed, Mike Wheaton obviously forgot to change his clothes. Buddy Nate Jackson lets him know that he still has a little sleep in his eyes.

Having an intimate moment between classes are Mohammed Islam and Nikki Harvey. Don't forget, you only have ten minutes.

The 13,000 Honda of America associates are the driving force behind the quality, dependability and workmanship of every Honda we build. That's why they're called associates.

But they're also associates of their communities, doing their part in donating over $1.5 million to United Way and active in the unique Honda Hero community volunteer program.

We are so proud of the way you live your life and of all your accomplishments.
Your outside beauty and your inner beauty
'shows on your face'.

We love you!

Mom, Dad and Krista

"If your life is unselfish
if for others you live,
For not what you get,
but how much you can give;
If you live close to God
in His infinite Grace,
You don't have to tell it,
it shows in your face."

Sarah,
This poem by
Dorra Maddux
Cooper expresses
my love for you.
When you were small and just a touch away, I covered you with blankets against the cool night air. But now that you are tall and out of reach I hold my hands and cover you
with prayer.
Love,
Mom

Best of luck

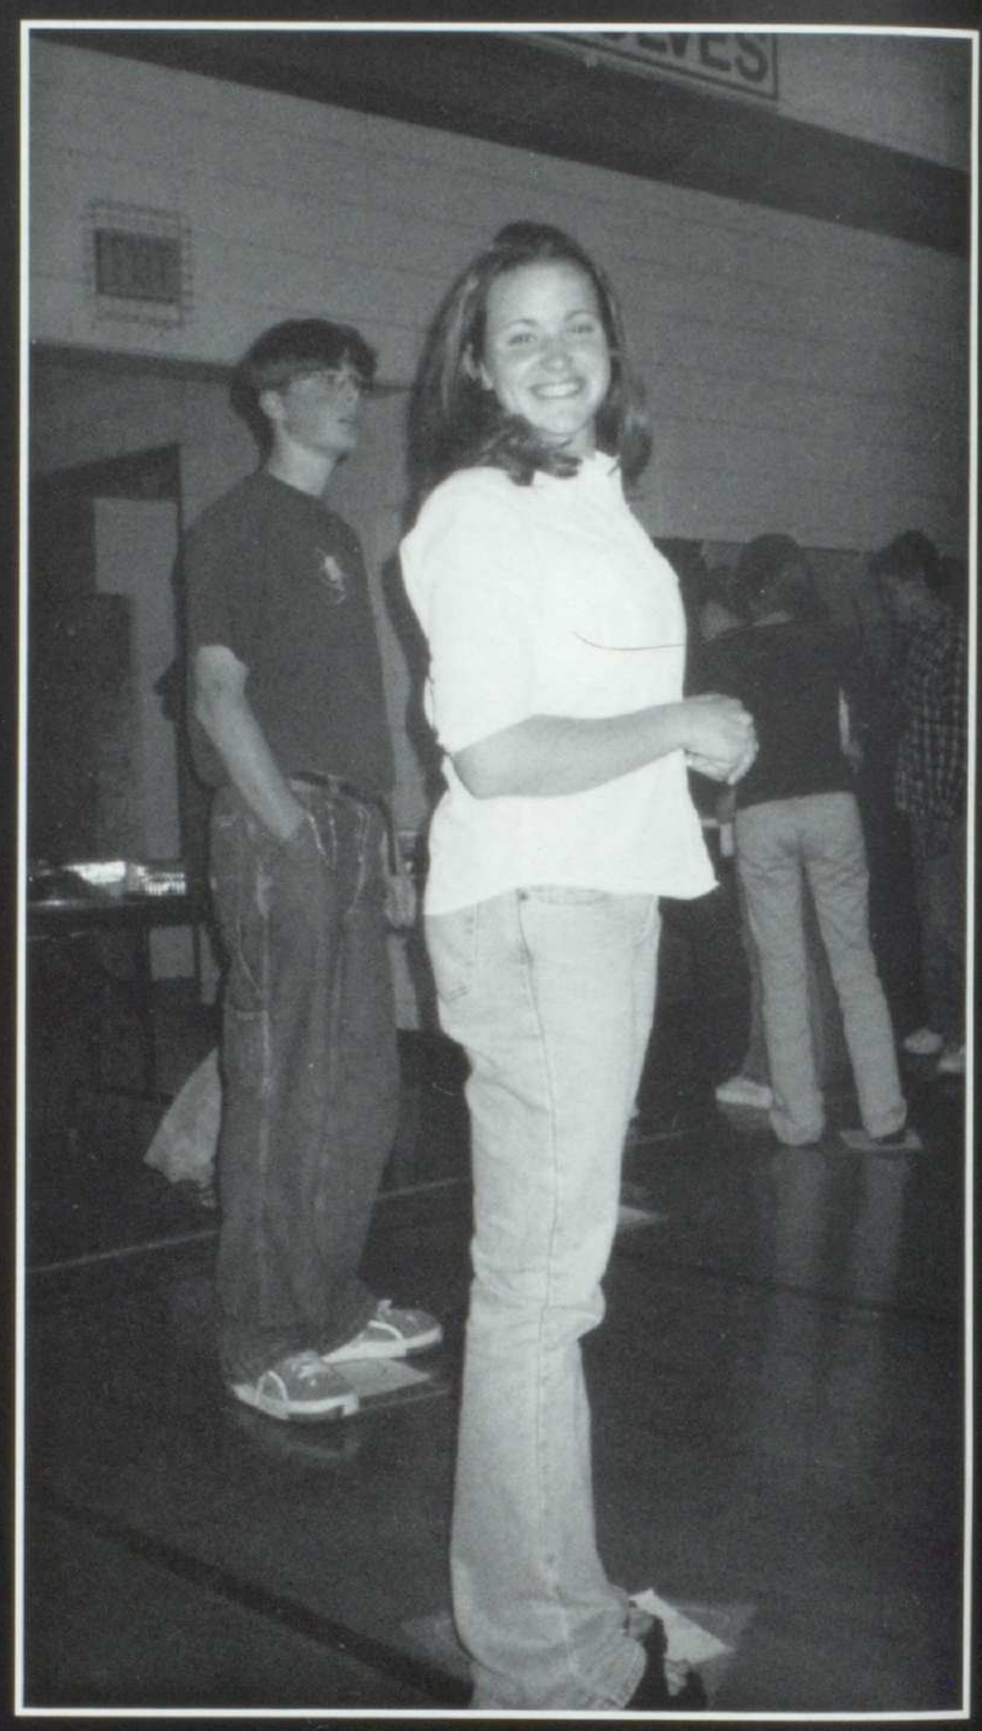
The Junior Book Awards honors juniors with excellent academic achievements. Gathering in the library for the reception after the ceremony are (Front Row) Gita Pathak, (Row 2, left to right) Jacqueline Callihan, Arshia Hamid, Kathleen Miller, Dr. Lindsay, John Warner, (Row 3) Suma Tumuluri, Jason Chou, Stacy Sanders, and Greg Bowne.

