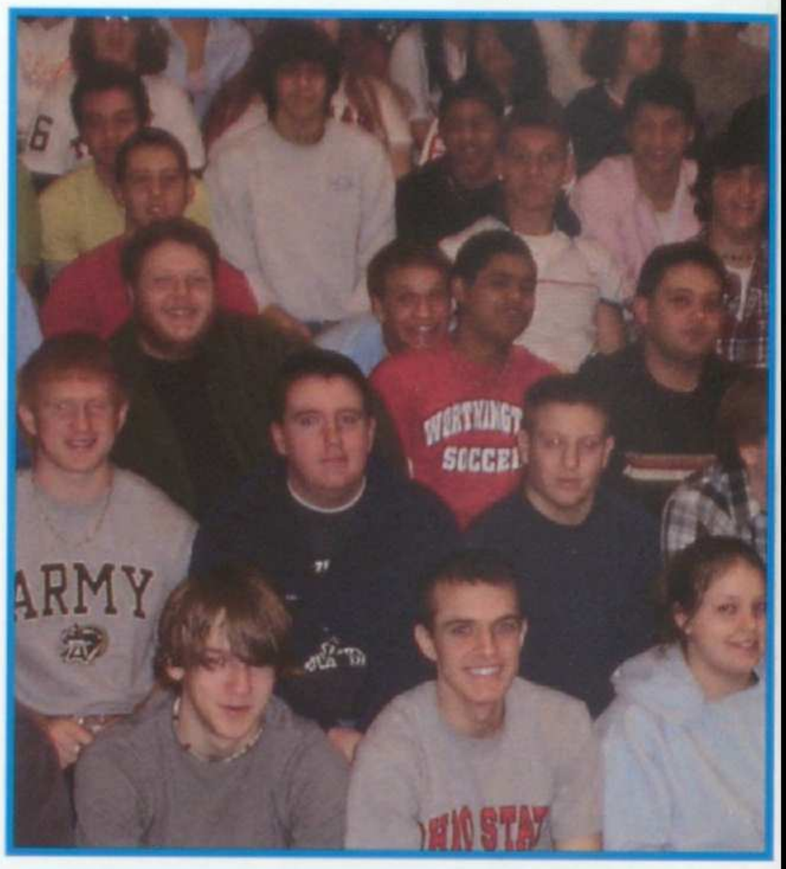
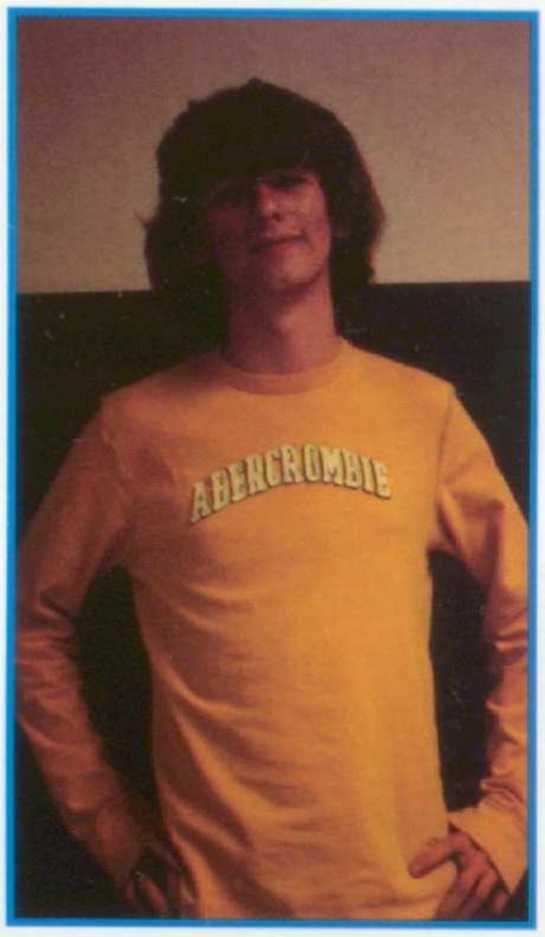
What's Your Story?

People say life's like an open book, which inspired the theme of this yearbook, "What's Your Story". There are so many different people at TWHS. Everyone here at Thomas Worthington comes from a different background, has different friends, hobbies, jobs, talents, and personalities, everyone here leads completely different lives. Between the faculty, the athletes, the artists, and the brainiacs, there are so many different stories to be told. The yearbook staff decided that this year we wanted to capture as many of these stories as possible. On every page there is a story with a different person featured, and in the story they share life experiences and why or how they got to be who they are today.



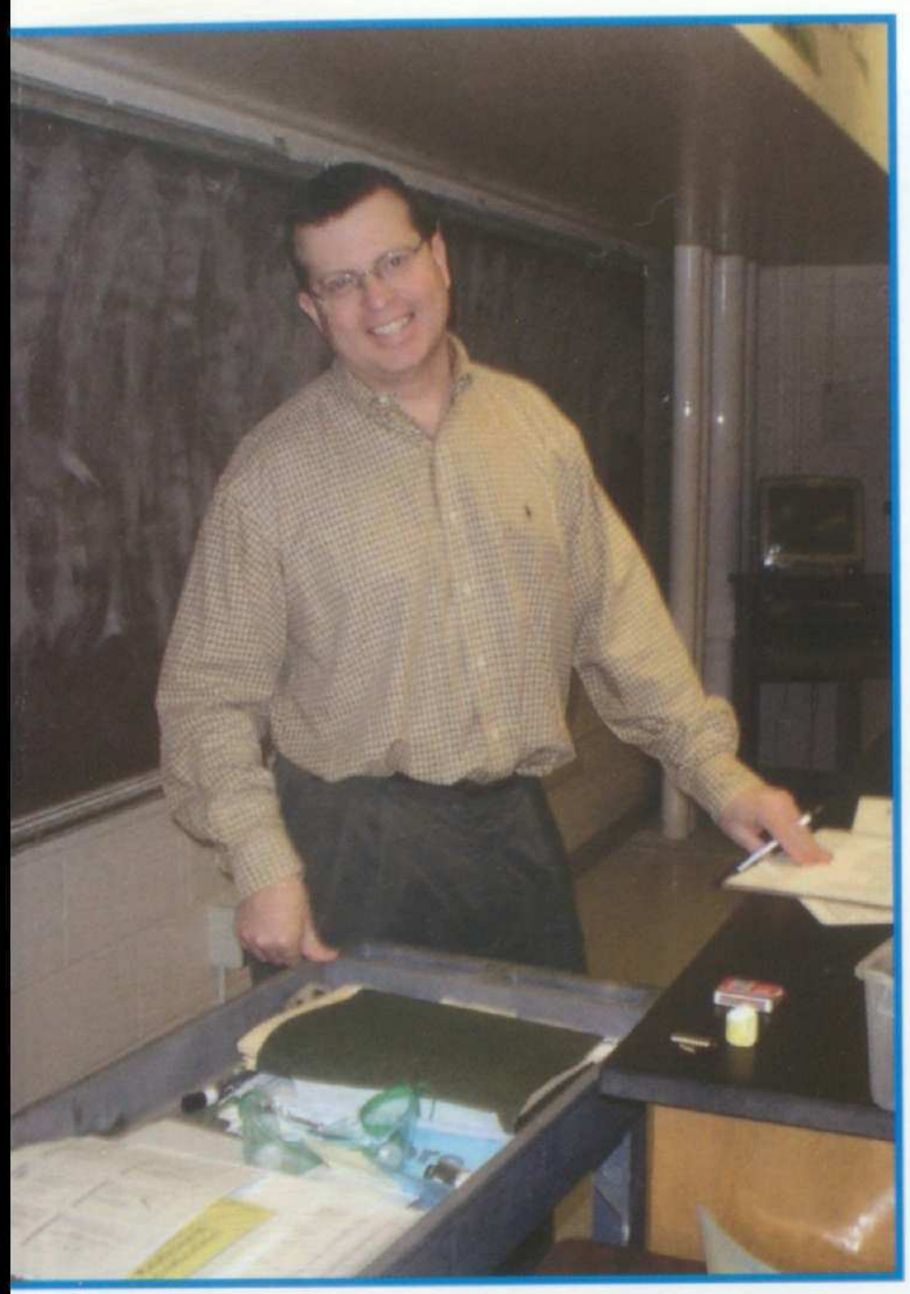
Ms. Fish has been working at Thomas for 16 years and has been the yearbook director for 15. Her favorite thing about the school is all the wonderful students.



In 8th grade my friend Chris and I were late to math class . We ran into the room after the bell. She looked straight at me and said, "Chris why are you late?" She didn't care about Chris being late. I had to come in during lunch. She obviously wasn't my biggest fan.
-Kevin Keuper, Sophomore

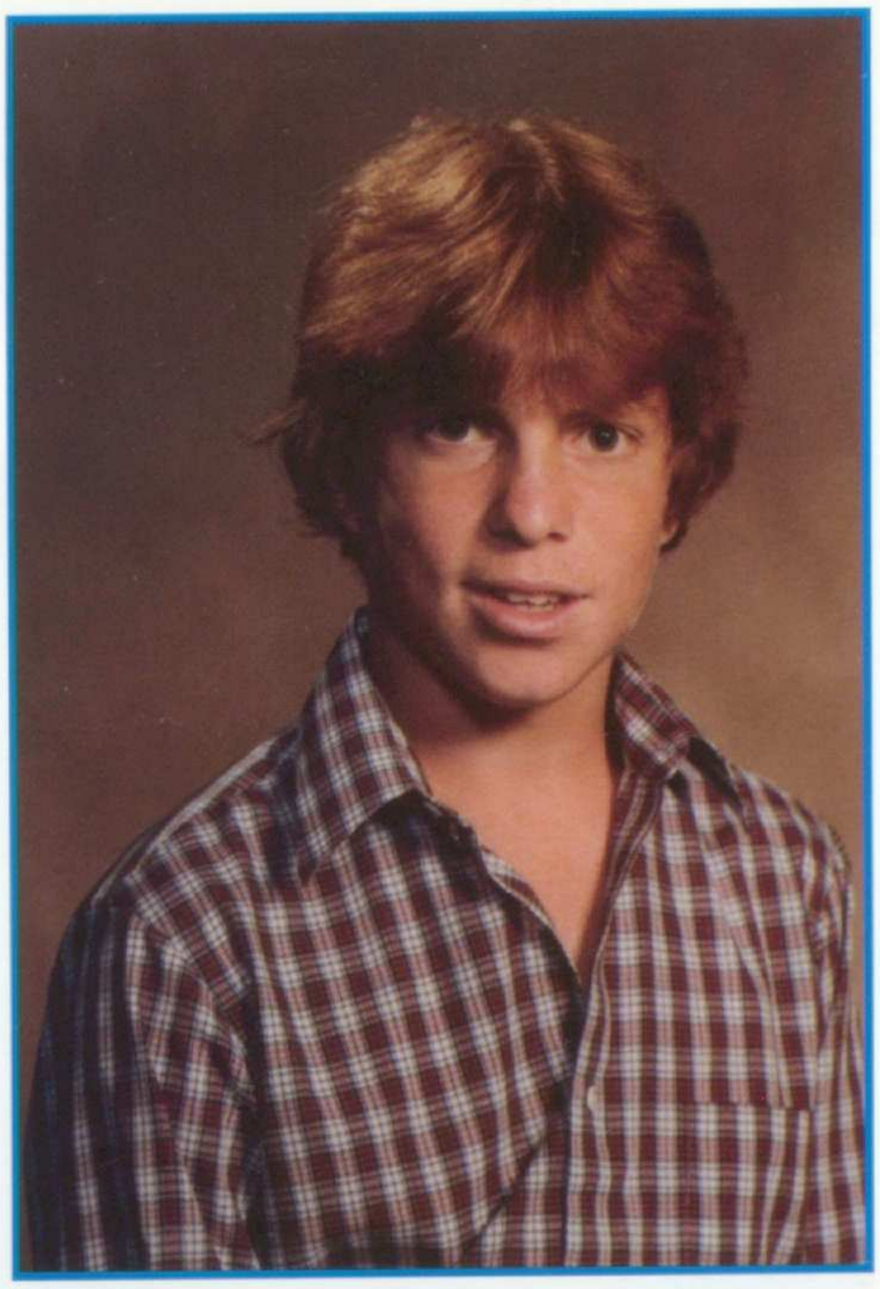
"I started playing the trumpet and 4th grade. I choose to play the trumpet and I have been playing it up until now. I currently play the trumpet and french horn. I play in both marching band and concert band. I like band because everyone is so nice and we all have a lot in common."
-Alaine Reed, Freshman

I've been in ceramics for all four years of high school. I like it because I can express what I feel through my work. Also I can do independent study and pick the kind of work I want to do. Not only can I express myself, but it is also a stress reliever for me.
-Zackiah Weatherington, Senior



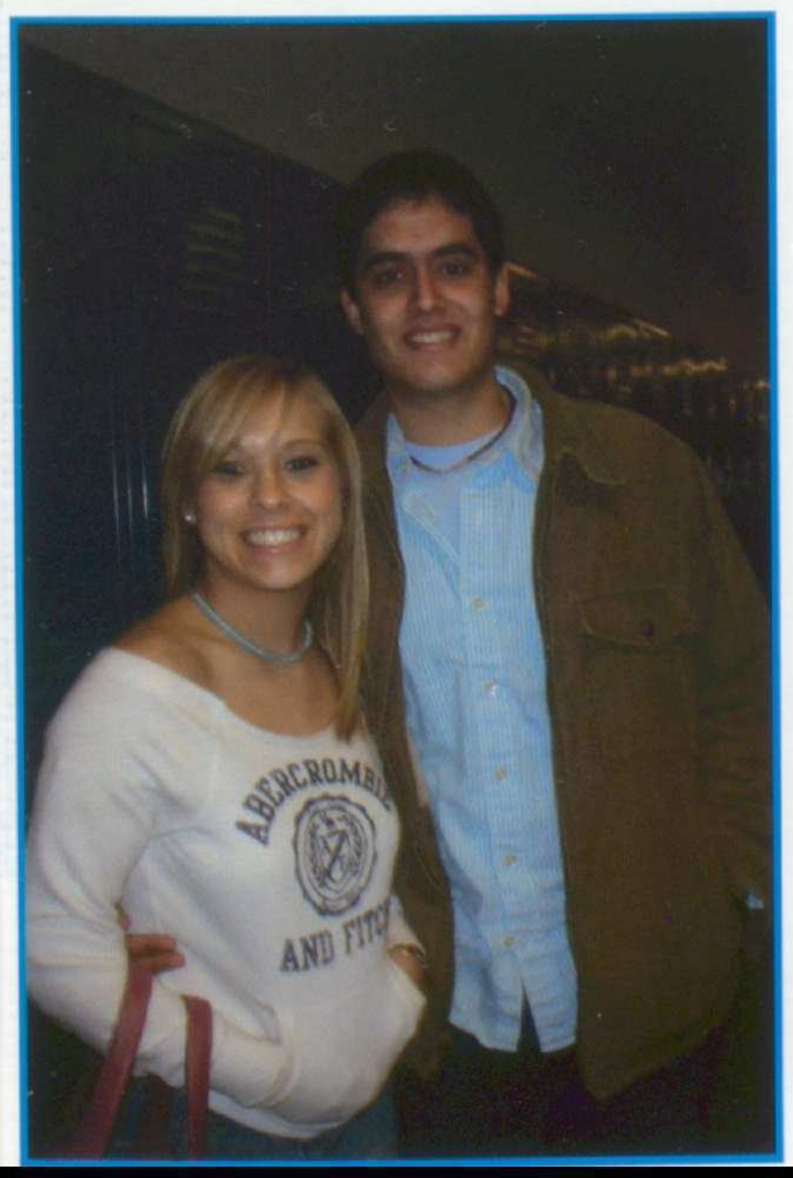
Mr. Devore's smiling face shows just how much he loves to teach.

"After receiving an undergraduate electrical engineering degree from The Ohio State University, I decided to get a masters degree. To help with tuition I took a job as a teaching associate at OSU. Upon graduating from Ohio State, I went back packing in Europe for six weeks. During this trip I took the "Sound of Music Tour" with some friends. While on the tour my friends and I rode an alpine slide. The alpine slide was a go-cart that traveled down the side of a mountain on a concrete track. I was surprised to find out that if I didn't use the brake, the go-cart would fly off the track. After a nasty crash, I thought about how if I knew physics better I probably wouldn't have flown off the track and just about killed myself. I ended up in engineering for about twelve years until an opportunity to change careers occurred. I just couldn't help thinking about how much I enjoyed my teaching days at OSU. So I went back to OSU to get my science teaching license. I am now in my third year of teaching science and I still wonder whether my knowledge of science or my need for speed would win if I ever get on the alpine slide again."
-Tom DeVore, Teacher



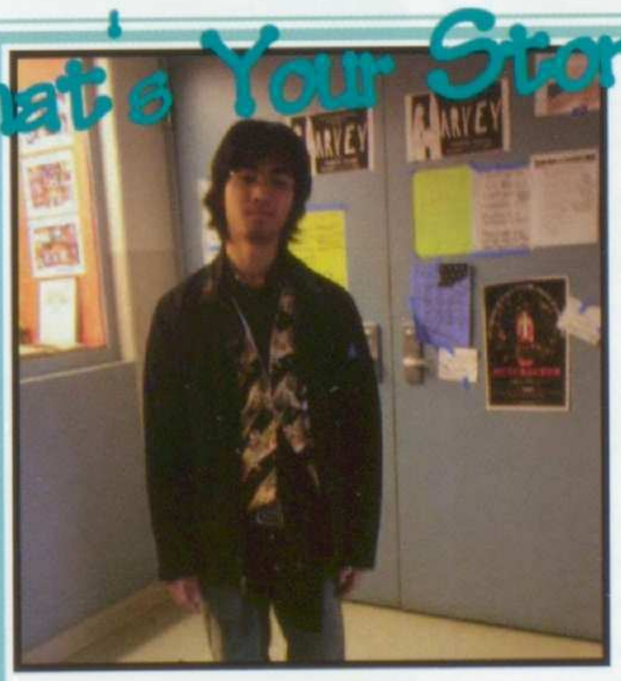
Before college, Mr. Devore was unsure where he would be in the future.

"In 5th grade I bought my first guitar. I played just a bit until freshman year when I began taking lessons once a week over the course of a month. I gained just enough knowledge to learn how to advance on my own. Since then, I've always loved the challenge of learning new songs by ear, or playing along with my friends and their bands. It's comforting to know that I can relieve tons of stress by playing, or that I can bring a lot of joy to others by playing a few simple chords. Aside from being incredibly fun, playing guitar has led to many great things in my life and opened a window to meeting many amazing people. Anyone considering learning how to play, or even just interested in an instrument; I encourage you to go pick one up and try it. You never know where it may lead you."
-Eric Laaser, Senior



"Never in a million years would I have thought I would meet my boyfriend on the school bus, but I did. January 9th of my freshman year is when Carlos Bonilla asked me out. I tried to play hard to get and told him I would think about it and let him know later. Ten minutes after I got home, I called him and told him yes. This was the beginning of our relationship that has lasted up until senior year, and hopefully many years to come."
-Cornia Miller, Senior

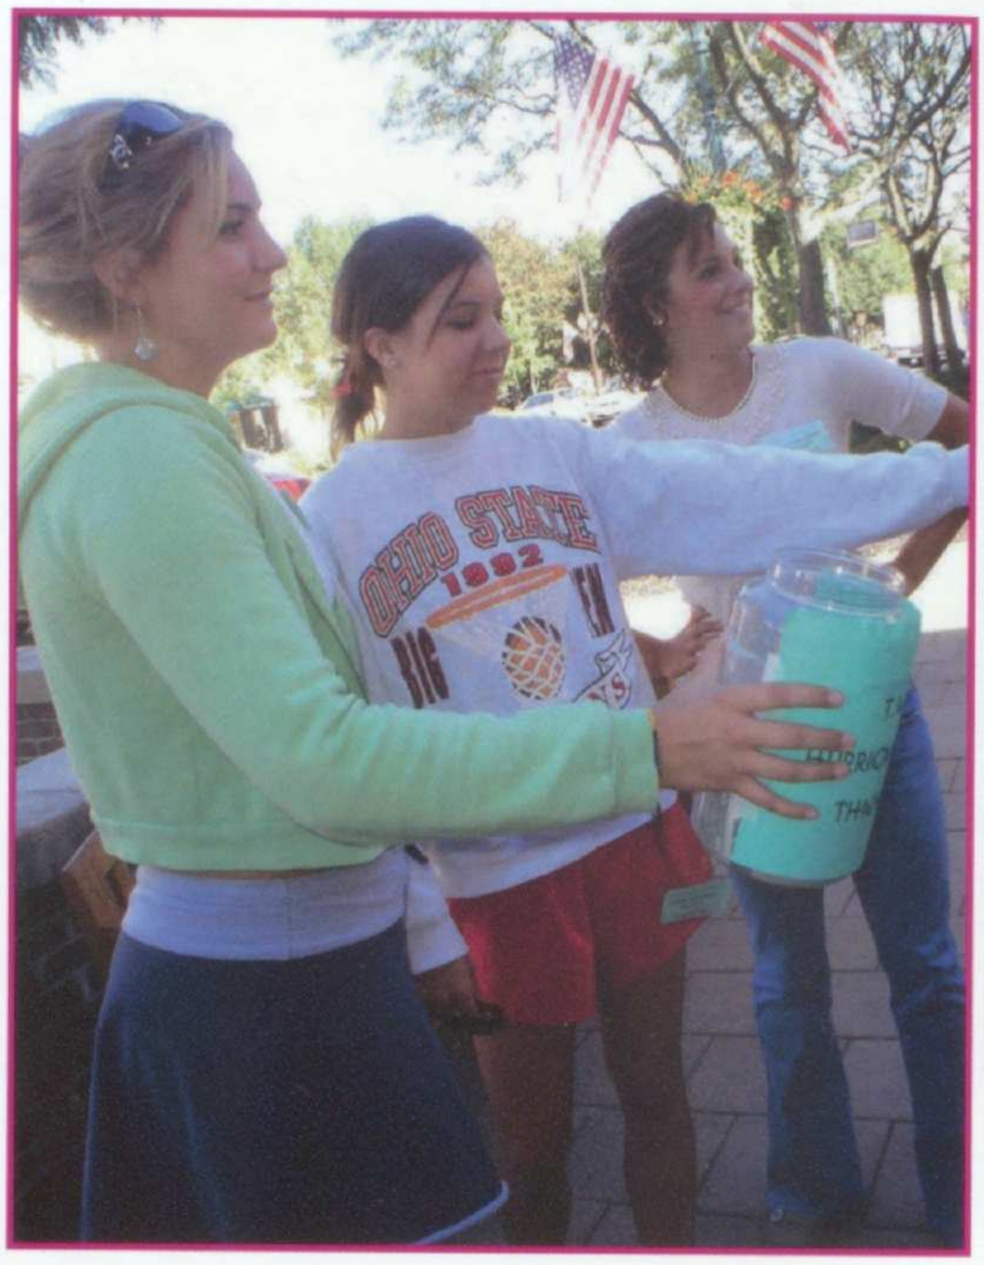
What's Your Story?



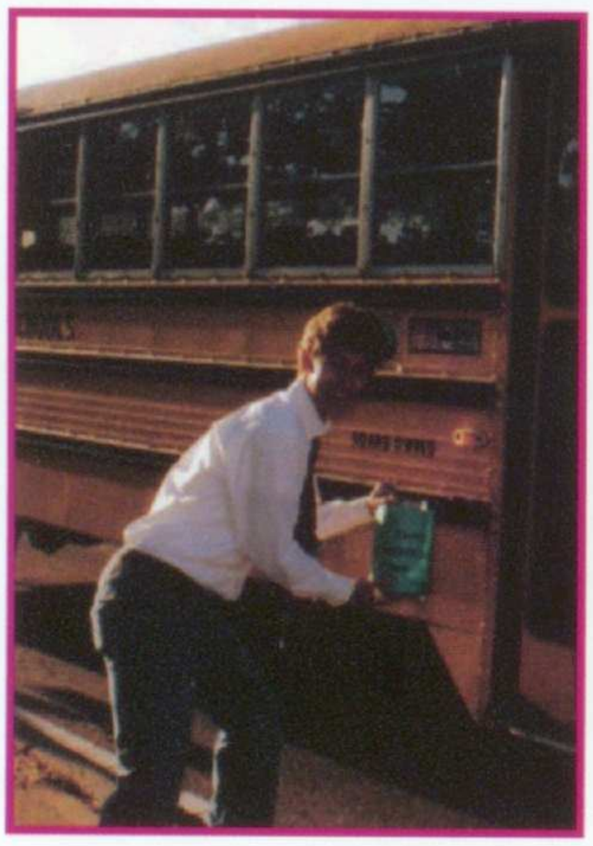
"I was never really involved in anything until I started going to Linworth. I made a lot of friends through Linworth and I decided to start helping out in theatre. I never officially signed up for the class, but I was still really involved. Theatre really changed me as a person, I am a lot more involved in everything and it's inspired me write plays of my own. By being in theatre I learned to open up. I surround myself with new people and new settings all of the time now. I'm always up for something new. I've really learned a lot just from getting involved."
-Sho Kuroda, Senior

Senior Bethany Keller and sophomore Christine Barren take time out of their day to stand outside in order to collect money from the cars passing by.

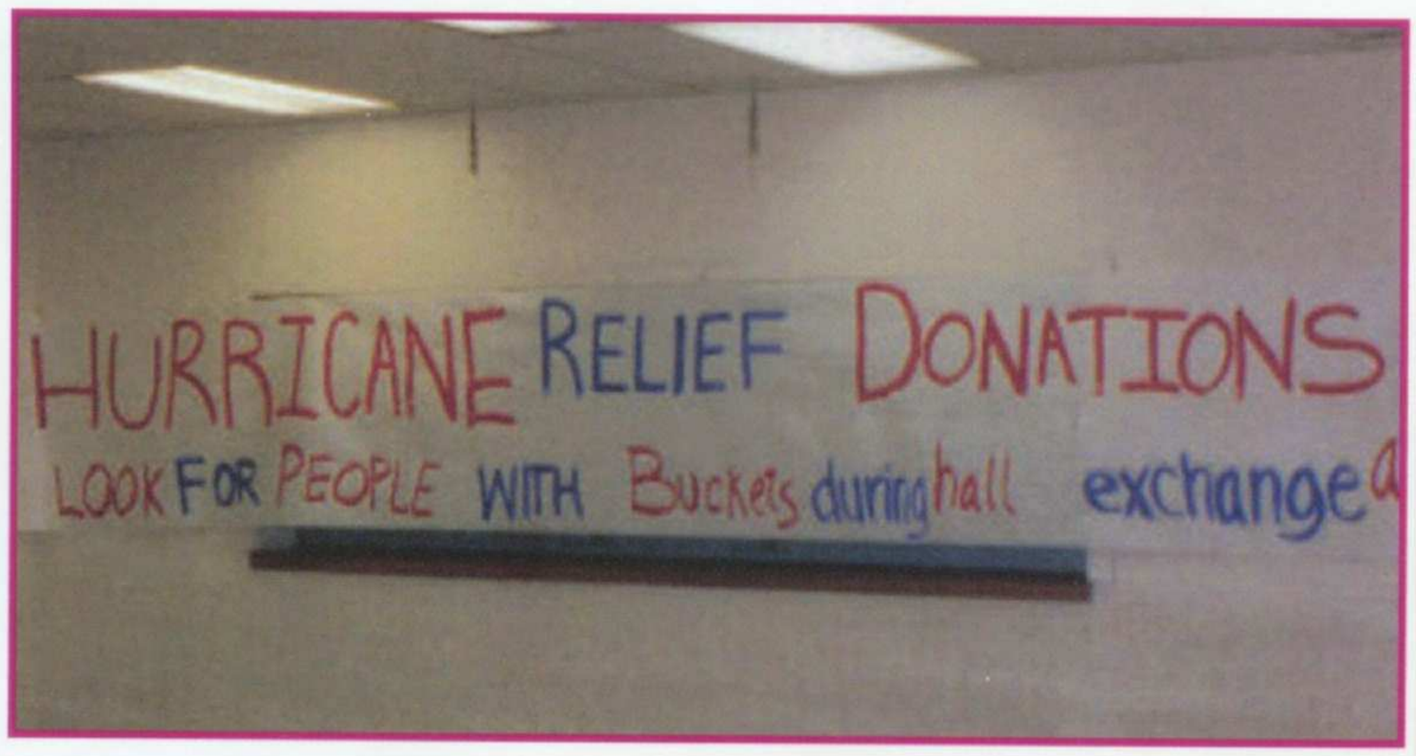
Senior girls Sarah Carey, Kelly Dunick, and Carly Marsico traveled to different businesses around Worthington asking for donations.



Posing for the camera is senior John Bernard collecting money from a very generous Worthington bus driver.



This sign was posted along the school to remind people of the collection day. It seems as though it did its job.



What's Your Story?

"To start off with, let me say how amazing Hurricane Relief Day was. When the student body learned of the hurricanes in New Orleans, student council wanted to help the less fortunate. With within 24 hours, we organized the fundraiser. Our $5000 goal seemed a bit out of reach, considering the pace in which we came up with the idea. The morning of Hurricane Day, to our amazement we already had students lined up to start collecting. Before 2nd period we had reached our goal! As the day went on, more and more money was raised. This just showed how generous and thoughtful people can really be and just really touched my heart."

-Mark Hutsko

Sophomore Carly Loar and senior Jessica Jackel team up to help collect around Worthington to support all those who were affected by Katrina.

Hurricane Relief

Even during lunch periods, students at Thomas continued their generous donating.

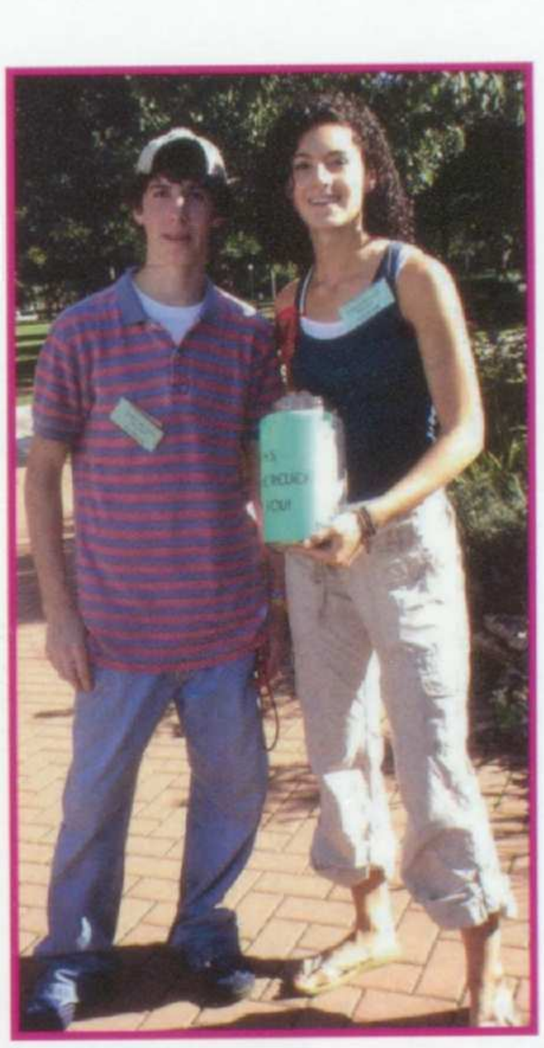
When people are asked to think back on Fall 2005, many will think about the series of disasters that occurred, more specifically, Hurricane Katrina. This huge disaster hit New Orleans on August 9th and over 1,000 innocent people were killed and hundreds of thousands left without homes, food, water, and some even without families. As clearly stated in the media, people were suffering, so Thomas Worthington's student council came up with the idea of Hurricane Relief Day. It was a day based on helping the less fortunate. Members of student council, along with anyone who wanted to help, went around the school, and Worthington collecting money from the students and community. With great generosity from everyone, it was an extremely huge success, more than anyone predicted, raising nearly $25, 000.

$25,000!

WAY TO GO CARDS!!!

With great excitement are senior Katie Tomashewski, junior Simone Attles, and senior Kristen Devine, getting ready to go out and collect more money for the hurricane victims.

Senior Hannah Risher ventures down to old Worthington to find herself collecting even more money from the community!



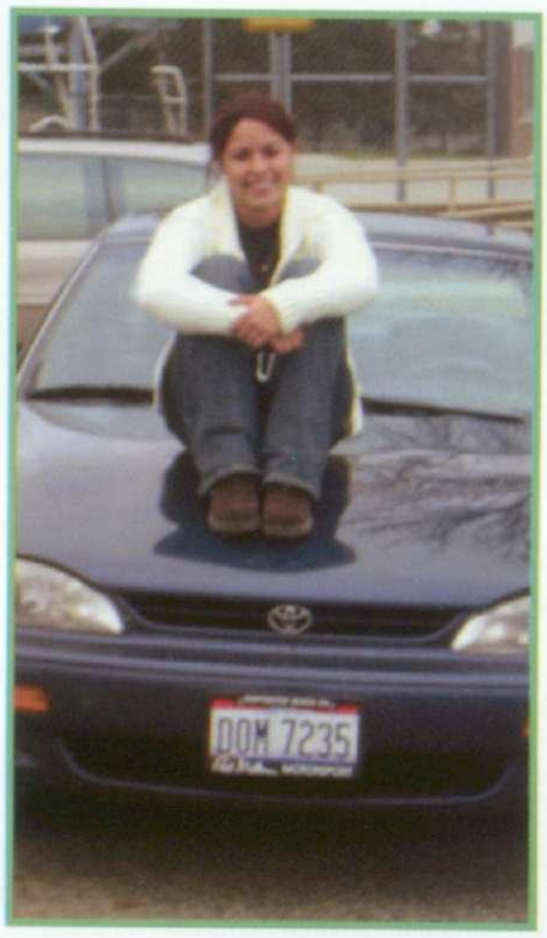
The students at Thomas Worthington were all welcome to help collect money during their free periods. John Sharvin and Amira Choueiki took advantage of that and were nice enough to stop and pose for a picture!

Parents and staff take time to collect and count all of the money coming in constantly throughout the day. Without these wonderful volunteers there's no way we would have been able to keep track of all the money, thank you!

MY RIDE

One of the most monumental days in a teenager's life is their sixteenth birthday. This day traditionally endows adolescents with the privilege of driving. This privilege usually brings freedom and makes life easier and more enjoyable. For many teenagers, a car usually accompanies their new driver's license. For some this means a red BMW bought by their parents, and for others it means a barely working used Honda they bought themselves. Whether it is a car of luxury or one passed down from an older sibling, there is usually a story behind it. It wasn't hard to find these stories with over 500 cars parked at Thomas daily. Even if you haven't experienced something like it yourself, you probably know someone who has.

"It was 1:00 in the morning when I locked my keys in my car. The worst part was that I had to walk five miles to Ryan Love's house to use the phone." - Dani Igo



"I locked my keys in my car at the flats before soccer. The only spare key was in my mom's office, so I decided it would be okay to come back later with my mom and the key. When I got back, a window was broken into and my purse, cell phone, and month old ipod were stolen." - Ariana Gonzalez

"I was staying the night at one of my friend's houses and we had all gone to sleep. The next thing I know, I'm taking a left turn on to High Street at 2 a.m. It turns out that I had walked to the car, started the ignition, and driven nearly a mile all in my sleep!" -Anonymous

"I misplaced my license the first day I had it. Fortunately I found it the next day." - Cori Erb

"I've had lots of fun times with my old beat-up blue truck. From carrying softball equipment to moving furniture from Fredericktown to Worthington it has always been there for me. I really love my old blue Ford Ranger." - Mira McPeek

"It was my 18th birthday, and my parents had just given me money to buy a new camera. On my way to work, I got into an accident. Instead of filing a police report, I handed over my camera money to pay for the damages." - John Bernard

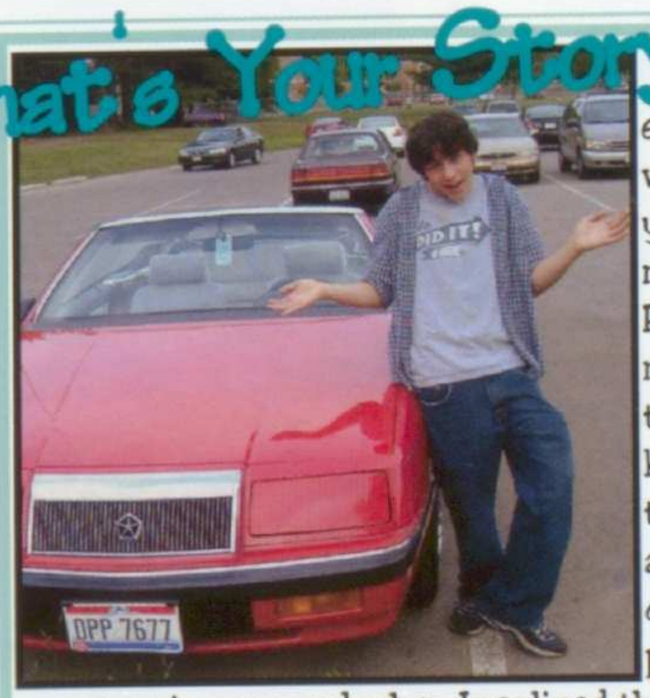
"My car was always a piece of junk, even before I hit a pick-up truck. So when I had to replace the hood with one from the junkyard, I decided to paint it camoflage after my mom jokingly suggested it." - Chris Wright

"I was driving a friend home from theater when I rear-ended a parked car. Her street was loaded with cars becuase her parents were hosting a Bible study. I avoided the expensive one, and hit another instead."
- Deirdre Huang

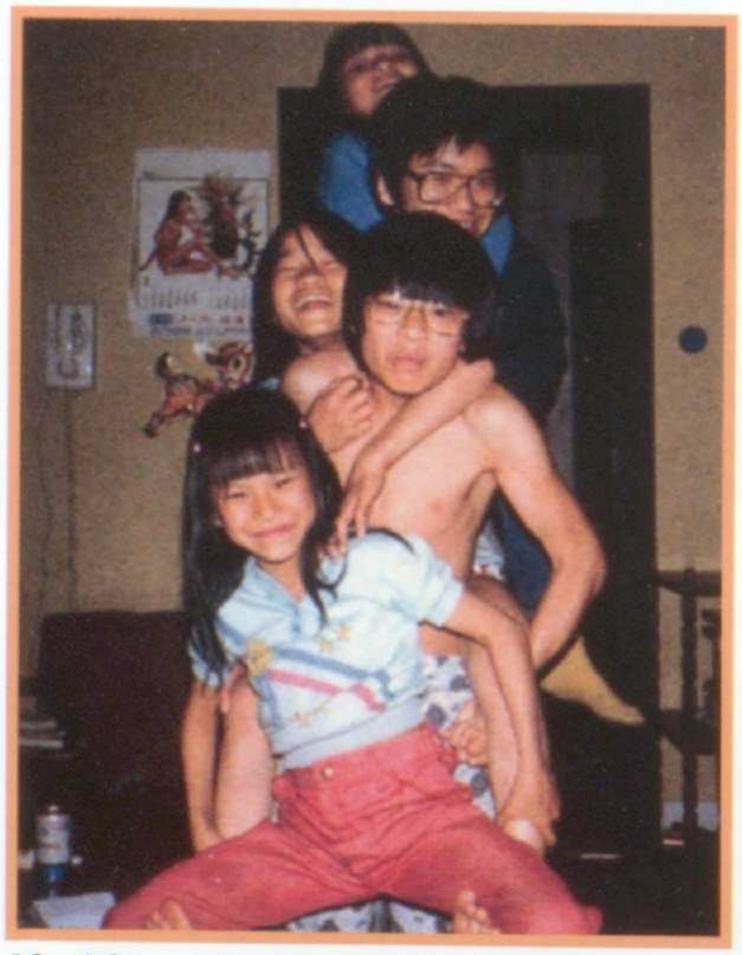
"I was camping with some friends when I noticed smoke coming from my car. I went to check it out, and I found my back tire on fire and the pennies stolen from the inside of my car."
- Andrew Wilcox

"Randy Aun wanted to drive my car. Instead of using the remote to unlock the doors he put the key into the keyhole. The alarm started going off. It wouldn't turn off, so someone walking by told us to remove a fuse. The alarm stopped, but later that night when I went to turn the lights on nothing happened. I called my mom in a panic, and she came and followed me home. Thankfully it was fixable, and now Marsha is running just great!"
- Missy Taylor

What's Your Story?



"The worst thing that ever happened to me in my car was on my birthday a couple of years ago. I was driving my mom and two of my friends to Pizza Hut for lunch to celebrate my big day when I missed the turn into the parking lot. So, I kept driving thinking I would turn into the next drive. By accident I missed that driveway too, so I pulled into a parking lot to turn around. I was turning around when I realized that there was a truck waiting for me to finish. I got really nervous and I panicked, accidently hitting the gas. I didn't realize until after I flew backwards over a curb and hit a tree that I had been in reverse." - Brian McClurg



Mrs. Warren always wanted to be a mom; she gained hands-on experience babysitting. Her motherly instincts make the students at TWHS love her, and it makes her a great teacher too!

Duck Anyone? Chemistry teacher Mr. Scully had aspirations of being a police officer when he grew up. Apparently he was a good enough shot to be one!

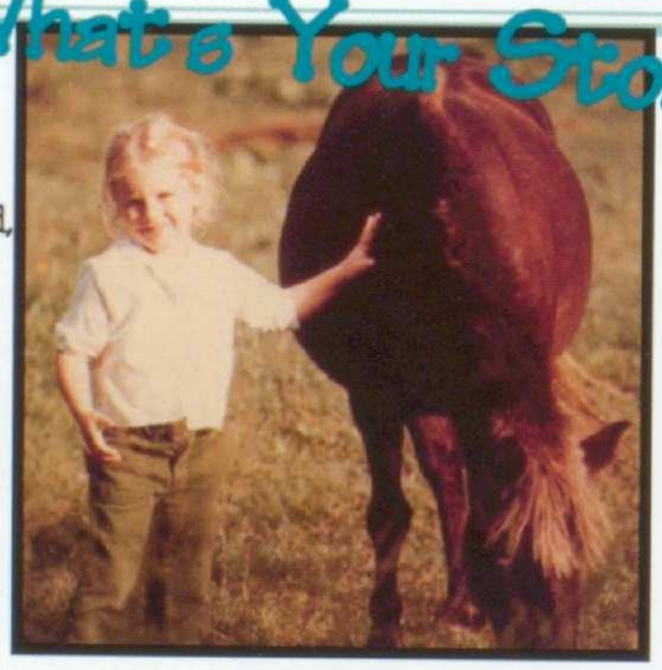
Mrs. Allsop is one of the few teachers at TWHS whose dream is now her career. Always one to joke with her students, she loves her job as a math teacher!

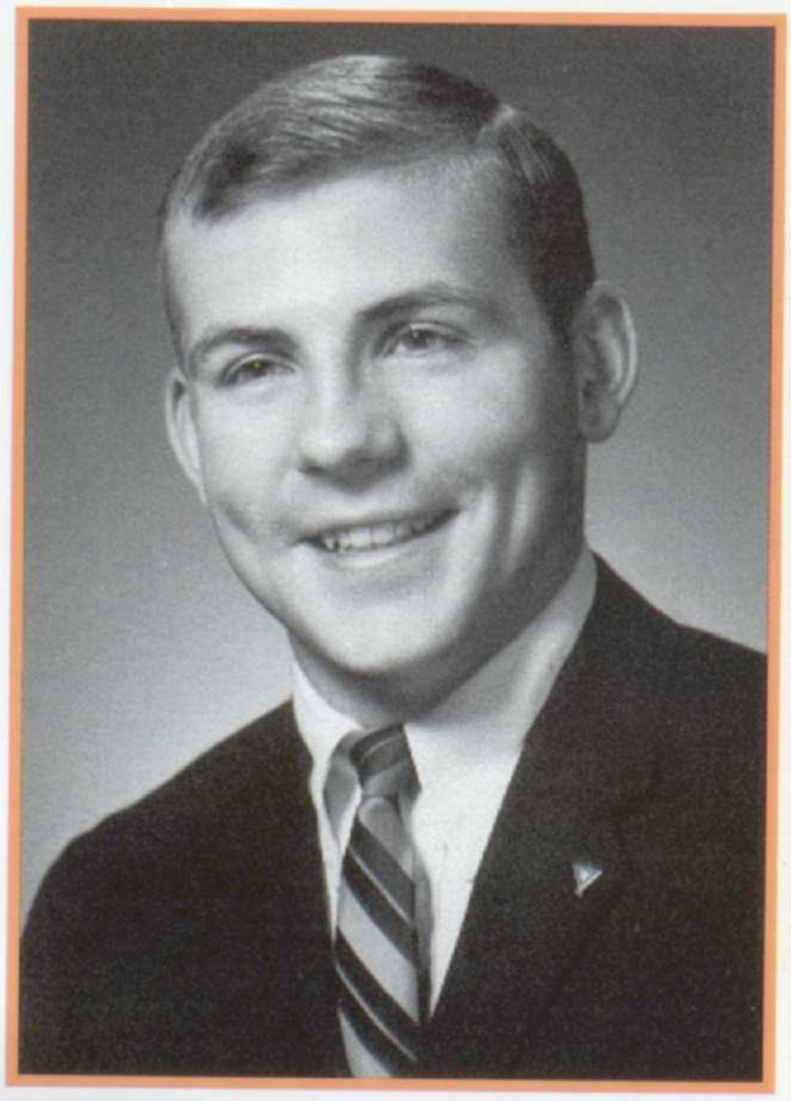
(Far Right, highlighted) As a young girl Mrs. Baker was torn between going into a Ceramics major or becoming a pharmacist, but luckily for TWHS she became our beloved school librarian instead.

What's Your Story?



Most students here at TWHS can tell you who Mrs. Maurer is and what she teaches, but few can tell you that as a child, Mrs. Maurer had a very different goal, involving not people, but animals; for when she was just a little girl she dreamed of one day becoming a veterinarian. Living on a farm allowed her to be around animals all the time and encouraged her dreams of becoming a vet. Unlike most girls her age, instead of playing house with dolls, she would take box turtles she found in her yard and make little houses for them.

Mr. Ellwood, always on the ball, wanted to be an OSU football player when he was younger, but he has no regrets about being a history teacher.



What Dreams May Come...

English Teacher Mrs. Saunders ended up right where she wanted to be as an educator!

Once upon a time there were forty-four little kids with some amazing dreams and ambitions. They wanted to grow up to be anything; from teachers to dancers, forest rangers to fashion designers. Years passed and dreams changed and those forty-four little kids became the teachers we now know and love. Now's their chance to share their aspirations.

So, teachers, what's your story?

Happily Ever After...

These individuals had the determination and fortitude to become the teachers that they always dreamed to be!

Study hall monitor, Mrs. Colilla, aspired to be the next F. Scott Fitzgerald. Here, she is just enjoying a baseball game with First Baseman for the Chicago Cubs, #14 Ernie Banks.

Sporting the primitive Mohawk, Ms. Davis wanted to help her animal friends when she was young by becoming a veterinarian.

Mr. Cellar's dream job was out of this world! He wanted to be an astronaut, but now he is helping students at TWHS reach for the stars as a guidance counselor.

Ever since reading with her mother, Mrs. Taracuk has loved reading and enjoys sharing her knowledge though her job in the library.

Prada is one of the most famous designers in the world. Prada is so desired, companies have maufactured knock-off or fake Prada merchandise. Can you guess if this bag is Prada or Frada?

Fashion Trends
2005-2006

-designer bags and purses

-Ugg boots

-bolero sweaters

-Lacoste polos

-Timberland boots

-layered shirts

-North Face Jackets

-Rainbow flip-flops

-designer jeans

Kate Allenby is sporting a perfect example of one of spring's top fashion 'to-do's'. She has a colored tank top underneath a stylish off-the-shoulder t-shirt.

Where did all the ponchos go?

As you strut down the halls of TWHS and take a look at our students, it becomes evident that we dress to impress. When it comes to what's "in" and what's "out," our students know best. Throughout the fall, winter, and spring, we have found some distinct fashion trends that almost everyone has picked up on. Last year's ponchos are out and here's what's "in". For the fall, girls loved to sport jean skirts and bolero sweaters and the guys liked to lounge around in Lacoste and Ralph Lauren Polos. Throughout the winter, Australian Sheepskin Ugg boots keep the ladies' feet cozy and the guys favored the Timberland work boots. When the spring came along, bright colored tank tops are what the girls loved to layer and the guys busted out their Rainbow Flip-Flops to school. Take a look at some of Thomas's own favorite fashions.

Pretty-faced Megan Nafziger sports her North Face jacket at school. This warm yet fashionable look suits her quite well.

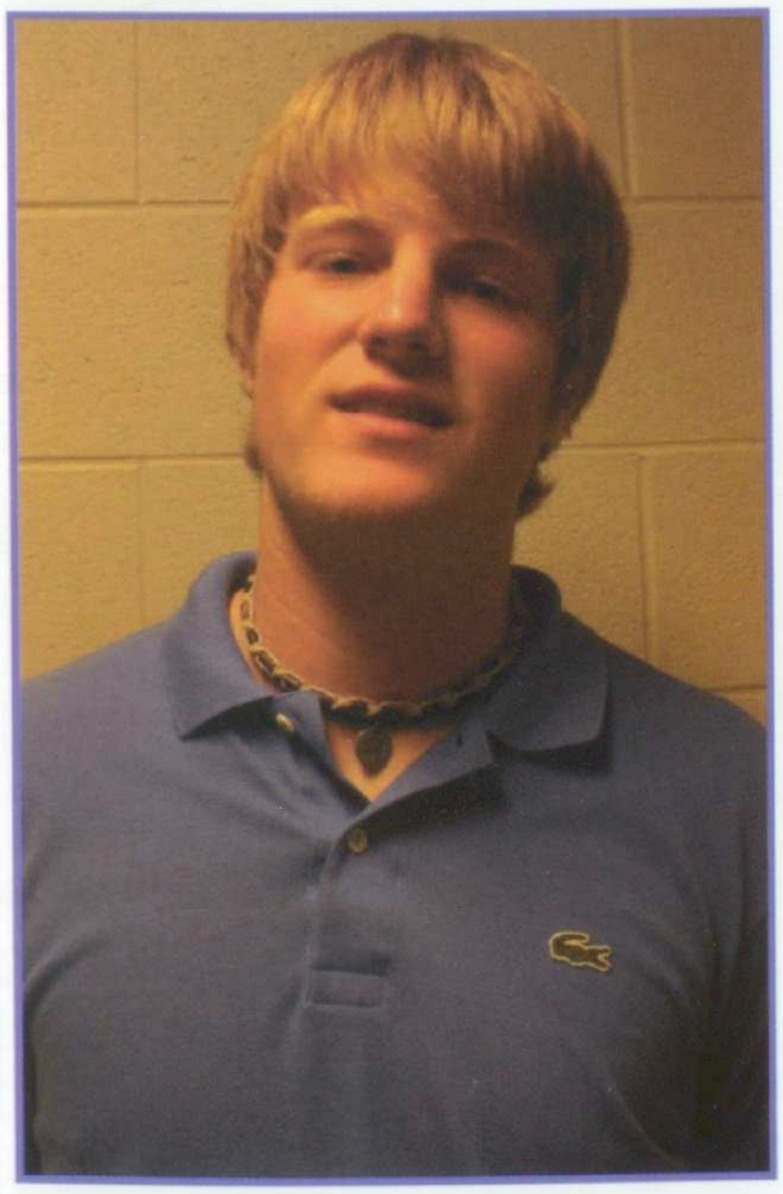
Sorry Mr. Shannon, I think the argyle sweater went out in 1989. Maybe you should hit the closest Lacoste boutique and buy a hot new polo! Blue would suit you best; it would bring out your eyes.

Sporting a bolero sweater over a trendy long tee, Bethany Keller discusses the latest trends with her designer on her hip cell phone.

Obviously wishing she was shopping, Amy Chadwell looks fashionable as usual. She is wearing an ever-so-popular jean skirt accompanied by one of this year's hot new trends; Cowboy boots.

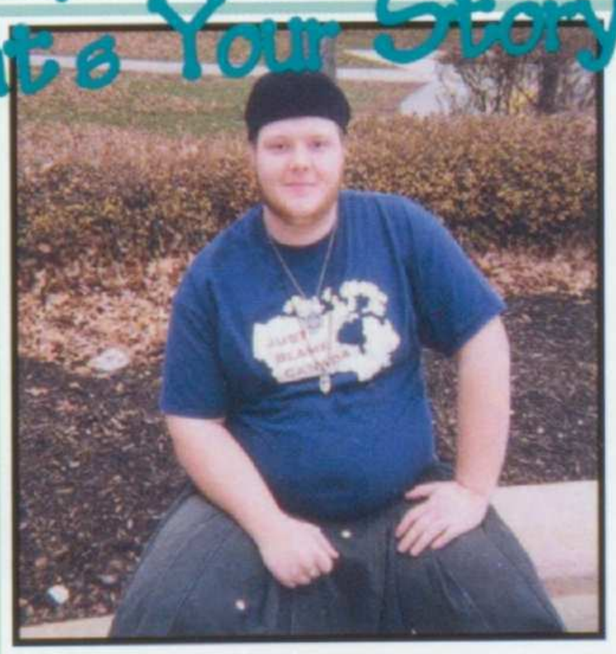
Accessories create a perfect touch for completing an outfit. Maggie Hester definitely knows how to accessorize well with the classic Tiffany and Co. bracelet, one of this year's most desired items.

Shoes can make or break an outfit. The top choices of footwear for Cardinals this year have been Uggs for the ladies, Timberland boots for the guys and no one can seem to get enough of the Rainbow flip-flops. Skater shoes have also become a common trend among the TWHS fashion experts.



Is that an alligator on Brett Hoffman's polo shirt? It sure is, and not just any alligator, it's a Lacoste alligator. Lacoste is the new Ralph Lauren this year. Way to be in the know Brett!

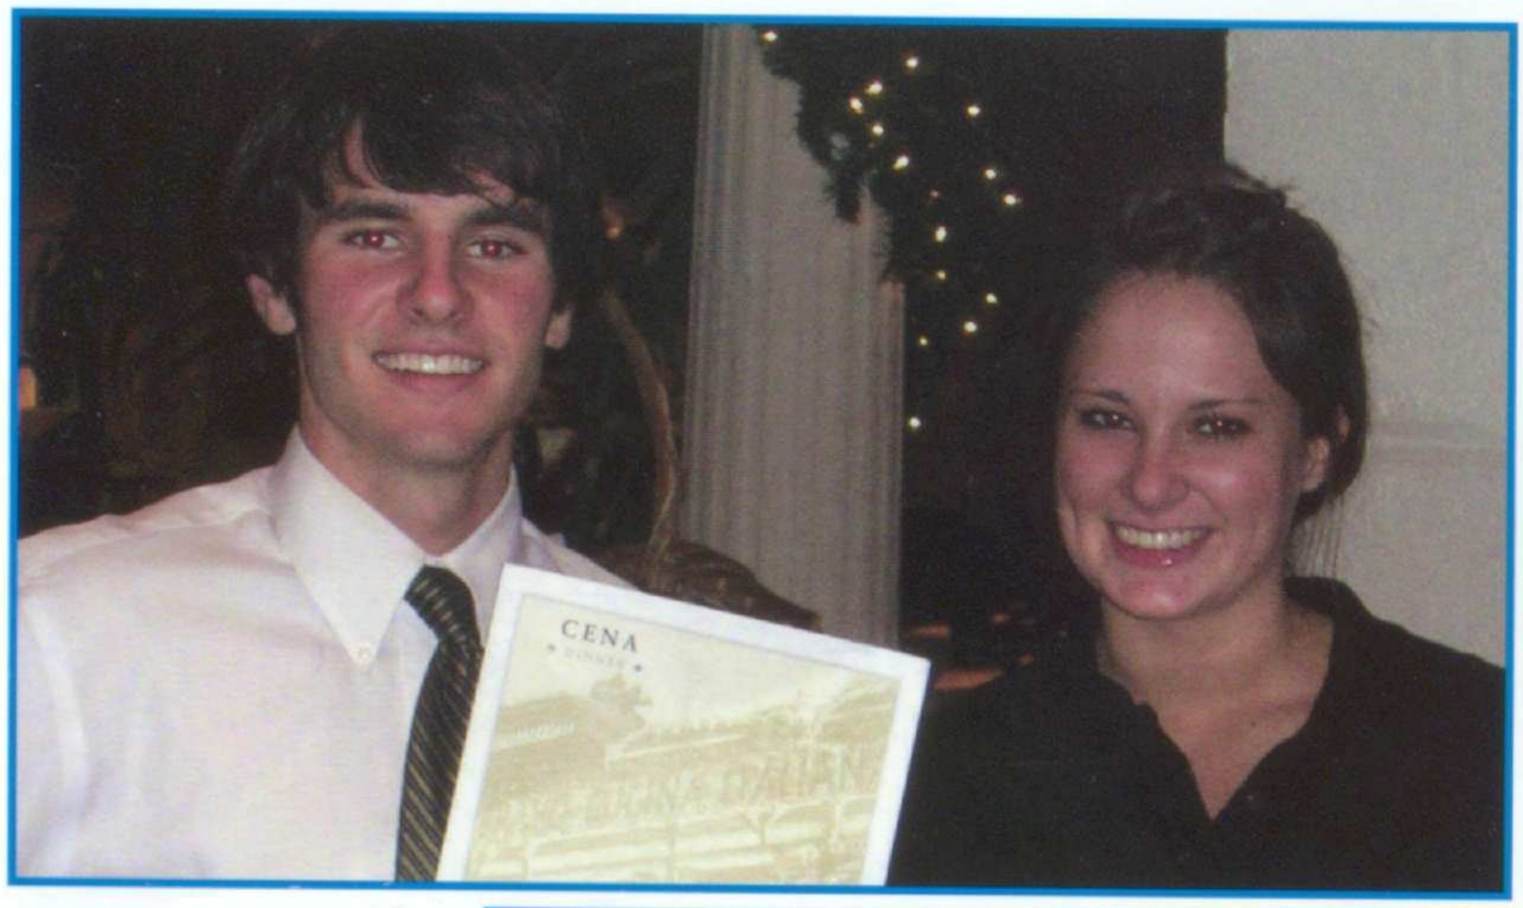
What's Your Story?



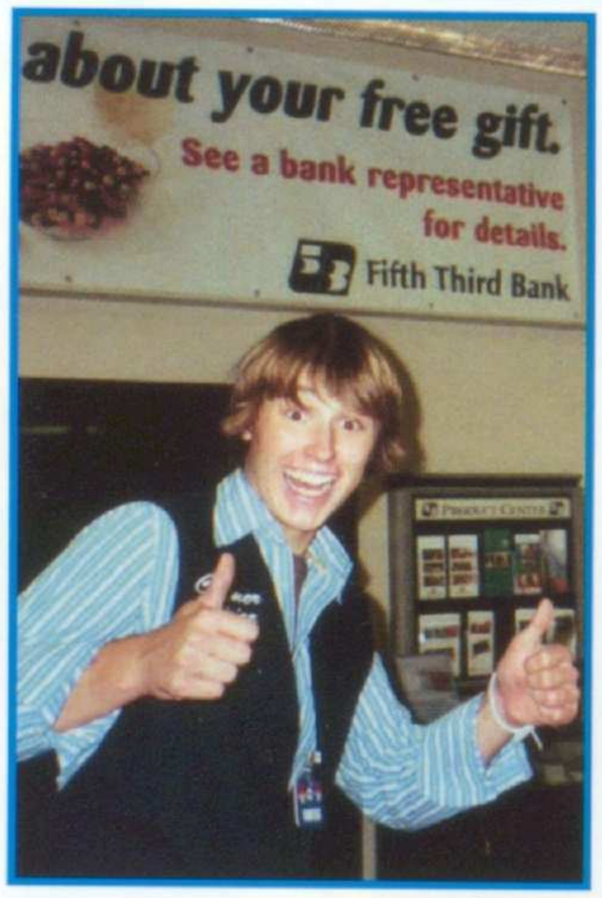
"I first got the idea of wearing a kilt back when I lived in Seattle. It was actually a popular thing to do. It also helped that I was obsessed with Braveheart. I got my first kilt from a shop in Seattle called Utili-Kilts, and it took eight weeks to make and ship to Washington. I wear them everywhere, not just school, and I wear them beacause it's comfortable. I own five kilts in all; I made three, and bought two. My mom approves of them and I get a lot of mixed reactions. Some people think it's cool, others, mostly adults, wonder about it. Many people are ignorant and just think I'm a freak show. Wearing kilts is very unique, but I like to wear them."
-Mighty Quinn Forman, Senior

Bravo, the most popular Italian Bistro in Worthington, employs dozens of students from TWHS. Hosts, Meriden Peters and Jordan Leather, enjoy "meeting new people and getting great discounts on the amazing food."

When craving an old-fashioned, home-cooked meal, Bob Evans is the perfect place to visit. Senior Jacque Adams says the hardest thing about her job as a waitress is "balancing a full tray of food."



Smiling comes easy for those who work at Kroger's Food and Market Place. Senior Robert Faust gives low prices and Customer Service two thumbs up.



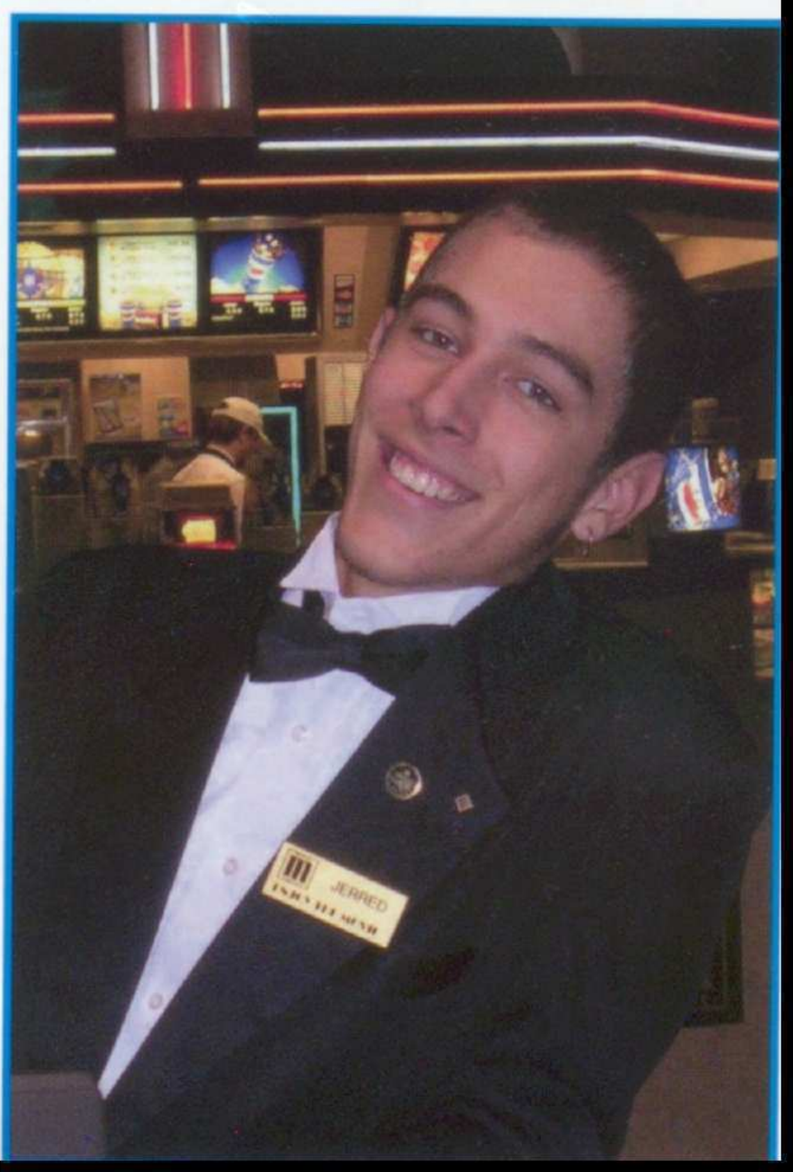
What could be better than steak and seafood? How about two beautiful hostesses. Seniors Katie Ritzert and Emily Focht insist that the best thing about working at J. Gilberts is "having Chef make us free food!"

What's Your Story?

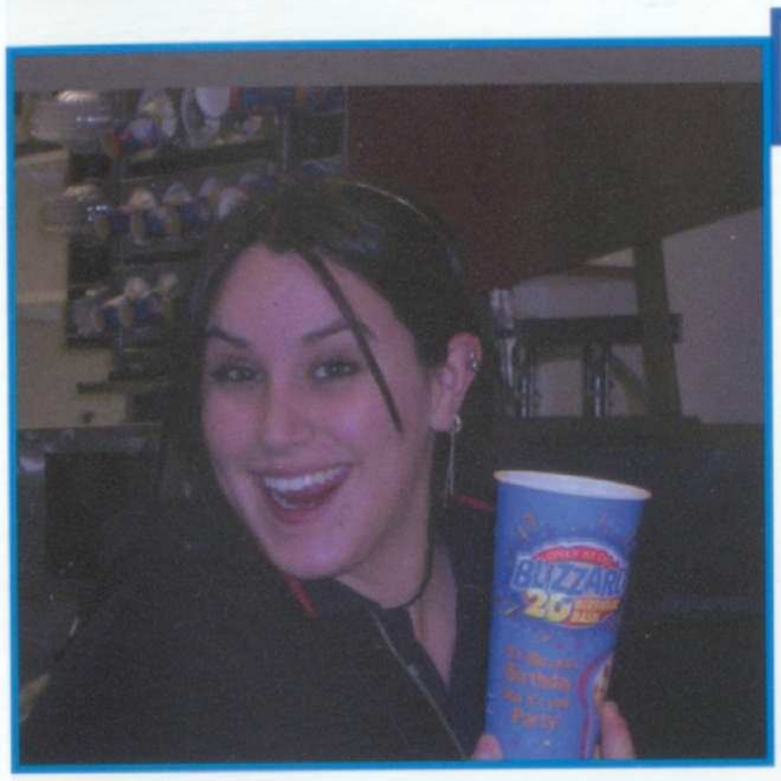
" One of the coolest things about working in the Polaris Mall at Finish Line is how I get to see and meet all different kinds of people. I'm not talking about just strange customers that come in, I've seen celebrities come in too which is always really exciting. One of the celebrities I saw was D4L which is a rap group that sings the song "Laffy Taffy." Not many people know who that is but it's just meeting a "famous" person. I also met John Glen. John Glen is the first person to orbit the earth and oldest person to go to space. That was defnitely a really cool thing to happen to me at work.

- Tara Shotwell, Senior

Lights! Camera! Action! Senior Jerred Ziegler "loves watching the variety of people that come to the movies."



Get a Job!

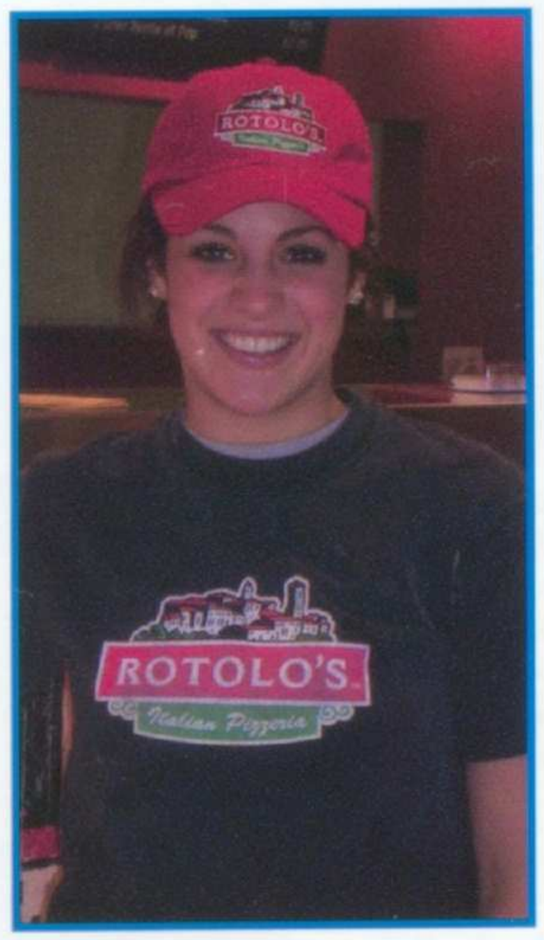


Making good eats and cool treats is no task for Dairy Queen. Senior Dani Igo challenges you to "DQ something different."

"Get a job," is a common household saying that teenagers often hear from their parents. TWHS is full of young employees ready to take on the challenges of the work world. With the pressure to maintain a social life, pay cell phone bills, and meet the ever growing demand of gas prices, teens are always anxious to earn a few extra dollars these days. So, whether it be for new experiences or plain financial satisfaction, kids around Worthington continue to seek employment. While retail and babysitting jobs are common, many students also enjoy working at local restaurants and food vendors. Students around the school have shared their personal stories about choosing where to apply, the ups and downs of being "responsible," and the adventures that come from holding a part-time job. "High schoolers jobs are their lives," says senior Carlie Powers.

Bagels for breakfast, sandwiches for lunch, and salads for dinner are the fad at most eateries around town. Cosi, a delicious restaurant that many senior Cards visit for lunch, is no exception. Senior Jeff Zaenger claims that "working a cash register is not always glamorous" but his real job revolves around "making each customers Cosi experience an enjoyable one."

Marengo Institute Day Spa is not only new to Polaris, but also to Renee Schmid. "I'm learning how to schedule and give information on services," says Renee.



Italian cuisine features food in all shapes and sizes, but pizza is definitely a favorite among teens. "It doesn't seem like it would be the best job, but it's definitely a lot of fun!" exclaims senior Carly Marsico, having a blast making pizzas at Rotolo's Italian Pizzaria.

The constant need for a caffeine fix isn't the only reason these two decided to apply to Caribou Coffee. "The atmosphere of the coffee shop is so laid-back, it's relaxing," said junior Stefanee Wolford. "I love coffee in general so I knew I'd be right at home here," agrees junior Brad Miller.

Who will you miss the most?

Everyone has someone they look up to and want to be like. Throughout our lives we have mentors. Seniors seem to play that role to many younger students in the school. After senior year kids move on and go in all different directions, but many have left their mark somewhere in this school. When the seniors graduate, who will you miss the most?

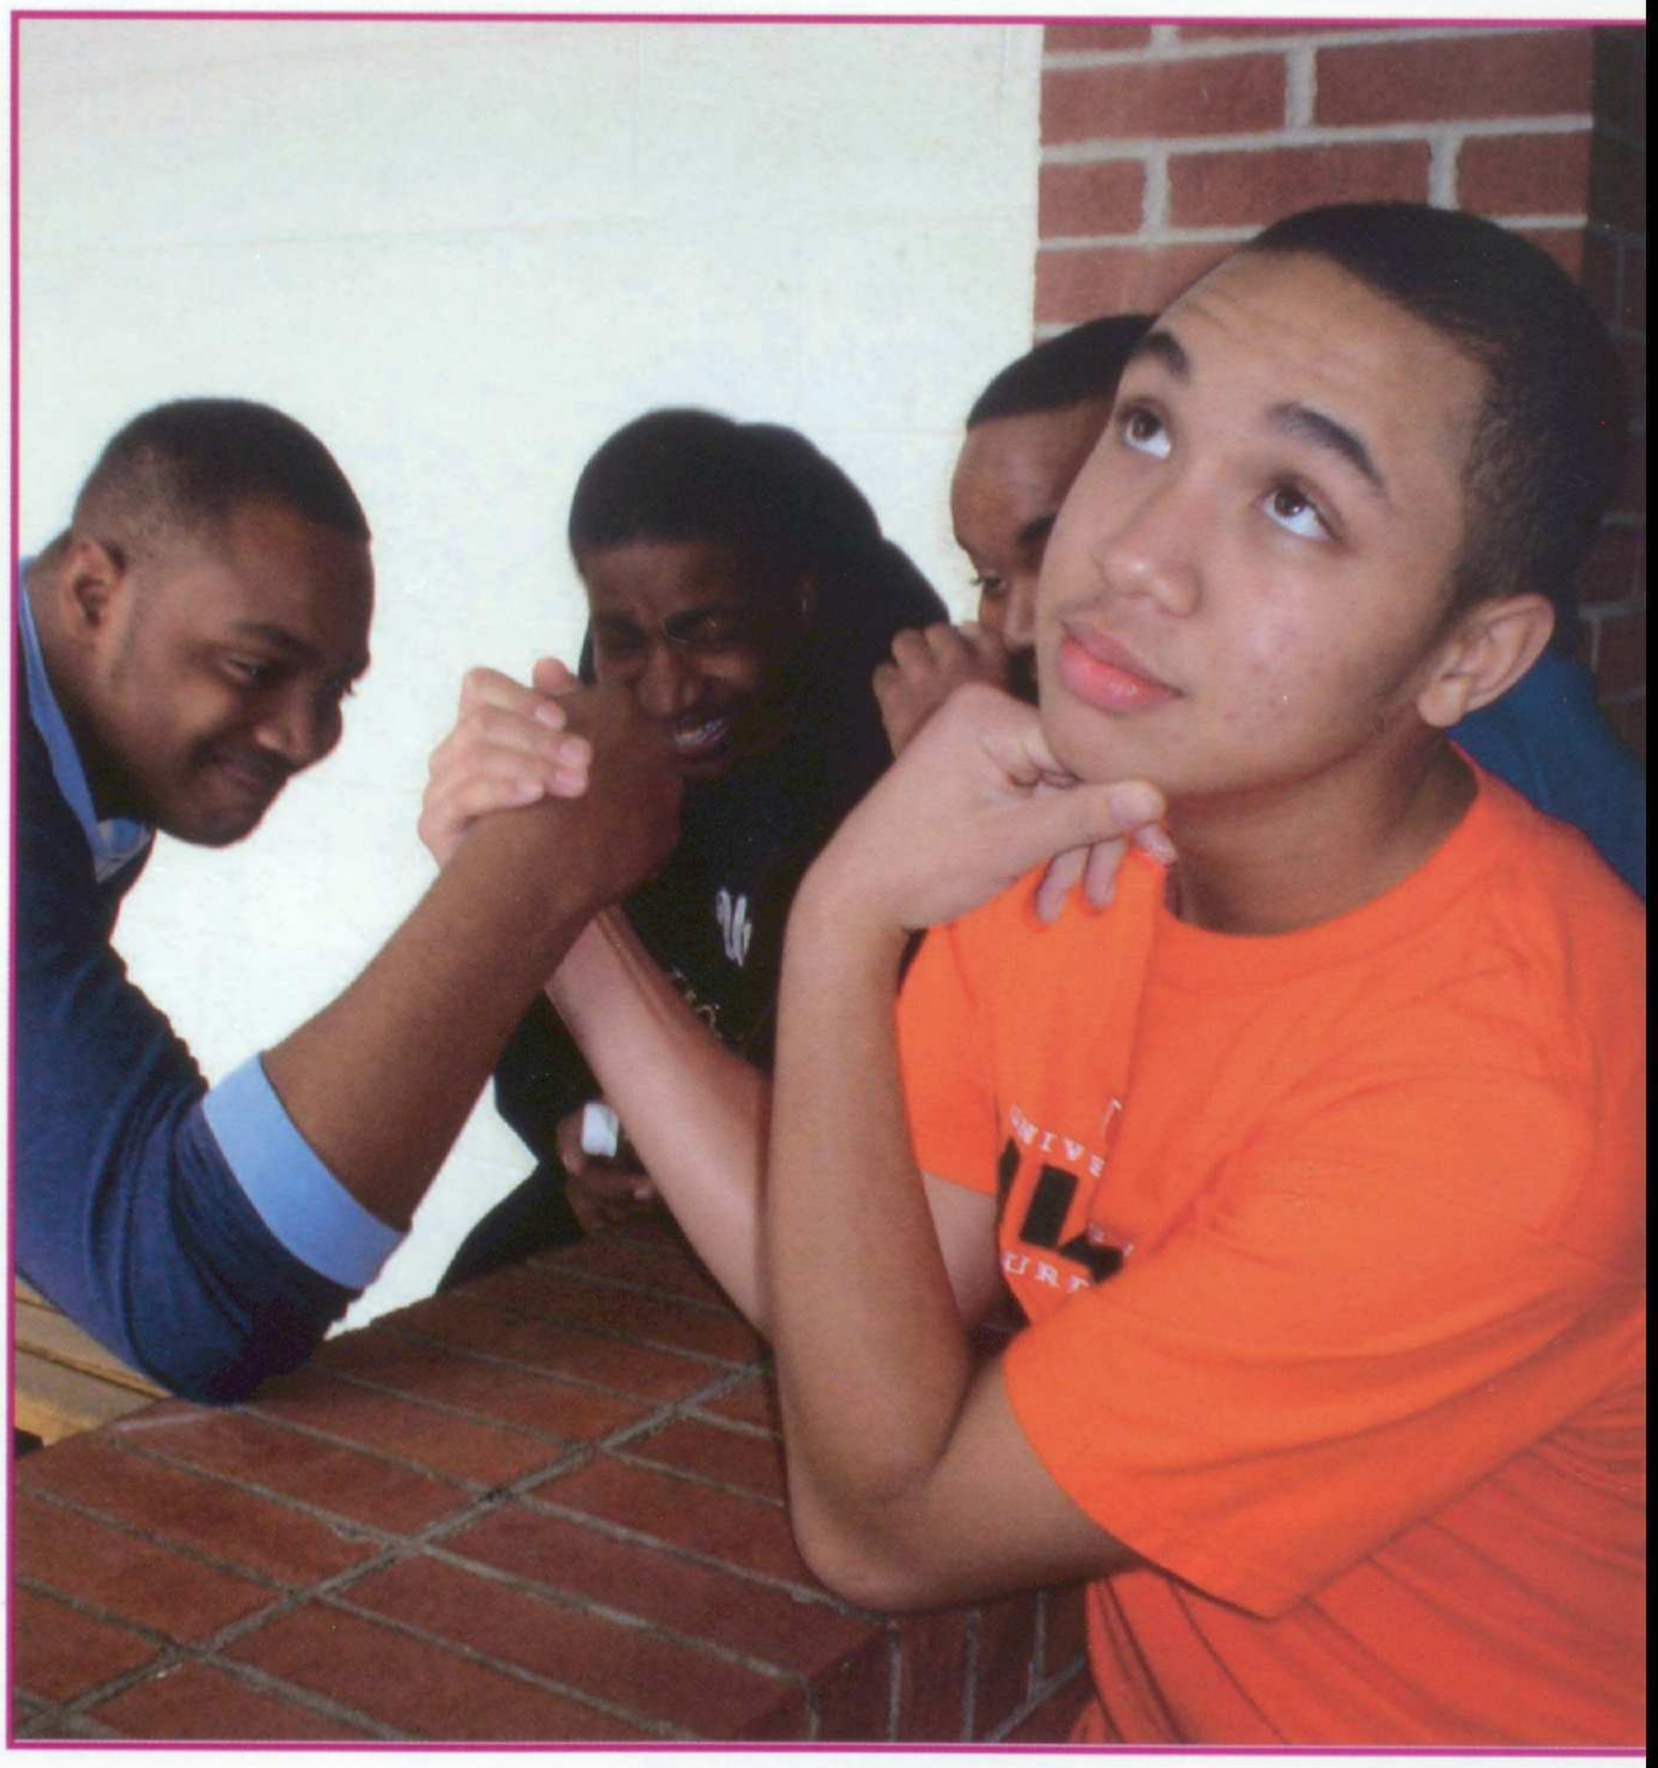
"T'll miss the unique personalities, the beautiful smiles, the closeness, and especially the lovely men of the Miss America pagent! Most of all, I'll miss the BEST yearbook staff ever!" -Jan Fish

Sophomore Evin Hoffman is swept off his feet by "extraordinarily hot" senior Will Maetzold, as Evin serenades Will with his amazing air guitar skills.

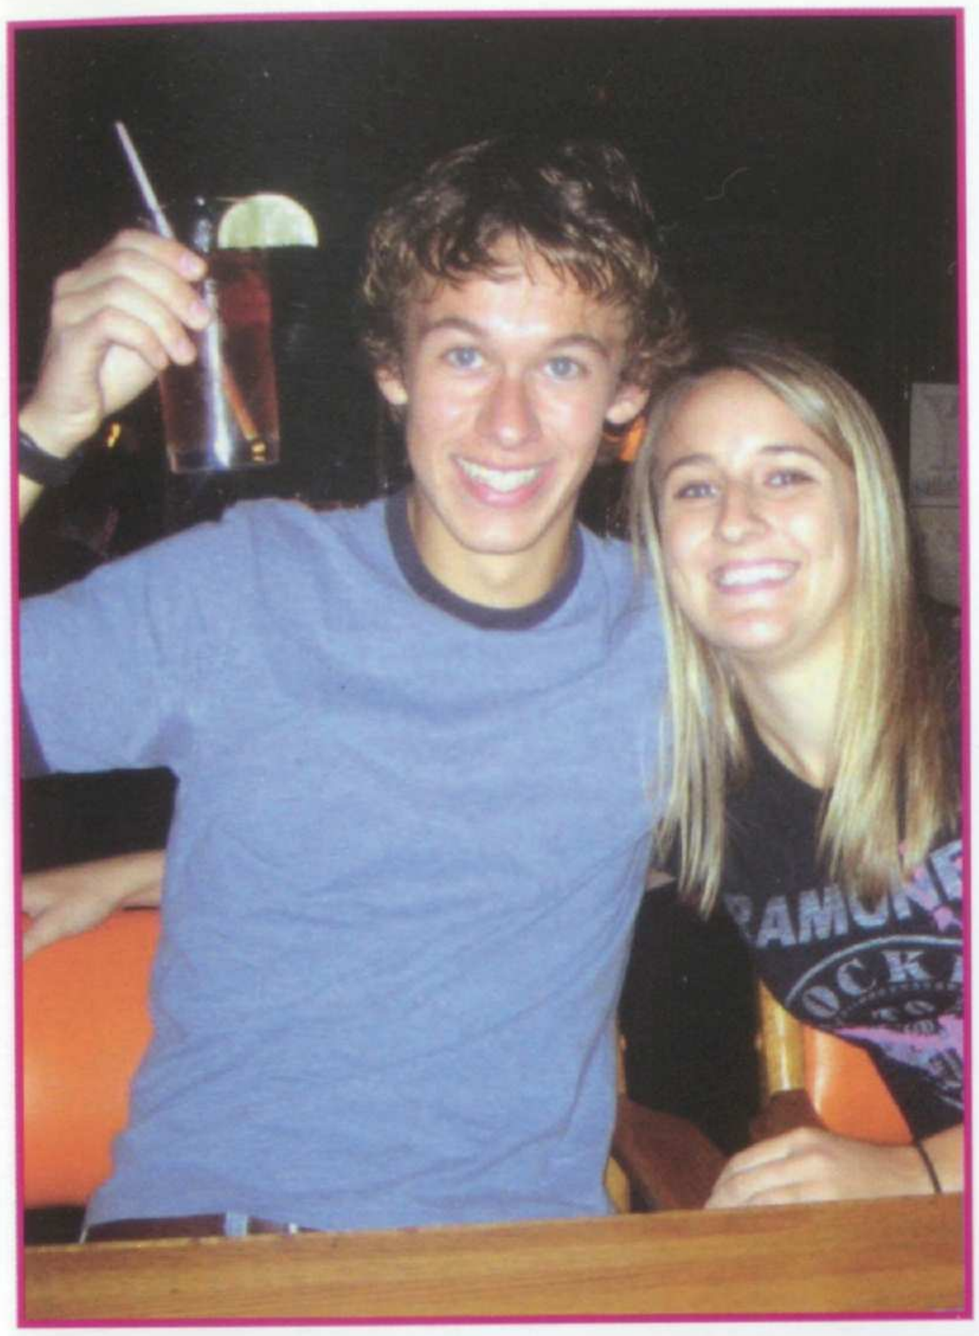
What John Sharvin and Jack Straub will miss most about Chris Kobylski is his curly hair. Also, Sharvin will miss the birthday parties with Chris at Olive Garden. John and Jack will miss Chris so much, they can't even keep their hands off him!

Soccer buddies Ali Jacobs, Erica Andrade, and senior Ariana Gonzalez better work off that cake. The girls will miss Ariana on and off the field.

Fans and the football team will be sad to see these Thomas Worthington senior cheerleaders show their spirit for one last home football game.

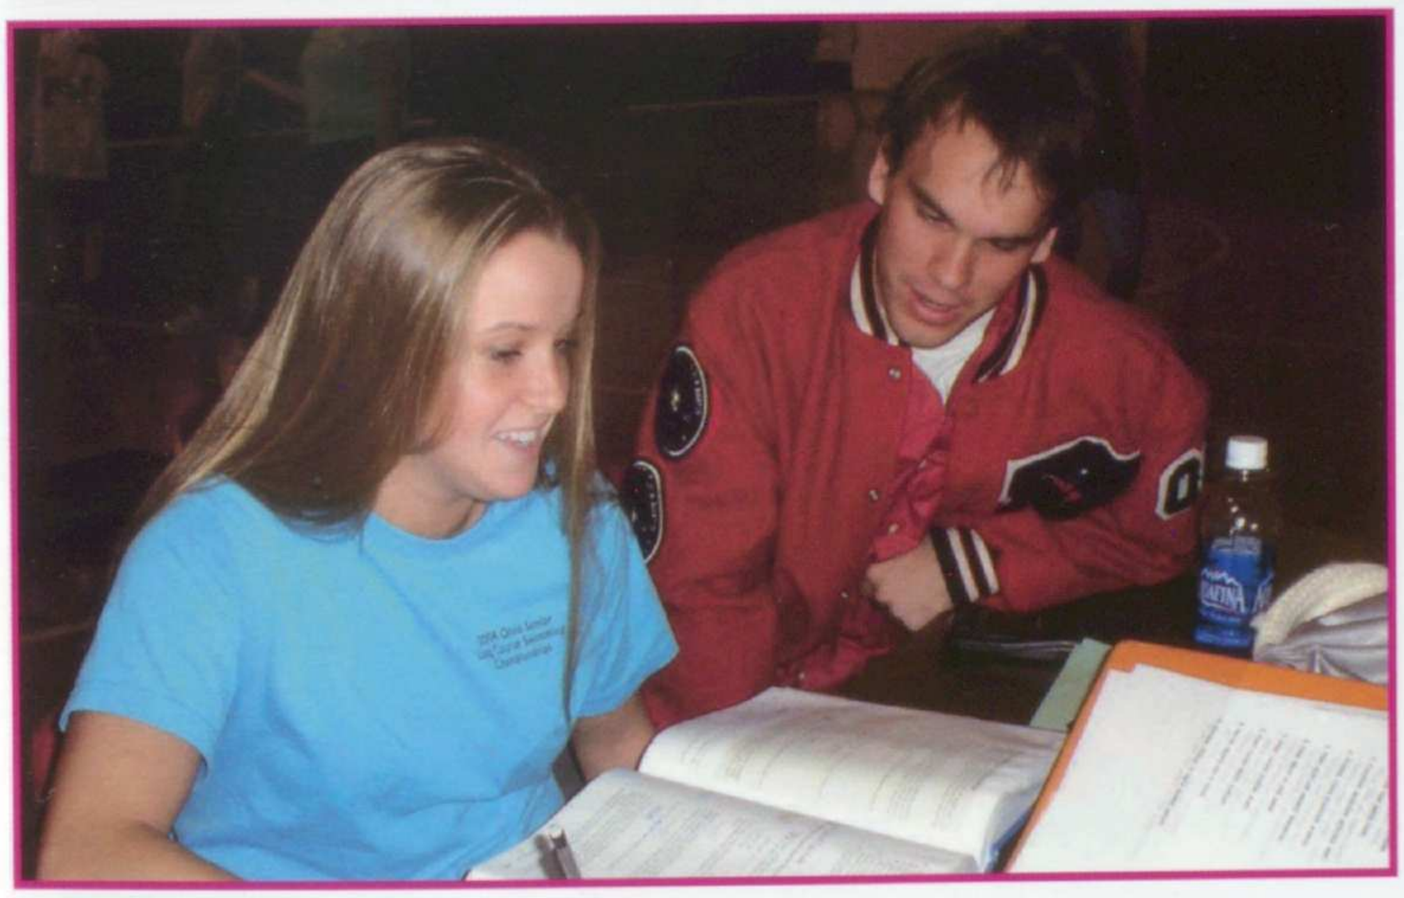


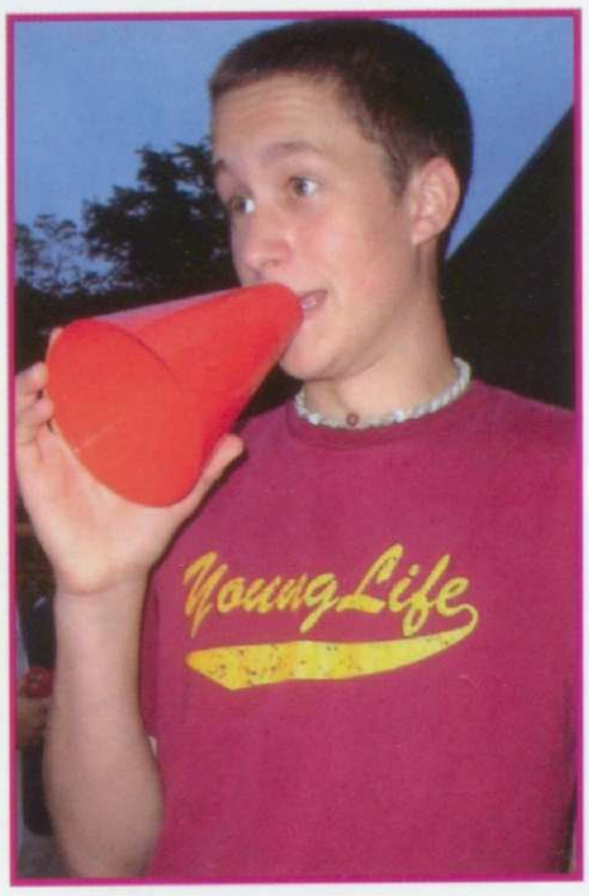
Cheering on their senior buddy, Maurice Carter, during an arm wrestling match, are Frank Mells and Damien Johnson. It doesn't look like Chris Reece is even breaking a sweat. Who won't miss varsity events like this?



While taking a break from karaoke at Otani, two of Thomas' most missed seniors, John Bernard and Carolyn Nesline, enjoy their senior lunch privileges.

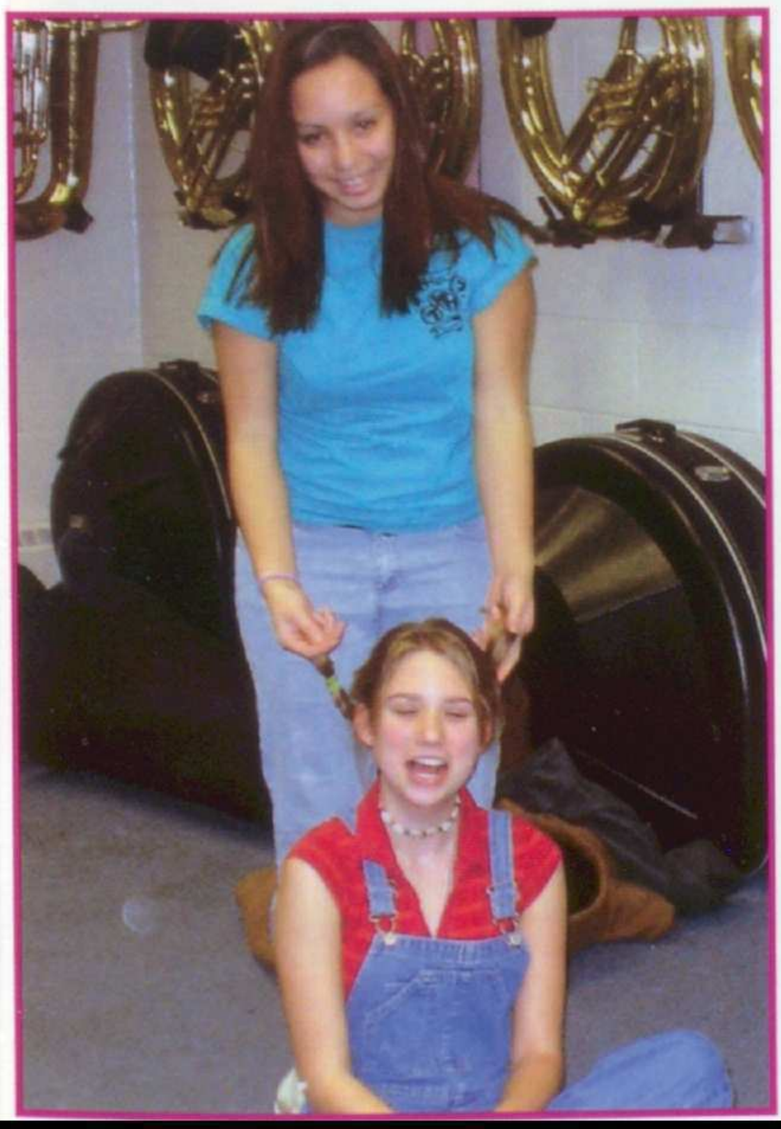
"The senior class is a great group of leaders with a good sense of humor," says Mallory Meaney. Below the comical seniors dress up as their favorite state for halloween.





Always willing to lend a hand, senior David Timko takes a time out of aiding for gym in order to help junior Emma Stanger with her demanding math homework.

"I will miss the GOOOOOOOOD times with all of the seniors!" exclaims David Jacob as he cheers his senior friends on at one of the home Thomas Worthington football games.



It looks like Gracie Hursey's band buddy, senior Joscelyne Olivar, is having fun pulling her hair. She is really perfecting her styling skills during their eighth period band break.

What's Your Story?

Forming relationships is vital to happiness. Make someone smile or give someone a hug. It is a lovely thing to connect with another person. High school wouldn't be the same without forming bonds with other people. I have learned and am amazed at how much every individual has to offer, everyone has something to say or give. You just have to find the people that make you happy and remember it is a two way street. The relationships that work really well like that are always worth keeping. "Love doesn't divide, it multiplies."

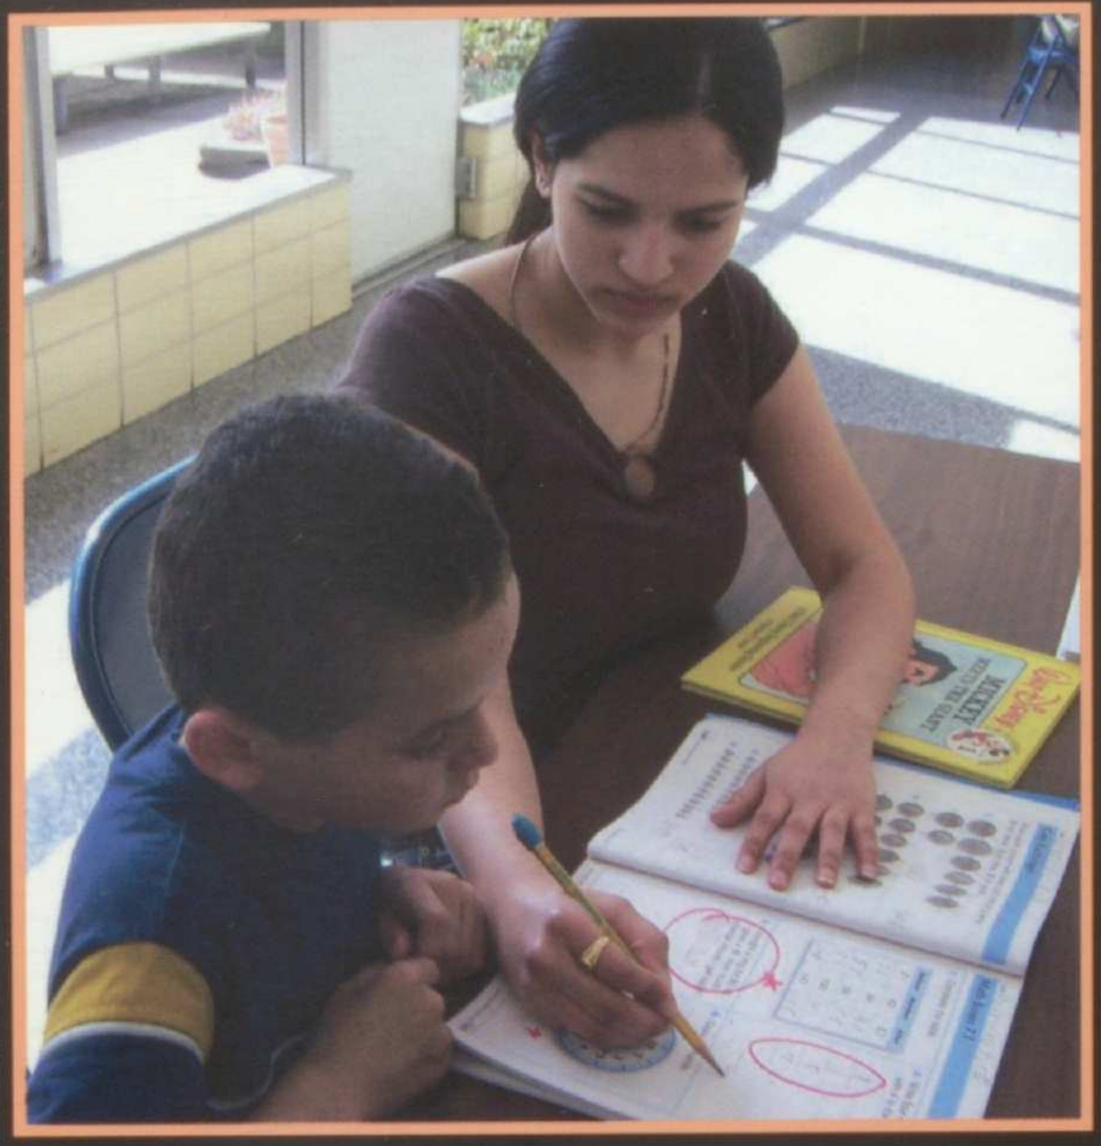
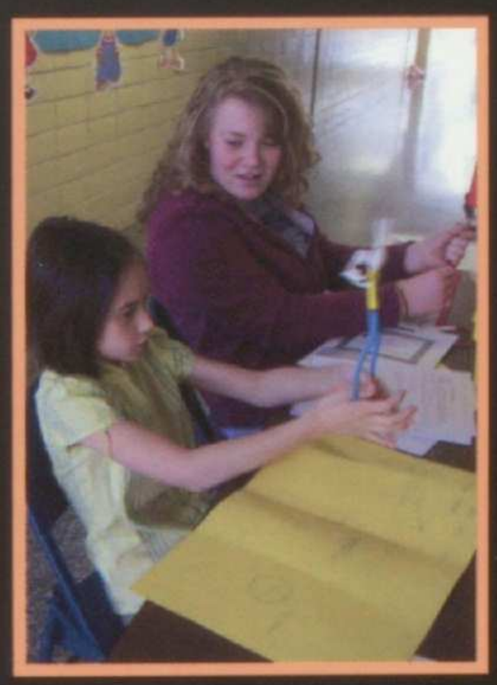
Cards for Kids

Cards for Kids gives students that attend TWHS the opportunity to mentor elementary children who need help with school work or just need a little extra attention and care. At the beginning of the year, students who are interested are interviewed and then assigned a school and a mentee. The mentors help the students with school work and any everyday problems that they may face. As a member of Cards for Kids, students are very devoted to their cause, often giving up free periods and lunch periods to work with their mentees. Although it may seem like a simple task to sit down and help a child with their homework, it is a difficult task that requires a lot of patience, not to mention having the ability to actually explain to the child the concepts behind what they have learned. Although TWHS students mostly help with areas that the kids are struggling in, they also serve as friendly faces that the children can just talk to about whatever is on their minds. As many of the Cards for Kids members will tell you, it is a very gratifying experience that they carry with them for the rest of their lives.

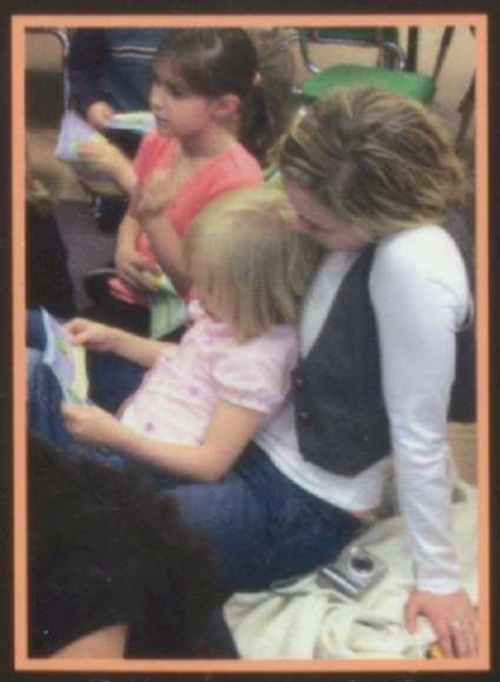


Math is a subject we have all at some point struggled to understand. Pooja Shah, a junior here at TWHS who started her volunteer work with Cards for Kids this year, helps out her mentee with a math concept he is struggling with. Pooja plans on becoming a pediatrician and became involved in the Cards for Kids program because she enjoys working with kids and loves making a difference in their lives. Volunteers for Cards for Kids usually participate in the program because they plan on entering a field working with children, and through the program they gain hands-on experience working first hand with kids.



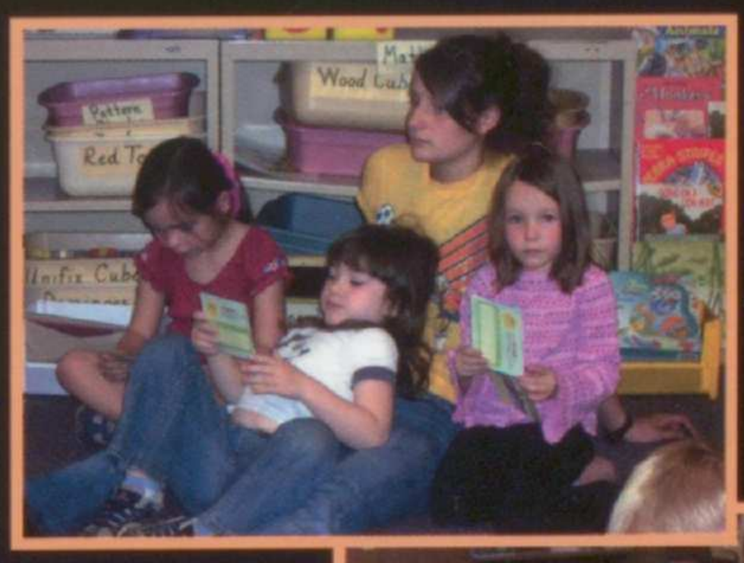
Meghan Ebright talks to her mentee about her spring break. Mentors not only help their students with any problems they're having with school work, but also spend quality time with them.

Emily Adams takes on two boys in the battle to finish their book before everyone else. Mentors make every day boring events come to life for the kids' enjoyment.



Enjoying a great book together, Claire Edgar helps out her mentee with some reading.

Working on their cutting skills, Leah Itagaki guides her mentee along the lines and checks his work.

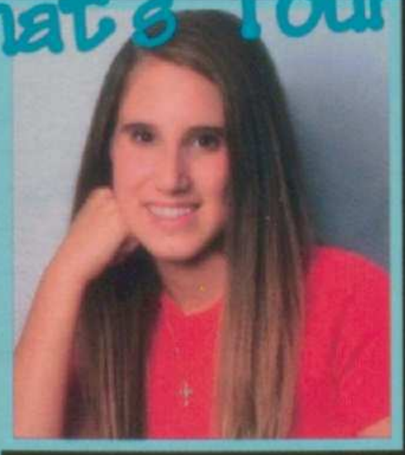


Amanda Arnold is attacked by not one, not two, but three of her mentees as they curl up to enjoy story time.

Karin Miller has been working in Cards for Kids for some time now and enjoys a quiet learning game with her mentees.

Sarai Itagaki enjoys playing under-the-sea adventures from the comfort of her chair with some of the students.

What's Your Story?



"I heard about Cards for Kids my junior year and I joined because I love working with children and I have always tried to be involved in my community. Usually with the younger kids you become their companion, but with the older kids you tend to do more tutoring. I loved working with my mentee; he was such a sweet boy that was having many personal problems at home. It was nice knowing that I was helping make things better and that he had someone who would help him or just sit and talk to him if he needed it."