One of the highlights of Wolfapalooza this year was the awesome display of talent coming from the student-run bands. Lex Sawyers and Monica Mosure seem to be enjoying themselves as they listen to the performances.



Some of the more hungry fellows at Wolfapalooza opted to participate in the hot dog eating contest. Jennifer Spellis gets a kick out of watching fellow classmates (left to right) Bryan Childs, Luke Martuno, and Jim Cross stuff their faces. Yummy! They must have stomachs of iron.

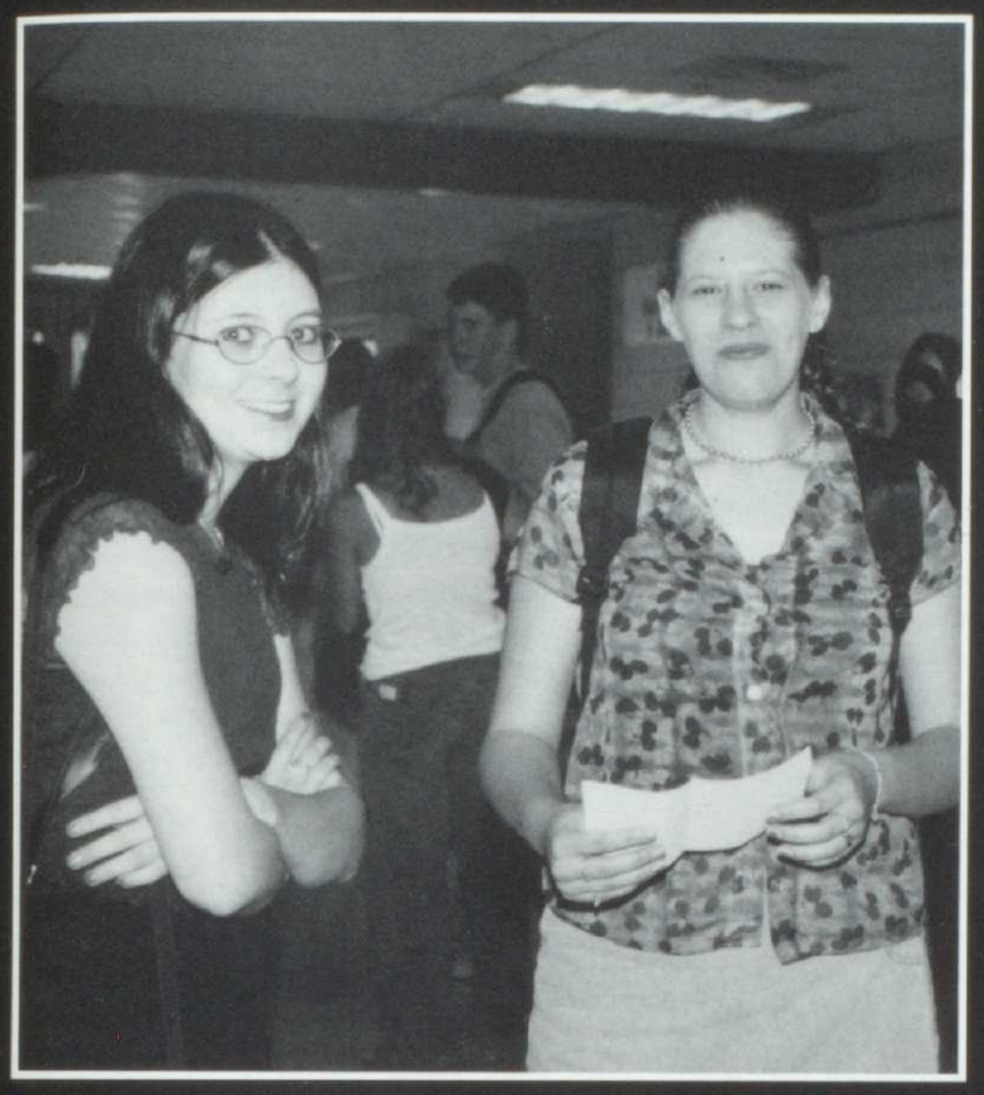
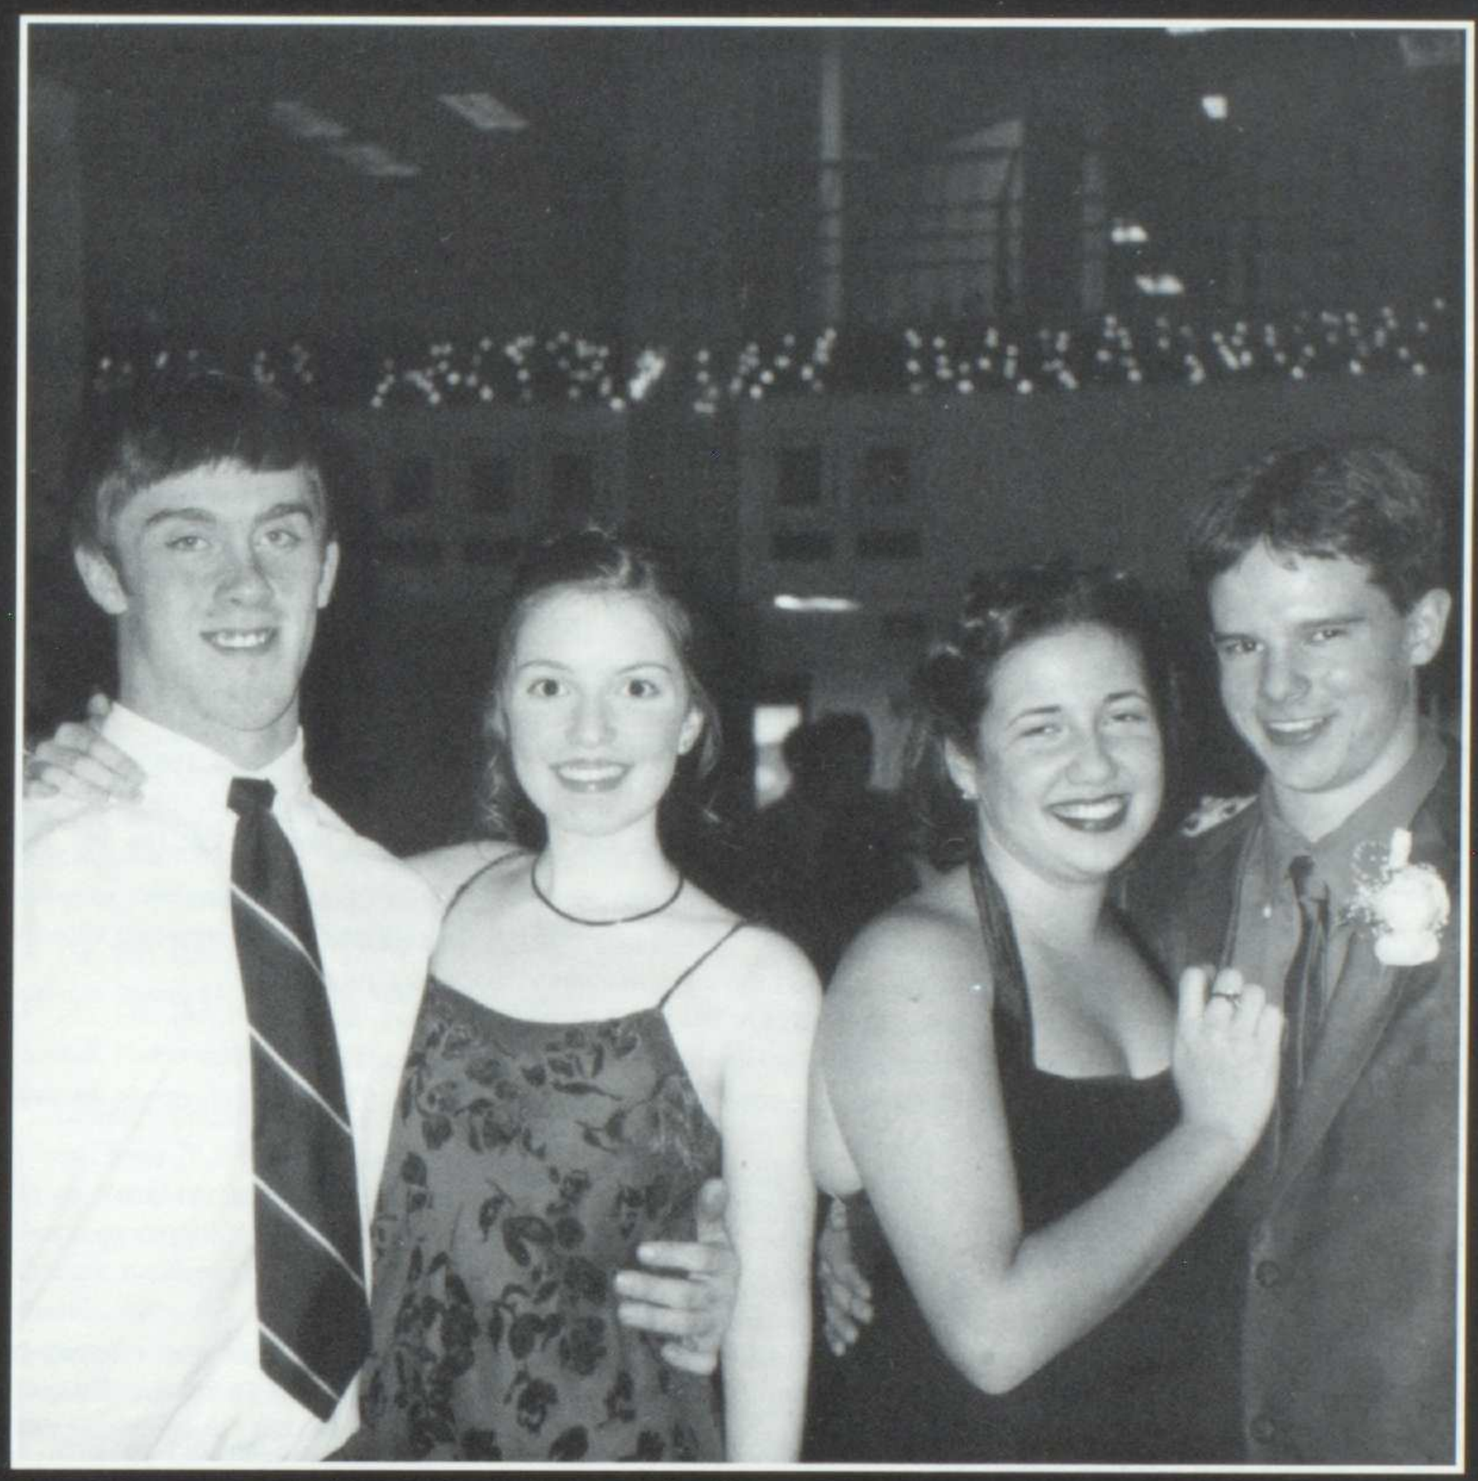
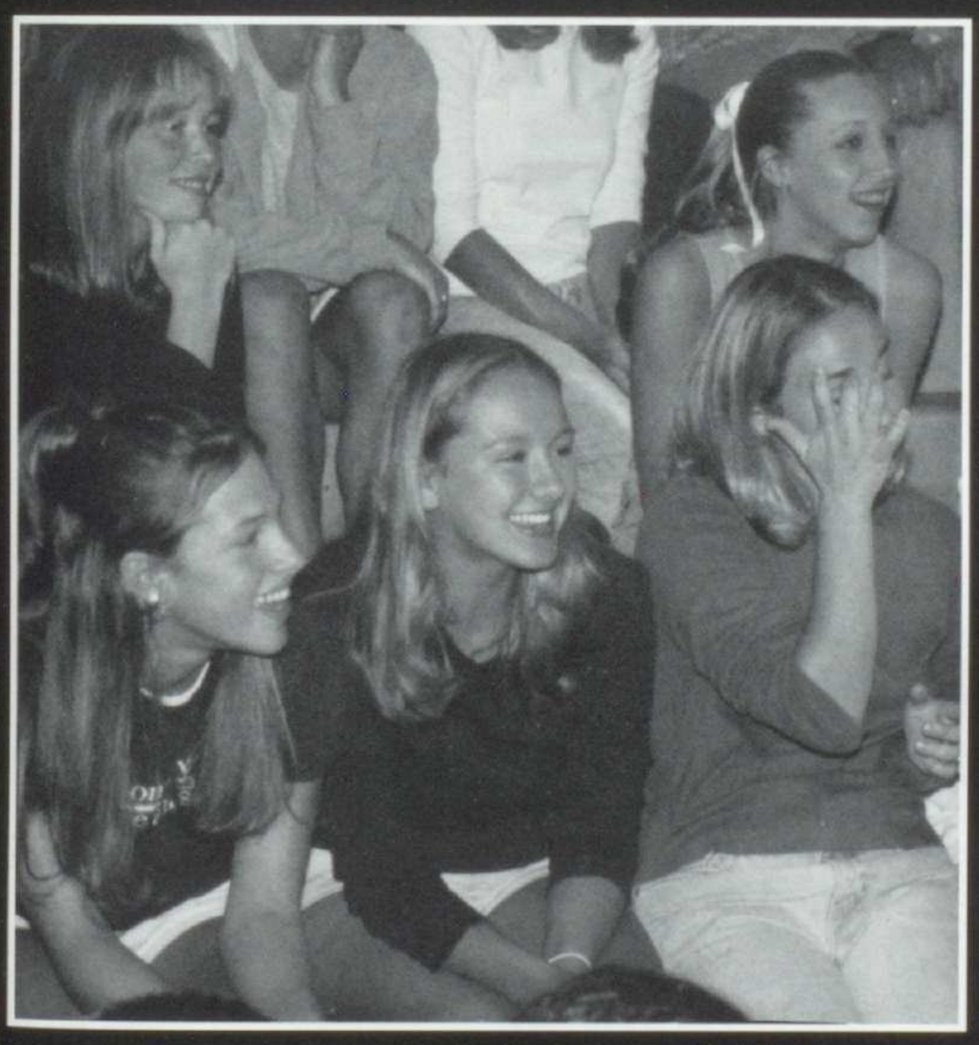
It's amazing how happy these two girls look. It's probably due to the fact that they're not in class. Jennifer Kelly (left) and Kylie Holland are taking full advantage of the freedom allotted to them during Arts-in-Action.