Chess Club

Chess is definitely a game of intellect requiring you to not only understand your opponents and predict their next move, but to quickly think of ways to outsmart them. Each move requires thought and consideration. Chess Club meets weekly, and every Wednesday morning members get up early and come to school for a shot at beating their friends and rivals. But these sessions are just practice for members; not only do students come to enjoy some fun matches, but many of them compete in state and national competitions. Students range from beginner to advanced but all are welcome no matter how little or how much experience they have. Students challenge their abilities and better their game by learning new techniques and a few tricks from their fellow club members. This year's Chess Club advisor is Mr. Gardner, and the Chess Club president is Andrew Kobalka.

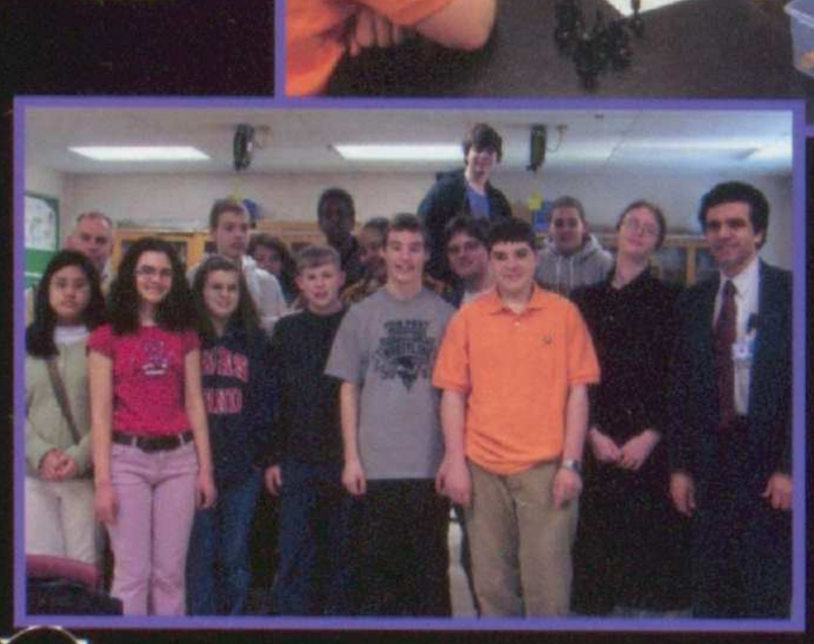
Ashley Erskine learns from her oversight as her opponent makes his move and takes one of her vital pieces.

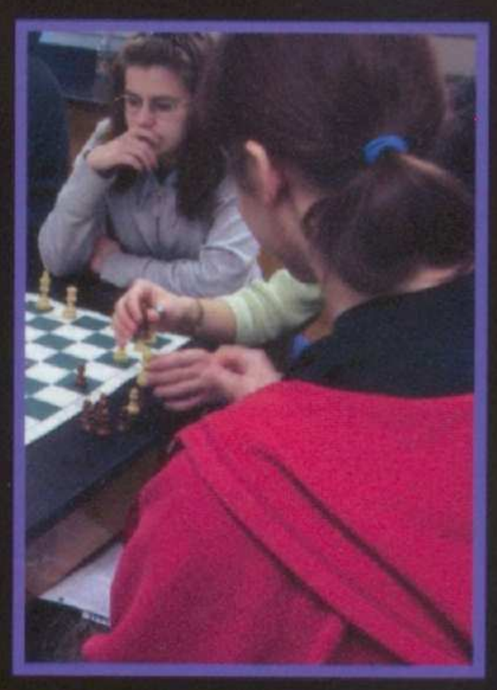
Junxing Ren watches as his opponent strikes, preparing to make his next move as the game begins to heat up.

These two know concentration is key to any game of chess. An interesting game that members have invented involves two separate games of chess. Players are still against whomever is on their opposite side but whoever is playing chess next to them becomes their partner. Teams are formed with two members of different colored chess pieces. The two games are played normally, however as one partner takes out their rival with the opposing color, they give the pieces that they take to their partner who has the same color chess pieces as their opponents. So, members at a time can lose a piece and gain it again, or have two or more queens, or any other piece for that matter.

Julissa Faw studies her current opponent as she prepares to make her move. While she contemplates, Cameron Klempay battles his respective opponent.

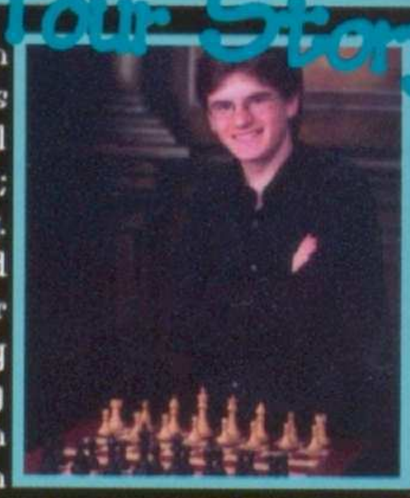
Chess president Andrew Kobalka makes his final move to put his opponent in check.





Understanding your opponent is vital to chess success. The students who participate in Chess Club try to master this strategy by practicing every Wednesday.

What's Your Story?



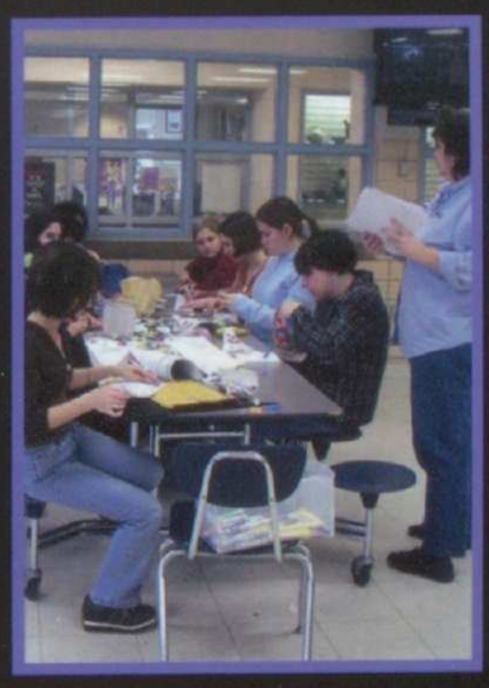
"I got interested in chess when my mom signed me up for Chess Club in fourth grade at Colonial Hills and it just clicked with me; ever since then I've been playing. Last summer in August I competed at the Denker Tournament for High School Champions and during round four I was supposed to play the champion from Michigan State. Beforehand he had been bragging about how badly his previous opponent had played and how easy it was to beat him. Finally, when we played, I got the chance to crush him. It was very gratifying."

~Andrew Kobalka, Senior

Community Service

The Community Service Club has been a staple of the co-curricular activities at TWHS for many years. After school on Thursdays throughout the year members of the club meet to organize service efforts and numerous programs that enable other students at TWHS to participate. The club is known for its contribution to the Worthington Classic basketball game for the Worthington Stars team, its Race for the Cure team in the spring, and frequent bake sales. This year in particular the club helped to raise money for Hurricane Katrina victims, and more recently the earthquake victims of Indonesia. Always willing to accept more service opportunities, the Community Service club, under the leadership of Ms. Sturiano, tackles a huge amount of programs and succeeds in helping those who need it most.

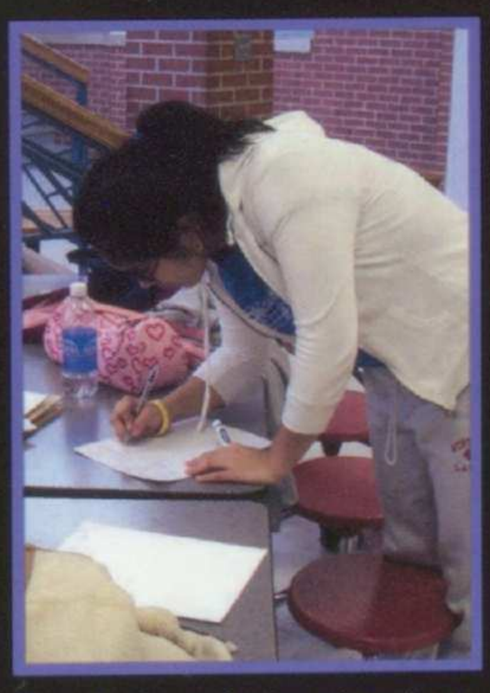
Shruti Patel, Abby Short and Lauren Heironimus pause for a pose as they make their way to the starting line for the Race for the Cure. Every year a school team is organized through the Community Service Club and it travels by bus downtown to take part in the race. This year over 30,000 people participated in the race, the proceeds of which go to Breast Cancer research. The week before the day of the race, the club collected donations throughout the school and holds its annual 'all-pink' bake sale.



This group of club members congregates in the cafeteria to make banners and penants for the Worthington Stars players and cheerleaders.

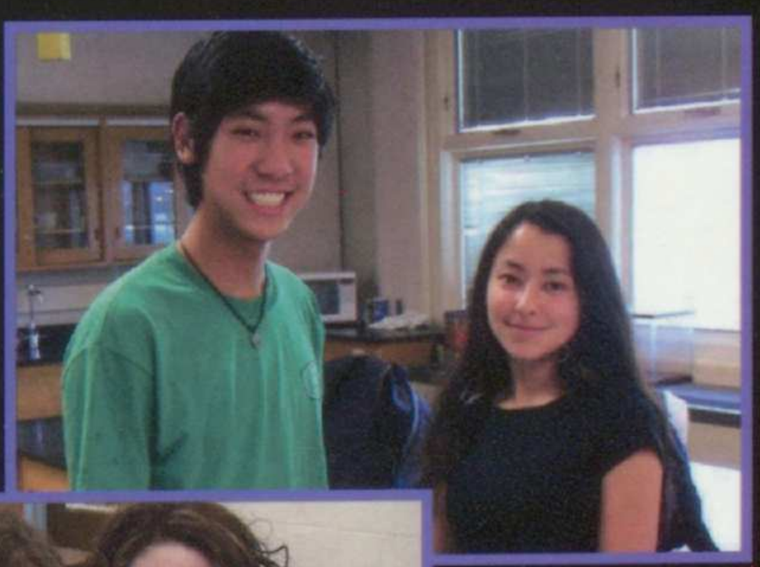
Lauren Heironimus sells a cookie to Kiah Weatherington during a bake sale. Community Service Club typically holds a bake sale on the first Wednesday of every month.

Ms. Sturiano, the advisor, shows off one of the ceramic bowls for the Empty Bowl program. Every year the club hosts the dinner of the Empty Bowl event.



Sam Rojas, a Junior, signs in at one of the club meetings. This year the club has grown to an impressive size, which aids in the amount of work and programs that the club does every year.

Juniors Harris Li and Sarai Itagaki showed up for the year-end party for Community Service club. Members made ice cream floats and celebrated a year of hard work and service.



Senior Alexandra Shuck and Junior Lyndsay Bricker have been loyal members of the club, participating in such events as the Worthington Stars basketball game set -up and bake sales.

What's Your Story?

"I first joined the community service club to become more involved at school. My time in the Community Service club was well spent because of people I had the honor of helping and the friends I made along the way. It will be an experience that I will remember for my whole life. I hope to continue to be involved in the community throughout my life."

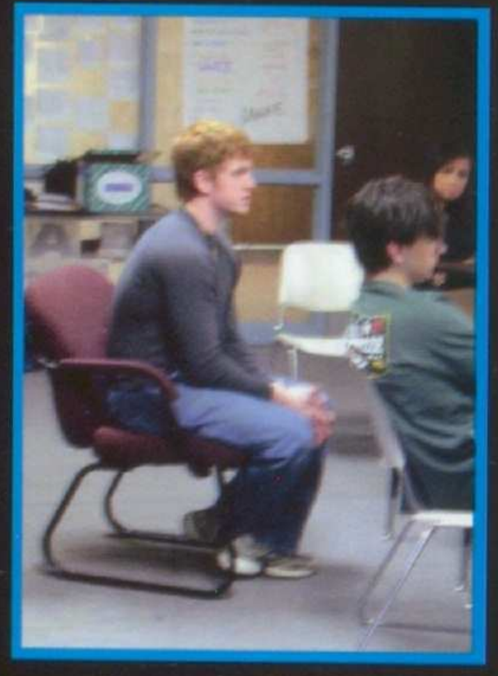
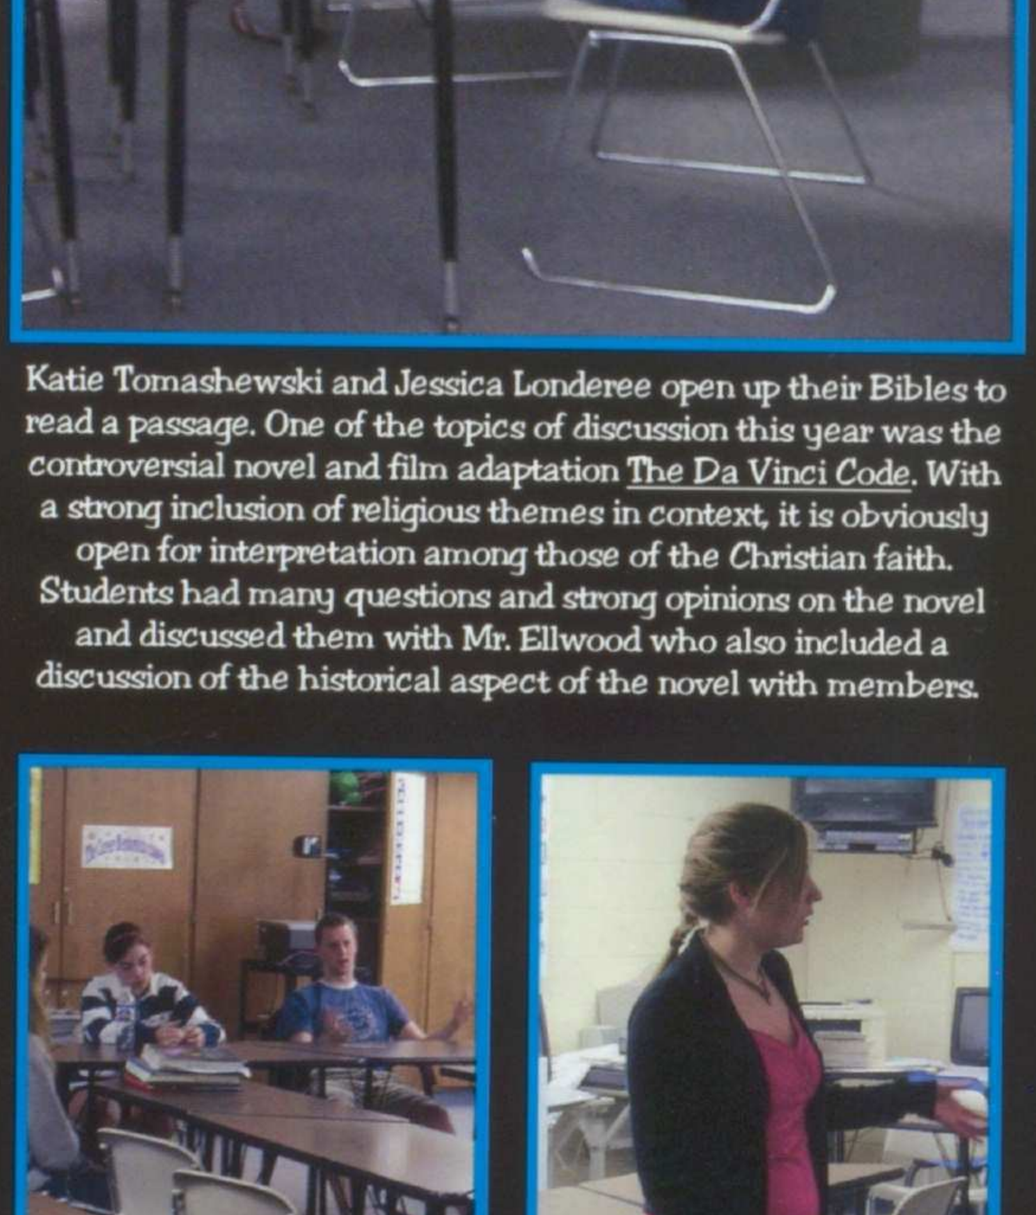
FCA

FCA, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, is a group of students that range from freshmen to seniors who come together to share their beliefs in the Christian faith. This group meets every Tuesday morning in the FCS room. During this time the club members hold a general discussion on Christianity. The group is constantly discussing different topics and issues that arise from current events and appreciate each others' opinions. Members enjoy a forum where they can ask anything about their religion and gain insight from those who have a better understanding. The meetings are always lead by a member of the club. The members take turns and ask at the end of each meeting who's going to lead the next meeting. In the beginning of each school year the group holds a "See you at the pole" in the morning around the flagpole in the front of the school to pray. The group's advisor this year is Mr. Ellwood.

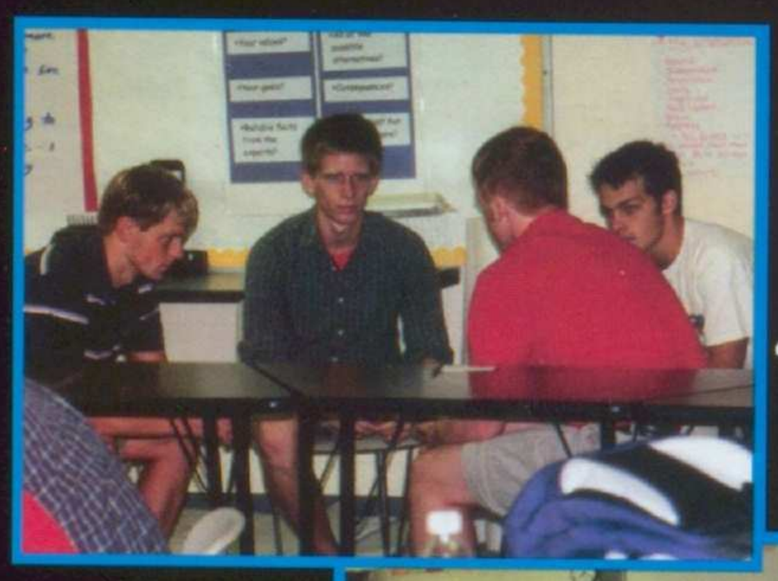


Judd Noel leans forward in his chair during a meeting and takes in all of the comments and advice on the topic of that morning.

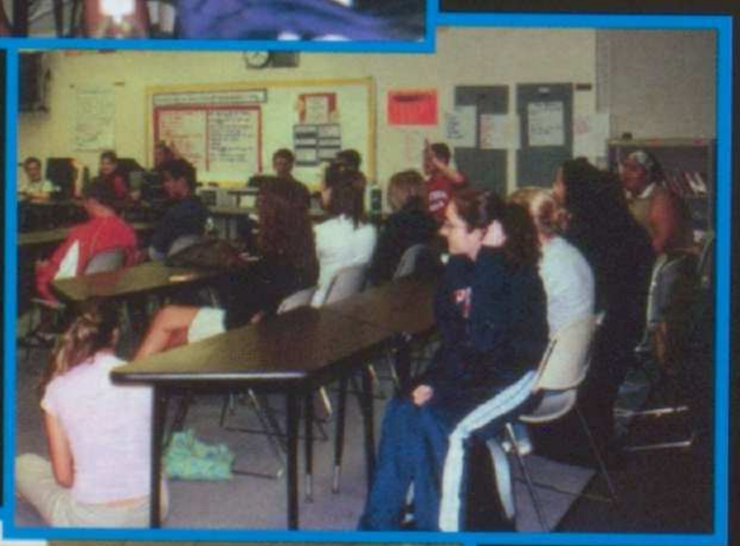
Taking the leader position during this meeting, Abby Short tells the club what the topic of discussion is for this morning.



Katie Tomashewski and Jessica Londeree open up their Bibles to read a passage. One of the topics of discussion this year was the controversial novel and film adaptation The Da Vinci Code. With a strong inclusion of religious themes in context, it is obviously open for interpretation among those of the Christian faith. Students had many questions and strong opinions on the novel and discussed them with Mr. Ellwood who also included a discussion of the historical aspect of the novel with members.



Will Maetzold, Henry Heisey, and Eric Ness listen to what has been going on in Judd Noel's life lately.



As the group leader asks the group to discuss the purpose of prayer, some of the members raise their hands.

Eric Ness states his opinion on a topic while Jessica Londeree sits and thinks about what she wants to contribute.

Hannah Risher starts off a discussion on how she thinks at any given chance you have you should always try to spread the word about Christianity.

What's Your Story?

"I started to come to the FCA meetings during my sophomore year. It's (FCA) a good solid group to be involved in. In this big school you feel kind of outnumbered as a Christian, but by going on Tuesday mornings and meeting with those who come, you know that group in particular is one you can turn to because we all share one major commonality."

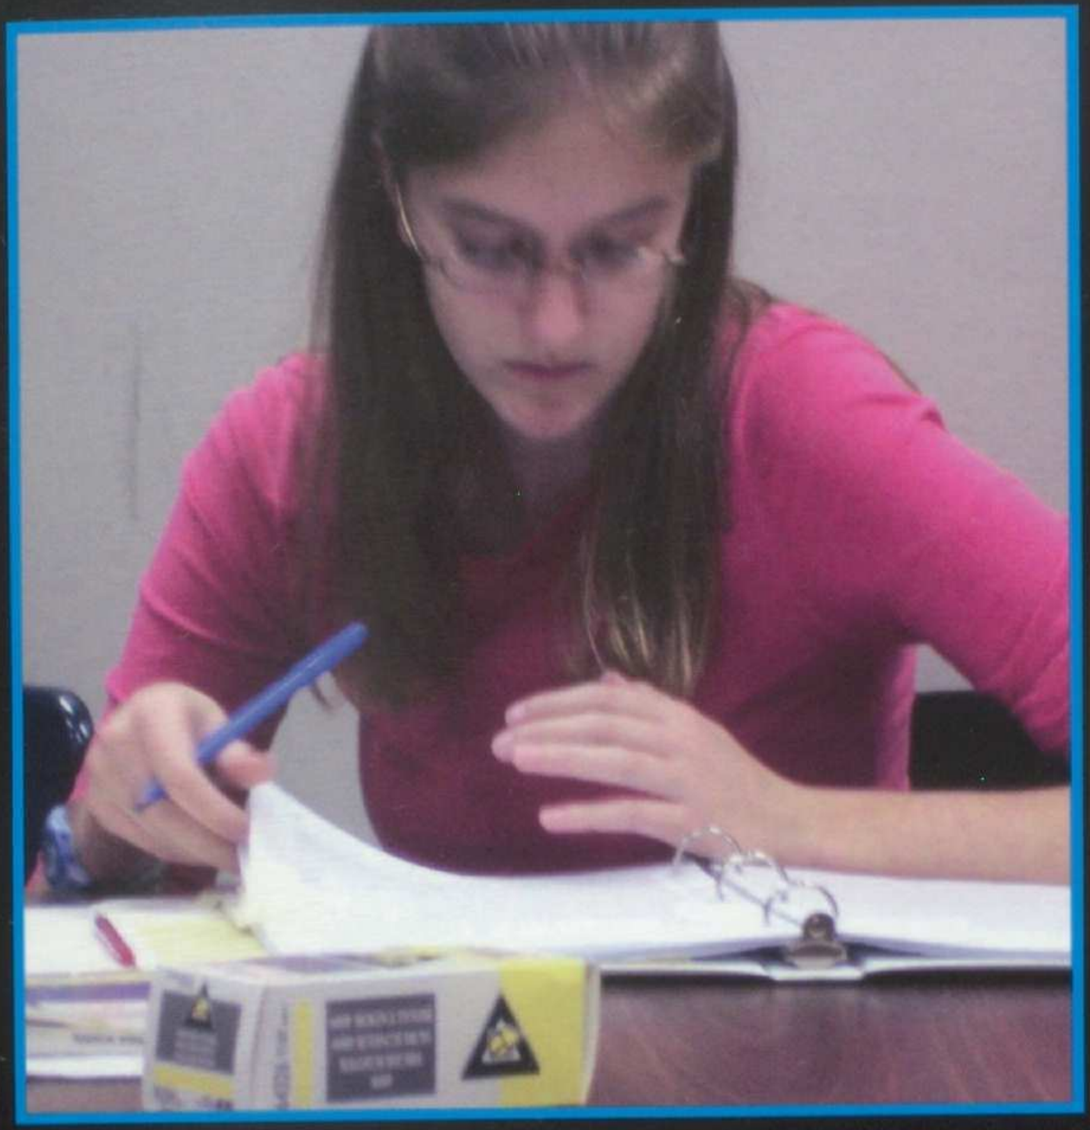
Mock Trials

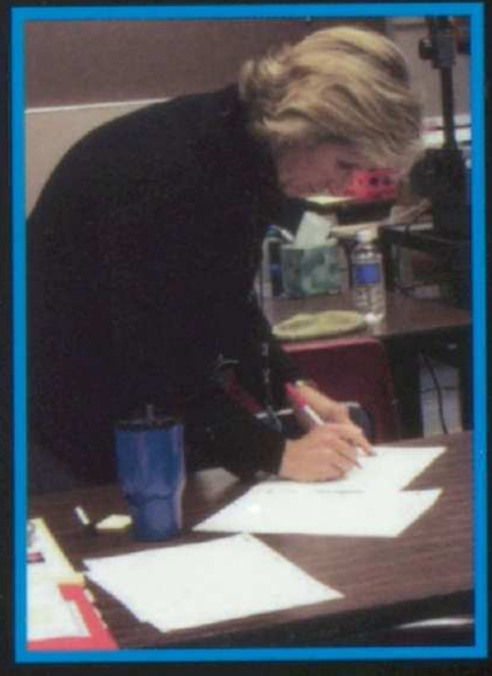
Mock Trials is a unique group of students that meet to debate and represent TWHS at district and state Mock Trial meets. Most students involved in the club are interested in law as a career and the team becomes a stepping stone for them to further fuel their interests. However, many students just come because they love to argue and debate. The group competes against other schools in a mock trial in which the students are the lawyers, defendants, plaintiffs, and witnesses. The club meets Wednesdays and usually spends its time going through its case and debating and discussing it. With a new advisor this year, Mrs. Hanlin, the Mock Trials team worked effortlessly and not only made it to districts, but also to states. Team Red was able to place 15th. in states, while Team Blue was able to place 34th.



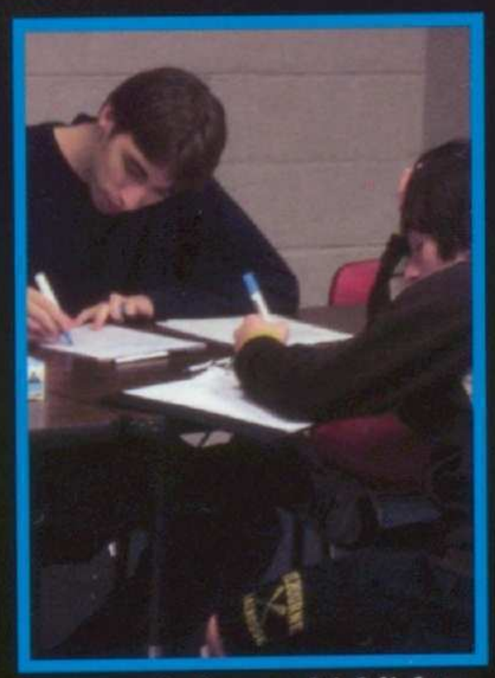
Case Capsule: State of Ohio vs. Terry Bale

During the guilt phase of his trial, Defendant Terry Bale was convicted by a jury on a charge of aggravated murder. That is, he was found to have purposely caused the death of a person while committing a violent felony offense, aggravated robbery. The death penalty is a possible punishment for him. Mr. Bale has filed a motion to remove the death penalty as a sentencing option, alleging that his execution would constitute "cruel and unusual punishment" under the 8th amendment to the US Constitution. His claim is based on his diagnosis as a paranoid schizophrenic which, he contends, minimizes his moral culpability for criminal acts and renders society's justifications for capital punishment ineffective as to him and those with his condition. The issue before the Court is whether the jury should be allowed to consider a death sentence for the Defendant. The Prosecution will present its case first and has the burden of proof, despite the fact that it is a defense motion being argued.

Julie Zorb looks through her notes about the case in preparation to discuss with fellow teammates. The students have to be prepared to not only debate their case but also act appropriately.



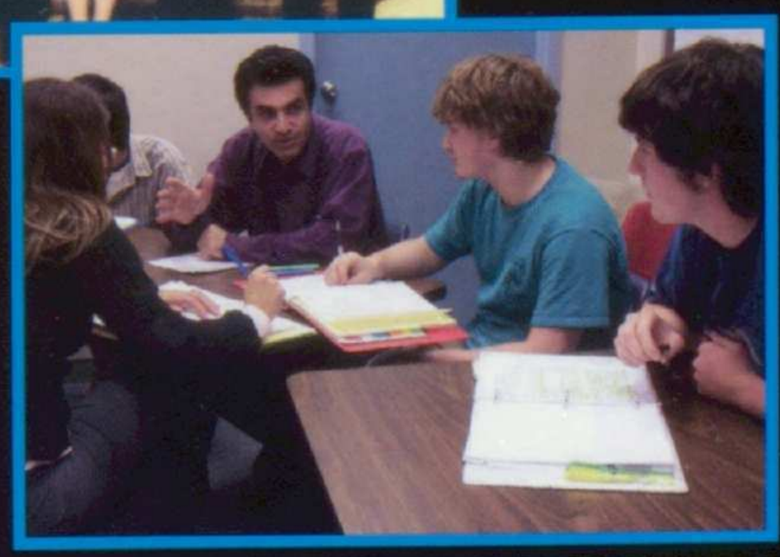
The advisors of Mock Trials are crucial to the success of the team and guide the students through any obstacles they may face. Mrs. Hanlin was the new advisor this year, replacing Mrs. Wax.



Members on the Mock Trials team constantly have a highlighter in hand. Being able to argue properly requires a very good understanding of what needs to be argued, therefore everyone knows the case backwards, forwards, and upside down.

The Red Team: Una Hrnjak, Piyali Bhattacharya, Adam Lipetz, Ashley Chang, and Pam Ban.

The Blue Team: Ray Harper, Angelo Arnold, Julie Zorb, Paul Zhu, and Kevin Hart.



Una Hrnjak, Adam Lipetz, and Jon Wetzler discuss certain details of the case with Mr. Matsa, one of the Mock Trials advisors.

What's Your Story?

"I took Law I as a freshman and I really enjoyed it. We have mock trials in class and I liked debating and arguing; that's how I first got interested in it and decided to pursue the mock trials team. It has been a very memorable experience and it was great having both teams make it to states this year. Joining the mock trials team has helped me decide whether or not I would like to pursue law as a career."

Philosophy Club

This year in philosophy club was very difficult for the returning underclassmen. It was the first year for a new president and vice president since last year's had graduated. They also are doing some things a little differently. They watch movies that have an underlying message in them, and then once a movie is over, they take as much time as needed to discuss the meaning. Also, during almost every meeting someone tries to provide a drink and a snack for the club to fuel the members' brains for making thoughtful comments. These students meet every Tuesday in Mr. Galasso's room, 274, right after school.

This year the new officers for the club are Eric Boso (president) and Sabah Siddiqui who is the vice president. Both president and vice president are juniors and will be back for next year.

James Sullivan tries to help others in the club understand more by elaborating on the topic that the club is discussing.

Annie Rings attempts to explain to the club participants how and why the sunlight hits the earth a few minutes after we see the light.

The club sits comfortably in their desks as they talk about a current event article that someone had brought up.

Stephanie Clark gives her opinion on a current event covering men's rights when having a baby.

Sabah Siddiqui, vice president of philosophy club, starts off the meeting with a current event she heard to get peoples' opinions.

Xin Tain explains his reasoning on a topic to Kulan Taha so she will understand.

As Sabah Siddiqui stands in front of the club, Mr. Galasso offers his opinion which makes some of the members of the club think about the topic at hand.

What's Your Story?

"Being president of the Philosophy Club is my favorite part of Tuesdays. From Jimmy Sullivan proving my non-existence on the chalkboard to watching Big Fish, I have had too many random/cool experiences to even begin to count."

~ Eric Boso, Junior

Shruti Patel and Tiffany Smith review an article for edit before it is approved for publication in the Phoenix magazine. Members of Phoenix frequent Mr. Bey's room throughout the day working to develop stories and layouts for the school publication.

Every month the school magazine publication, The Phoenix, is released for sale to the students of TWHS. Most people do not realize that Phoenix is not a class, but rather a group effort by journalism students in their free time. The Phoenix boasts a large staff of student writers, photographers and editors that frequent advisor Mr. Bey's journalism classes and work both in school and out to meet their deadlines. In addition to writing the articles and developing layouts for the pages, the journalists also have the responsibility of selling fifty dollars in business ads each semester, something they have to do on their own time. Creating a publication on a monthly basis takes a lot of hard work, but these dedicated members work year-long to make the Phoenix a success.

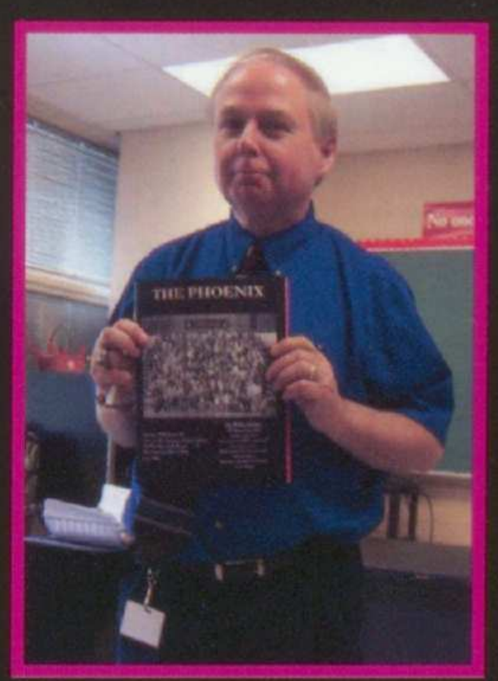
Dmitri Svetlov, a Senior, has been a member of the Phoenix staff for several years, and this year also served as one of the Editors-in-Chief.

Senior Corina Miller served as one of the Editors-in Chief on the Phoenix staff this past year.

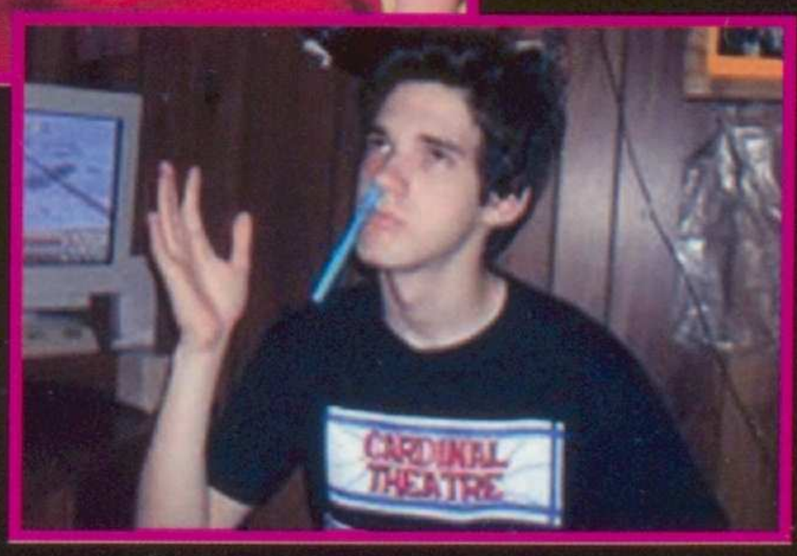


Mr. Bey is the advisor of the Phoenix staff, and is also the resident journalism teacher at TWHS.

On the day of publication, Phoenix members and journalism students travel the halls visiting classrooms to sell copies of the Phoenix.

Senior Julie Andrade works on a story to have it finished in time for the publication of the next Phoenix.

'The pen is mightier than the sword,' quips Phoenix member Andrew Heironimus, a Junior.



What's Your Story?

"Writing for the Phoenix has been a lot of fun this year. I have been able to learn a lot about journalism as one of the Editors-in-Chief for the Phoenix. While working on the Phoenix this year I have sold ads to businesses, edited, written stories, laid out pages with pictures and stories, and helped to sell the Phoenix every month to the students at TWHS. Mr. Bay and the Phoenix are great and I can't wait until next year."

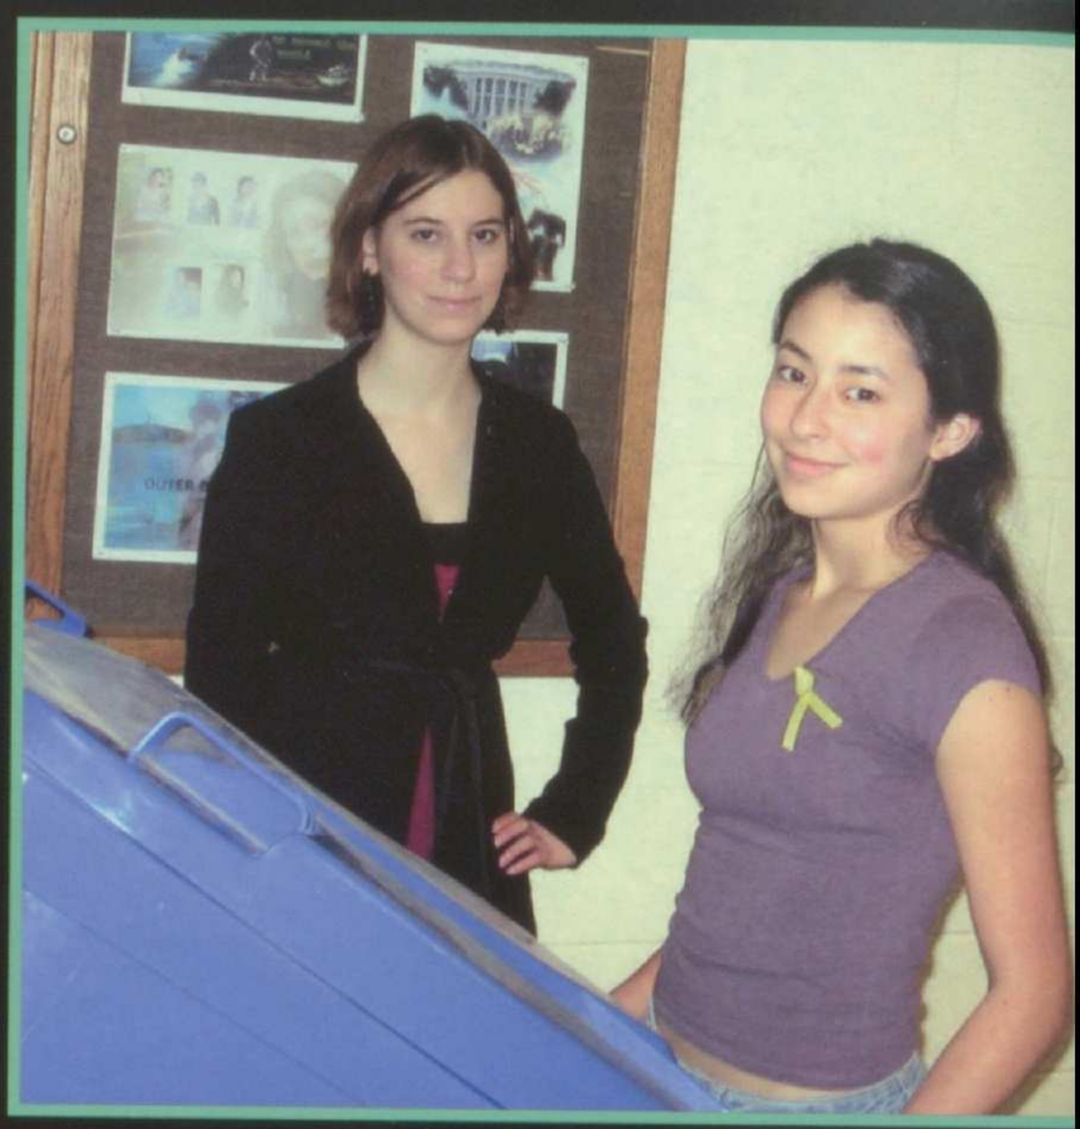
S.A.F.E.

S.A.F.E. is a school club that meets every Wednesday at 3:15. Last year the veteran S.A.F.E. leader, Mr. Pilatowski, switched to Linworth and new leaders Mrs. McCabe and Mrs. Stoner have stepped in to try and fill his shoes. It took a while for the members to get used to the change, but this year they are trying to focus on more than just recycling the school and are looking at trips to take as a group. The Special Ed program is working with S.A.F.E. and is helping by recycling parts of the school during 8th period. Together, they all try to make the world better and learn about the environment; while having fun, of course.

Sra. Stoner goes over a future bake sale and the plans for the day at the beginning of the SAFE meeting.

Libby Tatz and Leah Gitter work as a team to empty out the recycled paper on a sunny Wednesday afternoon



SAFE members have a certain routine to their meetings. First, they all meet in Sra. Stoner's room. Next, everyone goes to the loading dock. If the blue bins are full from the other weeks' recyclables, then they have to empty them into the dumpster outside. Next, one person walks around with keys to unlock the doors. The other SAFE members dump the paper into the bin that Sarai Itagaki is pushing in this picture. Leah Gitter helps Sarai by gathering the papers to put in the bin.

Leah Itagaki and Shashir Reddy pass each other as they peruse the halls looking for paper to recycle.

Rian Hunter and David Mercadante work as a team to empty the recycled paper into its waste receptacle. Once that is done, David dumps the rest into the bin... which weighs 200 pounds.

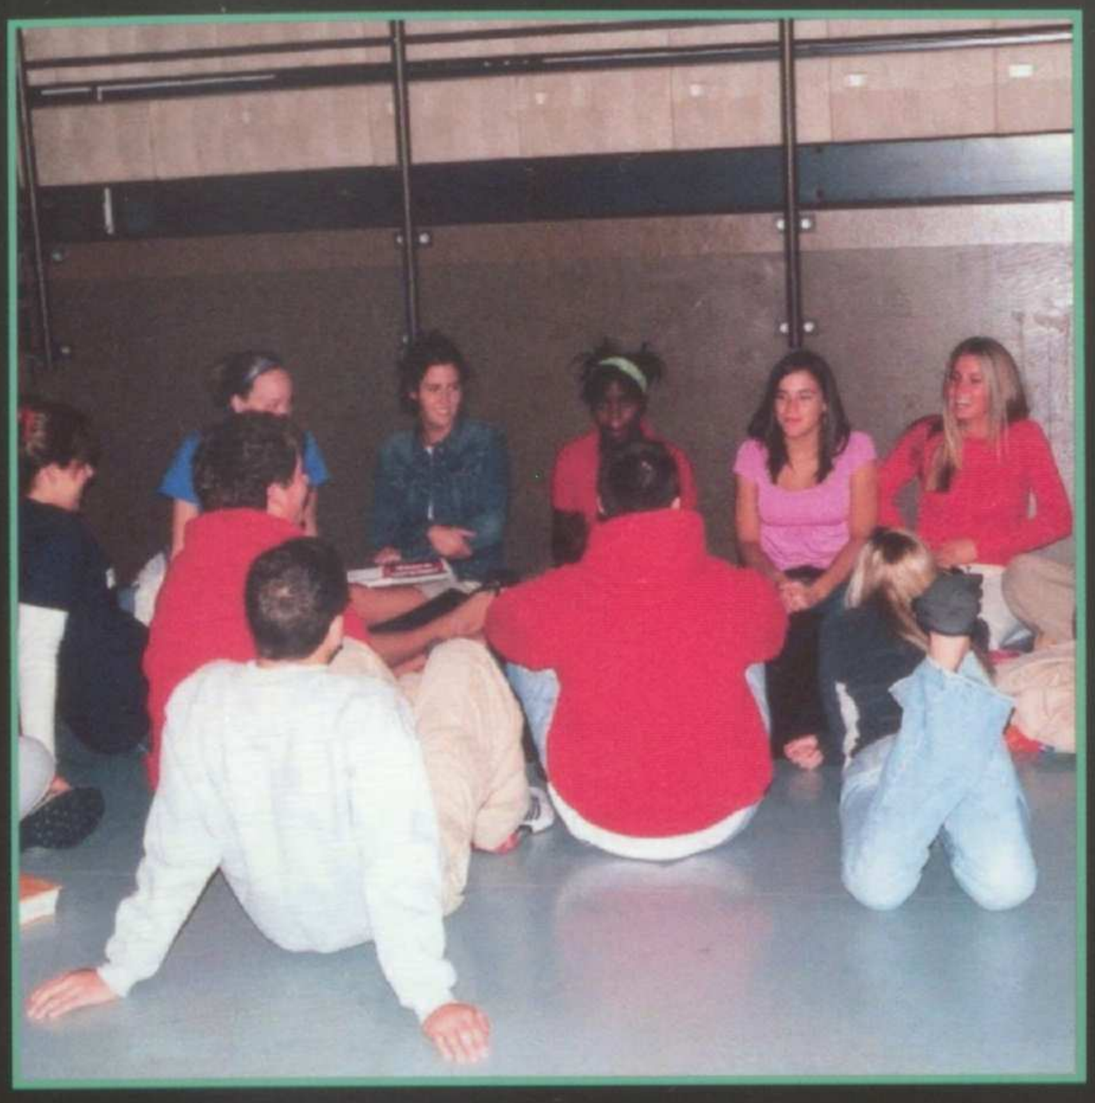
Evan Graupmann and Andy Gay dig deep to get every last sheet of paper as they recycle after school.

Anna Conrad, Laura Jewett, Kate Dennison, Rian Hunter, Harris Li, Libby Tatz, and Leah Gitter work at the bake sale to help raise money for the club's excursions.

What's Your Story?

"Remember that time I pushed the recycling bin and it got ahead of me and fell on the floor? We all had to pick it up and toss it back into the bin.... it took forever! This is why I hate pushing the big, huge blue bin. Although, I have gotten better at it with some practice."

~Leah Itagaki, Junior



During one of the SALB meetings the students split into four different groups to discuss what needs to be done before the first pep rally of the year.

SALB, Student Athletic Leadership Board, is a group of students who organize all the pep rallies, recognize the athletes at our school who have great sportsmanship throughout their sport season, and they also publicize the athletic events. This year this group did the same thing, but a little differently. SALB became much more organized, and tried to get more students to come and support the sports teams that usually do not have high attendance. Members are also trying to become more involved in the community. This year's officers for SALB are: Meghan Richards, President, Hannah Risher, Vice President, Ariana Gonzales, and the Treasurers are Bethany Keller and Simone Attles.

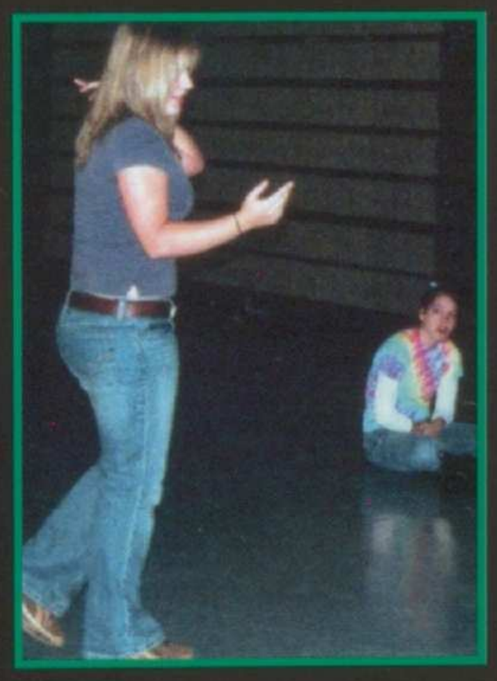
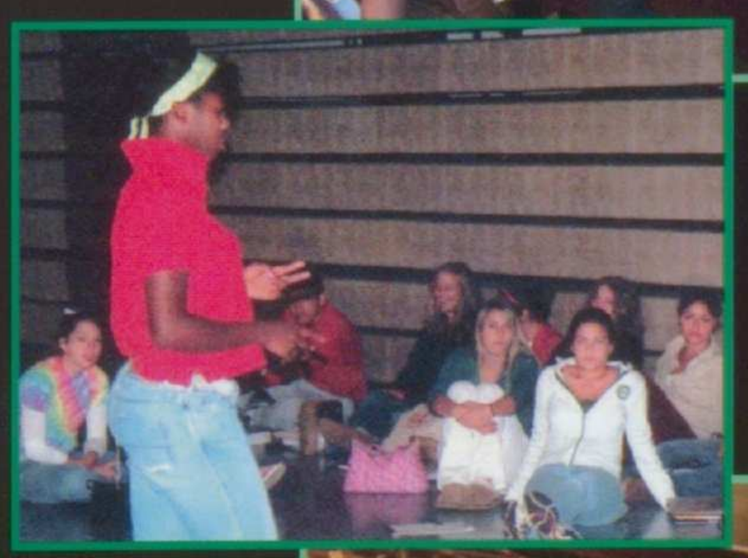
This year's president of SALB, Meghan Richards, starts off the meeting by telling the group how well they worked on a recent project.



During one of the SALB meetings that was held in the performance gym, Hannah Risher informs the members of any updates.

Before a SALB meeting starts, Sarah Carey and Christine Barren hurry to get a seat.



While Laura Blackburn leans back on the floor, Simone Attles addresses the students.

As the last SALB meeting was held, the members had to vote for new officers. Here are some of the members voting for their favorite nominee for the position of next year's vice president.

What's Your Story?

"My junior year I was a member in SALB and my senior year I became the vice president. This year with a new athletic director, we have made many changes for the better. We try to hype up sports games now to increase attendance and sets the foundation for charity work in the future. I hope that SALB continues to grow in the future and becomes a big part of TWHS athletics."

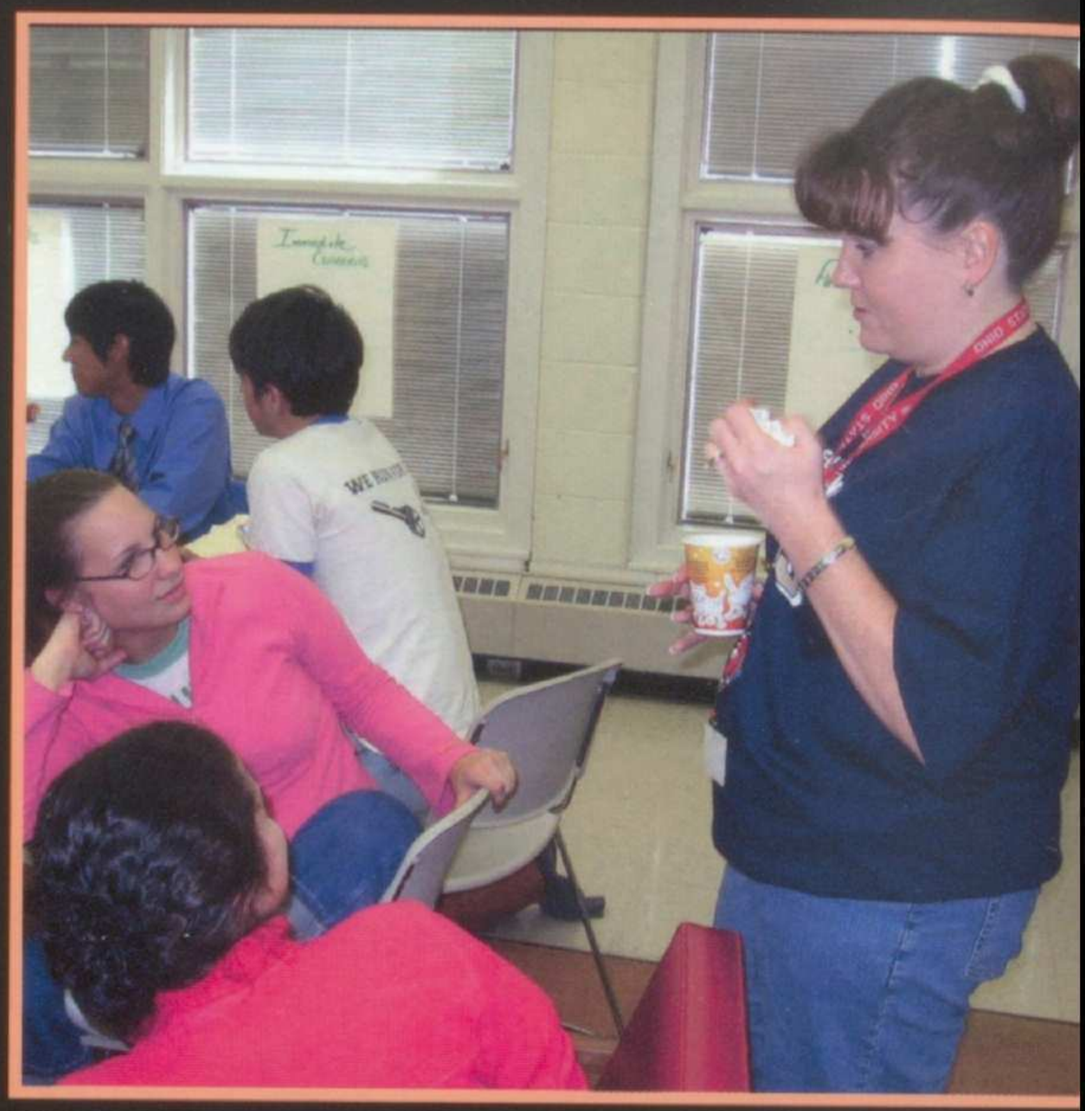
S.S.A.P.P.

SAPP, or Student Substance Abuse Prevention Program, is an organization that students can join to stay drug free. The members of the club pledge to be drug free and also try to help other students maintain a drug free lifestyle. They meet one Wednesday a month to discuss various topics. This year, the club made a trip to the Columbus Zoo to see the holiday lights. As a group they try to pick fun activities to do that do not involve drinking or drugs. Everyone in the club, as well as the entire school, is invited to these activities and the meetings too.

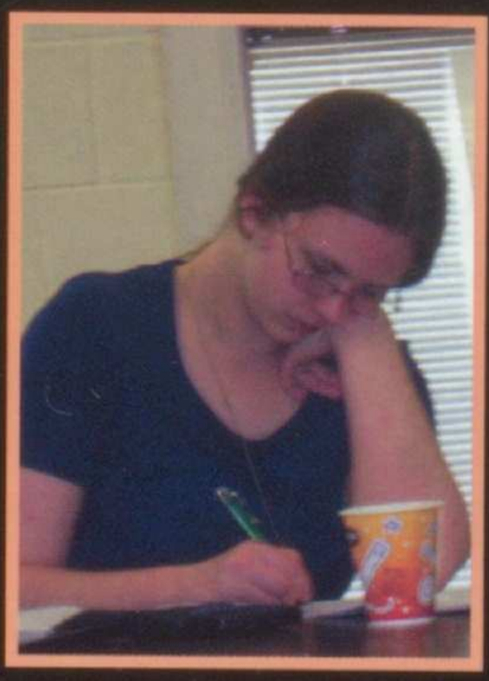
Katie Proctor tries to pick a good day for a car wash, with the rest of the group's input, of course.

Sra. Dirk brings food for all of the meetings. This week she brought in a huge bag of chocolate to share with everyone.

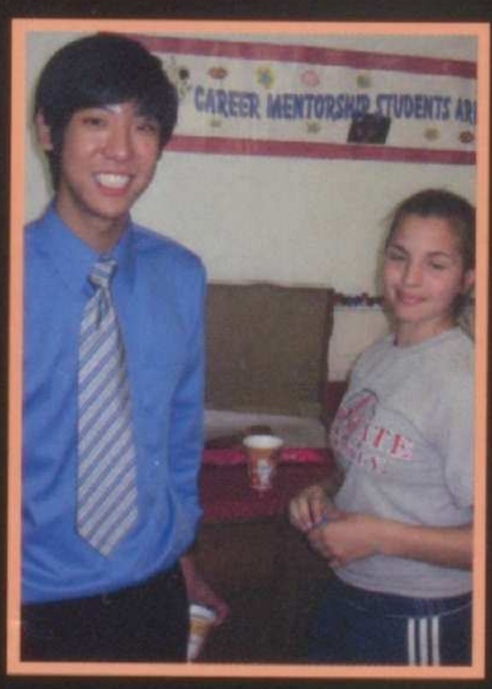


Sra. Dirk and senior, Tiffany Smith, discuss ways to raise money for their yearly charity. This year the club is helping a home for women who have recently stopped abusing substances. The name of the organization is the Amithist's Group and one way that they plan to raise money is a car wash. The club does many good things, such as, raise awareness about drugs in the school and community, talk about relationships between parents and students, and going over what to do in hard or akward situations.

The leaders of SSAPP, Ashley Rund, Kennerly Sayre, Tiffany Smith, and Katie Proctor, work together to organize the meetings.

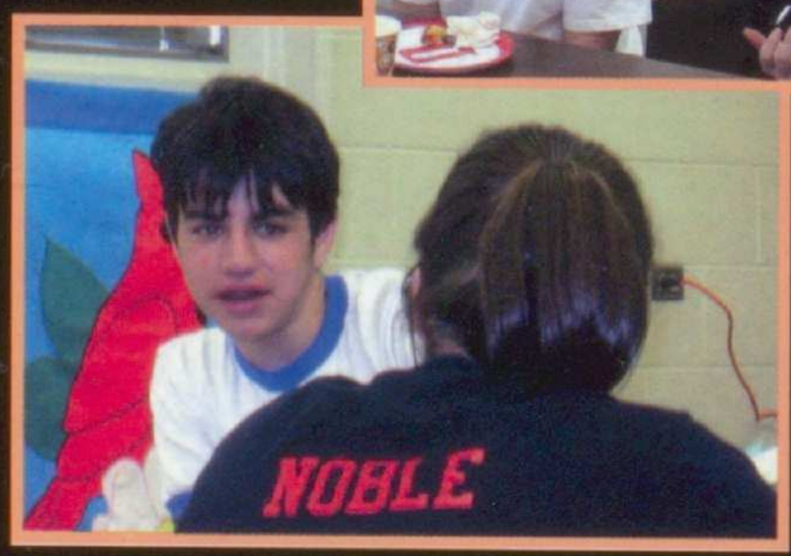


Annie Rings diligently takes notes of the group's meeting.



Harris Li and Sarah Curl are caught on their way to the snack table during a lunch period.

Ashley Erskine talks with her friend Amanda Reinehr about ways our school can cut down on drug use.



Charlie Adelson and Amelia Noble reminisce about their fall "Phases." A phase is a lock in. During these lock ins, national speakers come to talk about various topics and issues of today's society.

What's Your Story?

"This club is great for kids that aren't really into partying in high school. I also LOVE the message we are trying to get out; we aren't saying you can't drink in high school, we just think there are better ways to spend your time. You do not have to drink or do drugs to have fun."

~Ashley Rund, Senior

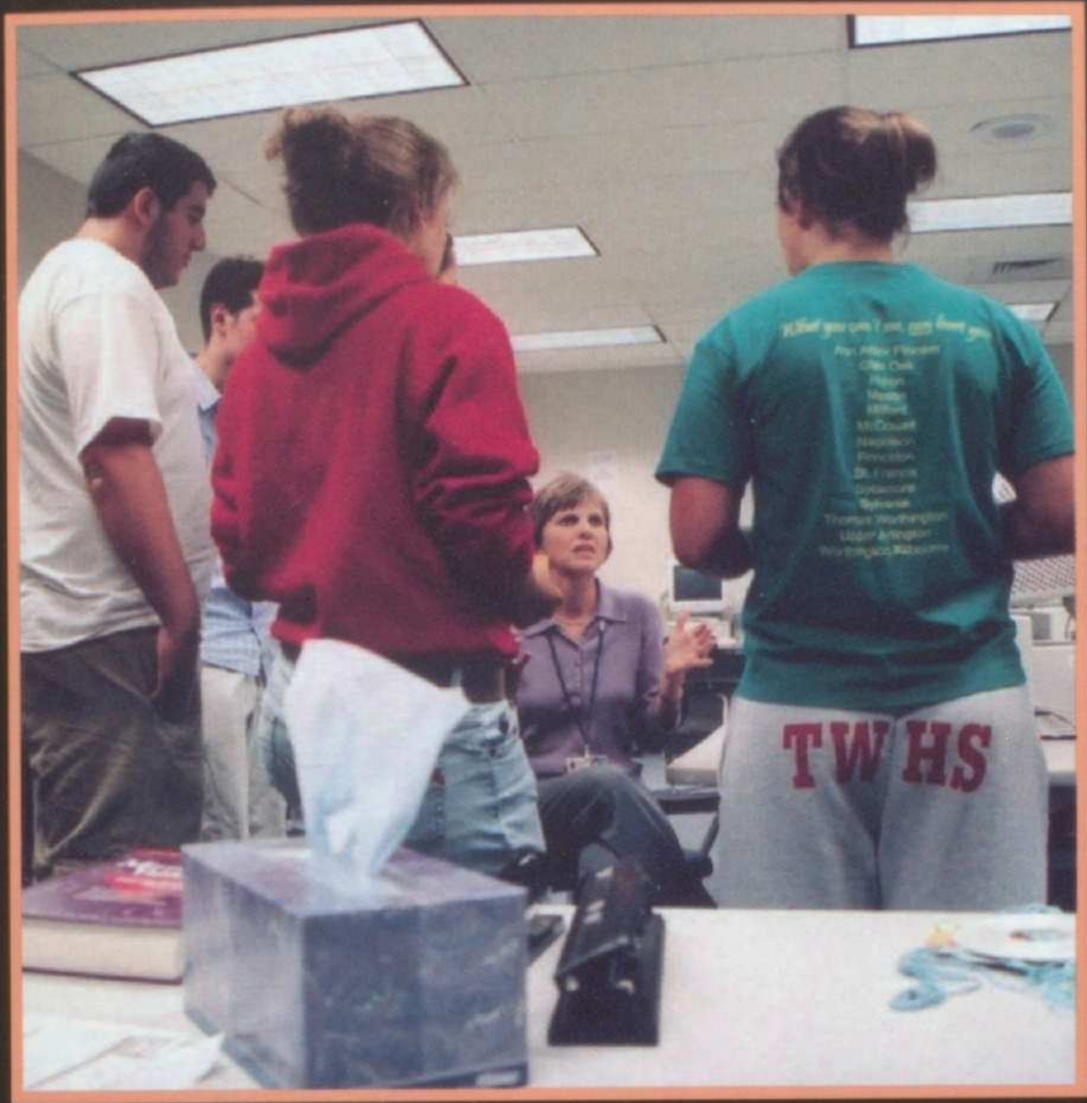
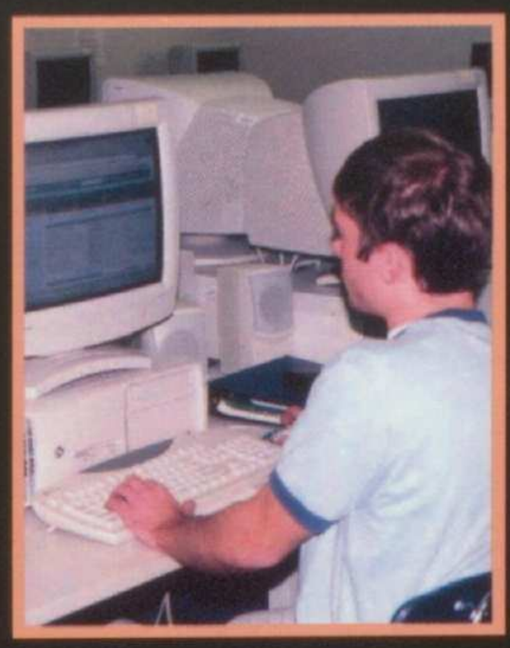
Stock Club

Stock Club lets students take part in a stock market simulation. The people who join can be by themselves or with a group of their peers. During each meeting, held on Wednesday after school in the computer lab 232, Mrs. Clemans provides a snack for everyone and then the club members can get on the computers and look up their standings or find out more information on the companies they have invested in or want to invest in. While the club members do that, Mrs. Clemans and Mr. Douglas Leedy walk around to see how everyone is doing and to answer any questions they may have. Also, on occasion Mrs. Clemans invites people who have experience in investing to come and speak.

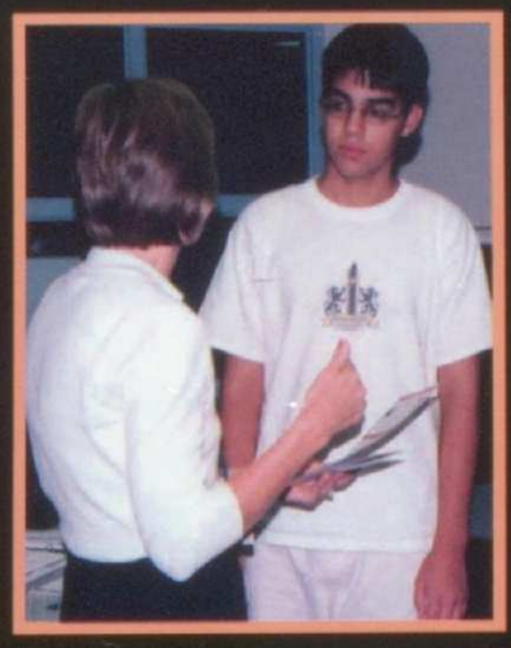
The club advisor is Mrs. Clemans and this year the financial advisor is Mr. Douglas Leedy, who works at McDonald Financial Group.



As Mrs. Clemans sits in a chair, she answers any questions for Nicole Zinni and Amelia Noble's stock group, while Omar Eldadah and Colin Russi wait.

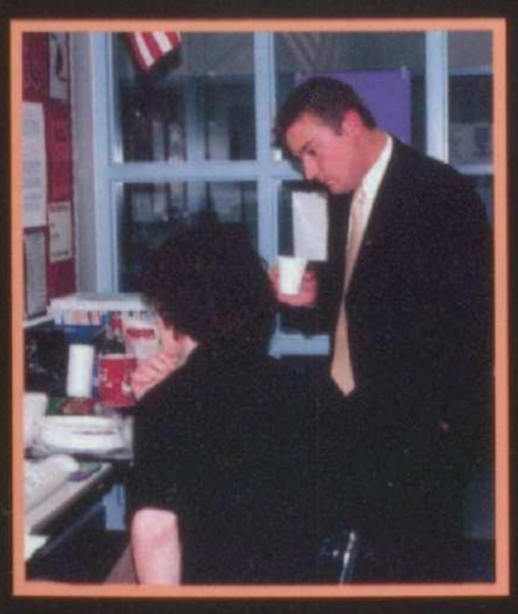


During club meetings, members can check up on their stock and see where they are in the standings, which is what Brian Montgomery is doing.



At one of the first meetings of stock club, Mrs. Clemans explains the rules of the stock game to newcomer Jessie Konner.

"I am happy it was play money because I would have lost $2,000.00."
~Jeff Zaenger, Senior



As the club's financial advisor, Douglas Leedy,walks around and Nick Anderson asks him to look at a certain stock's past chart and see if he should buy it or not.

At a meeting Jeff Zaenger attended, he sat at a computer and looked at charts and graphs to see how a stock he may buy did in the past.

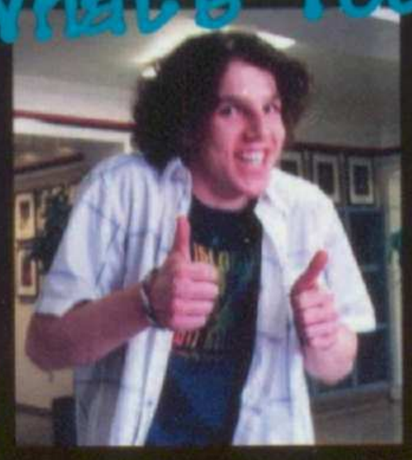
In the beginning of a meeting, Omar Eldadah types in a website while Colin Russi thinks about what stock they should buy .

What's Your Story?



"I am so glad that I joined stock club. It has helped me so much in my life. Mainly, because I work for a financial firm and I get to do research on different companies to see if the firm I am working for wants to purchase that stock from that company so they and their consumer can make a profit."
~Nick Anderson, Senior

The stock group of Amelia Noble, Nicole Zinni and Julie Rechel look at how their team as well as other individuals in the club and in different schools have done so far. As they look, they make comments on the standings they see.

Yearbook

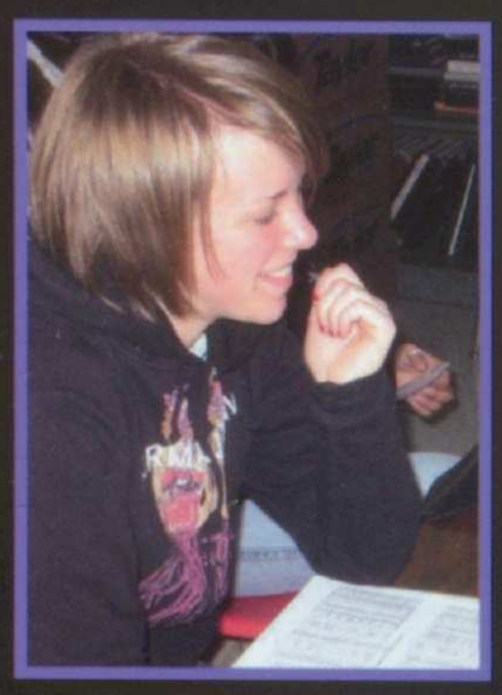
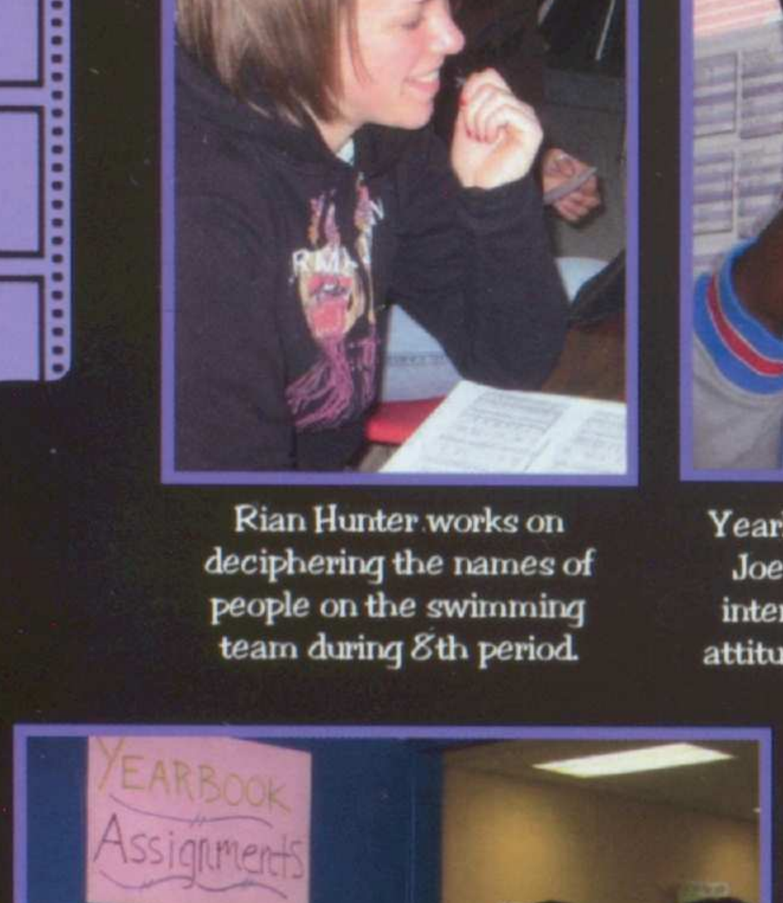
Contrary to popular belief, yearbook is a class that necessitates constant, and often out of class, work. It is up to the student in this class to not only create over 300 pages for the yearbook, but in many cases to take the photographs themselves as well. Working through a program called EliteVision on the computer, students create templates, write stories and captions, and download photos. The year starts off with the class choosing an overall theme and then proceeds to creating a yearbook that works cohesively around that idea. The class is divided into groups with each working on a specific section of the book. In the fall, students must go out during their own time and sell business ads and from January to March it is their resposnsibility to sell Senior ads. The students of Yearbook do take some time out to have fun, however, and hold the annual Sock Exchange right before winter break. All the efforts of these students pay off when the brand new yearbook arrives the next year. Ms. Fish is the Yearbook Advisor.



Rian Hunter works on deciphering the names of people on the swimming team during 8th period.

Yearbook's famous rapper, Joe Davis, keeps things interesting with his great attitude and free-style raps.

Editors Missy Taylor and Kristin DeVine work on the yearbook during their lunch while hanging out with friend Andrew Wilcox

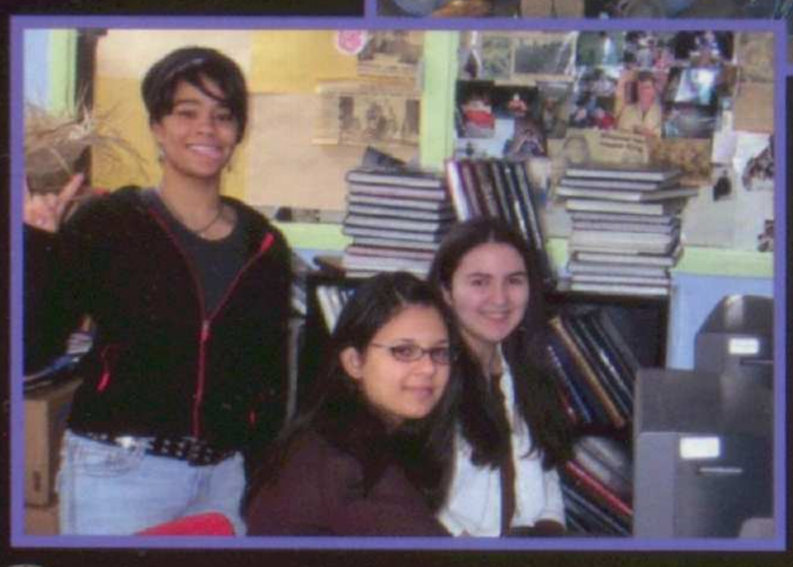


Editor, Emily Focht, reminds John Frederick of his deadlines, which are posted on the yearbook room door.

Editing her proofs for her pages so that she can go back and make a few corrections, is Carmen Perry

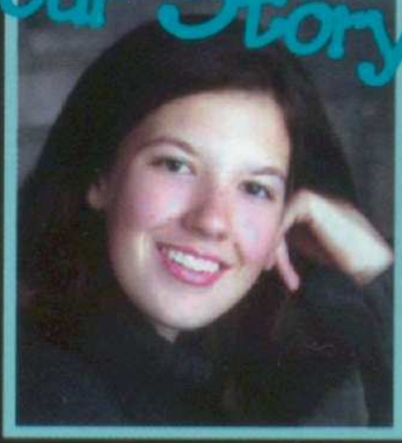
Ms. Fish looks like one of the students while she talks on the phone about urgent yearbook matters.

Yearbook is a family of students that work hard every day to create this three hundred plus page book.



Zackiah Weatherington, Sara Abdel-Latif and Laura Jewett are so dedicated to yearbook, that they come in every day on their lunch to work on it.

What's Your Story?



"Yearbook has been a lot of fun this year. It's been a lot of hard work selling ads and making each of my spreads just right. Even though it's taken a lot of time and effort, including several crunch periods right before spreads were due, it has been well worth it. Thirty years down the road I'll show my kids the 2005-2006 yearbook and say 'Hey, I helped make this really cool book!"

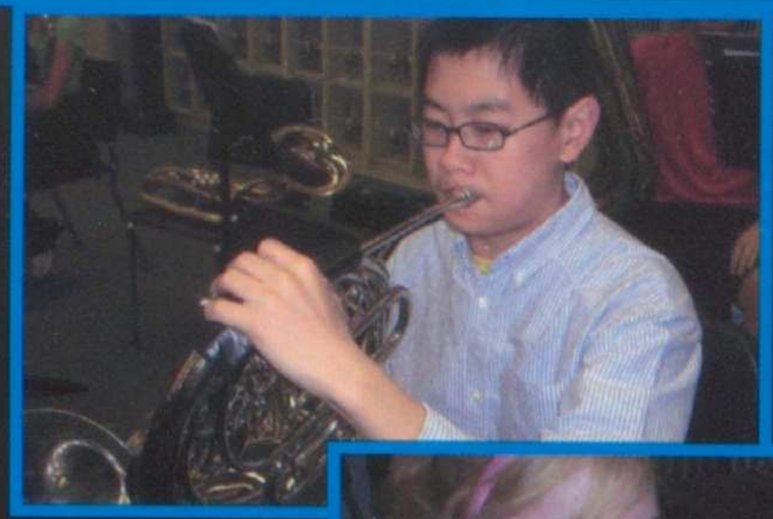
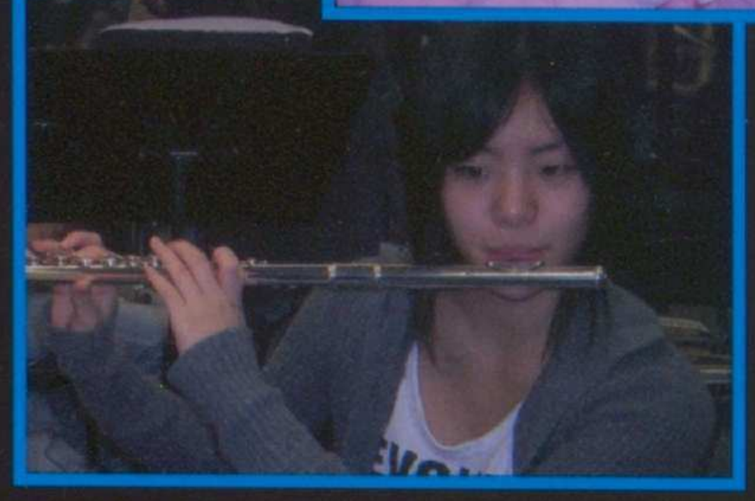
Cardinal Band



Freshman Suyang Li practices his French horn for a few minutes before Cardinal Band.

Gloria Radloff starts her day off with a BLAST by playing her trumpet for band.

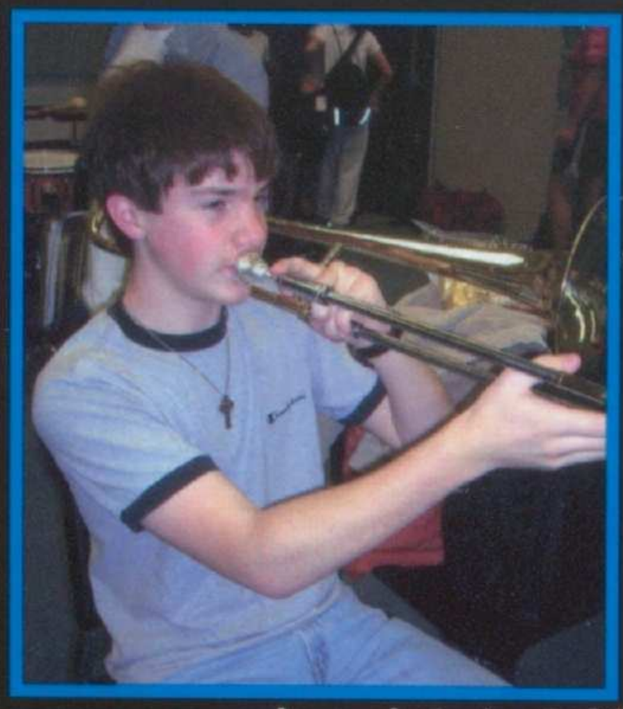


Ambitions for moving on to a higher band has Natsuki Kazama playing difficult scales on her flute diligently.

What's Your Story?

"Cardinal Band is really good. It took a lot of devotion and talent. I started out being first chair, and was challenged, but I won and maintained my chair in Bass Clarinet. We are practicing a lot for the OMEA District Contest and because Mr. Doolittle is pushing us to succeed, I think that we will get a "1." I definitely will continue the band program for all four years."

~Robby Anthony, Freshman



Freshman Nate Holcomb always allows a few minutes before class to warm up his trombone. The Cardinal Band consists of only freshmen and is the first step that band members have to complete before moving on towards higher bands. The director of this band, Mr. Doolittle, understands the level of difficulty required for this band and attempts to go above and beyond.

Ashley Davidson, a clarinetist, is honing her skills for the upcoming concert during her Eighth period Concert Band class. Concert Band is a performance band that is made up of underclassmen. Mr. Doolittle serves as the director of the band which this year got a II, an 'Excellent' rating, at the District competition.

Bryn Sowash takes five during a break in practice. She, along with other members of the percussion section, rotate positions and instruments for the different songs.

Alaine Reed ends her school day by playing her French horn in Eighth period Concert Band.

What's Your Story?

"Everyday in the beginning of band class our director, Mr. Doolittle, lists the songs we will practice on the board. The entire French horn section, myself included, began to complain about playing a certain song, so to acknowledge us he wrote "For Horns" by the song. After he left I erased "For Horns" and wrote "For Bald Men" instead. We got a big laugh because Mr. Doolittle always jokes about his baldness, but this time I beat him to it!"

~Sarah McKean, Sophomore

Chris Brodkin and Saud Ahmed play one of the smallest instruments in the percussion section, the triangle.

Concert Band

Concert Choir

Mr. Parsons tells his choir class to move their voices up a few octaves, since they were off a few notes.

The concert choir takes a group picture dressed in their concert gowns worn during performances.

What's Your Story?

"This is my first year of singing in concert choir class. I enjoy this class since you get to sing. My favorite song that we got to sing as a class is called "Seasons of Love." Well, the one thing I can not wait to do is Showtime. Showtime is where all the choir groups get to choreograph a dance with someone and perform."

~Emily Syring, Freshman

Glenna Snyder looks up at Mr. Parsons and listens to his pointers on her singing. Concert choir is a class that is made up of all grades. Within this class the students are divided into section s including tenor, bass, alto, and sopranos and they sing during class to perform later on during the school year. Also, this year they are doing something new called Showtime, where students get to perform and dance a song of their choice.

Mr. Parsons moves away from the piano and to the men's area to hear how they sound close up and without the piano playing.

Fall Guard

The theme for the fall season was Aerodynamics, "Man's quest for the skies." The color guard portrayed the theme using flags of flying birds while other flags symbolized the fire generated during the launch of the first Apollo spacecraft.

The "Pride of Cardinal Country" Color Guard exhibited the true meaning of dedication, commitment, creativity and talent. Under the direction of Rusty and Elizabeth Miller and Andrew Hensel, the team delivered outstanding performances at the varsity football games as well as community parades and events. The fall season was highlighted by "Excellent" ratings at the Preview of Champions and the Ohio Music Education Association (OMEA) State Marching Band Finals.

These guard members show their spirit during a routine. Every year the Fall Guard also takes part in a performance on the green in downtown Worthington on Market Day.

What's Your Story?

"For the last day of band camp the color guard has over the years established a theme day. This year it was Hippie Day. We were all going to dress up like hippies with our hair braided and wear tie-dyed shirts. A few days before, the whole guard came over to my house to tie-dye matching tank tops in my backyard and hang out and watch movies. One movie we watched was "Euro Trip." We all loved the robot scene and kept imitating the robot fight all season!"

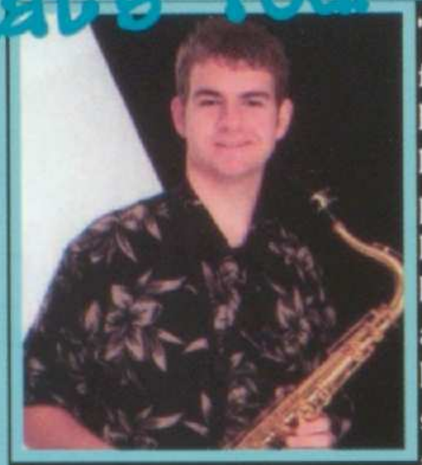
~ Katrina Stout, Senior

Jazz Band

Sebastian Kuechlin, Varsha Nair, and Greg Benson bring great attention to the saxophone section in Jazz Band.

A selected few members of the Jazz Band sporting their shades play a special song for the end of the year concert.

What's Your Story?

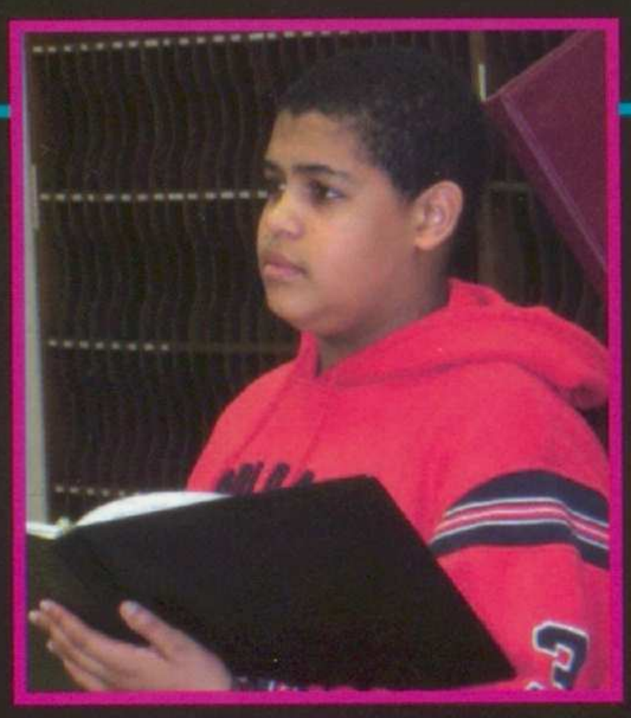


"I have done jazz band all four years and it was a blast! Our director is Mr. Ellis who is the coolest person in the world. Mr. Ellis really knows what he is doing because he is a professional jazz player. I usually play the tenor saxophone but the awesome thing about jazz band is that you don't have to play only one instrument. This year I not only played the tenor, but I also did a vocal."

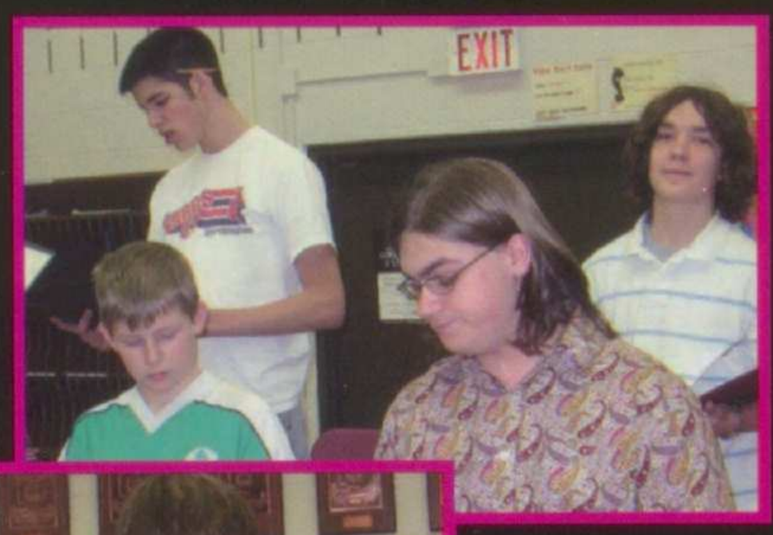
~Brendan Shwartz, Senior

Mr. Ellis leads these trombones, Mike Jones, Brian McClurg, and Cynthia Wallen, in practice. Mr. Ellis has been the director of Jazz Band for many years.

Senior Emily Stopa plays her solo on the saxophone at one of the Jazz Band's concerts. Every last Wednesday of the month, the whole jazz band goes to the Columbus Music Hall and plays a concert. This extracurricular band club consists of many different instruments such as trombones, saxophones, trumpets, drums, and sometimes piano, bass, or guitar.



Sean Goncalves keeps the songs he loves and diligently practices in his sacred choir folder.

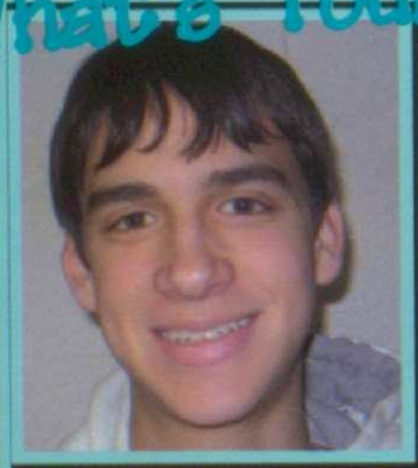


Ben Papineau tries to memorize the words to a song during 4th period Men's Choir.

Adam Glass and Gordy Sjostrom can almost claim to have perfect pitch, due to all of their hard work in choir.

Mr. Parsons individually works with students, which really paid off; Men's Chorus received a One at OMEA this year!

What's Your Story?



"What I like about Men's Chorus is that it's so laid back. We tell jokes, mess around, and just have a good time; in addition to rehearsing of course. Men's Chorus performs at all regular concerts, contests, and we've even sung at football banquets in the past. Our group received a one rating (the highest rating) at OMEA Sate Choir concert last year. We're working hard and plan to do well this year too."

~David VanFossen, Junior

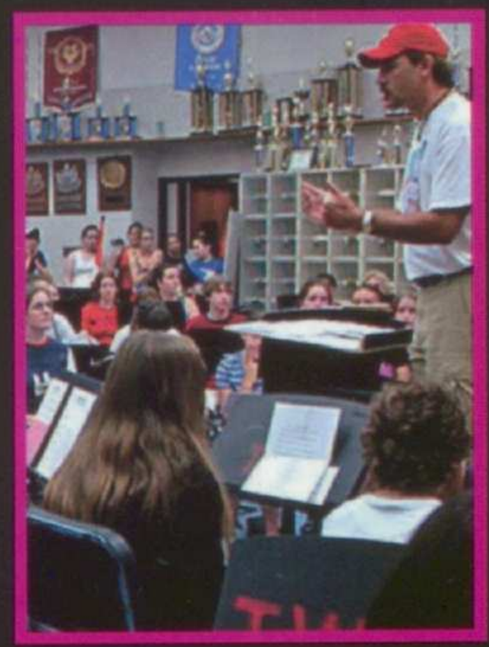
Men's Chorus

Marching Band

This year the Marching Band members took on the theme "Aerodynamics: Man's Quest for Flight" for their numerous performances and competitions and utilized props pertaining to flight to enhance the effect. "The music is divided into three movements. The first is called 'Wings of Flight' and depicts mankind's yearning to fly like the birds. The second movement is 'The Men Who Flew,' depicting the efforts of the Wright Brothers. The third aspect is 'Rockets.' We'll culminate the show with a giant canvas replica of the Apollo spacecraft," explains Mr. Maynard, the director of the Marching Band.

These tubas add their voices to one of the many Marching Band performances. This season at the Ohio Music Education Association the marching band reached states and scored a Superior rating for the second year in a row. Congratulations CARDS!

One of Marching Band's dedicated seniors, Anna Conrad has got the casual look down during practice.



Mr. Maynard instructs the band on some of the finer points of playing. He is the band director this year for the 128 member marching band.

Chris Matlak keeps the beat with the bass drum.

Drum Majors Micheala Maynard, Emily Stopa and Valerie Delgado are all dressed up and ready to lead the band at one of the football games. The previous year these girls had to audition for the coveted drum major spots and it is up to them to keep the band playing to the beat of the music.

This line of trombones stands at the ready during practice after school.

What's Your Story?

"During Senior Night, an annual tradition where the seniors in the band toilet paper their section member's houses, the trombone seniors stopped at Andrew Shaw's house to commence toilet papering. However, the seniors were in for a big surprise. A few of the underclassmen had planned to stay up and ambush the seniors with water balloons, shaving cream, and silly string. This night was hysterical and the most memorable of the year."

~Megan Bixel, Senior

Symphony Orchestra

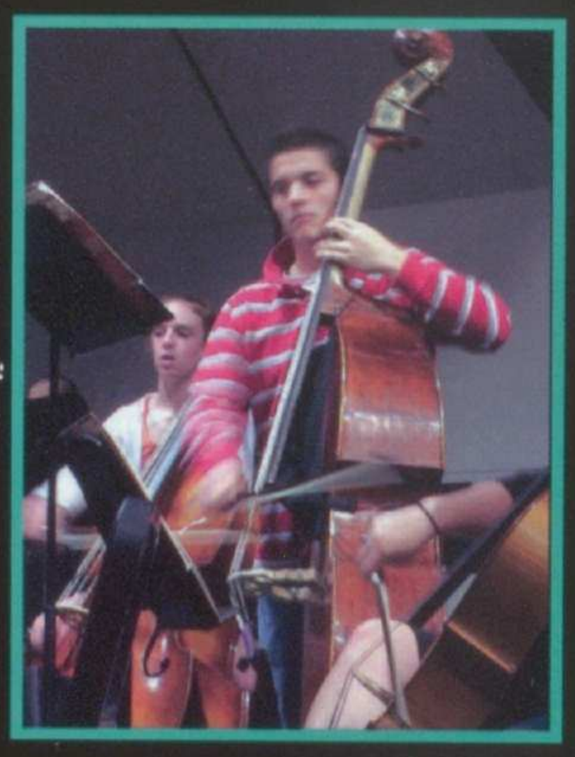
Symphony orchestra is a combination of orchestra students and a few select band musicians chosen specifically for their talent. They usually hold and perform concerts for the enjoyment of students, parents, and music lovers a like.

What's Your Story?

"My sister used to play and that's what got me interested in the violin in general. I started to really get into classical music and found I had a big appreciation for it, so I joined in fourth grade and have lasted since. It's a great opportunity to play with everyone and a great combination of students that all share a love of music and work hard to make every performance amazing."

~Alison Matthews, Senior.

Symphonic Orchastra stands on the Evening Street Elementary play ground.



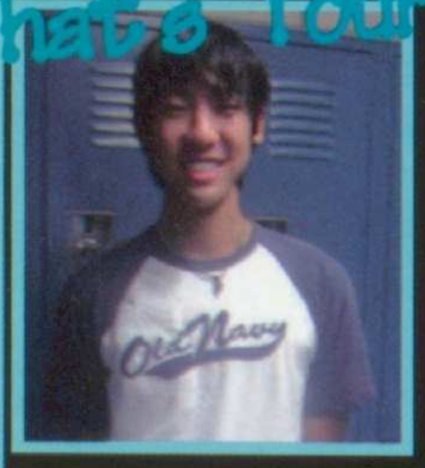
Cody Aledia, also known for his electric guitar playing, is one of the bass players in symphony orchestra.

The Pit Orchestra performs in the pit under the stage of the Hottenroth. Mr. Wright served as the conductor this year.

Ever wonder where that beautiful music is coming from during theatre performances? Anyone who's a bit claustrophobic would do well to stay away from the pit orchestra. Students are packed like sardines with their instruments under the stage away from viewers' eyes.

Pit Orchestra

What's Your Story?



"I started working in Pit Orchestra when I was a freshman and I keep coming back every year because I really enjoy the angry yelling and screaming from the directors, conductors, actors, and fellow musicians. Despite the yelling, endless hours of work and probation of sleep it's always stellar to see everything come together in the end."

~Harris Li, Junior.

Every year the Pit Orchestra performs the music for the TWHS Theatre program's musical. It takes dedication and accuracy to pull off a flawless show for their one set of performances a year. This year the orchestra provided the selection of music for the musical 'Fiddler on the Roof.'

String Orchestra

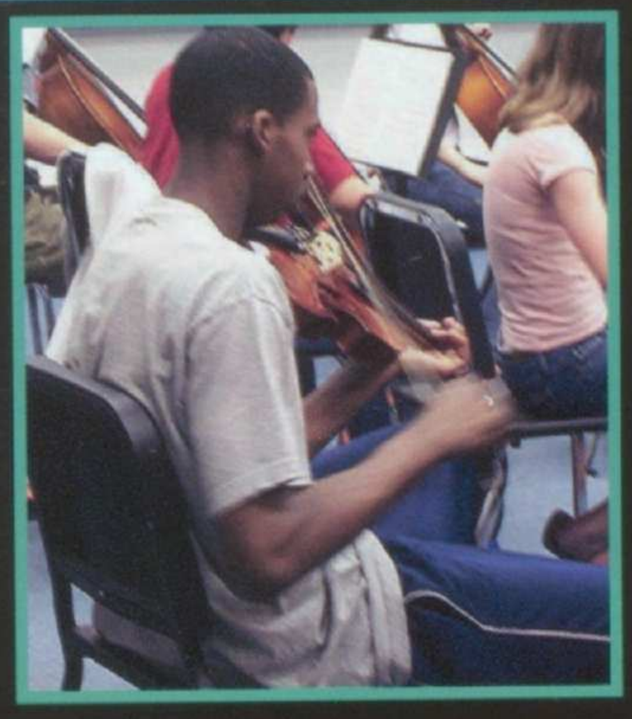
What's Your Story?

"This year's string orchestra performed five concerts and divided into two groups, chamber orchestra and string orchestra, for the Ohio Music Education Association's State Orchestra Competition. Both groups competed in Class A (hardest level) and received "Superior Ratings" (highest honor.) We are very proud of our students and their accomplishments."

~Mr. Wright, Director

During downtime in between pieces, the violinists look ahead, counting measures and beats in preparation to start playing again.

Mrs. Wedell served as a second director to Mr. Wright this year in orchestra. She is pictured here conducting the musicians during practice.



This violinist plays away during class, working on the most recent piece for an upcoming contest. This year the orchestra received a Superior Rating for their superb talent and musical harmony. The orchestra is made up of all grade levels, of students, and is comprised of basses, cellos, violins and violas.

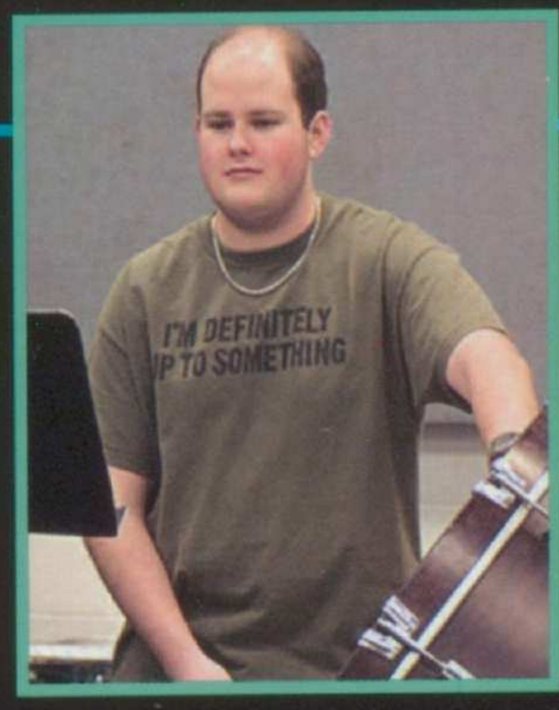
These cellos are hard at work, preparing with their sheet music during their 4th period class.

Symphonic Band

Freshman Amy Knowland and sophomore Stephanie Morrison maintain their high seats in the flute section while having fun in band.

Jonathan Lee is one of two bassoon players in Symphonic Band.

Tracy Wallace and Adrienne Lemberger are concentrating on playing in the percussion section of the symphonic band.

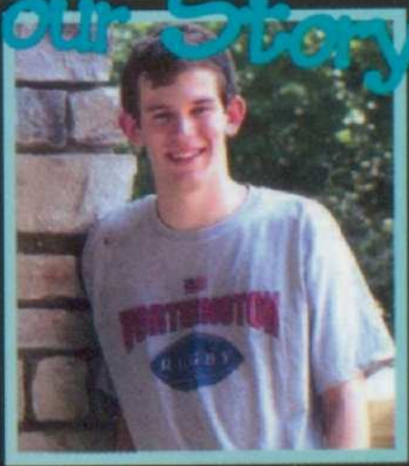


Ryan Sharp, a senior, keeps the beat for the Symphonic Band with the base drum. This year the second highest band in Thomas, the Symphonic Band, underwent a big transition. Mr. Klabunde, the original director of this band, switched roles with the middle school director, Mr. Maynard. Even though the symphonic band was under a different director this year, it still received a superior in the Districts Competition.

What's Your Story?

"I think we did really well in district competition. I was really happy and excited when the symphonic band got a superior overall. I have confidence that we will receive a superior in state competition also, because we are working really hard. I have played trumpet since I was in fourth grade and am happy that I decided to continue on through high school."

~Peter O'Meara, Senior



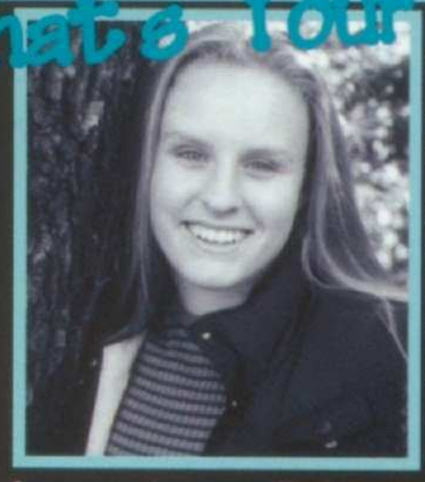
Symphonic Choir

Sean Lee and the entire men's section tries to blend in with the rest of the choir as they sing.

As the choir takes a little rest, Tiffany Smith tries to get last minute studying in before her test later on that day.

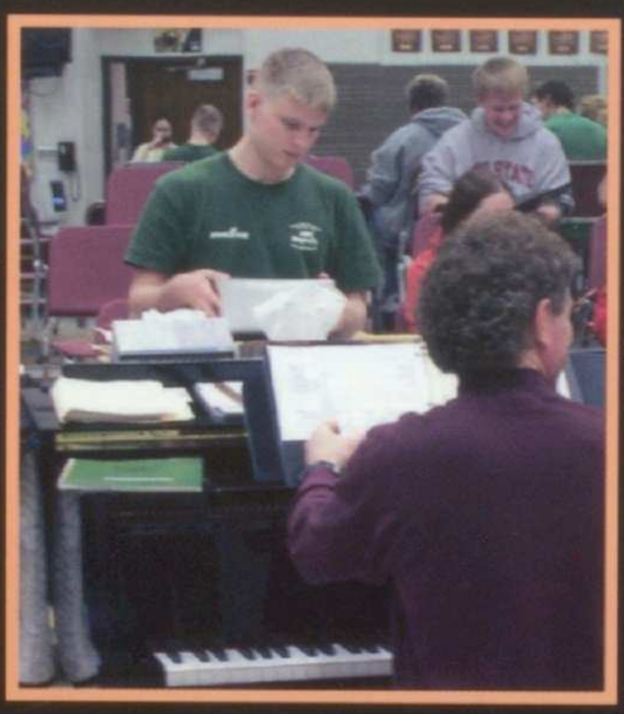
Row 1: Gordon Sjostrom, Joshua House, Ann Wiechel, Mark Marquis, Taya Lichtenberg, Emily Stimpert, Triffany Smith.
Row 2: Piyali Bhattacharya, J.anine Joseph, Carlos Espinoza, Paula Hoffmann, Eric Ness, Michael Sylvester, David Van Fossen.
Row 3: Braden Alsnauer, Robin Pietzen, Zach Sjostrom, Rhea Lockhart, Stefanee Wolford.
Row 4: Melissa Rosensteel, Lana Mattingly, Brad Szabo, Adrienne Slicer, Chad Putka.

What's Your Story?



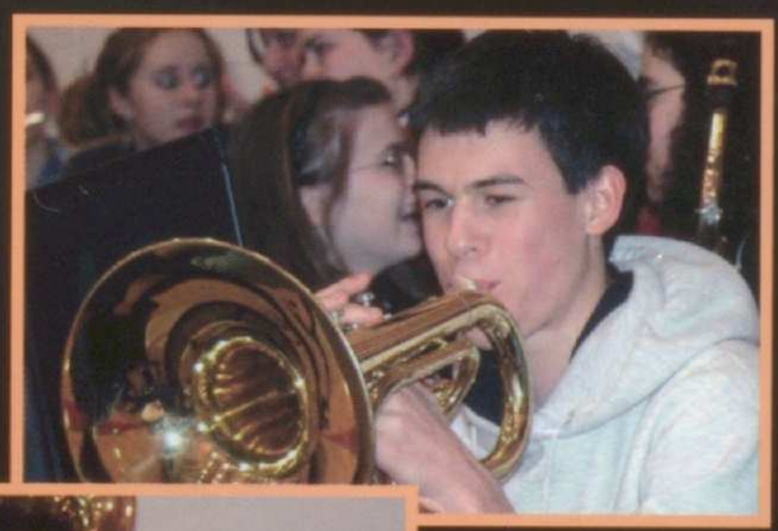
"Over the past four years of my high school career I have been a part of a great class, symphonic choir. I have had a great time in this class. I have met so many new people and gained great friendships. From sight reading to competition the experience will always stay with me."