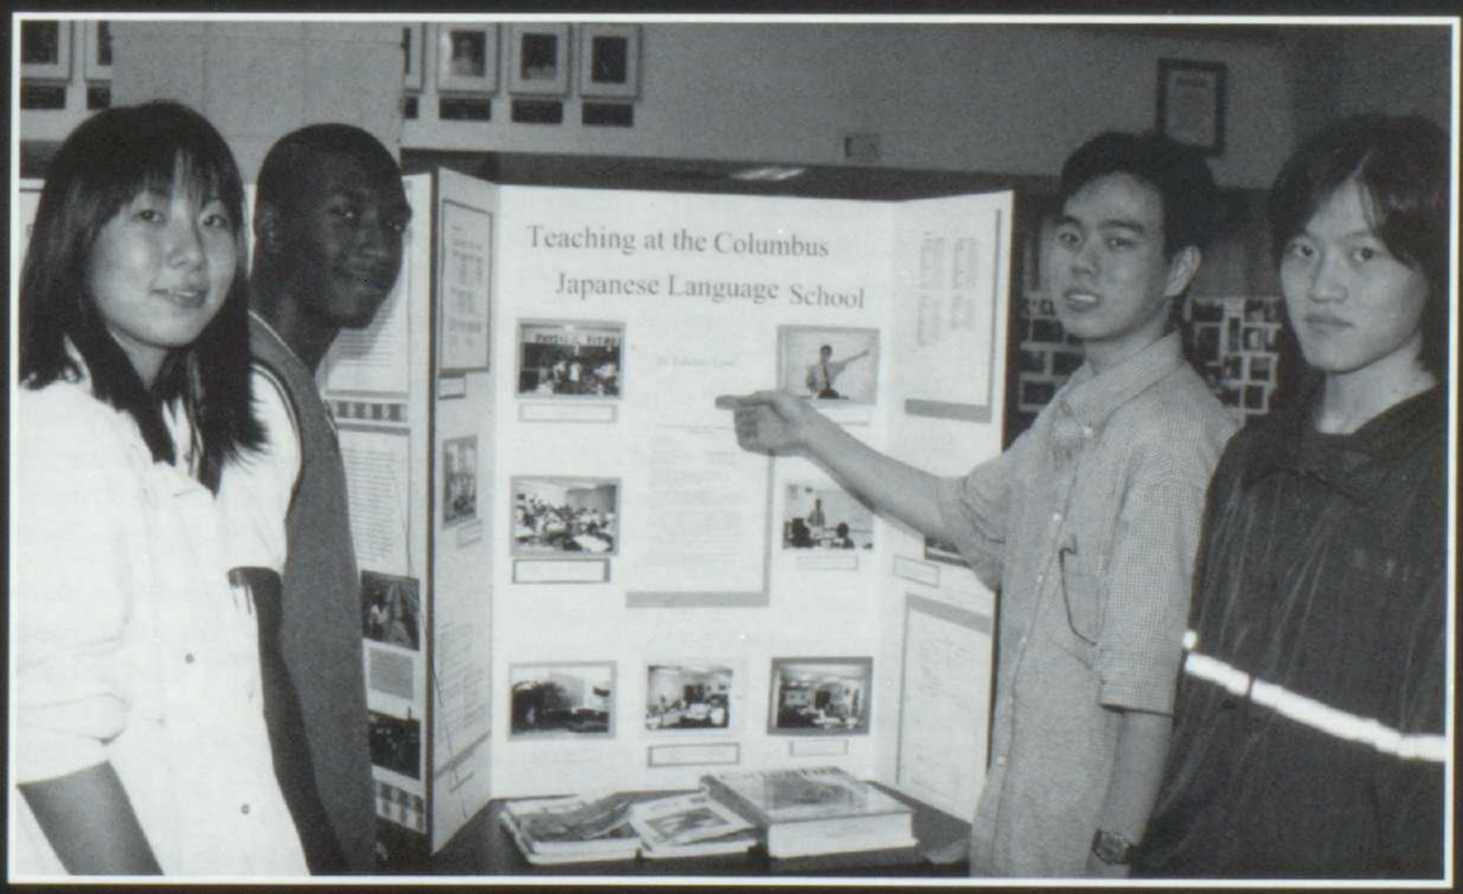


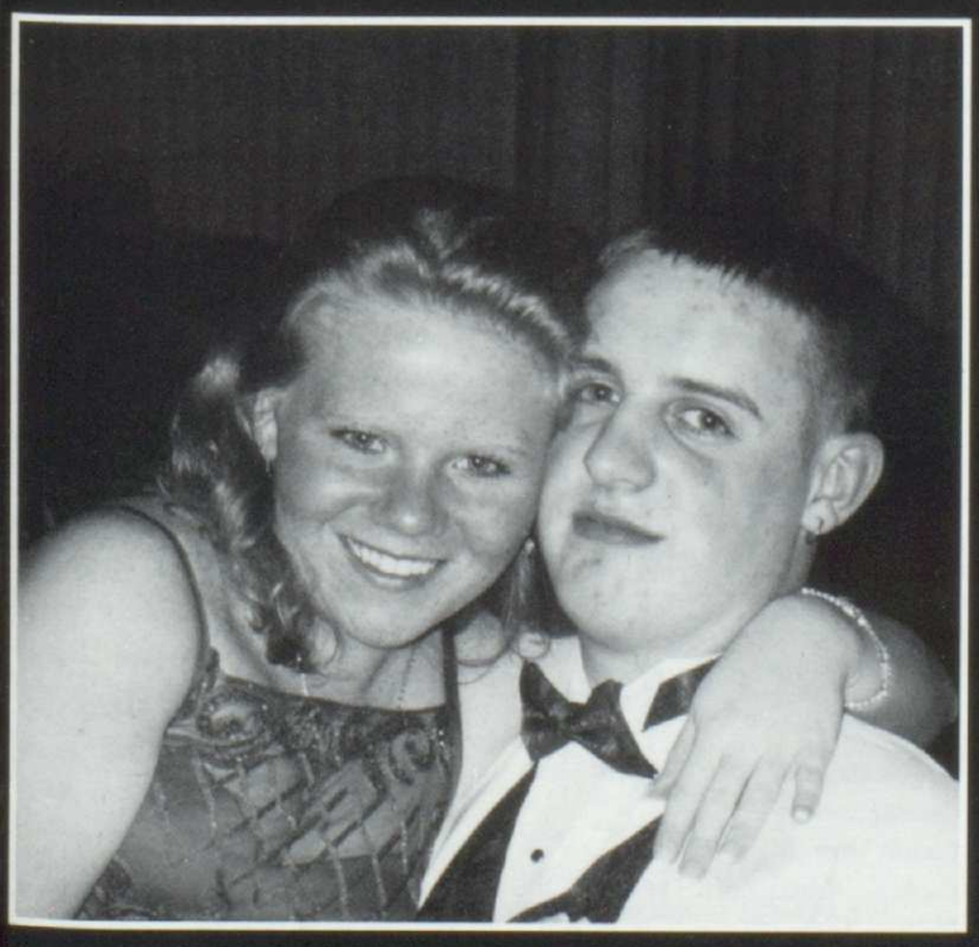
Prom has always been a magical evening, full of enchantment, romance, laughter and once in a life-time memories. Their twinkling eyes make it obvious that (left to right) Ben Roewer, Hannah Siegle, Nikki Zuniga, and Seth Tenpenny are having a great time dancing the night away at the Franklin Park Conservatory.





Friends and classmates come together to show tremendous school spirit at our pep rallies. Many prove to be humorous judging by the looks of (Front Row, left to right) Jenna Filia, Casey Gregory, Megan Rich, (Row 2) Ashley Swauzuk, and Hillary Shaub. I want to know what is so amusing. Maybe Lobo is dancing with one of the cheerleaders. He has a tendency to get wild and crazy sometimes!





Senior project was a terrific experience for everyone involved. Explaining his project during the exhibition in the commons to (left to right) Yoko Kanai, Brook Gibbs, and Atsushi Yoshino while using this trifold visual is Tahahiro Ueno. The experience must have been amazing, and judging from the quality of his exhibit, he no doubt passed.

Some people like to break it down on the dance floor, while others are constantly stuffing their faces with chocolate strawberries. Becky Schoonover and her date Adam Porter have chosen to spend their night up close, personal, and all alone.