~Taya Lichtenberg, Senior



Todd Carlson stands by the piano looking in a box while Mr. Parsons talks to another student. In this particular choir class the students are selected. Even though this is an academic class, a lot of the work is done outside of class. For example, this year during the holidays the choir members went to sing at a senior citizen home.

Senior Sarah Reber is enjoying one of her last Pep Bands, which she has participated in since her freshman year. The Pep Band performs during the boys' and girls' TWHS basketball games every year. Each member of the band must attend at least two games, and those who are dedicated enough to attend five or more games receive a special patch to go on their band letter jackets.



Ben Bacon takes a break from his usual role as a percussionist to play the mellophone in Pep Band.

Josh House and Myra Bacon express their talent by playing the mellophone in pep band.

What's Your Story?

"Pep band was really fun and I enjoyed it. I went to every pep band for the boys and girls basketball games. I like pep band because I can hang out with all of my friends and play my tuba. I also think that it is very interesting to watch the students play basketball. Although I didn't do all the pep bands for the patch, I am definitely looking forward to going to all the pep band games next year!"

~Jack Rein, Freshman

Lizzie MIller, Katie Serbu, Caroline Michael, and Sam Thompson, all flute players, enjoy each other's company at pep band.

Wind Ensemble

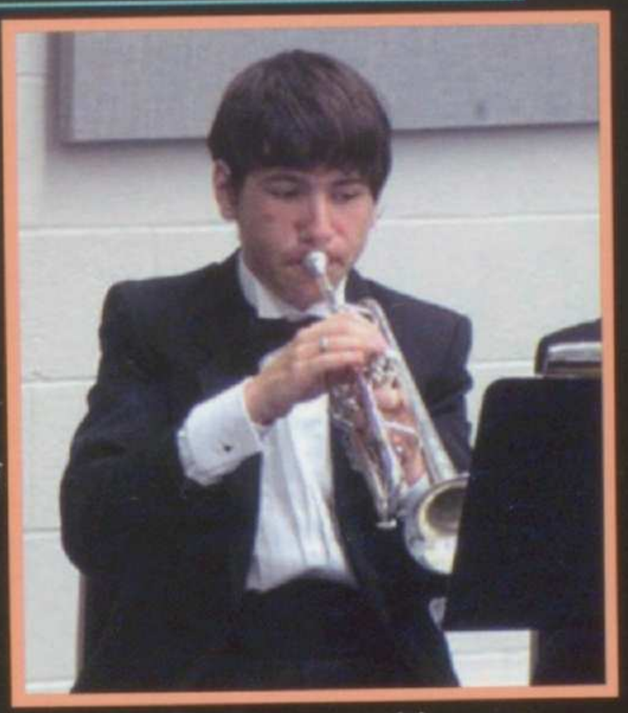
What's Your Story?

"Band has been an up-and-down experience for me. Being able to play at Capital University this year with the Wind Ensemble was very exciting because I had my first solo ever. This year my biggest fear was not meeting expectations. Despite that, Wind Ensemble has been an overall very good experience for me."

~ Matt Coleman, Senior

All the seniors from the top two bands are together for one last song. This year they played "Sure on a Shining Night" as their farewell song.

Eric Boso and Sam Pavey always enjoy each other's company in Wind Ensemble while playing the Baritone.



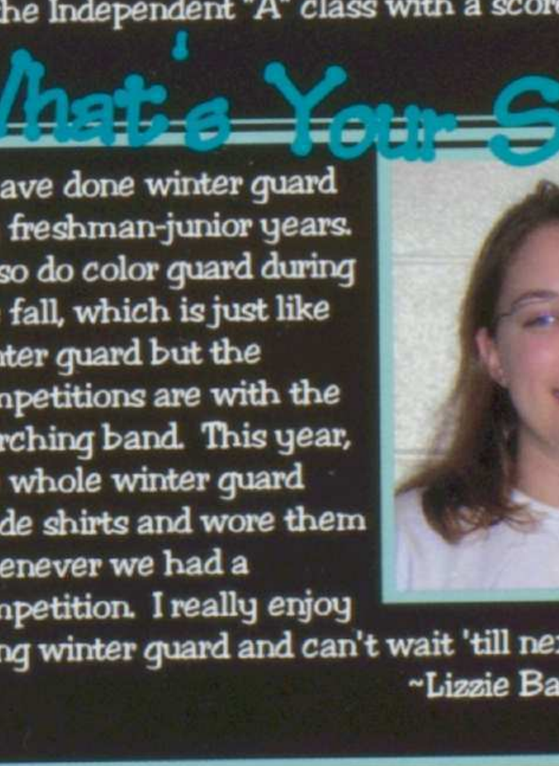
Junior Andy Haviland is wearing the standard attire for a performance in the Wind Ensemble and preparing for an annual competition. Every year all the bands qualify for the district contest, and if they receive a superior rating then they continue on to state contest. This year, the Wind Ensemble got a superior in the district competition very easily and moved on to States. They walked away with their heads held high after receiving a two at the state competition.

Unlike the other bands at Thomas Worthington High School, the Wind Ensemble goes to many places and plays selected music pieces. This particular event was the Wind Ensemble playing at Capitol University.

Symphonic Choir

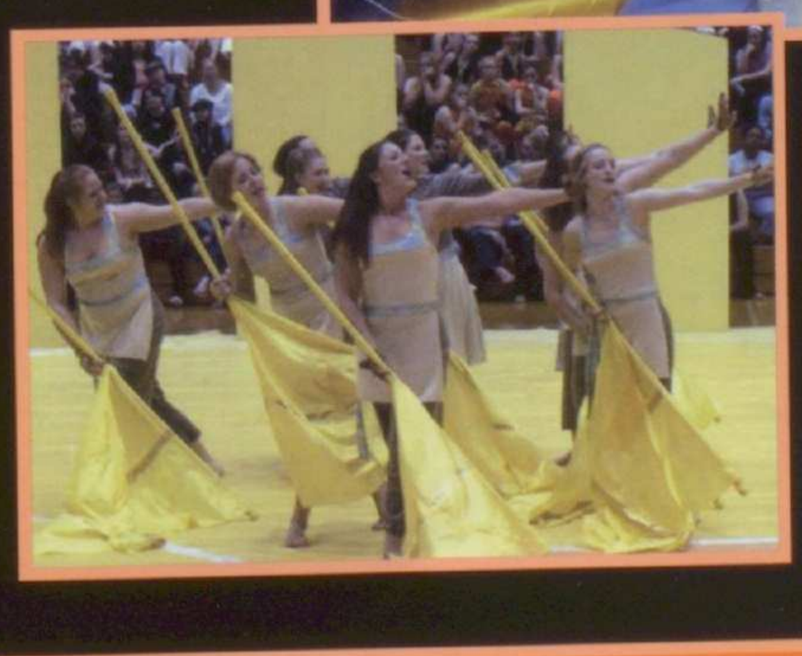
Junior Grace Hursey calls out the different moves during practice in Winter Guard. This year the group was directed by Elizabeth and Rusty Miller.

Practice makes perfect!!! Each member of the Winter Guard takes all the practices very seriously, which led them to a Fourth place finish at the Mid-West Regional and a bronze medal at the Mid-East Regional.



The members of Winter Guard this year are Seniors Julie Bland, Janine Joseph and Katrina Stout, Juniors Ginny Ahalt, Lizzie Barnette, Gracie Hursey and Stefanee Wolford, Sophomore Lauren Romano, and Freshmen Lauren Frank and Kelsea Gaskins.

This talented group of young ladies made the cut into the semi-finals at the Winter Guard International Championships for the second year in a row and ended up placing 17th in the world in the Independent "A" class with a score of 84.25.



This year the theme of the Winter Guard show was "Sunshine", based on the song written and originally performed by Collective Soul.

What's Your Story?

"I have done winter guard my freshman-junior years. I also do color guard during the fall, which is just like winter guard but the competitions are with the marching band. This year, the whole winter guard made shirts and wore them whenever we had a competition. I really enjoy doing winter guard and can't wait 'till next year!"

~Lizzie Barnette, Junior

Winter Percussion

Bethany Rudibaugh, Rebecca Fields, and Liam Donavan hone their skills on the xylophone.

Everyone in winter percussion takes a break from their hard work this season. The team typically practices three and a half hours three days a week, with all-day practices on weekends without competitions

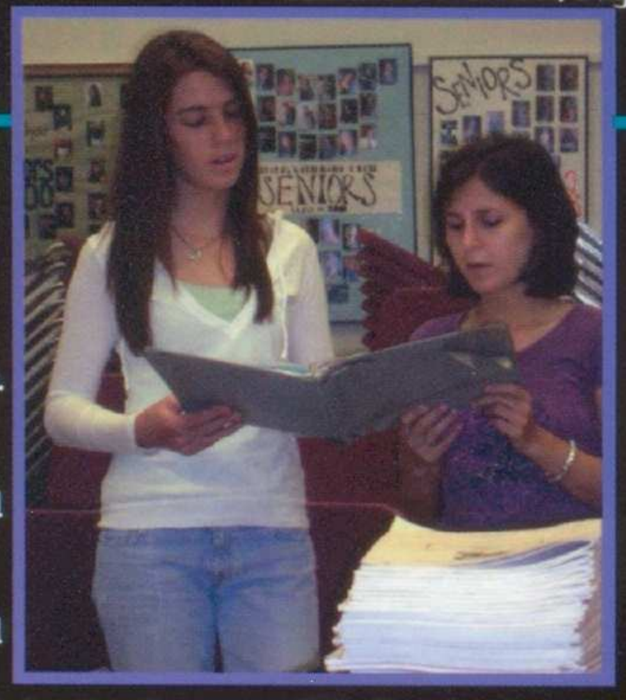
What's Your Story?

"The two best years for me were my freshman and senior year. My freshman year was amazing because along with having a lot of fun and meeting a lot of new people, our drum line went to the world competition after being bumped up a class, and won 1st place. This year I had the opportunity to work with the best kids ever. The guys (and couple girls) and I have gotten very close with the long practices and group parties we've had. I'm going to miss them more than they know."

~Zoey Jackson, Senior

Mia Keller, a member of the Winter Percussion, studies her music during practice. Winter Percussion is largely a mix of the drum line section from marching band and theatre, with the members wearing matching uniforms and physically performing an indoor show while playing their drums.



Carly Loar and Julia Farkas work through their faults together to reach perfection. This year Women's Chorale breezed through the District Competition and went to State Competition. Under the direction of Mr. Parsons these young women climbed right to the top at State Competition by getting a superior.

Women's Chorale

Whitney Stover, Nadia Jenkins, and Ruth Espinoza are enjoying their time in Women's Chorale.

Lauren Romano is working hard on hitting all the high and low notes on a new song in Women's Chorale.

Jamilah Ataya and Julissa Faw not only share a music binder, but also a memorable time in Women's Chorale.

What's Your Story?

"I've been in Women's Chorale for two years. We have built a strong relationship with each other because we are girls. It is fun because we tease Mr. Parsons a lot; we talk constantly so he gets annoyed, but we always have a wonderful time. We went to districts and moved on to states this year. We are the only choir at TWHS that received straight ones in all categories!"

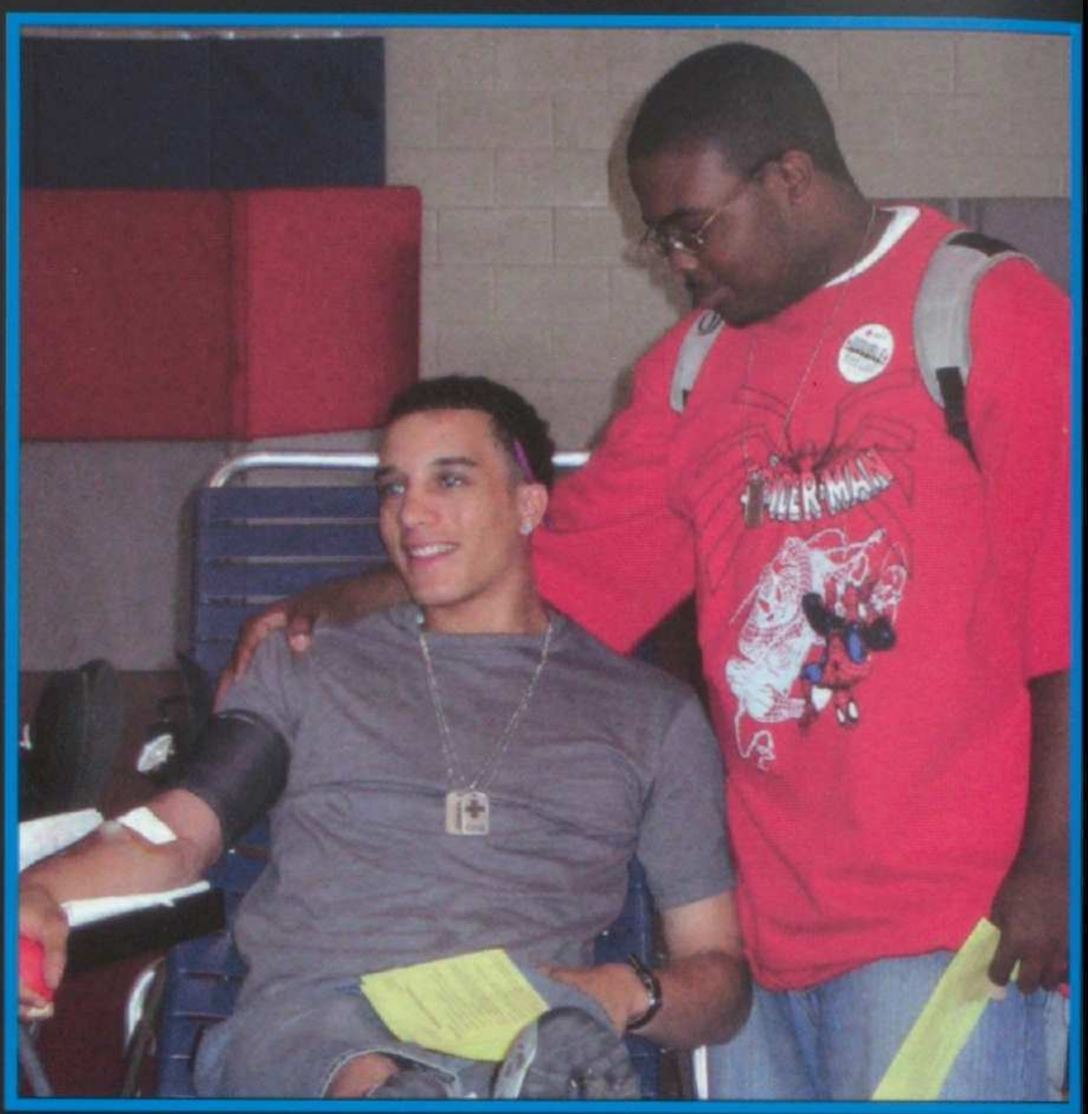
This year it was really great to see friends giving blood together and really supporting each other. The blood drive was very successful and it helped a lot of people. Every year kids who meet the requirements give blood for the first time in order to help others. For those who took part, thank you for giving your blood and your time to save lives. You really made a difference.
Way to go CARDS!



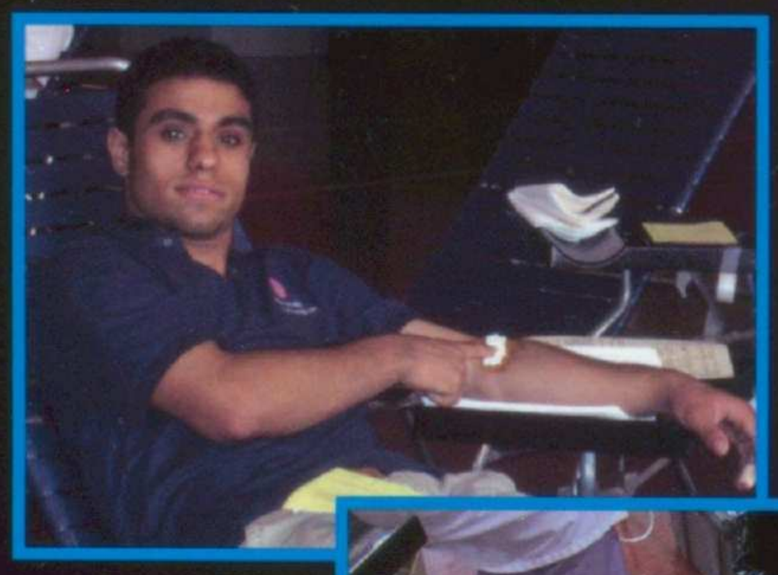
Drew Davis comforts his friend, Andrew Webber before he gave blood.

Kevin Steele is Ay-Okay after donating blood. He stocked up on cookies and juice before leaving.

Sarah Jacobs looks up-beat as she prepares to give blood during her lunch period.

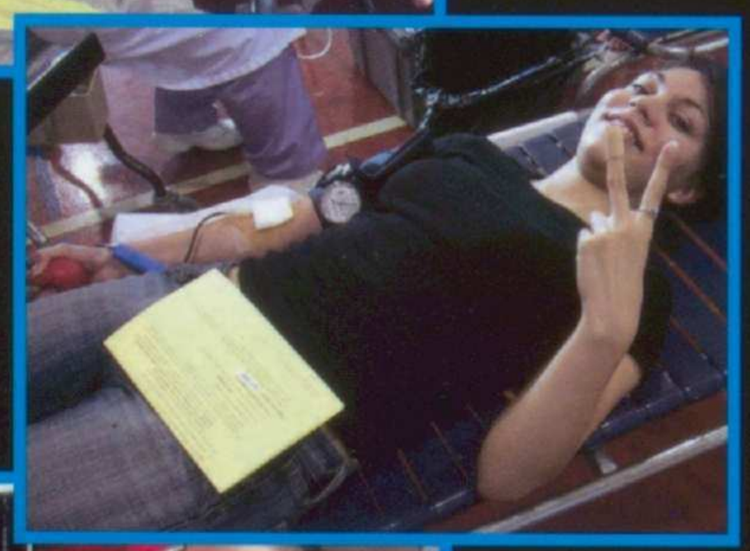
Looking nervous as she waits to get stuck with the dreaded needle is Lindsay Bricker.

Will Hitzemann puts on a goofy smile while showing his support for the blood drive.



Ahmad Shaheen put pressure on the wound on his arm to stop his bleeding.

Charlene Montano is so calm that she could actually be funny as her blood was being pumped.



Abby Alden wore a very appropriate T-shirt for the day. When asked if she planned to wear the shirt, she responded, "Of course!"

What's Your Story?

"This year, I was unable to give blood because I was 101 lbs. I decided that I did not want to be an observer, like I was last year. I dropped all of my healthy eating habits and gained 20 lbs. Yes, I had a very hard time squeezing into my prom dress. Unfortunately, even though I gained enough weight, I did not get to give blood. I had a blood test the next day, and my doctor strongly suggested that I did not give blood. I was very disappointed not to save a life."

Laura Blackburn stops for a second to pose for a picture with this sixth grader. The kids keep their camp counselors constantly on their feet and there is never a dull moment for the three days of the trip. The camp counselors become very good friends with the group of sixth graders they supervise and often find it hard to leave them when the trip is over. Students bring back fond memories of their trips and funny stories from the rather curious sixth graders.

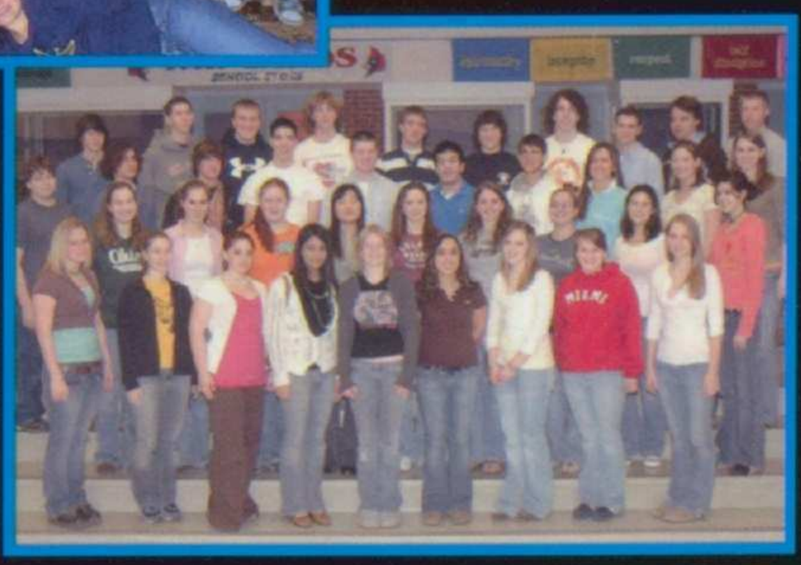
Camp Ohio tales place every year and involves students from TWHS helping out their old elementary schools by volunteering to be camp counselors for the sixth graders going to camp. Students usually pick their old elementary school to go back and visit, and the opportunity is open to anyone who is interested in helping out and enjoys working with kids. The students put on skits, play games, and have dances with the elementary kids and enjoy spending late nights talking about whatever the kids want to talk about and become literally like older siblings to the sixth graders. Scary stories are told at camp fires, as well as funny ones and a good time is had by all. Many of the students who participate in Camp Ohio usually do so because they love working with children or they are thinking about pursuing a career involving children. It's a great way for students to give back to their communities and brings back old memories of when they were just little sixth graders going to camp and discovering the world for the first time.

Jarret Cowgill, Kyler Cowgill, Zach Rabold, Kurt Barhardt, and Nick Douglas dress up like and pretend to be girls for a day. These guys put on a skit for the elementary kids and had to suffer the embarrassment of a camera being there to capture every moment of their gender change. Just think guys...all for the sake of the children...

Tye-dying shirts was one of the first activities that camp counselors helped kids with. Here, Alison Matthews helps these two sixth graders tye-dye some shirts. Students participated in many different activities that were fun for everyone.

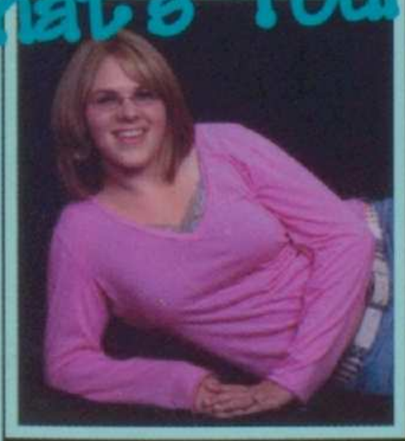
Row 1: Ben Giffor, Mark Marquis, Erin Beck, Piyali Bhattacharya, and Nick Anderson.
Row 2: Amy Moore, Laura Blackburn, and Melissa Rosensteel.

Lauren Heironimus stands alone surrounded by sixth graders from Worthington Park



The whole happy group. Everyone in Camp Ohio worked very hard to make the sixth graders have an enjoyable time just as their counselors had when they were young sixth graders.

What's Your Story?



"It was great working with the kids, but we definitely had some interesting experiences. The funniest thing was when we had a dance with the kids. We had to do all sorts of dances like the Macarena in front of the kids and with the kids. We had to do the bunny hop and the counselors had to lead the rows and the kids put their hands on our shoulders and we all just hopped around, it must have looked very funny."

Empty Bowl

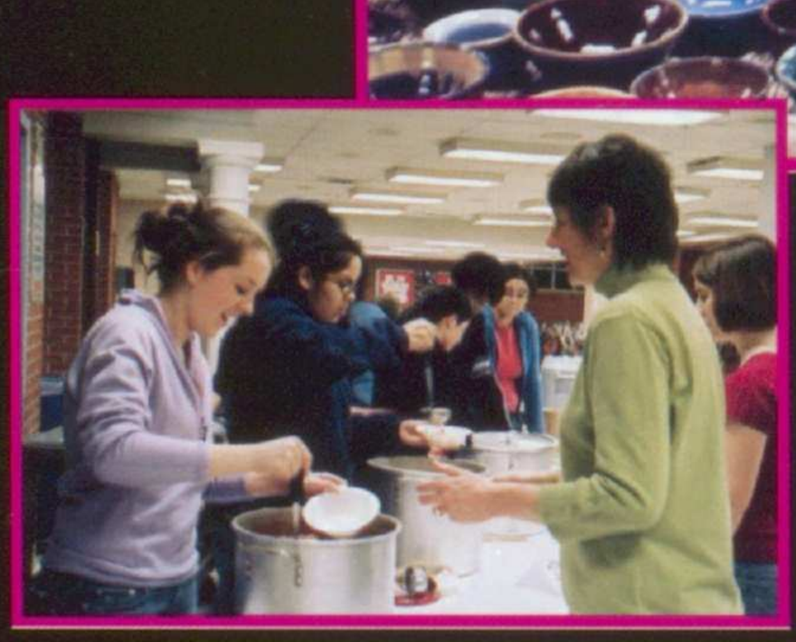
Every year students who have taken Ceramics in previous years, and current Ceramics students come together for one cause. These artists donate their time and skill in making bowls to sell for charity. The students make the bowls by hand and then glaze them. They are all very unique and different. The bowls are then sold in the cafeteria during the lunch periods for $10 a piece and an extra $5 for dinner. Later, a variety of soups and bread were served to the sponsors of this cause. This year, the cause was incredibly successful, thanks to the support of the student body. Thank you Cards for all of your support. Because of you, we raised $1800 for the Children's Hunger Alliance.

Upon arriving at the dinner, patrons and guests were able to pick out their very own bowl from the wide selection that was offered.

Sho Karoda details the finer points of a ceramic bowl to this Empty Bowl customer.

Zackiah Weatherington made over fifty bowls to sell for a donation towards the Children's Hunger Alliance. She split her time at school and at home where she has her own potter's wheel to continue her creative efforts. Kiah put in long hours with other ceramics students to make sure that the Empty Bowl dinner would be the best it could be.

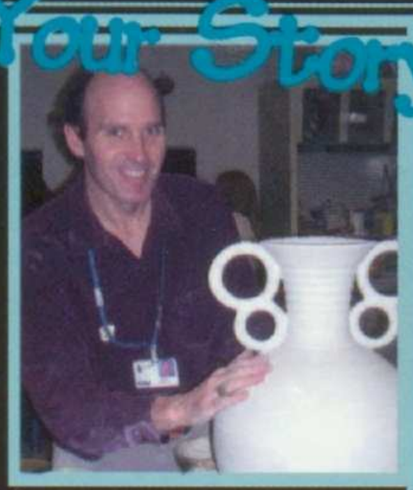
Libby Tatz sold empty bowls during the lunch periods. This year Empty Bowl raised $1800; this is $700 more than last year! Great job CARDS.



Mrs. Rosenburg, one of the proud Ceramics teachers, stands in line to receive her soup. All of the money from the Empty Bowls dinner and bowl sales went to charity.

Included at the dinner was a silent auction that boasted work from ceramics teacher Mr. Spencer himself!

What's Your Story?



"It's fun being able to work with the kids, and coming in on Saturdays to help them to advance their skills on the wheel and to watch their creativity progress. It's hard for some kids to give away one of their pieces, but it's part of the learning experience and being able to take part in the Community. I'm very proud of the work that has been done this year for the Empty Bowl Project."

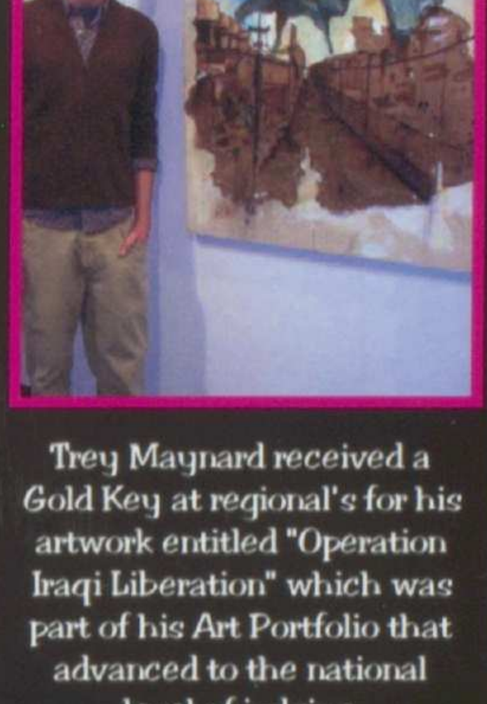
Scholastics Art Awards

(clockwise starting in top left) Ryuhei Shimizu was awarded a Gold Key for his untitled pendant jewelry. Trey Maynard received an Honorable Mention for his painting entitled "Dental Work.." Sarah Reber was awarded a Gold Key for her digital piece entitled "The Crossing." Trey Maynard also was awarded a Silver Key for his still-life painting entitled "Archeology."

Each year student artists at TWHS take part in the Scholastics Art and Writing Competition. Established in 1923, Scholastics invites students from grades 7-12 to send artwork in via their respective high schools. Honors awarded by the competition include Gold, Silver and Bronze key awards for individual pieces, Honorable Mentions and Portfolio winners. Seniors have the chance to send in a body of work, along with an artists statement, for the chance to get their portfolio into the show. This year at TWHS a record number of senior portfolios was sent in, both of 2-D and 3-D work.

Award Winners

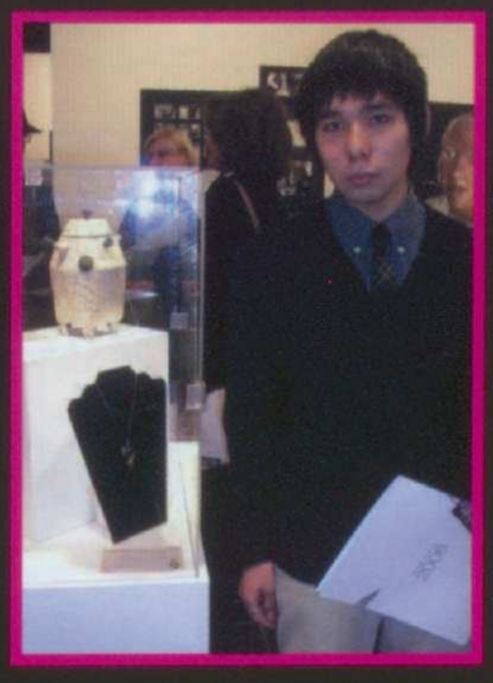
Laura Jewett - Drawing
Trey Maynard - Portfolio, 3 Paintings
Laura Pfendler - Painting
Sarah Reber - Digital, Painting
Ryuhei Shimizu - 2 Jewelry pieces



Trey Maynard received a Gold Key at regional's for his artwork entitled "Operation Iraqi Liberation" which was part of his Art Portfolio that advanced to the national level of judging.

Trey Maynard was awarded a Gold Key for his art portfolio at the regional level of judging, and advanced to win a Silver Key at the national level along with a scholarship to CCAD. His portfolio was honored at Carnegie Hall in a ceremony, and his piece, "Operation Iraqi Liberation", received a Gold Key at the national level and was displayed at the Corcoran Gallery in Washington D.C. His portfolio received the highest award of any TWHS portfolios that had been submitted in past competitions. Congratulations!

"Juxtaposition," a still-life painting by senior Sarah Reber, received an Honorable Mention at the Scholastic's show.



Ryuhei Shimizu, a senior, received an Honorable Mention for his untitled piece of jewelry.

Ryuhei Shimizu, Trey Maynard, Laura Pfendler and Sarah Reber attended the awards reception for the regional competition, which was held this year at the Canzani Center on the campus of the Columbus College of Art and Design.

"Shoes", a charcoal dig-out by senior Laura Jewett, received a Silver Key award at the Scholastic's show.

"Europe," an oil, mixed-media painting by senior Laura Pfendler (pictured with Matt Dollens) received a Gold Key award at the Scholastic's show.

What's Your Story?

Scholastics was really exciting-and it was amazing to see two of my pieces hung at CCAD (Columbus College of Art & Design)! It was a great honor to get some of my work put in the show, although of all the pieces I could have picked, "Juxtaposition", which received an Honorable Mention, would be the last! On the other hand, all kinds of phenomenal work received honors at Scholastics, and I was proud to look around and see so many talented artists from Thomas Worthington exhibited there!

Focus on Four, OCC Art Invitational & Governor's Art Show

The Focus on Four senior art show has become a tradition within the art departments of both TWHS and WKHS. Four seniors are chosen to headline the show, two from each high school, and each presents a body of artwork that is the culmination of four years' dedication. This year for one of the first times the students from TWHS, Ryuhei Shimizu and Zackiah Weatherington, both worked in 3-dimensional media, with metals and clay.

The OCC Art Invitational is another art show that occurs in the spring, and this year five students each had one piece or a series selected by the art teachers of TWHS. The students chosen for the show this year were Jordan Anderson (ceramic urn), Brendan Burkett (painting), Kelley Meyers (2 ceramic vases), John Sharvin (ceramic tea set), and Tawny Wells (painting). Congratulations on your art awards, CARDS!

The Ohio Governor's Youth Art Exhibition is a statewide competition for high school students interested in art and those who want to share their work with others. In the 36th annual exhibition, the judging and selection of art started at the regional level. Around 2500 pieces of work are selected to move on to the state level of judging, and this year one junior Kaveri Raina's paintings was selected to be hung at the state level show, a very high honor for this aspiring artist. This year, as well, fifteen TWHS talented artists had work accepted at the regional level. Congratulations CARDS!

Ryuhei Shimizu (left) has mastered jewelry-making with his diligent hard work and the numerous craft and independent study classes that he took at TWHS. Focus on Four became the culmination of these years of work that included awards at both the Governor's and Scholastic's art shows.

Brendan Burkett, a junior, had his painting, entitled "Wastelands", hung at the OCC Art Invitational.

What's Your Story?

"Ahhh, the Ohio Governor's Youth Art Exhibition. I remember it like it was exactly 66 days ago. The Governor's show displays the talent of local art students in Ohio. It's an honor to be accepted to move on to the regional level, and an even bigger honor to go on to the state level, and an honor that Kaveri Raina achieved. My memories of seeing my art and my fellow artists' work hanging at Rhodes Tower will never fade."

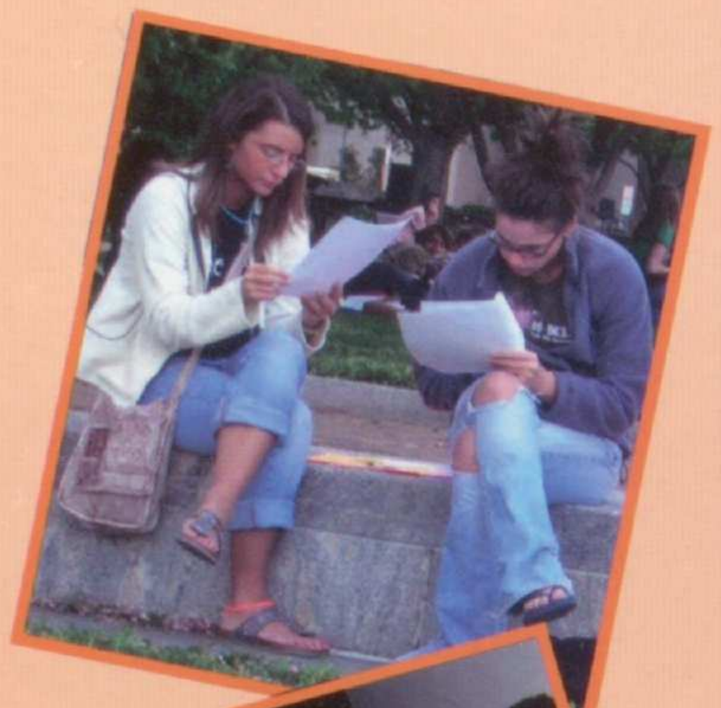
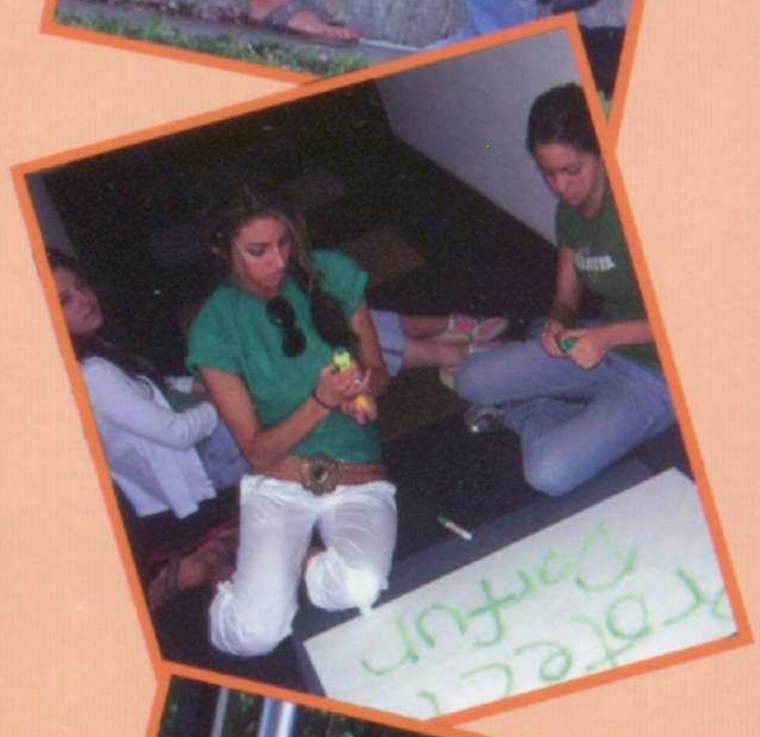
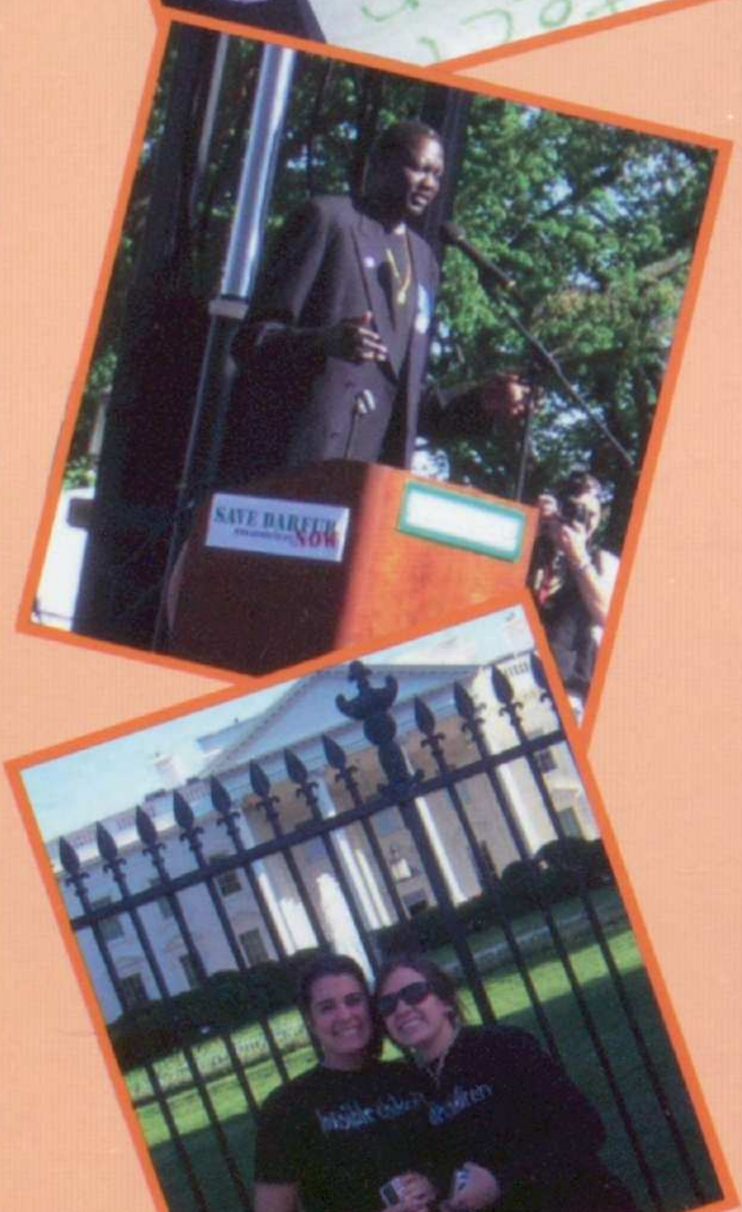
TAKE A CLOSER LOOK



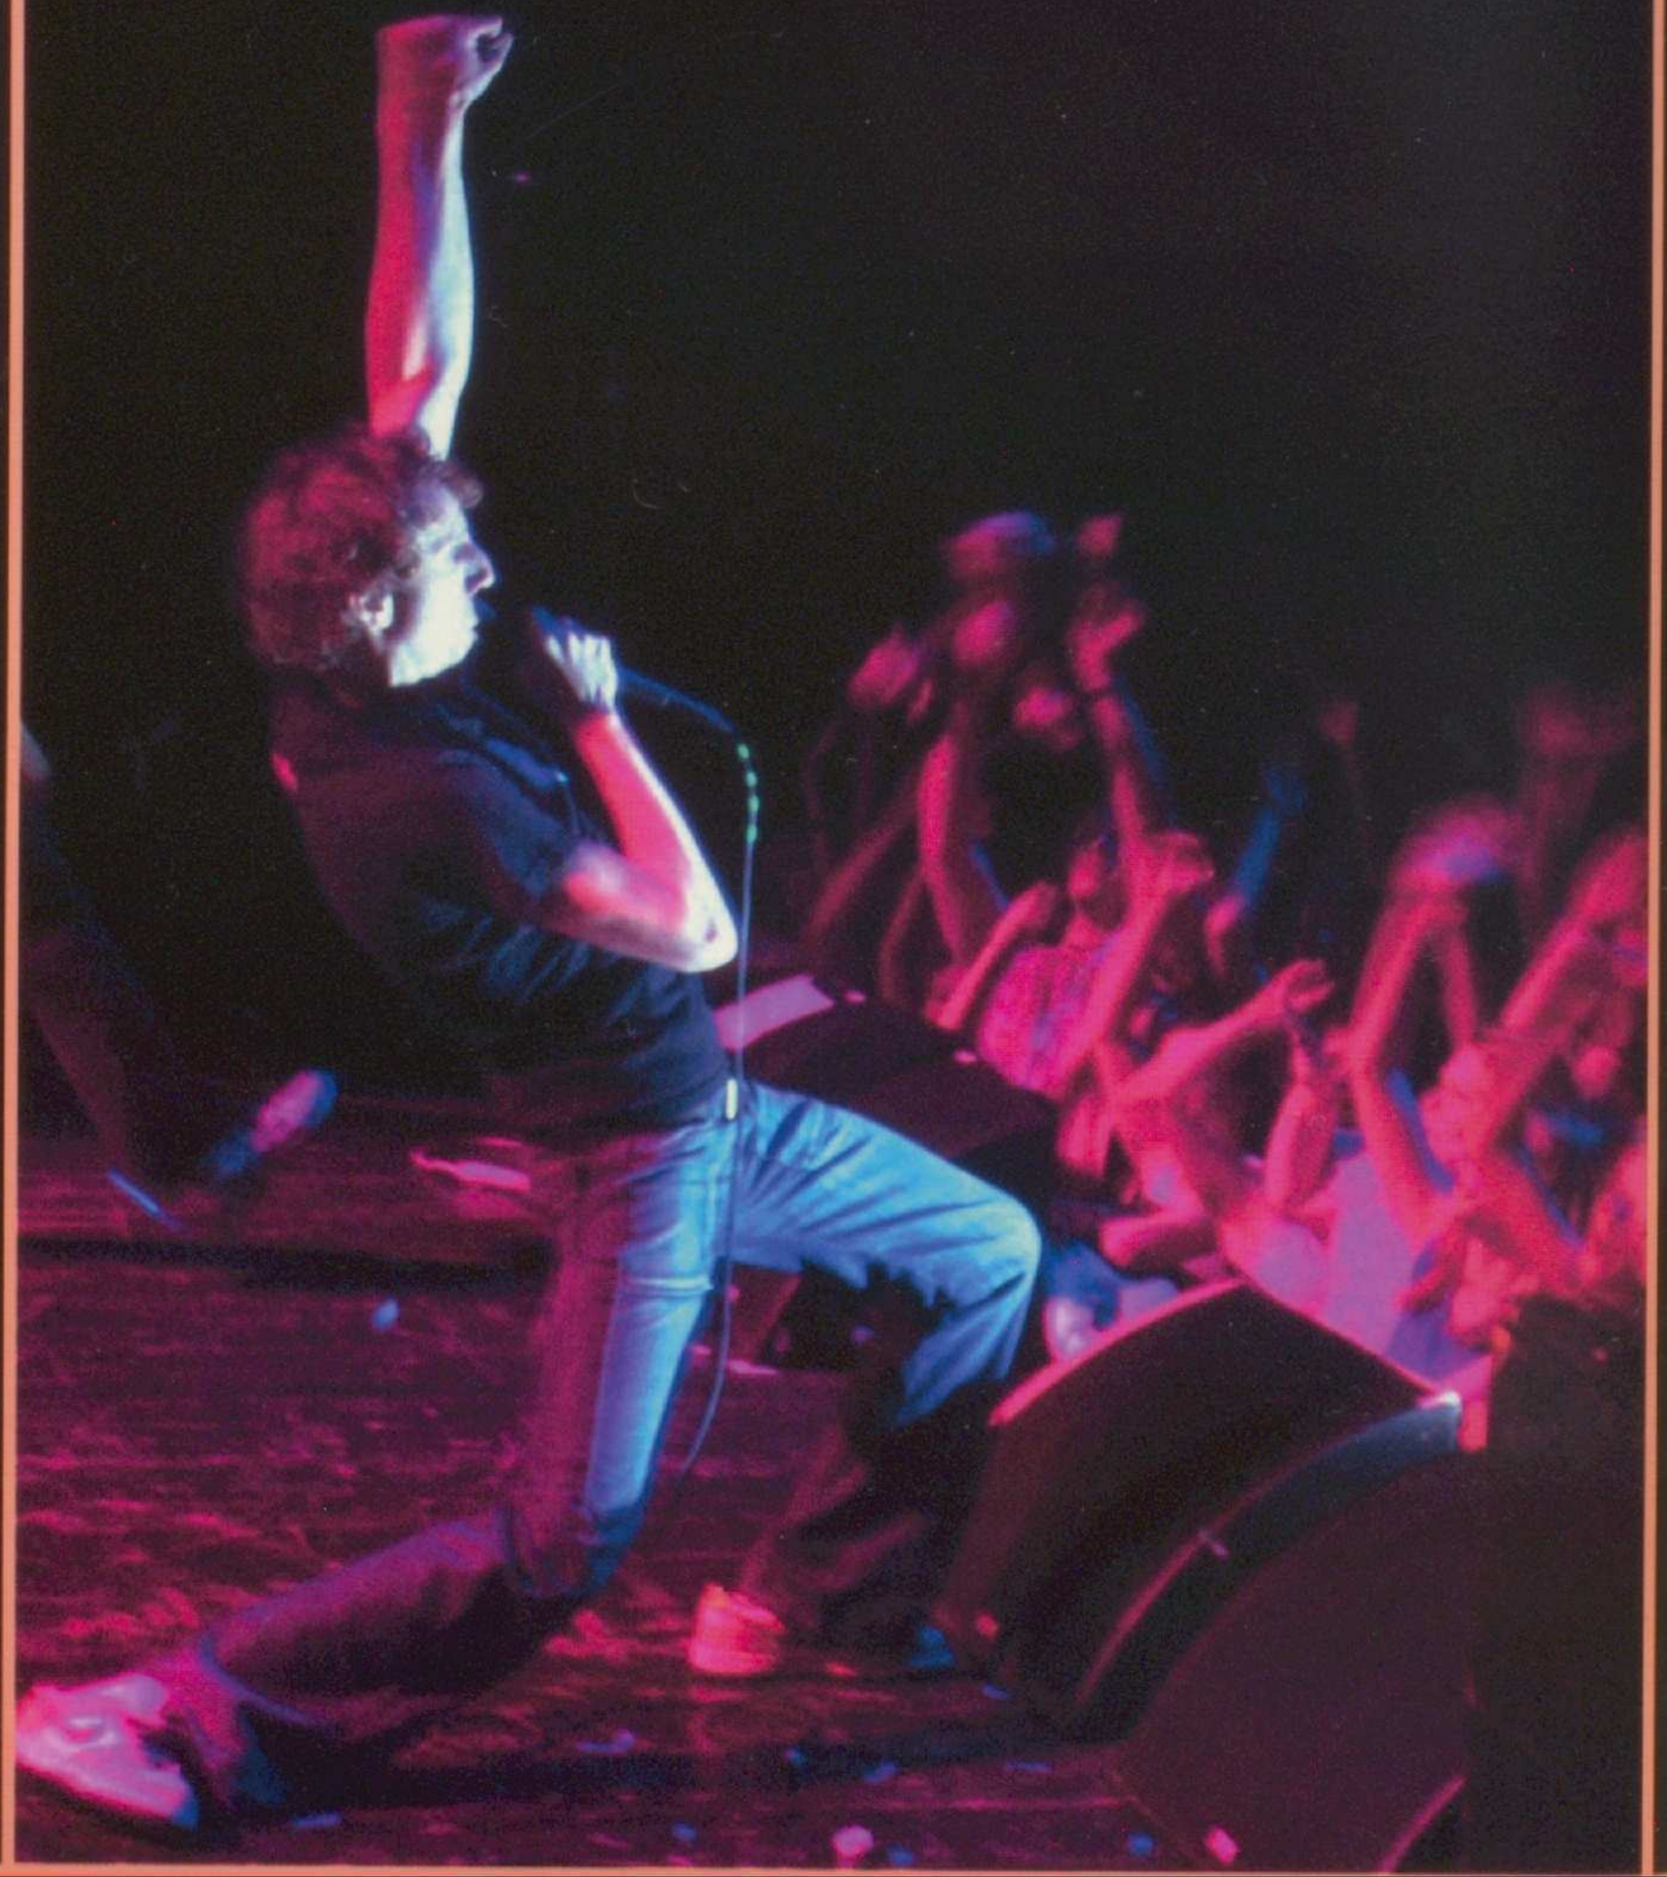




Invisible Children

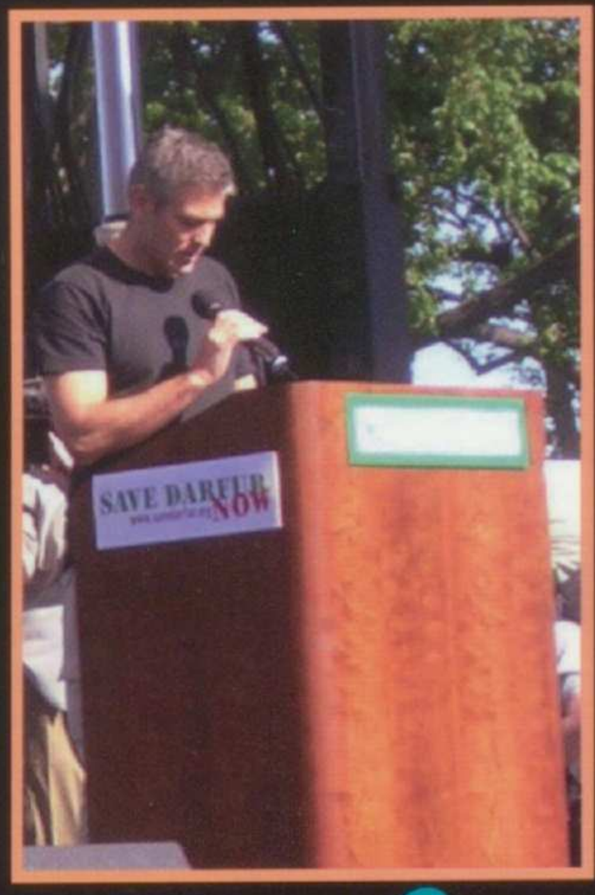
One of the newest additions to Thomas Worthington High School's list of endless clubs this year is Student Advocates for International Peace (commonly known as S.A.I.P.). Both affected by family situations, Lauren Batcheck and Una Hrnjak took it upon themselves to begin a club that would raise awareness of international conflicts and help students to make changes around the world. Both had encountered the issue at Darfur and were shocked by how little coverage had been presented to such a dire situation. Both had personal family situations that tied closely with international conflicts, Una's family had escaped genocide in her home country of Bosnia and Lauren had spent time with her family working in Indonesia and had been very involved in foreign aid. Working hard to improve life around the world, the club became very involved in the Invisible Children Campaign. Alone the club set up an assembly for the entire school showing the movie "Invisible Children" to set the wheels in motion at school and quickly black shirts with the logo were everywhere, sold to raise money for the Invisible Children. SAIP also became involved in the Global Night Commute where anyone who wanted to make a difference came and slept on the ground just as the children of Darfur do. Taking it a step further, SAIP also took part in a rally at Washington, D.C. to convince politicians and congressmen how important this cause was., as well as writing letters to them. Their plight has not yet ended and they plan to continue their work for years to come to not only help raise awareness of international conflicts, but to help end them as well.

Rockin' Out for an excellent cause, John Reuben sings for the Invisible Children. One of the ways that Invisible Children raised money was through a concert that was set up with Radiou Birthday Bash where all proceeds from ticket sales went to the Invisible Children.



(Left): Aside from doing outside work, the group is constantly meeting after school to discuss possible methods of action and to assess current situations. Through their group meetings they've come up with many ways to involve not only themselves, but the entire school.

(Bottom): One of the first steps that Student Advocates for International Peace took to spread their message was to get the school involved; and what better way to involve a lot of people than by holding a mass gathering (a.k.a. assembly)? At the assembly, SAIP showed th movie "Invisible Children" that moved everyone



(left): Making signs has always been an excellent way to grab someone's attention. SAIP students went to Washington, D.C. to rally for the invisible children and not only stood for hours hearing speeches and carrying signs, but also took time out to write letters to politicians.

(left): At Washington, D.C., students sat out for hours to protest for Darfur. Advisors Mrs. Norris and Mr. Buckley accompanied the students at the rally and were active participants.

What's Your Story?

"We were both greatly affected by the genocide at Darfur and how little coverage it had been receiving. We both feel so strongly about this because both of our families have come into contact with the issue presented at Darfur. My family (Una) had lived in Bosina for several years and moved because of genocide there; we were able to escape, but others weren't and that's what motivated me. Lauren's family had lived in Indonesia for four years and has been really involved in foreign aid and that's what motivated her. We really wanted to do something that would make a difference and that's when we came across the Invisible Children campaign and decided to get not only our club(Student Advocates for International Peace) involved, but the entire school, so that hopefully our voice can be heard loud and clear and we can spread the message that we do in fact have the power to make life better for all of us."

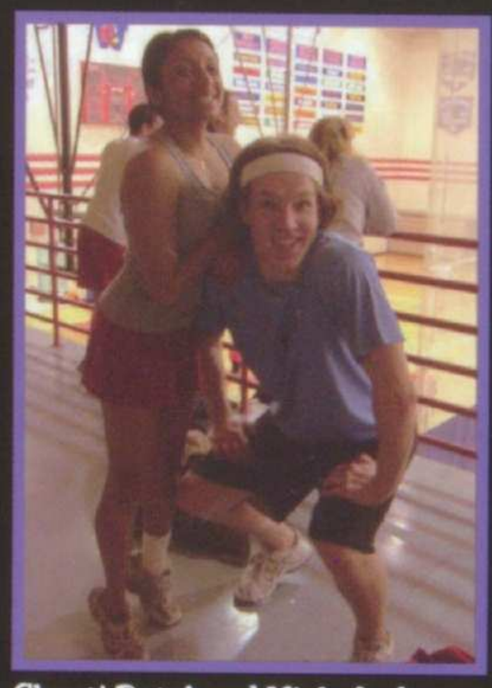
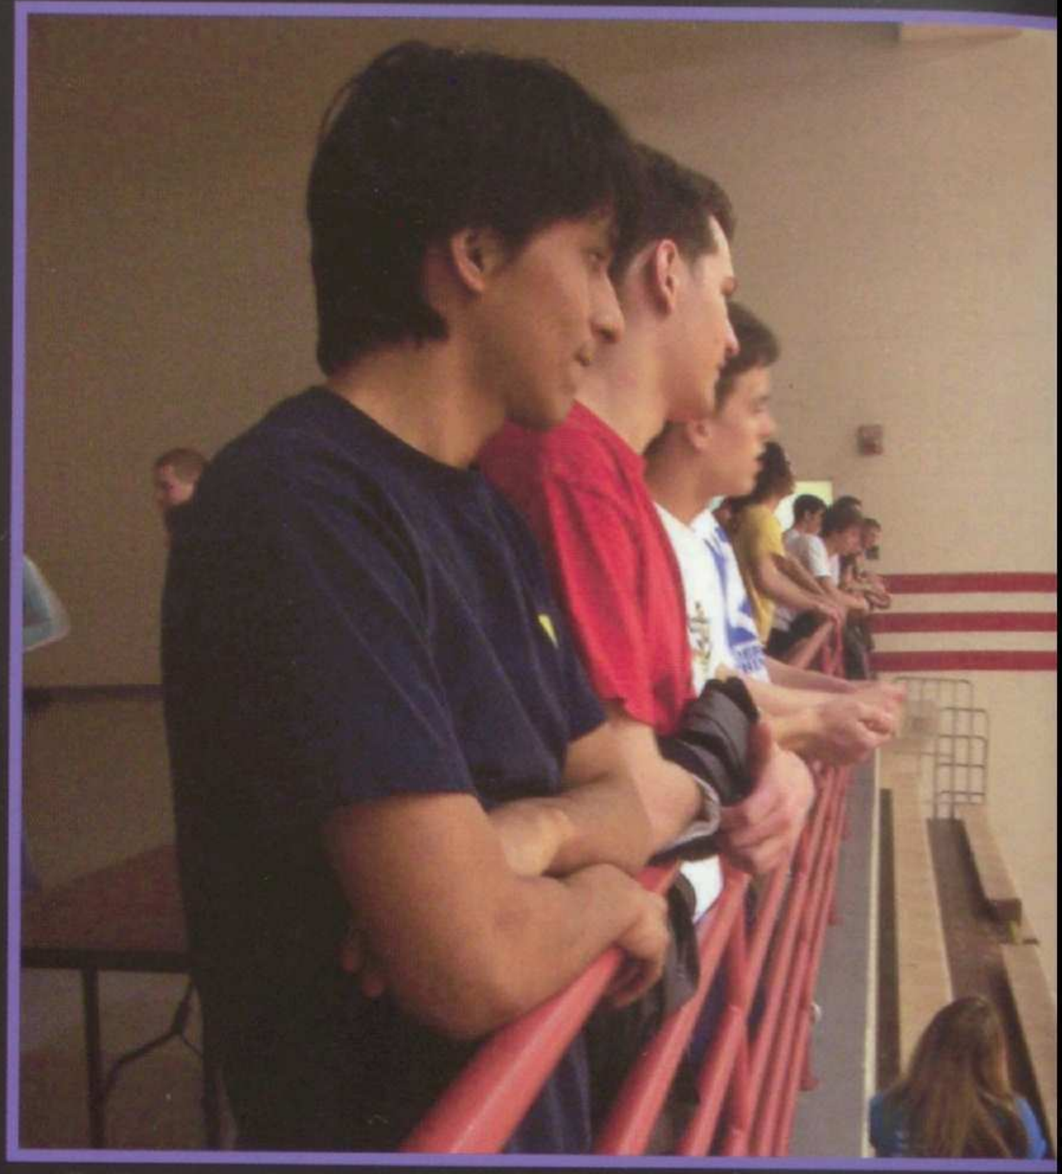
Dodgeball

What's a great way to be active, raise money for prom, and have a great time with your friends? This year the junior class finally answered this looming question with one word...Dodgeball. Created by the junior class as a scheme to help raise money for prom and gathering inspiration from the movie Dodgeball: A True Underdog Story, founder Tyler Johnson organized and planned the events and coordinated Dodgeball. For weeks the teams battled it out in fun competitions and it finally came time for the Dodgeball Championship, the ultimate tournament competing all teams until finally declaring a winning team, Latino Heat. Many formed teams with groups of their friends and helped raise money for prom through payment to start their group. All were welcome to come and play, no matter their skill level, after all, "if you can dodge a wrench, you can dodge a ball."

This TWHS student enjoys a quick stretch before his team's next game. Many students practiced a lot during the regular games to prepare for the championship, but a good stretch is vital to any athlete before competing.



Shruti Patel and Nick Anderson, although dismayed from their loss against Latino Heat, are still happy to have taken part in this fun competition. Although many players came to win, many just enjoyed spending time with their friends.



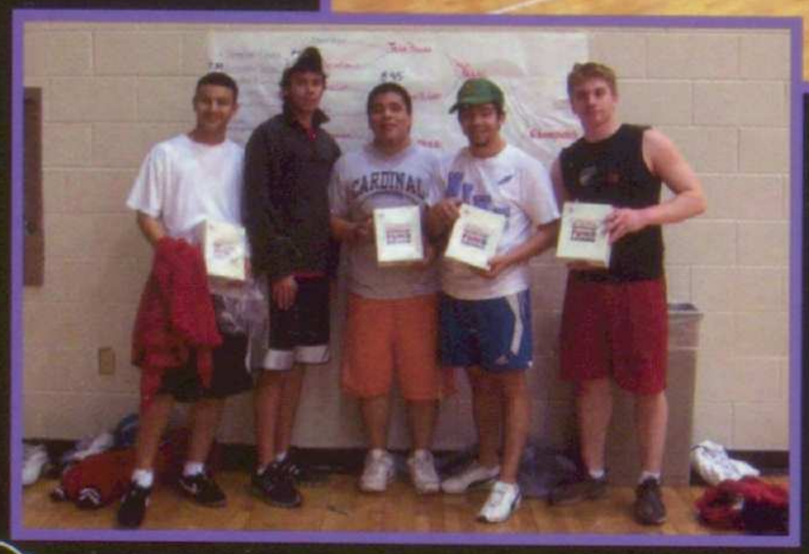
Stalking out their opponents, Carlos Espinoza, Colin Russi, and Micheal Charles check out the competition and consider ways to defeat them and poke fun at their fellow classmates' shortcomings. Dodgeball requires the ability to move swiftly to avoid the ball and have good aim to take out opponents. It can require you to have to jump high or hit the floor fast to avoid balls flying all over the place. Vulgarity does often become an issue, as Colin Russi said, "Our team won the first game, but it got really nasty in the second round; we were threatened to be disqualified for vulgarity, but we lost in sudden death."

As this player throws to hit a targeted student, another from the opposing side has taken advantage of his inability to see and prepares to take him out. Players have to constantly be on the look out for people trying to get them out.

Aiming is crucial to Dodgeball, anyone can throw a ball, but what separates the regular and the advanced are those that can pick out a target and take them out.

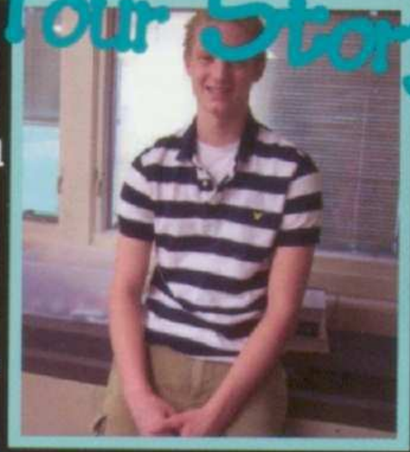
Thank goodness that these balls are just foam, being hit in the face would have really hurt otherwise. Players had to keep a good eye on the opposing side to make sure that they didn't get out and become a casualty.

The game starts out with all the balls laid out on the center line of the gym. It's a mad dash from both sides to get as many as possible to have the upper hand in the game.



Team Latino Heat takes home the gold...en glazed donuts. The team was started by Francisco Barrezueta and Andres Ramirez.

What's Your Story?



"We wanted to start Dodgeball last year but the athletic director had not approved the idea. Finally this year they decided to go for it. We wanted to do something fun and raise money. We had twelve teams and were able to raise $1100. It was really intense and people really got into it, it was great to see all the teams come and bring a lot of enthusiasm."

~Tyler Johnson, Junior

Science Fair

Every year TWHS holds its annual science fair in February, however groups are already busy and working early in the year. It takes a lot of work, research, and understanding to do well at the science fair, after all most groups are presenting a new idea that they believe can help society to their judges, so they have to understand every faction of what they are doing and be able to explain it and answer any tough questions the judges have. Many students take part in science fair because they have a love of science and wish to further their own knowledge on a specific topic, some join it out of curiosity on a subject they wish to explore more and further knowledge on, and some take part in science fair just because their class requires them to. Despite why, many of the participants have one thing in common, a love for science and furthering current knowledge on scientific topics ranging from cancer, to the effects of music on human beings. Judges rate the projects on many different levels, and ten are chosen to go on to districts and perhaps compete in states.

Emily Sisco, along with group members Bo Corbin and Angelo Arnold did their project on "Attention Grabbing Movies." Here, Emily explains her project to one of the judges examining their work. Students have to understand their projects very well and be comfortable explaining step by step the process they went through to come to their conclusion. They also have to be prepared to answer questions the judges might pose to better understand the project or the implications the project might raise Ben Papineau and Brook Mesfin take a break to play a quick game of chess as they wait for the next judge to come and look at their project.

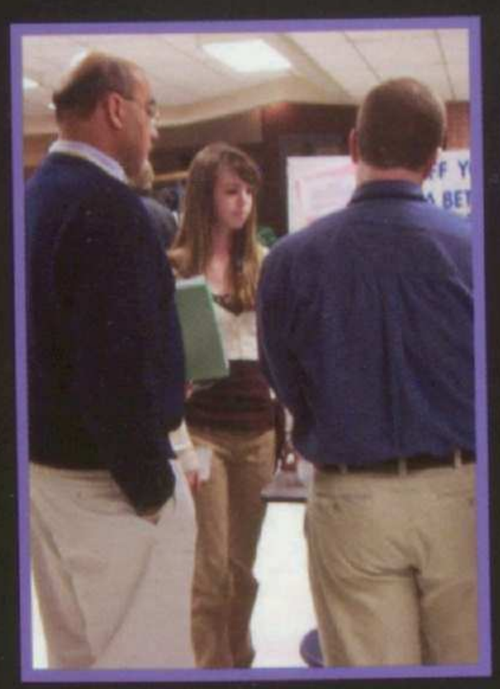
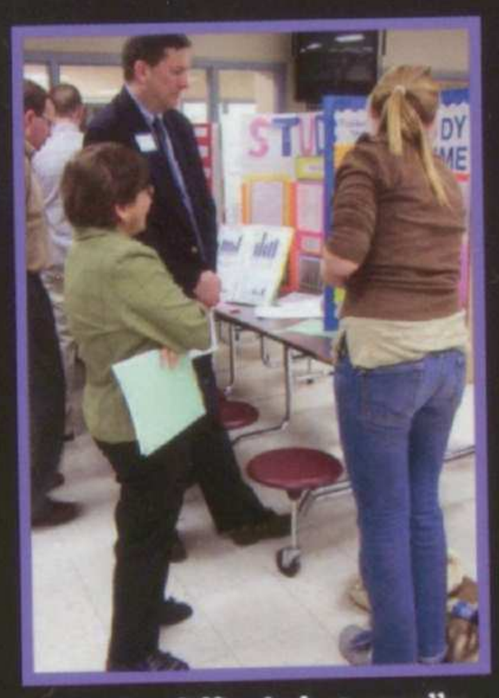
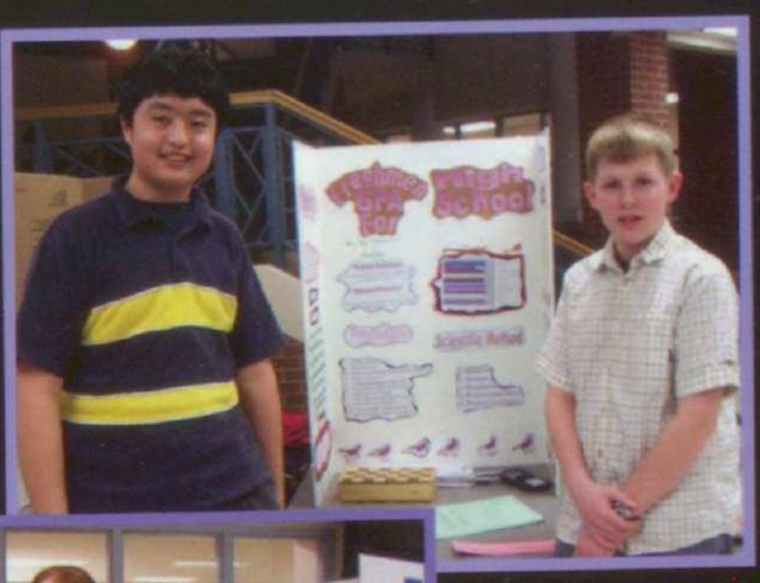
Madeleine Smith, Megan Strasser, and Jackie Matson researched "Color Pigments". The girls worked effortlessly to get to Science Fair and were happy to be able to present their ideas to the judges.





Picking a topic of choice to study can be difficult, but usually students chose something that affected themselves and other students. Many had interesting and creative ideas for projects and put in a lot of effort researching and testing their hypotheses.

Junxing Ren and Ben Papineau researched whether or not "Extra Curricular Affect Freshman GPA". Freshmen themselves, they theorized that outside activities do influence how much time we have to do homework and study and therefore our GPAs.



Emily Syring explains to Mr. DeVore her project titled "Study Time"

Congratulations to the top ten of science fair this year who will continue to districts and to Mira and Emily Bacon who won the TWHS Science Fair with their project, "Detection of Coliform on Organic and Non-Organic Spinach."

What's Your Story?

"We tested organic and non-organic spinach for coliform. What inspired us to do this project was that our mom is a food scientist and we were at the farmer's market and wanted to buy organic spinach, but our mom wouldn't let us and said that it was actually bad for us. We were under the impression that organic was better, so we decided to test both the organic and non-organic spinach. When we finished testing them we found that both were exactly the same and neither was likely to contain coliforms. However, on the organic spinach, we did find e.coli which was really surprising."

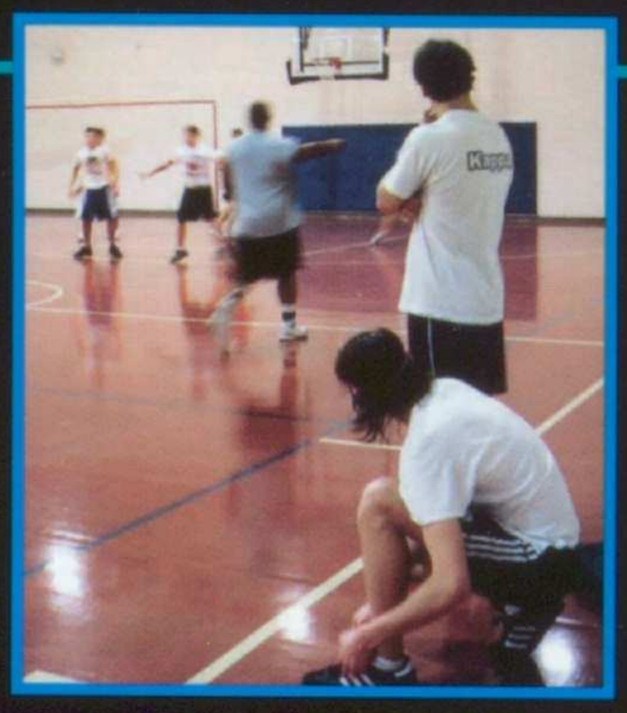
Every year the Worthington Stars Special Olympics basketball team plays its final game, the Battle of Worthington, against a team of students from the Worthington middle schools. This year the Stars took home the trophy, beating the Ambassadors 59-48.

Basketball



Every year here at Thomas Worthington someone organizes a basketball tournament for those who don't do a winter sport. Anyone can join if they get a group of friends together and make a team. As David Timko watches and waits for his game to start, Dillon Oldenburg gets ready and ties his shoes.

Chris Dorka spreads his arms out to try to block the ball being passed to the other opponent on the other team.

What's Your Story?

"This year intramural basketball was interesting. 13 varsity girls basketball players including myself all decided collectively to not play for the TWHS team this year. It was a smart decision . We all had lots of fun and we won most of our games. The team "G-Unit" is one that I will always remember.

~Sarah Carey, Senior

Here are some of this year's team names for those who will play next year:
West Coast All Stars, WoTown Wankstas, Latino Heat, Cleveland Steamers, and Team Domination.
This year the winner of the intramural basketball tournament was team "Darkness".

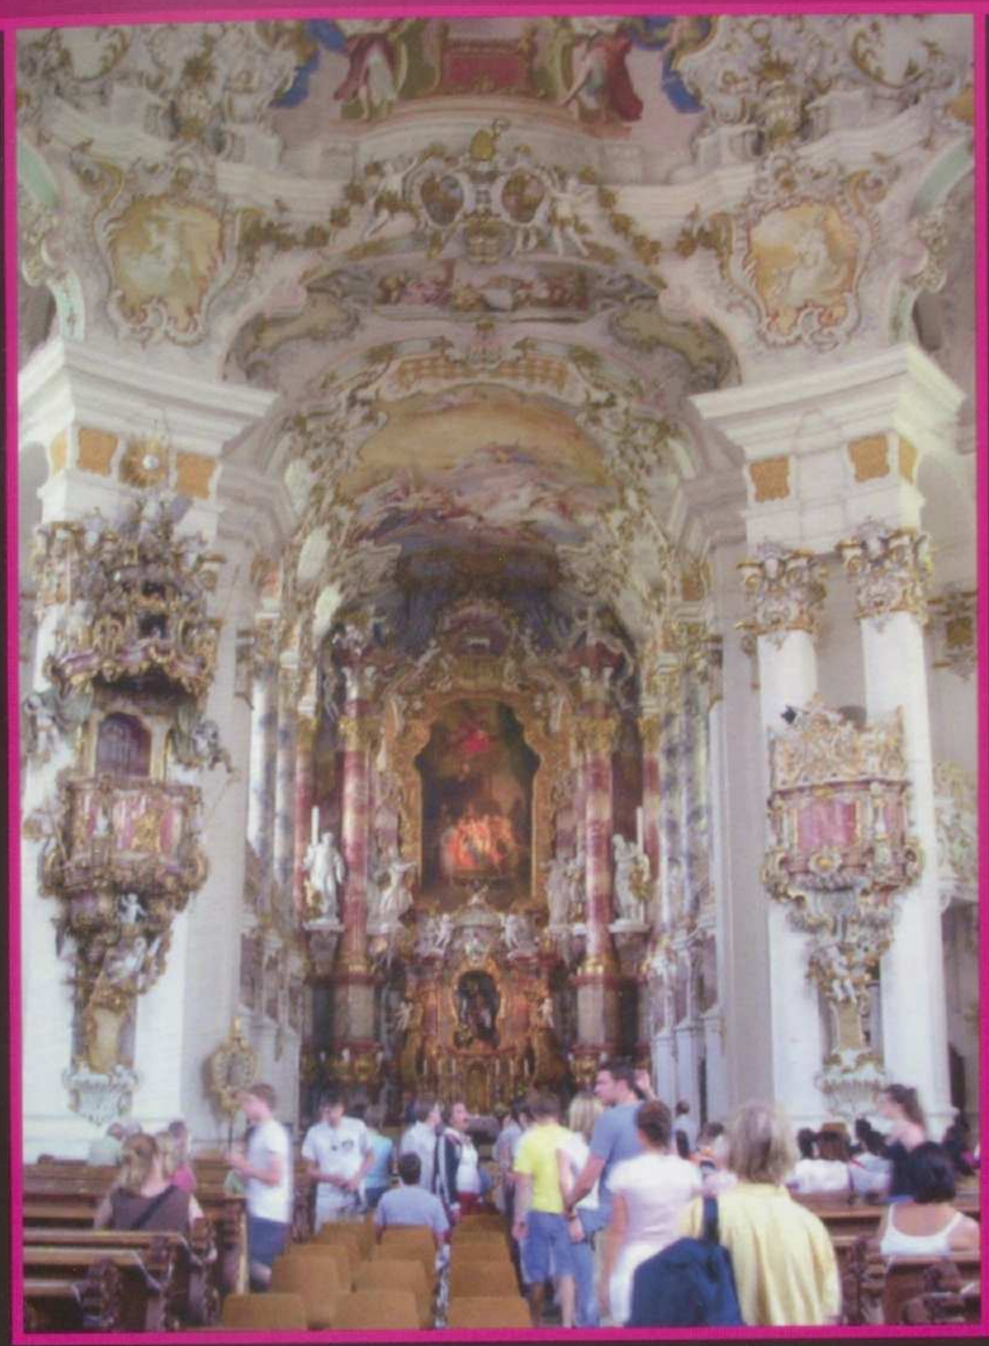
Europe Trip

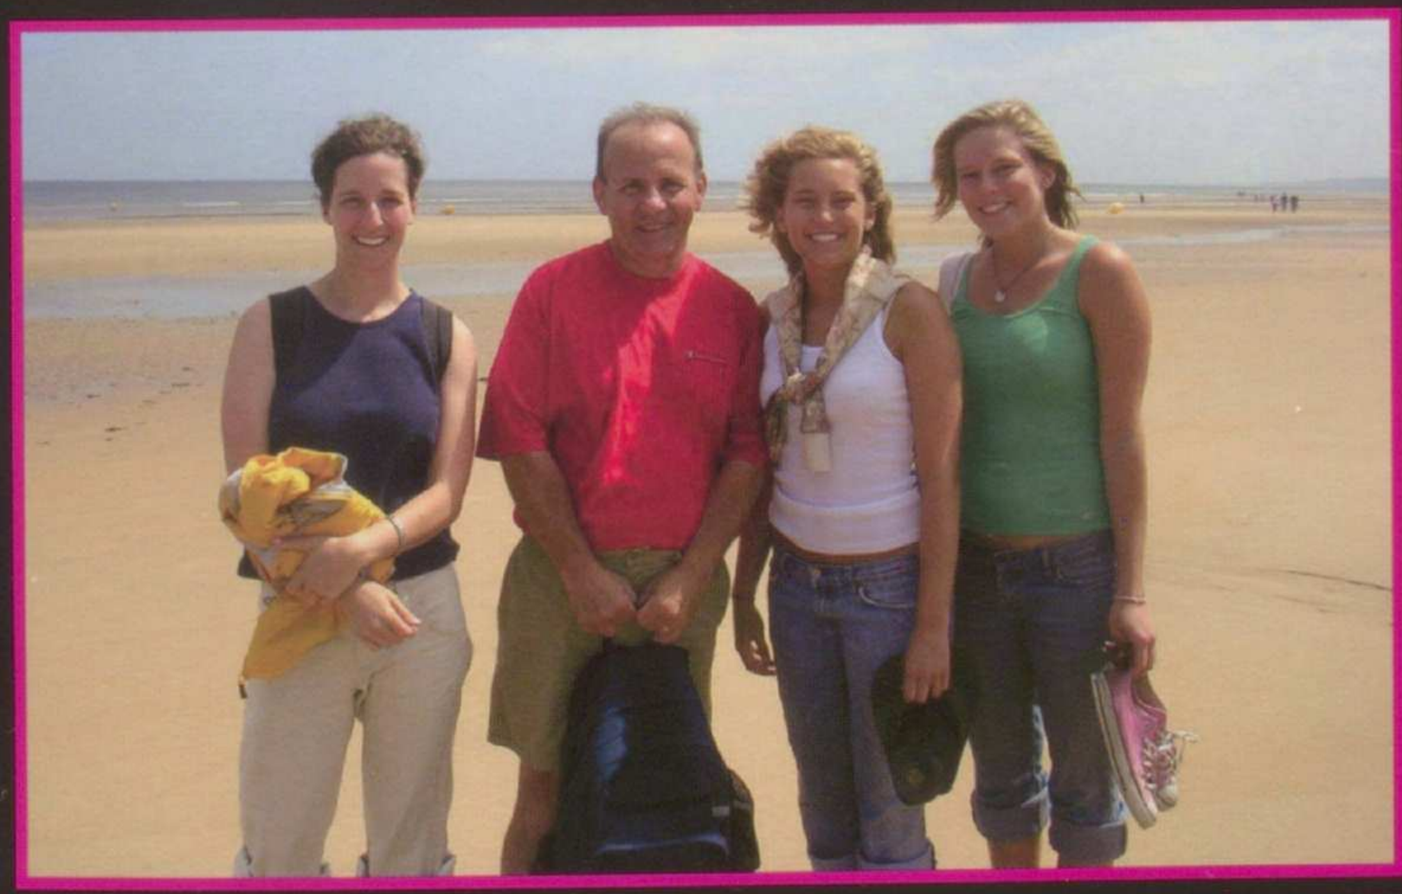
For years now Mr. Ellwood has been taking TWHS students to Europe to become immersed in the culture and history that they have been studying in the classroom. Every summer, for 26 days students travel all around Europe. No matter what history courses you've taken or who has taught you, all are welcome to go on this trip. The trip involves five different countries,; England, France, Germany, Austria, and Italy. After studying the history of these nations, students get to go and see history come alive before their very own eyes. Students begin their trip in Italy, visiting Florence, the Vatican, and of course Rome. Not to mention one or two ice cream shops. Next students head of to Austria and Germany, crossing over to France where they get to visit the beaches of Normandy, along with the moving trip to the American Cemetery in France, and then cross the English channel to their final destination, England, where students got to see Westminster Abbey and Parliament, as well as the changing of the guards. This year of course, students were in England just as the London Bombings had occurred, and although no one was in any way harmed by the event, as Maria Doyle says, "It was scary because there were so many of us and we didn't know where everyone was, even though we weren't really located too close to where the bombs had gone off." This year the trip had nearly ninety students, which is nearly triple how many usually go. Nonetheless, a good time was had by all, and students came back with fond memories of the places they'd visited and a deeper understanding and appreciation for the history they had learned.

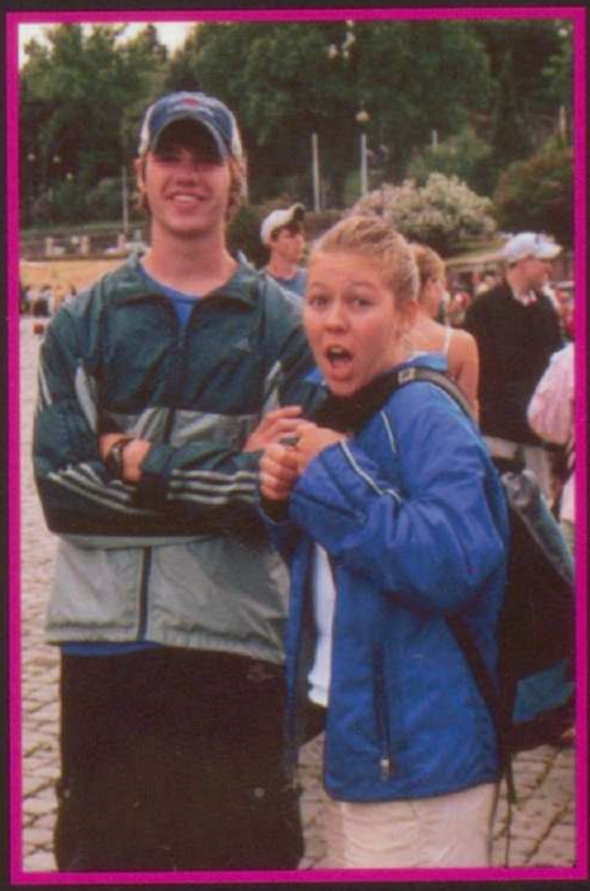
Grace Allen and Melissa Rosensteel pose for a picture with one of the "guards". Not only do students get the opportunity to visit some amazing places and get to see the history they've learned before them, but they also get to spend time with close friends.



(Left): Students and tourists alike come to Europe's Churches not only to study them and their history but are attracted to them because of the hard work put in to make them and the extreme attention to detail that makes them so beautiful.

(Below): Peter Omeara, Amanda Hutson, Melissa Rosensteel, Grace Allen, and Erin Beck stand with the beautiful scenery of Italy behind them. Students got to visit many of the locations they had learned about and read about in their history books.





(Furthest Left): Mrs. Milligan, Mr. Ellwood, Emily Focht, and Amy Chadwell all stand on the beaches of Normandy with the summer. Mr. Ellwood and Mrs. Milligan are the two teachers here at TWHS that organize and chaperone the trip.

"I think there's something stuck up his nose!" points out Carly Marsico at this old statue.

What's Your Story?

"I definitely loved all the trips to the perche-no. My favorite country to visit was Italy because my favorite era to learn about was the Renaissance and Florence was my favorite location because of the influence of the Renaissance there and all the beautiful history and art. Even though there were so many people on the trip this year, everything went very smoothly and we didn't have any trouble at all. We visited five different countries, but I think what affected people the most was our visit to the American Cemetery in France for those that died in World War II, you could tell a lot of people were very taken back by how large the cemetery was and it really hit home just how many people had died."

French Trip

Every spring break French students here at TWHS get the chance to practice their linguistic skills by taking part in a two week trip to France, after all, what better way to learn a language than to be in the country that actually speaks it and become Immersed in the culture and history as well? Students from Thomas along with students from other high schools and their French teachers take the trip together. Students spend the first week of their trip with a French family, hence they are not only surrounded by people speaking French, but they themselves must communicate back in French. During this week, the students usually get to attend school with some of the kids in the French family and get to see their daily lives, and realize they don't differ much from our own. The families students stay with usually take them sight-seeing and are often just as curious about our lives as we are about theirs. Friendships are formed, and usually students stay pen-pals with their families and keep in touch. After the first week, students spend the rest of the time with their friends traveling around and hitting all the important French landmarks and getting a big dose of French history and culture. Students come back with new experiences and new friends and find themselves much more comfortable with the language and definitly makes spending so much time learning French in school all worthwhile.

All the students who partook in the trip gained a lot from going to France. Not only did they improve their ability to speak and comprehend French as well as their comfort level with French, but they also gained new friends from the U.S.A. and from France and many memorable experiences.

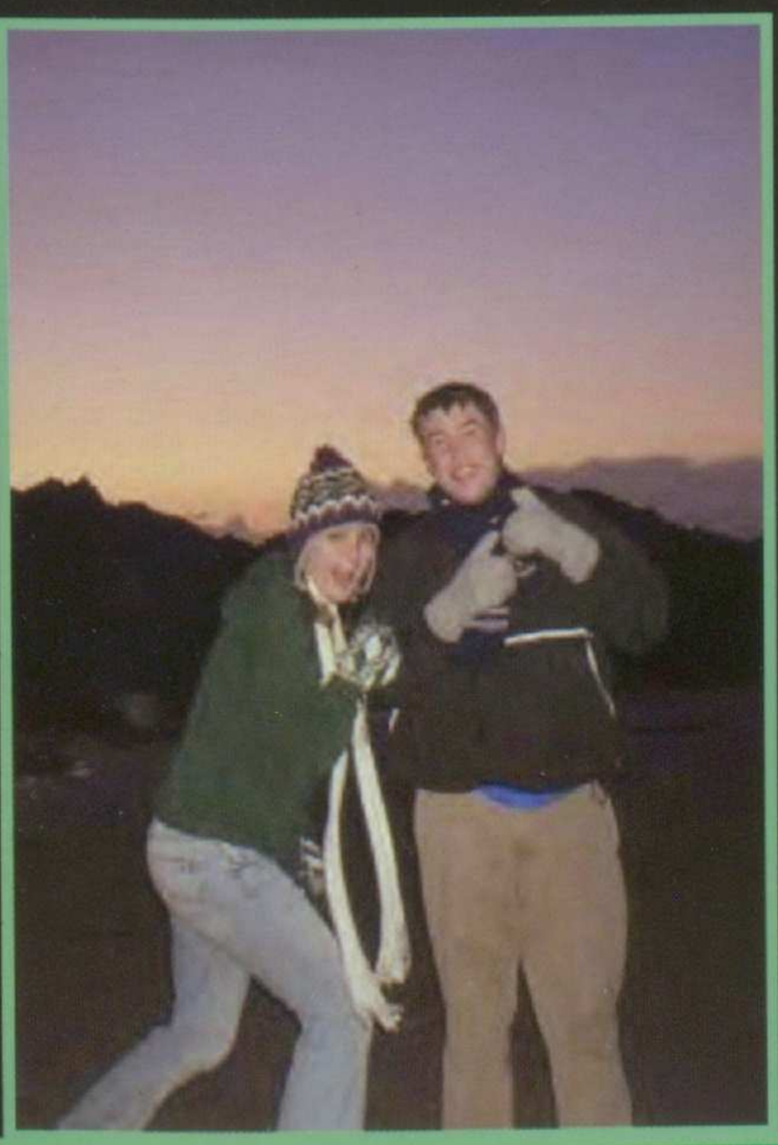
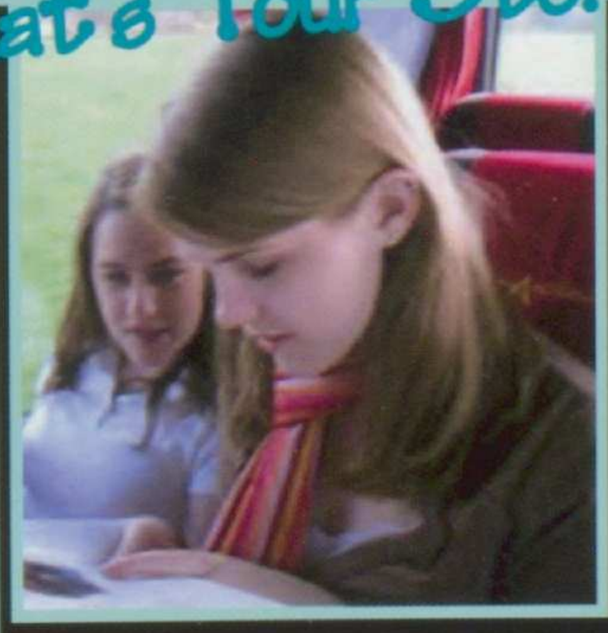
(Furthest Left): Woa....no one told me you could find a McDonalds in France, when did that happen? Erin Beck smiles happily as she finds that maybe she won't have to eat French food anymore now that she's found the internationally recognized food of choice: Hamburger.

(left): Is it just me or do these girls look like they have something their hiding?



Even in the freezing cold, Erin Beck still has enough energy to strike a funny pose with new friend Doug (who happened to be the only male on the entire trip).

What's Your Story?



"The first week in France we stayed with a French family; mine lived in a suburb just outside of Paris. I got to go to school with the kids and the family was so nice, and they took me out sightseeing and we all just did stuff together. When we went to school the kids were actually on strike, and it was interesting to compare school here to over in France because in France, high school is a lot more like college. The next week we were all back together and we got to visit so many places. My favorite location was St. Malo because it is a port city that was fortified and looks right over to the English Channel."

WFSI Virgin Islands Trip

Every Spring Break a group of students and Science teachers from TWHS travel to St. John's Island of the U.S. Virgin Islands to have an opportunity to earn science credit extracurricularly. This year Mr. Geniusz, Mrs. Geniusz and Mrs. Hummel led the expedition, which included trips to the beach, daily activities and a strenuous ten-mile hike across the island. To fulfill the academic portion for the trip, students split into groups to learn about varied topics. These topics ranged from the economic differences between St. John's and Columbus, snorkeling to study the aquatic life, and even the heart rates of the students during and after the hike. Another highlight of the trip was getting to see the ruins at the sugar mill that dated from the time when the Dutch controlled St. John's. St. John's island is the smallest of the Virgin Islands, and over fifty percent of its total area is preserved and maintained by the National Park Service. The island itself is only accessible by boat or ferry, which meant that the TWHS group had to fly in on another island and travel by water to their final destination, but it was worth it for the tropical vacation!

(L to R) Olivia Noble, Jessie Davis, Sarah Burkett, Mr. Geniusz, Arielle Juberg, Josh House, Max Jasiewicz, and Charles Lasky take time out in their exploration of a historical site built in the early 1700's, the Annaberg Sugar Plantation, on St. John's island to take a group photo. The island is known for its many historic locations and remnants that remain from centuries ago, and includes Pre-Colombian Amerindian civilization relics.

What's Your Story?

"During the trip we stayed at a camp site. Every morning Mrs. Hummel liked to jog on the beach. One day a man approached her and wildly started talking about his life. In thirty seconds she learned that he had multiple ex-wives, many children in different states, and a colorful past. He kept following her around, and she only lost him by retreating to the bathroom. Other members of our group later saw him talking to a chicken. When we returned from our day, we found out that he had been taken by the Department of the Interior officials. From that day on we teased Mrs. Hummel about her crazy guy stalker."

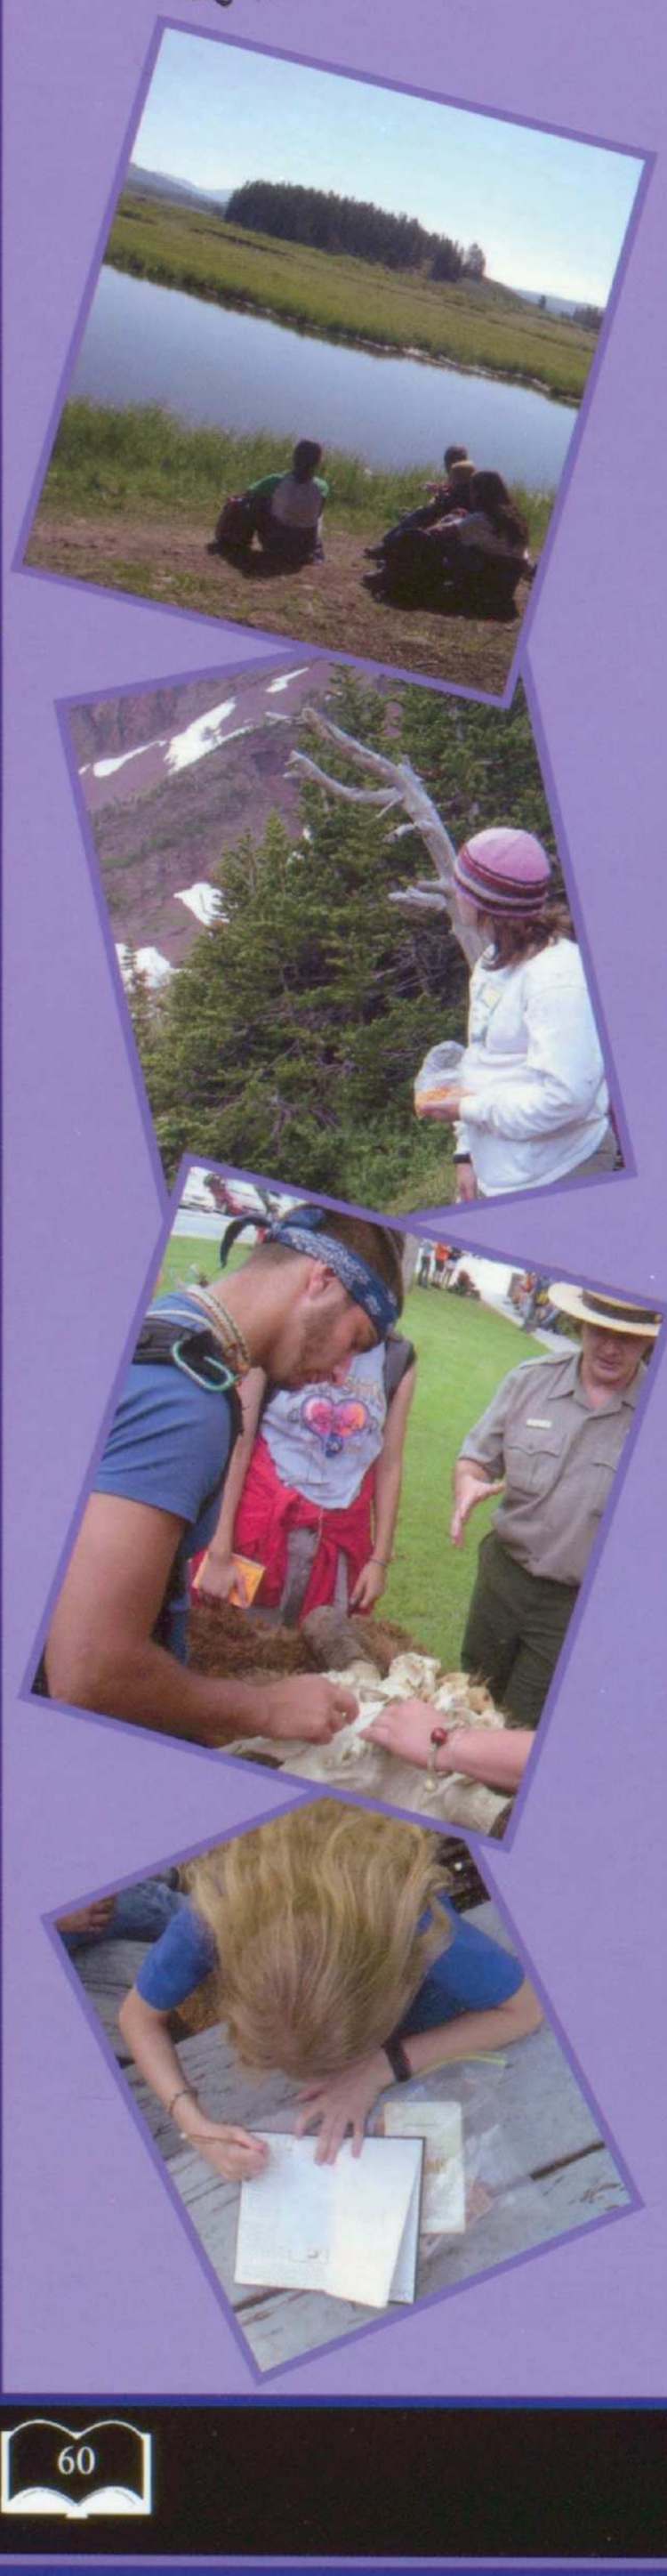
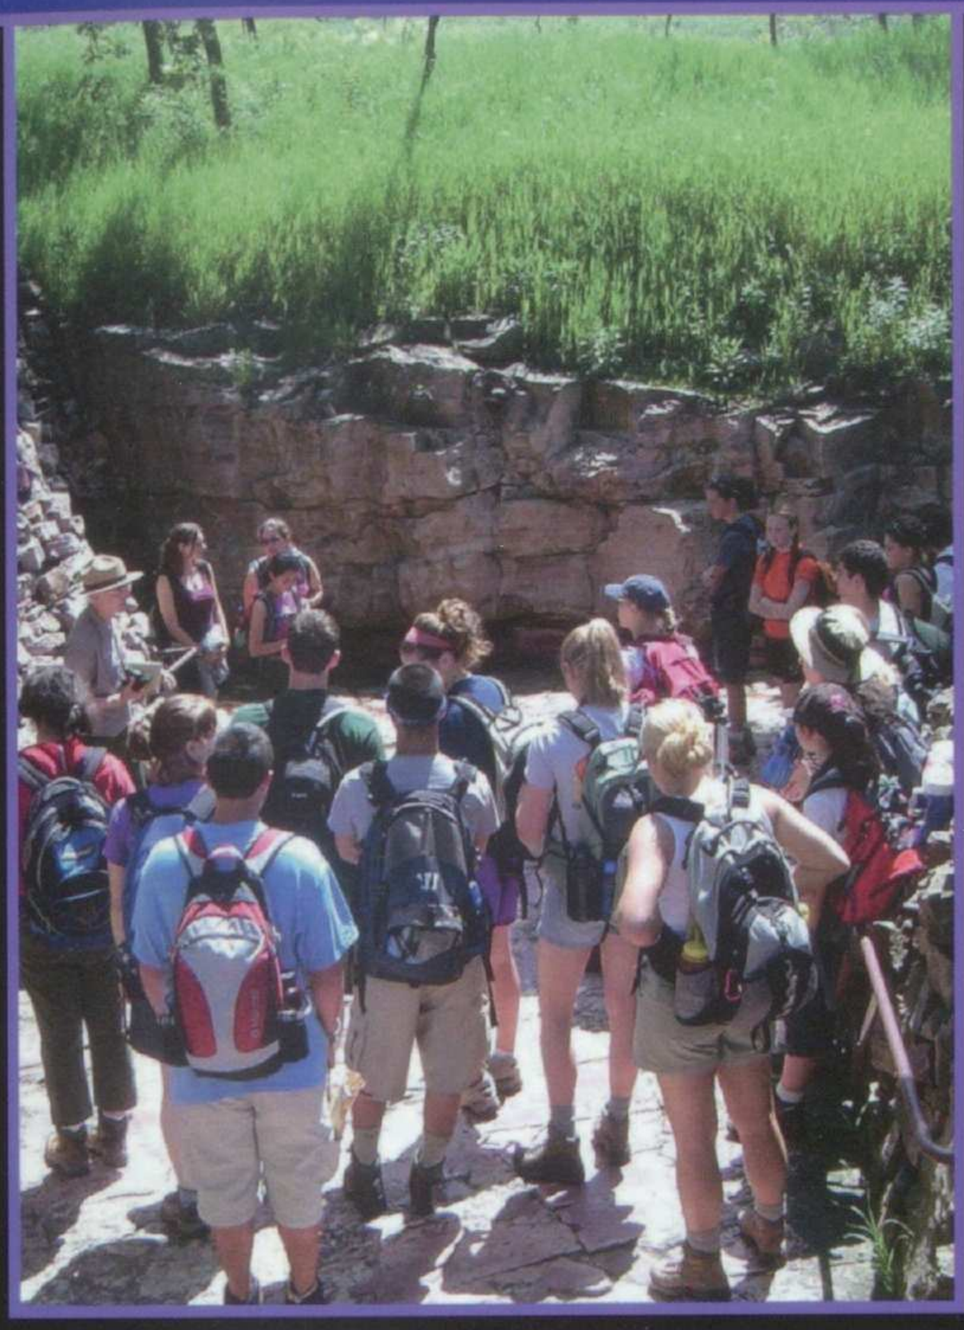
WFSI West Trip

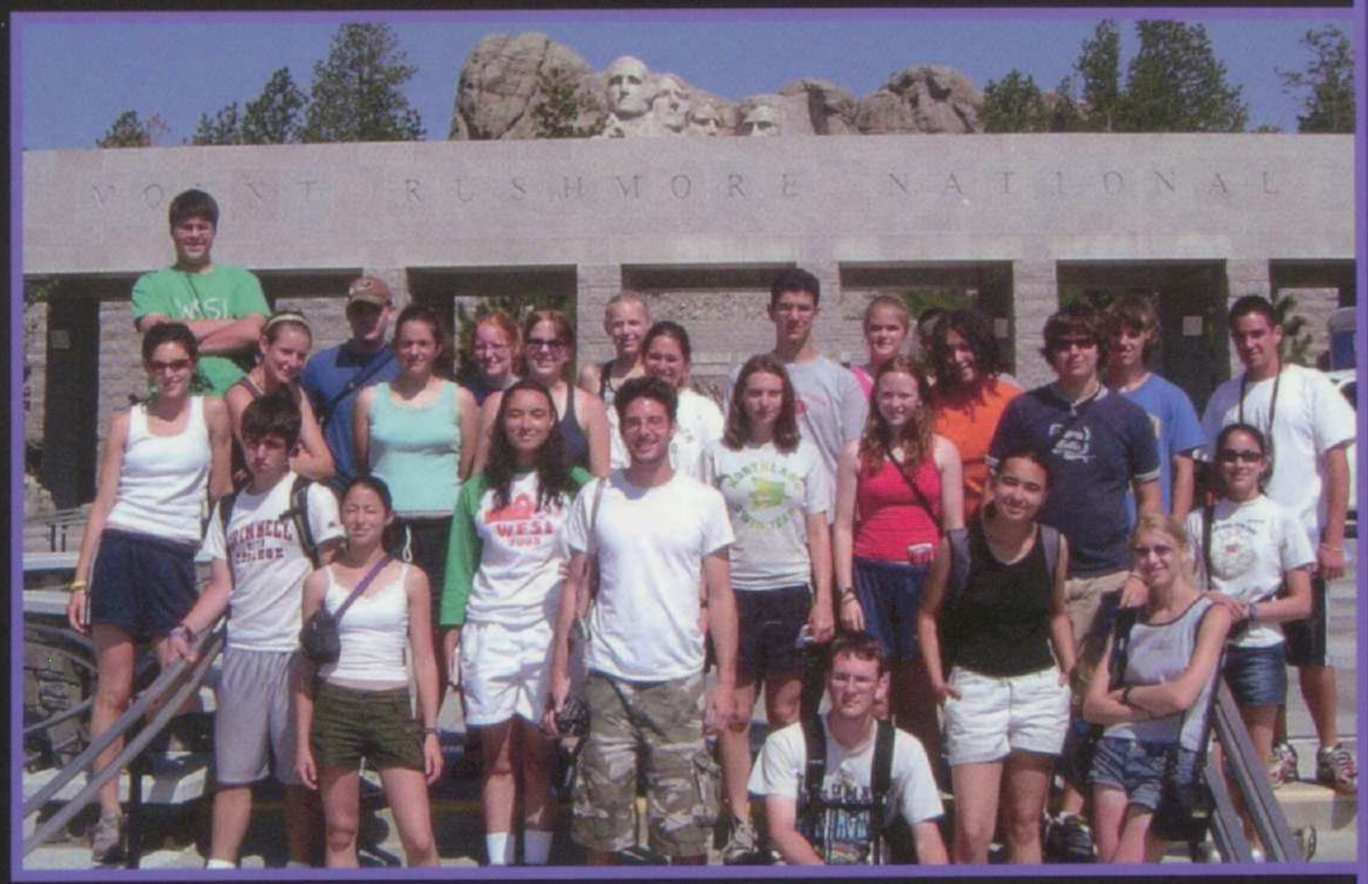
This year, TWHS students had the amazing opportunity to sign up for a trip out west. This trip lasted for thirty days of their summer vacation. This may seem like a lot of time to the average high school student, but these campers would not trade this experience for the world! During this month of hiking and nature fun, many new friendships were formed and experiences were had. Even though the trip was also a class, the members still had a great time along the way. What a fun alternative to regular classes and school! To anyone who is interested, you should not give up this opportunity; it's once in a lifetime.



Below, Amanda Arnold leads her crew of friends up the side of the mountain. The members of the WFSI trip went on daily hikes or nature walks through the wild west. Often, they went to National Parks,. Since the trip is counted for a science credit, the students had to keep daily journals about the National Parks and about other science related things that they encountered along the way. Even though the trip was incredibly fun, it was also a lot of hard work, physically and mentally.

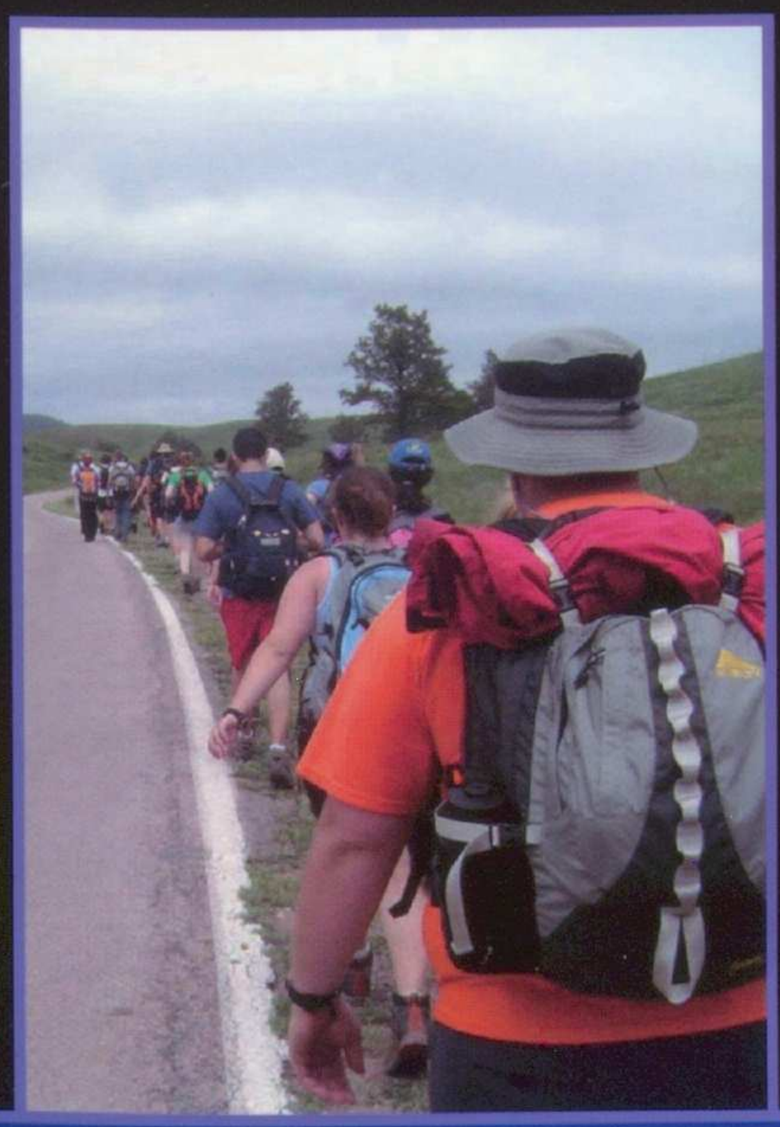


The following students from TWHS went on the WFSI trip: Charlie Adelson, Clara Alden-Coe, David Allison, Amanda Arnold, Amira Choueiki, Angela Cleary, Josh Coats, Leah Itagaki, Sarai Itagaki, Natalie Kirk, Valarie Kirk, Ryan Lepper, Sarah Magnuson, Aaron Paplaczyk, Justin Rike, Lauren Sommer, Michael Sylvester, Lauren Turner, and Theresa Zumwinkel.



If some of the faces in these pictures do not look familiar, it is because kids from schools all over central Ohio went too. This trip was a really great time for kids to bond with people that they would not have met otherwise.

WFSI members stand on a the edge of a cliff and smile for the camera. It is sure easy to tell that they have become close; after all, they did spend a whole month together.



Throughout the students' time in the West, they really built up an endurance to hiking. Many students even mentioned getting into better shape; however, that was not the main goal of the trip. It is evident from this photo. The science students sure did a lot of walking.

What's Your Story?

"One day, we were driving to Wind Cave National Park via the freeway. Anyway, when we arrived, we saw that our food van that followed the buses wasn't coming. We had to wait for five hours without food. It was really hot too. The food van finally got there, by pick up truck! Our cook climbed out of the pickup truck holding a huge chunk of tire. He was so red, the color of a lobster, from being outside so long. We all laugh about it now, even though it was not so funny at the time."

Cardinal Pride Day

Freshmen Nate Holcomb and Zach Miller have never had this much gardening to do! Look at those muscles as they transport some new plants.

Smelly, dirty, and messy, there's definitely nothing enjoyable about garbage. However, despite the fact that they spent the whole day picking up trash, freshmen Jackie Paplaczyk and Kyle Carey remain all smiles.

Doing yard work in the heat can be a tiring task, but it doesn't seem to faze these boys. It's difficult to tell whether they are just working hard or looking for gold. One things for sure, they are doing a fantastic job!

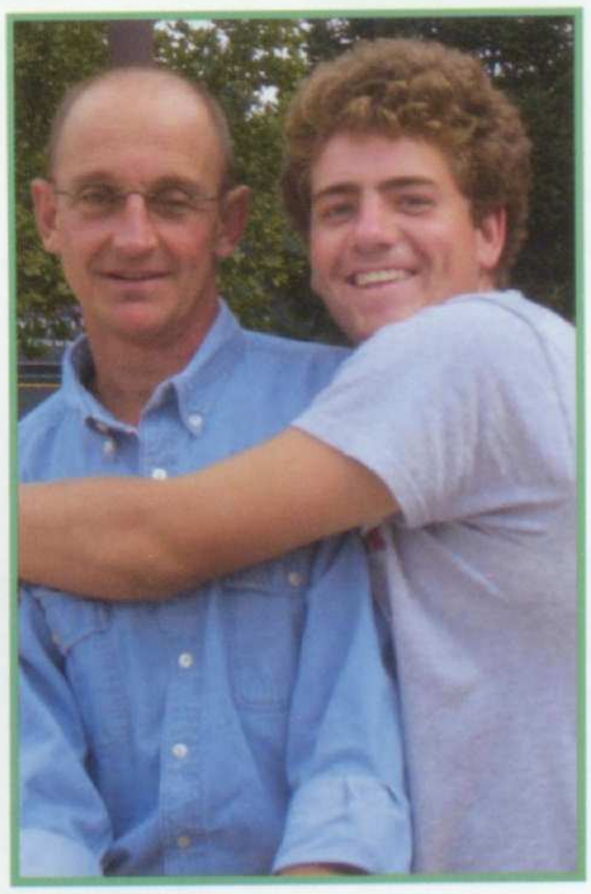
At the start of each school year, the new freshman class devotes an entire day to making our school's campus look brand new. The day started like any other Friday, but that quickly changed when the Student Athletic Leadership Board hosted a pep rally to get the student body motivated. After relay races and introductions to most of the fall sports teams, the freshmen geared up to start painting, picking up trash, and planting new trees. Along with the class of 2009, numerous upperclassmen, teachers, and parents also volunteered their time and efforts in hopes of making a difference at TWHS. "The kids always do an amazing job, but this year was definitely one of the best," said teacher Jan Fish.

Freshman Courtney Reeder seems pretty happy about making our school look brand new!

Mr. Lichtenberg gets his group of enthusiastic students to take a break from yardwork and show off their pearly whites.

This freshman gang huddles around as a parent volunteer gives instructions on how to properly plant the new shrubbery.

Making our bike rack look as good as new, these students are a shining example of dedicated Cardinals.

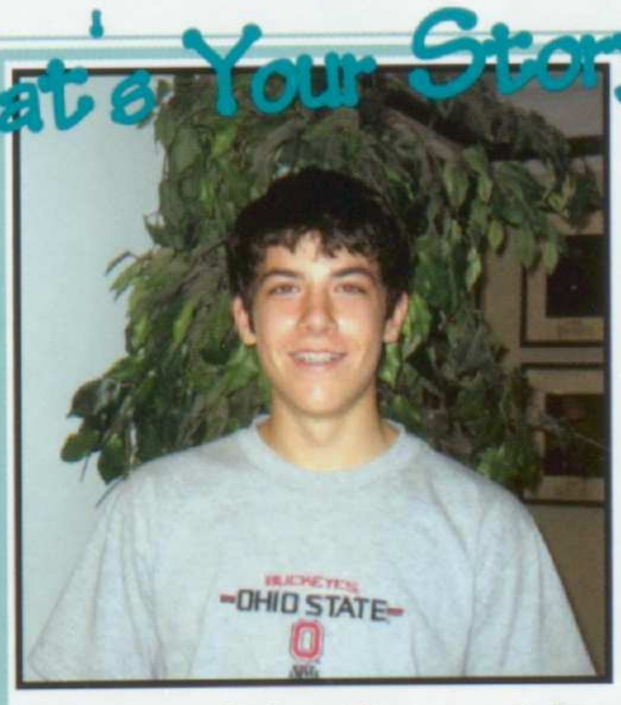


The freshmen load up on everything from gardening tools to lawn fertilizer in order to begin their day in the sun prettying the school.

Coach Krauss and senior Stew Jamieson share a sentimental moment, most likely brought on by the excitement of being part of Cardinal Pride Day.

Mrs. McCabe and her Cardinal Pride Day girls take a moment to prove how happy they are to be in Cardinal Country.

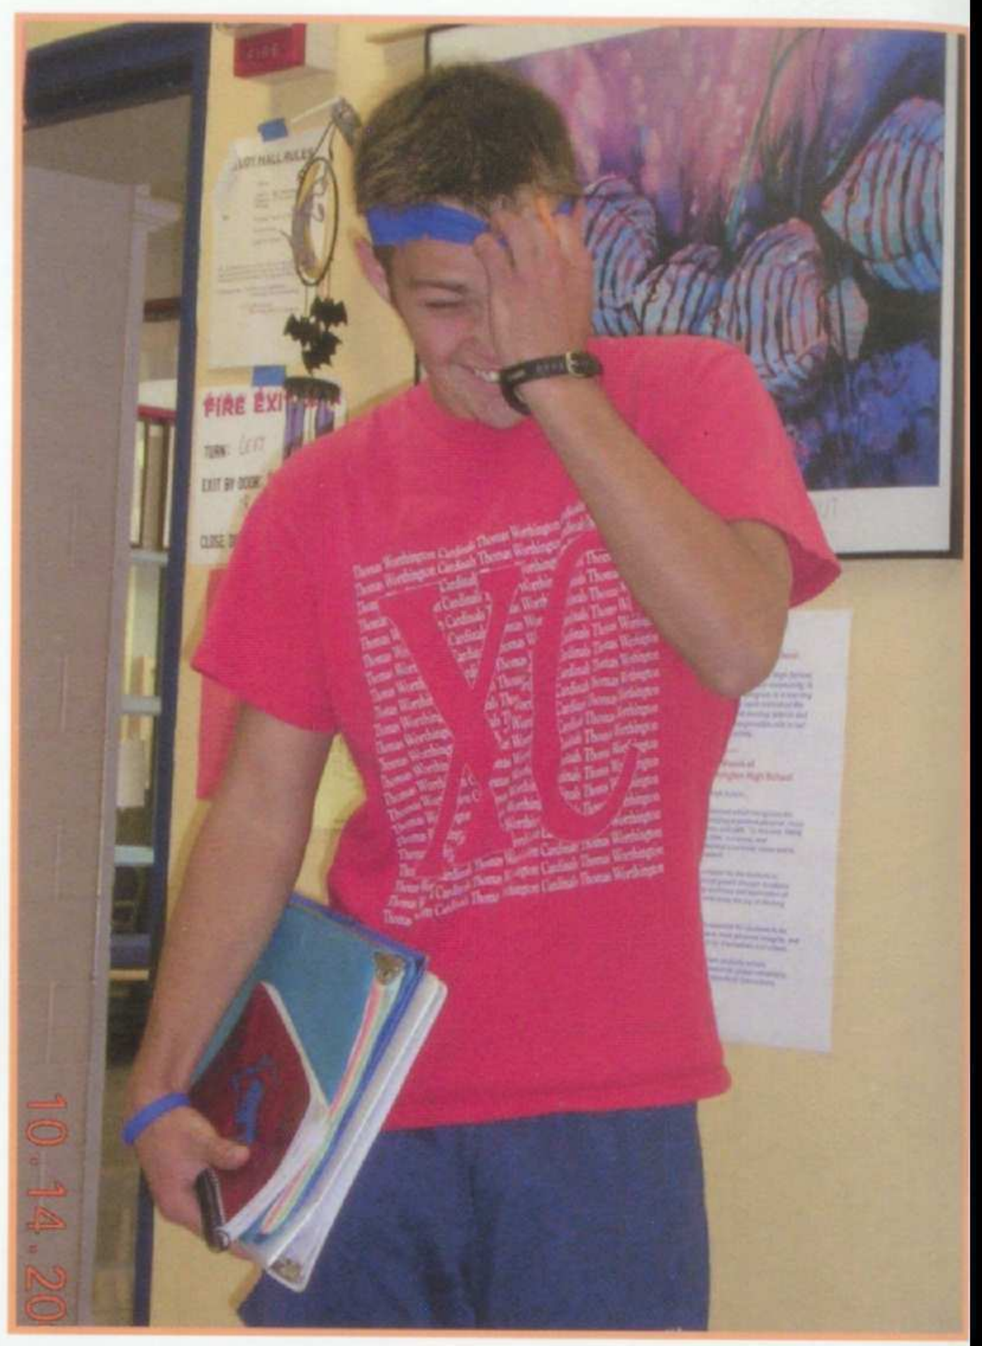
What's Your Story?



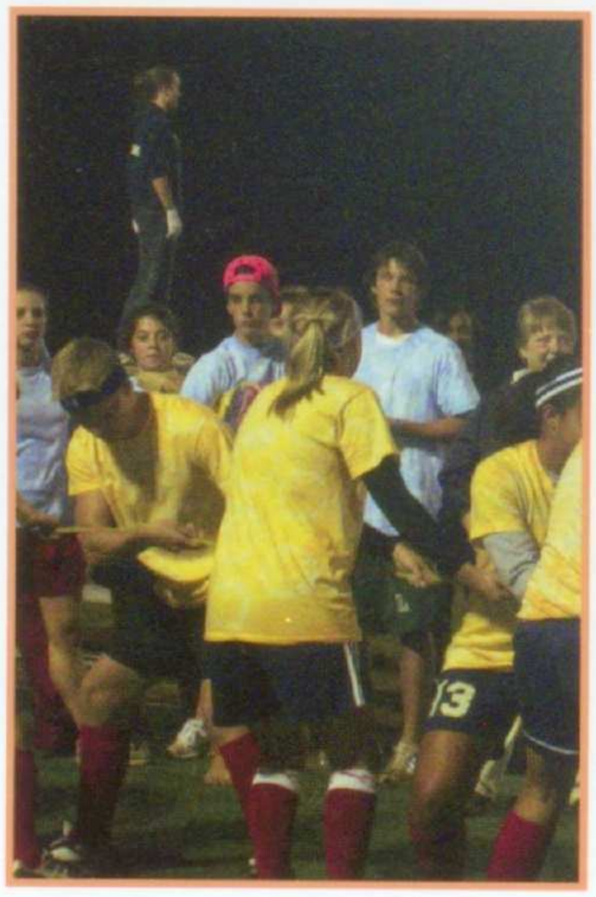
"I was excited to get a day off classes and lucky enough to have one of the best jobs. Some kids had to pick up trash and shovel dirt. Meanwhile, I got to paint, which is fun compared to pulling weeds. I wasn't expecting to learn how to do something new. But if anyone needs a painter, you know who to call. The only thing I had to worry about was getting paint all over my clothes. Fortunately I managed to stay clean and jumping in the pool after a day of work has never felt so good. Oh yeah, and the free food was amazing!" - Freshman, Brad Lucas

This group of senior guys is all smiles as they sit and enjoy the spirit games and marching band at TWHS's homecoming tradition, the Bonfire.

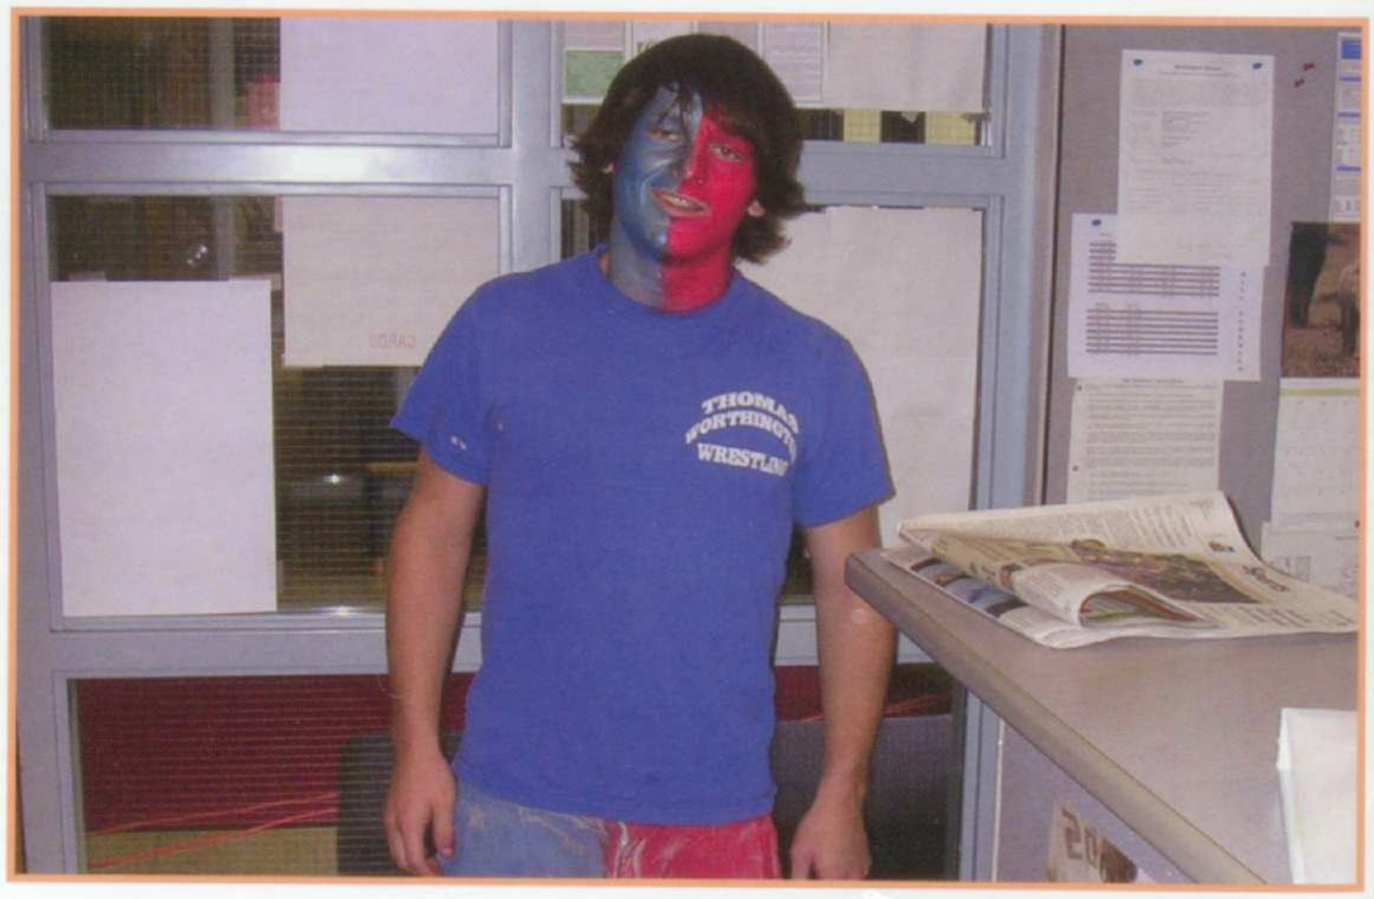
Are you embarrassed to show your school spirit Will Maetzold? Don't worry, the red cross country shirt and blue shorts represent the Cardinals fabulously!



Over the years, the spirit games have become the most notorious event at the bonfire. In 2005 the senior team had fun battling the freshmen team in an old fashioned game of tug-of-war.



Senior Nathan Dalton was sure to show his school spirit in more than one way. Besides painting his face on both sides, he also painted his pants to represent Cardinal colors.

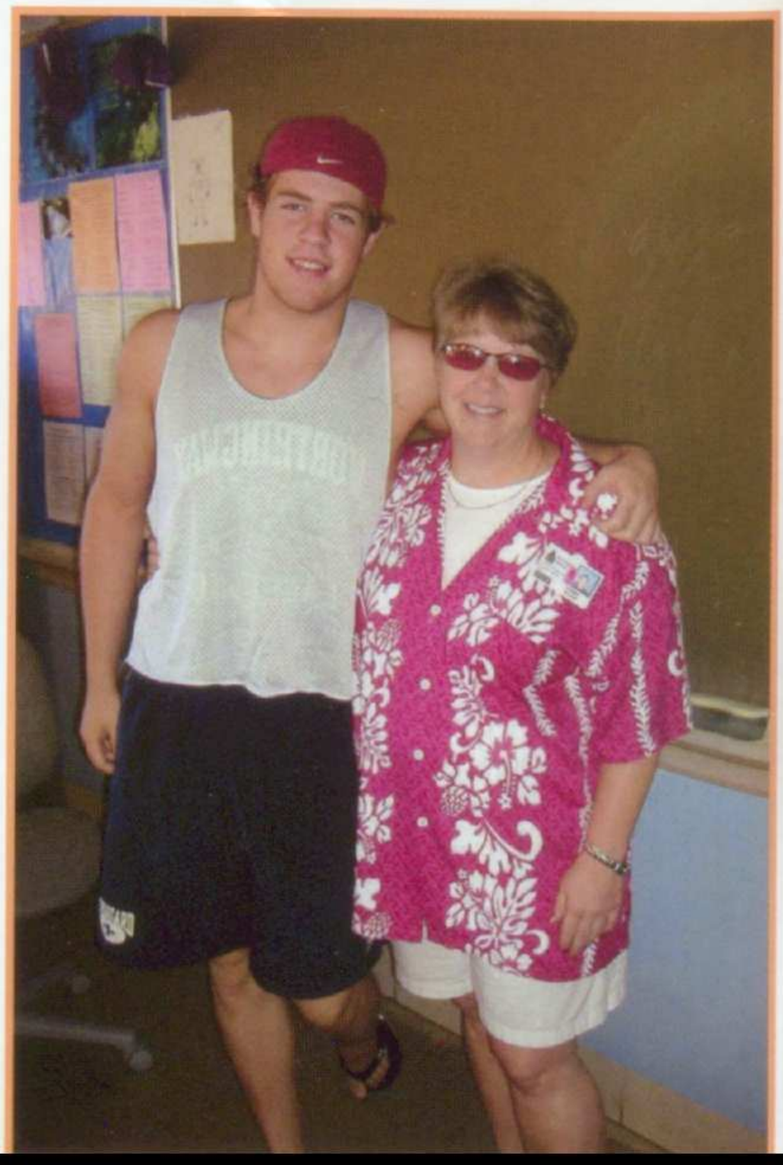


What's Your Story?

"For spirit week my favorite day to dress up for was beach day. I thought it would have been the best day to wear the craziest beach outfit. I dressed in a Hollister t-shirt that had a beach scene on the front and back. I wore my hair like I would for a day at the beach. Getting ready was so much fun, but once I stepped outside it did not feel like I was at the beach. The second I stepped outside my legs froze off it was so cold out. Of course beach day would be the one cold day of spirit week. Even though it was freezing, it was still my favorite day of spirit week."

-Jessica Martina, Sophomore

These two beach bums look laid-back and relaxed as they smile for a quick picture. "If only we were really on the beach instead of in Ohio," says senior Craig Blocher. "We're definitely in need of a vacation," agrees TWHS teacher Joanne Alsop.



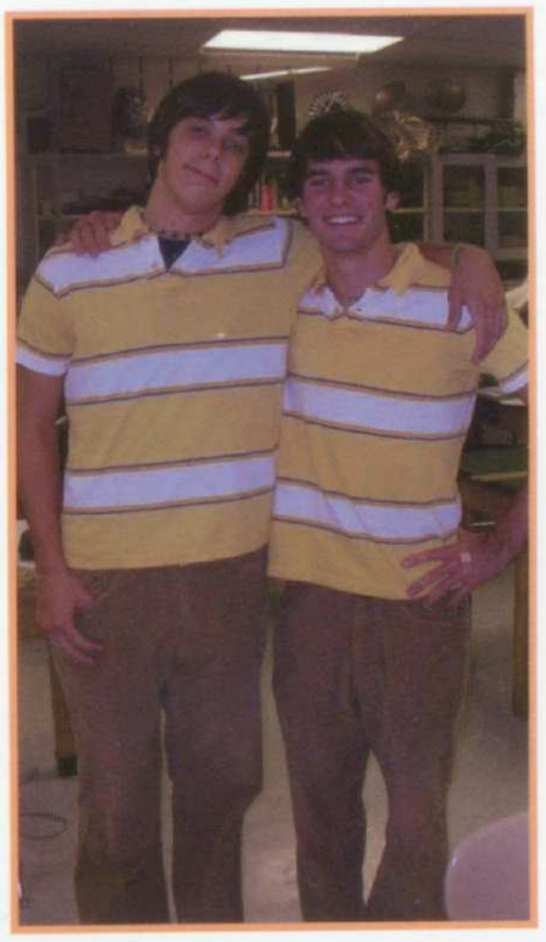
Spirit Week and Bonfire

Senior Nick Anderson gives a thumbs-up for beach day as he gets ready to catch some waves.

Along with beautiful dresses and tailored suits, there's a whole week before homecoming of fun filled days. The week before homecoming has been known for many years as Spirit Week. This year's themes for Spirit Week were PJ Day, Twin Day, Fiesta Day, Beach Day, and Spirit Day. Each day of Spirit Week students and faculty of TWHS wore the craziest outfits that they could put together to fit each day's theme. On the Wednesday night of Spirit Week the Bonfire, a TWHS school tradition, is held where the student body and faculty enjoy the always entertaining Spirit Games. Along with the Spirit Games, the senior homecoming queen, Jessica Jackel, and her court were announced while many enjoyed the music of the TWHS marching band.

Acting a little frightened, senior Shane Fleming looks to Uncle Sam for some good advice on Fiesta Day. His advice? Grab your sombrero and poncho and join in on the fun! It looks like Shane had no problem fitting in.

Along with the other homecoming attendants, junior Ashley Payne had a good time collecting money for United Way.



Just being best friends isn't enough for these two guys. Seniors Nick Brown and Jordan Leather were all set to dress up as twins for twin day. Luckily for us, they make a pretty cute set of brothers.

Added to the Havana Nights theme, art teacher Mrs. Thompson dressed up as a festive salsa dancer. However she wasn't up to showing us her cha cha moves. She was too busy teaching so we could only catch her with a fabulous salsa pose!

Havanna Nights Homecoming 2005

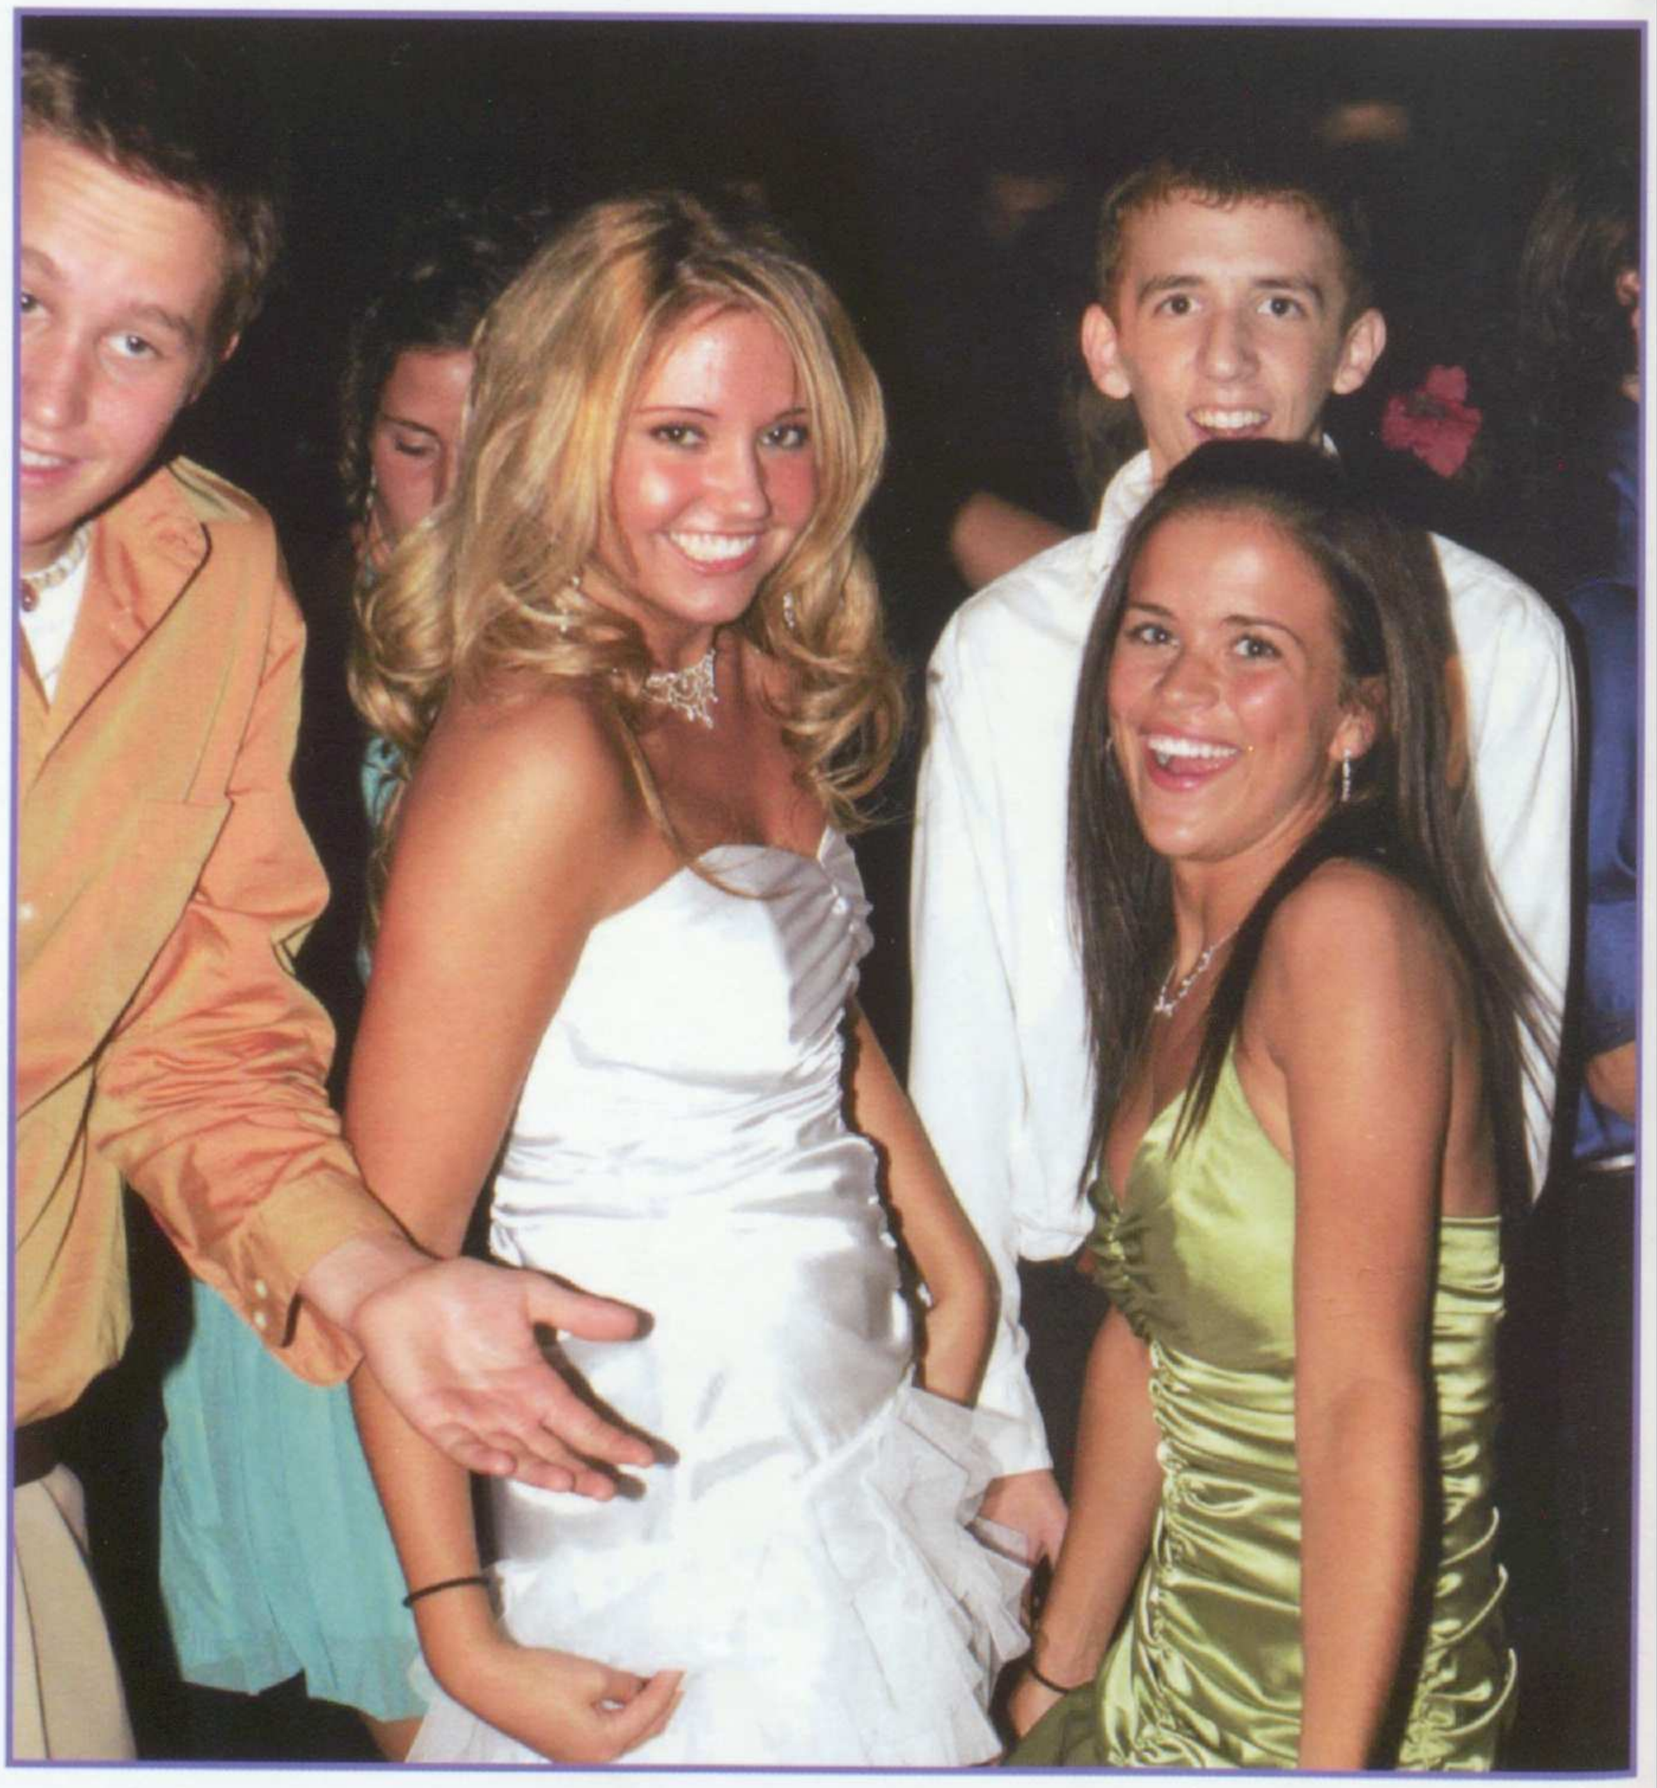
The first big dance of the year is nothing short of magical. Students prepared for weeks to ensure that their Havana Homecoming was one to remember. Junior Lindsay Watts said, "I was ready weeks ahead, so when the big day finally came, I just threw on my dress and went!" This year's homecoming dance proved to be the perfect end to a truly remarkable week of fun-filled festivities and an array of school spirit. Student Council transformed the gym lobby into a beautiful Havanna night, complete with a red carpet, flowers, and an authentic mariachi band. At 10:30 P.M., the '05 Homecoming Queen, Jessica Jackel, followed her court to the front of the student body to be recognized. It was an unforgettable evening as freshmen experienced their first dance and seniors made memories to last a lifetime as they experienced their last homecoming.

Nothing brings more Latin flavor to a Havanna Homecoming than an authentic Mariachi band.

Freshman Brad Taylor and sophomore Whitney Stover are more than excited to show off the new dance moves that they have been practicing for weeks.

After a fun-filled night of dancing, it's common for anyone to be tired, but juniors Luke Pineyard and Jake Shafer give new meaning to the word exhausted. "I need water," gasps Luke. "Can you carry me to the car? My leg hurts!," says junior Jake Shafer in return.

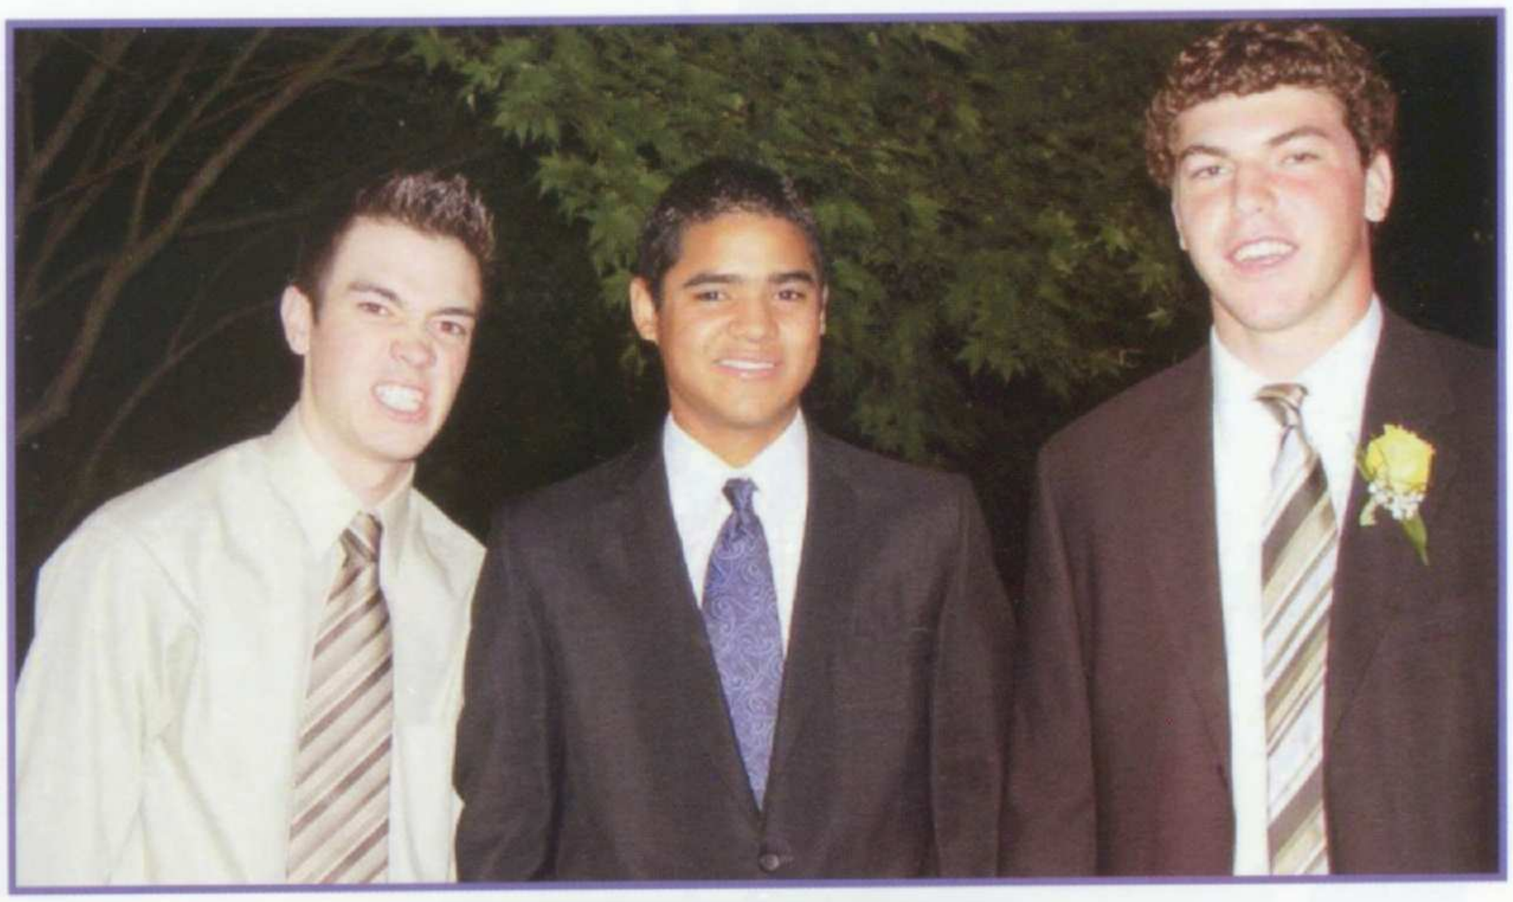
Smiling ear to ear these two love birds are enjoying their night together. Beauty comes in many forms, and senior Tommy Croft realizes he is one lucky guy this evening. Escorting a beautiful girl like Lori Jacobson is an experience many guys would love to have.

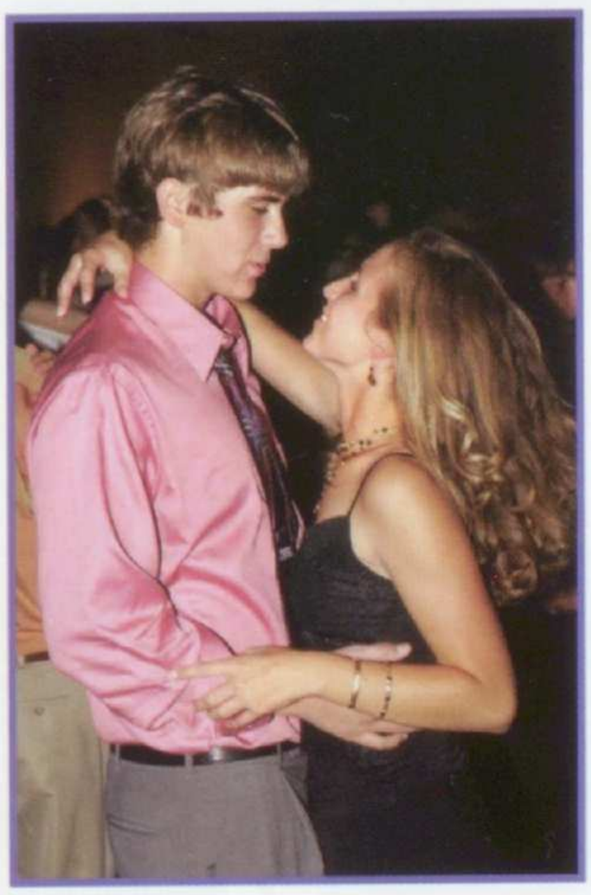


These junior girls, Molly Baird and Kelly Meyers, are having a blast and laughing a lot as junior studs, David Jacob and Reagan Rundio dance around them.

Having a blast is what dances are all about. Freshmen Emily Shiebeck and Bailey Cooper give new meaning to the term "twist and shout," as they dance their hearts out.

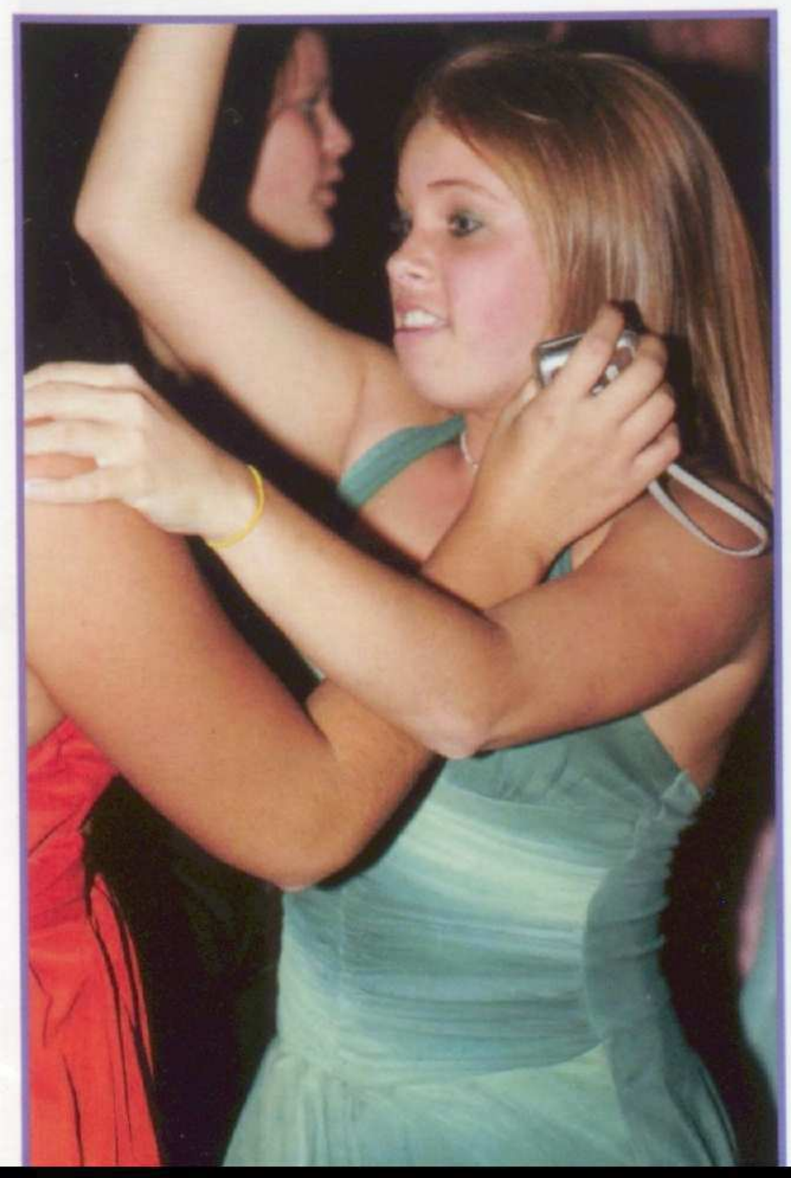
Brett Hayes, German Gonzalez, and Adam Metz look so handsome as they prove that senior boys are indeed capable of cleaning up, or at least dressing up, as sophisticated men for an evening.





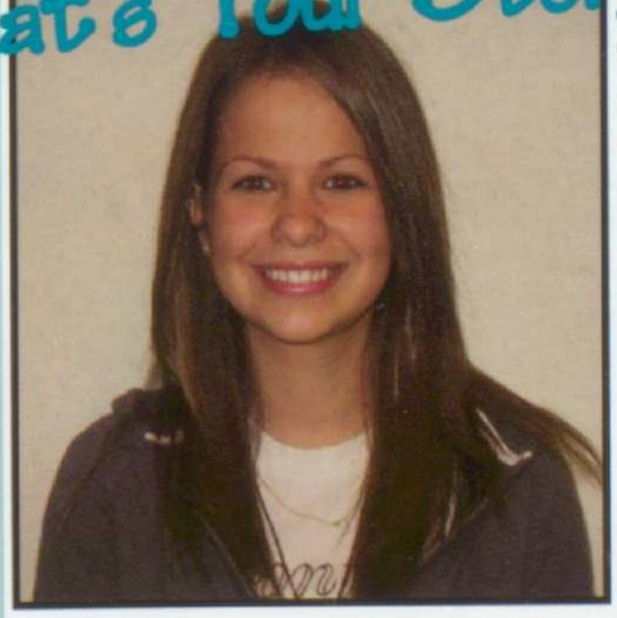
The '05 Homecoming Court, Morgan Lee, Lauren Strohl, Jessica Jackel, Christine Barren, and Rachel Breen, look stunning as they smile for their big moment.

Senior Bethany Keller and her guest are too busy getting lost in each other's eyes to notice that their picture is being taken. It's plain to see that love is in the air..



"I came here to dance til' I drop!," exclaims senior Kristin Oswald as she enjoys the variety of music and energetic theme of this year's homecoming.

What's Your Story?



"Being crowned Homecoming Queen was definitely one fo the highlights of my school career. It was such an honor because all of the other nominees were such great girls. On the night of the bonfire I lost my lucky cross necklace on the football field. So you'd believe my surprise when I was crowned the queen without it. The next day I was on my hands and knees before the football game looking for it. I was really bummed when I couldn't find it, but just my luck it showed up two days later in my bed."

- Senior. Jessica Jackel

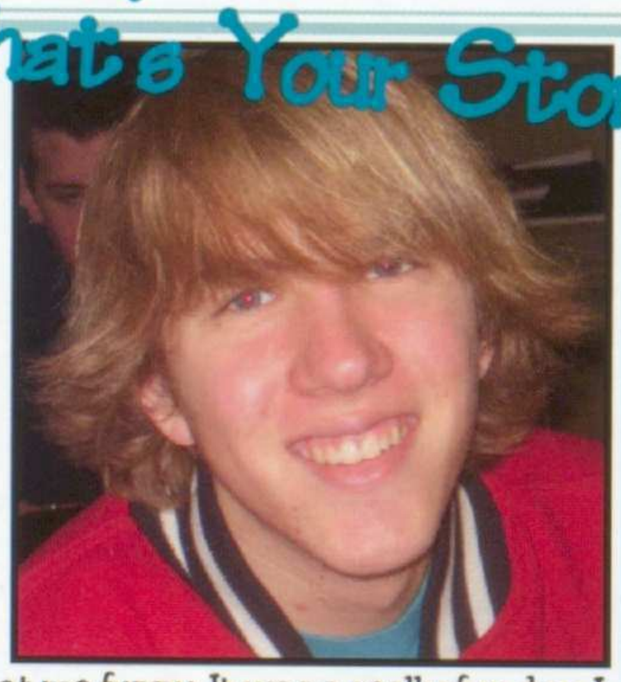
Mrs. Reeb is unrecognizable as Dorothy. She and Toto look very adorable with their friend, Valerie Kirk who looks very "KISSed" out.

Lauren Heironimus and Alison Keplar enjoyed dressing up on Miss America Pagaent day. Lauren went as Miss Connecticut and Alison went as Miss Florida. These girls are not only beautiful but smart, perfect contestants for Miss America!

Watch out! Senior Judd Noel will set you straight if you step out of line. His face paint matches his camouflage suit perfectly.

Seniors Kristin Oswald and Katie Korpieski look like they're having fun on Halloween. " Yay for Miss Hawaii!" smiles Kristin. "I play it cool..." says Miss South Dakota, Katie Korpeski.

What's Your Story?



"During my freshman year at Halloween, I saw all of the senior guys in dresses and I couldn't wait to do it myself and wear a dress. When the day finally arrived senior year, I bought a dress at Second Impressions because they give special deals to seniors. When I came to school, the people who knew me just laughed and thought, "Oh that's typical Ryan Love," but other students looked at me funny. It was a really fun day, I almost wish I would have shaved my legs for the occasion. The real joy was what I was wearing underneath the dress!"

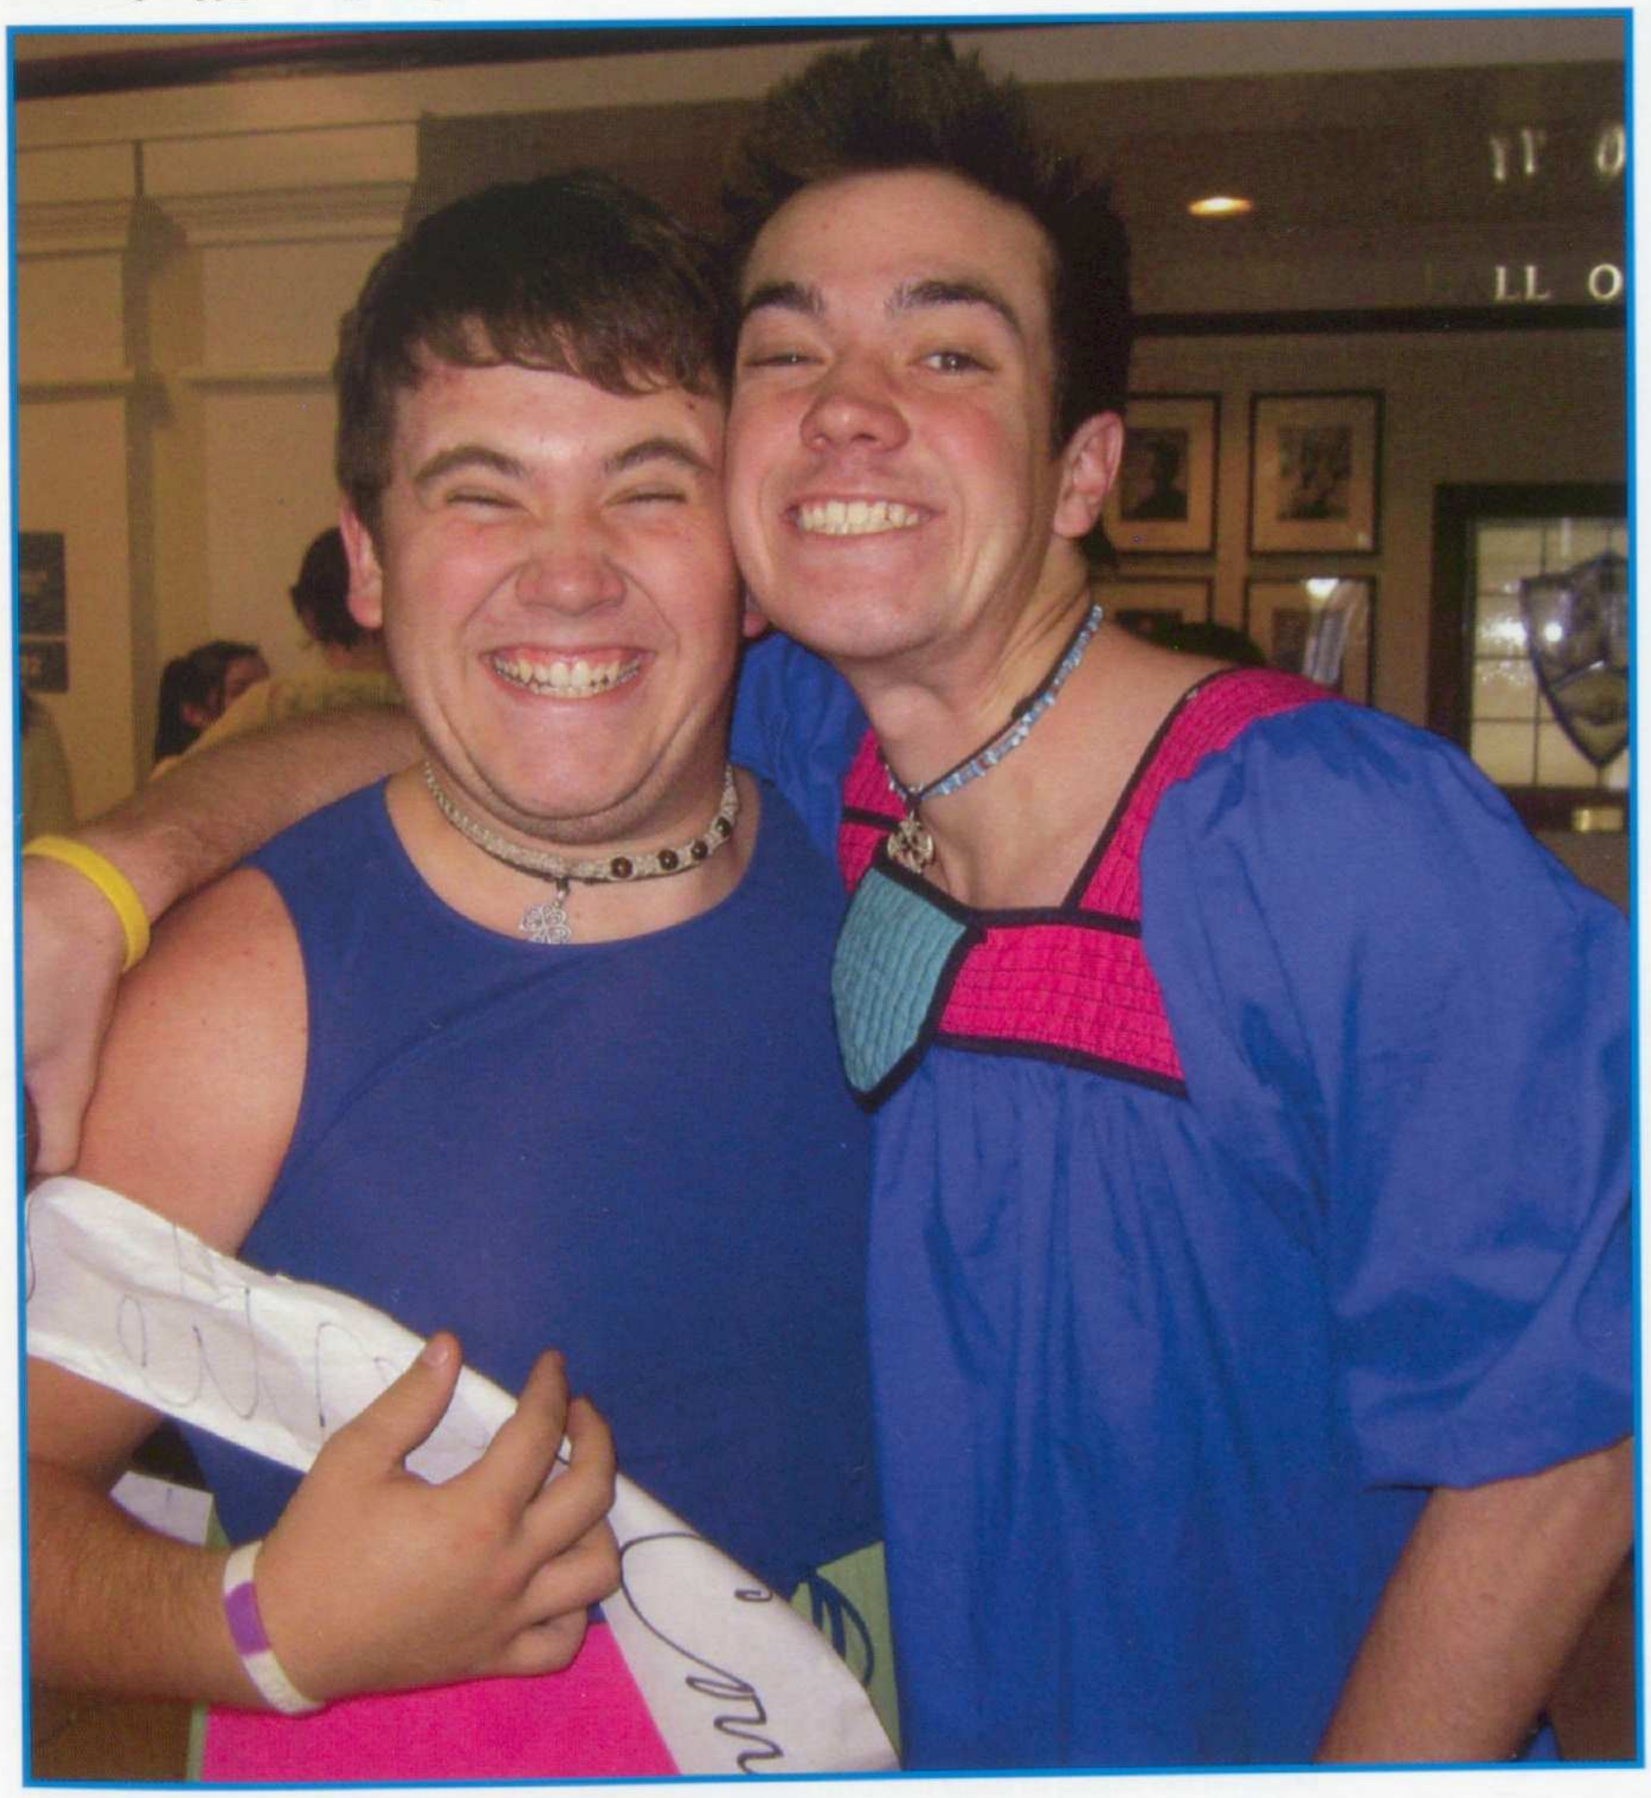
-Ryan Love, Senior

Seniors Joy Peterson, Hannah Risher, and Jessica Jackel look very glamorous with their big hair and beautiful lacy dresses! The look on Miss Ohio is a priceless one.

Halloween

Seniors Carolyn Nesline, John Bernard, Nick Helser, Carly Marsico, and Mary Pelphrey look very happy to be posing in their dresses!

The Friday closest to October 31st is a fun-filled day for the Cardinals. It's the one day of the year students are allowed to dress up as anyone they choose. Even the teachers like to join in on the fun, dressing up as well. Senior students get the chance to participate in the "State Beauty Pagent". Two students can dress up per state and wear funky dresses and sashes all day long. Most girls dress appropriately for their state. For example, Miss Texas wears cowboy boots and Miss Hawaii wears a nice floral print. 80's style dresses are always the most popular choice as well. It's not just for the girls, either. The boys are also included, with titles ranging from Miss-Understood to Miss-Conduct. Everyone always gets a kick from seeing those older senior boys in dresses!



"Look at my pretty dress!" exclaimed Senior Brett Hayes. "Hey! mine is just as cute!" senior Andrew Wilcox replied. It looks like these two boys enjoyed wearing dresses all day very much.

"Yah dude. I've got my Harley Davidson waiting by the front door." Mr. Hutsko looks styling with his mohawk, tattoo and spike choker. He makes a very good punk/biker man!

These guys look quite dressed for the occasion. Jesus seems sort of scared to be posing with the warrior.

This group of lovely ladies look like they're having a fun time with the pope, Bijan! Any guy would be ecstatic to be surrounded by all these gorgeous girls!

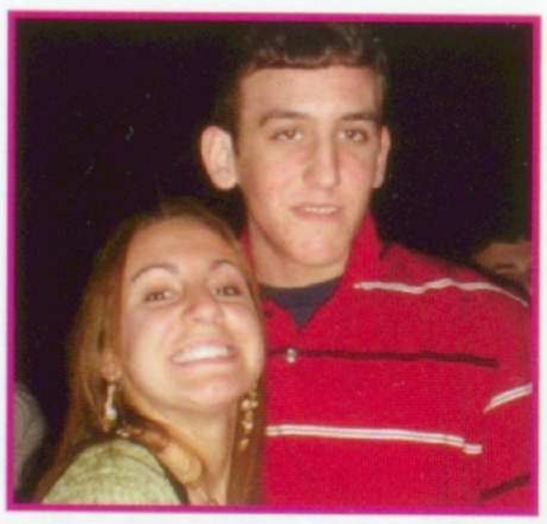
Winter Dance 2005

As winter approches, students at Thomas look forward to the annual winter dance, with this year's theme being "Ice Ice Baby." Like last year, the dress code was strictly enforced and most came prepared, but those who were less fortunate were given class of 2005 t-shirts to be worn. Even though the rules were strict, students managed to make this dance as unforgettable as any other. There were many styles of clothing worn to the dance such as outfits like pajamas, furry boots, 80's looks, the legendary Santa's elves or just a simple Santa hat did the job. Each year this dance brings a great feeling for the holidays and is enjoyed by students and staff. It's an excellent way to spread some holiday cheer and to kick off the holiday season!

Sophomores Kathryn Shuster, Emily Potts, and Brittany Hartlaub pose showing off their lovely white tee's.

"Best friends forever!" exclaim Frank Aledia and Zach Bulk enjoying their time at the dance, while looking studly in their matching outfits.

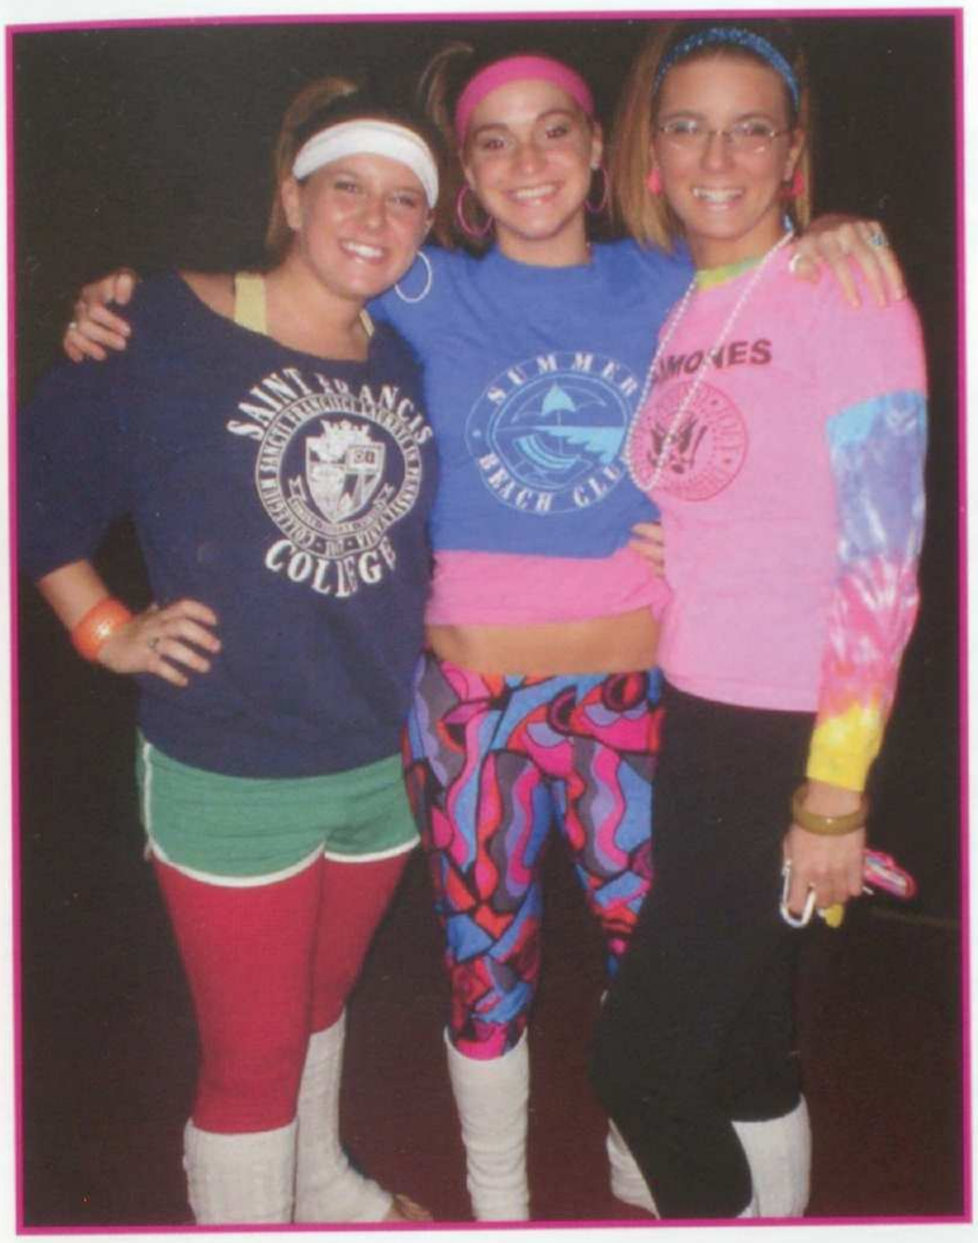
Here's Becca Pope posing for the camera in her cool pajamas! This year there were many different fashions that appeared at the dance, due to the strict dress code.



Seniors Lauren Rogers and Ryan Kennedy were enjoying their last Winter Dance! Lauren must be on her tippy-toes because Ryan is a certainly a tall one!

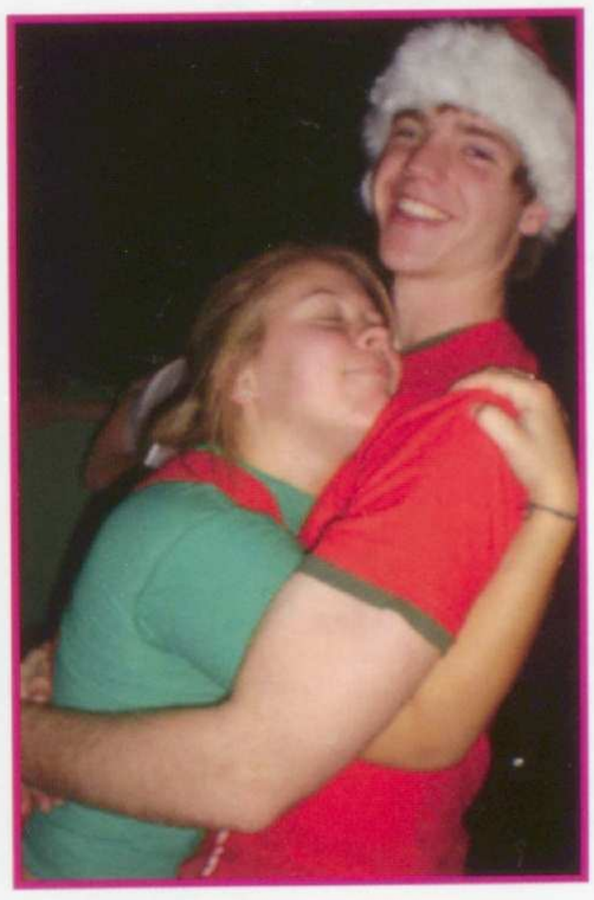
Looking ravishing in their matching outfits are sophomores Natalie Kobylski, Elizabeth Kerr, Celina Caban, and Michiella Sturiano. Their Christmas themed beaded necklaces are a nice touch, don't you think?

Setting



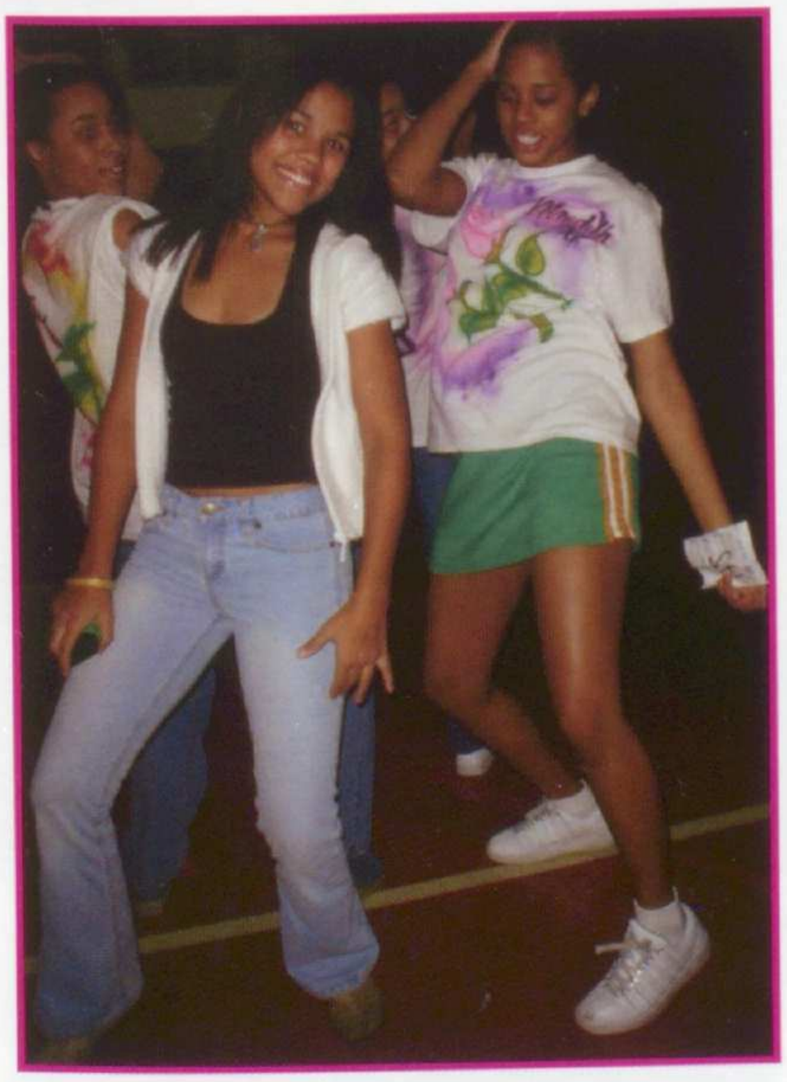
Standing out, yet looking stylish like always are juniors Maggie Lavelle, Maggie Hester, and Una Hrnjak hanging out in their 80's clothes.

Stopping for a quick picture are these gorgeous freshmen girls sporting the t-shirts passed out by the administration for inapproriate clothing. According to the ladies you weren't cool unless you were wearing one!



Dancing the night away with each other are these beautiful freshmen ladies, Who needs guys anyways, right?

Snuggling together are seniors Meghan Richards and Mike Shaw. They were one of the many couples spotted on the dance floor.



Showing off their sassy sides are freshman Morgan Lee and her friends. They had a blast at this year's winter dance.

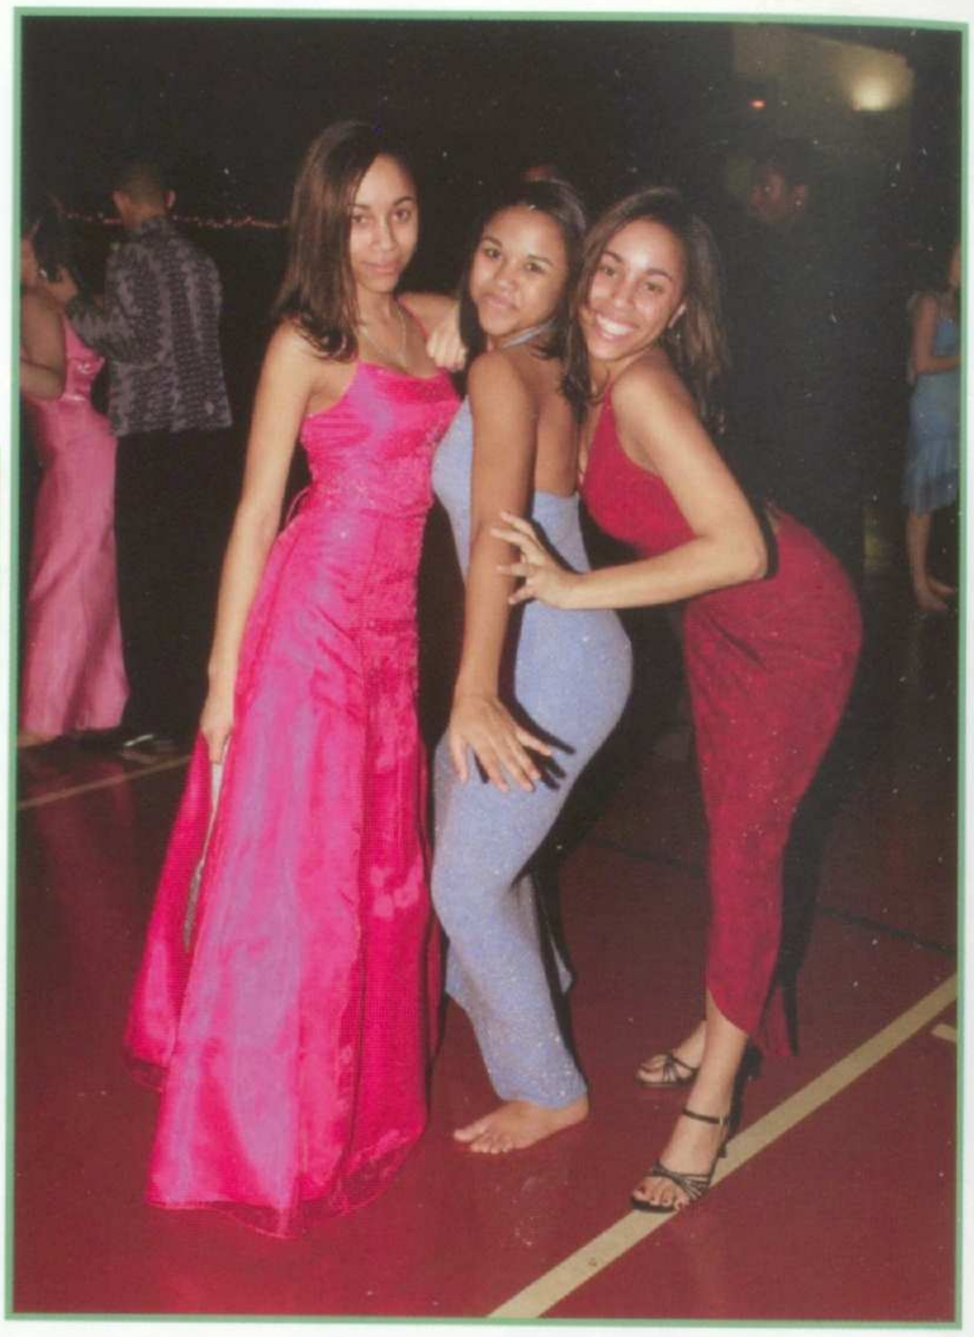
What's Your Story?

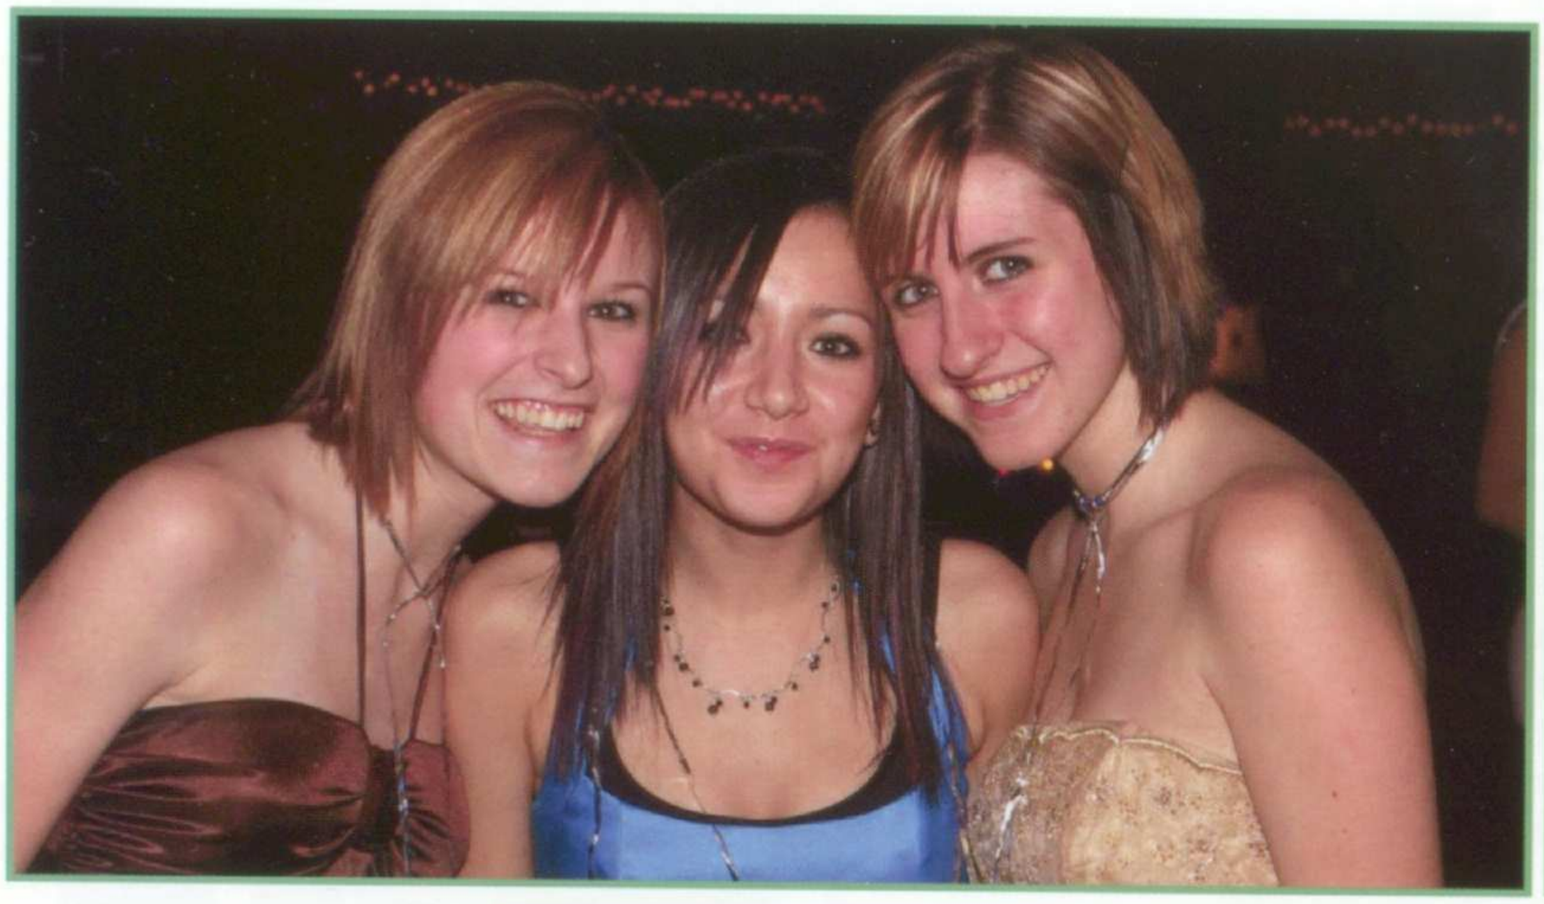
"Being one of the projects committee chair for student coucil, it was my job to see that the dance was put together, which was no easy task. Some set backs were getting all the decorations set and making sure we had help setting up and cleaning up. But above all of these were the glow sticks. We sold over 500 tickets to the dance so we figured that if we ordered 500 glow sticks, to sell for a dollar each, we might break even. We ended up selling only 48 glow sticks and lost about $500. Needless to say, student council was not too happy with me, but the dance still turned out a success!"

-Jared Cross, Senior

Why are these girls so happy? "Just being here with my two best friends is a blast" says junior Sara Trimble. Looks like juniors Krystal Anderson and Kristen Hoffman feel the same way as they stop for a quick picture.

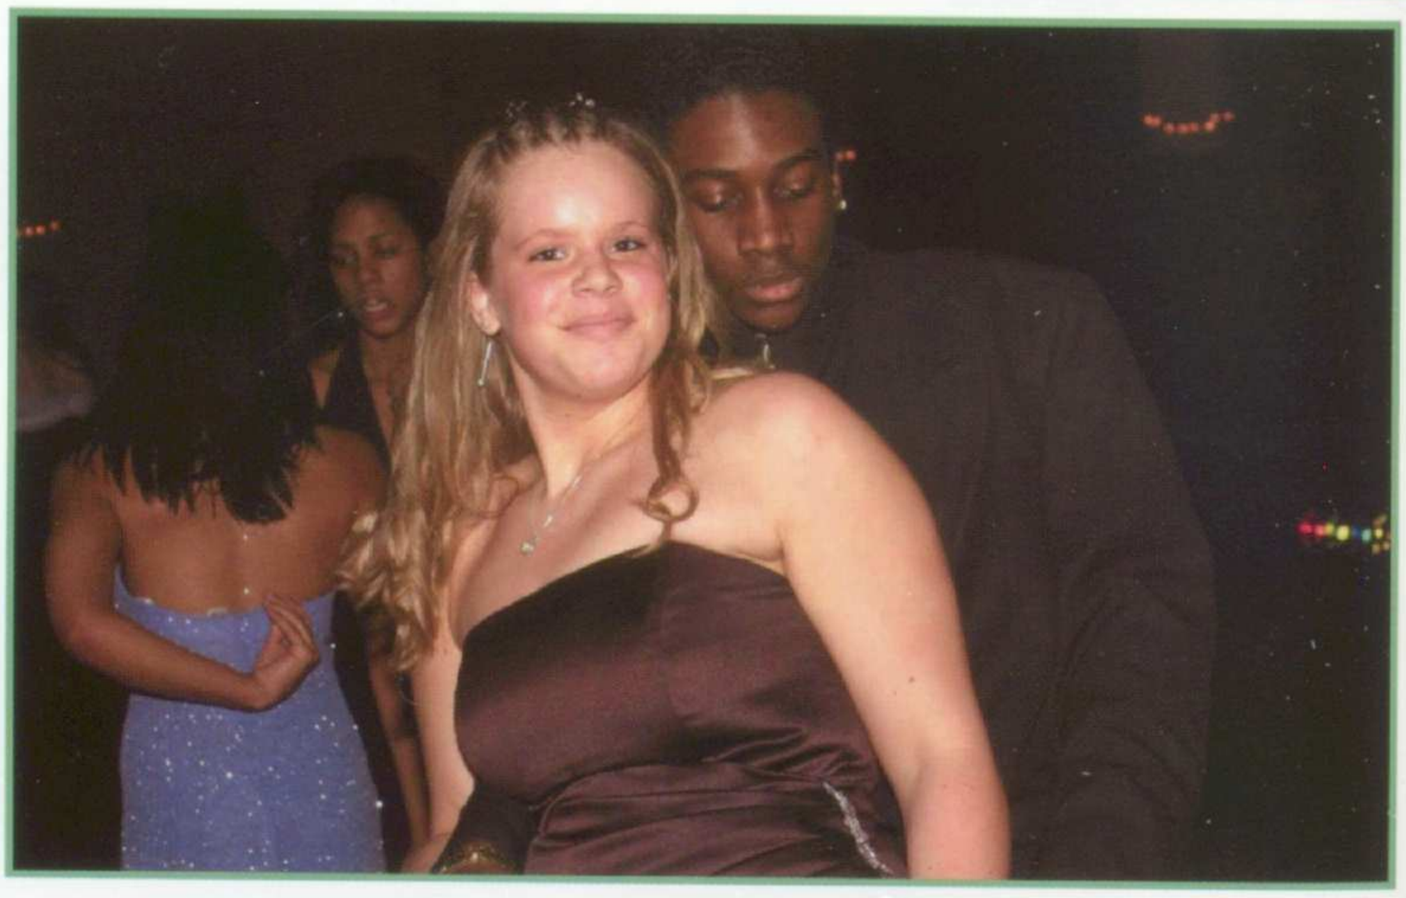
These stylish girls took a moment from showing off their killer dance moves to take a picture. Judging by the huge smiles on all three girls faces, they're having the time of their life at this year's Valentine's dance.





Will someone please take this girl's temperature? It looks like she has dance fever! Freshman, Cassandra Bonnell, gives new meaning to the phrase, "shake that laffy taffy," as she dances her heart out to the variety of energetic songs the DJ was spinning.

Junior Leigh Moore, seems to be so proud to stop and smile for the camera to show off her date. "He definitely kept me entertained and was the sweetest date I could've asked for," says Leigh Moore.

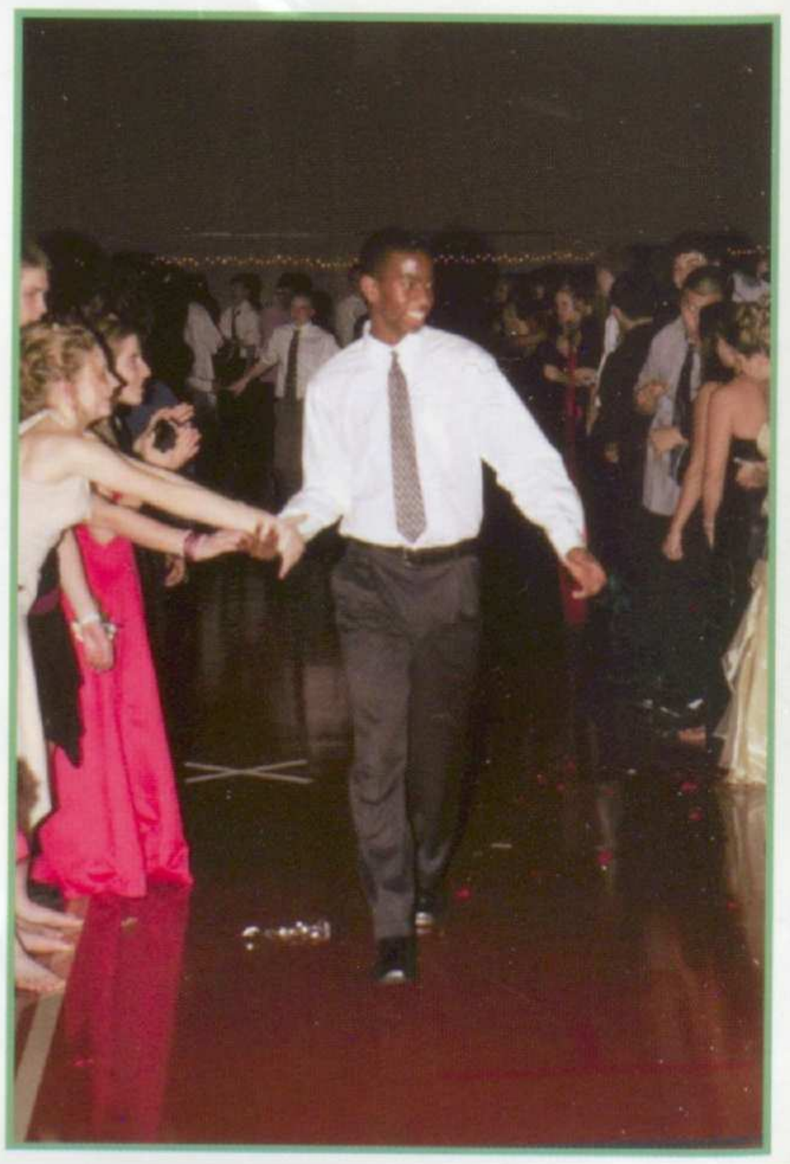


What's Your Story?

" It was really surprising that I was crowned King of Hearts. I really didn't think I was going to get it because everyone in the beginning of the week was collecting so much more money. I actually ended up collecting roughly $307 which definitely helped out a lot with the American Heart Association. I enjoyed collecting and winning because I knew I was doing it for a good cause. At the dance when I was being crowned everyone kind of looked at me with weird looks on their faces because I guess my crown was way too wide for my head which is actually really funny."

- Senior King of Hearts, Eric Ness

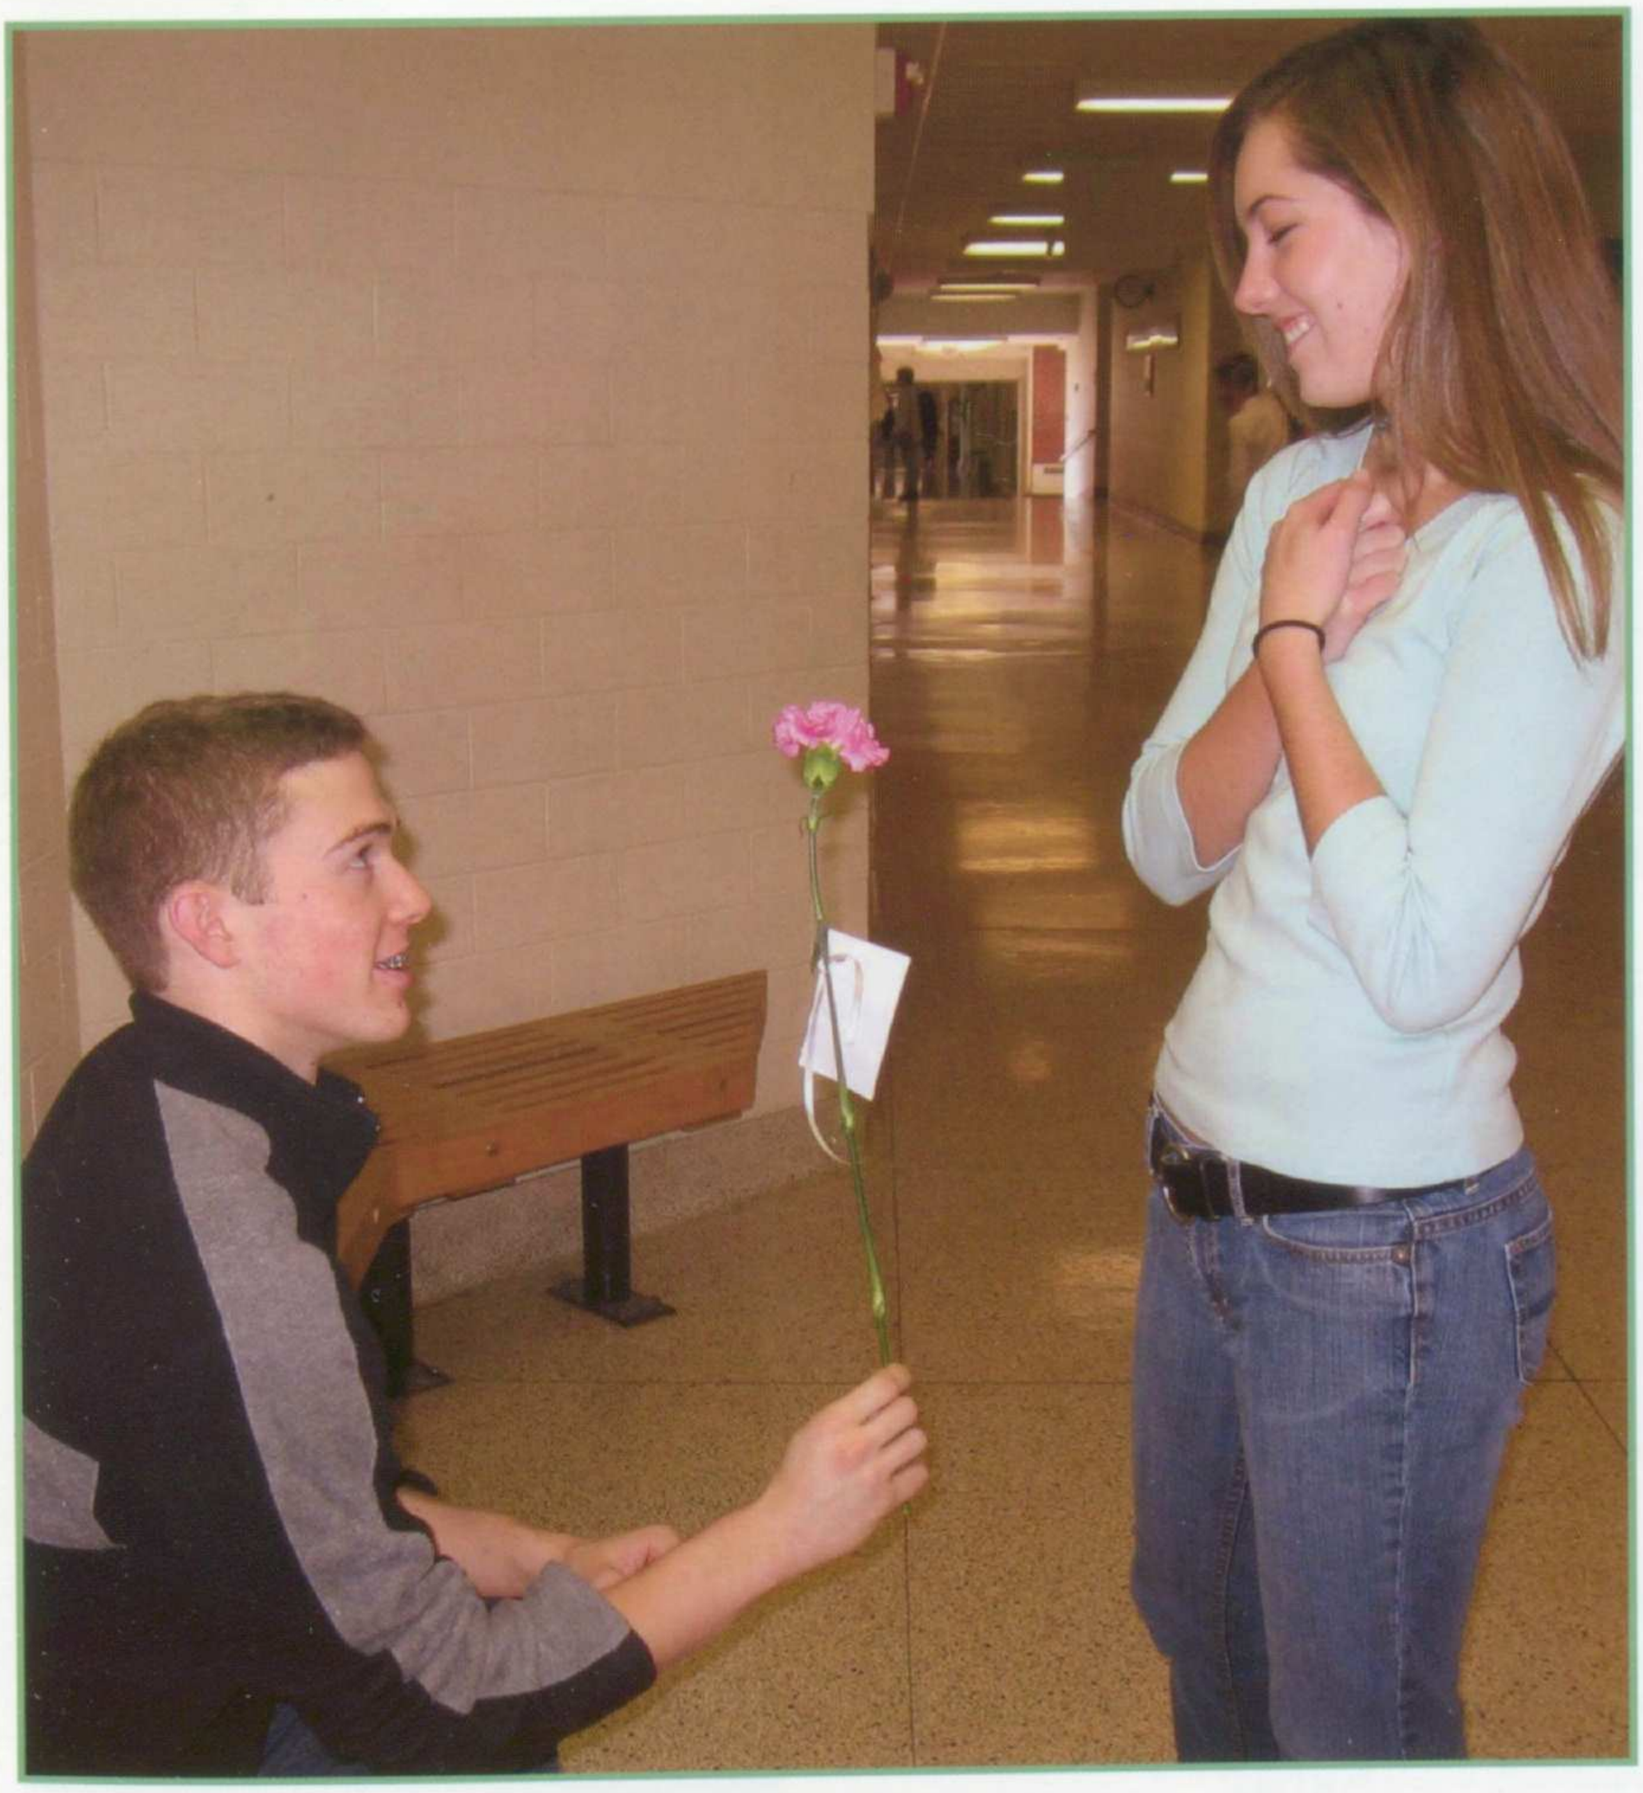
"Collecting money was just the beginning, now I get to showcase my killer moves," claims freshman nominee Michael Stanley before strutting his stuff across the dance floor. There's no doubt about it, the ladies are definitely lovin' Michael Stanley!



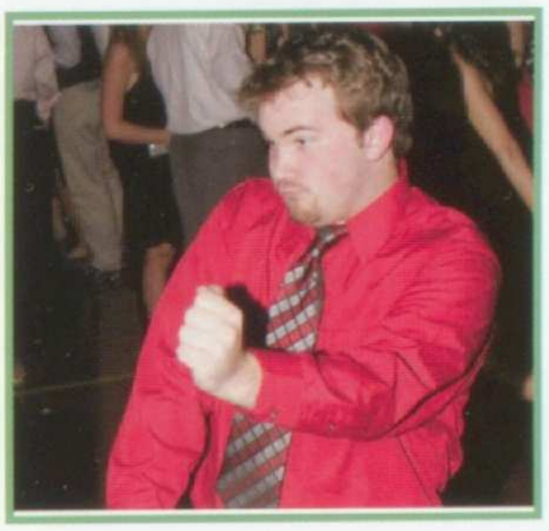
Valentines 2006

TWHS's royal duo is complete! Homecoming Queen, Jessica Jackel was excited to finally crown the 2006 King of Hearts, Eric Ness.

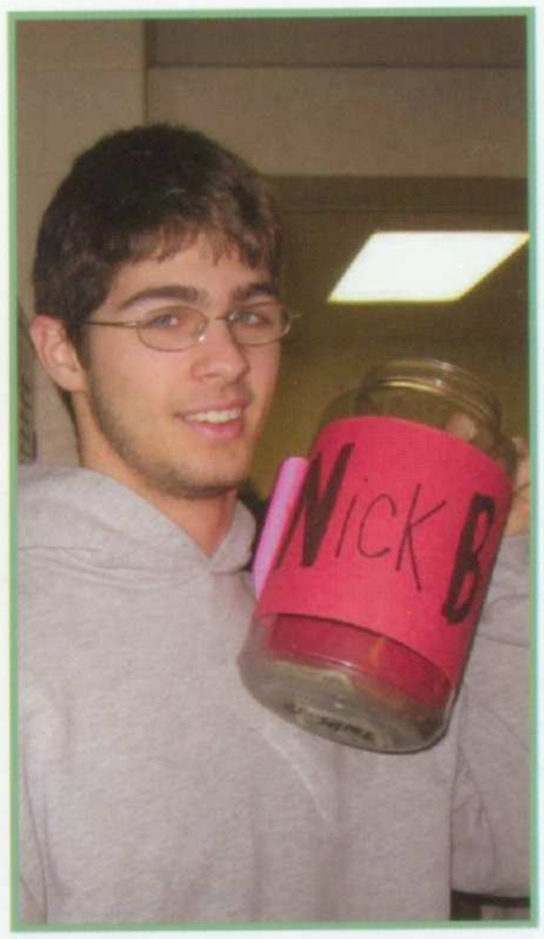
Love filled the air of the Thomas Worthington High School aux gym on February 11, 2006 as students made their way up the red carpet dressed in their best red and pink for this year's Valentine's dance. The Valentine's dance was the chance to take your sweetie out and get jiggy on the dance floor. Our very own Thomas Worthington King of Hearts, Eric Ness, and his attendants, senior Will Maetzold, junior Byron Horton, sophomore Drew Kitchen, and freshman Kyle Carey, and the other nominees spent the week before Valentine's collecting money for the American Heart Association. These studly money collectors collected an extraordinary $2808.22 to support those in need through the American Heart Association.



Sophomore Alan Juckett confesses his love to sophomore Hope Jamieson with a beautiful carnation from the TWHS carnation sale. Many students received red and pink carnations from their secret admirers all in the spirit of Valentine's Day.



Work it out senior Nick Douglas! "I try to bust out my best moves at the dances. I call this the Salt Shaker," said Nick.



Caught off guard in the hallway is sophomore nominee, Nick Bailey. That bucket seems to be attracting the ladies Nick! " I didn't think I would be nominated, but it was definitely a good surprise when I found out," said Nick Bailey.

Valentine's is obviously senior nominee, Stew Jaimeson's, favorite day of the year! When do you ever get the chance to put a carnation in your mouth and still look this handsome! Obviously Stew can pull it off with no problem at all.

Prom

Prom may not have been until May but this year TWHS students began preparing by mid-March. The 2006 festivities got off to a promising start, when the junior class held a fundraiser, which they deemed, "Promextravaganza." The fundraiser, which highlighted a fashion show of gowns and tuxedos, focused on making prom less expensive for the masses. After raising close to $500, the Prom Committee had no trouble finishing off their plans.

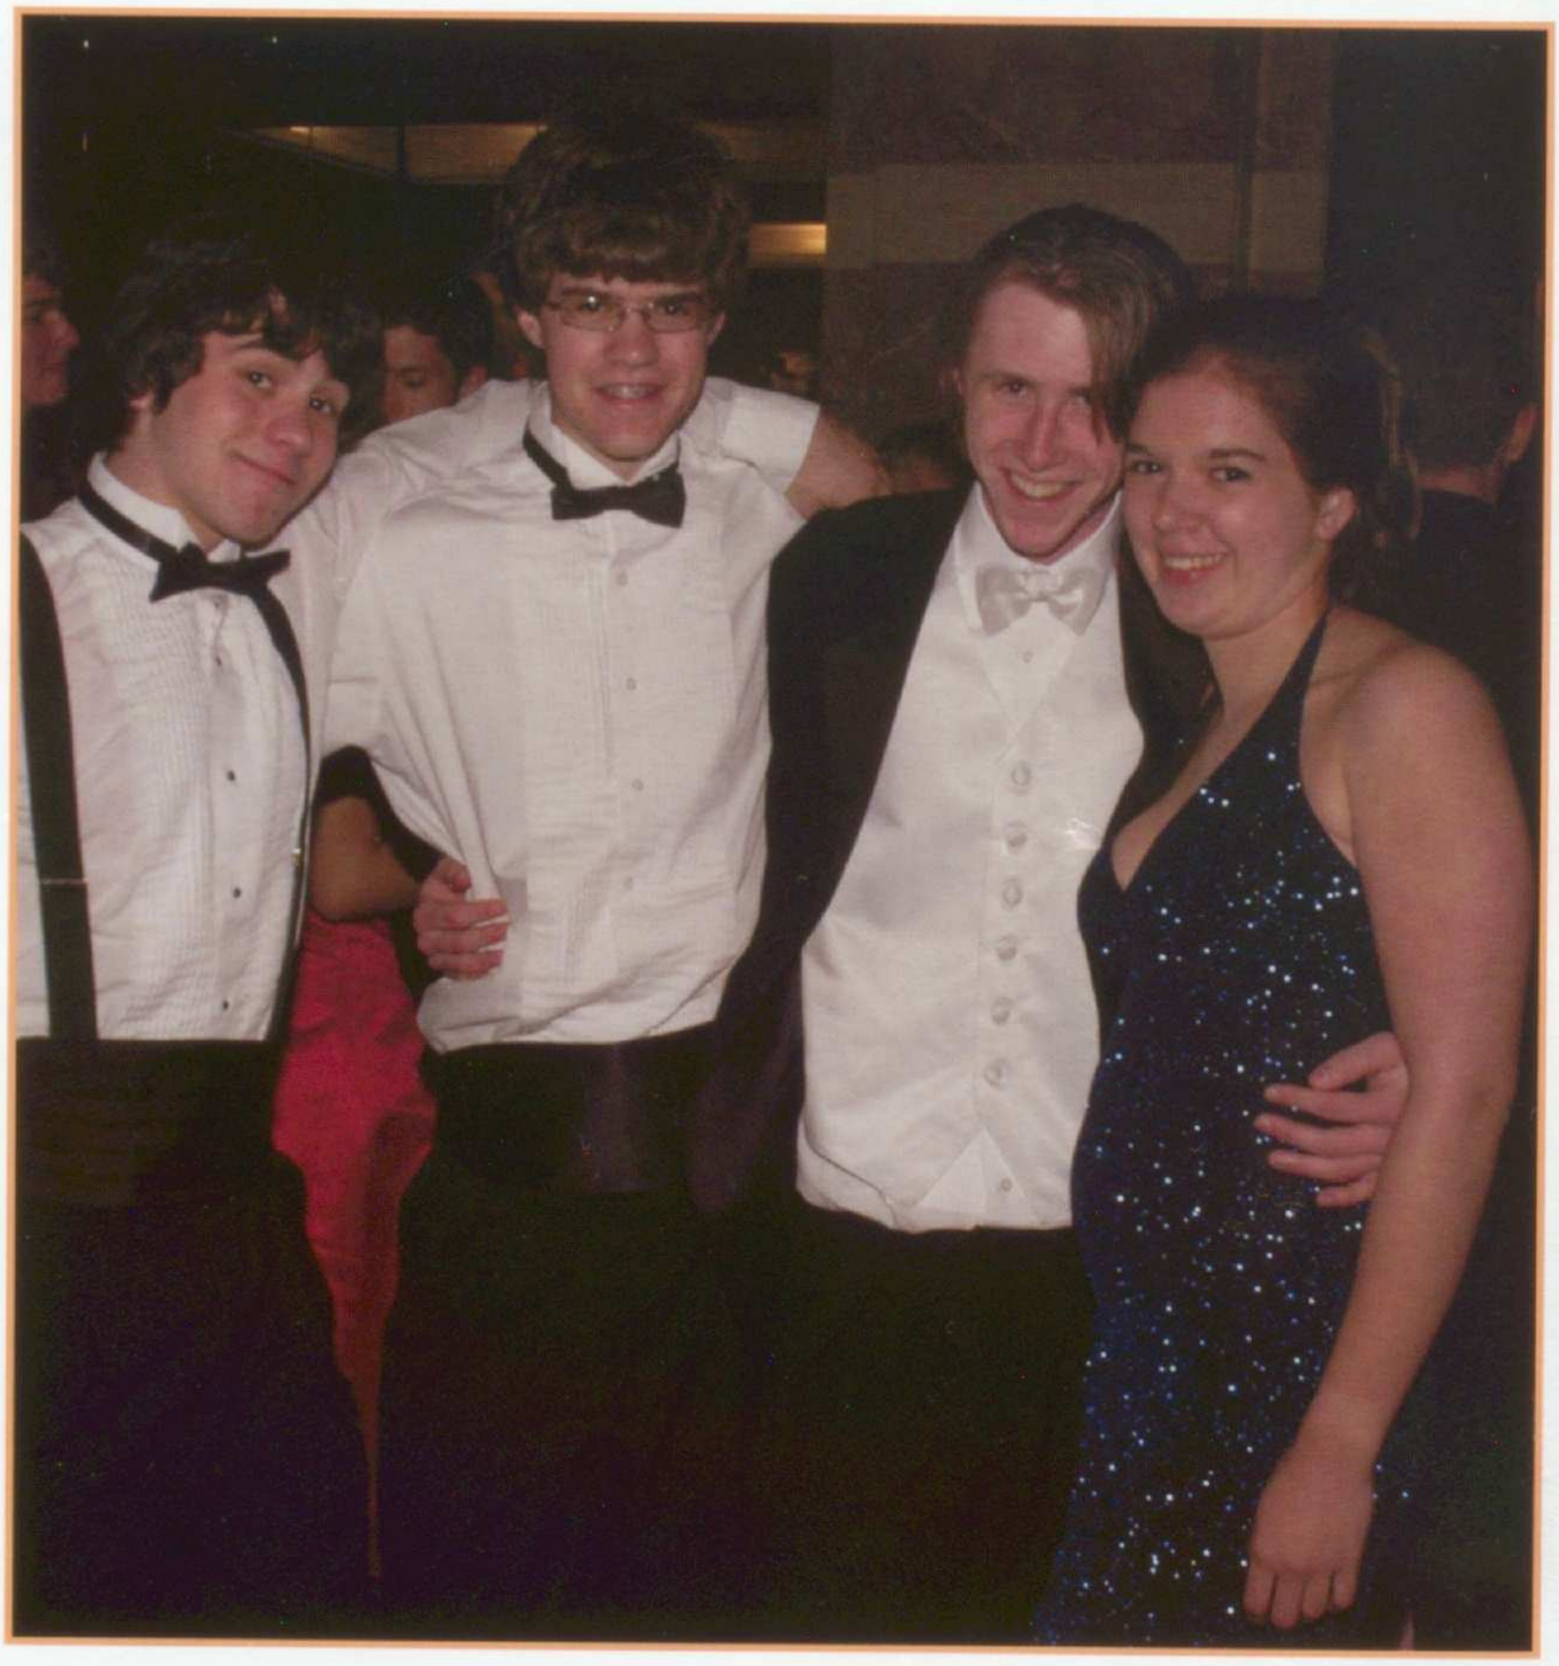
After students returned from spring break, talk of Prom was buzzing all over school. Dresses were bought, tuxes ordered and dinner reservations made. When students arrived at the Nationwide Atrium on the evening of May 6th, they enjoyed a jungle-like atmosphere complete with wild flowers and even a chocolate fountain. "The decorations and deep colors really brought out this year's theme, Rainforest Romance," said junior Jordan Anderson..

It's plain to see that all these Cardinals were having a slammin' time on the dance floor.

Selling Prom tickets may seem easy and maybe even a little boring at times, but junior John Smith doesn't mind. Handling large amounts of cash can be fun but it's always better when you get to keep the money!

Dressed in an exquisite gown, senior Ashley Rund helps to make this fashion fundraiser seem like more of an event at New York's Fashion Week. Between the hair, the jewelry and the clothes, TWHS students looked more like models than average teenagers.

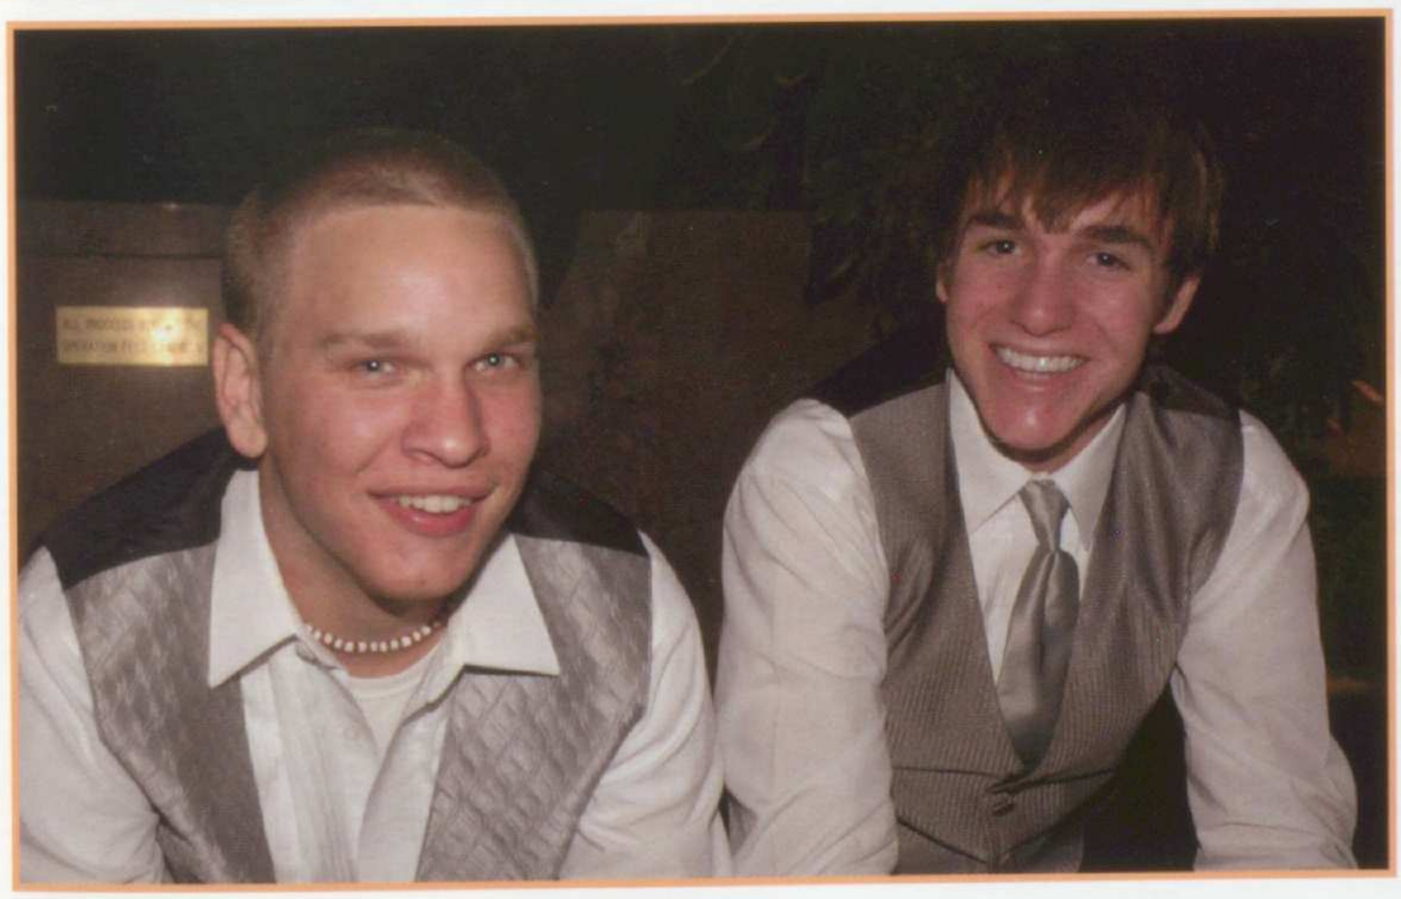
Seniors Randy Aun and Andrew Webber are scraping together their cash for dance tickets. While Prom is an extravagant event, surprisingly tickets aren't quite as expensive as one might assume. Juniors paid a mere $20 per ticket and seniors got a good deal paying just $15.

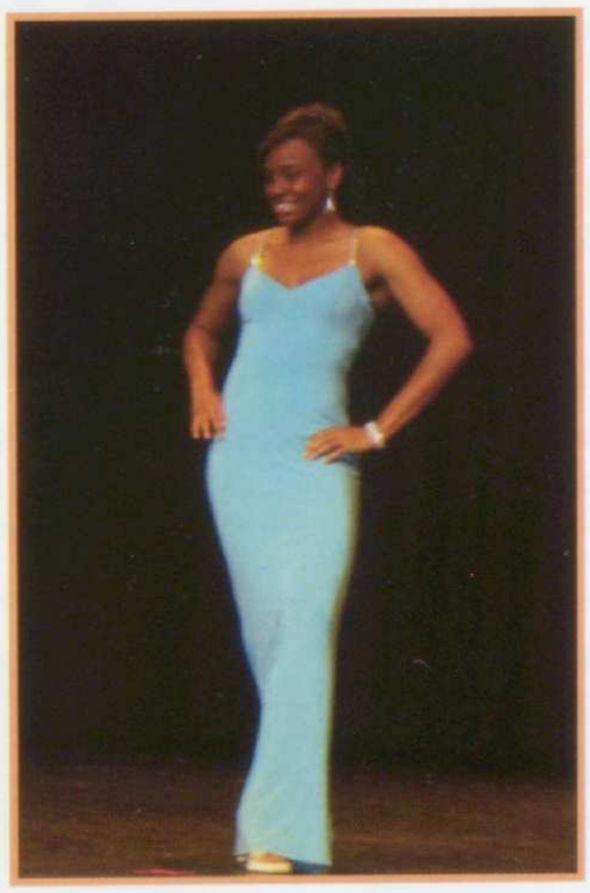


This group of Cardinals looks like they have been getting down on the dance floor. I think I spot some sweat beads, senior Miles Oldenberg. " It was pretty hot on the dance floor, the jacket had to come off. I was trying to showcase my moves and it kept getting in the way!" said Miles.

2006 Prom Committee Co-Chairs, juniors Amira Choueki and Simone Attles, not only arranged Prom Extravaganza, but also starred in it! It's hard to believe that fundraiser figureheads can be as beautiful as these two, dressed in designer gowns.

These three beautiful seniors, Sarah Snodgrass, Nicole Johnston, and Zoey Jackson take time off the dance floor to smile for the camera. " I wanted to make sure that my senior prom was my best dance yet, and it was." said senior Zoey Jackson.



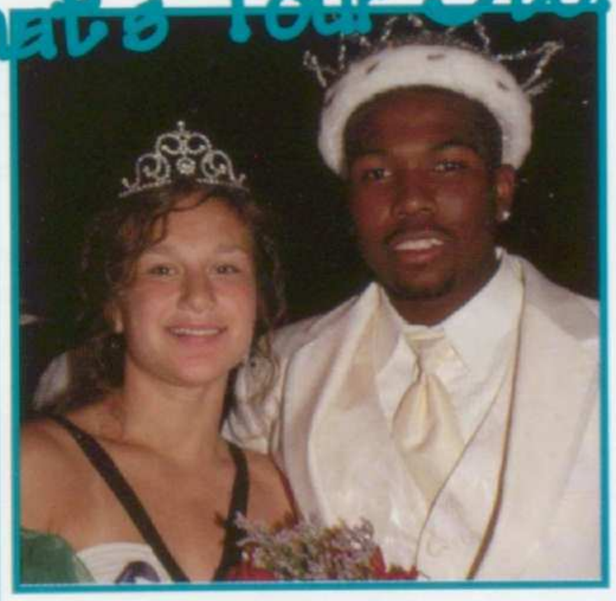


Who needs a spotlight when you glow all on your own? Senior Joy Peterson is modeling more than just a stunning blue dress. With a dazzling smile, it's clear that her diamonds are not the only thing shining.

Seniors Clay Wortman and Truman Rendina take a break to catch a few laughs about ther prom night. Looks like we caught them at a good time looking snazzy at prom!

Throwing up a quick peace sign is junior Jamieson Parker. Seeing as he has the biggest smile on his face, I'm sure he had the time of his life at this year's rainforest romance Prom night. "It was a jammin' good time!" said Jaimeson.

What's Your Story?

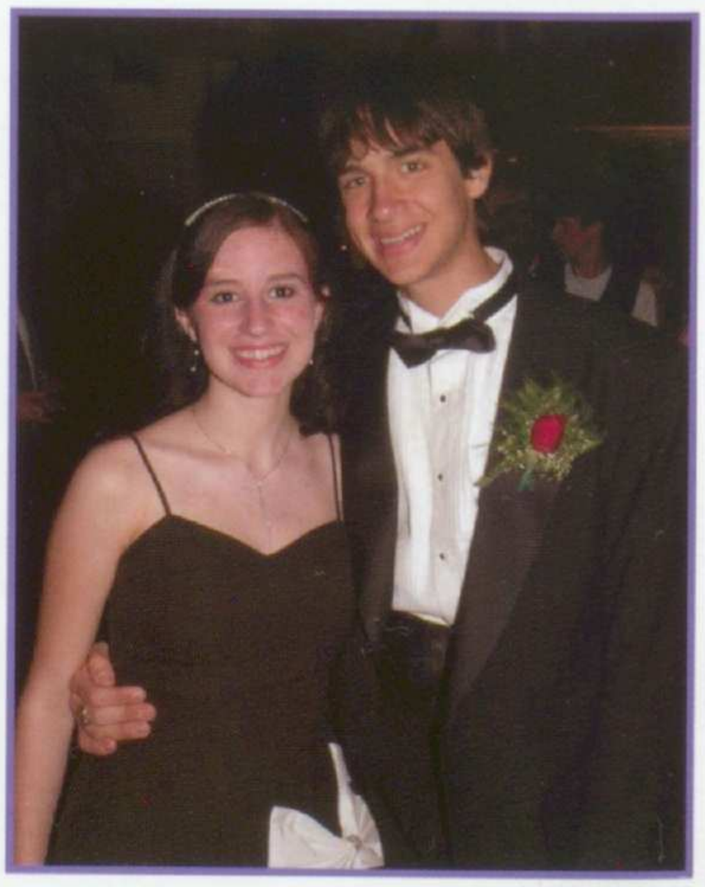


"One of the biggest moments during Prom is when the senior King and Queen are announced, so the whole experience was very flattering," said this year's 2006 Prom Queen, Lauren Strohl. "I agree," exclaimed 2006 King Will Taylor. "When they first announced the nominees I was really surprised that I was one of them, but I was excited at the same time." When Mr. Hutsko finally called both Lauren and Will's names at the dance, both were overcome with emotion, and rightfully so. "I was shocked because I honestly thought the other guys would win before me, so the whole thing was kind of a blur," said Will. "I felt the same way," said Lauren. "I was actually hoping one of the other girls would win because they were all so great, so I was almost disappointed for a second when I heard my own name."

Having a broken arm is no fun, so all the friends of senior Sam Cmok made sure that didn't bring her down a bit. Looks like all these Cards are glad they decided to come and have a grand time at prom. " It was hard dancing with a cast, but I still managed to have a good time. No cast can stop me from having fun!" said Sam.

Senior Chelsea Noble gets the last bite of the famous chocolate fountain. The chocolate fountain was a favorite of the whole prom atmosphere. " The chocolate fountain was a plus!" said Chelsea.

Brandi Karse must have been bored at dinner! Her fork and knife fort is built to a perfection. Too bad it's not big enough to have a picnic under.



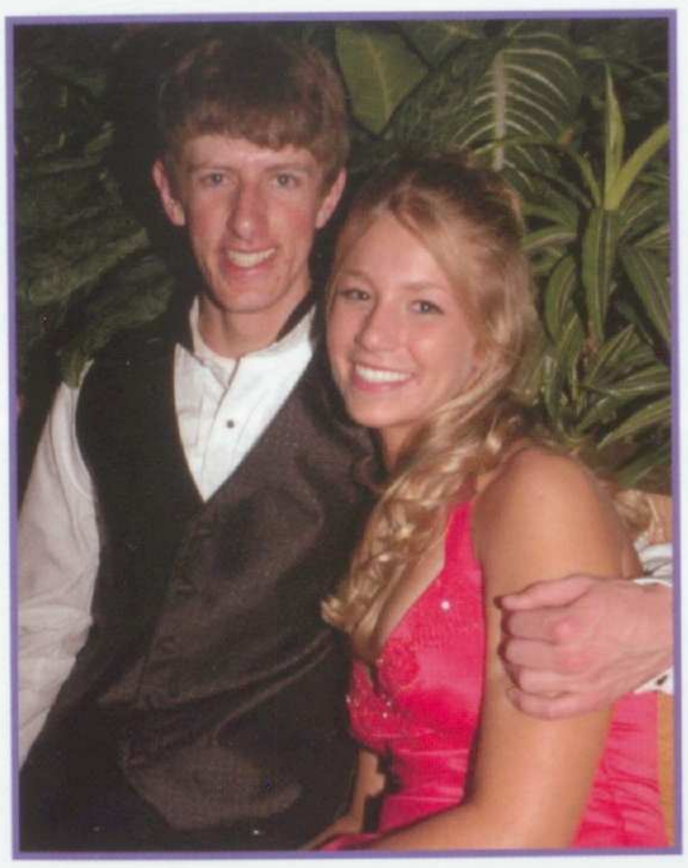
Just look at the gorgeous girl David VanFossen attended prom with! They look so classy in their black and white coordinated outfits.

Bronze beauties, Aubrielle Checkler and Sarah Carey, claimed Rainforest Romance to be the best prom yet! Sarah's exotic dress went along perfectly with the theme.

Senior, Carly Marsico, was one of the eight senior girls nominated for Prom Queen. Carly looked outstanding gliding down the escalator. "It was so elegant coming down on the escalator!" exclaimed Carly.

"Get closer, we don't bite," jokes Nikki Faw. Taking a break from the hot dance floor, these girls head out to the lobby for some water and fresh air.

What a smirk! Dmitri Svetlov must be ecstatic to dance with Virginia Ahalt. This couple was making everyone jealous!



Nate Tarr is lucky to be with such a good-looking girl. Nate, you better keep a tight grip on your pink princess or someone will snatch her up for a dance!

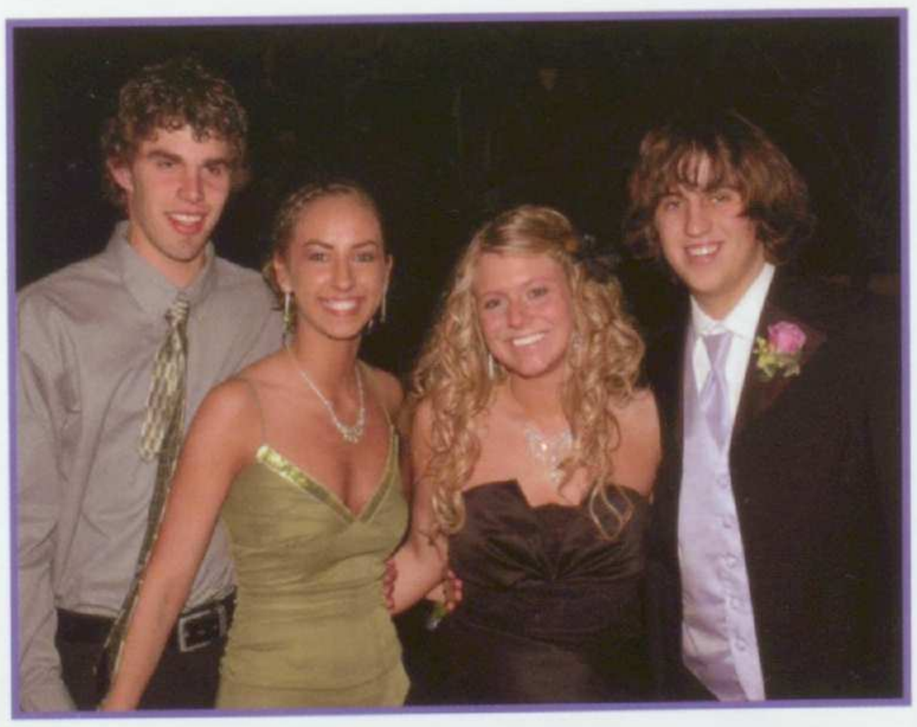
With his great sense of humor, Michael Davis resembles Jim Carey. As he makes his way down the escalator, he sure is glad he didn't trip and fall!

How delightful Tonya Sherman is in her glistening green dress and Carissa Hays with her sultry wavy hair. What else could Brian Potter and Brett Leader ask for in a prom date?



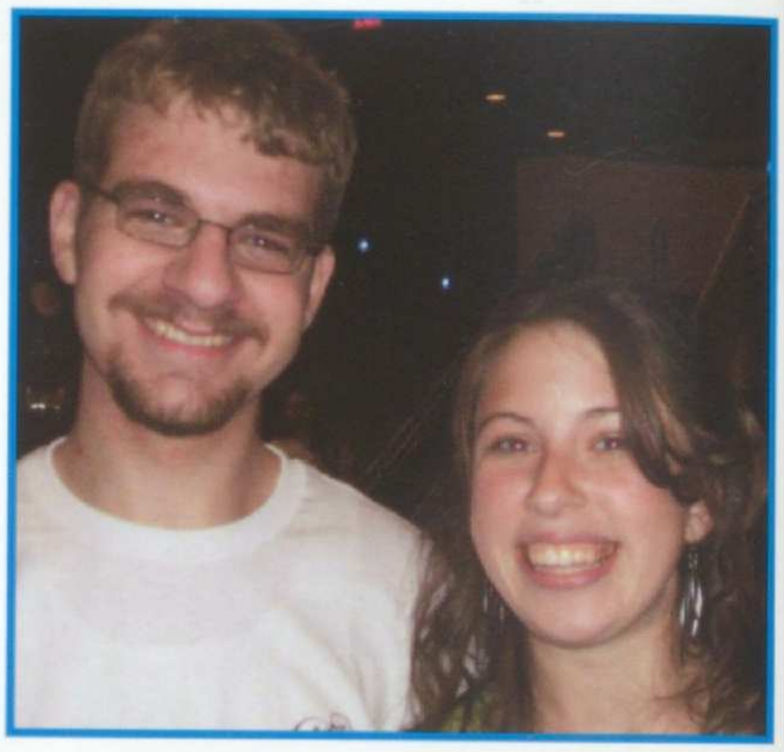
This group looks like they called each other to color coordinate! Matching vests with dresses is a popular thing these days. "Cardinal red" seems to be the favorite color of this group of smiling students.

What a lovely bundle of ladies! Thier pastel colored dresses added to the assortment found at this year's prom.

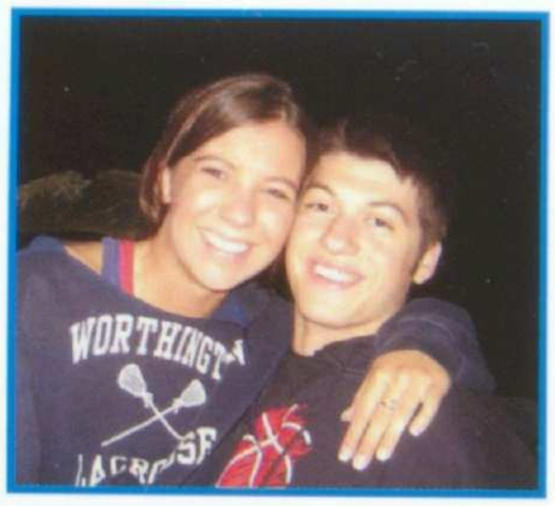
Girls, where are your dates? They must be getting your coats at the coat check. Tell them to get a move on it!

Afterhours

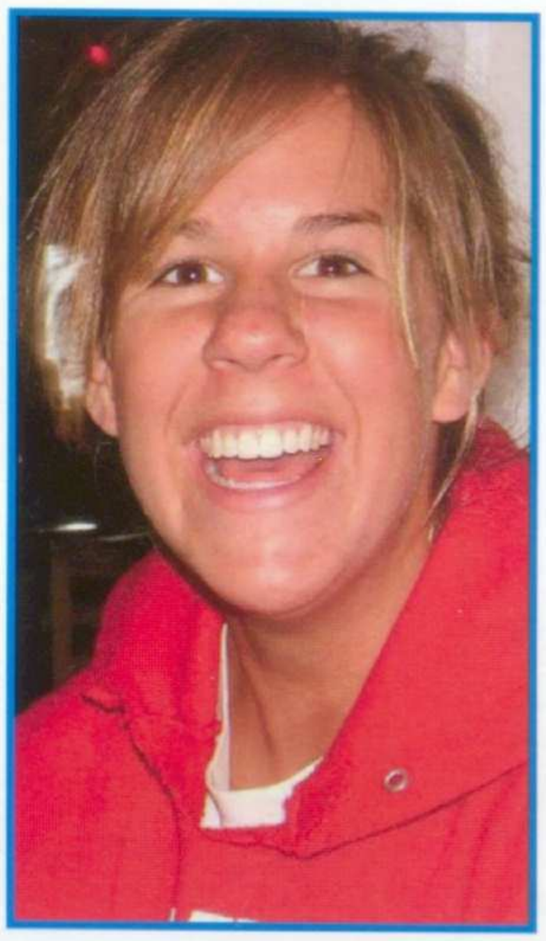
Every year after Prom, the junior class hosts a party for all the students who attended the dance. "Afterhours," which lasts from 12 am to 4 am the following morning, gives students a place to go where they can enjoy good food, friends, and entertainment in a safe environment. This year, Afterhours was held at Gameworks at Easton and more than 400 guests attended, making it a huge success. Tickets cost $70 a couple and guests gained access to everything that Gameworks had to offer. "It was so fun to dance all night and then unwind by playing games basically for free," said senior Arianna Gonzalez. Whether it was the buffalo wings, cheese sticks, or just the gaming, one thing's for sure, Afterhours was the place to be after Prom.



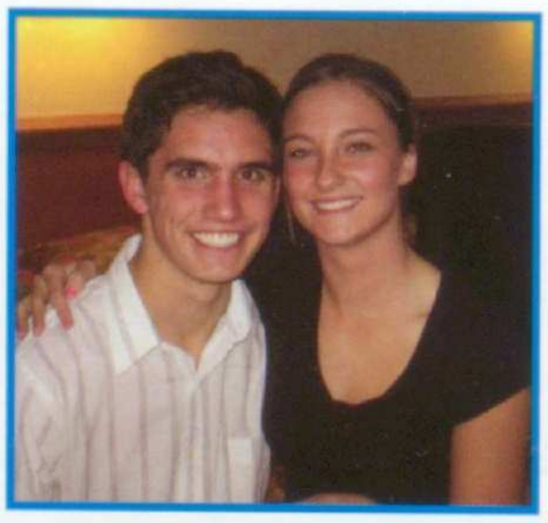
Seniors Brendan Schwartz and Emily Stopa were just two of the many TWHS students that attended Afterhours and had a great time!



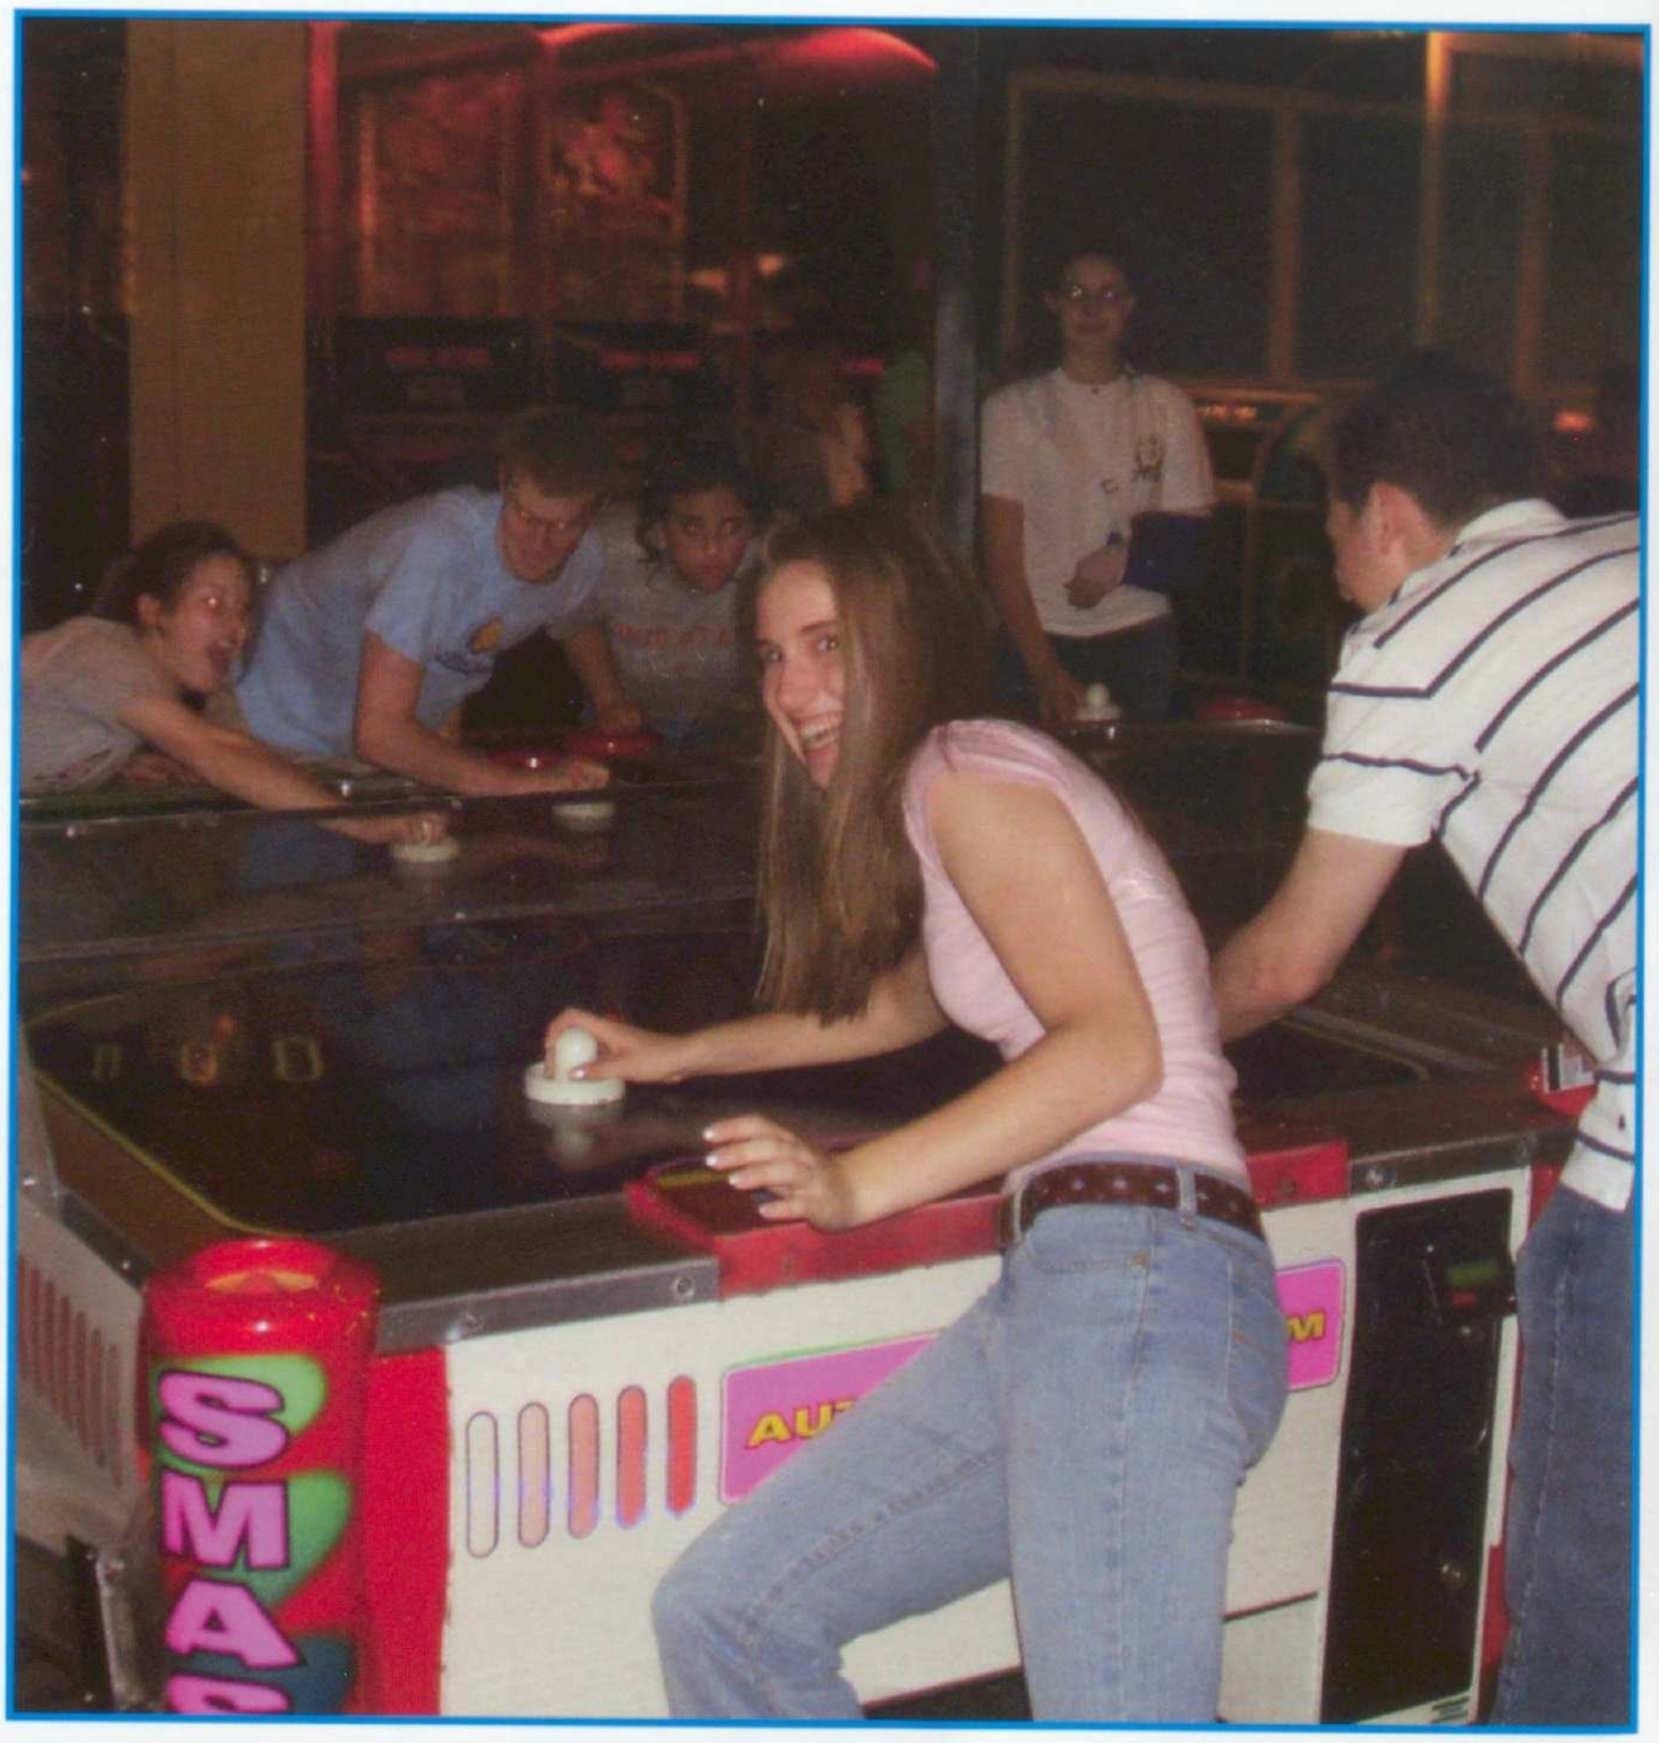
Decked out in TWHS spirit wear are Kelly Dunick and Joe Forte. "We had so much fun at afterhours! It was nice to relax and cool down after the dance," said Joe.



One of the best parts about Afterhours was that so many TWHS students attended and it gave kids a real chance to mingle. "Have you ever seen a smile so big?," asks Junior Kate Dunn, as she shares some laughs with pals at Afterhours.



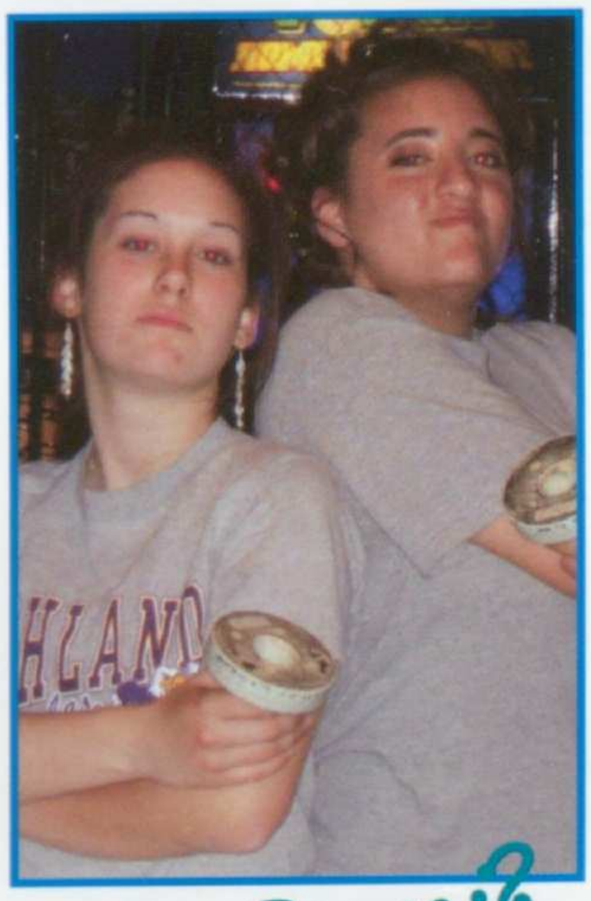
Seniors and long time friends, Michael Davis and Carlie Powers were very happy to be able to spend their last Prom together. They snuggle close for a picture opportunity and look so cute amidst the craziness of Gameworks.



Don't let the smiles and obvious laughter hide the fact that these Cardinals are in one intense game of air hockey. With games galore and plenty of chances to rival against friends in hopes of beating them at all types of games, Gameworks was definitely a great place to unwind

Junior Maria Doyle might be one of the only people with a frown on their face tonight, but she has a good reason! Having a broken arm is no fun on Prom night, and it automatically eliminates any games that may be too rough.

Juniors Michael Conrad and Karen Miller could argue that the best part about Afterhours is the food! They took a break from the games to grab some grub. "I like a girl who knows how to eat!" exclaims Michael as he watches Karen chow down.



Students aren't the only ones taking time out of their busy schedules to promote Afterhours. TWHS parents, Jacque Harrington and Von Posival, were glowing with excitement as they volunteered their time to the Prom festivities.

Air hockey paddles, crossed arms, and stern expressions? Seniors Abby Short and Nour Eldada look like they are ready to destroy their opponents. One thing's for sure, it wouldn't be fun to be on the other end of their table!

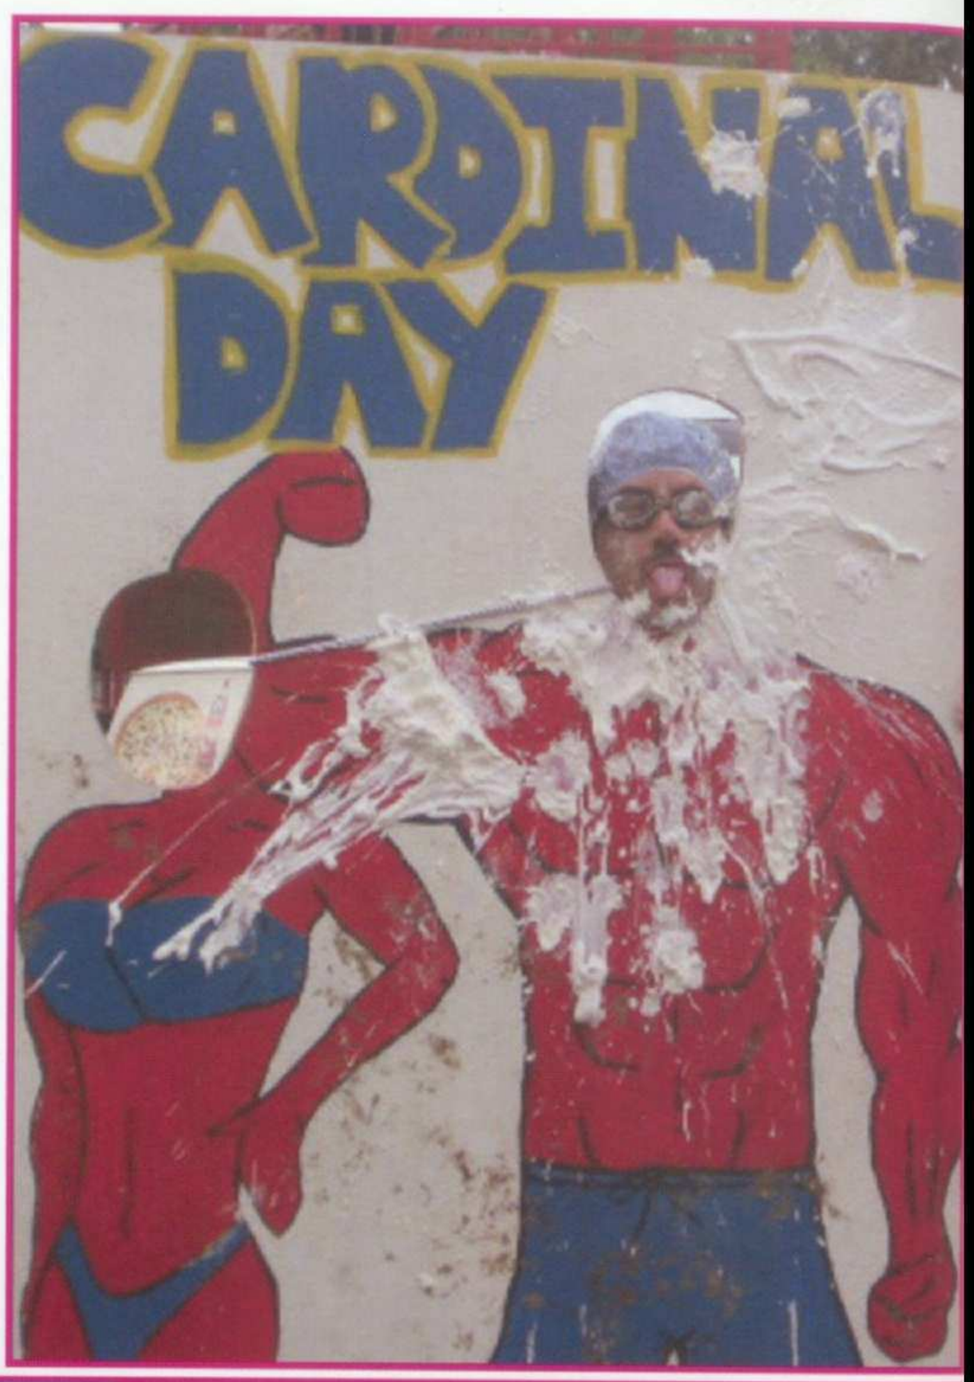
Juniors Jordan Anderson and Madeline Leppert look nice and relaxed as they enjoy good food and good conversation with one another. Although it may be late, these fresh faced girls don't look like they are in need of even one ounce of beauty sleep.

What's Your Story?

"Afterhours this year was probably the best yet since I am a senior this year. I definitely made the most out of it. I went with a friend to Prom so afterhours was a blast just hanging out with one of my close buddies playing some videogames. I've been to prom as a junior and a sophomore and never had as much fun as I did this year. I think all the games at Gameworks have gotten better. My favorite game that I couldn't stop playing was the one and only DDR. If no one knows what that is, it's Dance Dance Revolution. It's probably the best game ever and I'm pretty sure I worked up a major sweat from dancing up a storm on dance dance revolution at Game Works. I had the time of my life at Afterhours!."

-Katie Korpieski, Senior

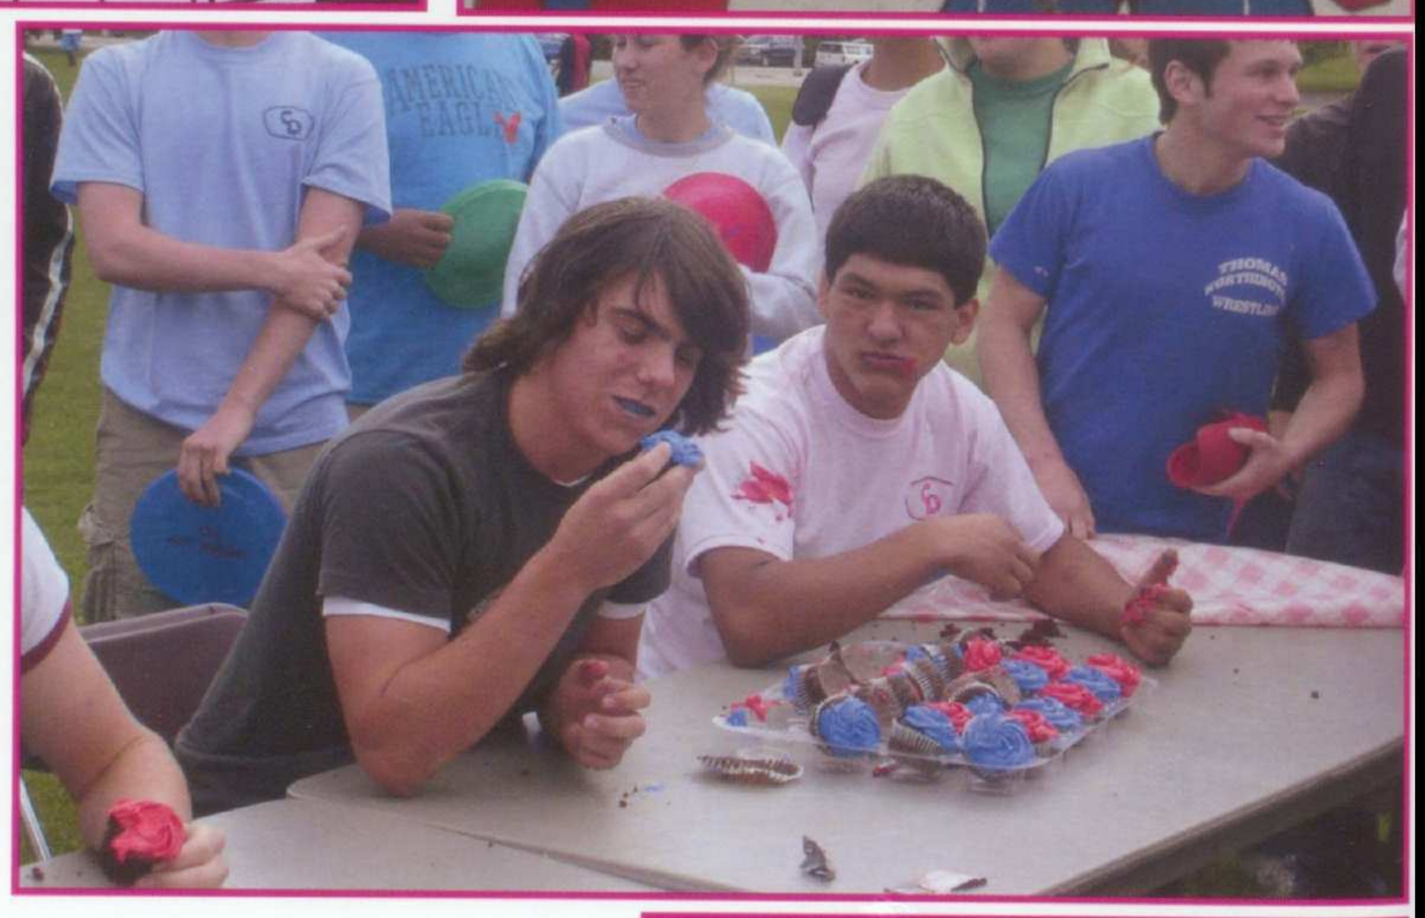
CARDINAL DAY



Don't fall! The high ropes course definitley looked like a scary thing, but some students faced the fear. Sophomore Matt Croft sure did. Seen here staying strong, Matt made it all the way to the end and made it look so easy.

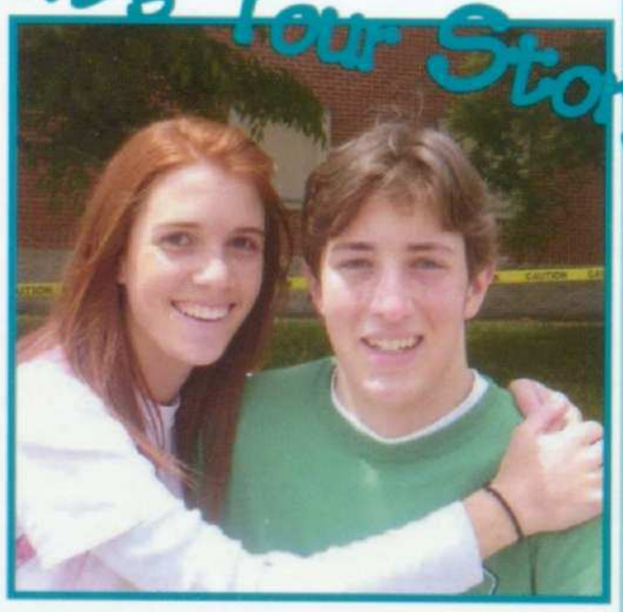
Dr. Littel what have you gotten yourself into? Looks like our very own principal has gotten himself into a sticky situation, literally. Students took turns getting back at Dr. Littel with a little pie in the face.

Senior Sho Kuroda takes time from trying to sell his art work to take a picture. Sho give the art raffle two thumbs up as there were many others portraying beautiful paintings, sculptures and even photography.



Don't stop until you drop sophomore Dylan Bonnie! Unfortuantely Dylan didn't come out on top at this year's cupcake eating contest, but showed great team spirit. "I don't think I've ever eaten so many cupcakes." said Dylan.

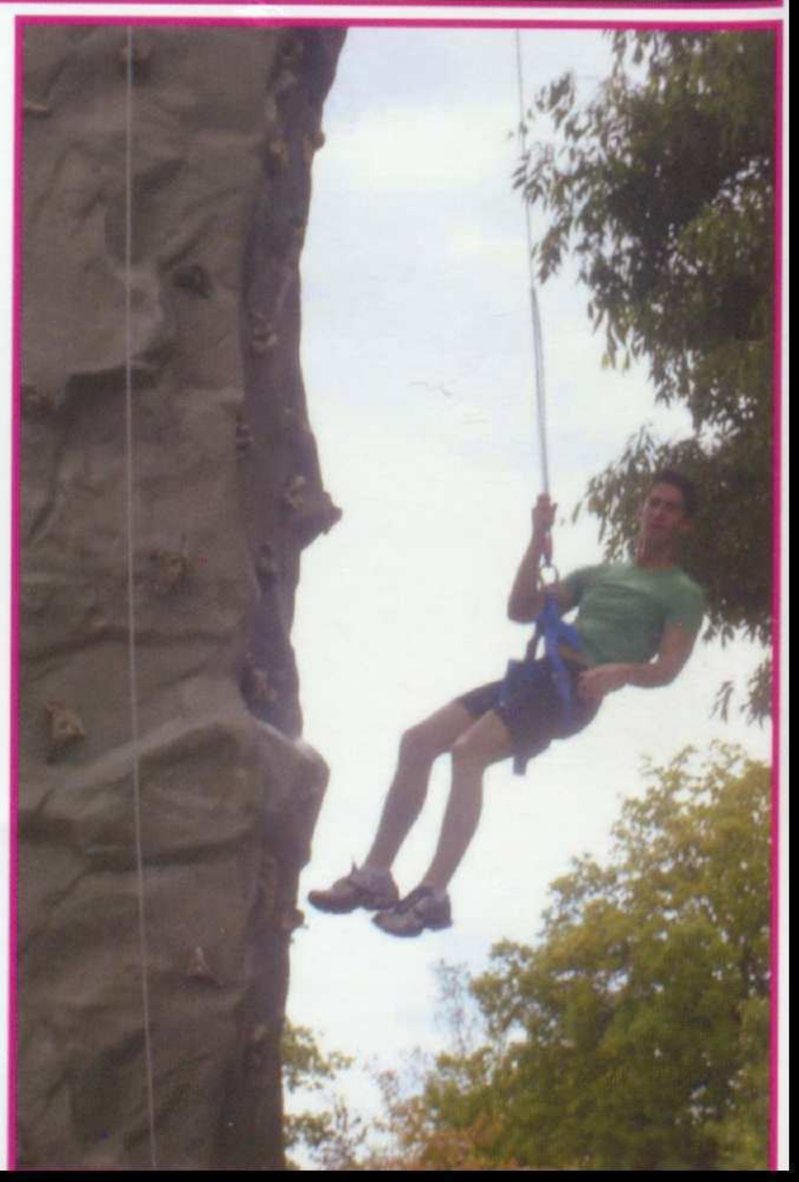
What's Your Story?



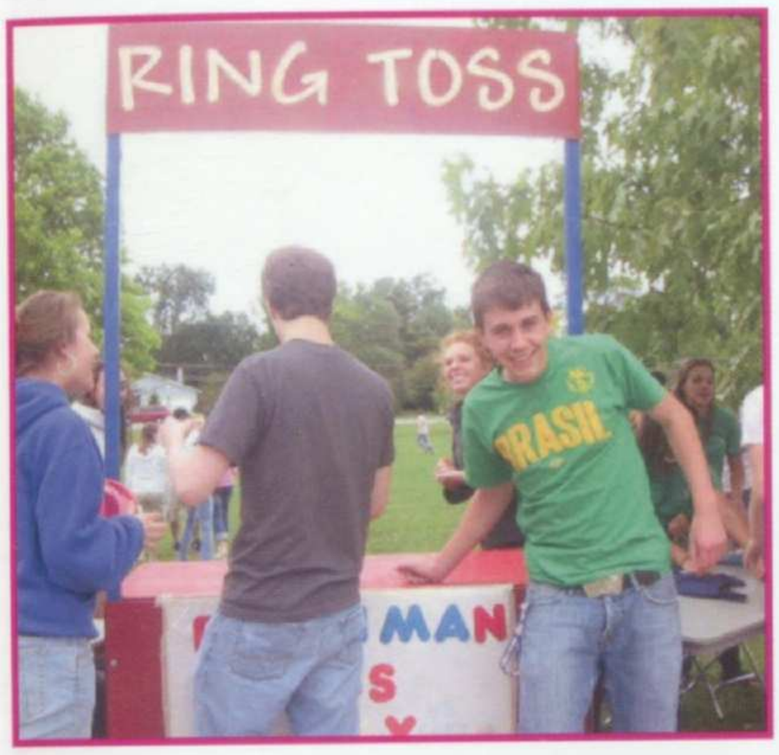
"This year's Cardinal Day was a blast to be in charge of. It was really fun because it went so smoothly. There were no mishaps and everything was set up the way I planned. I was on the scene of Cardinal Day for 8 hours straight trying to get everything ready, so that was tiring. In the end it all fell together perfectly. During Cardinal Day I helped run everything and make sure that it all went ok. For the whole day I really only had one helper, Carly Loar, so basically I was alone, but it was so fun anyways. Cardinal day cost about $7500, it may seem extravagant, but it was worth it! "

-Jared Cross, Senior

A fifty foot climbing wall was one of the favored items at Cardinal Day. Retracting off the wall to make sure that our students are safe is one of the young men helping to set up the huge climbing wall.



Cardinal Day



Sophomore Mark Allenby is all smiles as he is ready to toss his heart out to win some prizes.

As the 2005 - 2006 school year came to an end everyone was looking forward to the one last bang for Thomas Worthington High School - this year's Cardinal Day and Talent Show. Cardinal Day was on May 19th after the Talent Show. As everyone filed outside there was everything a highschooler would want to do to be a kid again. Students enjoyed free pizza while watching others participate in the always entertaining cupcake eating contest. Blow up games, high ropes course, and a 50 foot climbing wall were all the rave of this year's Cardinal Day. In addition to all the fun games, there was a DJ to jam to as well. "I couldn't wait to make my first Cardinal Day experience a great one," said freshman Kamarra Morris Ready, set, go! These boys are getting ready to race to the finish line of just one of the huge blow up toys the day had to offer. Fun toys were a great way to make these teens feel like kids again,.

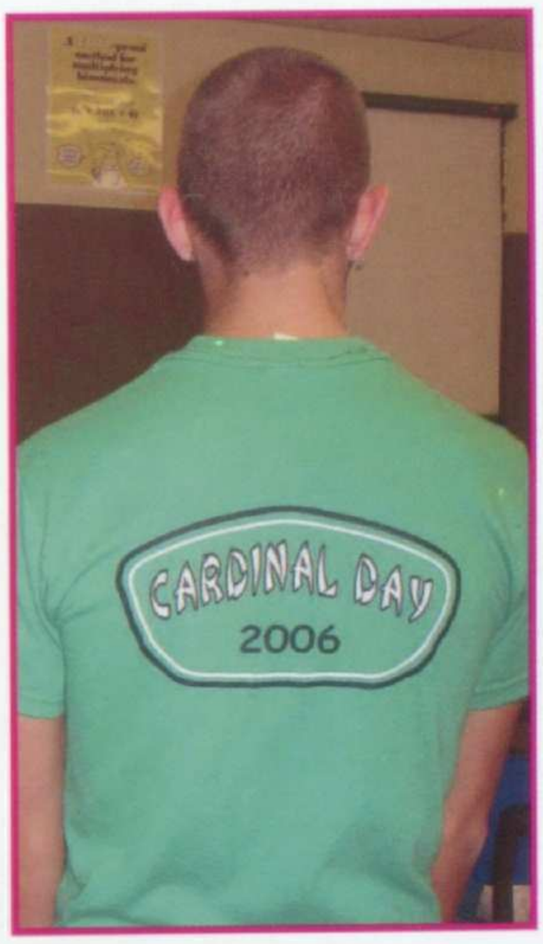
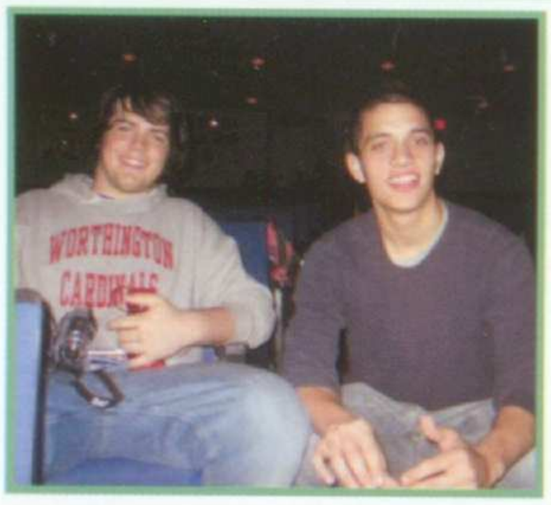
Jumping for joy in the blow up toy are two very happy cards. They are so excited to be spending the day playing outside and having fun with friends.



Senior Jerred Ziegler shows off his backside so we can check out his cool new Cardinal Day t-shirt. These t-shirts were on sale the week of Cardinal Day and were a huge hit. The shirts came in all different colors and made our own TWHS students look wonderful at this special event.

Some may know Mrs. Dow as the lady in guidance who schedules all the students ' guidance needs. Seen here she's so excited to be running the very busy Papa John's pizza line! "The pizza line was so hectic, but it was a still a blast." said Mrs. Dow.

Talent Show



Junior Joey Fuller and Senior Cody Aledia took a break from rehearsing to sit and enjoy each other's company. There's no doubt Joey was exhausted after being in not one, but two talent acts.

Every good show needs hosts! Senior Nick Helser was one of the six cardinals who worked as "MCs" during the talent show. However, Nick went beyond his duties of announcing each act and also took the chance to play his own version of Ashlee Simpson's hit song ,"Pieces Of Me."

With a total of 14 acts and a show that ran approximately 2 hours long, students had a lot of down time before and after they took the stage. Junior Dillon Oldenburg and senior Ashley Chang helped cheer on the other participants as it was their time to shine.

Want to see how all of your fellow students show off their talents? Well the Talent Show was the best way to find out. This year's talent show featured TWHS's up and coming stars. Everyone looked forward to the perks of the talent show. It meant watching some amazing acts and knowing that soon after the Talent Show everyone was out at Cardinal Day. The week of the Talent Show and Cardinal Day, students were selling some rad t-shirts for everyone to sport outside while playing on the blow up toys and dancing to the live DJ. "Cardinal Day and the talent show have always been one of my favorite things to do at the end of the year." said senior Brian McClurg. "Now that I am a senior I made sure to make it extra special."

Activities Director, Mark Hutsko, and TWHS teacher Jane Karras, watched on in a very pleased manner as all their planning, organizing, and rehearsing finally came together.

Not everyone can dance with such grace as senior Bethany Burley. For her talent, she danced contemporary ballet to a soundtrack entitled, "Nice To Meet You." With plenty of jumps, spins, and toe touches, her flawless moves made ballet look easy.

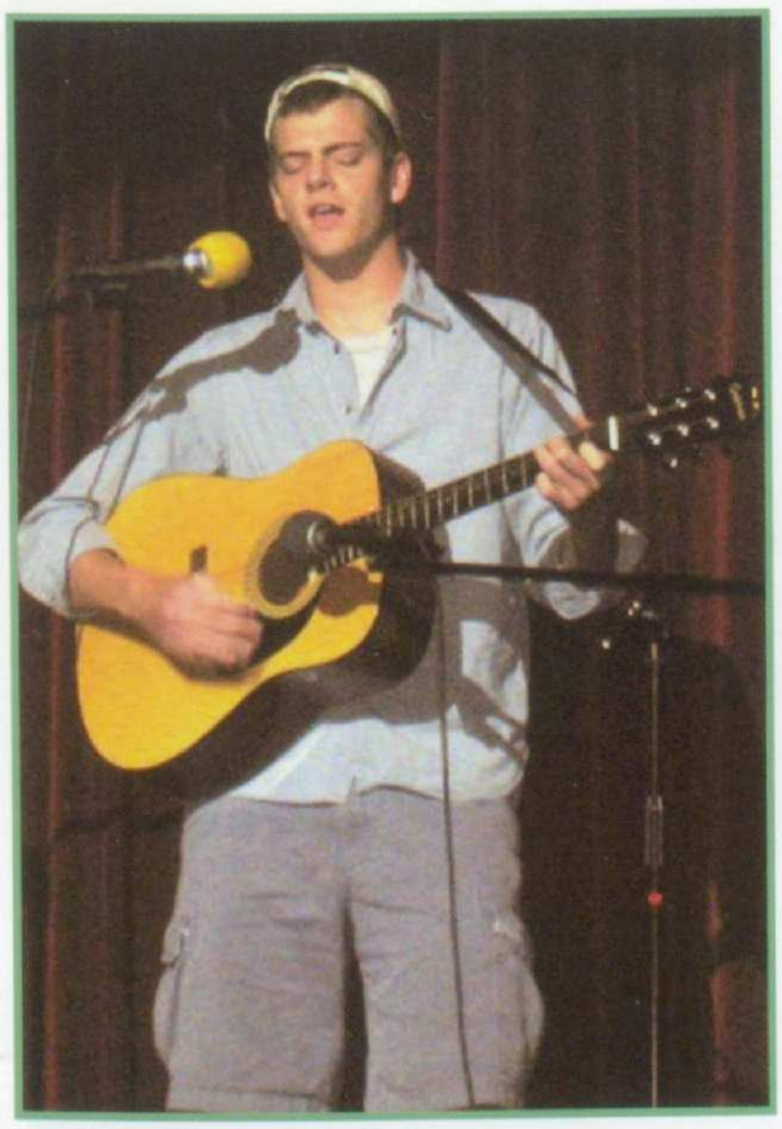
"The Mission Impossible Band" was the perfect act to end this year's show. With a catchy theme song and an entertaining video, it definitely kept the audience's attention, and senior Miles Oldenburg was having a great time jamming on his guitar!

Named the "winners" of last year's talent show, junior twins Julissa Faw and Nikki Faw, had every reason to perform again this year! They not only showcased their beautiful voices, but they sang a heartfelt song entitled, "I Trust You Lord," acapella!

What's Your Story?

"The Made experience and talent show really taught me a lot about team work and working on a strict schedule. It was kind of hard because I would practice lacrosse and then after that I would have to go straight to my Made coach and practice with him too. It took a lot out of me but it was so worth it to get this far. The main things I had to work on were my footwork, flexibility and my freeze move. It takes a lot of strength and agility to get those kinds of moves down. I was definitely more nervous the first day of the talent show because that was the night that it would be decided if I would make it to the next round and I did. I wasn't sure if I would make it to the next round just because everyone else was just as good if not better than me. It was probably one of the best experiences of my life to accomplish something like break dancing. It was also really hard to deal with all the rumors that went around about me. When I would walk down the hall and see all the people who didn't know me saying my name it was kind of a weird experience. My Made Coach was pretty hard on me. There were times that I felt like giving up, Mike was always there to push me harder and make sure that I rose to the top and accomplished what I was there to accomplish. My family was very supportive during the whole thing. It was hard getting time in to spend time with them with such strict practive schedules for my Made coach and for lacrosee as well, but they understood that it really was something that I wanted to put my heart into. When the Talent Show was over I knew I had done what I wanted and came to do. I was so proud of myself and I knew my coach and my family was just as proud as well, but it was so surreal. Now I can't wait to watch my own show on MTV."

-Samantha Rojas, Sophomore



Senior Harrison Watson has been playing the guitar and writing and performing his own music for the past 4 years. In his first and last TWHS talent show ever, he took the stage to share one of his favorite tunes with the audience.

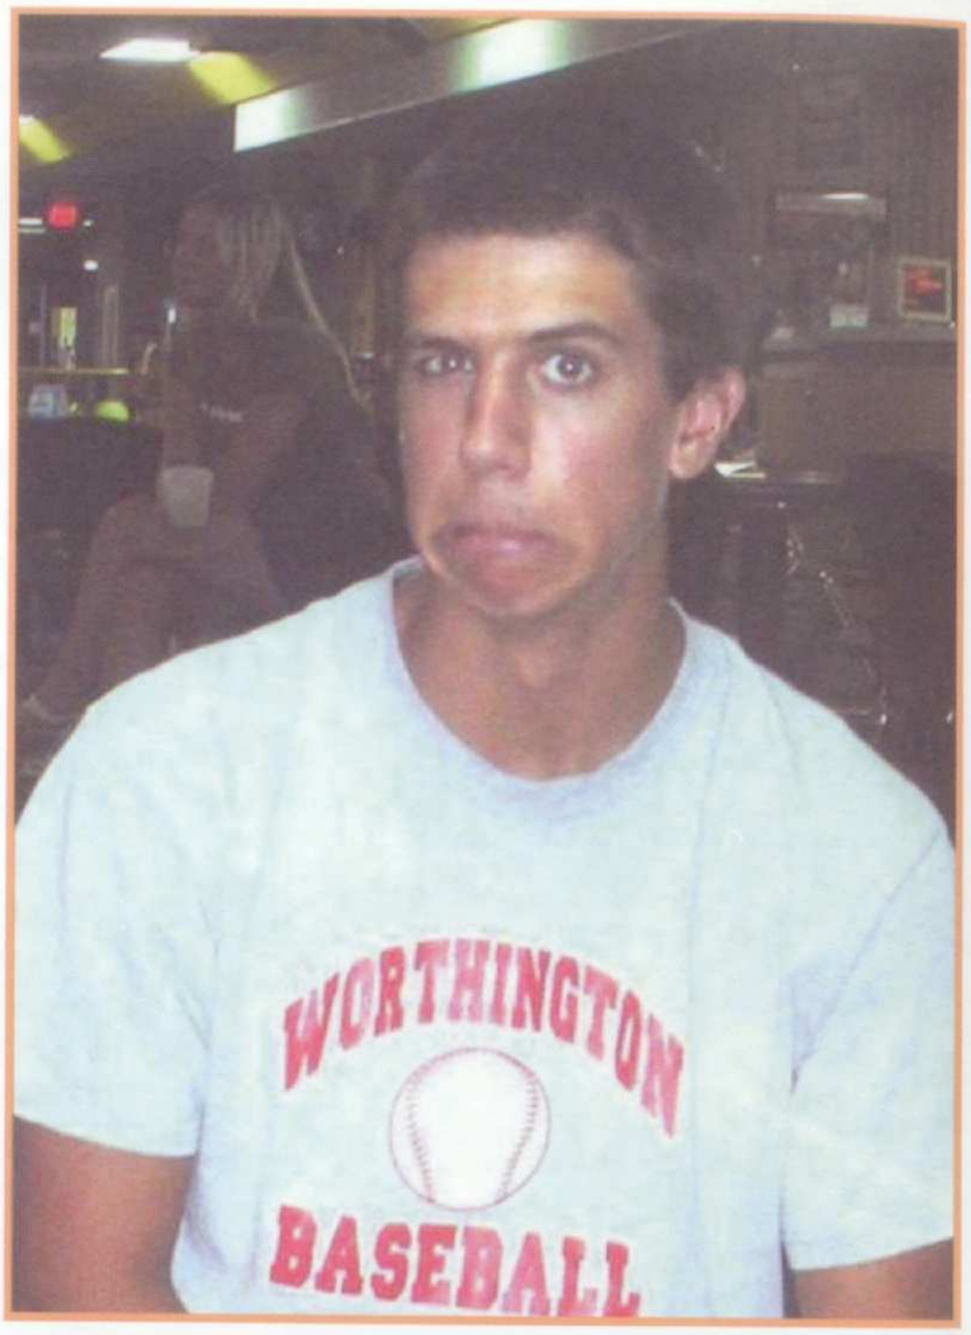
The MTV camera crew and Sam's Made Coach, Mike Jones, all lent. Sam advice and support during their 3 month stay in Worthington.

At the talent show Sam finally got the chance to put all the rumors and speculations to rest as she proved that her hard work had paid off.

This year's winners- Irish Step Dancers led by Casey Schools.

Former Evening Street Eagles, and 2006 Graduates, huddled together on their old stomping grounds to prove that their frienships have not faded. "It's funny because the same kids who were my best friends in kindergarten, are still my best friends today," said senior Meriden Peters.

It may look as if senior Mike Carnahan is not enjoying his time re-visiting Colonial Hills Elementry, but actually he's being silly! Getting in touch with his inner child, Mike makes a crazy face to entertain the camera.



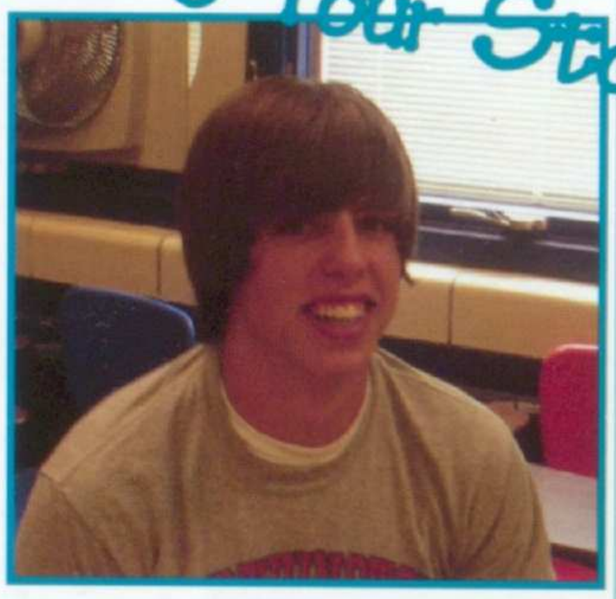
This group of Wilson Hill veterans are taking a trip back to the wonder years of Elementary school. Looking back on all the coloring books and comical pictures, these girls are having a blast from the past!

When students returned to their first schools, they enjoyed the chance to talk with friends and teachers, laugh over old memories, and look at pictures from those years spent in K-6. Some students even recieved letters that they had written to themselves years earlier.

What's Your Story?

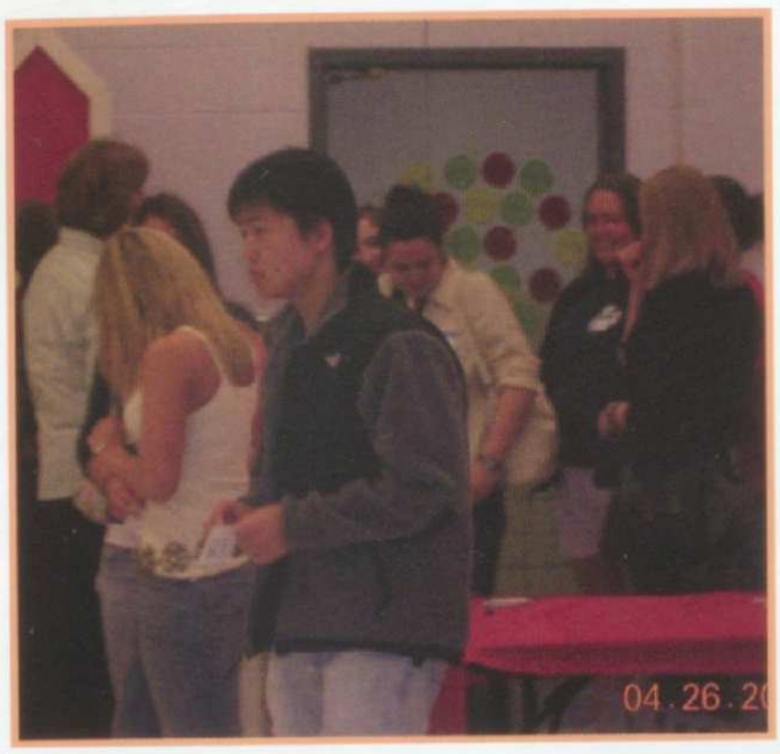
" I went to Worthington Estates as an elementary student and my first impression when I walked in was that I just felt a little awkward being so large compared to everything in the school. I remember walking into the bathroom and noticing that the sinks came up to my knees. I never knew I was that small in elementary school. One of my fondest memories was in sixth grade when Mike Olson dressed like a girl on the first day. That memory will defnitely stay with me for a long time. When I re-visited not all my teachers were still there, but I did get to chat with my fifth and sixth grade teachers and it was so much fun catching up on old times and looking at all my funny stories from elementary school."

- Andrew Hawkins, Senior



Senior Sarah Petry reminisces at her grade school as everyone seems to have some tears, but mainly smiles looking back on old times. " I couldn't believe my name tag had my sixth grade picture on it," says Sarah Petry.

Back to Elementary

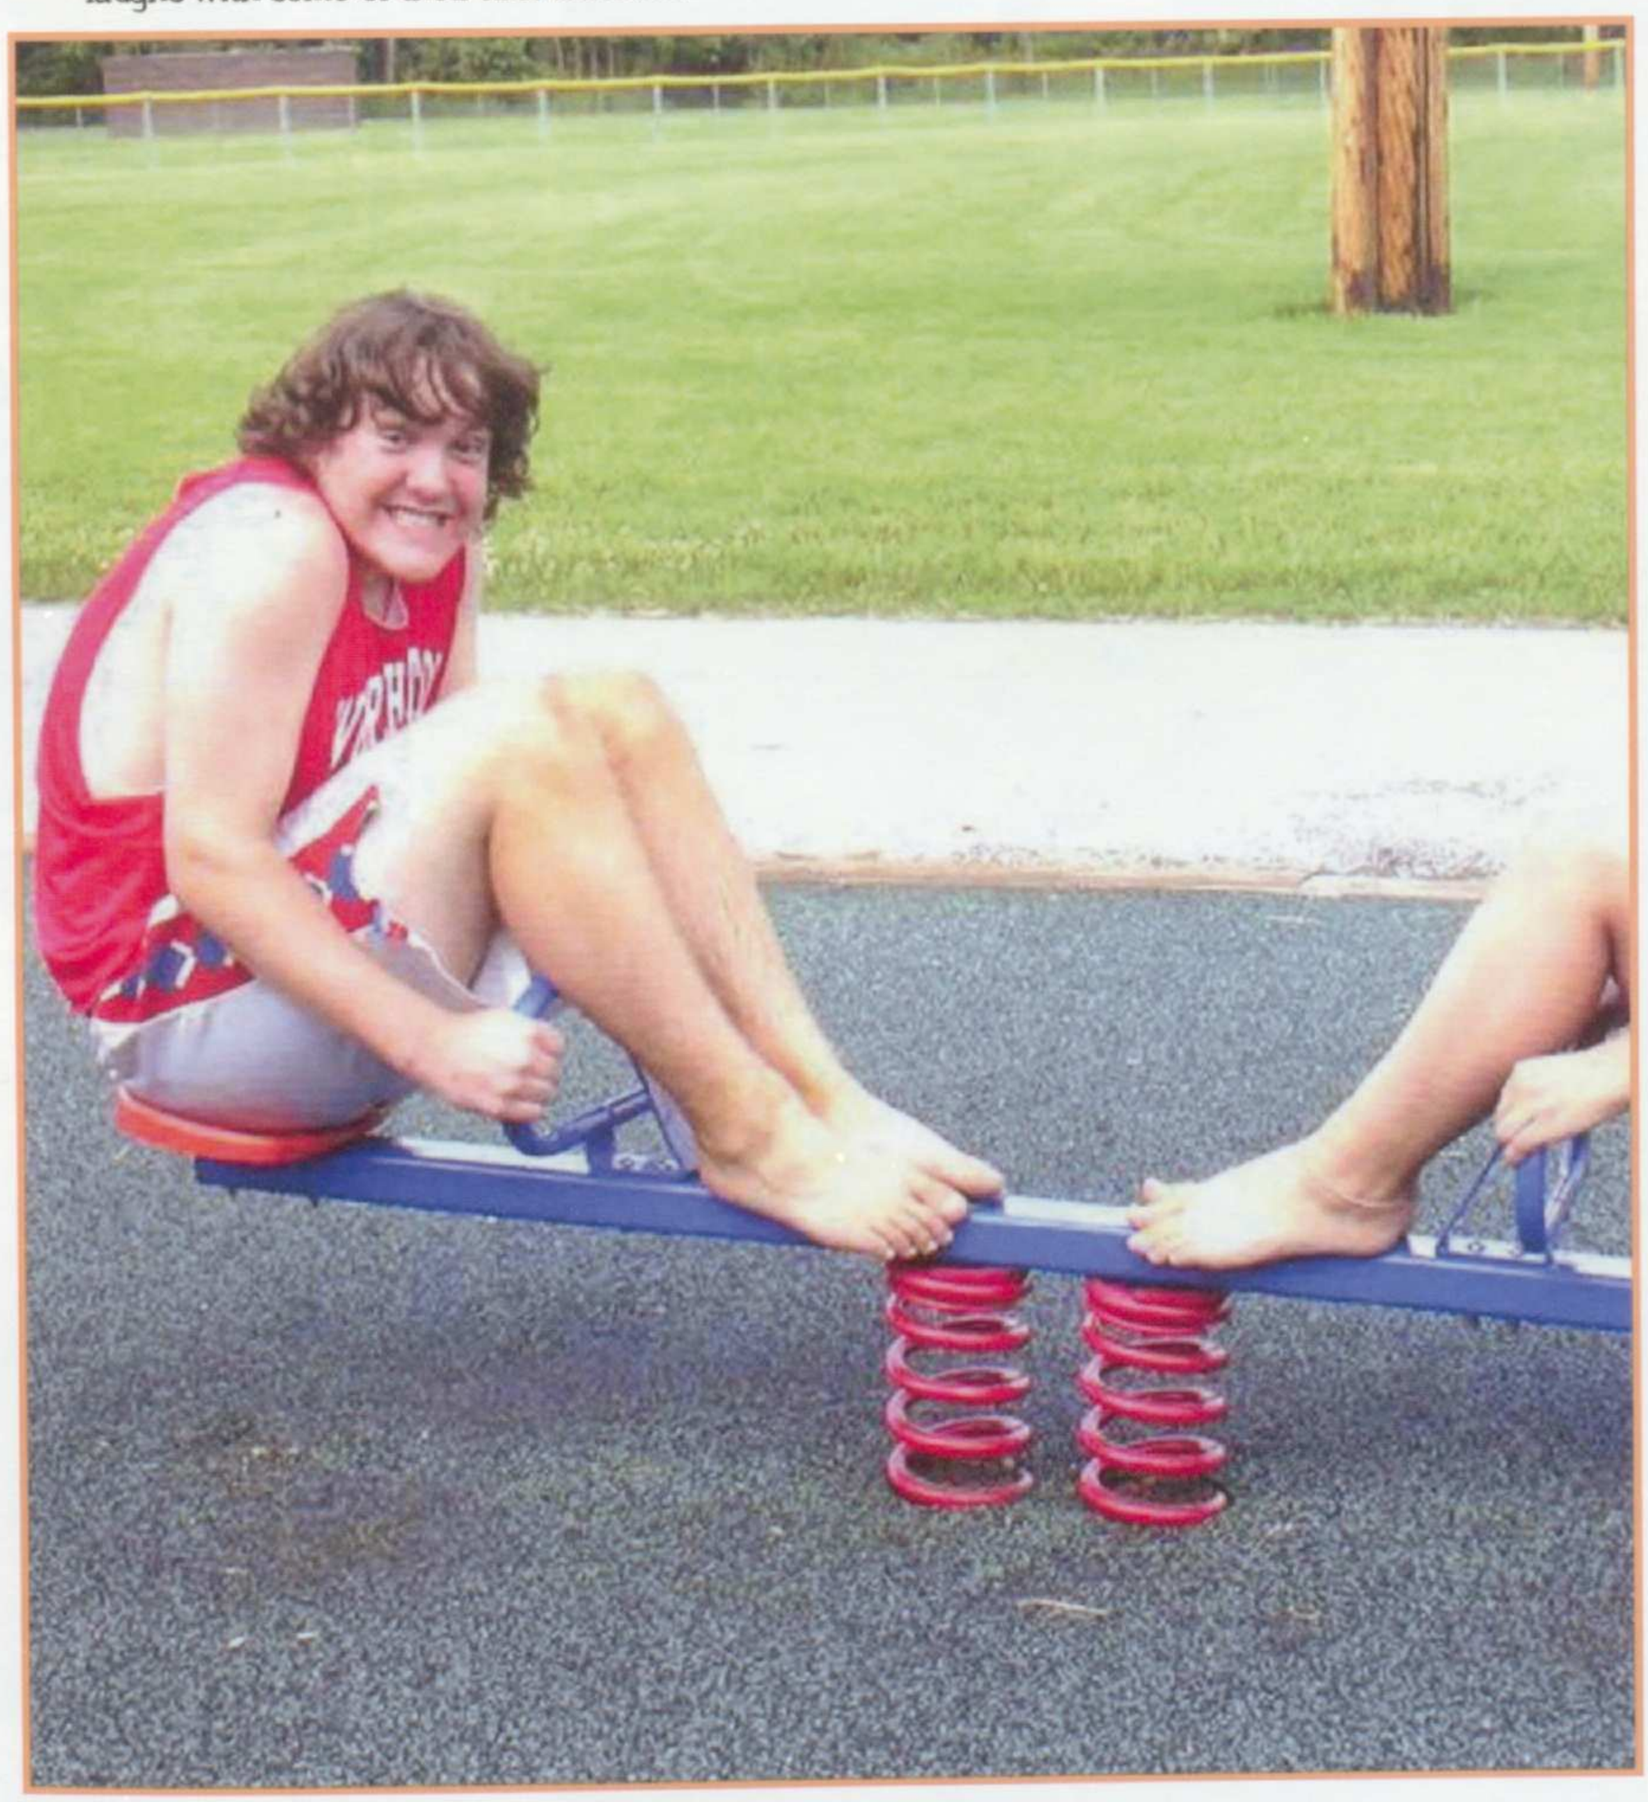


A crowd of once Wilson Hill Elementary students file into the old cafeteria to chat and have a few laughs with some of their first teachers.

Often times students who are preparing to graduate think only of the high school that they are about to leave behind. However, in the greater scheme of things, they are not only graduating from high school but also graduating from grade school as a whole.

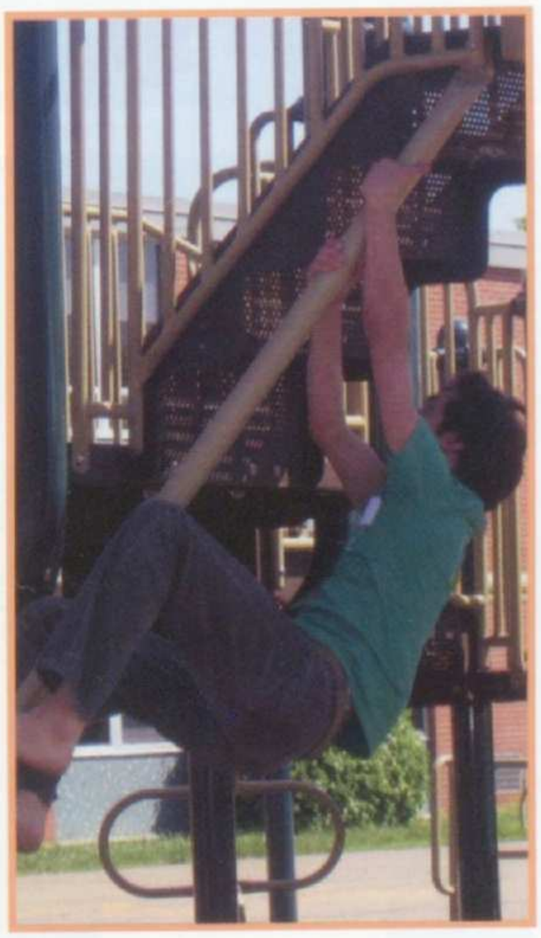
In late April of each school year, all 12 of the Worthington Elementary Schools organize some sort of party for all the current seniors who attended their school. These get-togethers give students a chance to visit with their first teachers, mingle with parents and community friends, and say goodbye to the place where they first learned to read and write.

"I went to Evening Street Elementary, and going back was so fun! The teachers were so surprised at how we'd all grown up and very curious about our plans after graduation," said senior Sarah Ratcliff.



Senior Colin Baker is ecstatic to be visiting his old playground for one last time before graduating from K-12. "This used to be my favorite thing to do on recess," says Colin as he and an old pal enjoy a ride on the seesaw.

Senior Lauren Rogers takes a trip down memory lane with her 6th grade teacher, Mrs. Hall. From school, to sports, and where she's attending college, it looks like they had a lot to catch up on.



Swinging from the jungle gym like he's still 10 years old, it's hard to believe that Senior Michael Davis is old enough to graduate. "My favorite part of elementary school was recess," says Mike, "I don't know how I survived high school without it."

" Is that us?" exclaimed seniors Laura Jewett, Lauren Heironimous and Taya Lichtenberg. These seniors can't believe who they are seeing as they look at pictures and watch videos from their younger years in elementary school.

(Right): The team races against each other to their next destination in an attempt to calm their nerves before a big race.

(Above): Even though Courtney Kinsel may think she has nothing left, she still manages to push herself to try pass the racer in front of her.

(Above Right): Bundled in sweats and blankets after the Eisenhart meet, the team smiles through the cold rainy weather. Through rain and shine the team was dedicated to running.

(Left): Amy Chadwell makes running look easy as she advances past another opponent. Even through all her injuries, Amy still showed she was a runner at heart.

Jessie Maier's toned calf muscles tighten and flex, propelling her forward.

Kristen Devine pushes herself to the limit as she speeds to the finish line.

CAPTAINS

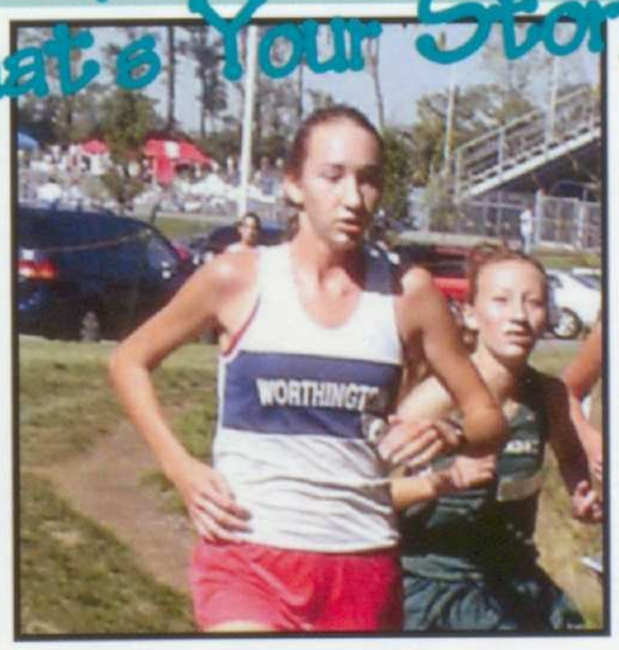
"This year the team was really close. We had a lot of fun together, and that helped us run better because we felt an obligation to each other."
-Amy Chadwell, Senior

"This year has been about getting to know the girls and having a good time together. As a team, we raced well and pretty consistently."
-Shruti Patel, Senior

"What summarizes this season for me is pretty much that we never gave up. We always tried our best and were positive about things."
-Katie Proctor, Senior

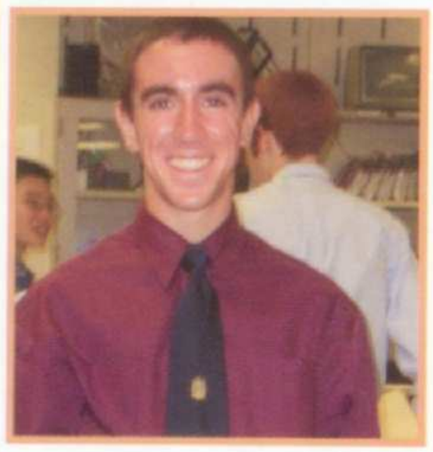
"I had a really great time this season and I know everyone on the team feels the same way. I was so proud of every girl on the team and how well our team did."
-Jessica Jackel, Senior

What's Your Story?



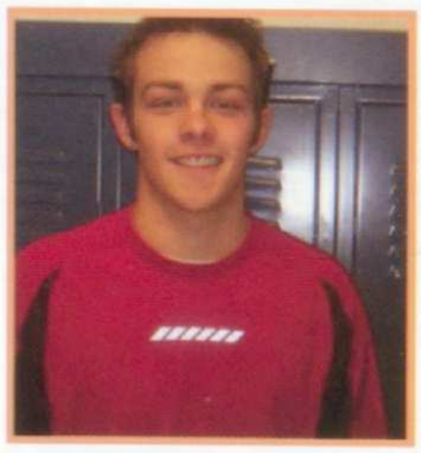
"At one point during the season we raced in a meet at St. Xavier High School. The meet started early in the morning so we stayed overnight in a Cincinnati hotel the night before. It was late and we were bored so all went into one room, turned our music up really loud, and had a dance party. We got so loud and crazy that Mr. Cox somehow heard about it and came to our door to tell us to stop. Not only was the dance party one of the most fun nights all season, but it also must've inspired us because almost everyone ran their best times the next day."
-Ellen Birmingham, Junior

Boys Cross Country



"My favorite race was when we raced at Westerville North. Our top five runners finished only nine seconds apart, meaning we all ran well."
-Rob Pukay-Martin, Senior

"We had a really close knit team and, as captains, we were really impressed with how the season went. We owe it all to Keystar Cox."
-John Bernard, Senior



"Our team was very close this year and I know we'll never forget this season. One saying that pretty much sums up this season is The Battery is Dead."
-Will Maetzold, Senior

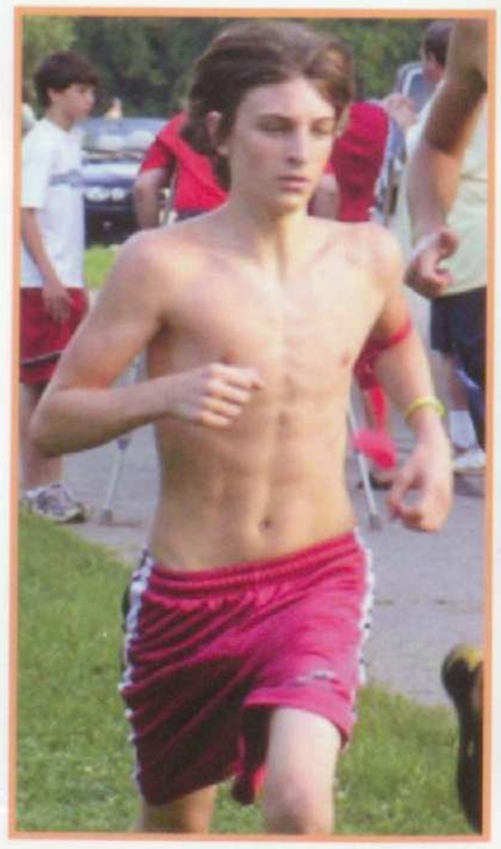
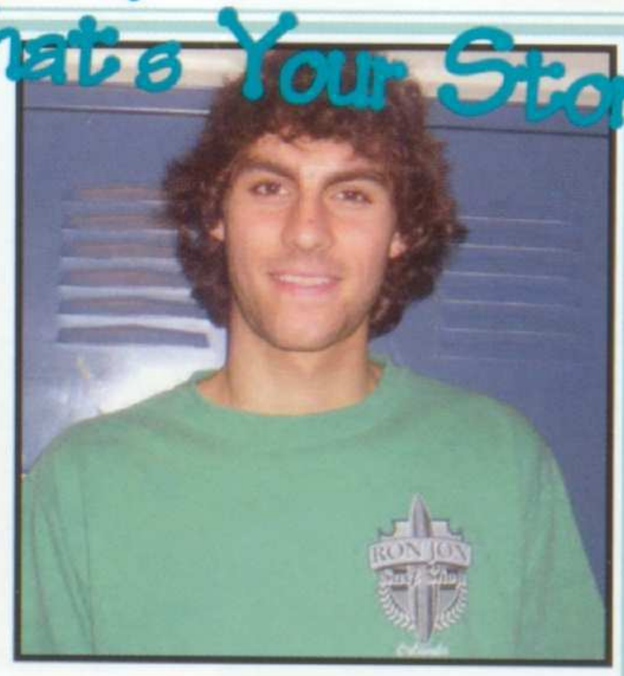
Nothing tastes better after a long morning run than a hearty breakfast, a fact the team is well aware of. Coach Cox leads his team to their rewarding feast in the Pancake Run.

Issac Szana pumps out the last mile of the traditional 5K race.

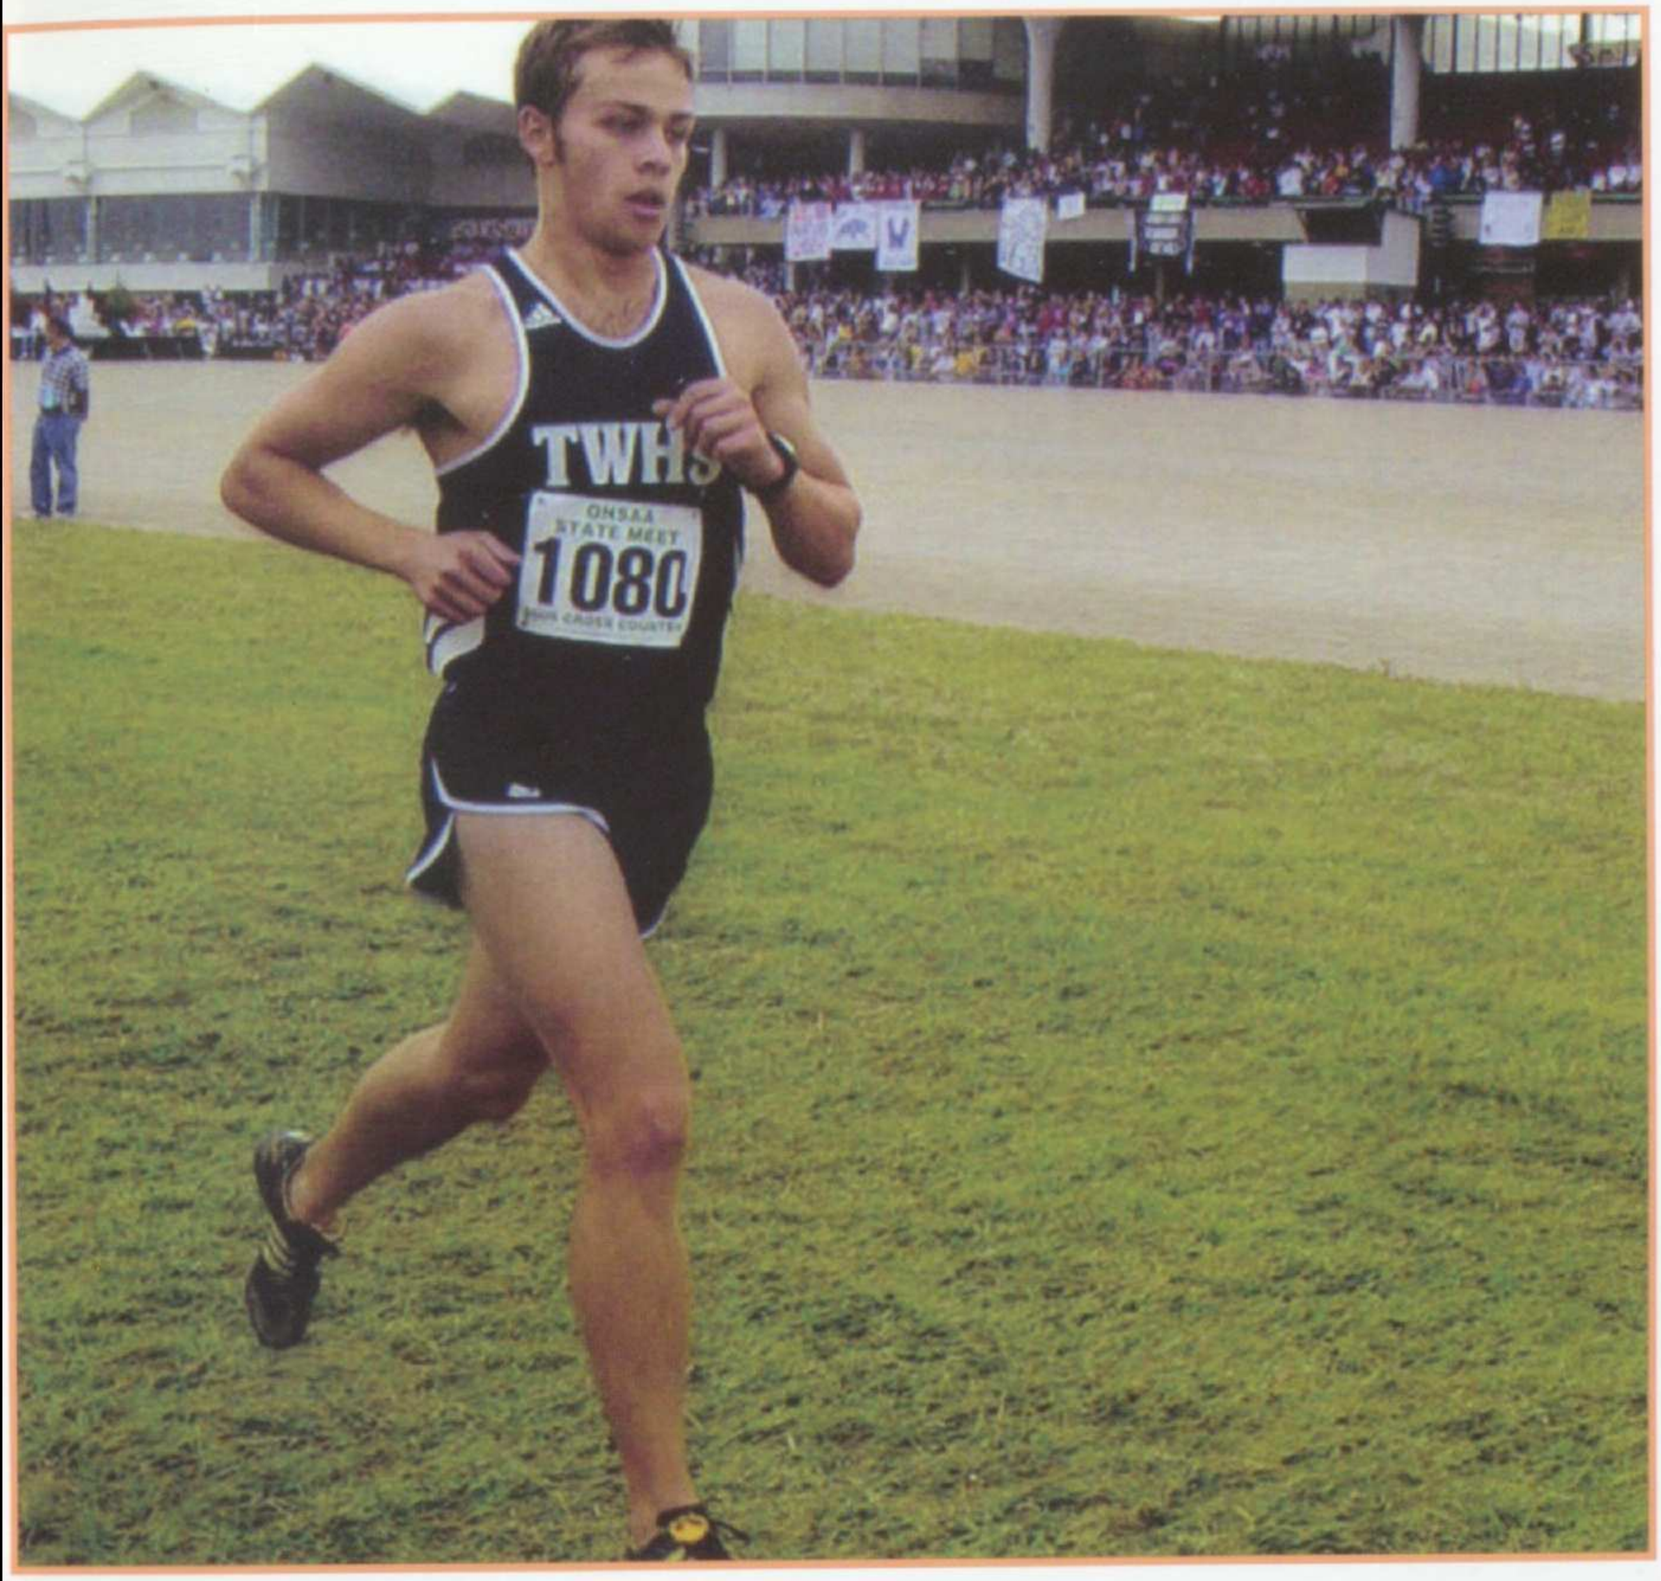
Henry Heisey pushes himself to the limit.



What's Your Story?



"When I think of our season and funny things that happened I automatically think of this game we made up. When we would have practices before school we would also have to shower at school. So, we made up this game we called shower soap-hockey. We would take the bar of soap and kick it around on the floor in the showers. It was just some random funny thing we did, but it definitely pops up in my mind when I think of our team." -Miles Lenoard, Junior



Thousands of fans watch in awe and cheer as senior captain, Will Maetzold, confidently leads his team in the state meet.

"Almost there, almost there," thinks Chris Kobylski as he nears the end of his tiring run.

The JV team swept the race at St. Xavier, which wasn't an uncommon scene during the 2005 season.

(Right): In an impressive act, the team proved they were concerned with more than just athletics. Together they marched in efforts to promote walking instead of driving to stop air pollution.

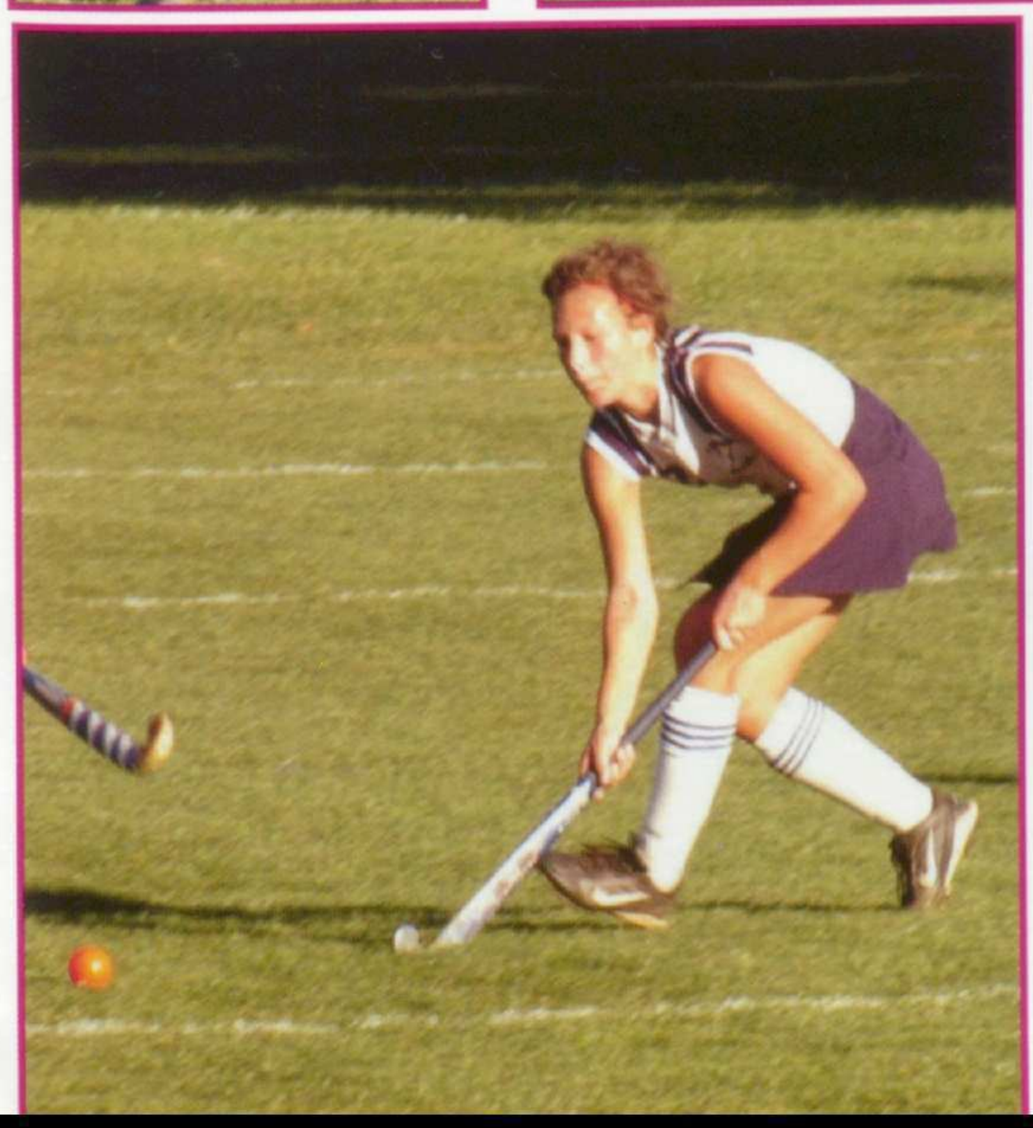
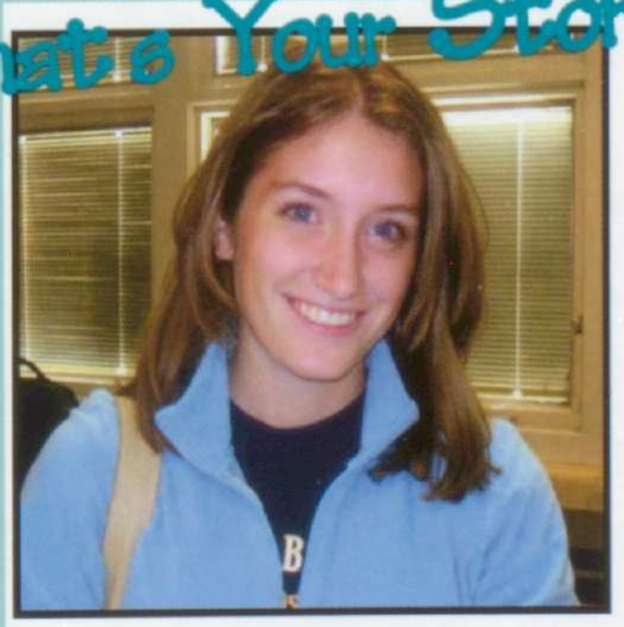
Teammates Amy Stillwell and Kelsey McHugh battle for the ball against Worthington rival, Kilbourne.



What's Your Story?



"I have been playing field hockey since freshman year, and I love it. This year was especially great. Our team was amazing this year! We not only had an awesome season but we are also extremely tight-knit. I have never been on a team before where everyone got along so well. I am so proud to be a member of one of the hardest working teams at Thomas, and our success proves it. I couldn't have asked for a better team or season of field hockey for my senior year. Good luck next year girls!" -Katie Tomashewski, Senior

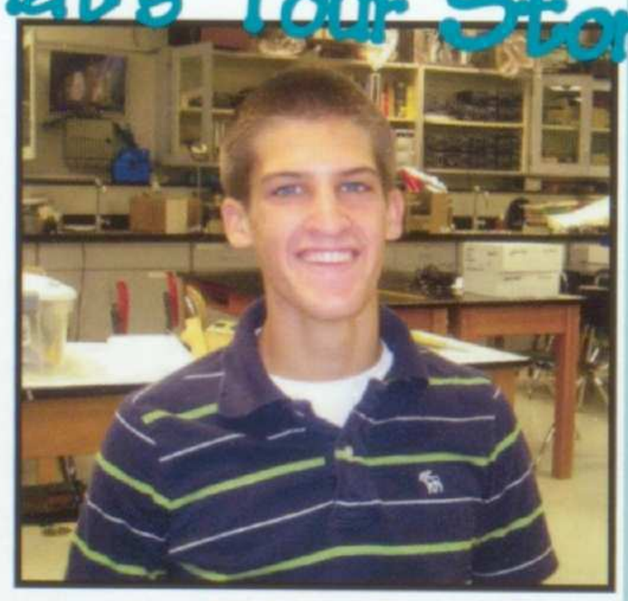
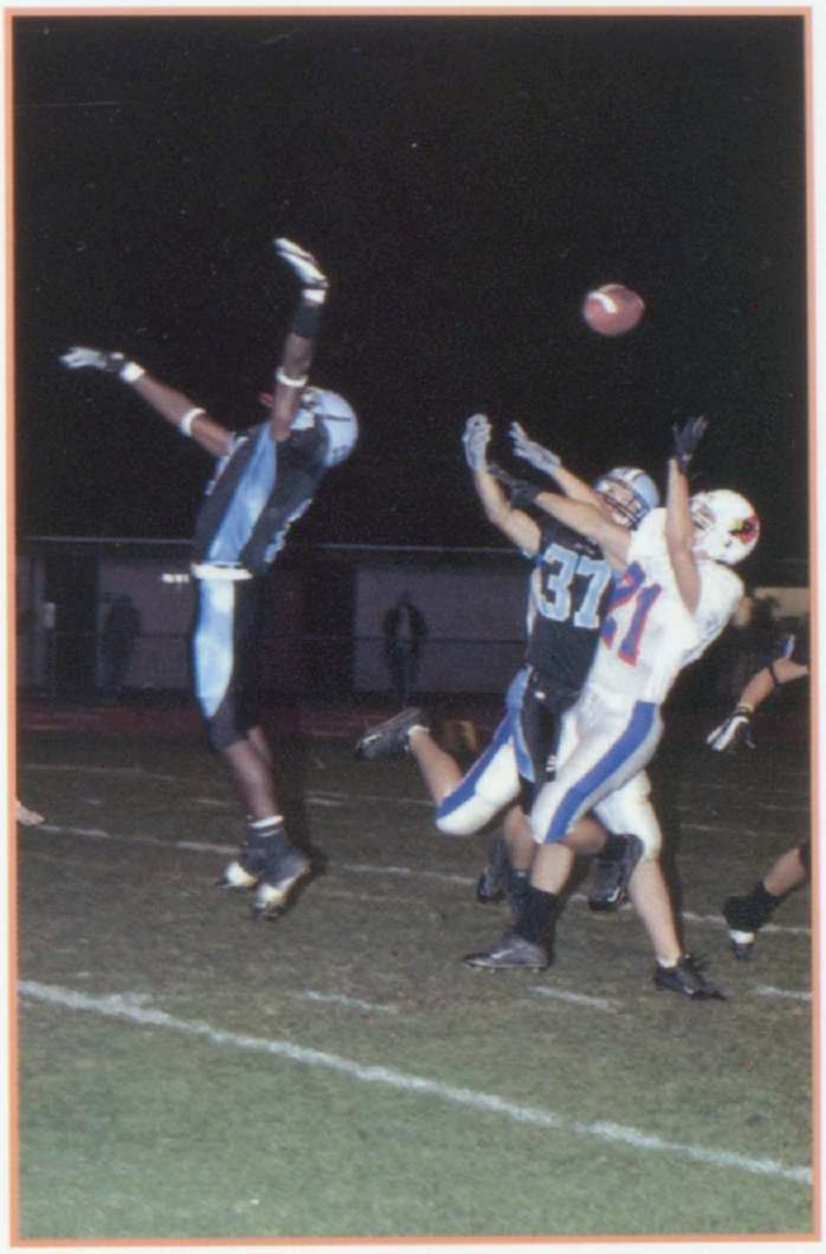
What's Your Story?



"I've practically played football my whole life. High school football has been a good challenge for me because we've had a rough past few years. This year, though, we had a whole new attitude about the season and we also had higher expectations. We played hard in all the games and had more success then we have had in the past seasons, so you can see the program building. The excitement on Friday nights is what I'm going to miss the most. High school football has been a really good experience for me."
-Dan Ford, Senior



Looking up to make the pass is senior quarterback Chris Dorka. Blocking for him is senior Will Taylor.

Andy Princehorn reaches above the defense to make a catch for the Cardinals.

Ryan Sparks sets the ball for kicker, Nate Tarr, as he goes for the extra point.

(Left): Wide Receiver, Dan Ford, dodges the Hilliard Darby defense on his way to the goal line. He has been a major part of the Cards' offense this season.

(Above): Grabbing ahold of Darby's runner is junior Jeff McClain. He received honors as First Team All OCC, and will be a huge asset to the team next year.

What's Your Story?

"I started cheerleading when I was in 7th grade, and I haven't stopped loving it. When I started high school I was scared that I would not make the squad. At that time I didn't even know how to do a round-off. Now, I know how to do that. I pushed through and have been on the squad for four years now. Cheerleading has changed my life by bringing me so many new friendships. I love sharing all the funny times with the girls, and having long-lasting relationships with all of them."

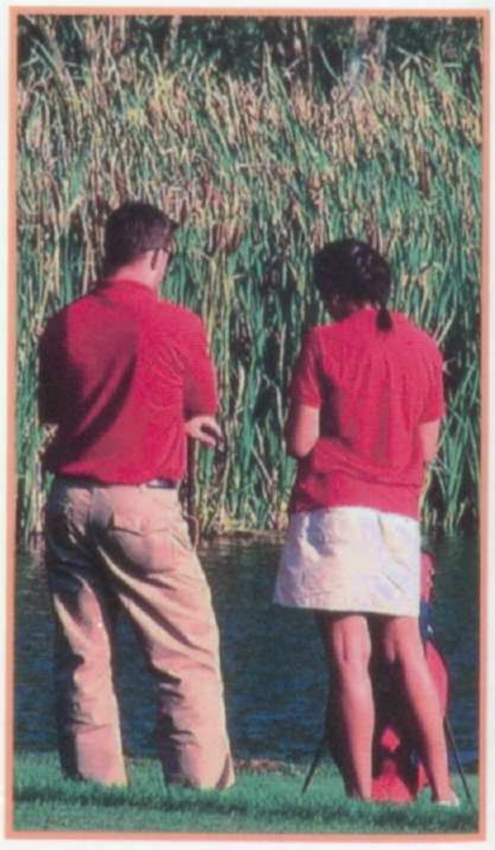
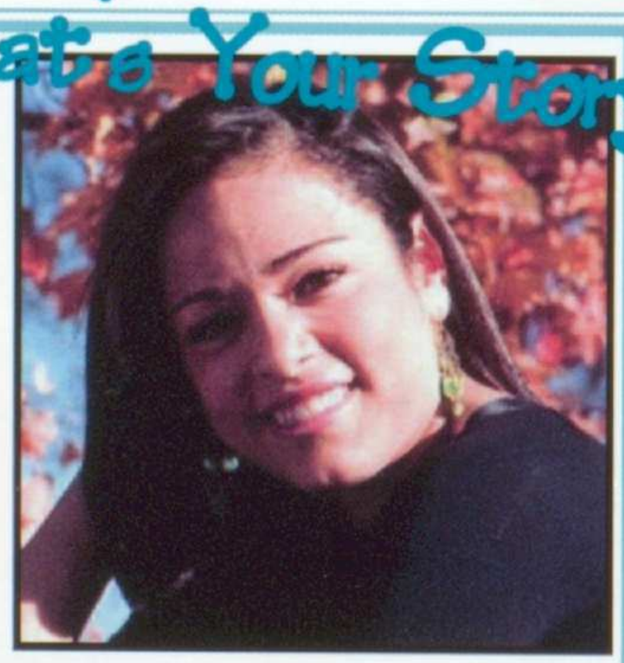
Can you place the ball any more precisely, Meryl Sudhakar?

Making the perfect putt is sophomore and first year letter winner Stephanie Price.

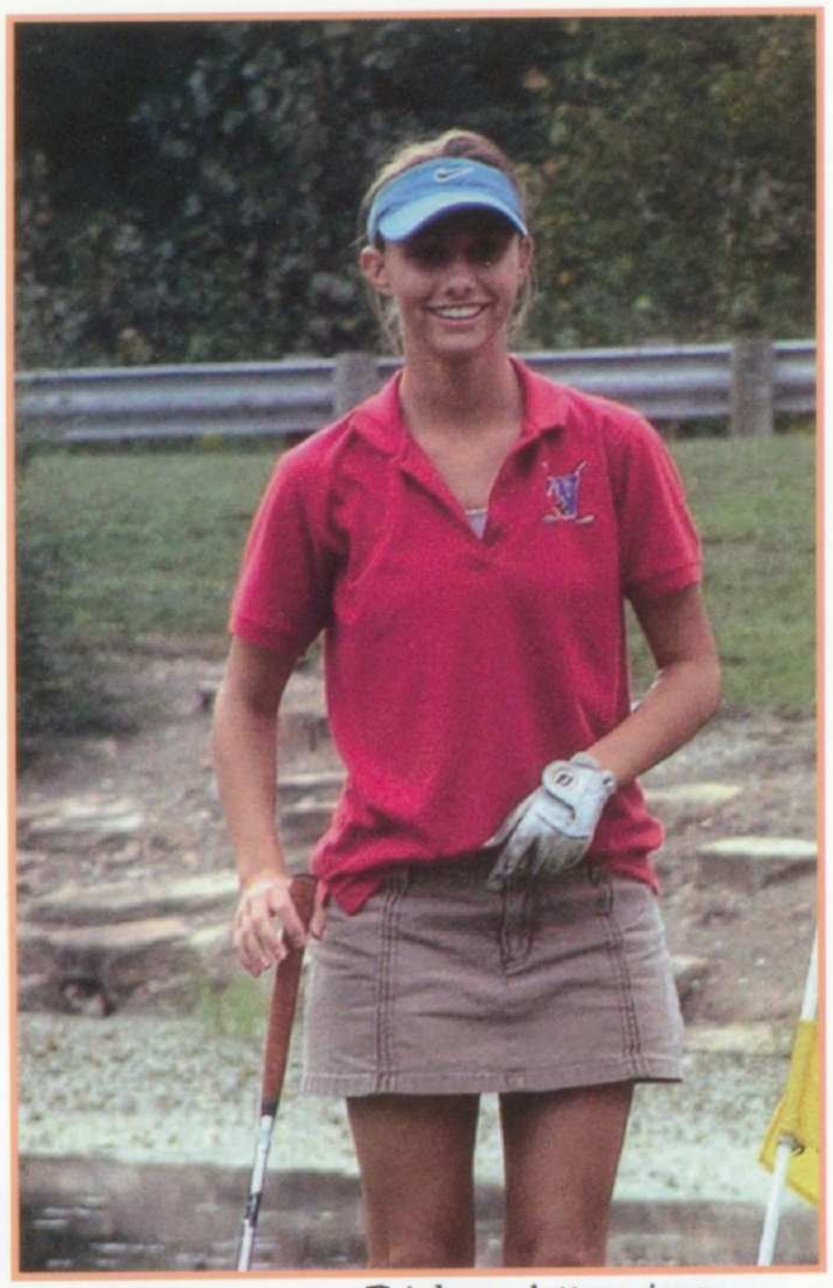
First year participant, senior Lily Azzad has a talk with JV Coach Quart after a difficult tee-off.



What's Your Story?



"This was my first year playing golf for the school, and it was a lot of fun. I improved my game and in the process I learned that I shouldn't assume anything. We were at a golf match and there was a hole with the tee-box, the place you tee-off of, right by a pond. My ball looked like it was going in the water, so I threw my club into the water. Coach Quart pulled me aside and told me my ball hadn't gone into the water after all. So, I left the match without one of my clubs. From then on, I was known as the team hothead."
- Lily Azzad, Senior



OCC Honorable Mention recipient, Alyssa Bernard, concentrates while deciding how to make her putt during OCC play this year.

Third year letter winner Hannah Ray happily walks back to the hole after her successful putt.

The girls are all smiles after their sixth place showing at Sectionals, which was held at Mill Creek.

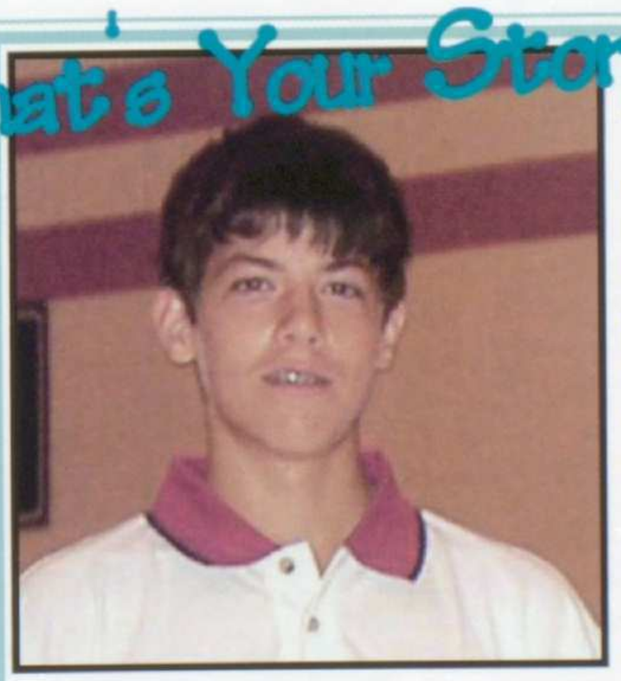
What's Your Story?



"Golf was a lot of fun this year. About three days before the sectional golf tournament I broke my right thumb. I was playing softball in my 7th period gym class. I was guarding third base when a kid who was running to 3rd base ran into me. I was not really sure if I broke it so I kept playing. After class my teacher told me to get some ice. Later on I got my thumb x-rayed and found out that it was broken. For golf I played the rounds and hacked around an 81. I didn't play well, but it was not bad for the circumstances."

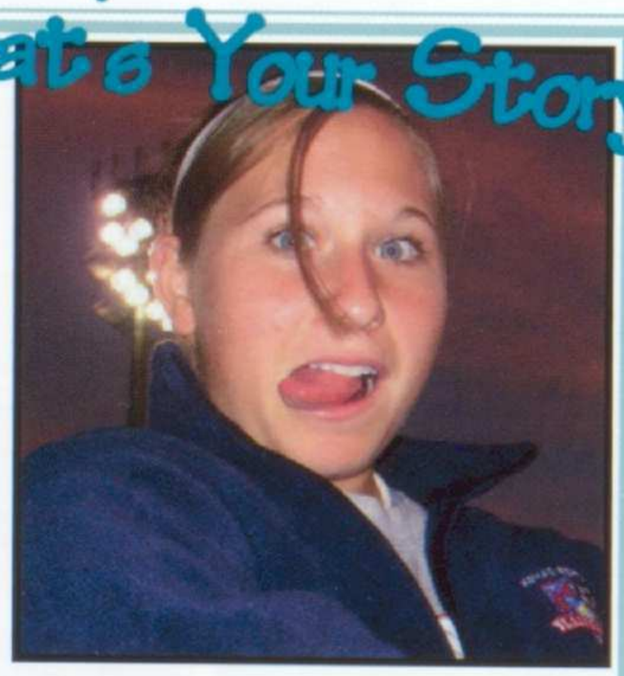
What's Your Story?



"I've been playing soccer since 6th grade. My favorite parts from this past season were definitely all the momeries with all the girls. Everyone said that this would be a rebuilding year for us. Last year we lost 10 seniors, and it was giong to be tough to catch up from that loss. Instead, we proved everyone wrong when we won OCCs for the first time in five years. Since this year was a successful season, we nicknamed ourselves the "Dynasty Team". We had a lot of fun with that nickname and I really think that name sums up our whole season." - Ali Jacobs, Junior Emily Damsel heads the ball as teammates look on. The Cardinal's won the OCC Buckeye division this season. The girls finished 11-4-3.

Junior defender, Amanda Arnold, contests a ball for the Cardinals. She's been a key part of the defense this year.

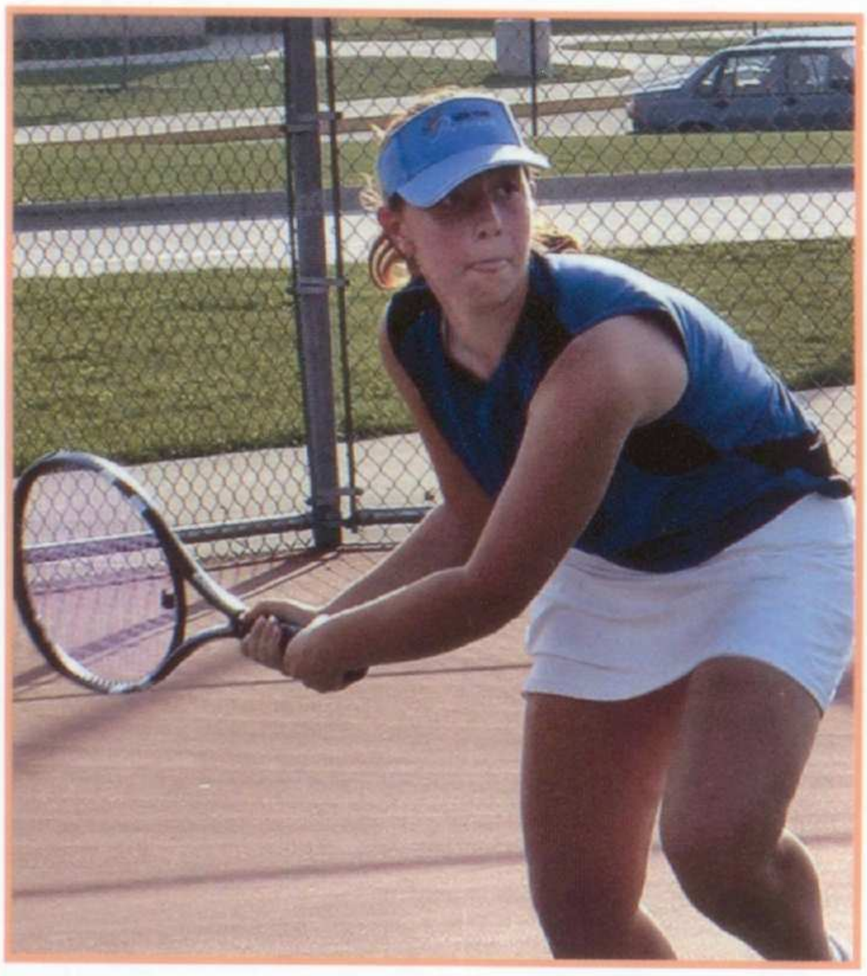
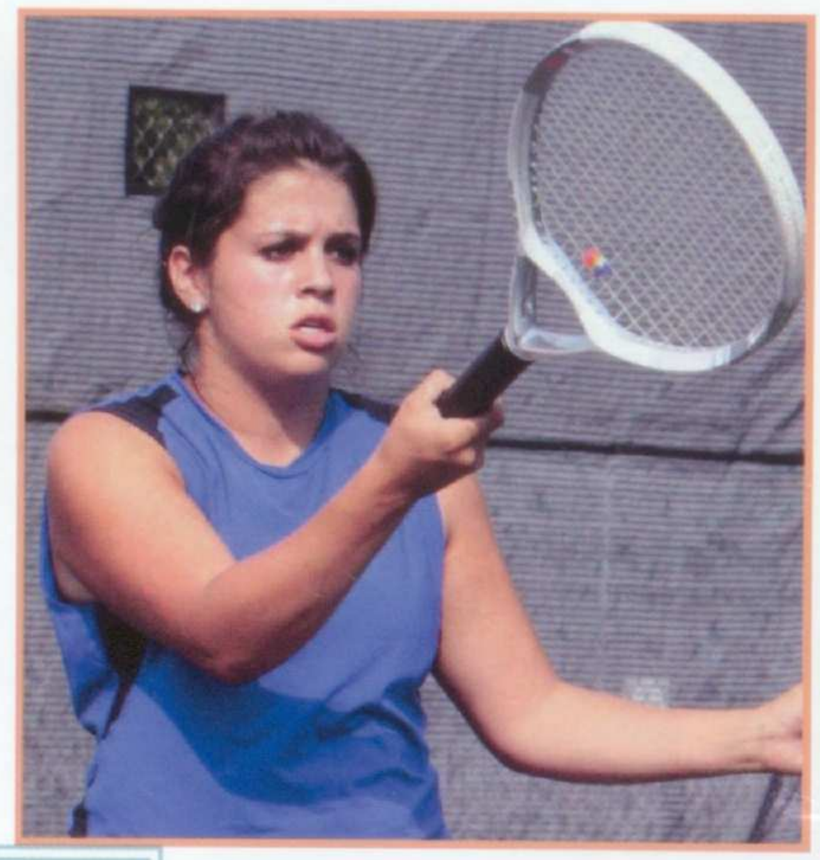
(Row 2): Coach Sara White, Emmie Shiotani, Kit Meager, Ashley Wilson, Divya Satyapriya, Juliane Wulfmeier, Rebecca Pope, Jessica Esch, Stefanie Clark, Coach Jen Rhoades.



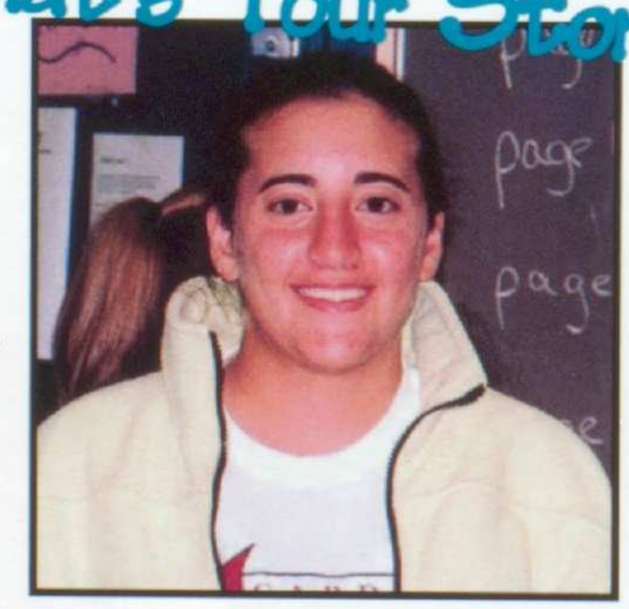
Concentrating Jennifer Greene plays out her plan of attack.

With a serious look on her face, Liz Palmer hits the ball back.

As the ball comes to Abby Short, she is still prepared and returns it even faster to her opponent.



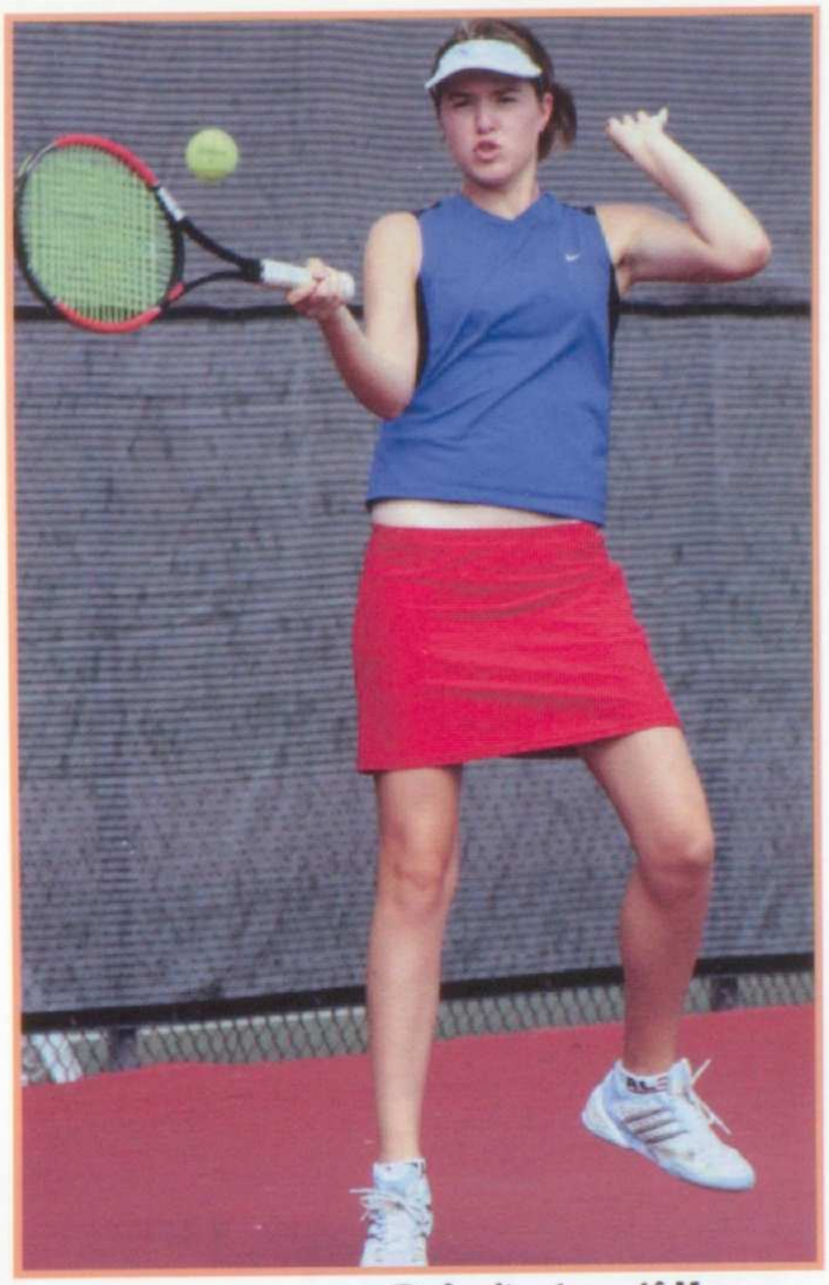
What's Your Story?



"There was never a day that I didn't want to go to tennis. It was just so much fun. I credit this to Ms. White, our coach, because she reminded us everyday that we did this for fun. She put pressure on us to play our game and to better our tennis skills, not to be the best or to even win OCC's. One memory in both of my tennis seasons would be earning 1st team all OCC and us, as a team getting the 1st place title in our OCC. My favorite memory would have to be pulling out a 3 hour long triple set win over Desales with my doubles partner and best friend Abby Short."

-Nour Eldadah, Senior

The girls get a little "love" from Coach Sarah White before a big match.



Defending herself, Yana Mereminsky smashes the ball into the her opponent's quart.

Getting ready to make a move is Hannah Simcox waits for the ball.

(Right): Waiting for the ball to return Nour Eldadah waits for her apponent to make a move.

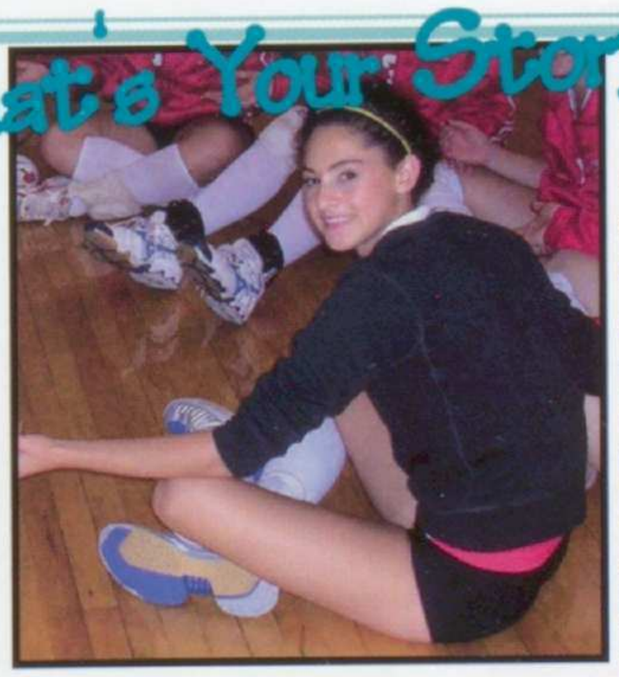
What's Your Story?



"We made it to regional semifinals this year which was a huge accomplishment. To get there we played Kilbourne in district semifinals. The day we played them the paper came out, with a quote in it from Kilbourne's team Captain. The quote said Kilbourne had been scouting us all year, that they knew they could beat us and it would be ea huge disappointment to them if they didn't. That quote really made us mad. That anger motivated us to play our hardest against Kilbourne. We beat them in three sets." -Amira Choueiki, Junior

Girls Water Polo

"We had a great season this year. Everyone contributed to the team. We should be just as good next year."
- Kate Dunn, Junior

"We have accomplished more this season than we have in the other three years that I've played. It's been really great!"
- Courtney Jackson, Senior

"The girls were really great this year. And because of that, it was a lot of fun to play as a team."
- Chelsea Noble, Senior

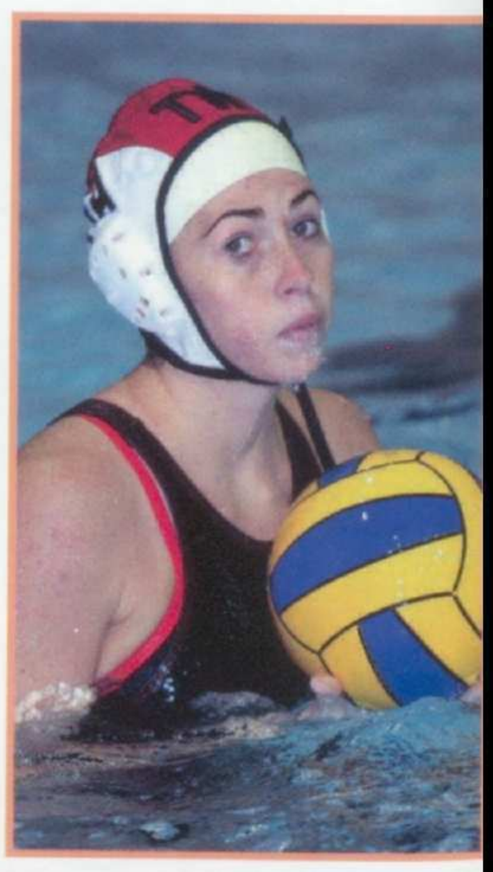
Treading water is a key part to playing the game of water polo. It is something Courtney Jackson and the rest of the girls water polo team must do every time they enter the pool.

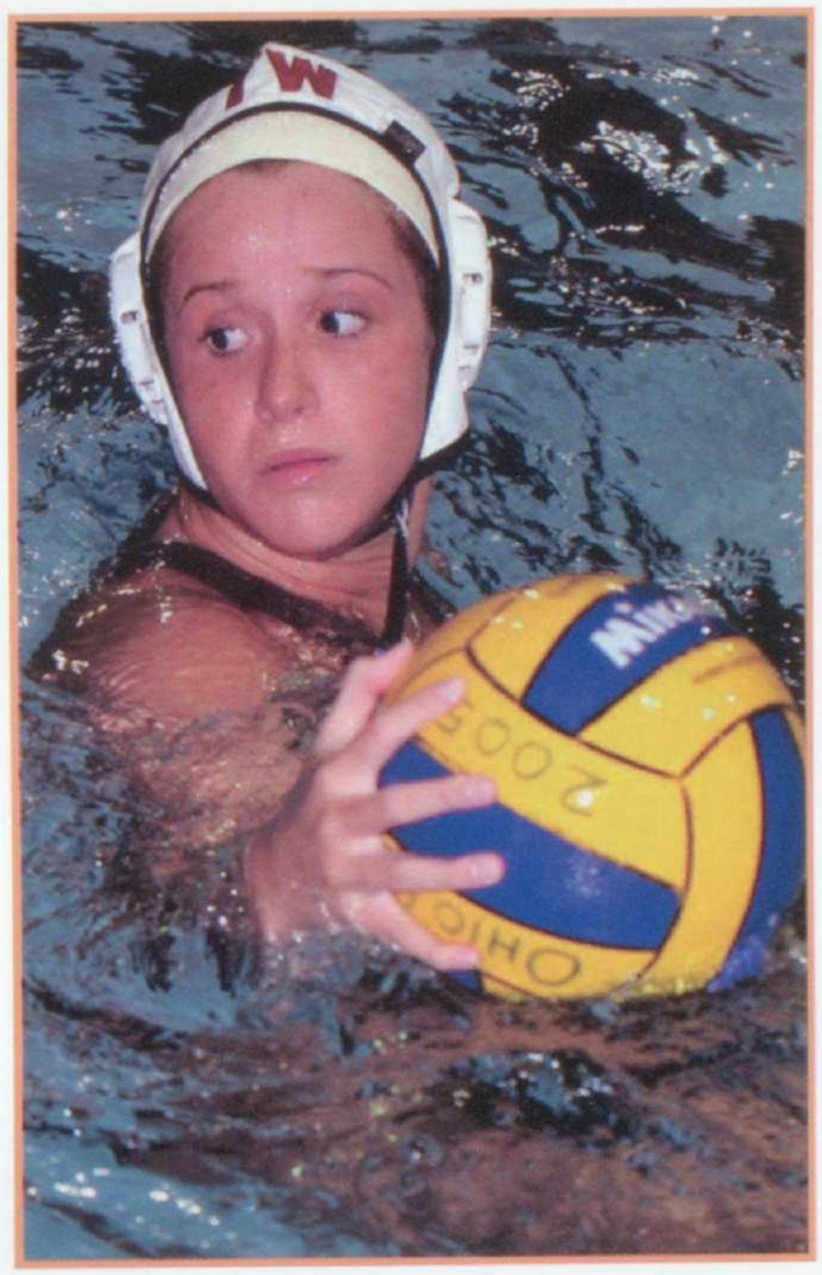
Mallory Meaney, second year member, and first year letter winner reaches for the ball.



Senior Morganne Meaney, short-end goalie, takes a break from saving the ball to pose for a picture.

What's Your Story?

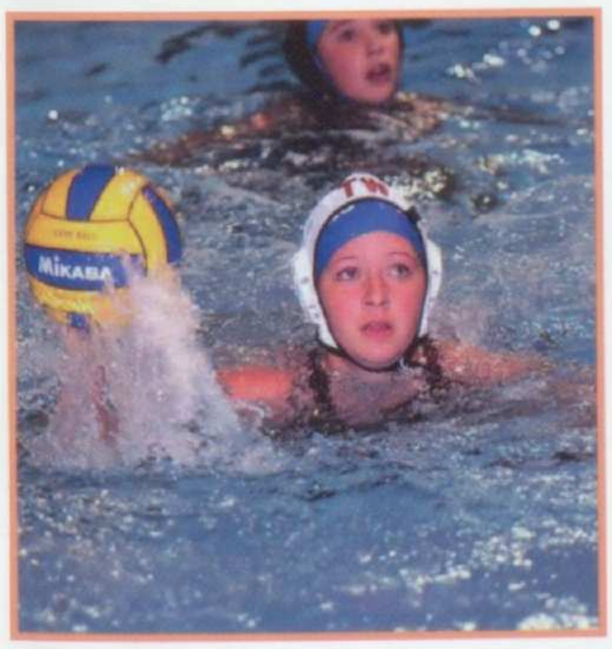
"This has been the best year of water polo yet. Not only did we really bond as a team, but we were successful in the pool too. My favorite story from the season was when we were at Napoleon in their outdoor pool, which was unheated. On top of that it was freezing cold ouside. We kept moving around and wiggling our fingers to stay warm. But even that wasn't enough. One of our sophomores practically got hypothermia, so when she got out of the water we had to wrap her in tons of blankets. I hope the team never has to play at Napoleon again."
- Maria Doyle, Senior



Sophomore Chelsea Johnson fights for the ball in a game against Kilbourne. Chelsea was awarded All State Honorable Mention.

Second year letter winner, Emma Stanger looks for an open person to throw the ball during regular season play.

Regional winners, the girls take a break to listen to a pep talk from Coach deBear.



(Left): Taking powerful strokes as she races for the ball is captain Kate Dunn. Kate, a junior, was on First Team All-State, and has been a key player for the Cardinals the past three years raking up some of the most points.

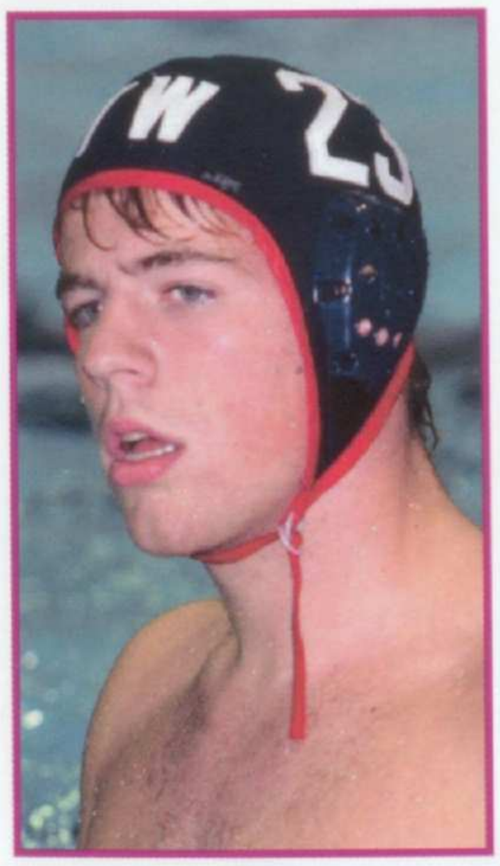
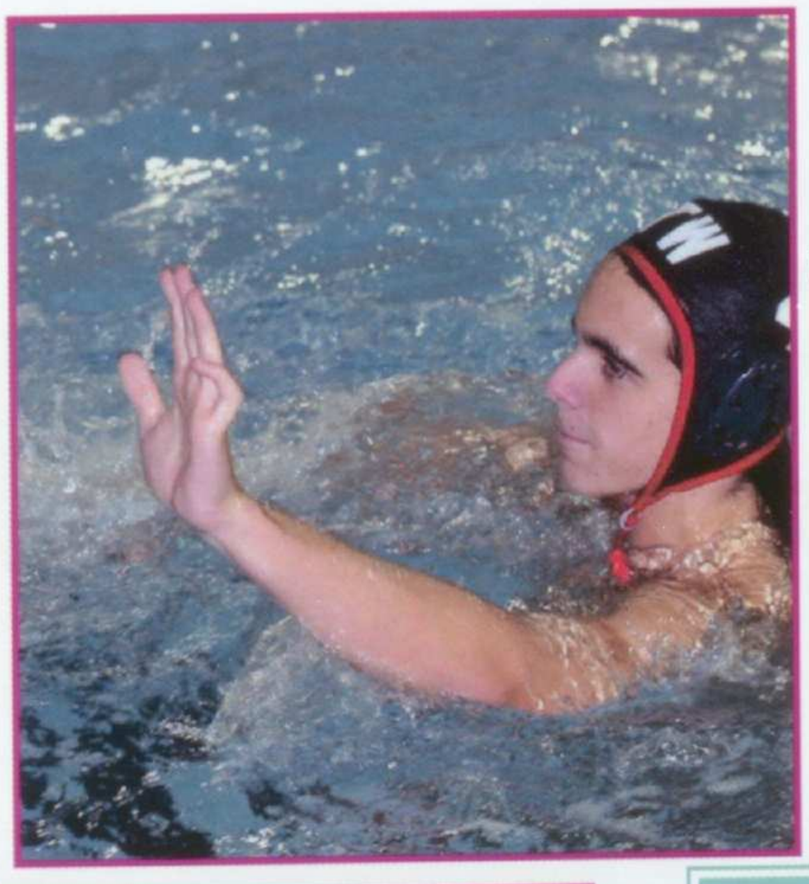
"I hope the younger players can work hard next year, so they can achieve greater success than we did this year."
- Eric Ness, Senior

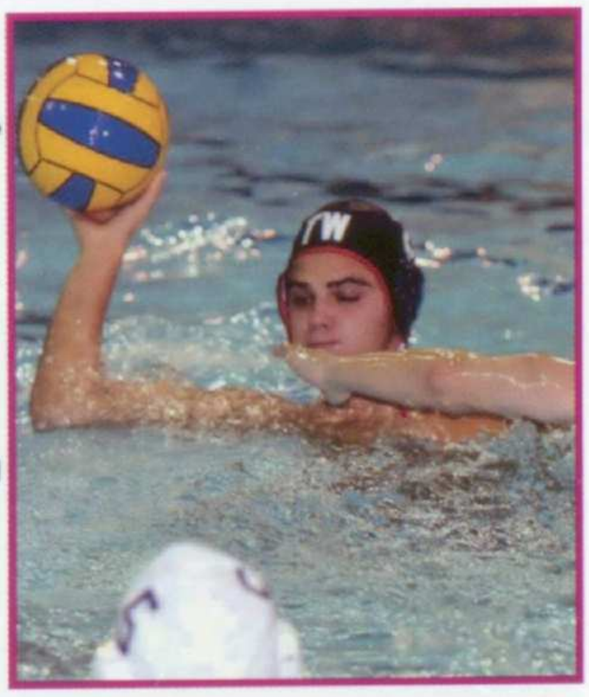




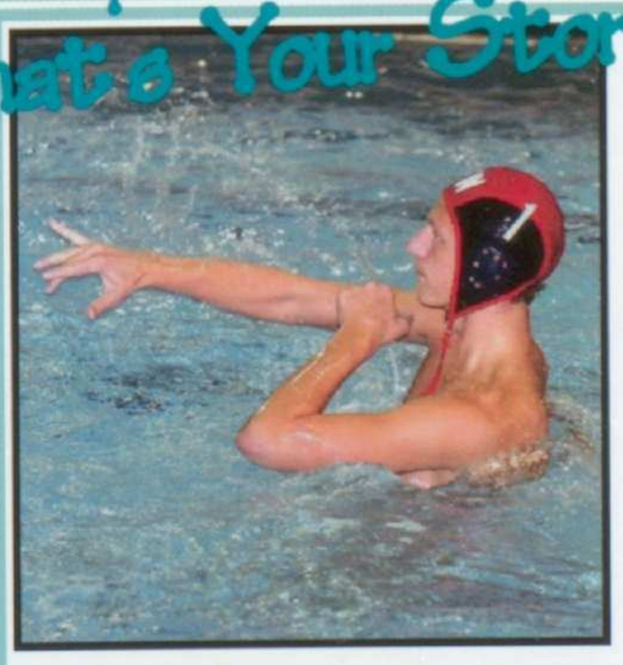
"Talk to the hand," says Jacob Kuss, who received several individual honors this year.

Craig Blocher can't believe his eyes; he made First Team All-Region and 1st Team All Ohio in his senior season for the Cards.

Making the perfect throw is no piece of cake, especially when you have to avoid the darting arm of an opponent. But junior Logan Swingle never seems to have any trouble doing just that.



What's Your Story?



"Since my freshman year, I have been goalie for the water polo team. Being the goalie for water polo has taught me a lot these past three years. I have had a lot of fun playing, learning, and most of all learning how to work with others towards a common goal. My favorite memory from water polo this year was when we were playing at Princeton. For the first and probably last time, I scored a goal on the other team from my goal. And making it to the final four of the State Tournament was the icing on the cake!"

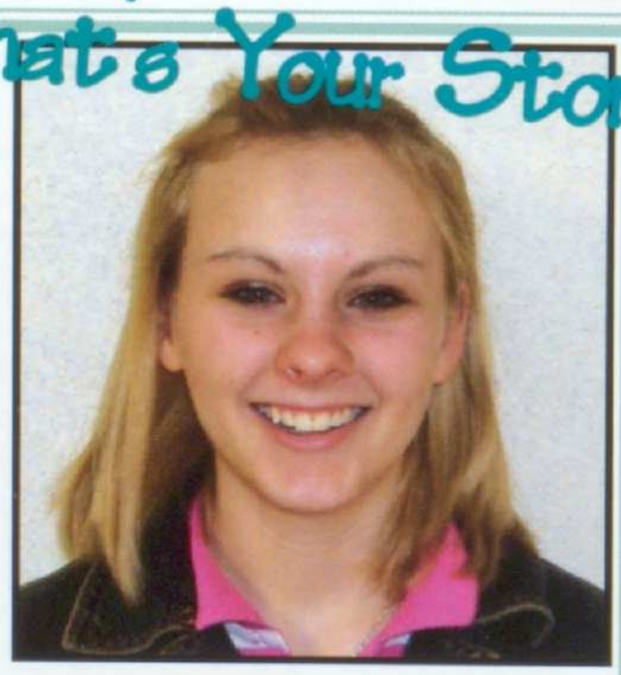
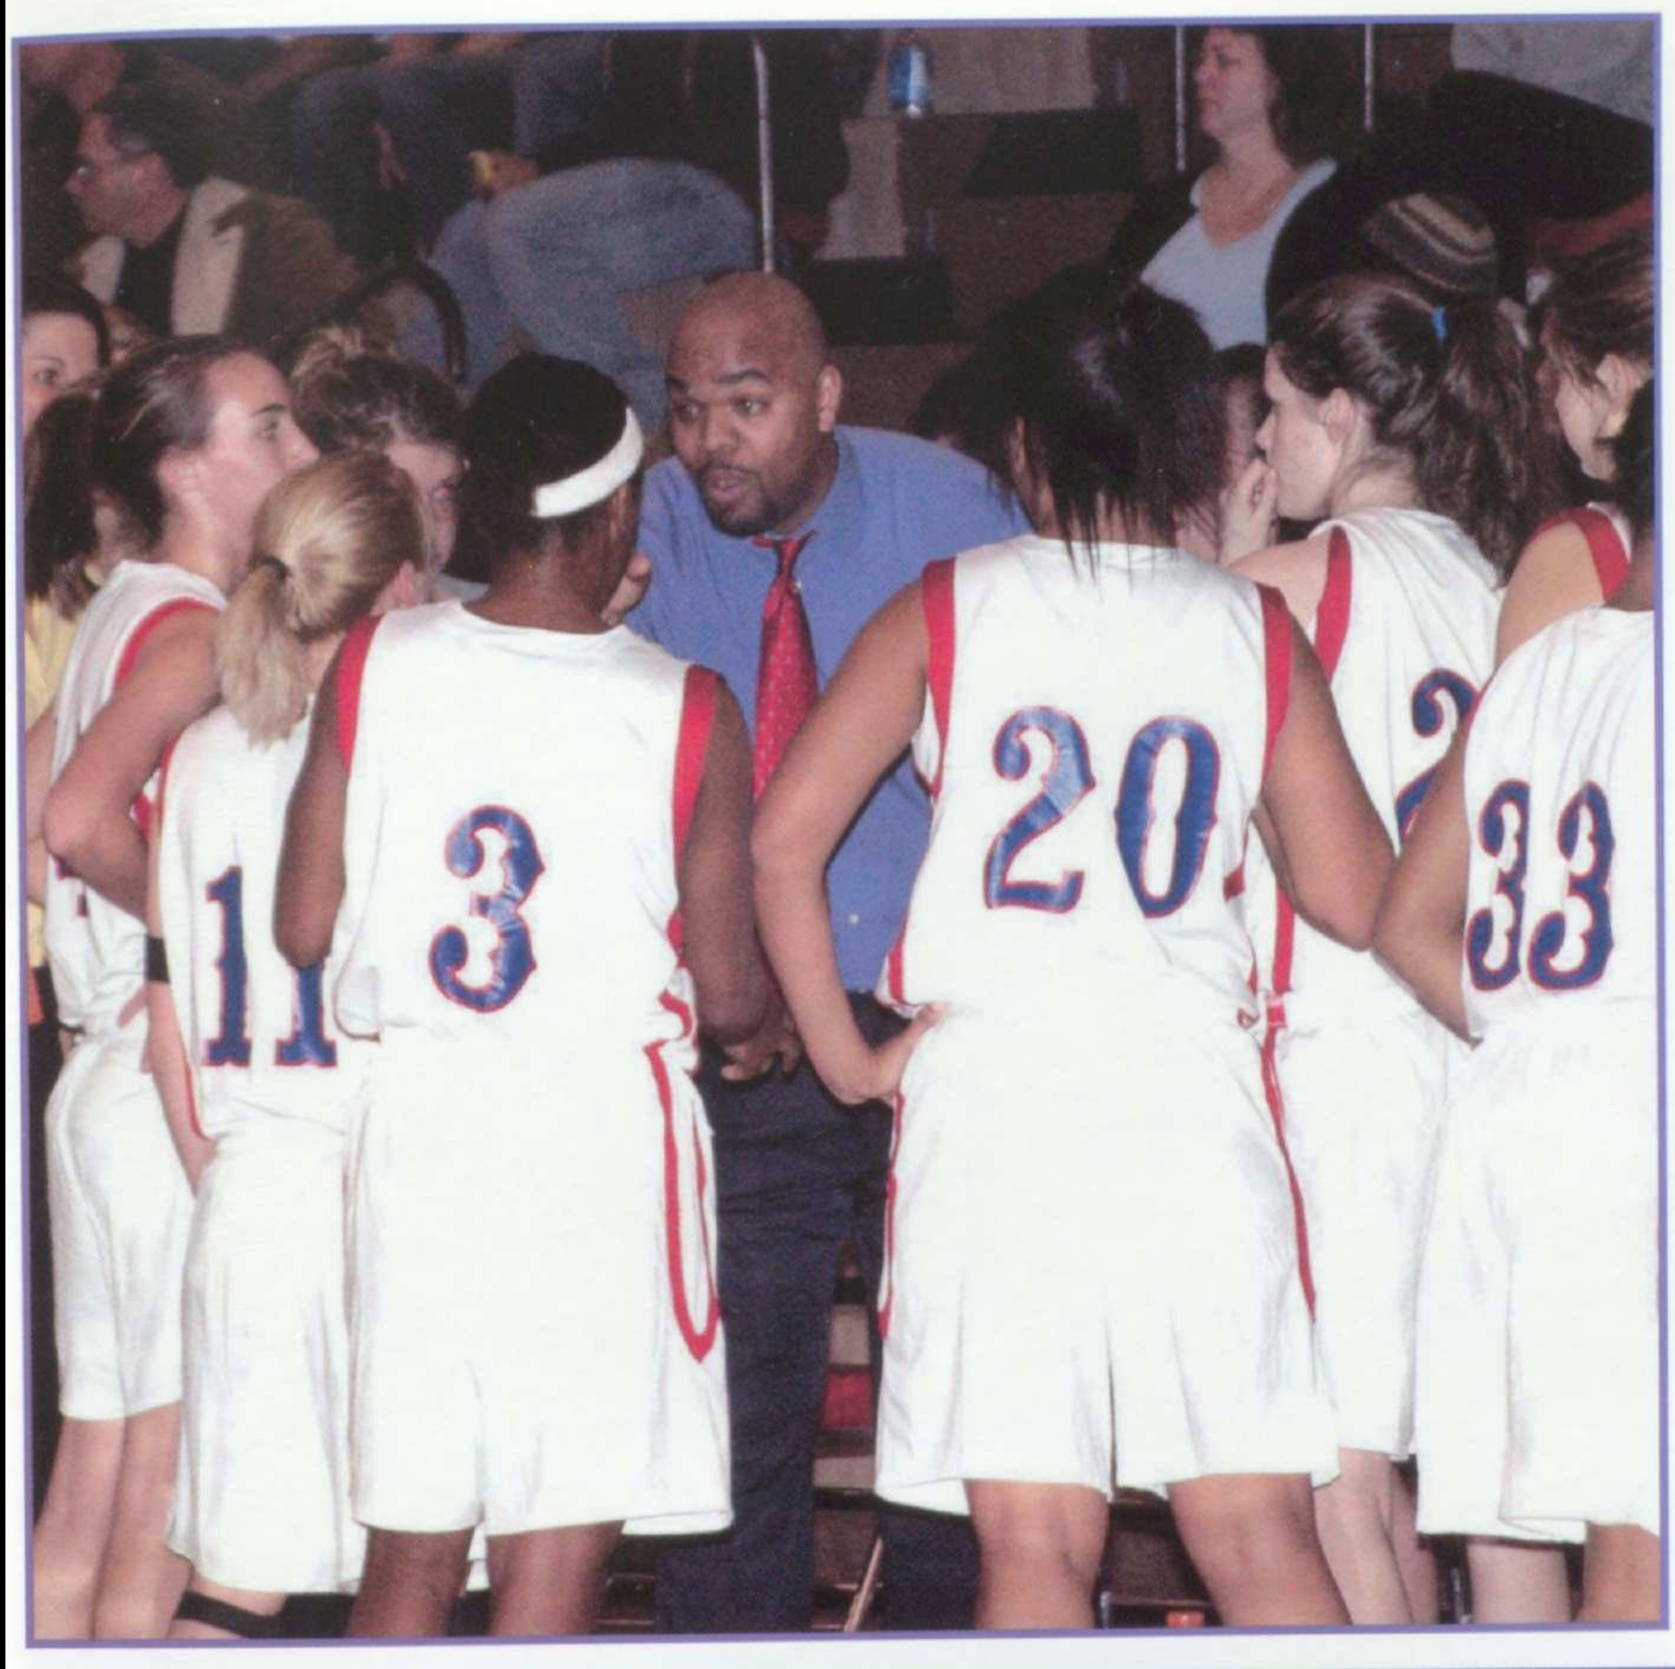
What's Your Story?



"Playing basketball this year has been a great experience for me. I'm glad my family and I moved to Worthington. This year we were forced to move because of my dad's job. Everyone is really nice, and we all get along. The team is like a big family. We have lots of fun taking pictures and making videos, which I am in charge of. I can't wait until next year to see what we will be able to accomplish. It has been hard adjusting to Coach Miller's coaching style, but I know I'm a better player because I have learned a lot. Best of all, all of my friends play basketball too."

-Christian Forbess, Junior



Coach Miller pumps the girls up before they head onto the court after a timeout. The girls showed resilience in every game they played this year.

Coming up for the rebound requires sophomore Arika Rhodes to rise above the rest.

Point guard Christian Forbess scrambles for the ball as she ducks away from her closest opponent.

(Left): Even though this is her first year on varsity, sophomore Meryl Sudhakar has no problems dodging opponents as she dribbles towards the basket.

(Above): Two bandaged fingers don't hold Kelsey Brinkman back from getting ready to pass the ball down court to an open teammate.

(Above Right): Erika Randolph and Meredith Patton aren't going to let this Davidson player get the ball past them.

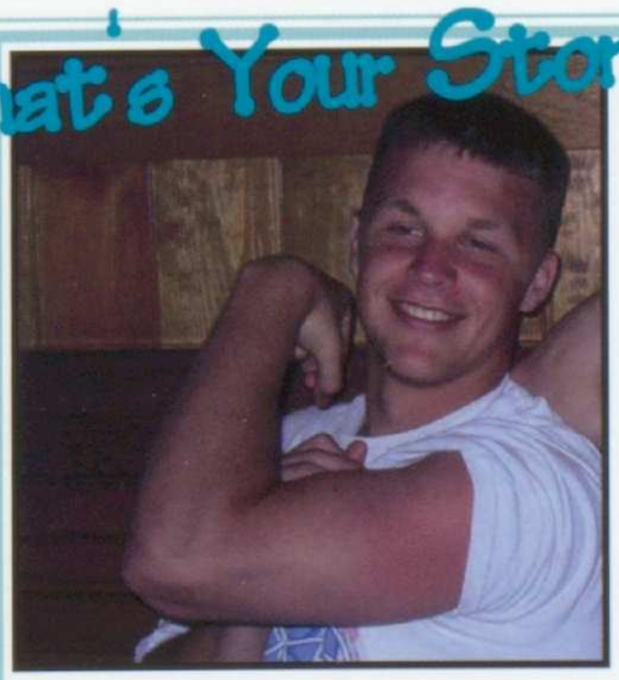
What's Your Story?



"Every summer the varisty boys team goes down to Fripp Island in South Carolina. Coach Miller and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Verne usually come. We play teams there and get to hang out on the beach so it's a lot of fun. This year we played really well and had a good basketball experience. One of the coolest things I remember was one night these deer just came straight up to us in the road. We were able to go right up to them and some of us touched them. Malcolm got one of the deer to eat directly out of his hand."

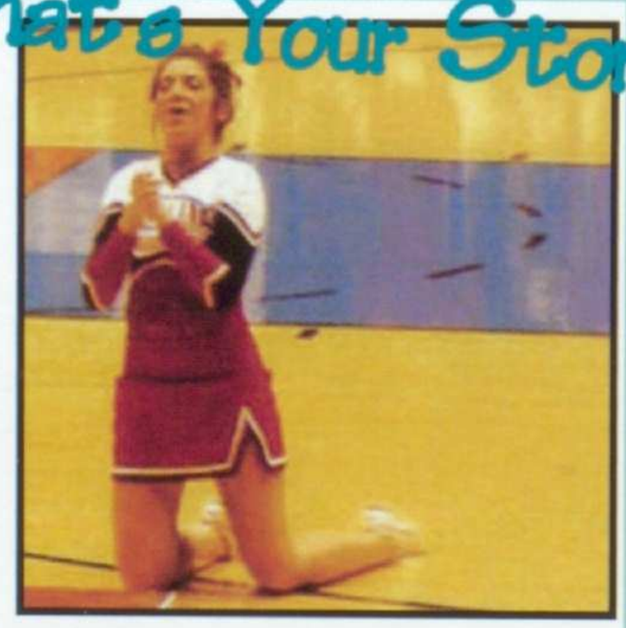
What's Your Story?



"Cheerleading this year was a lot of fun, mostly because of the girls on the team. One of my favorite memories was when we were cheering at the Coliseum during one of the tournament games. It's a lot bigger than Thomas' gym and we weren't used to it. In the middle of one of our routines I hit a slippery spot on the floor. At the same time Rachel did too and we collided into each other. We almost wiped out. Luckily we didn't fall, but there were about 30 people in the audience laughing at us."

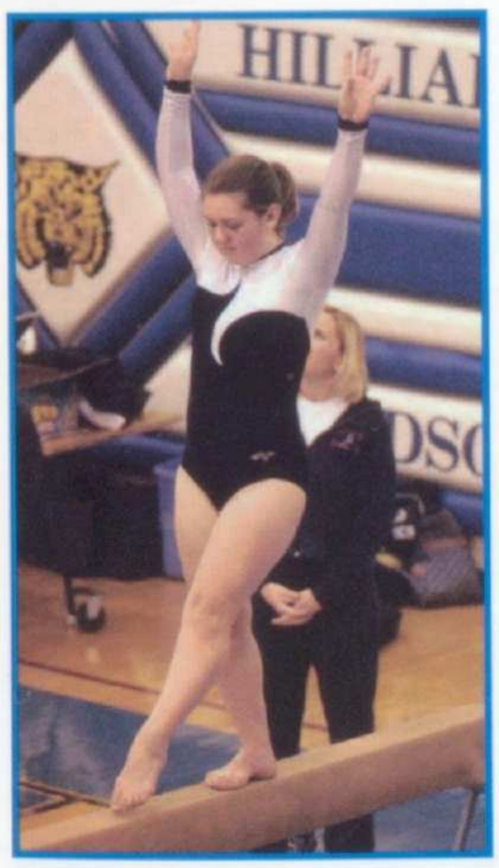
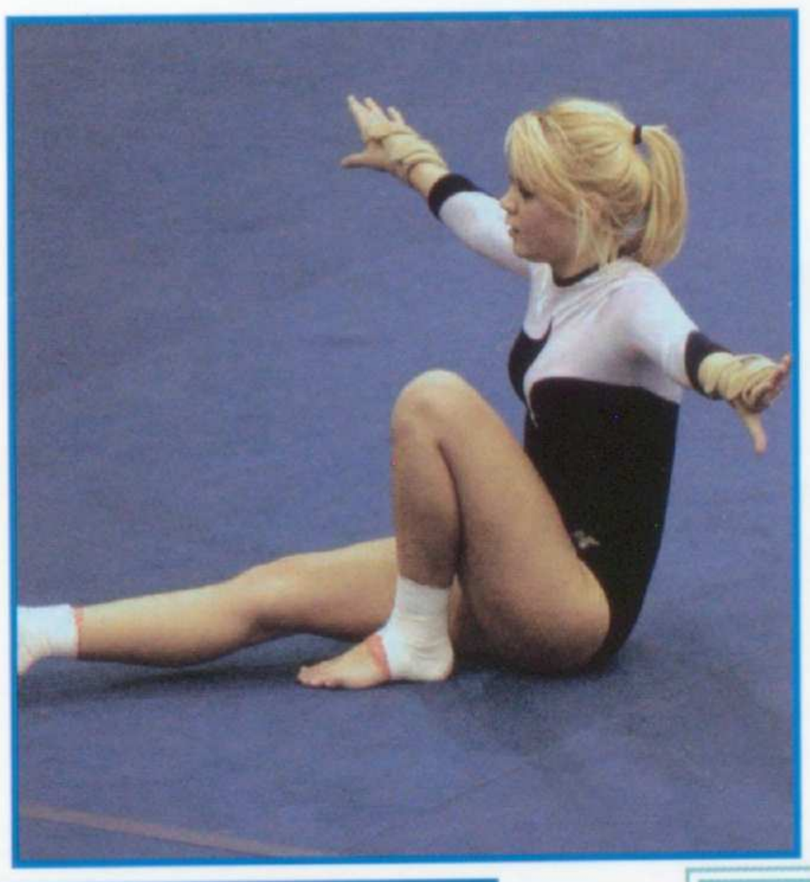
-Lauren Bodiford, Junior

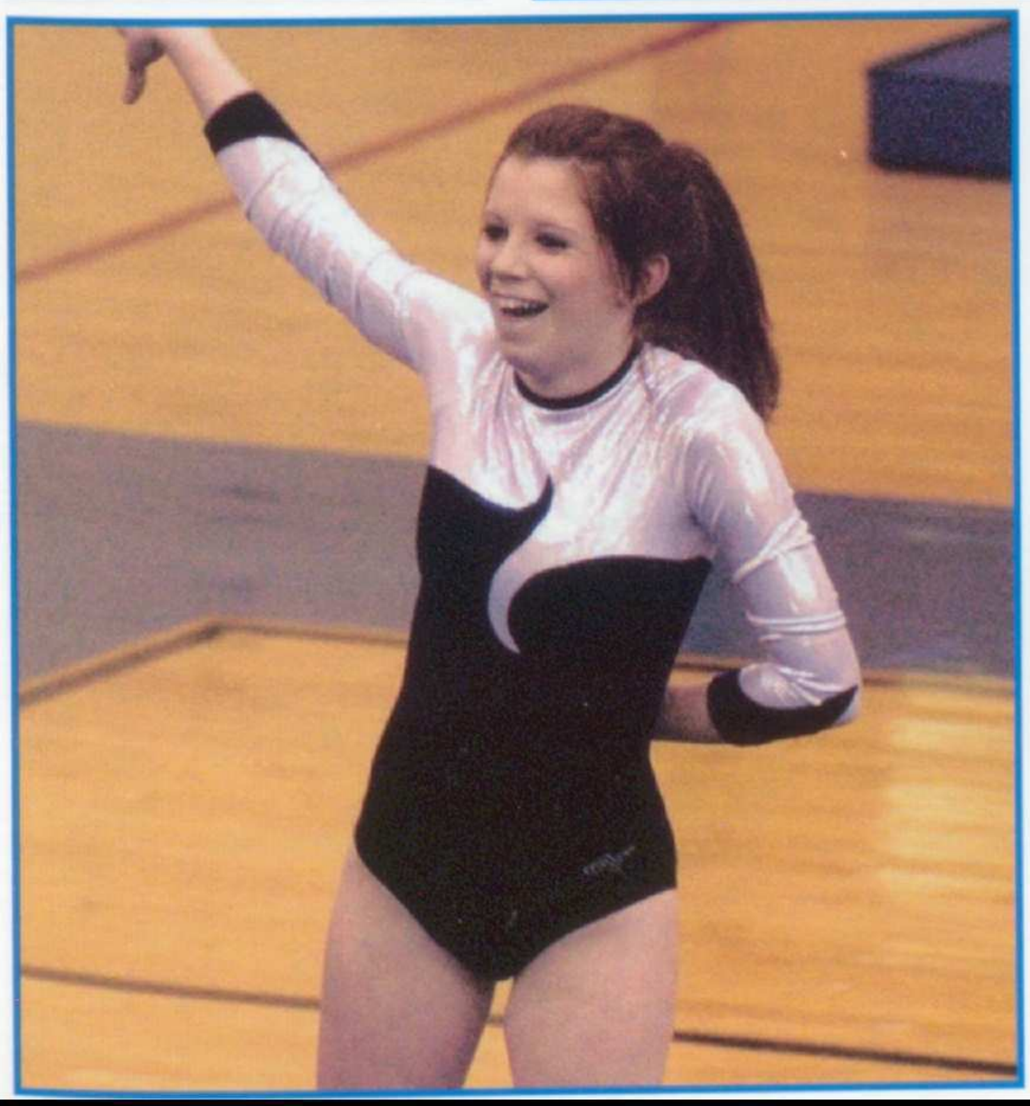




Alicia Buxton and several other girls did balance beam routines this year.

Lindsey Watts finishes a tumbling pass with style.

Calli Cautela gracefully moves across the floor in her routine.



What's Your Story?

"We had a gymnastics meet at home against Sheridan on February 8th of the 2006 season. In this meet, I tried my floor routine for the first time on the team. I went into my first tumbling pass, a round-off back handspring back pike, and I was doing okay until I started to come out of it. As I was finishing the back pike, I opened too early and came down on my ankle and it snapped. That's how I broke both bones in my lower leg at Sheridan."

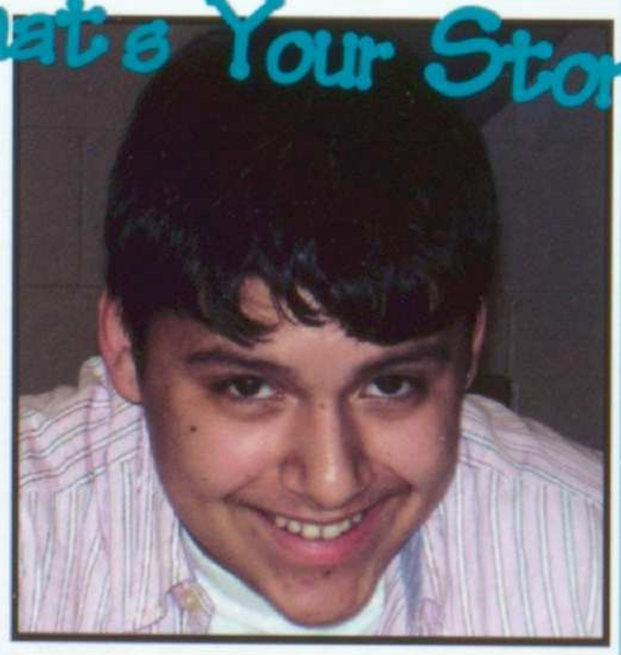
What's Your Story?



"I started ice hockey when I was nine years old. Ever since then I've been on a hockey team. I was excited when I made the high school hockey team. I really loved playing this year especially since my brother is on the team. This year was so much fun; it's going to be sad when our only senior player leaves. Even though we didn't win that much this year, it was a good experience. These next couple of years will probably be good for the ice hockey team. I'm ready for next season, I can't wait for ice hockey to start again."

-Andrew Beardman, Freshman

Getting the puck back from his opponent is Shota Hattori while Erich Rottenbiller watches his teammate's back.

Getting ready to make this snap shot across the ice is sophomore Travis Mathis.

Making his way down the ice is Bo Light while Brian Rosensteel helps fend off others.

Perfect starts end in perfect finishes for the Cards.

Gasping in air during the breaststroke takes a lot of energy, but Emma Stanger has no trouble swimming the freestyle too. Emma and three teammates placed in the freestyle at District's this year.

Swimming towards another successful finish is sophomore Mallory Meaney, who is a member of the two girl's relay teams that advanced to state competition.

What's Your Story?

"I'm a foreign exchange student from France. Though I take classes at Thomas, I mostly go to Linworth, which I really like because since it is small I am able to know a lot of the people who go there. I decided to join the swim team at Thomas because in France we do not have sports teams at our high schools. Winning is so important here in the U.S., whereas in France it's not that important to my friends and I. I am so glad that I joined the swim team because I have met lots of new people, and it's been a lot of fun. I am really going to miss it when I leave this summer."

Logan Swingle competed in several events this year, including the 200-Free and the 100-Fly.

Josh Cooper comes out of the water for fresh air.

Coach Jim Callahan keeps an eye on the divers.

What's Your Story?

"This year I swam the 100-Fly and the 500-Freestyle, and I made it to districts. At districts I was able to watch a really good 100-Fly swimmer named Austin Staab. It was really neat to watch him, and I always enjoy watching really good swimmers. My next favorite experience was at the Ohio University Winter Camp. There we had to swim 100 100-Freestyle's. It would have been impossible to swim it using any other stroke. Even though it was the most mentally enduring thing I have done as a swimmer, I liked it a lot."

- Andrew Amaya, Sophomore

Zach Rabold competes in the back stroke against a rival from another school.

Justin Andrade streaks across the pool.

Eric Ness competes in one of his best events, the 100-Fly.

CAPTAINS

"To all the underclassmen, keep working hard. I can't wait to see how you guys do next season."
-Zach Sjostrom, Senior

"I had a lot of fun this year. Even though we did not have a full team, we were able to have a lot of individual success."
-Vitaly Radsky, Junior

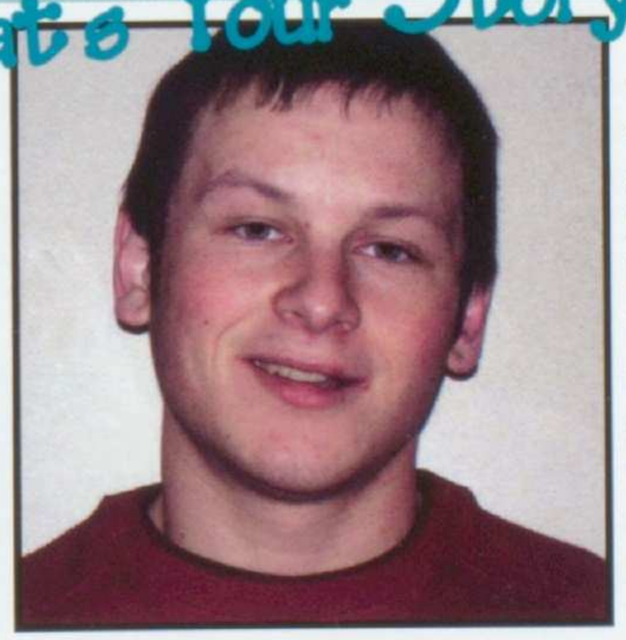
"I'm really looking forward to having a great season next year. We are returning a lot of starters and should have a very successful season."
-Alex Radsky, Junior

Felipe Moreno has his attacker in a hold and plans to make his move.

Junior Alex Radsky tries his best to get his opponent to the ground.

Trying not to lose the match, Bryan Bowman works his way out of the pinning position.

What's Your Story?



"I got into wrestling at a very early age. My father was a wrestler, so I was always around that environment. When I turned 7, I joined a youth booster's program for children wanting to wrestle. From there I joined club teams and wrestled in tournaments throughout the year. During my high school years wrestling I was on a whole other level. Varsity came in at 6:10 in the morning and went to regular practice 3:30-6:00 PM. This is one of the toughest sports to ever participate in. It takes discipline, strength, positive attitude, and teamwork to be a great wrestler."

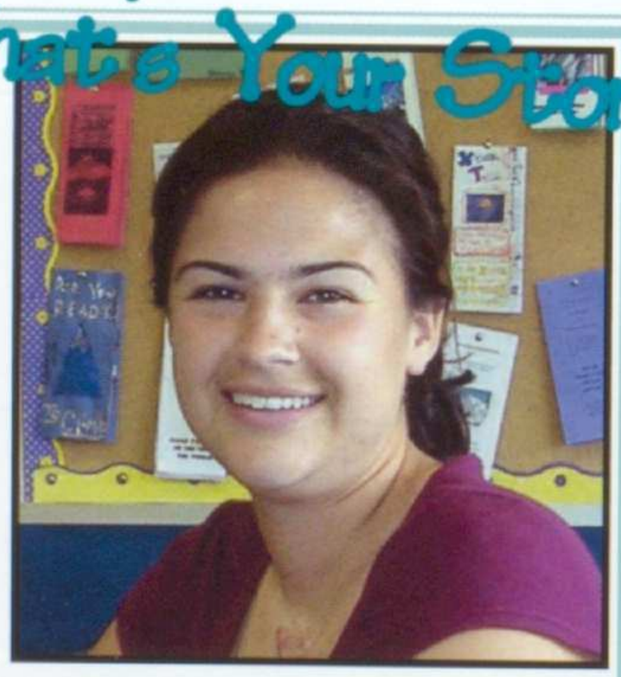
What's Your Story?



"Playing center field the past four years has been a great experience for me. I've had so many good memories, and made many friends. I'm going to miss so many things next year when I go off to college. Most of all I will miss being in the outfield with Emily Adams and Alecia Fusco, and all the crazy conversations we've had. But I will always remember the eating contests at team dinners, spring break trips to Florida, surviving getting lost on a team bonding trail run, and Joe's, our coach, variety of expressions. I love Cardinal softball; it's been so great to me."

- Laura Blackburn, Senior

Outfielders Laura Blackburn and Emily Adams take time to talk strategy in between innings during a Cardinal home game down at the flats.

Pitching her way towards another win and another successful season is junior Mira McPeek.

The girls take time to celebrate after a victory over Davidson. The lady Cards finished 3rd in the OCC and broke the school record with 20 wins!

(Left): With the ball rolling towards the infielders, senior Jessica Esch attempts to beat the oncoming throw to first before the umpire can call her, "OUT!"

(Above): Not only can she field the ball, third baseman Erica Evans can hit the ball too. Raking up three home runs in her junior season, Erica helped strengthen the Cards both offensively and defensively.

(Right): Accuracy and dependability are just two words that describe Ashley Davis and her superb softball skills.

What's Your Story?

The thing that I will remember most about this season was how close we were as a team. From the spring break trip down to Florida to the very last inning of the season, all of us got to be very close friends. We always wanted to hang out all of the time, on and off the field. I don't know if I will ever have the opportunity to be part of such a close knit group. Not only were we together at practices and games, but we would usually hang out on weekends and after all the practices and games. I really loved baseball this year, good luck next year guys!"
-Harry Watson, Senior

Girls Lacrosse

"We have a strong team this year. We have a good chance of winning states this year, which I'm really excited for."

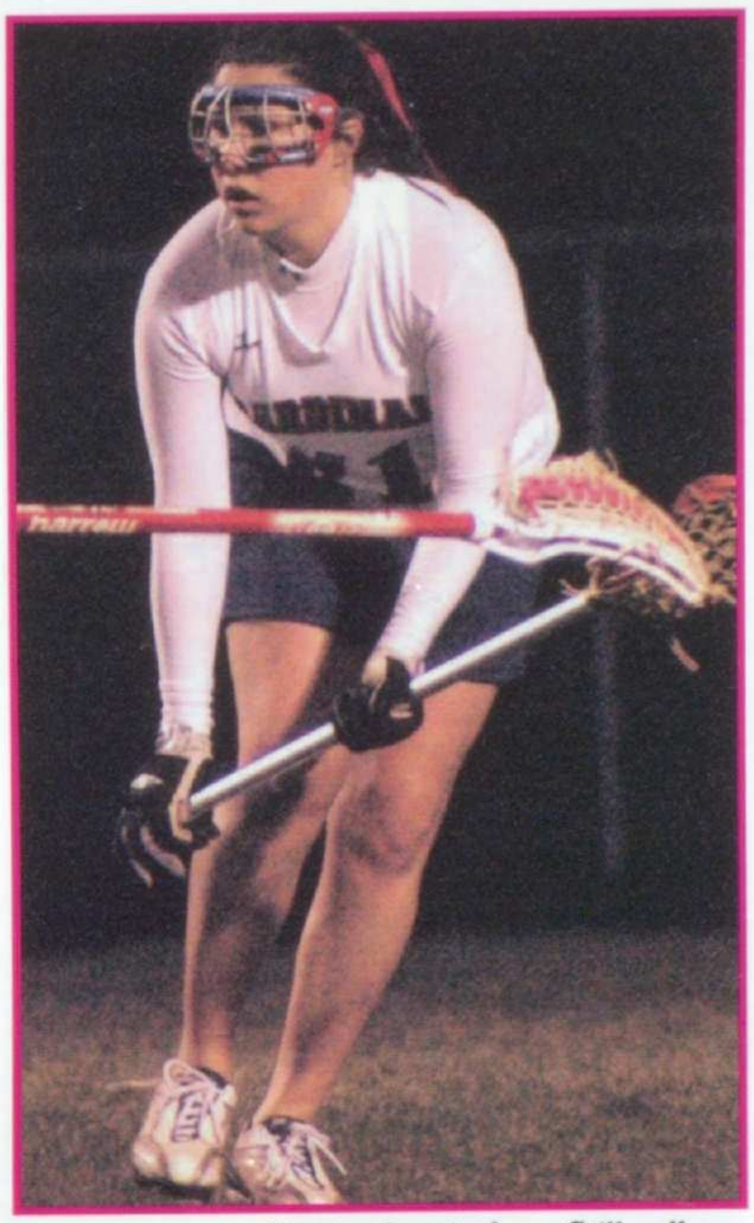
What's Your Story?

"Last season ended somewhat anticlimatic based on the goals we had set and fell short of. Luckily, we had a great deal of returning letter winners this season and started day one off with enthusiasm. Our theme for this season is "Total Dedication" and we have worked very hard to maintain this idea of excellence. I don't know what the rest of this season holds in store for us, but I do know that I'm proud of what we have already achieved and we'll continue to work hard until the end. I have to say it's going to be sad when all of us seniors leave, hopefully underclass women do well next season."
- Meghan Richards, Senior



Speeding ahead of her opponent, Karen Skelton makes her way down the field to make an amazing shot at the goal.

Getting low is Amy Stillwell as she plans to manuever around her defender and score yet another goal for the Cards.

Standing guard is Misty Gibbs while teammate Lauren Rogers helps block the offensive team from making a shot.

What's Your Story?

"This is my second year playing for the TWHS boys tennis team. I've been practicing a lot and trying to better my skills. We came in this season losing several key seniors. I have to say even though we didn't win as many games as we wanted to, this season was great. Practices were not so bad, but we always worked our hardest to surprise people. With two sophomores as our top guys we will definitely be a strong team in the years to come. I can't wait for next season to start. I'm hoping we do a lot better and win more games. We'll show people what we got."

-Erich Rottenbiller, Sophomore

With quick feet Luke Maxwell gets the short ball that his opponent served him.

Nothing could break Erich Rottenbiller's cool when he plays his game.

Getting some extra pointers from one of his coaches is senior Matthew Dollens.

"Go big or go home, live by that. It's my motto."
- Joy Peterson, Senior

What's Your Story?

"Track has been an important part of my life. This season has been fun and challenging. The girls track and field team is extremely talented everywhere: in the field, sprints, and distance races. We have been really successful this year, and I am so glad I have been able to be a part of the team. My most memorable experience from this year was on senior night against Hillard Davidson. All seven seniors plus one junior ran in two groups in the 4x400 race. Joy Peterson and I, both sprinters, held hands together as we crossed the finish line. It was an emotional time for all of us."

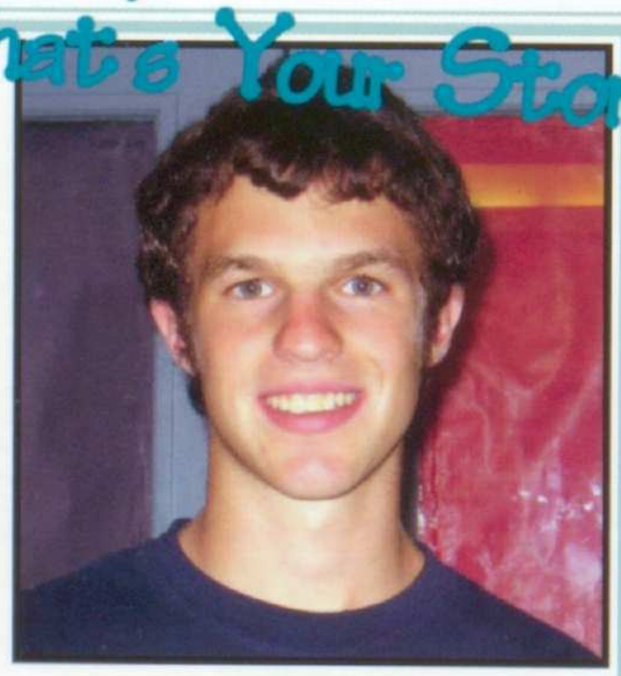
Clearing the pole is Ryan Madden, just one of the many talented freshmen on the team this year.

Taylor Voris jumps into the sand as a few of his opponents watch.

Henry Heisey gets ready to pass the baton to the next runner.

What's Your Story?



"One of the great things about track is our coach, Mr. Cox. He knows how to get the best out of his athletes. We have two-a-day practices from the beginning of February through early May. While the commitment takes its toll on some, those who stick it out are able to compete with the best in the state. He is willing to tailor his key star training program for any athlete, JV or Varsity. Track has been one of the biggest parts of my high school life, and Mr. Cox has made it extremely rewarding."

Diligently preparing to serve the ball is junior Josh Cooper.

The team gathers together, encourgaging and instructing, showing their tight unity which proved to be very important after this team broke nine school records.

Junior Brett Miller uses his athleticism to send the ball back over the net.

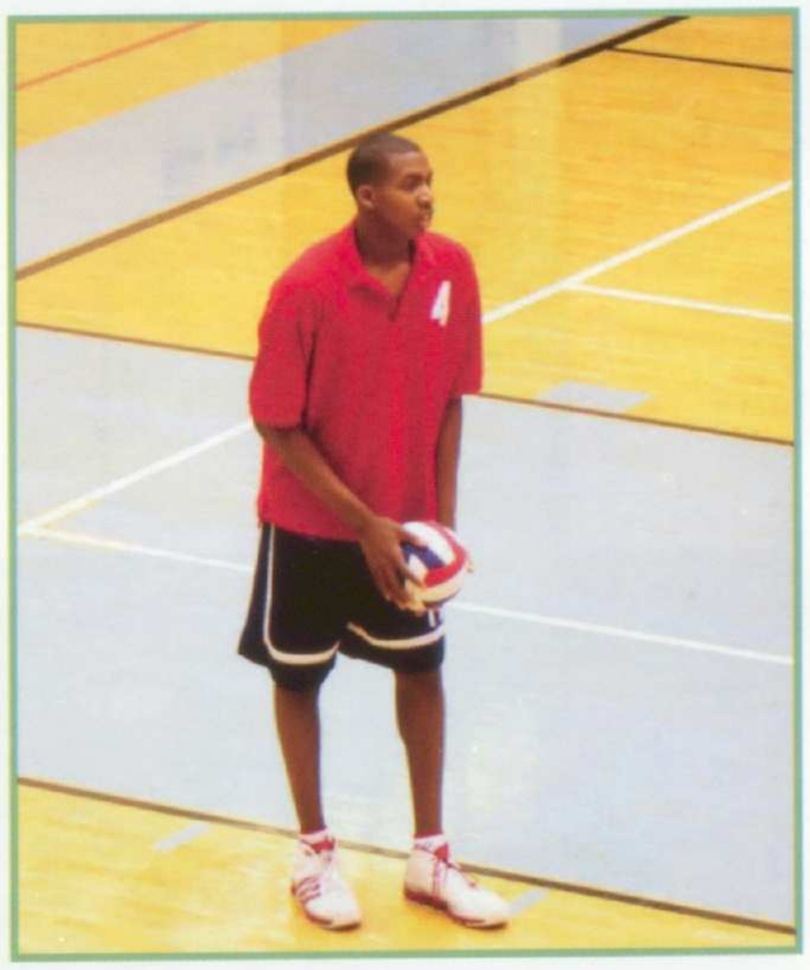
CAPTAINS

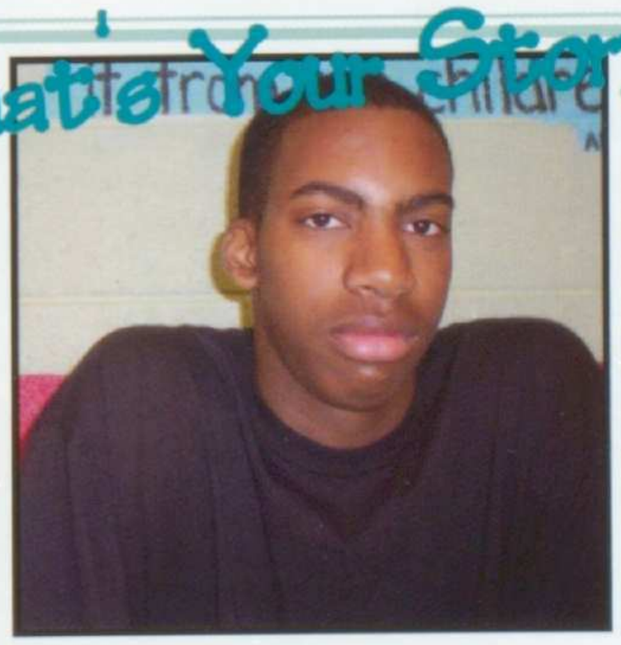
"This was, hands down, the best year of volleyball we've ever played because all the guys worked their butts off."
-Grant Ebright, Senior

"I had a lot of fun this season. Everyone worked hard to get done what they needed to so we could win games."
-Matt Boyles, Senior

Poised and confident is senior Derrick Thibodeaux as he prepares to serve the ball.



What is Your Story?



"I started playing volleyball this year because I thought it would be fun and Coach Trantow said I might have talent. I didn't know what to expect but it turned out I had a really good time. At the end of the season I had definitely developed skills; however, at my first practice that wasn't the case. During the very first practice I was trying to hit the ball and I ended up drilling it right into Grant's face. Luckily Grant just laughed it off, but it was a little embarassing. I'm glad I tried volleyball out, and I'm glad I stuck with it. It was an amazing high school experience."
-Derrick Thibadeaux, Senior

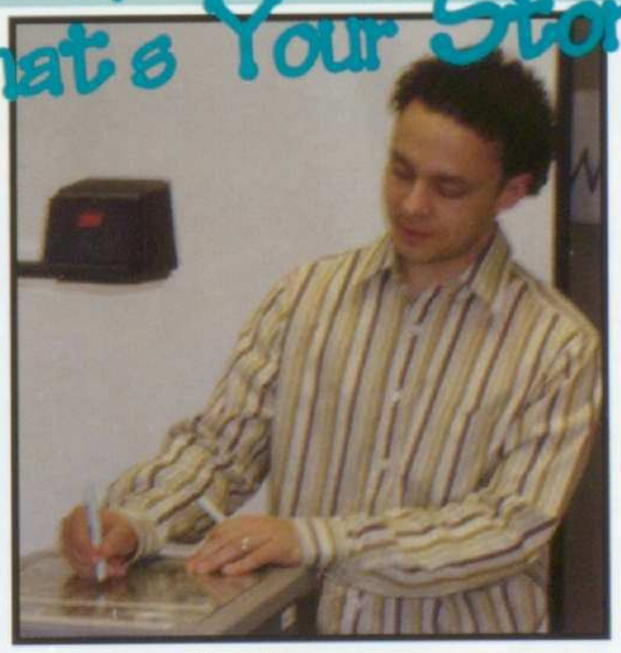
Mrs. Galasso just finished grading essays from her fourth peroid Political Radicalism class. She is proud of them becuase they were the only Poli Rad class to win a pizza party for memorizing the "isms". Good for them!

What's Your Story?



"I saw her at the library and thought she was incredibly attractive. We met at a party and started dating after my first year of college. I went to the University of Cincinnati and she went to Wright State, but I drove up to see her every weekend and we even went on a missionary trip to Russia together. After two years we got engaged. We were at a party when I asked her to marry me. We married in 1997. That was the best trip to the library EVER!"

"It's actually funny because I never took ceramics in High School. In college I started Geology as my major. Back then I had the love for it.. So I needed another course so I took Studio Art as my minor. Friends and family kept on telling me how good my art work really was. I graduated from College of Wooster. After that I spent 6 years in Indiana as a Geologist. I traveled to many places, but after that I learned that Geology was not the thing for me. I began my own art studio in 1986 in Delaware, Ohio. I was a professional artist in 1986 until 1999. I went back to school at The Ohio State University and received my masters in teaching. I have been working in Worthington since 2002."

"I grew up in the palace of West Minster. At age 14 I signed with Chelsea where I practiced with professionals twice a week. At sixteen I stopped school and turned professional. I played for 5-10 years and it was pretty cool. I was teaching at Bishop Hartley but then they cut five teachers. I was one of them. I heard about the job at Worthington. I lucked out and coached here for 14 years. Our 1991 and 1996 teams earned two state championships and I coached six kids who are playing in the pros."

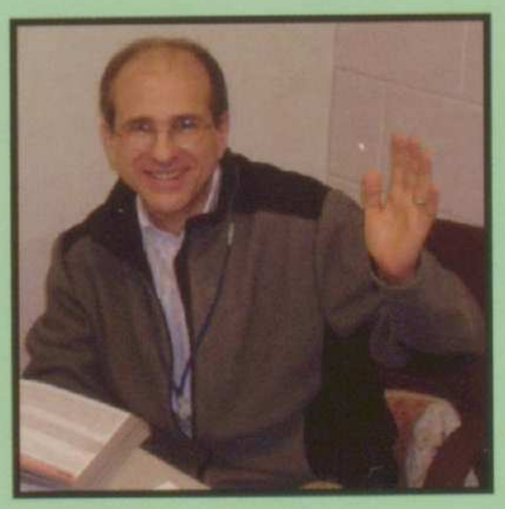
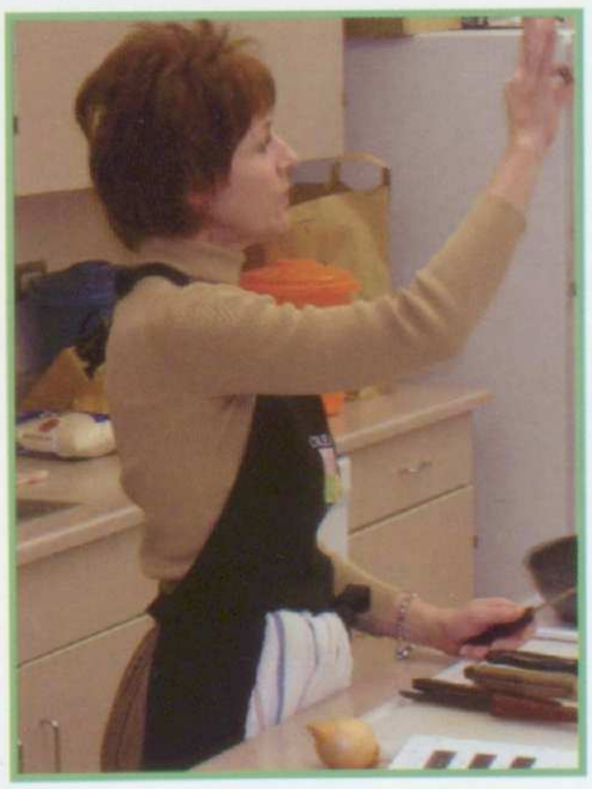
"Before I turn in a paper for a class, I have Mr. Pappas edit it. He is always happy to help me out and is key to my success in Senior Composition."

~Truman Rendina



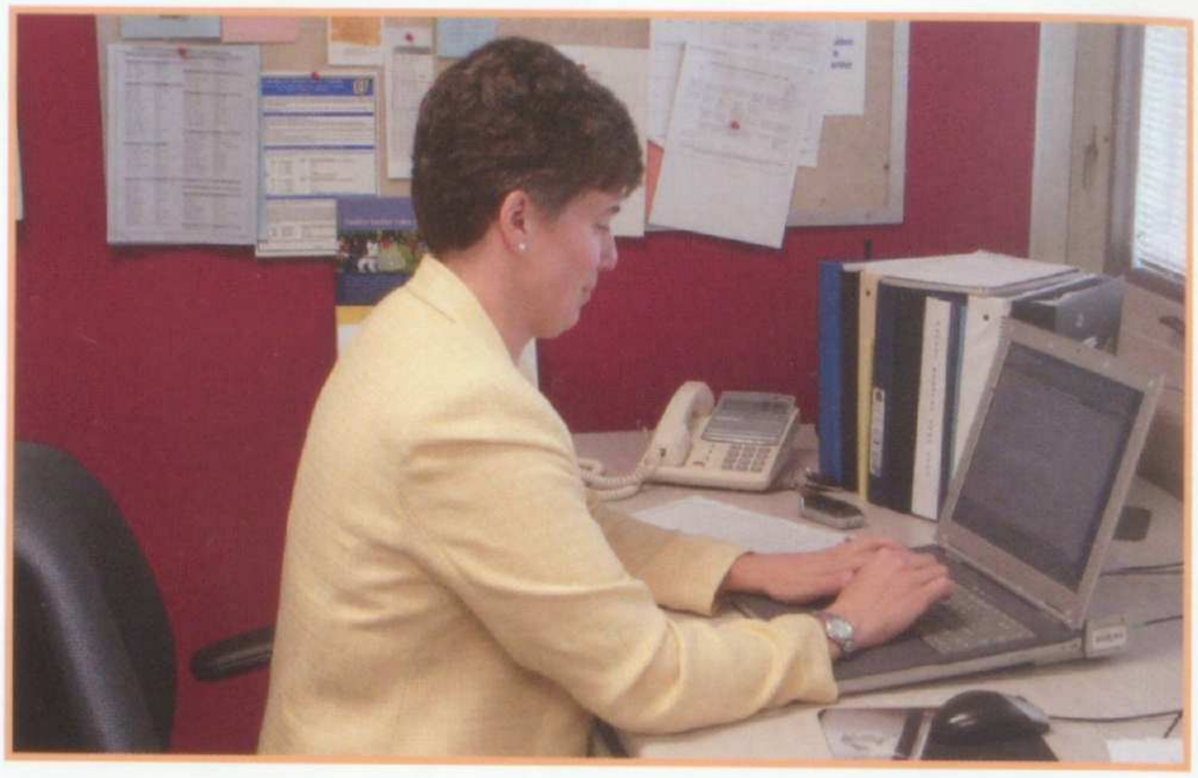
Always greeting students with a happy wave is Mr. Pappas. He is the English teacher in Academic Assistance. No wonder kids are always leaving their study hall to get English help, Mr. Pappas is just an irresistible guy!



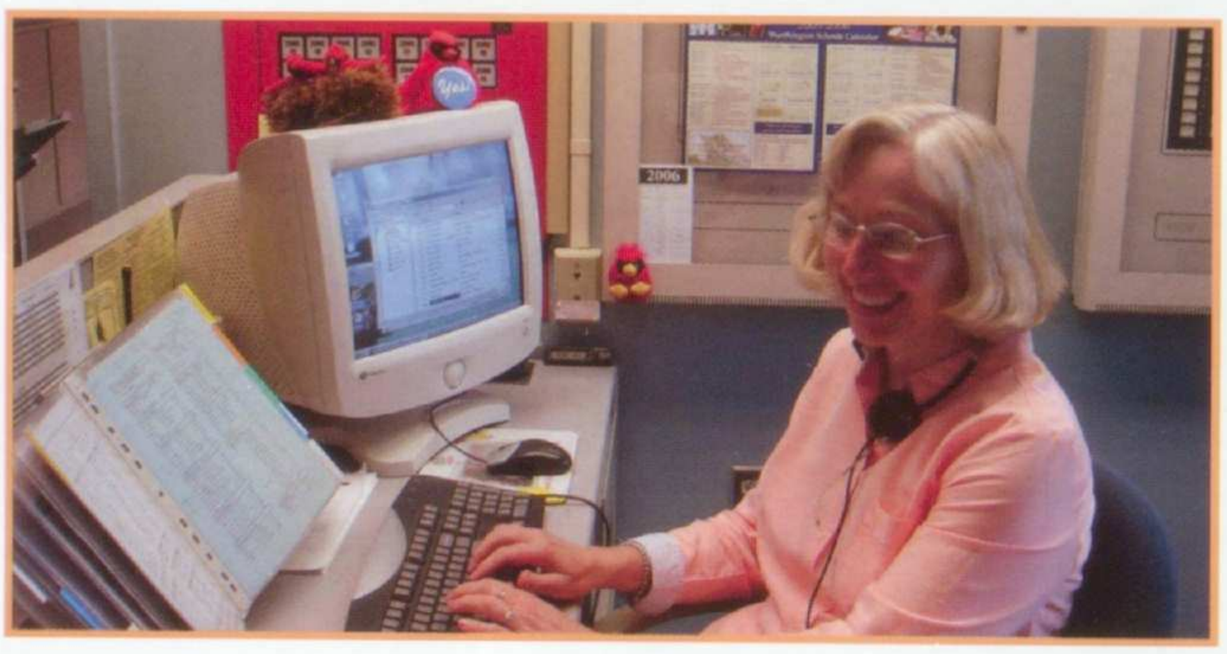
Taking attendence is Mrs. Colilla's favorite thing to do.....just kidding! She manages to smile as she finishes up this tedious task.

"Only three cups!!" Mrs. Andryc yells to some busy cooks in her Healthy Cuisines class. Knife in hand, apron tied, Mrs. Andryc helps her students become excellent cooks. If only we could all cook like her!

What's new in the news, Mrs. Bucholz??? Mrs. Bucholz takes a small library break to check out whats going on in Worthington This Week. "It's nice to find some time in my busy day for a little peace in quiet to enjoy." She admits.



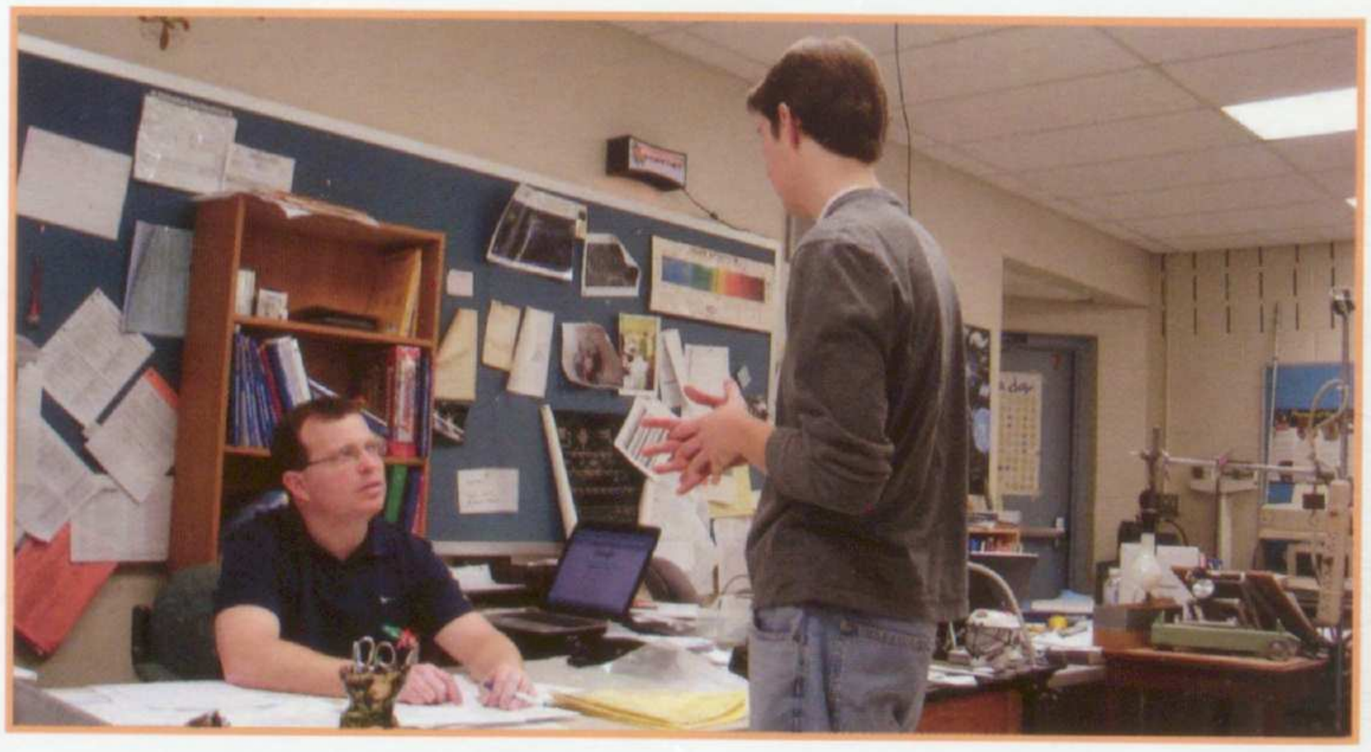
New athletic director, Betsey Mitchel, is hard at work during her first year here at Thomas. She can often be found at many Cardinal sporting events and has done a great job so far.



Receptionist, Mrs. Sharp, is the first person visitors at TWHS see. It is very reassuring that a smile like her's will make people feel welcome!

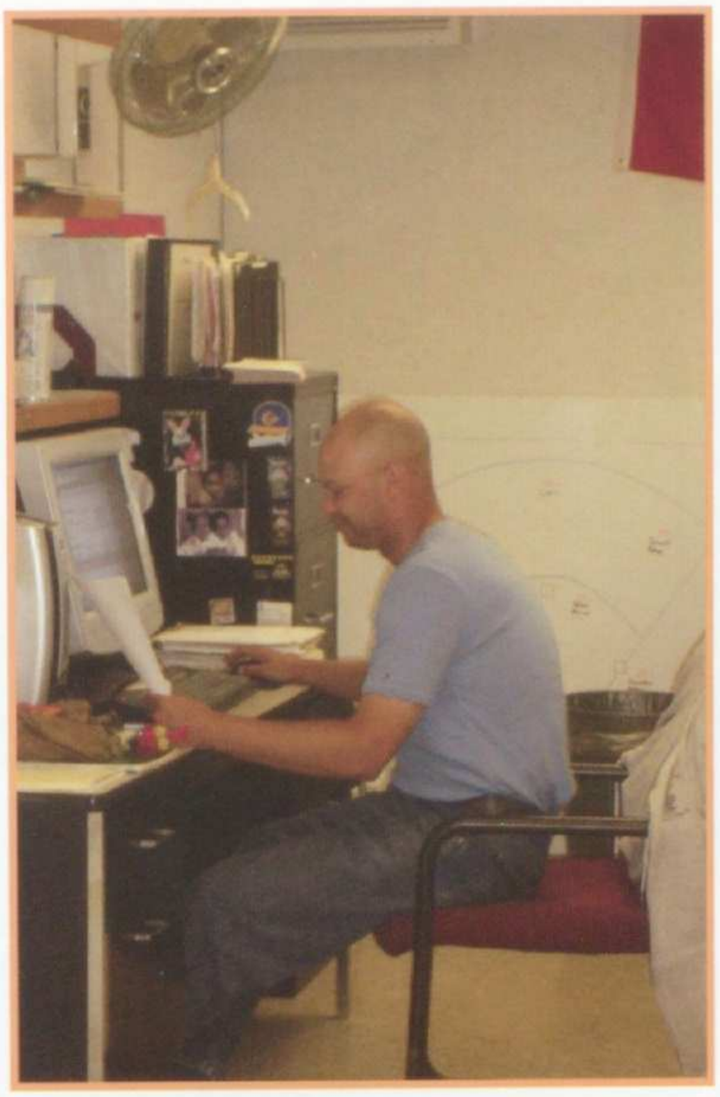
Running the desk in our school library is Mrs. Baker. Not only is she a librarian but she is a mother of two- Colin and Spencer- both of whom go to TWHS.

"I'm a star!" proclaims Mr. Gardener. He keeps his star-like physique up to par by working out at the Worthington Rec Center, where he can also keep an eye on some of his students!

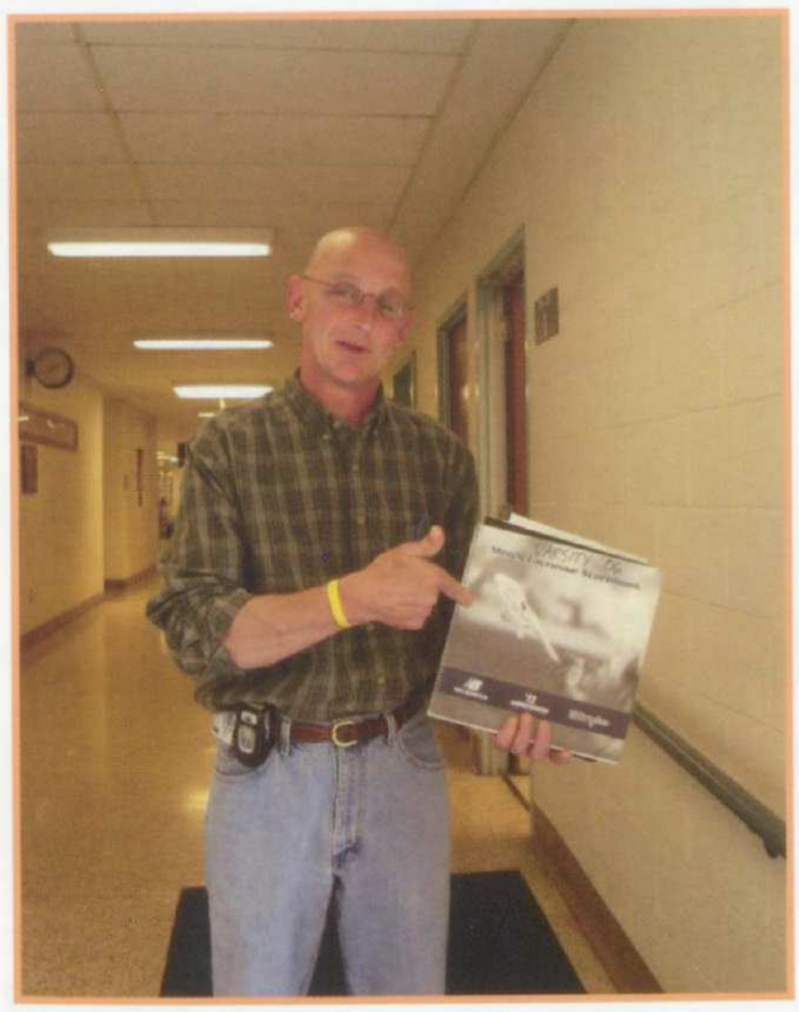


Mr. Devore always makes himself available to help his students out. Even during his free periods he never thinks twice about sacrificing his time. He uses catchy phrases and creative pneumonic devices to help his students remember important formulas and ideas. His most famous one is his "Tip to Tail" dance.

Mr. Guessler looks like he is hard at work, or is he really checking out baseball scores on ESPN.com? No one will ever know but the smirk on his faces leads us to believe he is not entering grades!

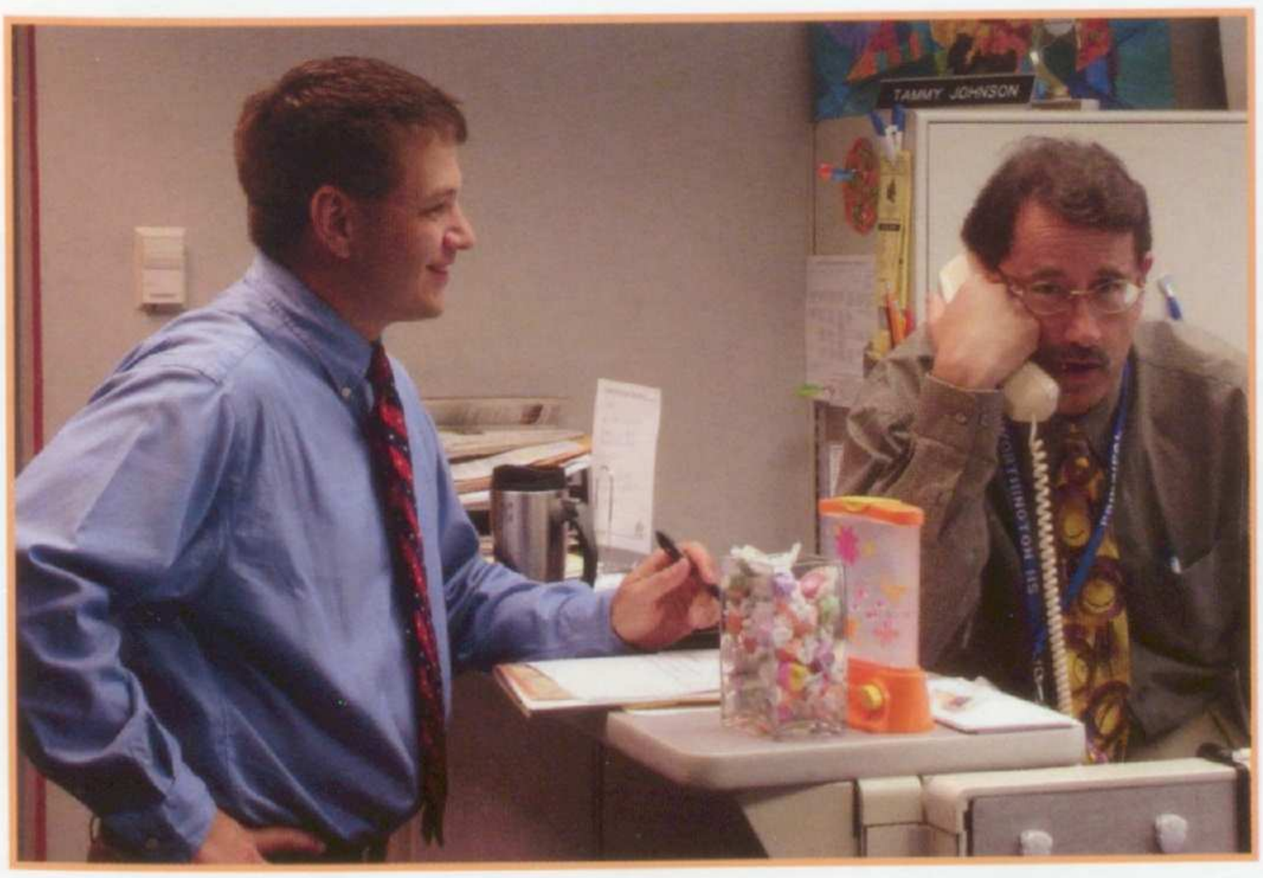


Over Spring Break , Special Ed teacher Mr. Quart, proposed to Science teacher and Girls Tennis Coach Ms. White. They were on top of a gorgeous cliff in Sedona, Arizona. Not only does her ring sparkle and tan skin shimmer, Ms. White is glowing with happiness for her wedding next summer. She tells us, "It was such a surprise, I was shocked!" We're sure this will be a Spring Break to remember for sure!

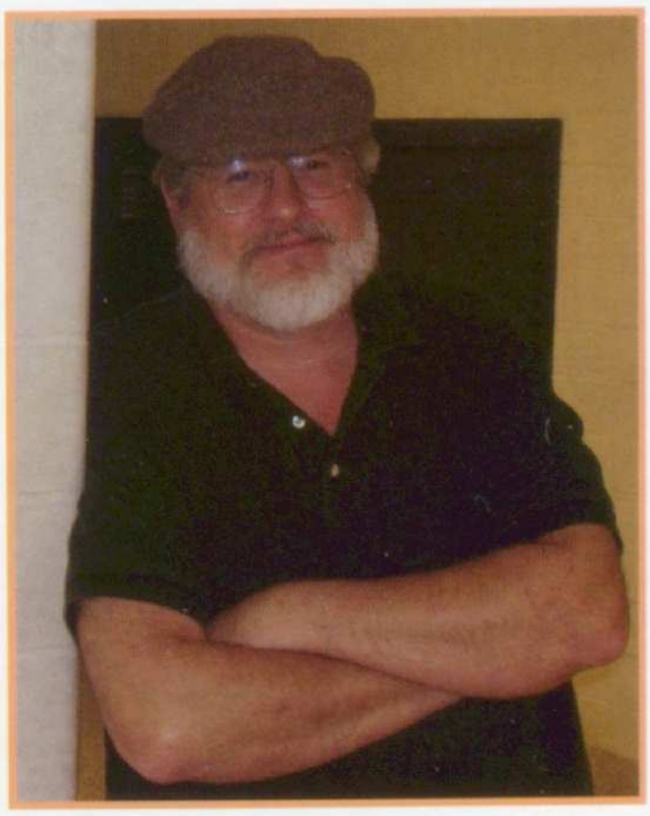


What a stud! Mr. Kraus is the male version of Vanna White, showing off his lacrosse play book. He made us swear not to tell anyone, or else!

Catching up on her current events is Co-Curricular secretary, Mrs. Stegman. Is she reading the metro section or getting ready to do a Suduko!?!

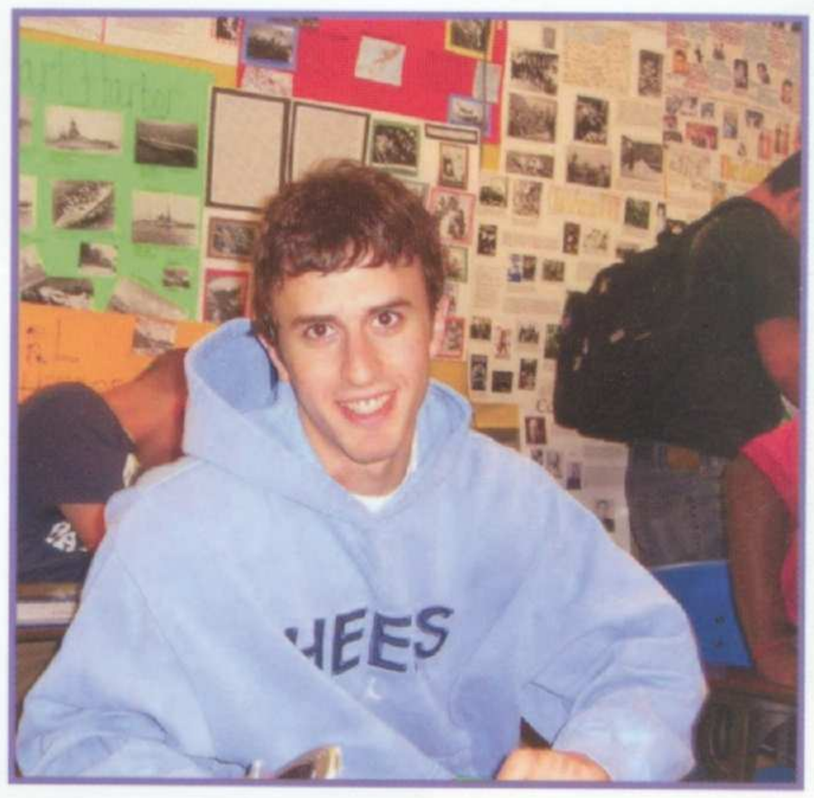


Nice cap Mr. Ellis!!!!! Everyone's favorite substitute, Mr. Ellis is looking sharp as he monitors the hallways and keeps everyone out of trouble. For as tough as he may look here, Mr. Ellis has a heart of gold.



Is Dr. Littell prank calling someone or is Mr. McCort just slap happy? When these two get together you know it can be nothing but trouble!

Always happy to start a new book discussion, new AP Literature teacher Mrs. Saunders, has done a great job preparing her students for the dreaded AP test. She even does cartwheels for her seniors when they get accepted into college!

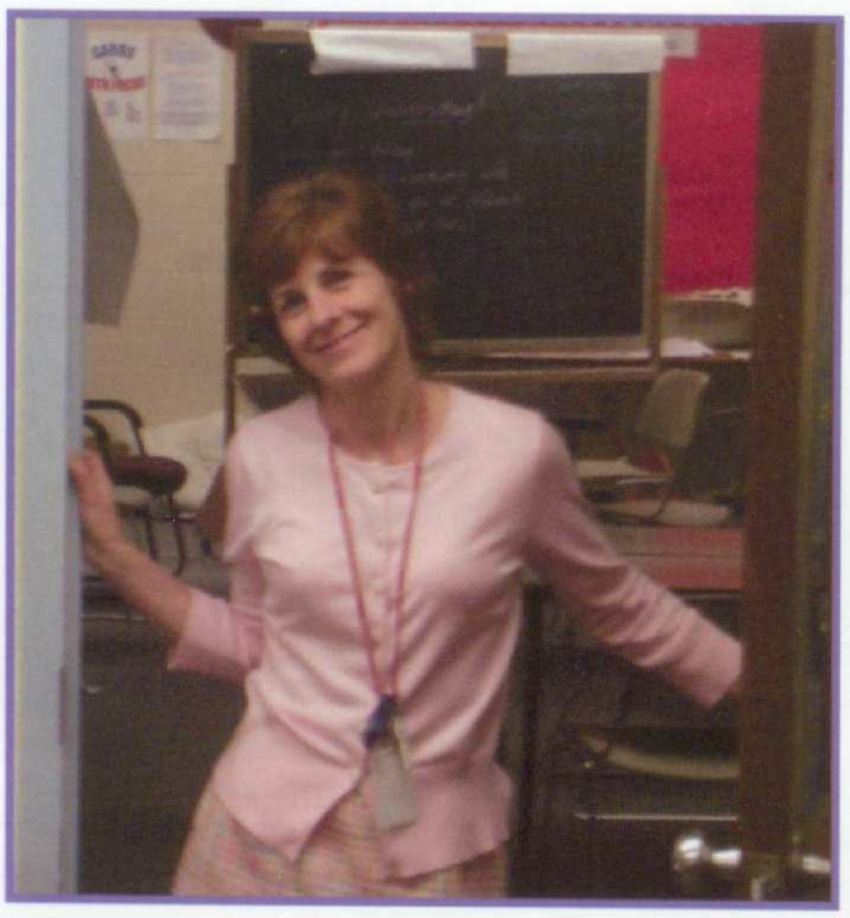


Mr. Verne goes to work at his computer to keep students safe at TWHS. As you can tell, he is a big New York Yankees fan. Didn't the Yankees lose to the Angels this year, Mr. Verne?

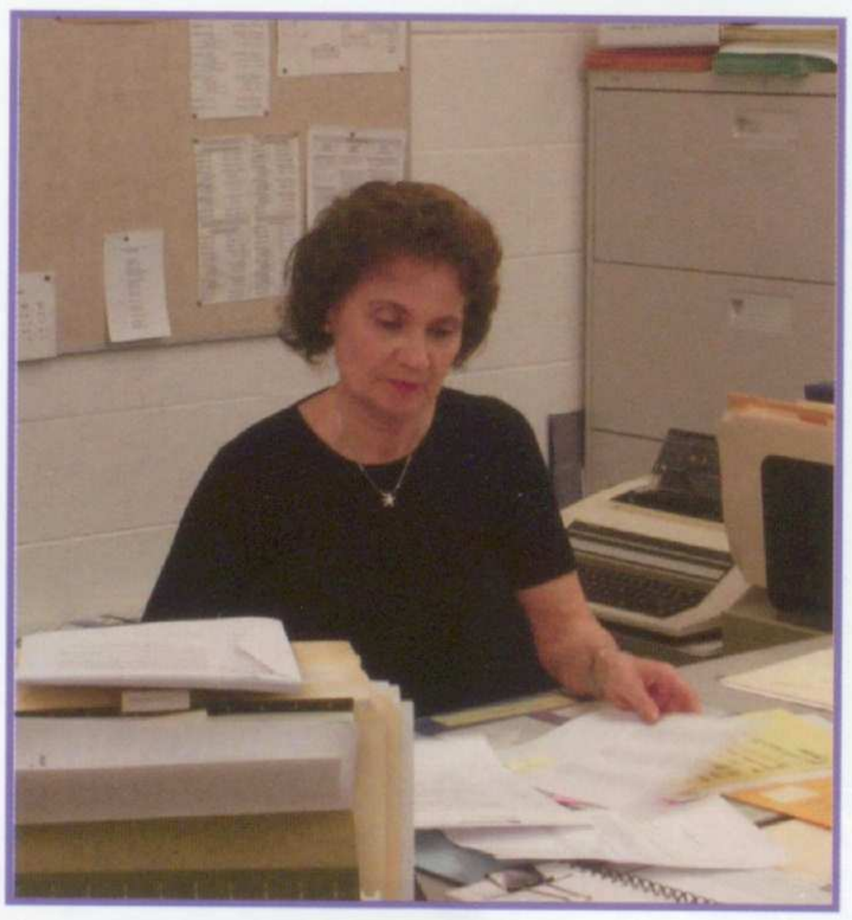
Smile Mrs. Bush!!! "You're lucky," she tell us "I never let ANYONE take my picture."

With rosey cheeks and roses in their hands are Lauren Strohl and Mr. Fuller. These two are fun-loving and laid-back people. No wonder everyone enjoys their company!

TWHS STAFF ROCKS!



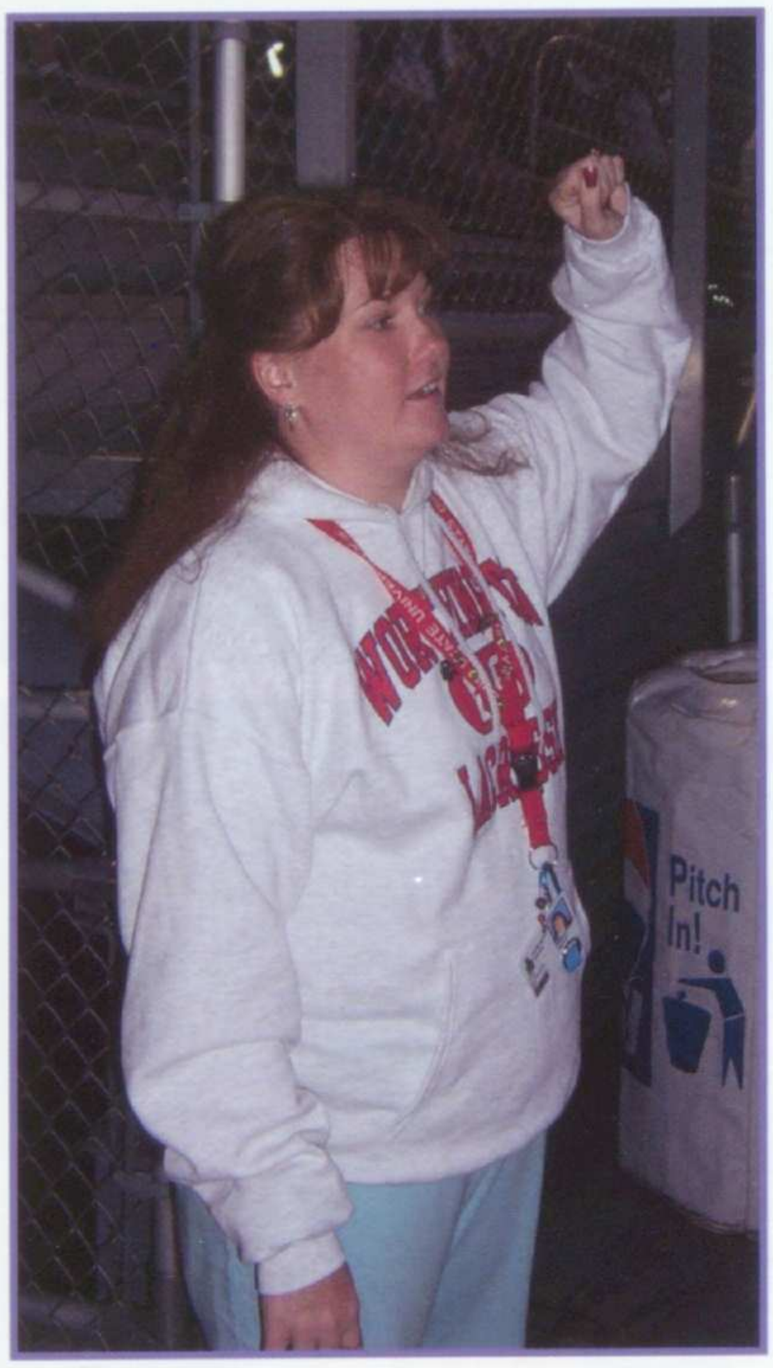
We know where Mrs. Andryc's daughter gets her good looks! With that smile and bubbly personality she is the perfect teacher!



Getting lost in locker combinations and parking passes, is the hard-working Mrs. McCoomis. She didn't even have a second to look up at the camera, "I have too much to do!!" she tells us. Thats ok, Mrs. McCoomis, we appreciate all that you do!!!!!

Teachers with Spirit!

Ms. Davis and Mrs. Preston take a break from grading math quizzes to show their school spirit. These two math teachers discuss the Pythagorean Theorem while they cheer on the boys lacrosse team as they face off against Kilbourne High School.



"GO CARDS!!" shouts Mrs. Wilson, as she cheers on the Cardinals. After selling tickets for half of the game, she is ready to get on her feet and raise her arms in excitement for the football team.

"No Kilbourne Fans allowed!!" says Mr. Stegman as he collects tickets at the gate for the Thomas vs. Kilbourne Battle of Worthington.

Ms. Allsop and Ms. Reeb are enoying the game sitting with the infamous Mrs. Galipault and Mrs. Bookwalter. They catch up with retired english teacher "Bookie" and discuss lacrosse logistics with the expert namesake of the Galipault Field.

Mrs. Rossi-Cook and Ms. Fish exchange a quick hug in the stands. They enjoy sitting together and chatting during sporting events.

Mrs. Norris lends Dr. Littell some new recipes from Food and Fitness during half-time.

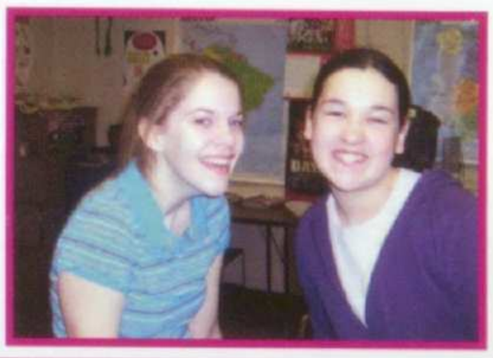
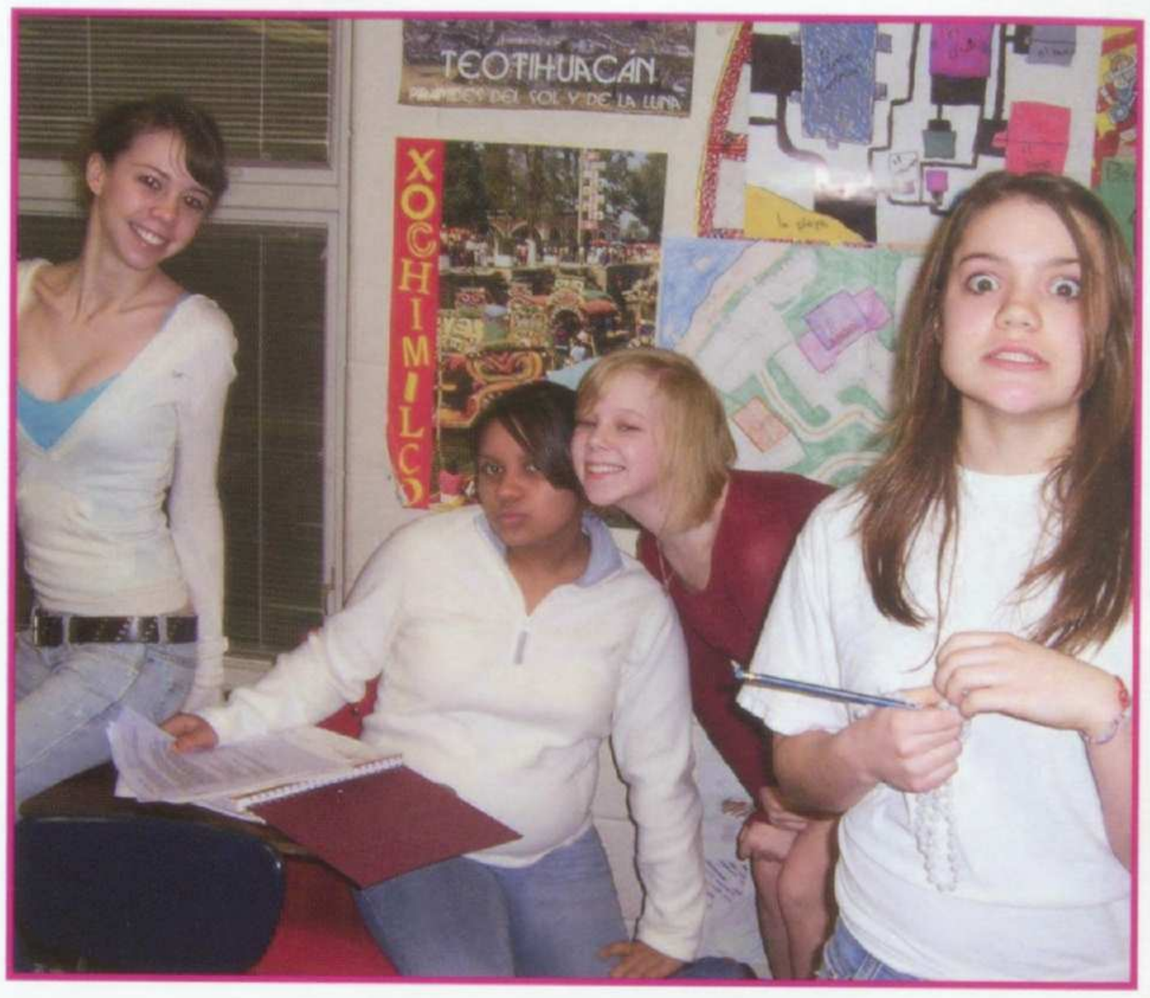
The transition between middle school and high school can be difficult for many incoming freshman. With all the new teachers, crowded hallways, and growing amounts of homework, sometimes it's hard to keep up. "I never actually got a tour of the whole school," says Emily Schiebeck, "so I wasn't exactly sure where I was going most of the time."

However, once settled in, a student at TWHS discovers all the opportunities they have including clubs, sports, and numerous other activities. Many freshmen arrive eager to take on the next four years. "Something I liked about the first day of high school was the new experience. I like the feel of it, I felt like it was a new chapter in my life," explains Kaimana Daugherty as he remembers his first day. Whether the arriving freshmen find high school terrifying or thrilling, they can't wait to see what happens next.





Planning summer vacation already? Ellen Cross must have said something really funny to make Emily Burk laugh so hard.

Stuck in a Bind

The luxury of having a drivers license isn't something freshmen can enjoy. So what do you do when you have a hot date, but no car? This is the universal question for freshmen. The life of begging your parents to drive you around or the awkward car rides when your parents act as your chauffeur, is not ideal. So what do you do? Stay cooped up in your room until you get your license? Deal with the uncomfortable atmosphere until you get where you are going? This is when you have to think, "Is it really worth it?"

So what do you do?

"We don't go anywhere we can't walk to. Sometimes we get carted around by our parents in the mini van to Marcus. Usually we go to Chipotle afterwards, but we are always home by 10!"

Characters

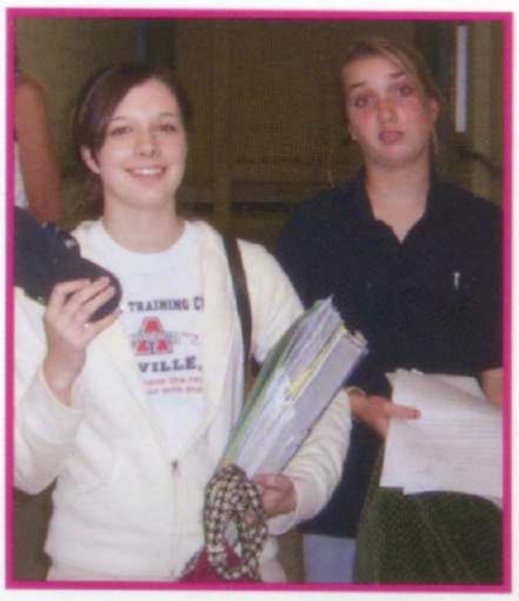
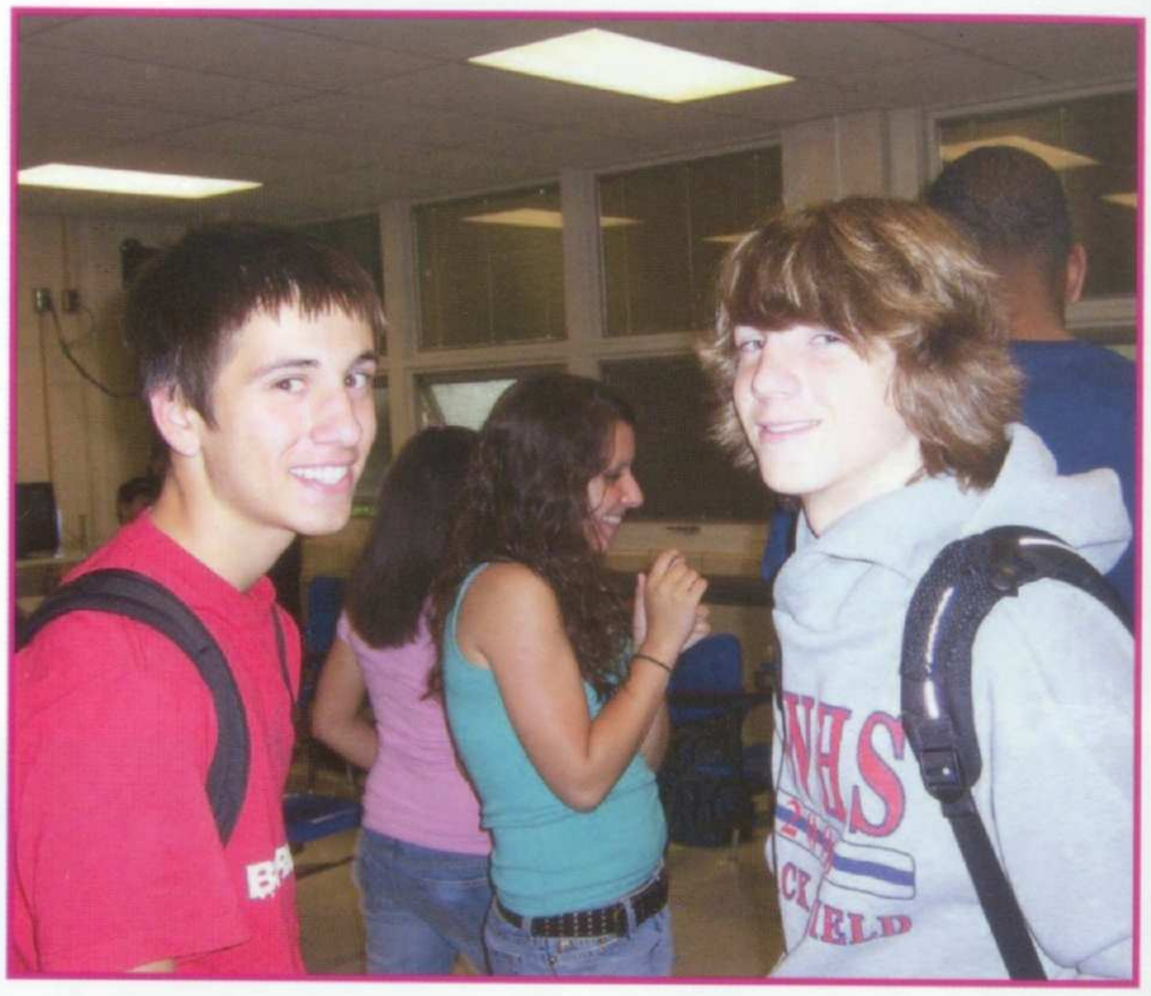
Relationships with upperclassmen

Upperclassmen can be extremely intimidating but once freshmen get to know them, they turn out to be big softies inside. The huge and scary football player may look like a bully at a first glance but could turn out to be the friendly gentleman that helps you find your locker. After starting to be involved in sports, clubs, and other activities, freshmen meet life-long friends from the upper classes. These new companions offer a good perspective on high school based on their experience. This includes homework help, dating tips, and even rides to school. Upperclassmen were freshmen once too, so they understand the trials and tribulations of the ninth grade.





Caught skipping class, these girls hide down by the vending machines hoping to not get busted.

"I was on vacation in Texas having a good time. I was fooling around and acting pretty dumb on a playground for little kids. My day had been so boring that I thought it would be fun to fool around on the merry-go-round. I started running on it, and soon I was spinning out of control. I flew off and hit the ground. Many people believe sophomore year to be the hardest year of high school. It's a year when many students take AP classes along with the other required classes no one really wants to take. Without late arrival or early release, their days are long, packed full of studying, and test taking. While on the verge of getting their driver's license, the year seems to drag on. Most can't wait to have the freedom that comes along with being an upperclassman. Driving to school, sleeping in or leaving early, and taking fun elective classes are just some of the perks of being an upperclassman. Now that they're no longer freshmen, the attention they used to get has drifted from them to the class that has come in after them; sort of like the middle child syndrome. But keep your heads up sophomores, your time to shine as rulers of the school will come quicker than you think.

Marissa Grinstead is organized as always, as she makes her way up the cafeteria steps.

Spanish class seems more like a big party for Grace Wang, Megan Nafzinger, Kristin Calaway, Brittany Miller, and Tony Moreno.

"Last diving season, I started the year as the worst diver on the team. I practiced my hardest everyday, working hard on my list of eleven dives that I was set to perform. All my efforts finally paid off at OCC's, where I helped my team to victory. I placed sixth out of an enormous group of girls and was extremely proud of myself and the committment I had to diving all season."

What's Your Story?

"I had just had my ACL repaired and I was walking upstairs on crutches at school. That was hard enough, and when I got to the second floor, I had to walk down a slope in the hallway. I guess I went too fast and couldn't keep my balance. I collapsed on my face and laid there for about five minutes. Finally a friend came to my rescue."
-Danitza Quipuscoa, Sophomore

Characters

Nothing smells quite like a new car. Many TWHS sophomores wait the entire year to experience the smell after being forced to ride in the big yellow bus or mom's purple minivan during their earlier years. The keys to a brand new SUV may not come for some sophomores but they are more than happy to settle for the next best thing. Cars inherited from older siblings and bargain deals for cheap prices work just fine when it comes to transportation. Some will even drive that purple minivan as long as they are behind the wheel. Of course, during the second half of the year, finding a parking pass proves to be more of a challenge than finding an actual car. Sophomores who are ecstatic about finally getting their license stop smiling upon the discovery that there are no more parking spots left. To these unlucky ones, we say, "Be strong Cards! Next year is bound to bring improvement."

Jeffrey Storch couldn't possibly look more enthused about being in school. Cheer up it's not THAT bad.

Characters

We all know Thomas Worthington High School is the place to be, but some students are eager to make changes for the future. After all, those who attend the school should be the ones to ensure that their experience here is the best possible. In their second year at TWHS, sophomores have the perfect opportunity to make improvements that they feel are necessary. One way to do this is to consult a Student Council member who is always willing to listen to any suggestions. We asked students what they would want to change here at TWHS.

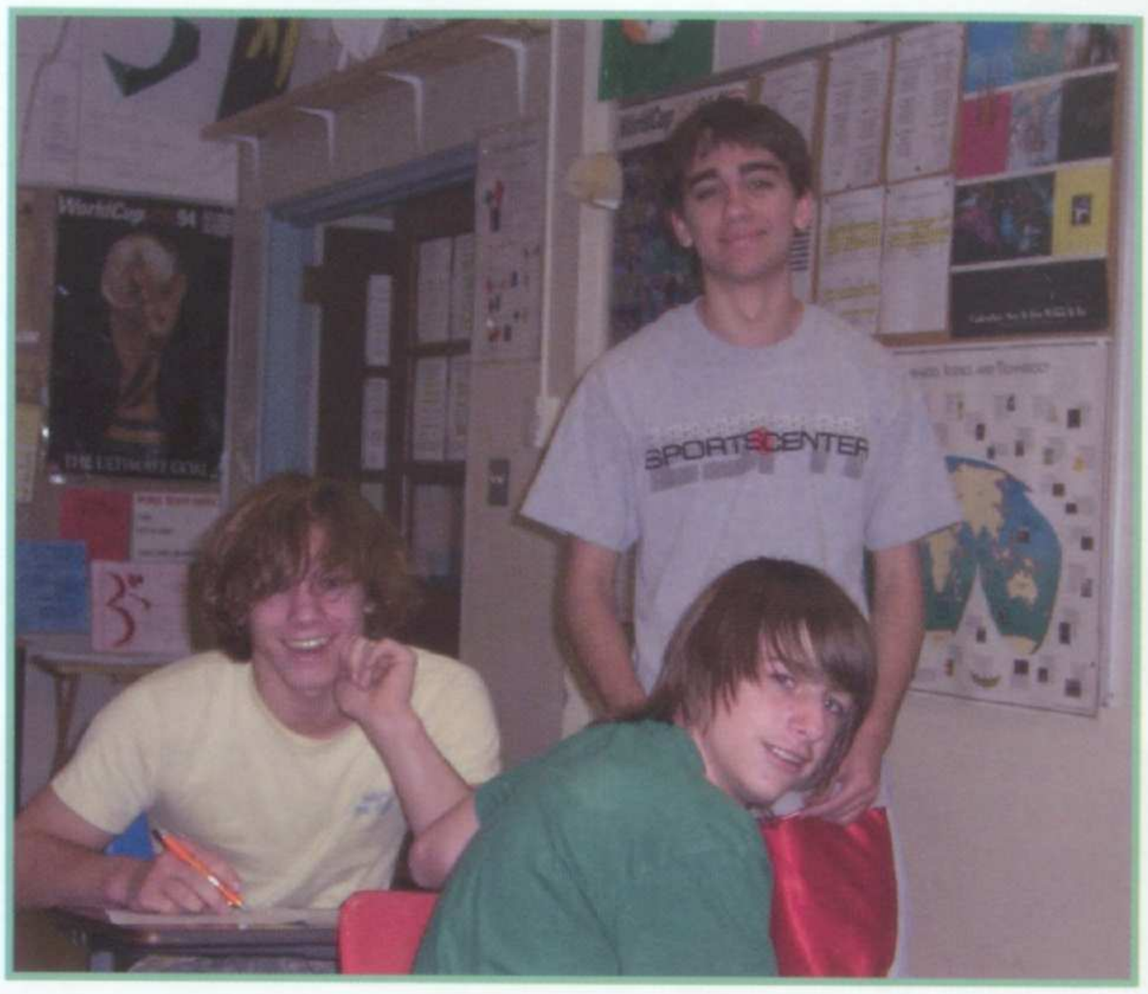
"Once when I was in the fifth grade, I woke up late and started getting dressed. I realized I had no clean underwear and the underwear that was in the dryer hadn't dried the night before. So, I got a wet pair out of the dryer, and blew dry them. It took a very long time, too. I even made the mistake of telling one of my friends and now a whole bunch of people in the school know."

-Amy Moore, Sophomore

Characters

Nothing makes a sophomore as angry as OGT week does. It feels horrible to wake up early in the morning knowing that every other grade can sleep in for a few more hours. If that isn't bad enough, the actual OGT test can be just as stressful. Some will argue that the questions are a cinch, but the neverending hours it takes to finish up the various booklets can drive a sophomore crazy. These students walk out of their testing rooms with tired eyes and exhausted bodies only to see the energetic freshmen running around the hall.

But the tenth graders will go through the torture, knowing that next year they will be the ones sleeping in and those freshmen will be suffering. Even better, the OGT test is one step closer to grauation, and what sophomore can pass that up?



Katie Cahill and Sam Thompson are thankful for lunch, the only break they get during the day.

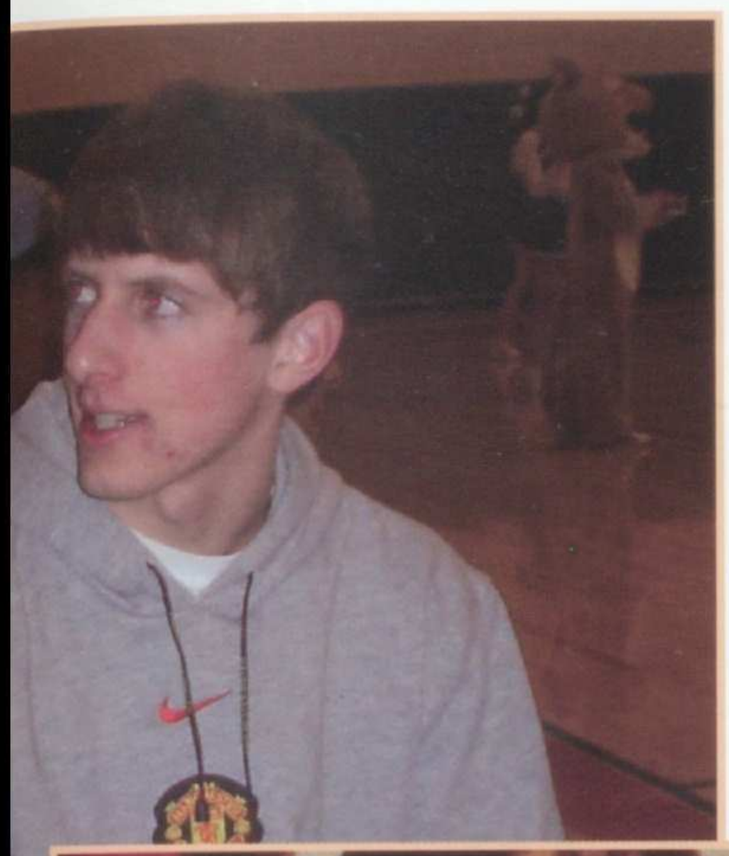
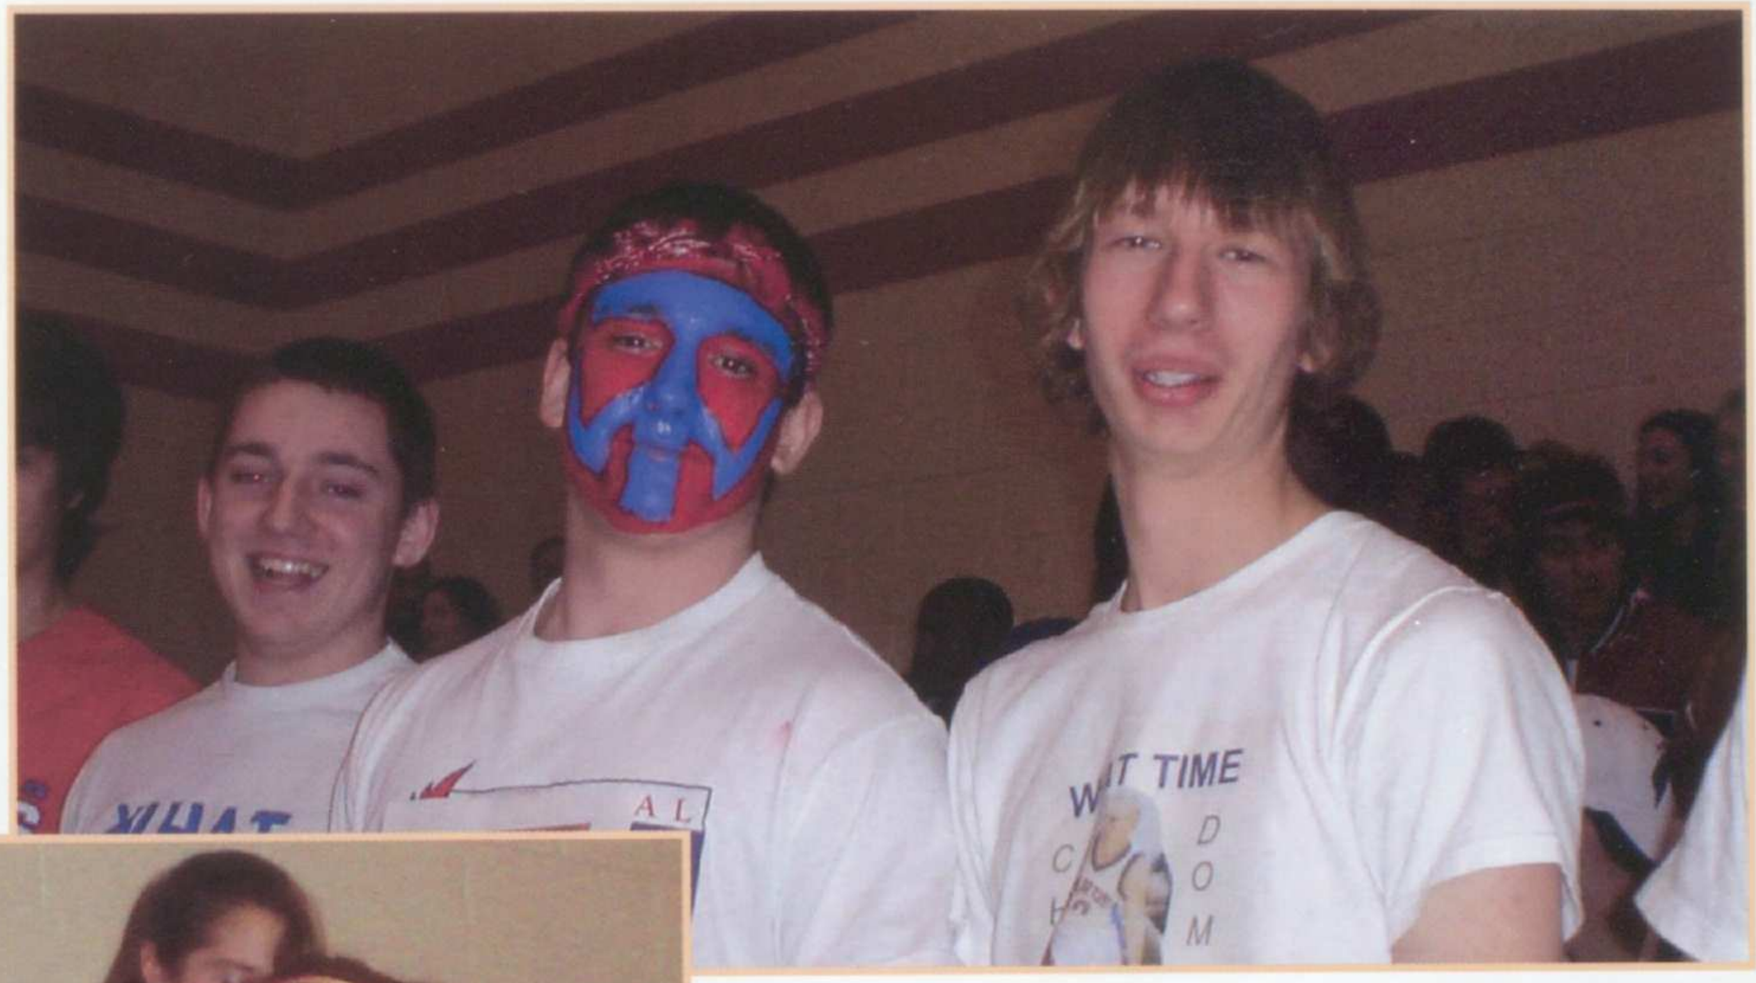
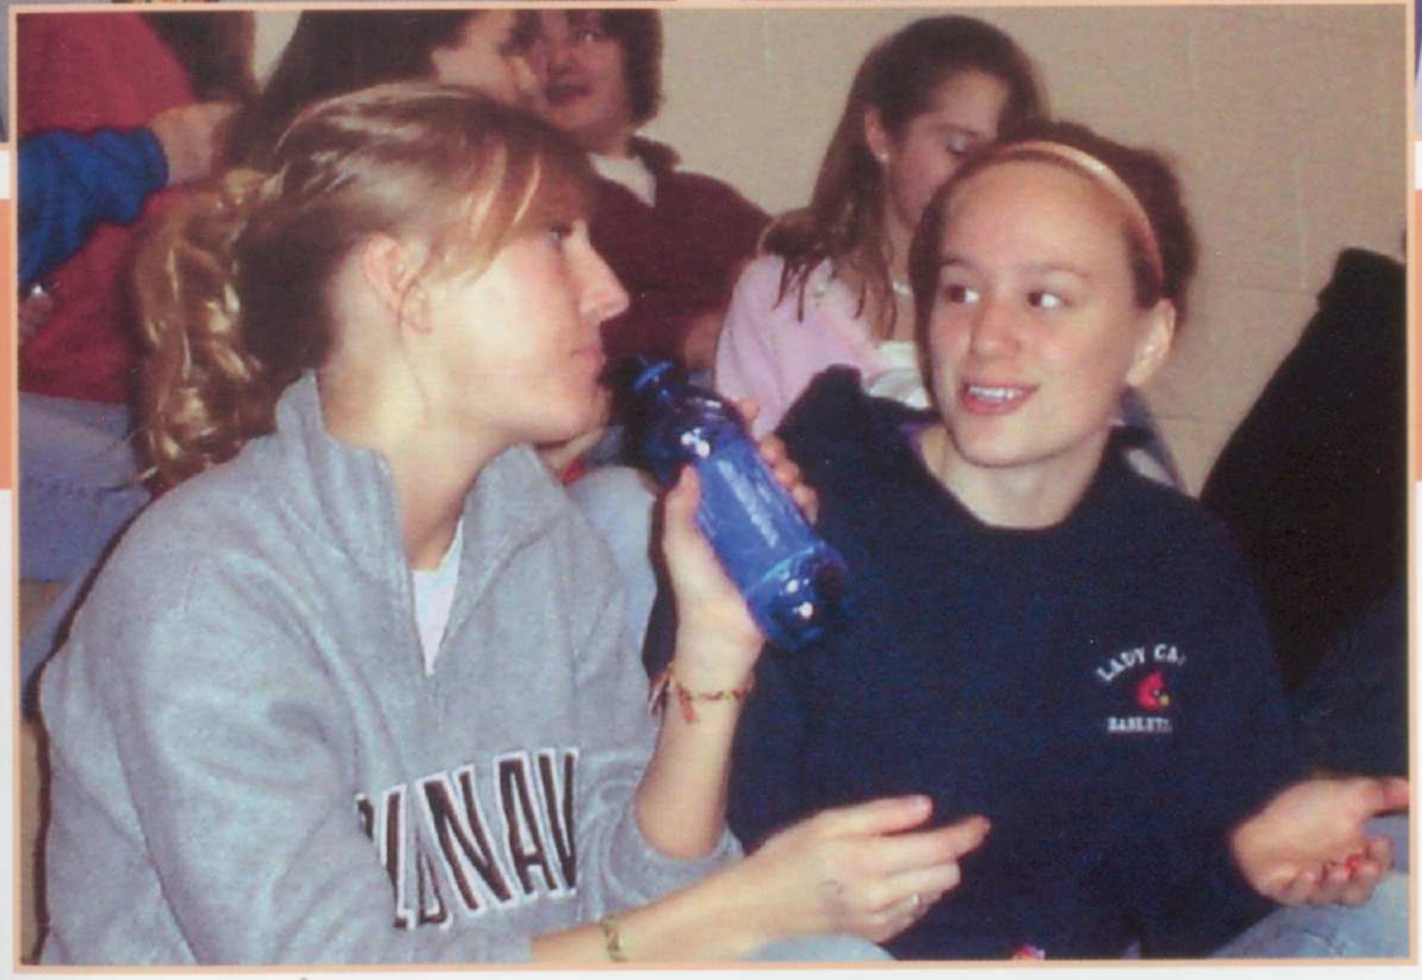
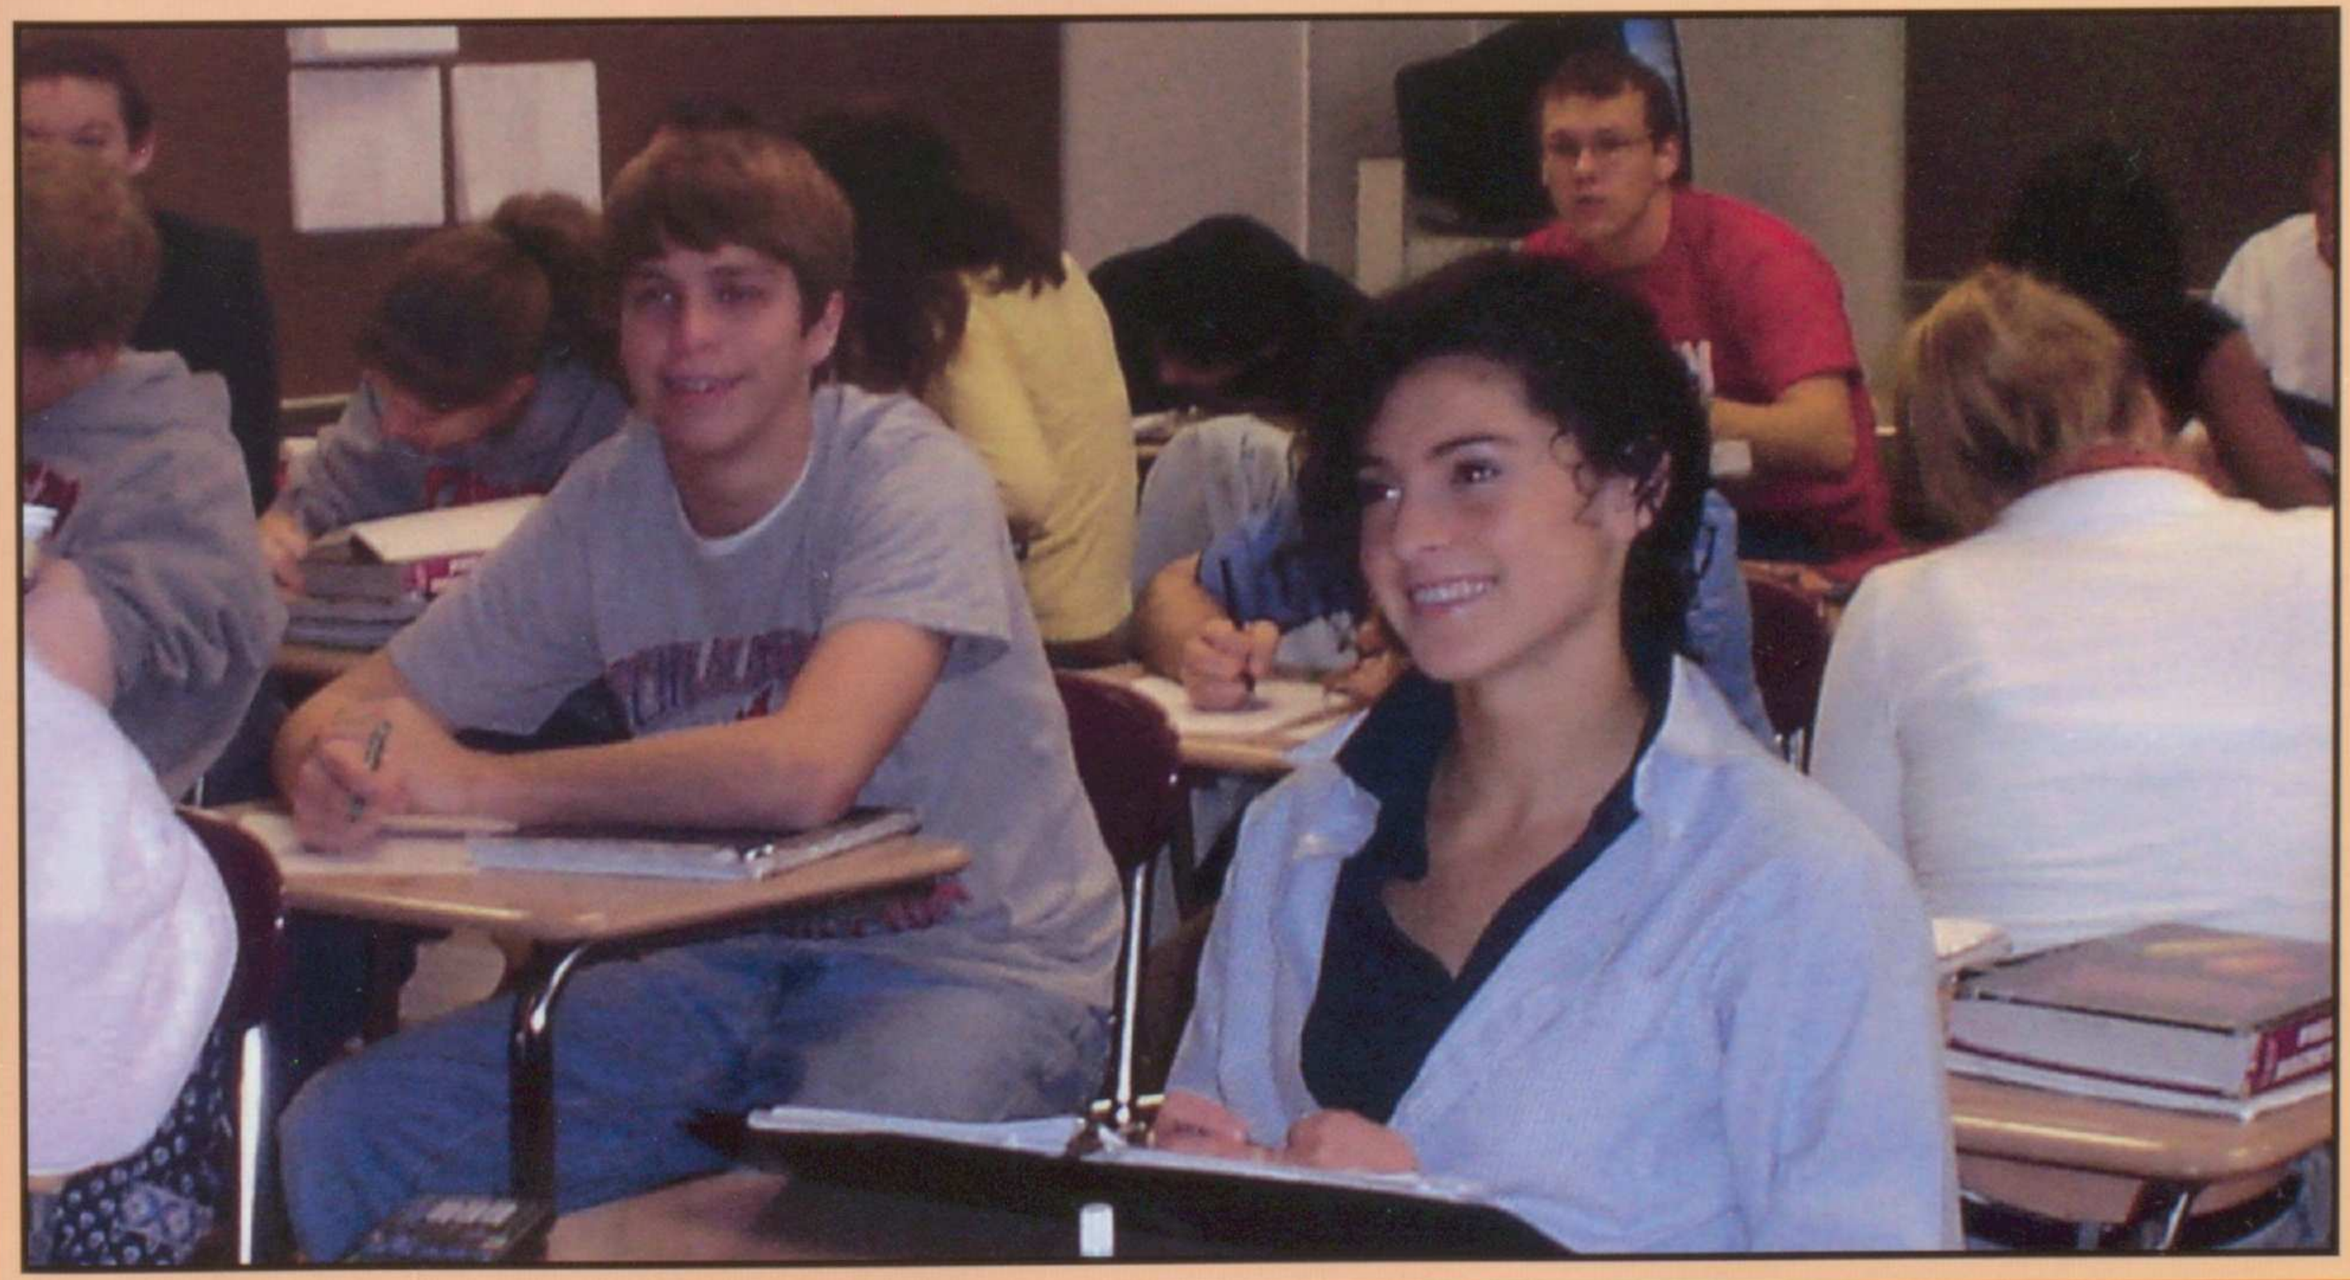
JUNIORS

Characters









Characters

Junior year is a memorable, yet stressful time in a high schooler's life. While finally being an upperclassman, responsibilities hit hard. Suddenly grades and tests are very important, and the realization of the future dawns on many students. It has been fun to watch this class grow and see them change. This year has been full of excitement for them as they put together a wonderful prom, started looking into colleges, and worked hard to survive everyday stresses facing high schoolers. It is hard to believe they only have one year left until graduation at Thomas Worthington

While getting ready to jump into their senior year of high school these juniors seem to enjoy themselves. Soon they will be ruling the school. The older you get the faster time goes, and before we know it these juniors are going to be done with high school. So sit back, relax, and take time to smell the roses.

Junior Year Memories

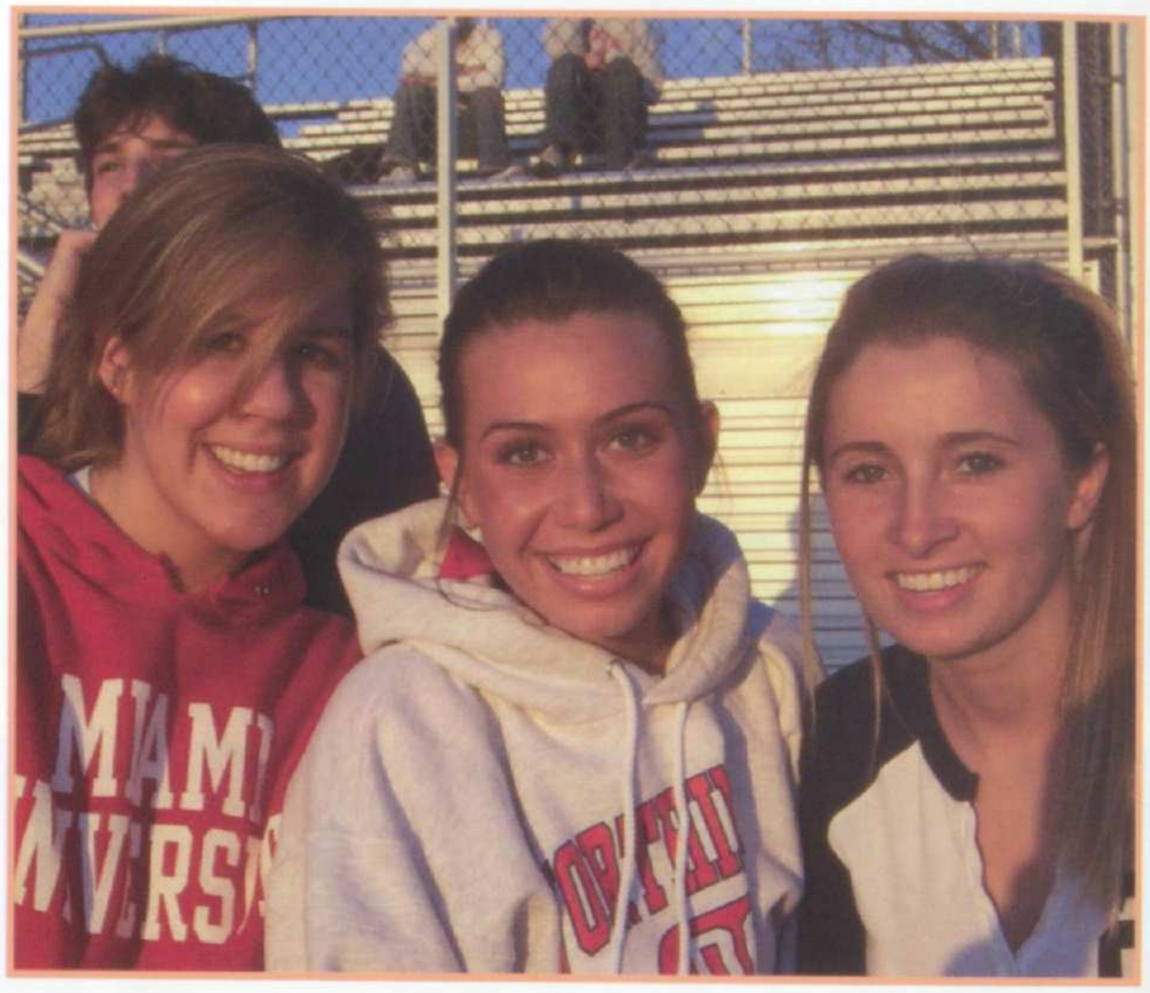
The junior class has a great set of well-rounded students with amazing personalities. This class is very strong in both academics and athletics. When asked how they spent their spare time there was a large variety of answers...

"One of my most memorable experiences was walking down the railroad tracks to the AMC theater and having a police chopper follow us on the way."
-Kate Dennison-

"This will always be my favorite year."
-Josh Cooper-

"Everyone in this class has worked hard all year and I think it is going to pay off with the steps we take and our future decisions."
-Liz Palmer-

"Prom took a lot of work but it went well. Everyone seemed to be having a good time, and we were excited with how it turned out."
-Simone Attles-



It looks like junior Lauren Sommer is up to something with that mischievious look on her face, but Aaron Paplaczyk is too busy daydreaming to think anything of it.

Taking time out of cheering on the boys lacrosse team, these three juniors Kate Dunn, Abrielle Checkler and Emily Damsel smile brightly for the camera.

Characters

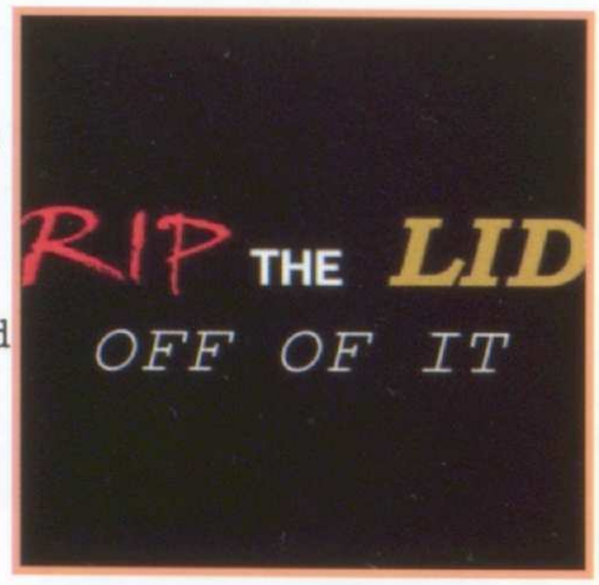
This year John Bernard and fellow TWTV seniors have taken senior lunch to a new level. As many people know, underclassmen have tried to sneak out to lunch, which is a privilege solely for seniors. John took it into his hands to catch the sneaky underclassmen. During lunch he stood outside the doors to catch the culprits on camera. So underclassmen be sure to watch out for this anchorman and his crew. Next thing you know, your dirty little secret could be aired on TWTV for the whole school to see.



Don't try to get away David Jacob, it is a little too late for that now. John Bernard catches yet another junior out to lunch.

It looks like Kelsey Scott was not sneaky enough about going out to "junior lunch."

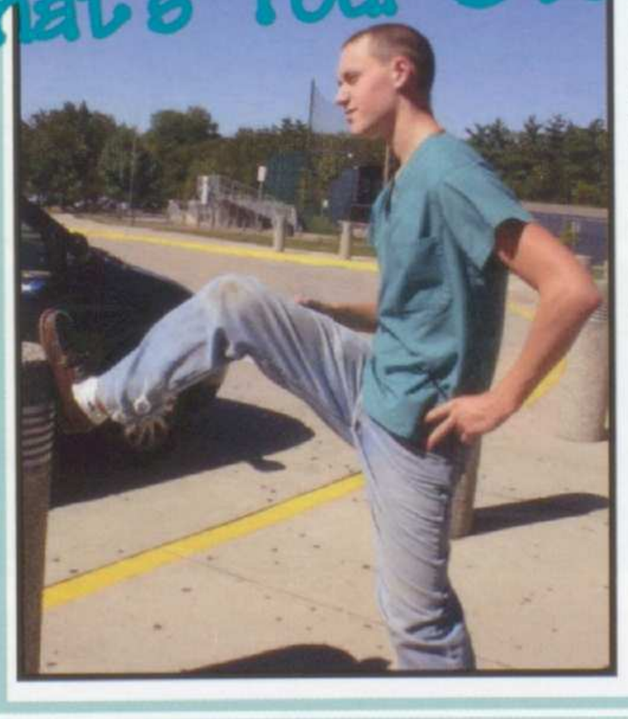
What's Your Story?



"I have very interesting aspirations. I really wish boys could play field hockey at Thomas Worthington. I am hoping to start my own field hockey career. One of the things I enjoy most about high school is having late arrival and wearing costumes to school. In the future I would like to pursue a career builing houses."

What's Your Story?

"I moved here from West Virginia in middle school and the transition was rough. At first I did not fit in due to my different accent, and some kids were not very accepting of me. Once I got to Thomas Worthington I decided to start taking phonics classes. I've been taking them for a few years and they have helped a lot. Although I love West Virginia, I am very thankful for what the classes have taught me."

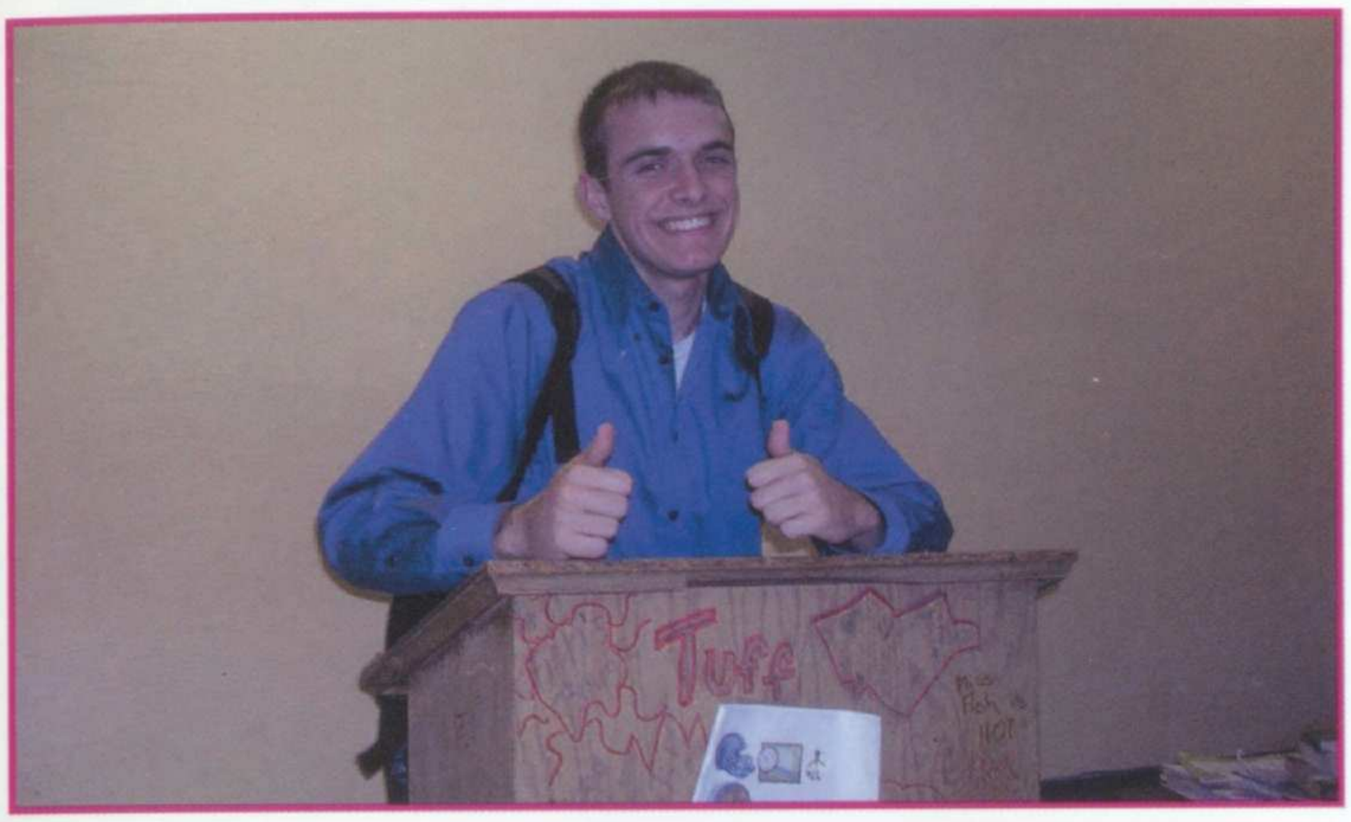
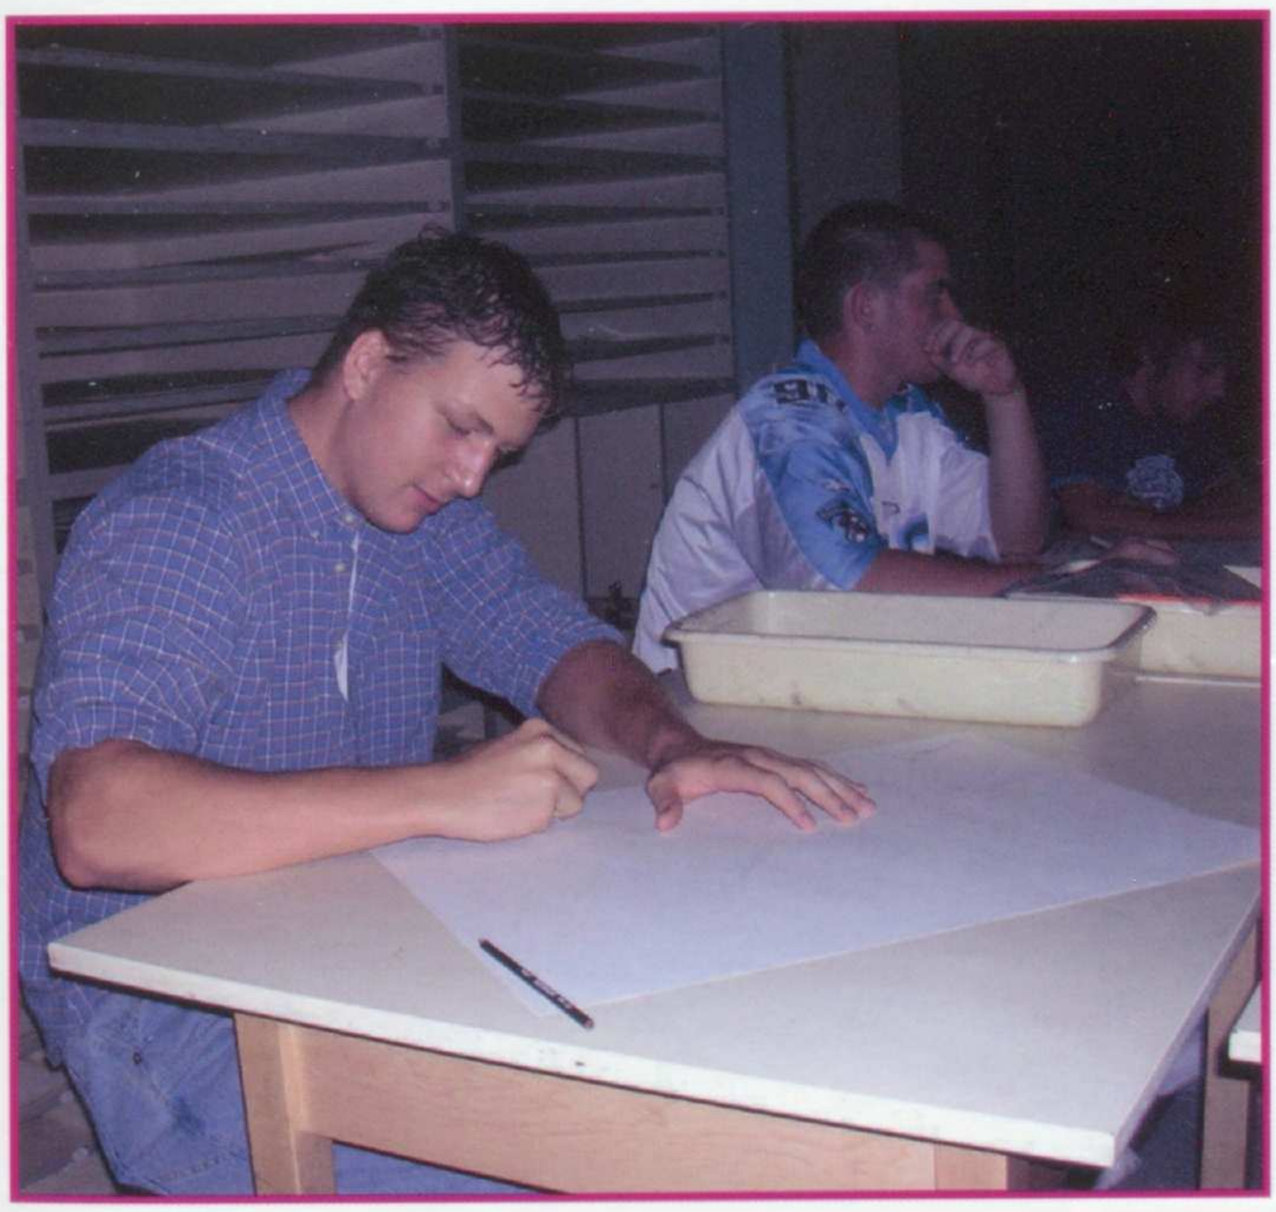
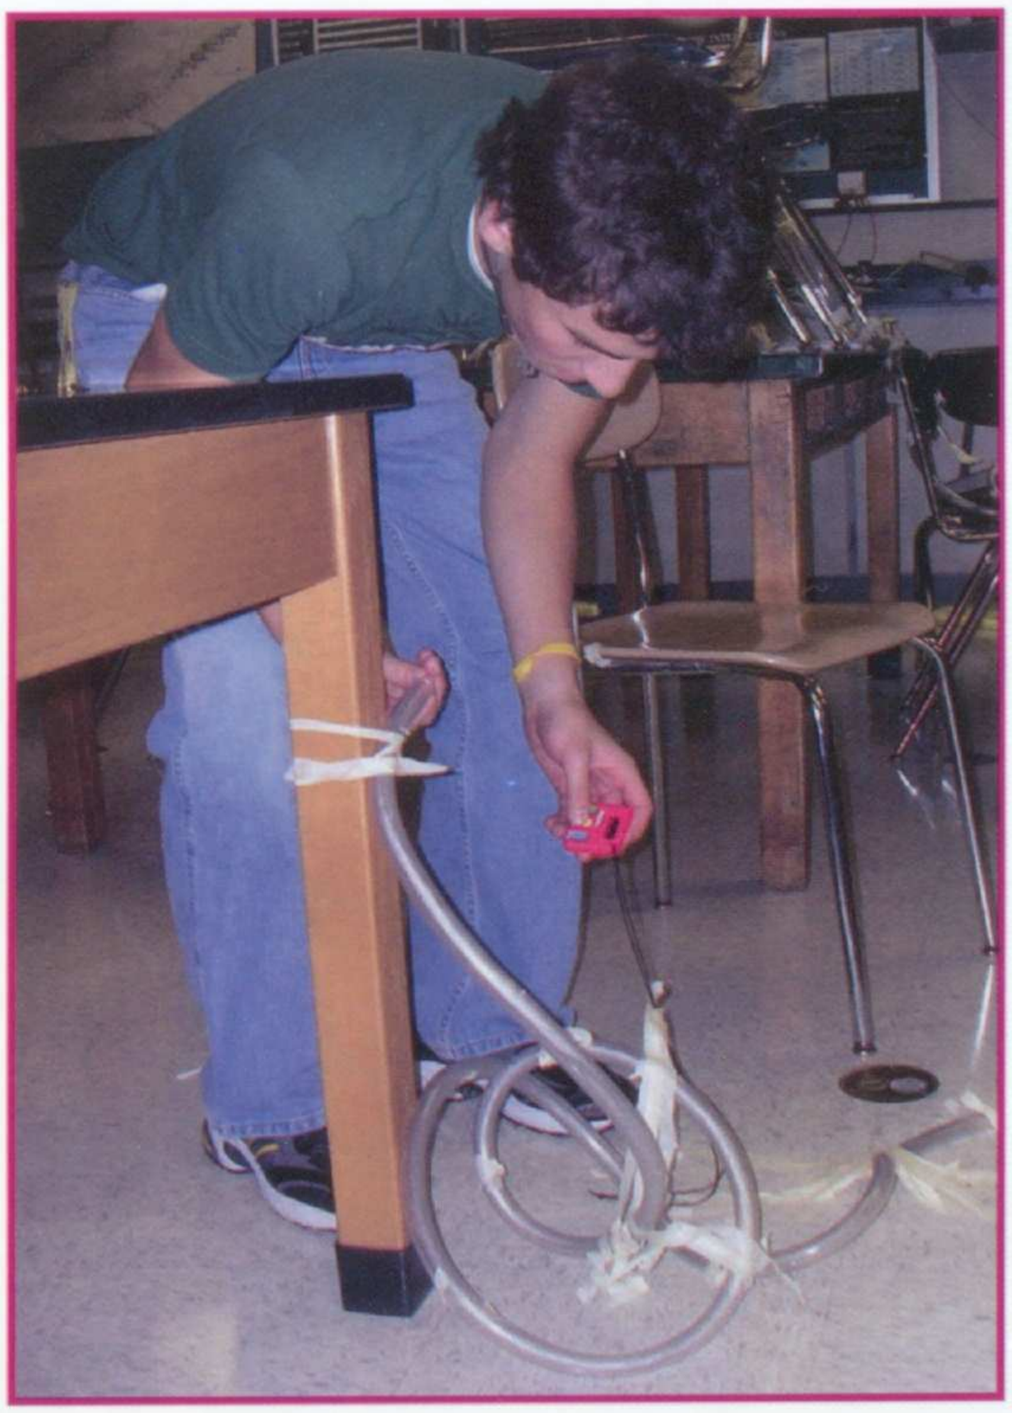
Congratulations Class of 2006!



Giving two thumbs up to Thomas Worthington is Jeff Zaenger. His sucess in his school work and lacrosse seasons have made his high school career what it is.

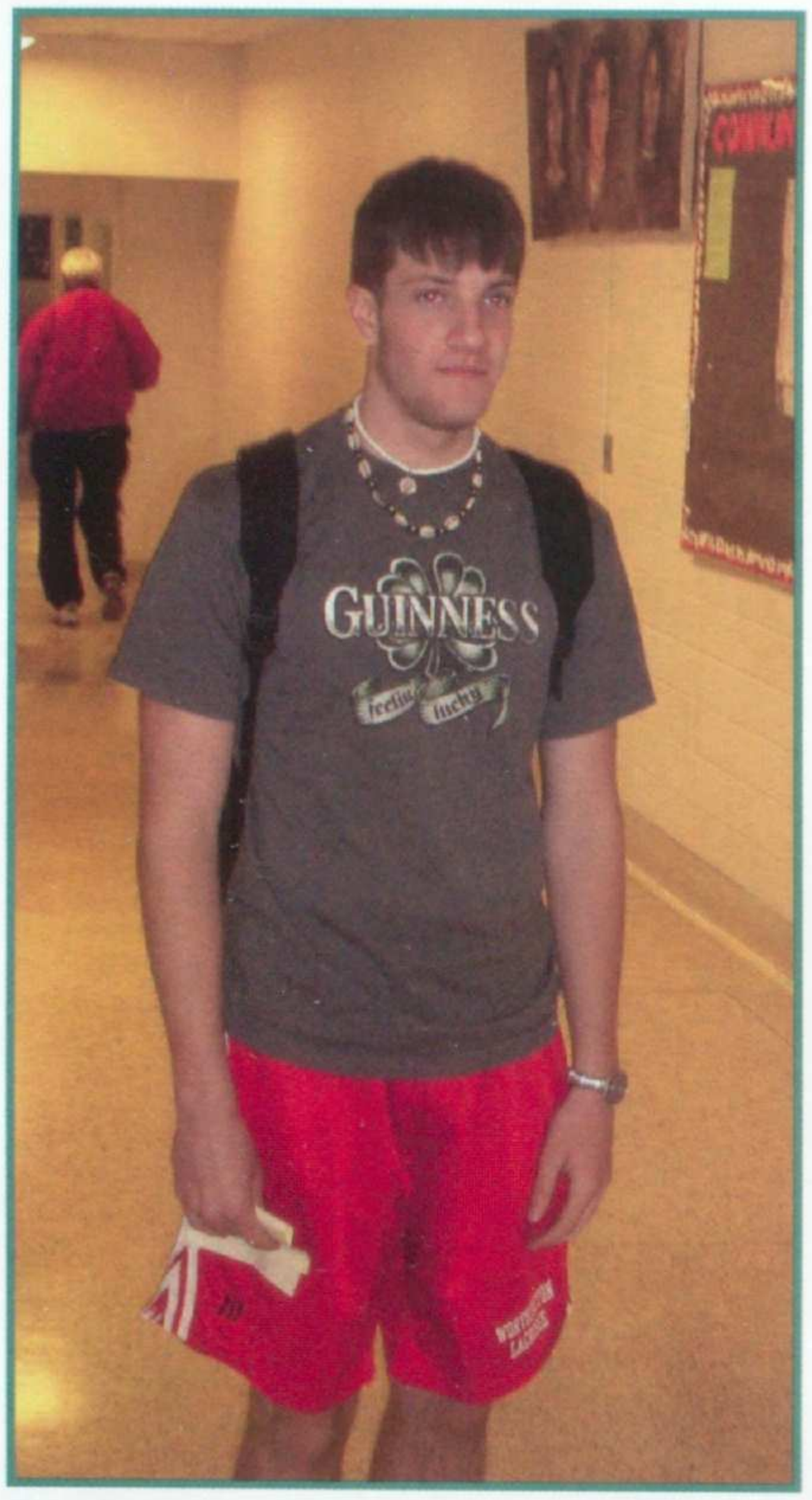


It looks like it would be a fun ride, but Eric Taylor still tests just how fast his rollercoaster can go. He made this rollercoaster for a lab in Physics, a common senior year course.



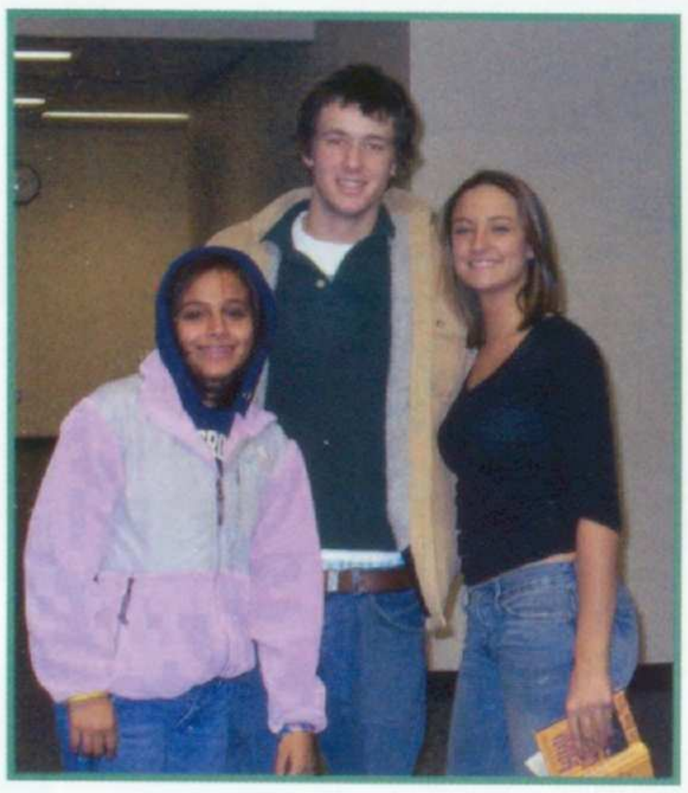
I wonder what David Antry is drawing? Whatever it is, he is focused and determined to finish it and turn it in on time. As for Jimmy Ruble, he seems to be daydreaming off in another world.

With smiles bright enough you need sunglasses, Katie Ritzert, Jaclyn Dignan, Amy Chadwell. and Meriden Peters pose outside First Watch at Worthington Square. First Watch is a breakfast/lunch restaurant frequented by TWHS students.



Eager to get to class is Mike Olsen. Ever since he came back from his trip to Europe this summer, he's been nothing but thirsty to learn!

Relaxing on a Saturday night are Austin Cooper, Connor Slomka, and RJ. Lindenmuth. Connor is controlling the video game for now, but Austin and RJ. won't let that last very long.

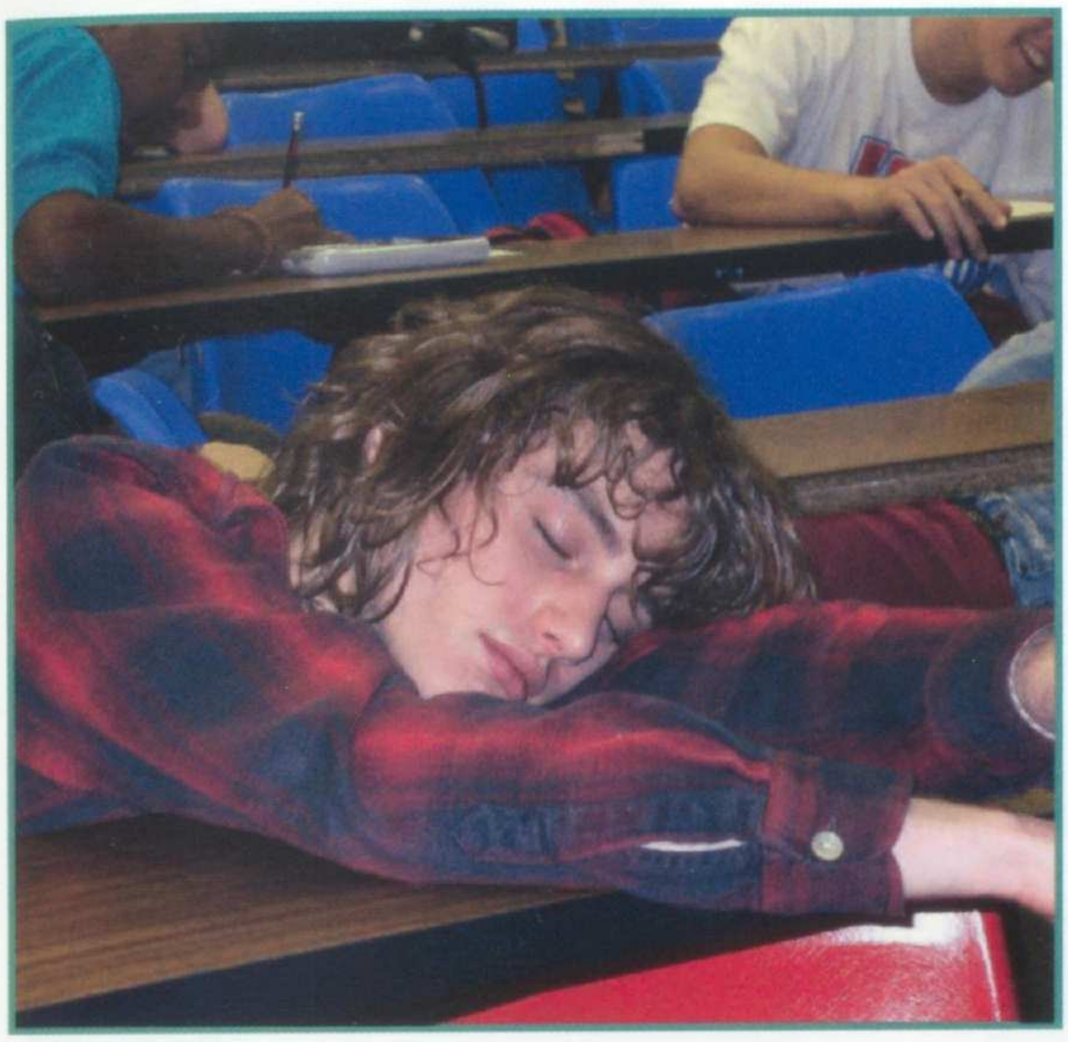


Hanging out during eighth period is Tiera Green, Jon Moore and Carlie Powers. Carlie finds it hard to concentrate on her book with Jon and Tiera distracting her with weekend plans.

Expert ceramics student Kevin Nash shows off his trimming skills as he finishes up a bowl. "Concentration is key to creating a flawless piece," Kevin says.

Pretty in Pink describes the seniors of the girls volleyball team. As Hannah Risher says, "We always had fun, but it helped that we were awesome too!" This volleyball team was the first ever to be District Champions.

Dozing off in an early morning study hall is John Bevan. Classes too rough, John? Sweet dreams!



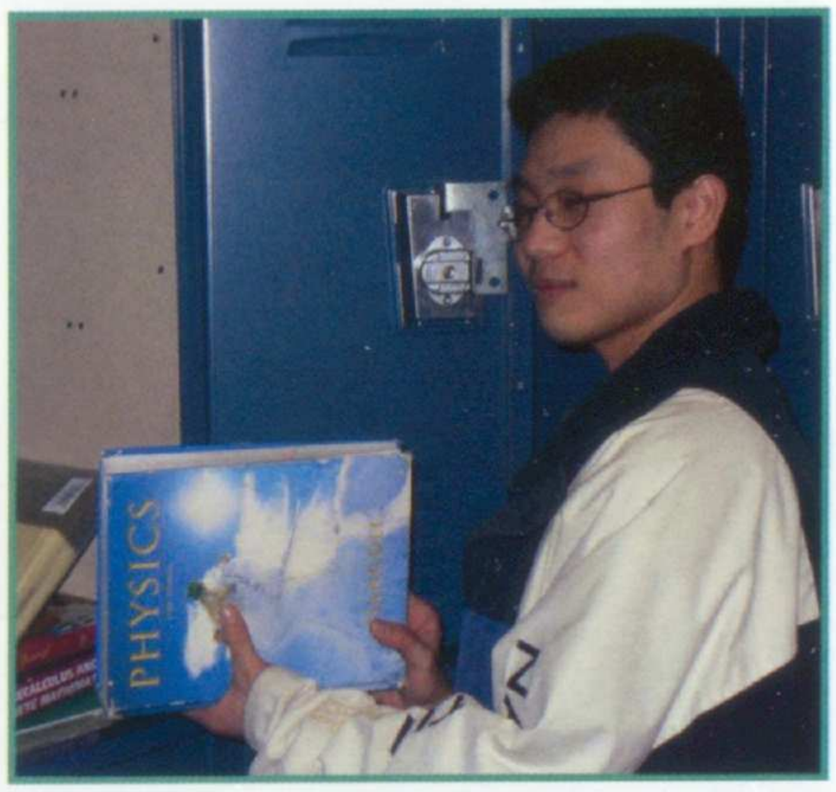
How many points did Chris Dorka and Josh David score in their intramural game today? "Zero" they sign to us. Come on boys, pick up your game!!

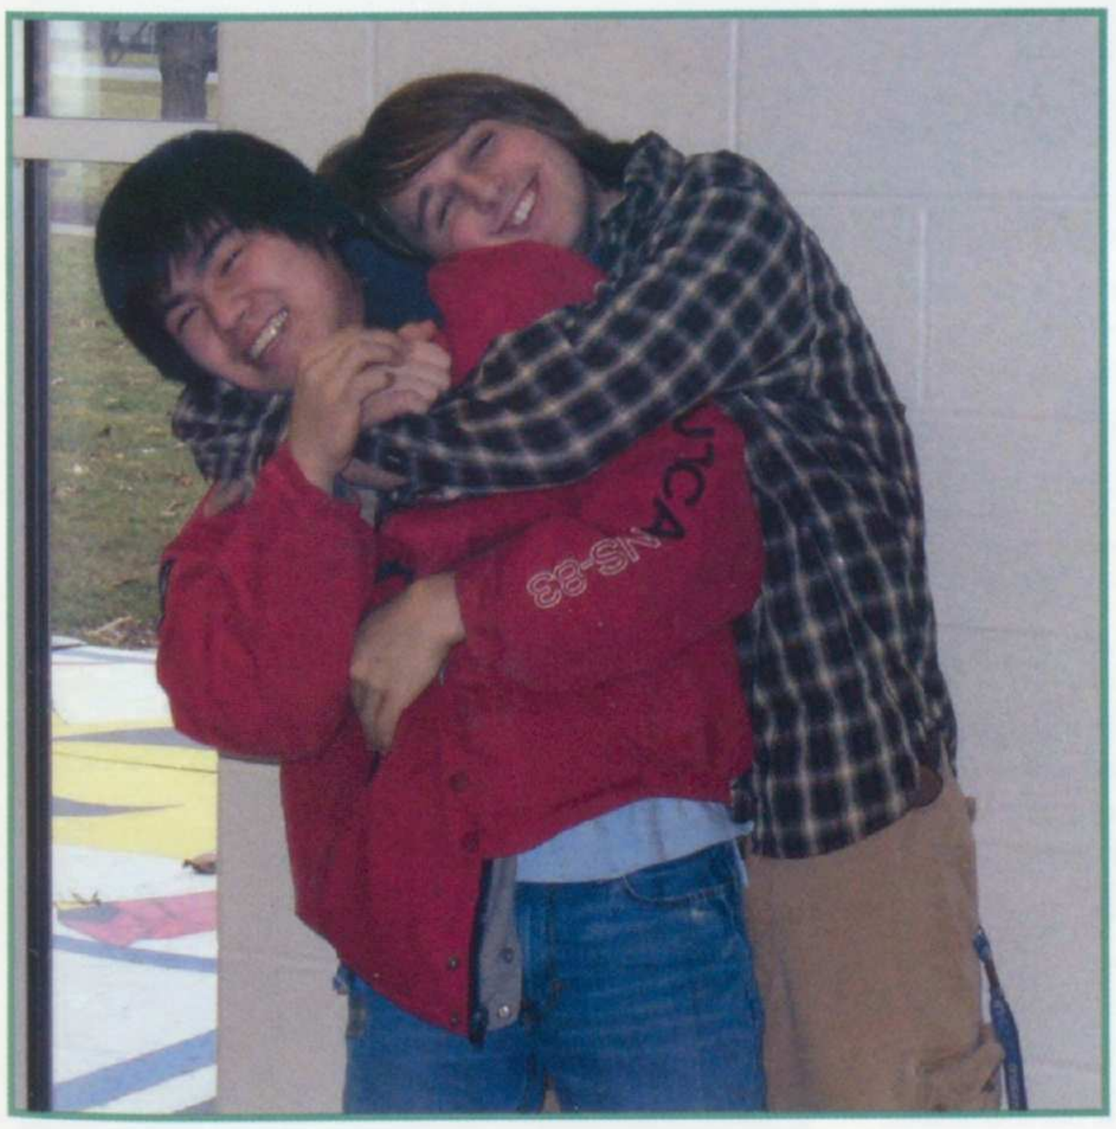
What was your favorite part of senior year?

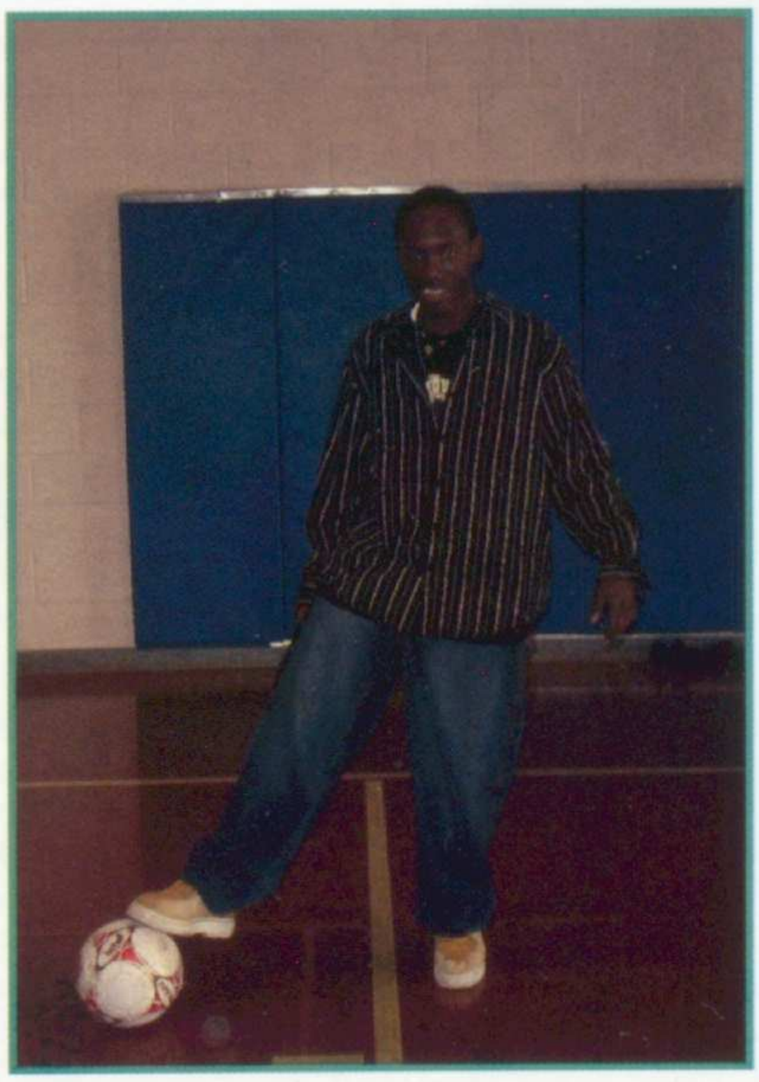
"My favorite part of senior year was the easy classes and knowing that I'm almost done!"

~Justin Delph

Taking a quick stop at his locker to get his Physics book is An Nguyen. As you can see, An is a very dedicated student who has many other books in his locker as well!







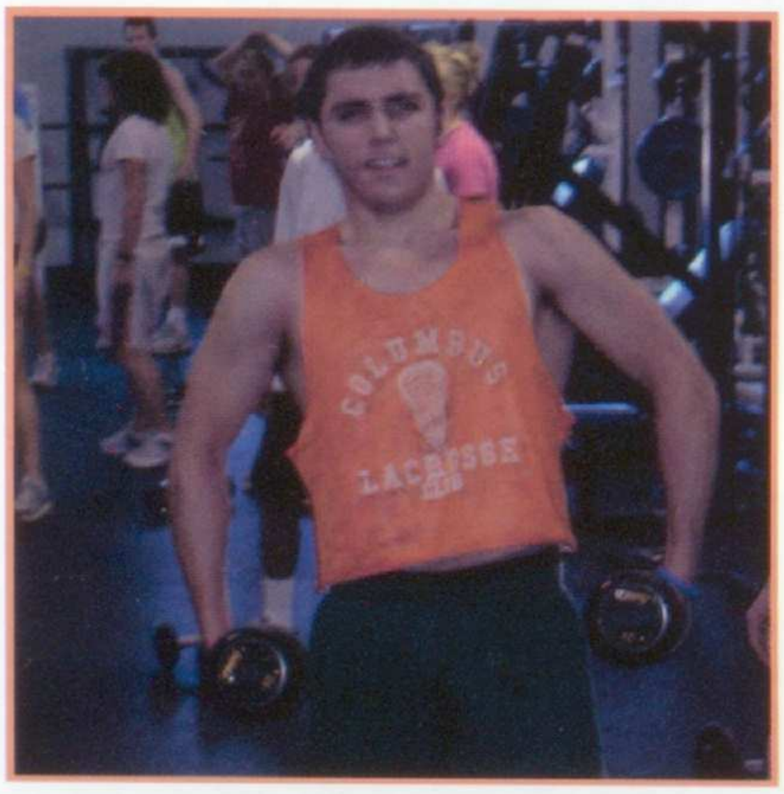
Look at Joseph Senessie handle that ball! All of his hard work and practice must have paid off since he played on the TWHS boys soccer team all four years!

Giving his best bud a big bear hug is Austin Guiher. Xue Gong Chen looks less than thrilled to be squeezed during the hall exchange. NO PDA IN THE HALLS BOYS!!!!!

SENIORS IN SHAPE

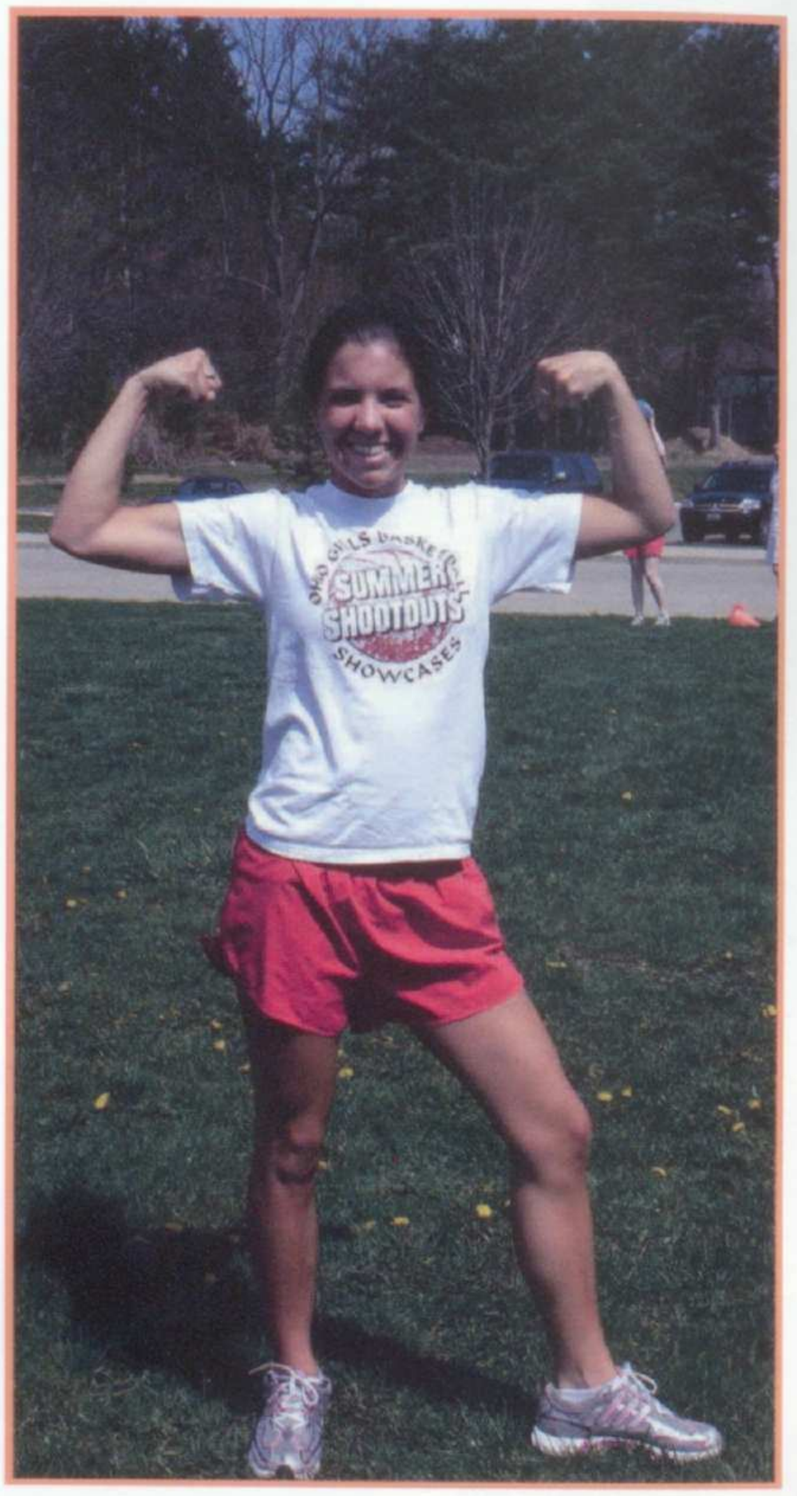
In today's world, being fit and in shape is the look. For some,. this may mean cutting a few calories and for others it may be extreme limitations. However, the best way to stay in shape is to eat in moderation and excercise. The recommended amount of physical activity is at least 30 minutes a day. For guys, its all about being "ripped". On the other hand, girls workout more to look toned.

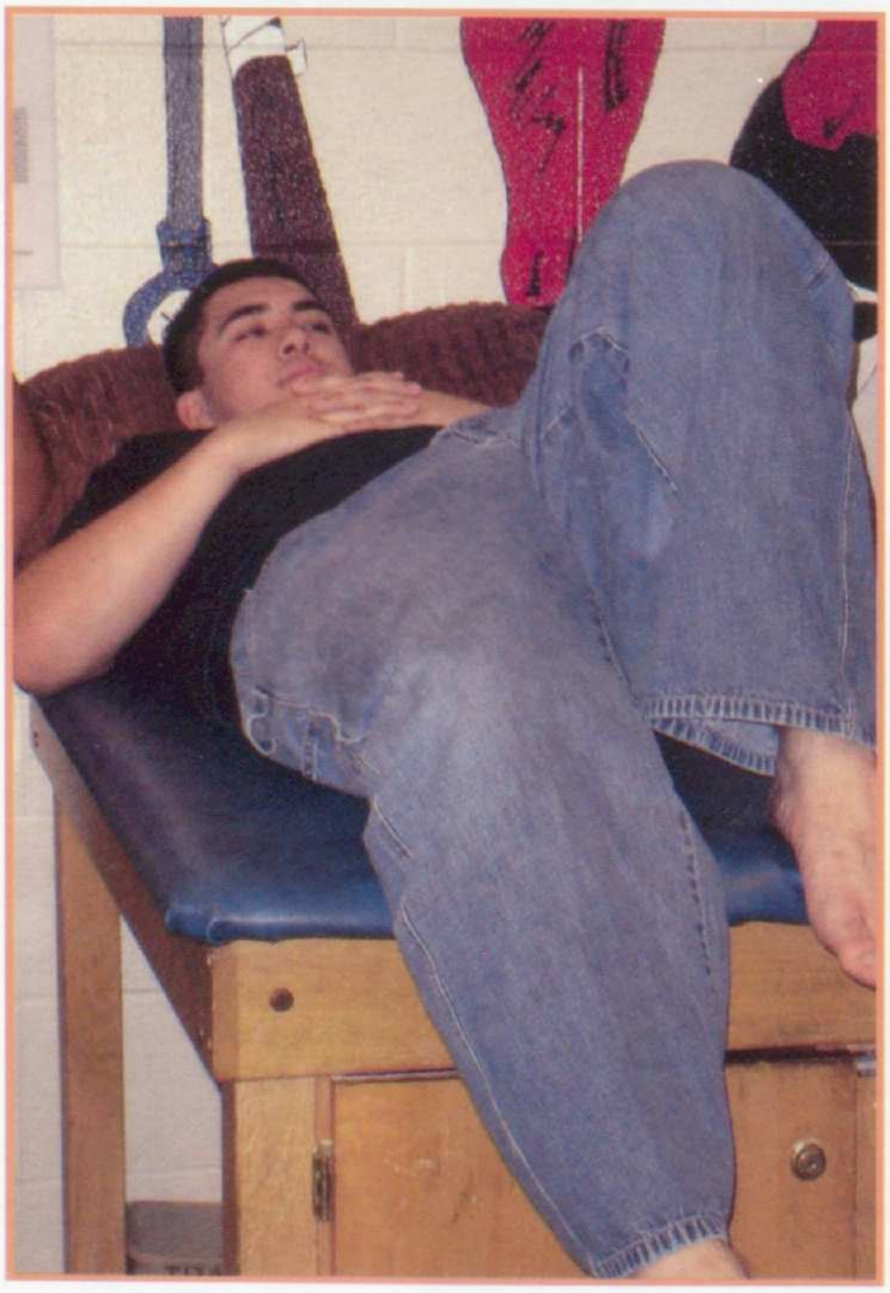
The senior class at Thomas Worthignton is all about being in shape. Whether its working out in the school weight room, participating in school or club sports, taking a fitness class at TWHS, working out at a gym or rec center,or even at home, Cards always make time for a workout. Some squeeze a workout in before school, during lunch, or after-school. Of course, the seniors don't let working out get in the way of school work!



Getting ready for lacrosse season is Scott McCarthy. Those look a little heavy for you Scott, you might want to go a few pounds lighter!

Look at this girl flex! Kelly Dunick stays in shape by running and doing plyometrics.





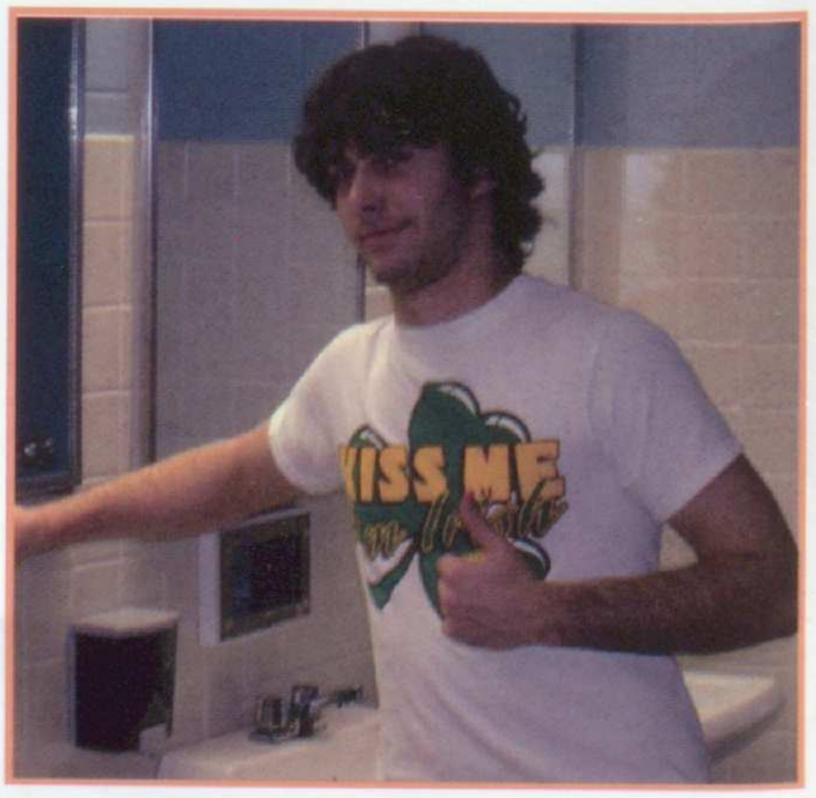
Where do you workout?
School 43% Rec Center 52% Home 5%

How many times a week do you workout?
5-7 times 42% 3-5 times 44% 3 or less times 14%

What type of exercise do you do?
Cardio 16% Weightlifting 30% Both 54%

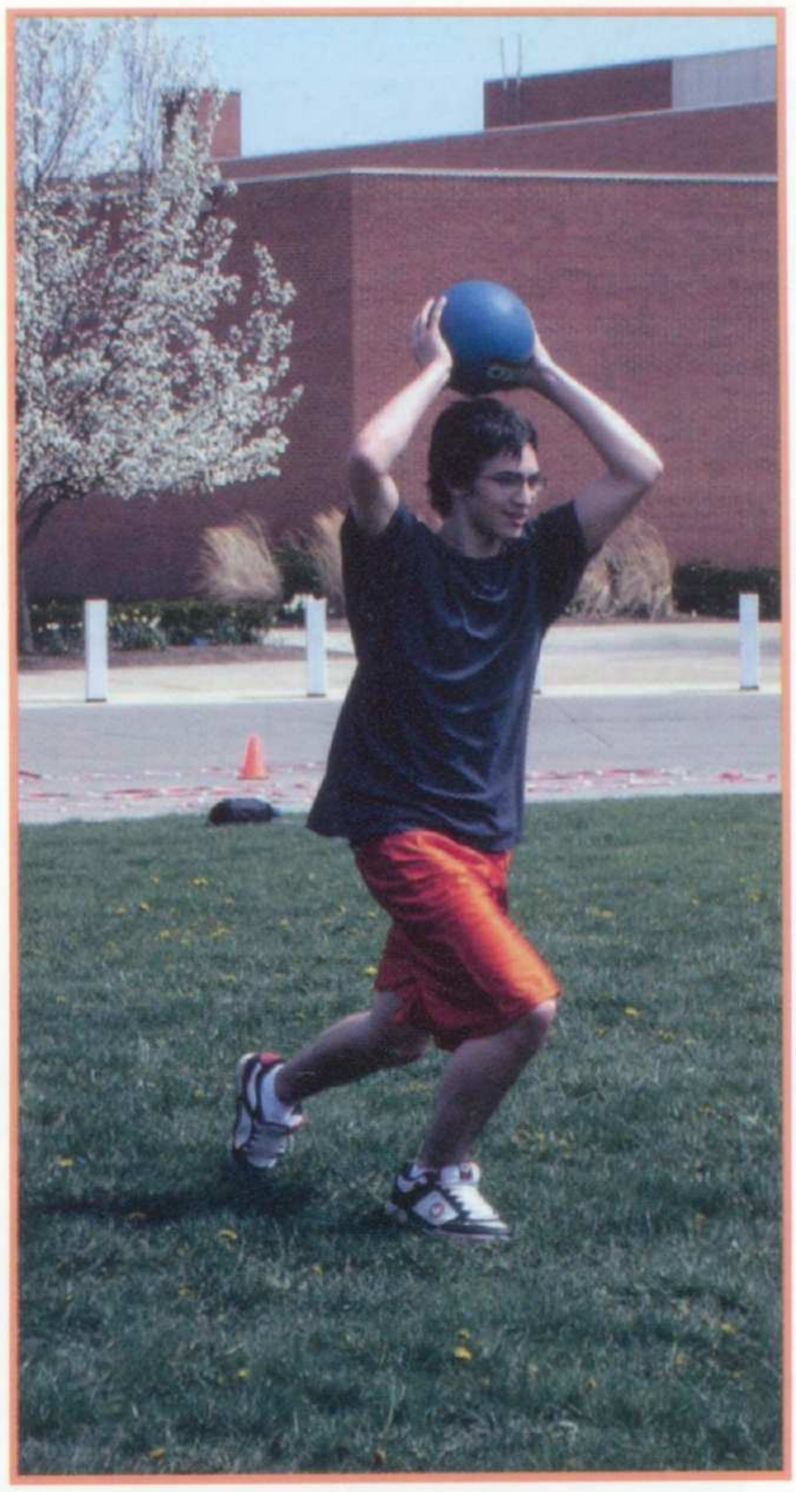
Edgar Moreno is waiting in the training room to get his ankle taped before track practice. The training room is open to all students, and is usually a busy place after school!

Washing up after a hard workout is Andy Princehorn. Its very important to freshen-up before heading back to class, you don't want the pretty girls to think you smell like that ALL the time!



I MUST GET WASHBOARD ABS!...
We all know Ray Harper must be thinking this while a look of pain streams across his face. "His hard work pays off, I love his stomach," exclaims his girlfriend, Addie Mehling.

In the month of May, most seniors are lounging. However, Charles Seward is "lunging" through strength training class. That is some serious dedication right there.

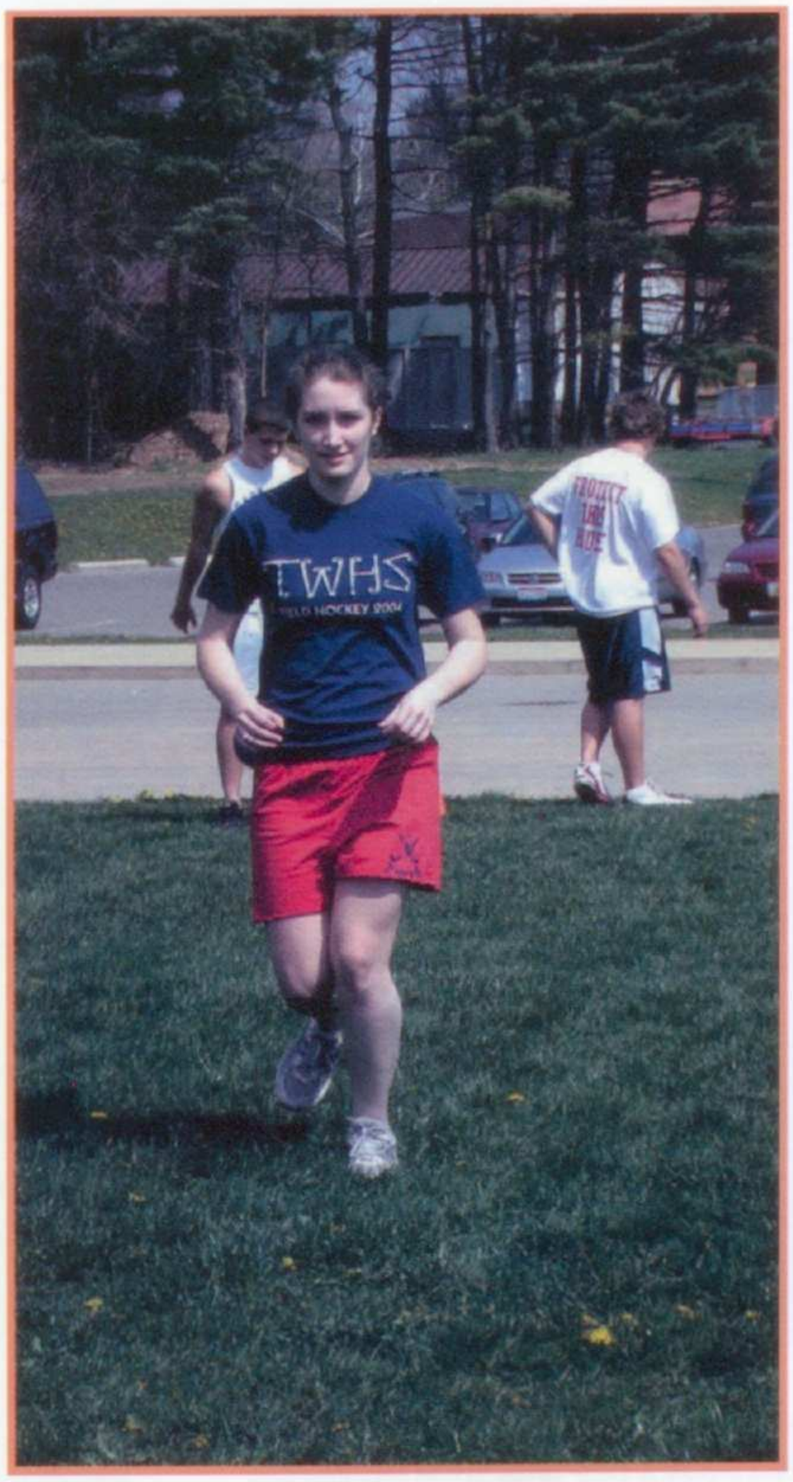


It is very rare to find Mrs. Postak ouside of the weight room. She just recently opened a gym for children ages 5-12 in Dublin. She is determined to keep the youth of our community in good health.

When the weather is gorgeous, students have a hard time focusing on schoolwork. Joe Forte and Andrew Wilcox change their focus to a sun-tan and a game of frisbee.

"When it comes to personal fitness,. we all know I'm king. I'm a well-known member at the World Gym in Columbus. I'm usually there two or three times a day, trying to maximize my muscle mass. Let me get a shout out to the no neck camp."

~Joe Davis

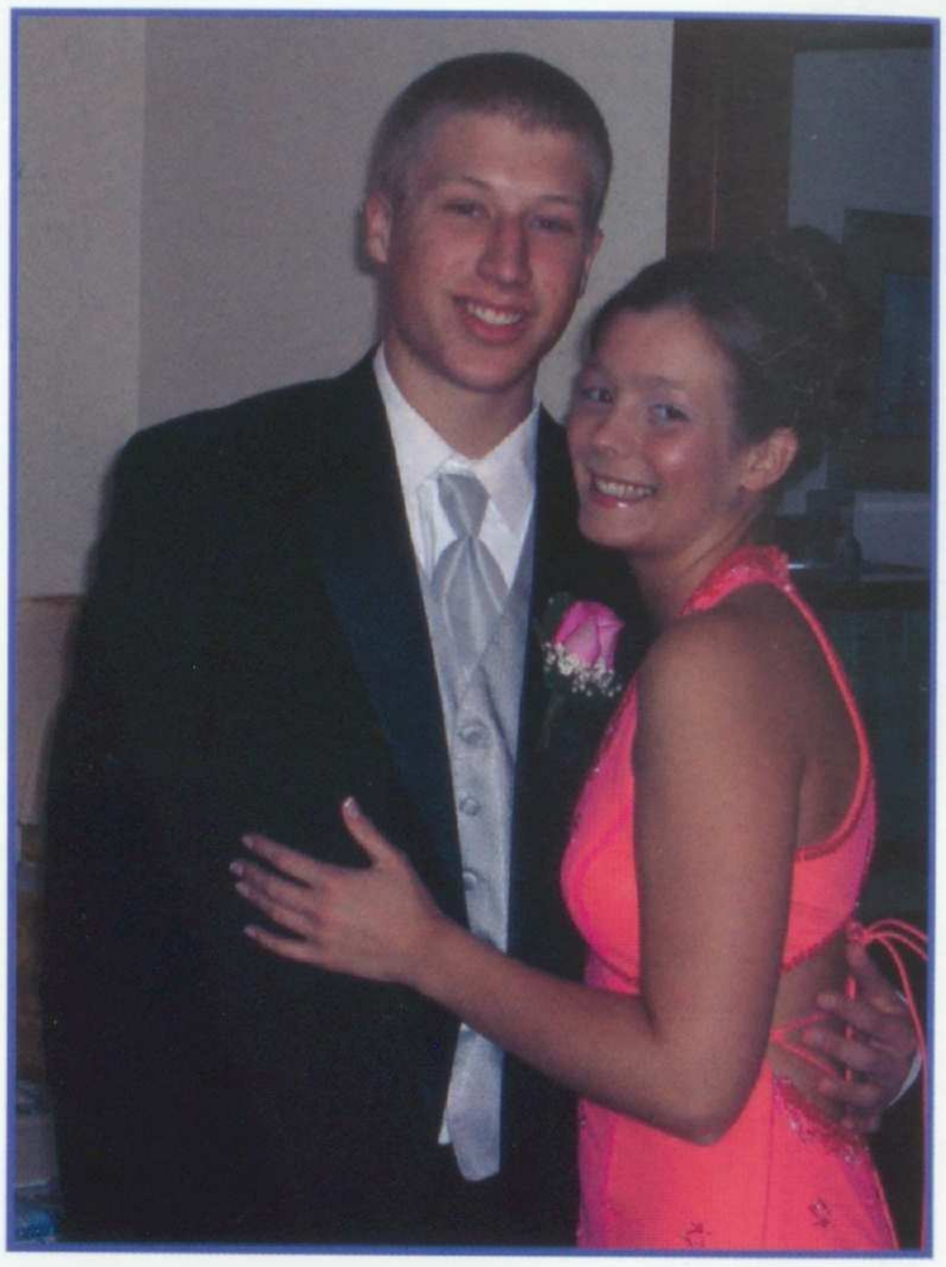


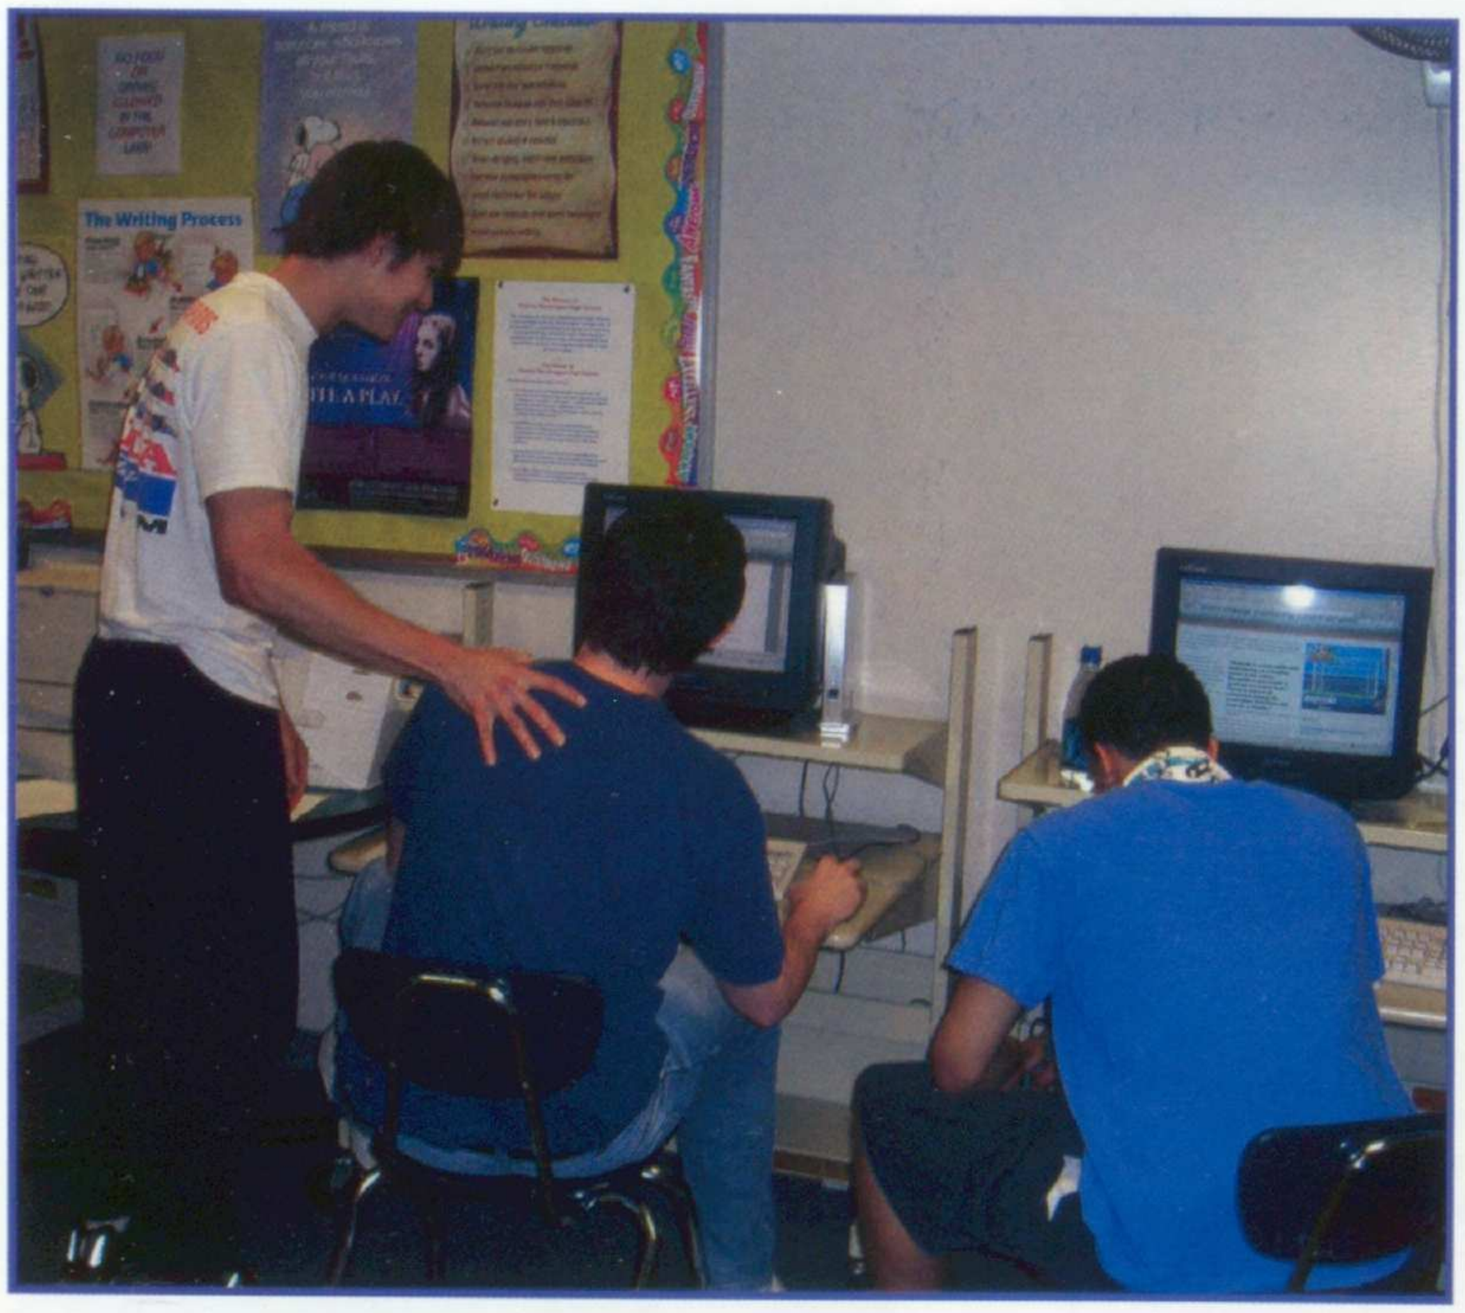
Is that Katie Tomashewski running away from school? No, she is running sprints for Personal Wellness class. A great way to get a gym credit and some physical activity!

Chris, what a great smile you have! Often seen in the weightroom or on the field is Chris Dorka. He stays in tip-top shape by playing football and baseball year round.

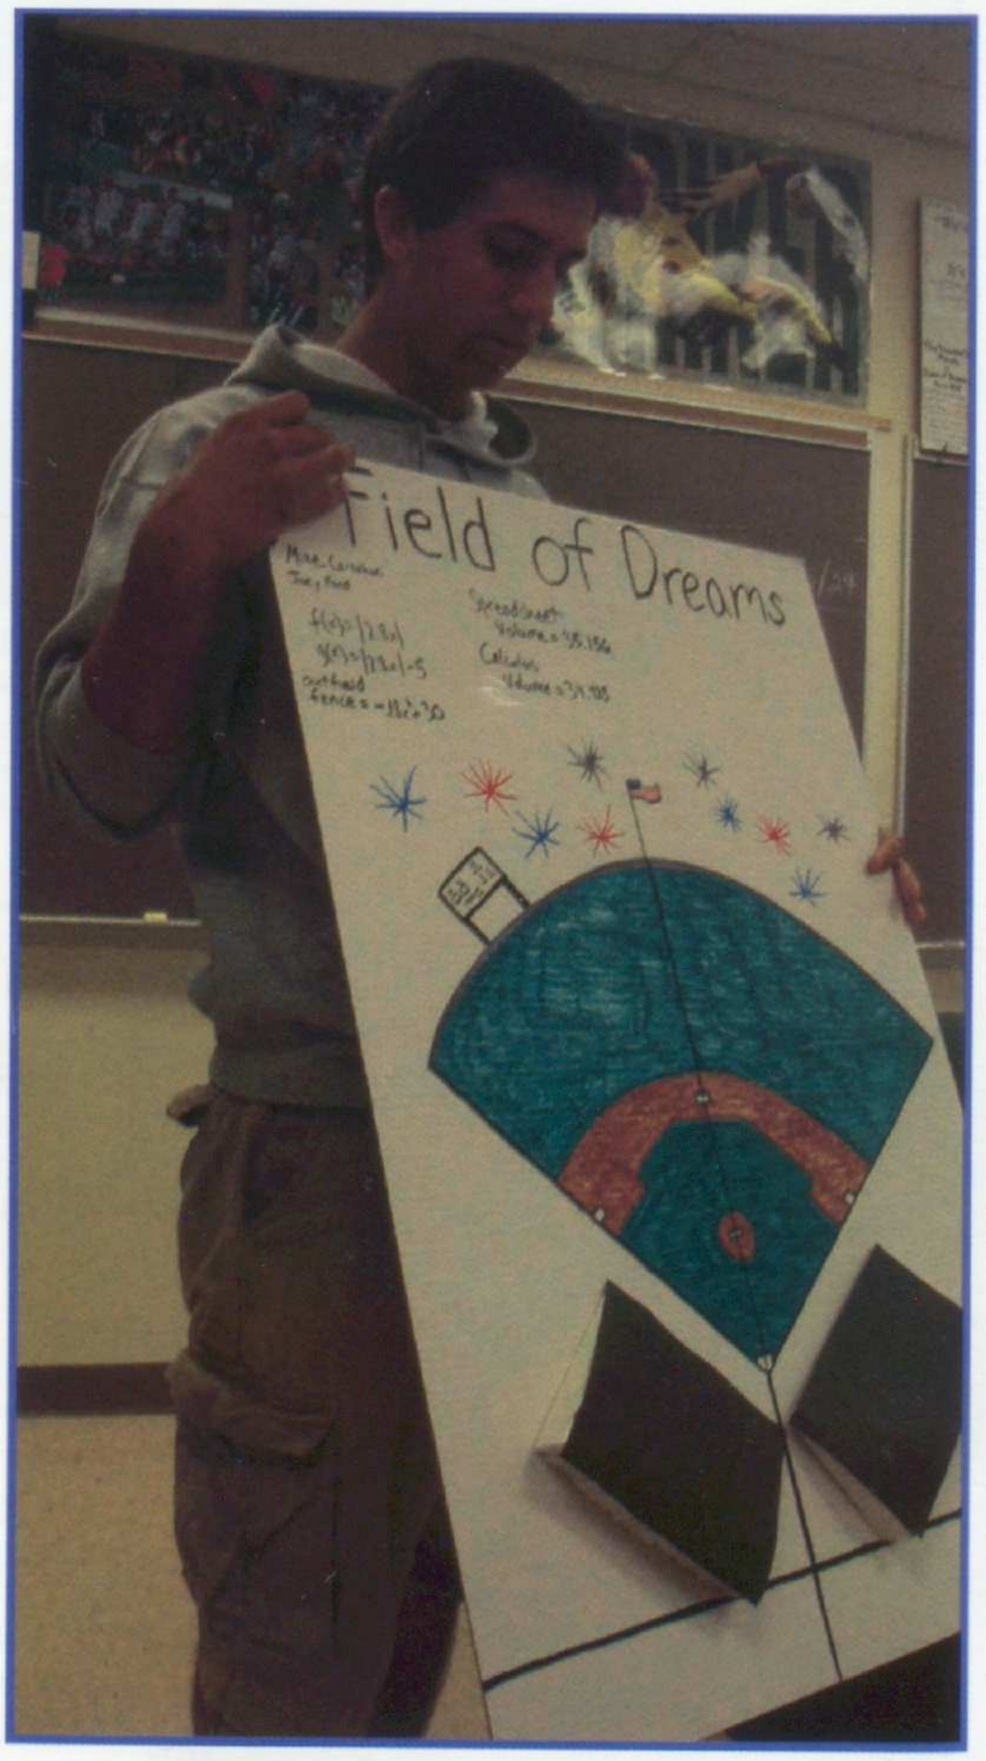
Enjoying a relaxing senior lunch at Buckeye Subs is Colin Russi and Todd Carleson. Buckeye Subs is frequented by TWHS students and, if you don't hurry out to your car after the bell rings, your destined to wait in line to get your food!

Not only are Rob Ward and Jenny Fisher the perfect couple, they look great together too! His pink rose compliments her eclectic dress, do you think they planned it?

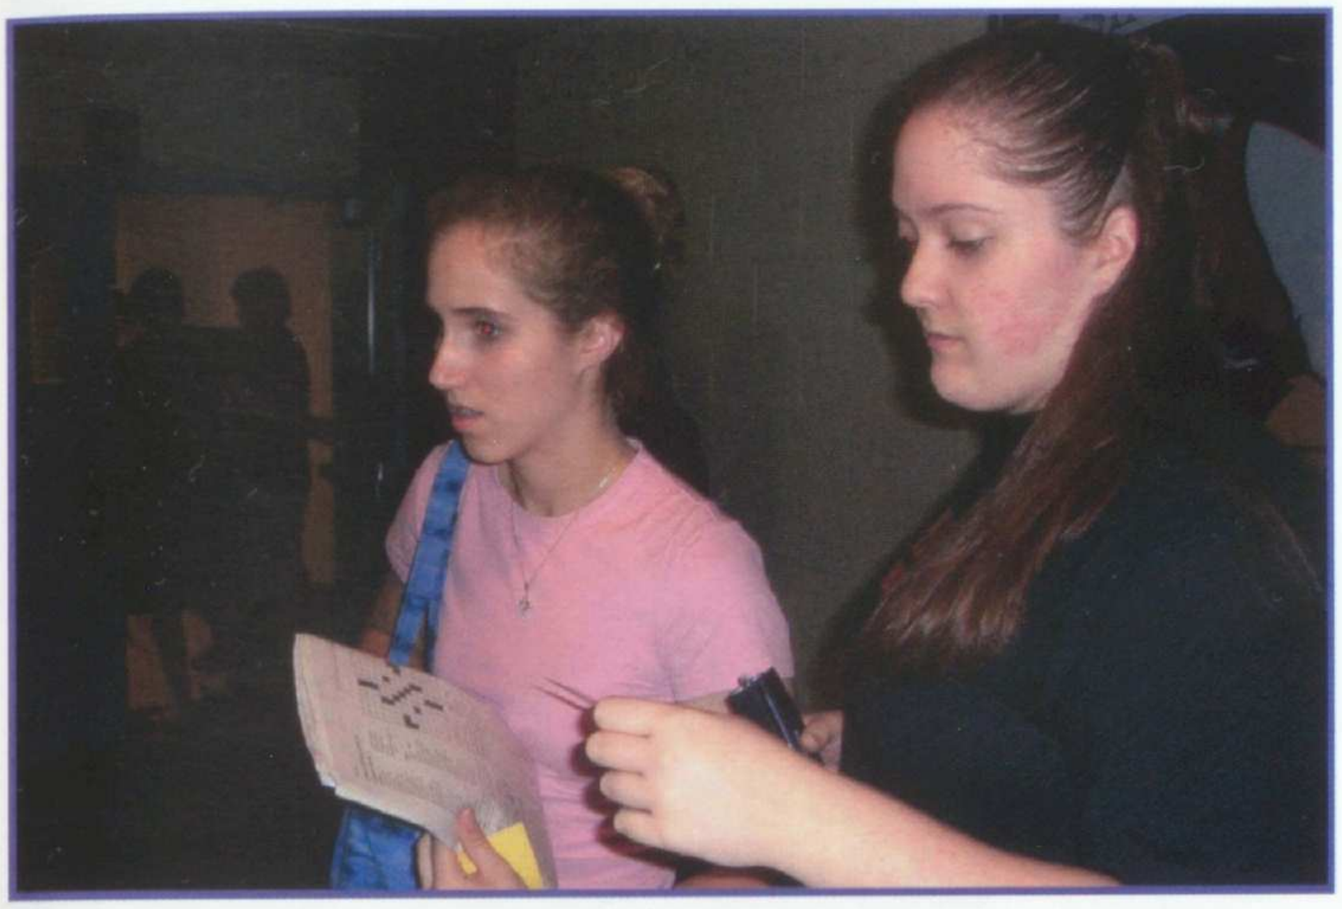




Truman Rendina must be giving these two tired boys a pep talk! They need to focus and finish their papers for Senior Comp.

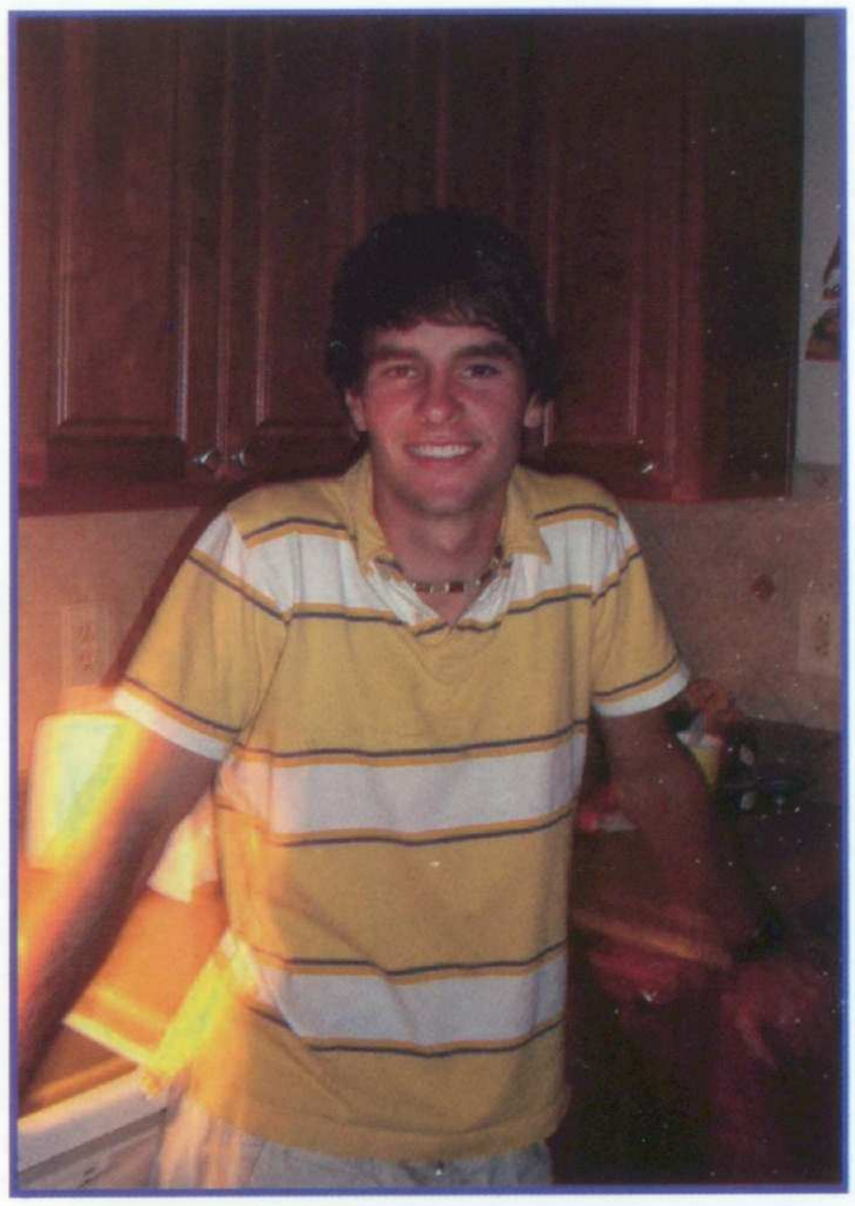


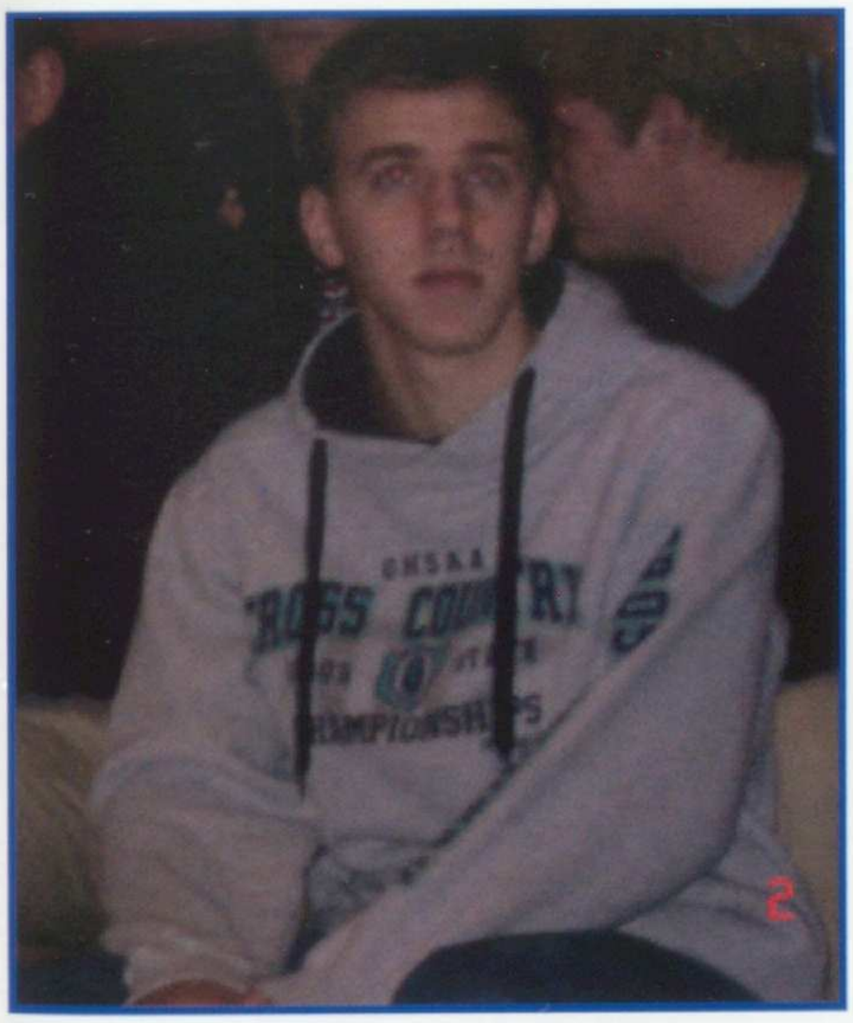
What a coincidence, Mike Carnahan made a baseball diamond for his project. Looks just like the field the Cards play on!



Getting their Cardinal Gold Cards are Lauren Heironimous and Abby Alden. The school provided a cook-out lunch for Gold Card members. With these two girls in attendance, it must have been a good time!

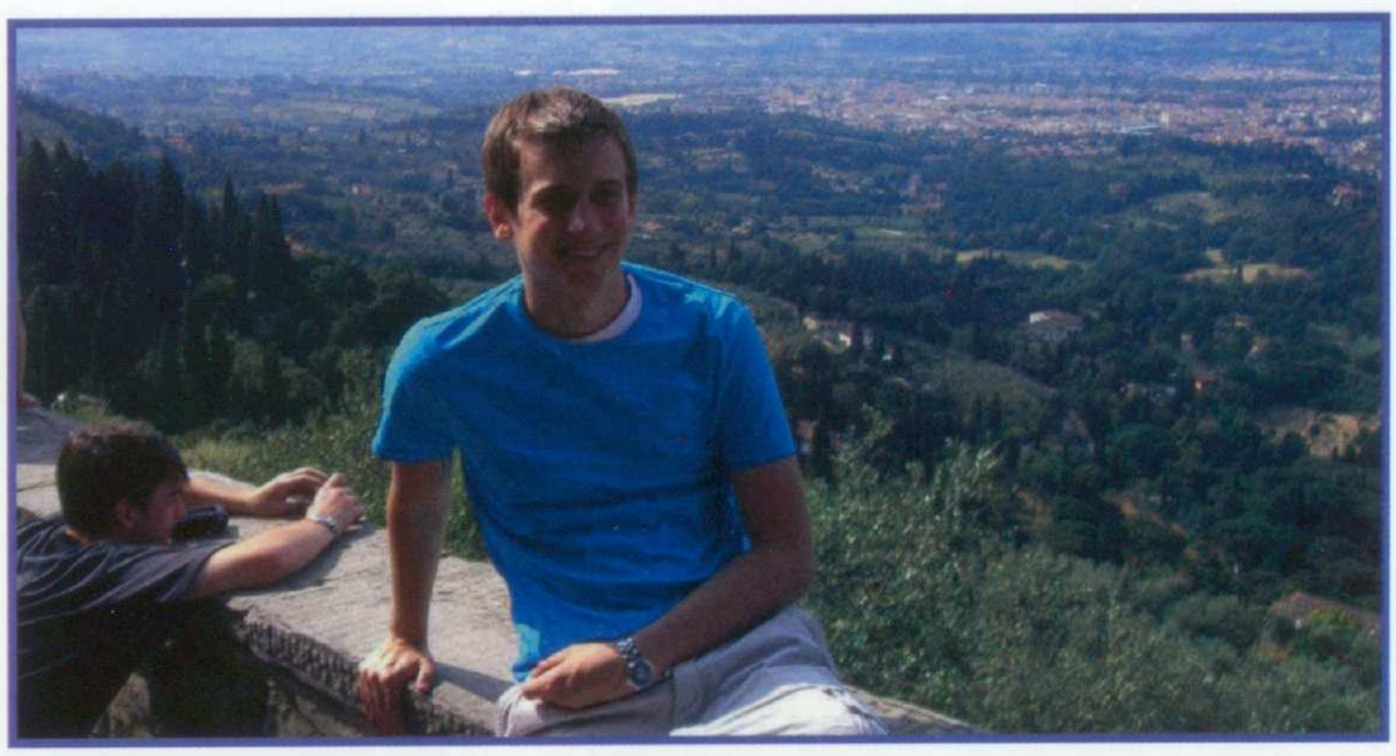
Jordan Leather is getting ready to cook up a delicious meal just like Emeril Lagasse. BAM! We hope he doesn't start a fire.



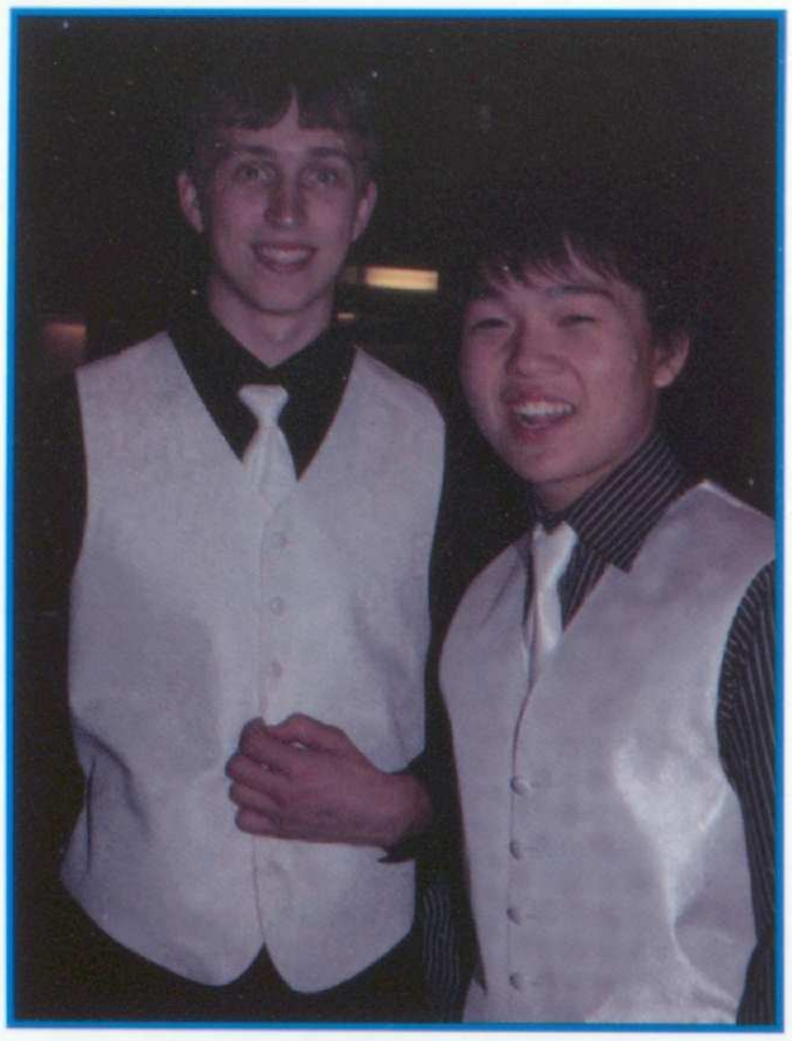


Staring off into space at one of our super exciting assemblies is Chris Koblyski. He must be thinking about playing Madden after school with his friends.

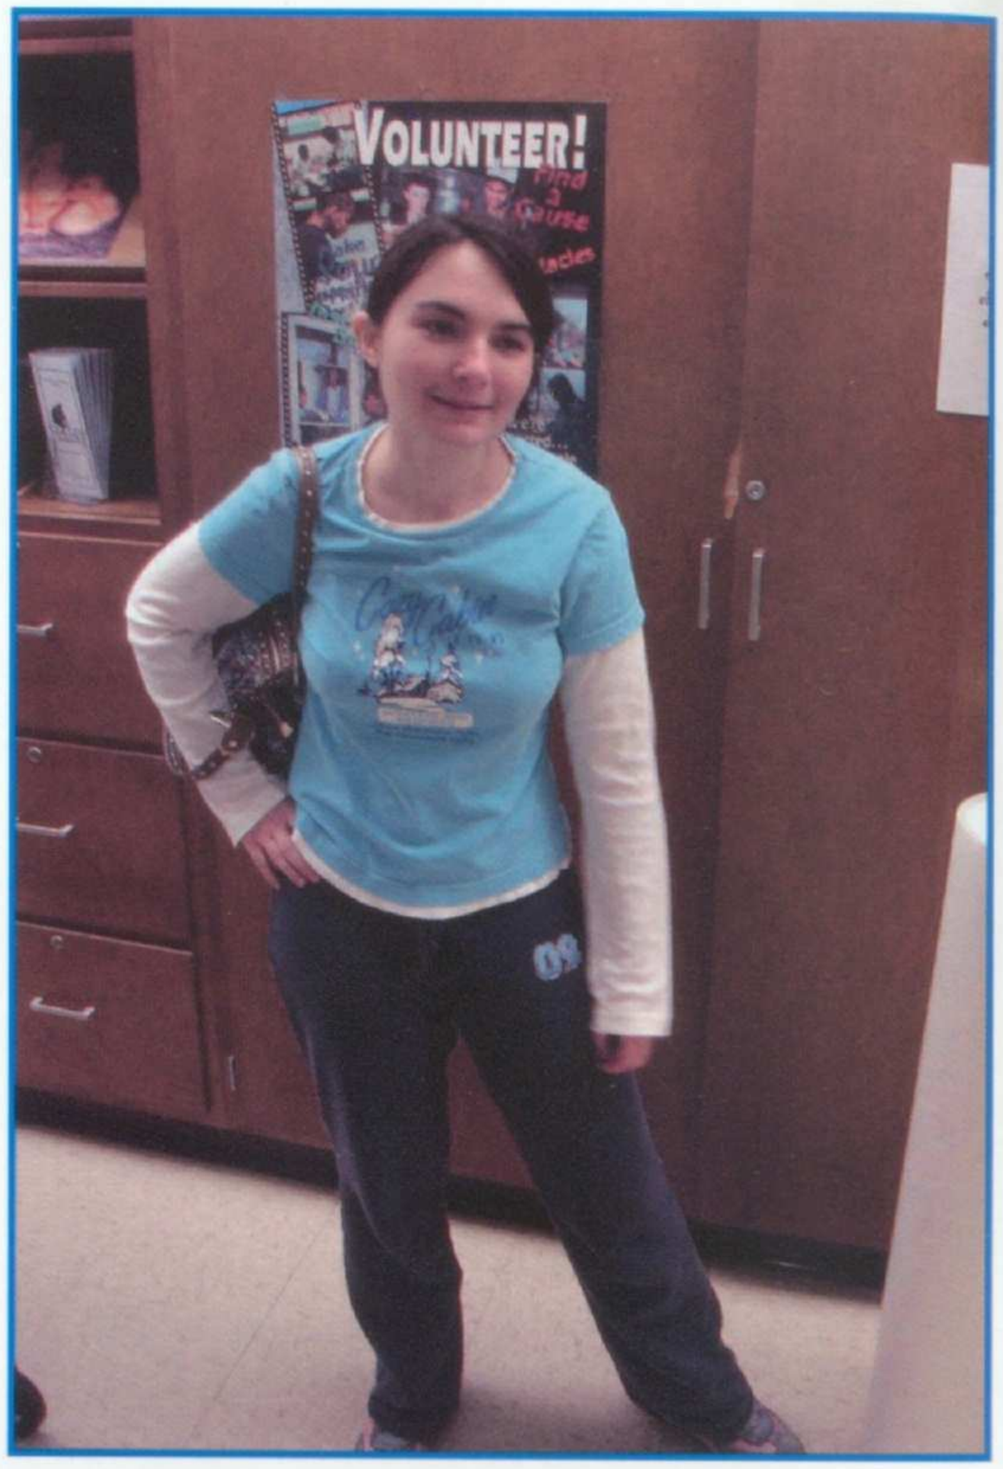
Hope no one pushes him off! What a view Andrew Glynn had this summer while in Italy!



Seniors Bethany Keller, Lauren Rogers, Missy Taylor and Amy Stillwell borrow a few freshman to help a friend with their prom invite. "It was a lot of fun to creatively ask someone to prom instead of the standerd 'will you go to prom with me?' bit," Lauren Rogers admits. These girls had no problem lending their tummies to ask "DG" to prom. Some may call these girls crazy but "The invitee said yes and was absolutly thrilled" says Bethany Keller.



James Talbert and Shota Hatori are matching studs at Prom. The silver and black looks great on them, as well as the grins on their faces.

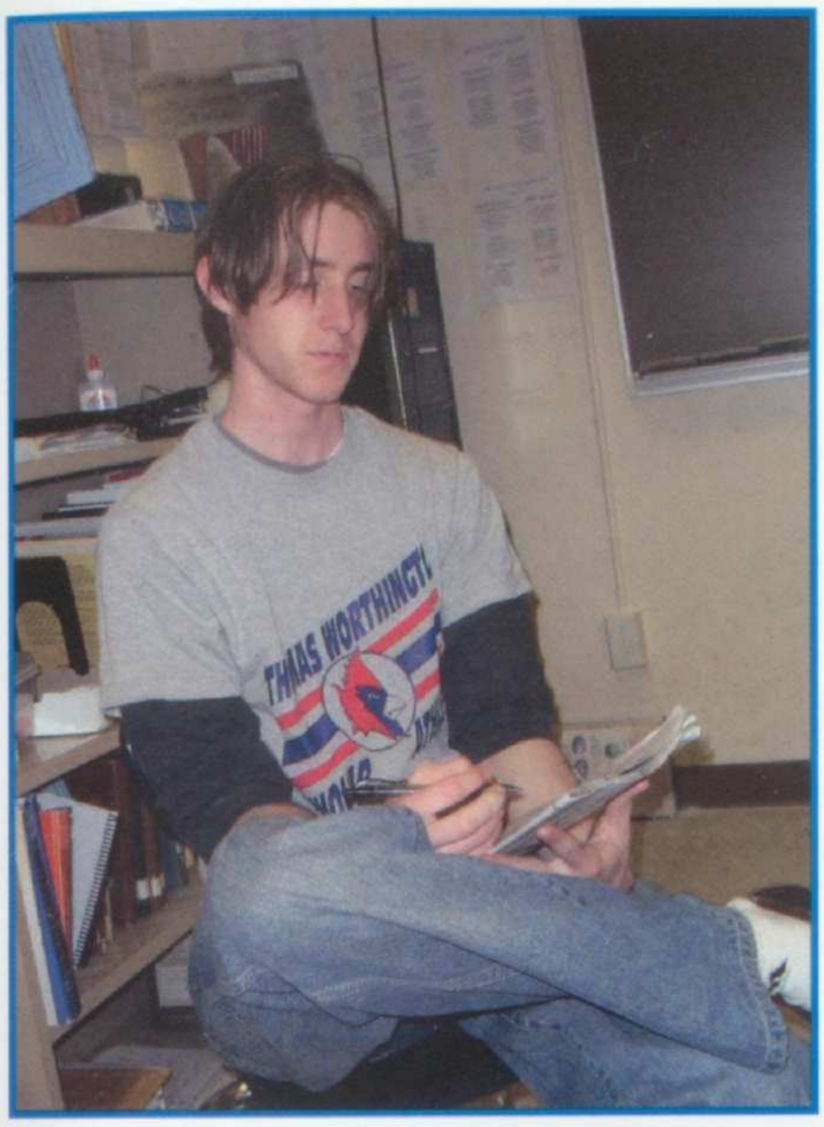


Look at that irresistable pose. Do you think Diana Schall practices that at home or is it a natural talent?

Giving Thomas Worthington two thumbs up are Amy Chadwell and Harrison Watson. They are sitting on the furniture that the Senior Class of 2006 presented the school with.

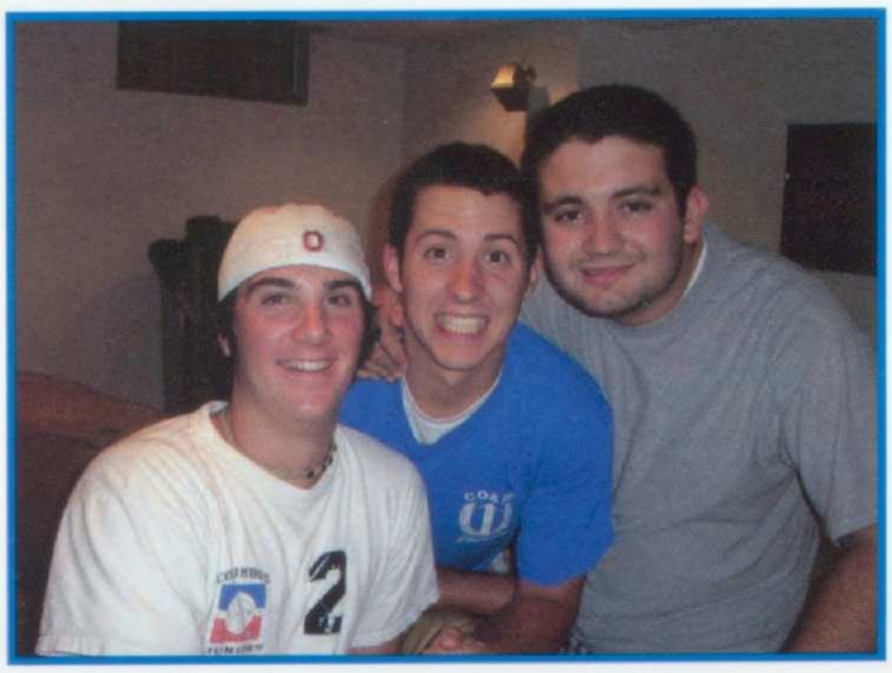
Taking a break from class to make a stop at the vending machines is Alexis Brown. Everyone needs a little brain fuel now and then!

Katie Proctor knows how to strut her stuff! She must be on her way back to class on a sunny spring day.



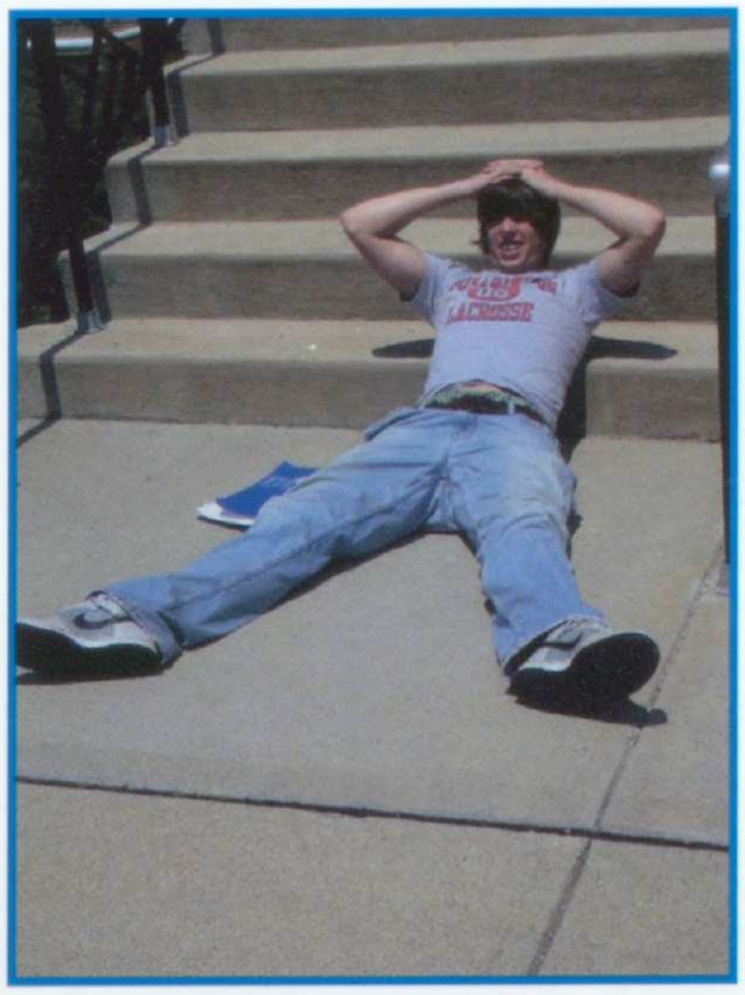
Kimberly Coffey and Hannah Cathers have it made in the shade. What a great class Great Books must be, reading and relaxing!

Focused on his crossword puzzle is Miles Oldenburg. "I try and do it everyday, but sometimes, it's too hard!"

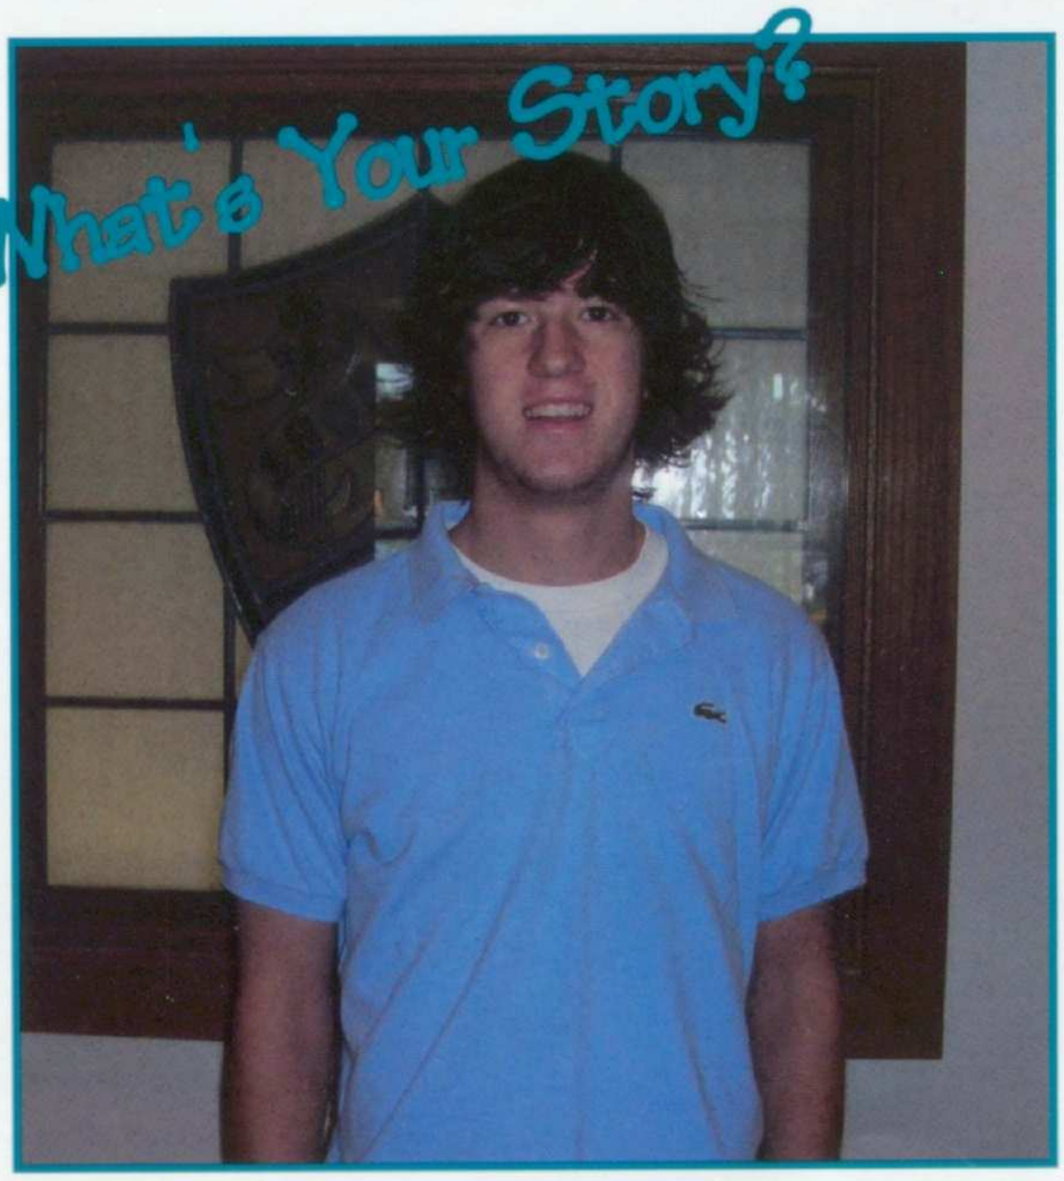


D.J. Hanlin, Matt Rolsten, and Sebastian Grisales definitely resemble the Three Stooges. They are always good for a laugh!

Taking a time-out from reading and catching some rays is Andrew Hawkins. Let's hope he put sunscreen on!



What's Your Story?



"I have been in the Worthington School District since my family moved to Columbus when I was in fifth grade. We moved from Fort Lauderdale, Florida where my Dad was a Coach for the Florida Panthers hockey team. I went to Evening Street Elementary and then on to Kilbourne Middle School for 7th and 8th grade. My freshman and sophomore years of high school I attended St. Charles Preparatory School for the hockey experience. Junior year I came back to Thomas Worthington before transferring to Padua Fransiscan High School in Cleveland, Ohio. I played for the Cleveland Barons until the season was over and came back to Worthington to graduate withy my friends. I am playing for a Junior A Hockey team now in Columbus, Ohio until I figure out where I'm going to attend college next year. I am keeping my options open, with Michigan State, Miami University, Ferris State, Bowling Green or Ohio State. I will continue my hockey career in college and then hopefully onto the pros."

-Clark McClean, Senior

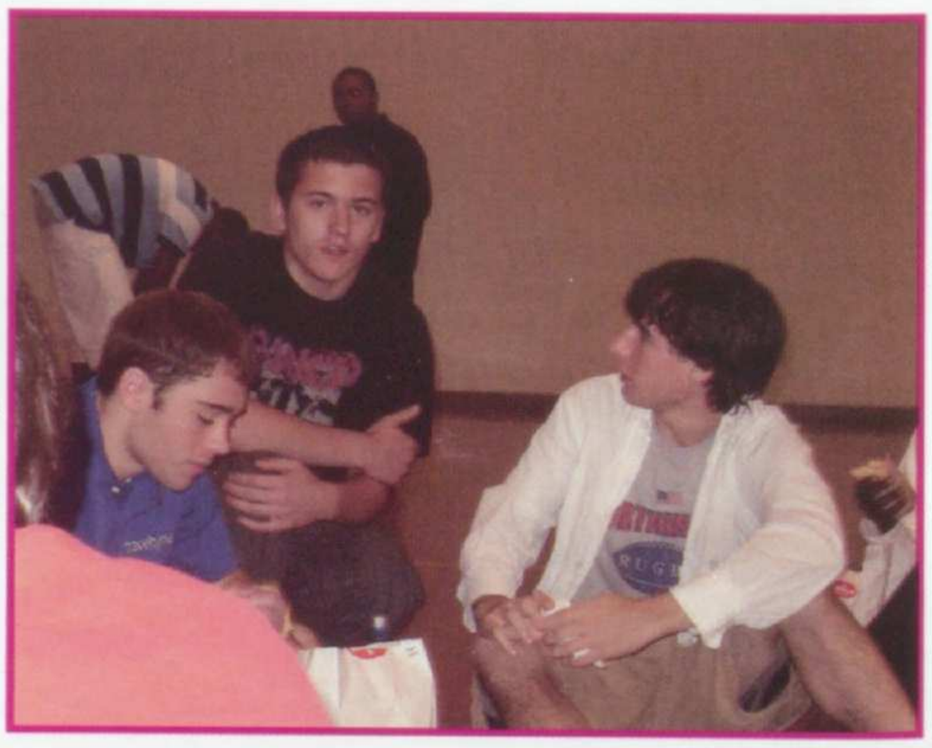
Senior Farewell Lunch

On Friday June 2nd, 2006, the Seniors at Thomas Worthington had a day full of fun. Well, at least a full day. In the morning, they attened the Celebration of Excellence. Each senior was recognized and along with any extra-curricular awards they recieved. After the Celebration of Excellence, a Senior Luncheon was put on by the Senior Improvement Committee. Food was provided by Buckeye Subs, a local favorite. This was the last "senior lunch" the Class of 2006 would ever have. No more long lines at Wendy's or speeding back from Chipotle, a bittersweet memory. Following the luncheon was graduation practice. Each year, the seniors dread this event. It lasts a few hours and is dull however, very important. If just one person messes up, everyone will end up with the wrong diploma. After 13 years of hard work, you want to see your name on that diploma!

At least no one had to waste gas during this lunch period! Seniors would often take turns driving and carpool during lunch to help decrease gas consumption of their peers.

This group of guys frequented Jersey Mikes this year. They would collect the coupons sent out in the mail by Jersey Mikes and set a day to redeem them. What smart savers we have at TWHS!

Chad Korbecki takes a knee to reminisce about past lunches with Brian Montgomery and Trevor Gaskins.



School rules must not have applied as Laura Blackburn pulls out her cell phone. In the background, Rob Pukay-Martin askes Colin O' Brien if he wants his cookies. He must have learned how to share that well back in pre-school!

"Boys are too messy when they eat!," says Ashley Rund. These girls like to chat while they enjoy their food in a mannerly fashion.

Baccalaurate

Baccalaurate is a farewell nondenominational ceremony put on by the graduating class each year. It is held at St. Peter's Church and takes place the Friday night before Graduation. This service included music sung and played by the TWHS Symphonic Choir as well as members of the class of 2006. Also, there was passages, poems and quotes read aloud. These readings brought on laughter and tears. Parents made sure to bring along tissues; they came prepared! At the end of the commemoration, each student proceeded to the altar and lit a candle. Then as a whole chlass they sang the Thomas Worthington Alma Mater. A reception was held directly after with refreshements and assorted desserts. "Baccalaurate was a very emotional time for everyone. It was the first 'real' event that signified the end of our high school careers," said Senior Joe Forte.

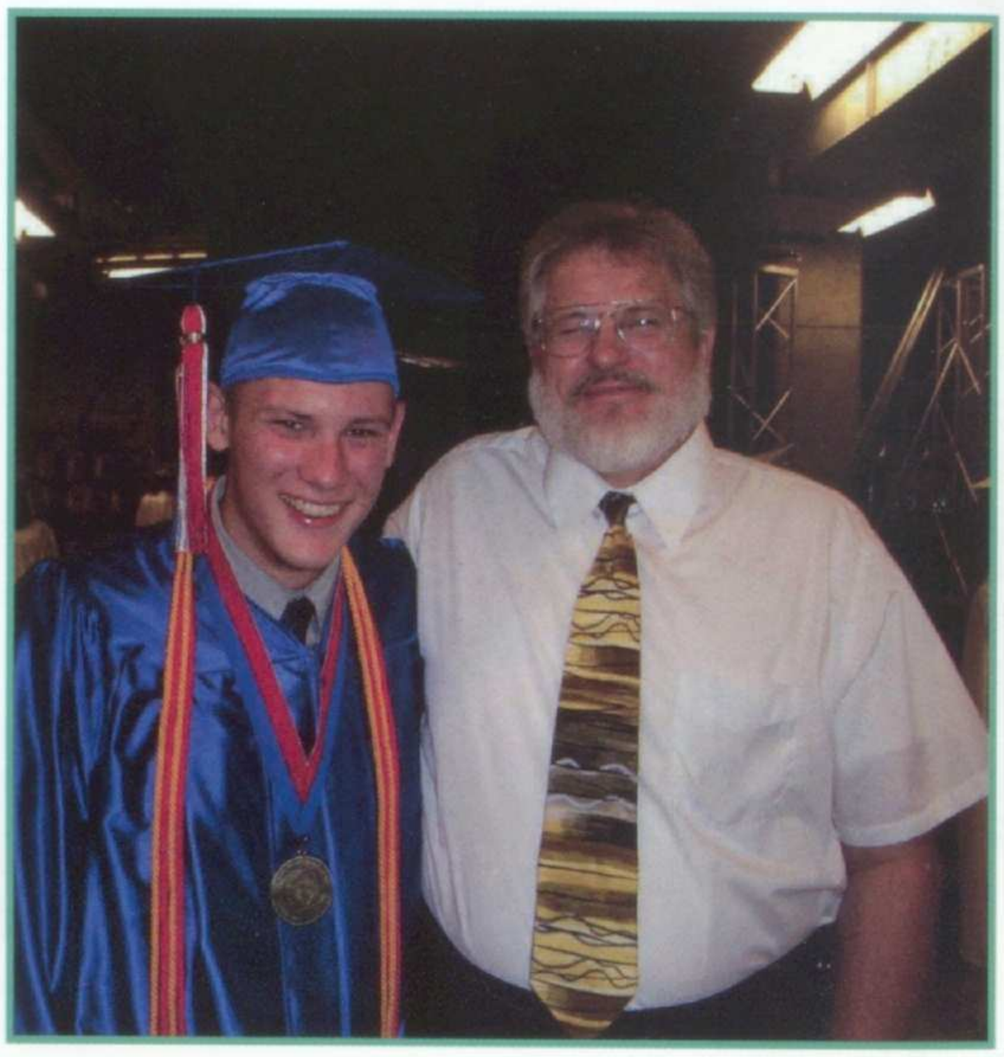
These sharp looking Cards used to be Evening Street Eagles. Off to many different places such as North and South Carolina, Florida, Cleveland, and Athens, they will take with them all of the lessons they learned and memories they accquired from all the way back to elementary school. Just remember, you will always be a Cardinal too.

Graduation
Class of 2006

On Sunday June 4th, 2006, the 399 seniors from the Class of 2006 gathered at the Jerome Schottenstein Center to consummate their high school careers. Standing in front of more than a thousand proud mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, and other family members and friends, these proud students anxoiusly awaited their turn to walk across the stage and recieve their diplomas. Before they could, a few select individuals were to deliever some words to the wise. First, Dr, Littel spoke and provided the graduates with some words of advice from Jimmy Buffett:

"Whether it's big or small
If you have a passion at all
Just say, someday I will."

Second, the six Valedictorians of the graduation class presented everyone with memories the class will always carry with them. Next, Superintendant, Melissa Conrath, could not have presented the Class of 2006 with better advice. She looked to 2nd and 3rd grade students, who have an unbiased outlook on life, for pieces of encouragement and guidance for the graduating Seniors. A few of the teachings that were most memorale were "pick a job because you enjoy it, not because of the money it makes you," "always be happy and smile," "visit home so you don't forget your parents," and "treat others the way you want to be treated." They will take these lessons and pieces of advice with them all the places they will go. Good luck and best wishes.



Congratulating David Cole on all of his accomplishments is Mr. Ellis. Mr. Ellis was involved in TWHS's Jazz Band and presented many graduating seniors with their diplomas.

This expectant cirlcle of students must be reminiscing about past memories of high school. They found a prime spot with chairs while the rest of their class was tiredly standing around, waiting to make their way onto the floor of the graduation stage.

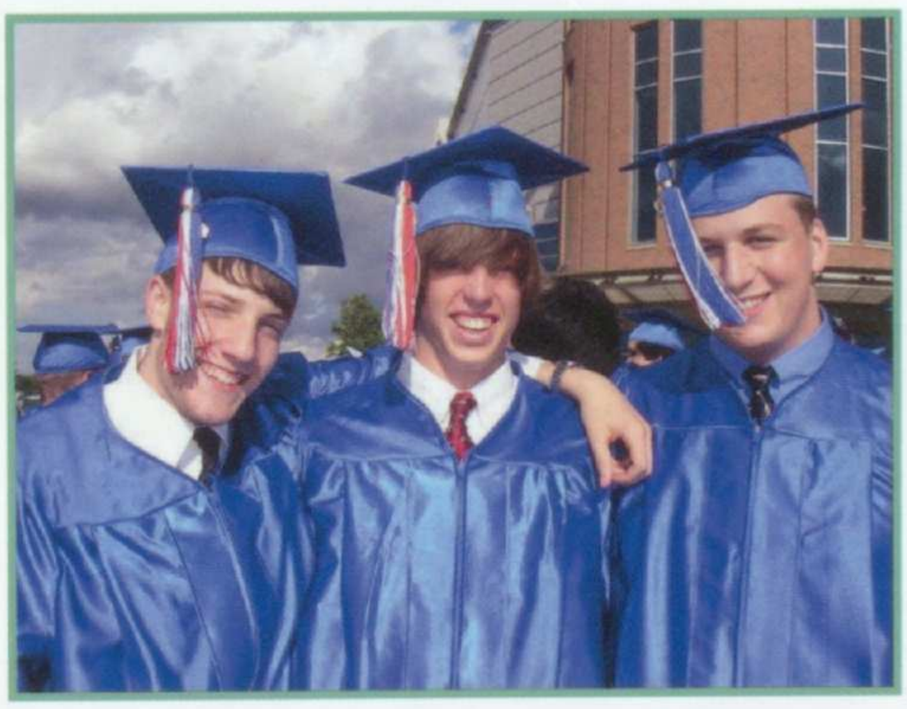
Katie Proctor, Tiffany Smith, and Emily Stimpert all participated in the singing of the Alma Mater at the beginning of the graduation ceremony. Ladies, what a special memory to hold for the rest of your life.

Come on guys, it won't kill you to get a little closer! We are just proud you could remember your spot from practice a few days ago. Then again, look at these intelligent men, of course they'd remember!

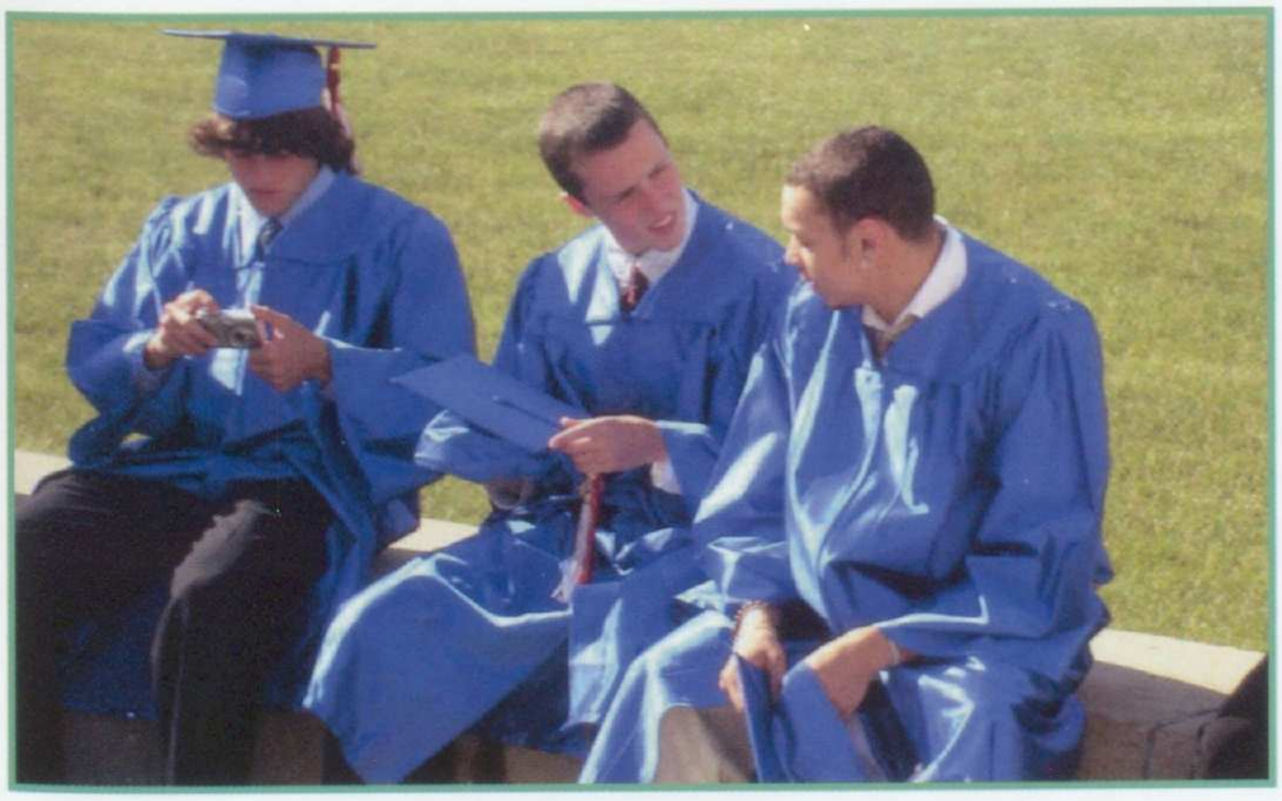
Jenny Fisher and Rebecca Gant, how did you get your hats so perfectly parallel to the ground? Although the caps and gowns are not the funnest outfit to wear, it is definitely an unforgettable experience.

We must have hit the row of C's! Ashley Chang, Michael Charles and Xue-Gong Chen are without a doubt, ready for their big day. Looks like she "out-blinged" these guys, with her medal, honors, and National Honor Society cords.

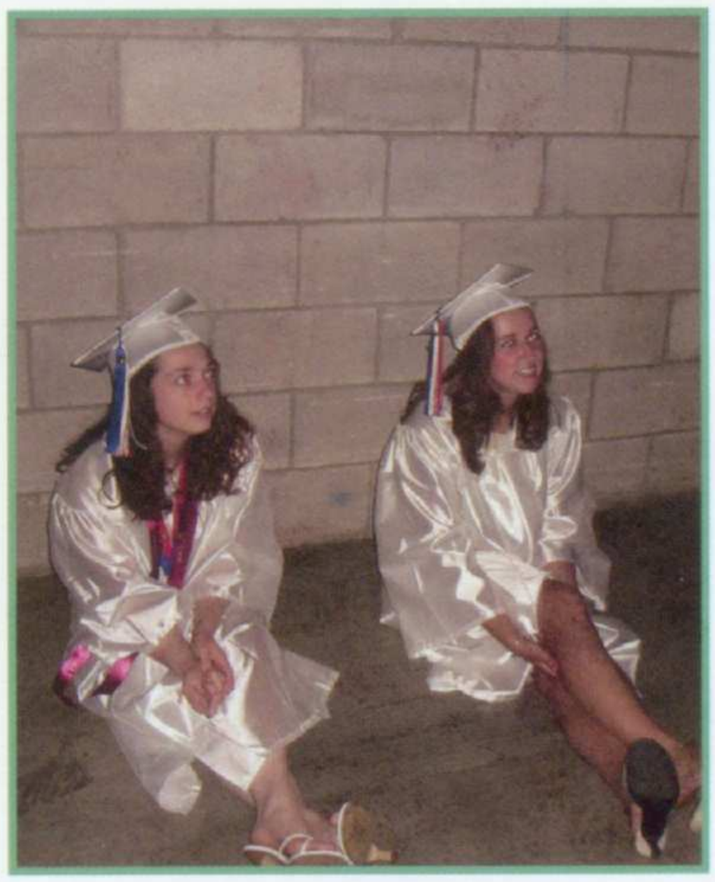
"Hats off to the Class of 2006," says Josh Williams! The caps were hard to keep on, but the graduating class made it all the way through, then they threw them off in a frenzy of excitement!



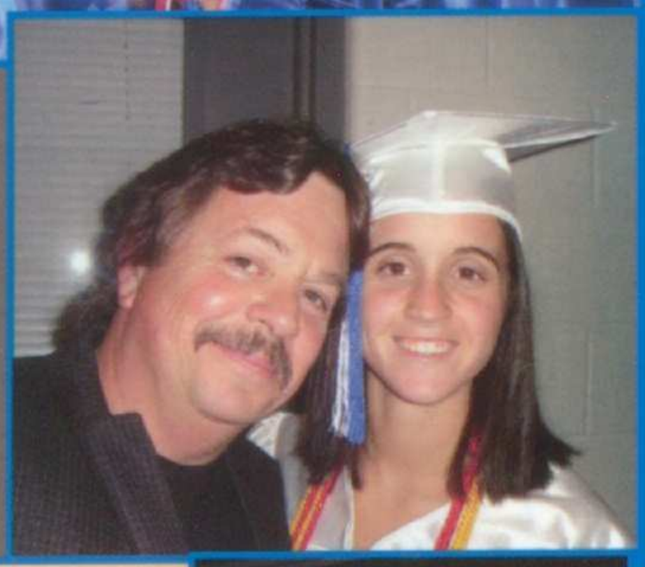
Even with cloudy skies behind them, these guys are nothing but happy. Mike Olsen, Andrew Hawkins, and David Antry have been best friends since elementary school. "We definitely had some great times these past years," recalls David.

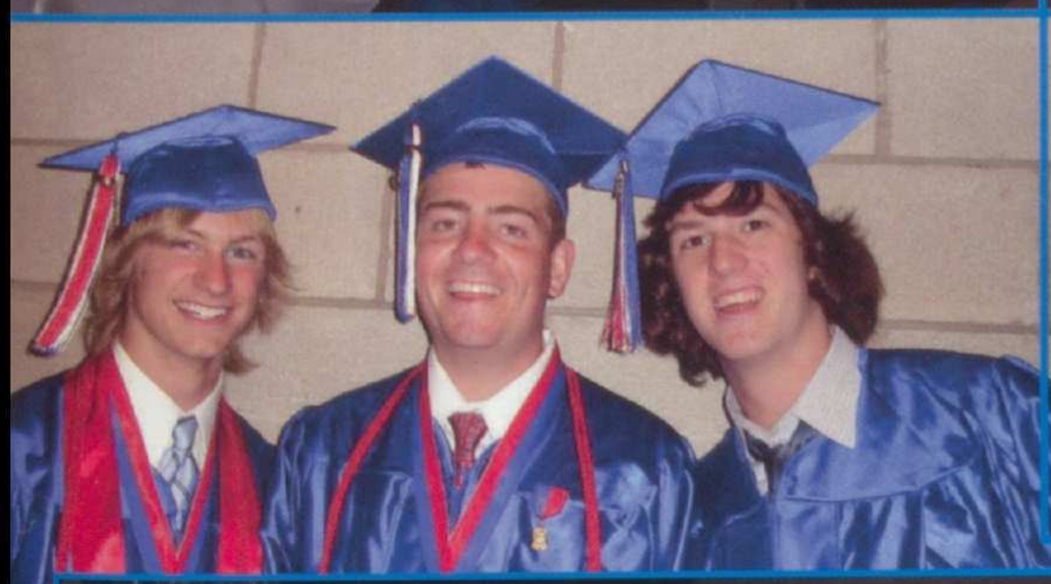


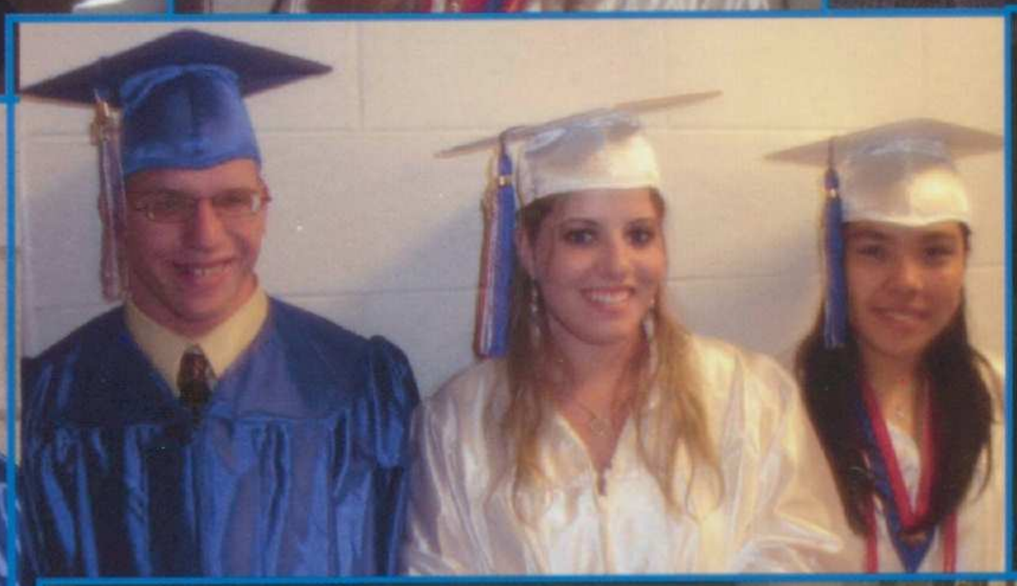
R.J. Lindenmuth is checking out his new camera he got for graduation! Joey Ford puts five dollars down that R.J. won't figure it out. "I don't know, he's a pretty smart guy," says Joshua David.



Jamie Moore and Colleen Million look very lady-like crossing their legs. Even though the floor is probably cold, it beats standing for sure!



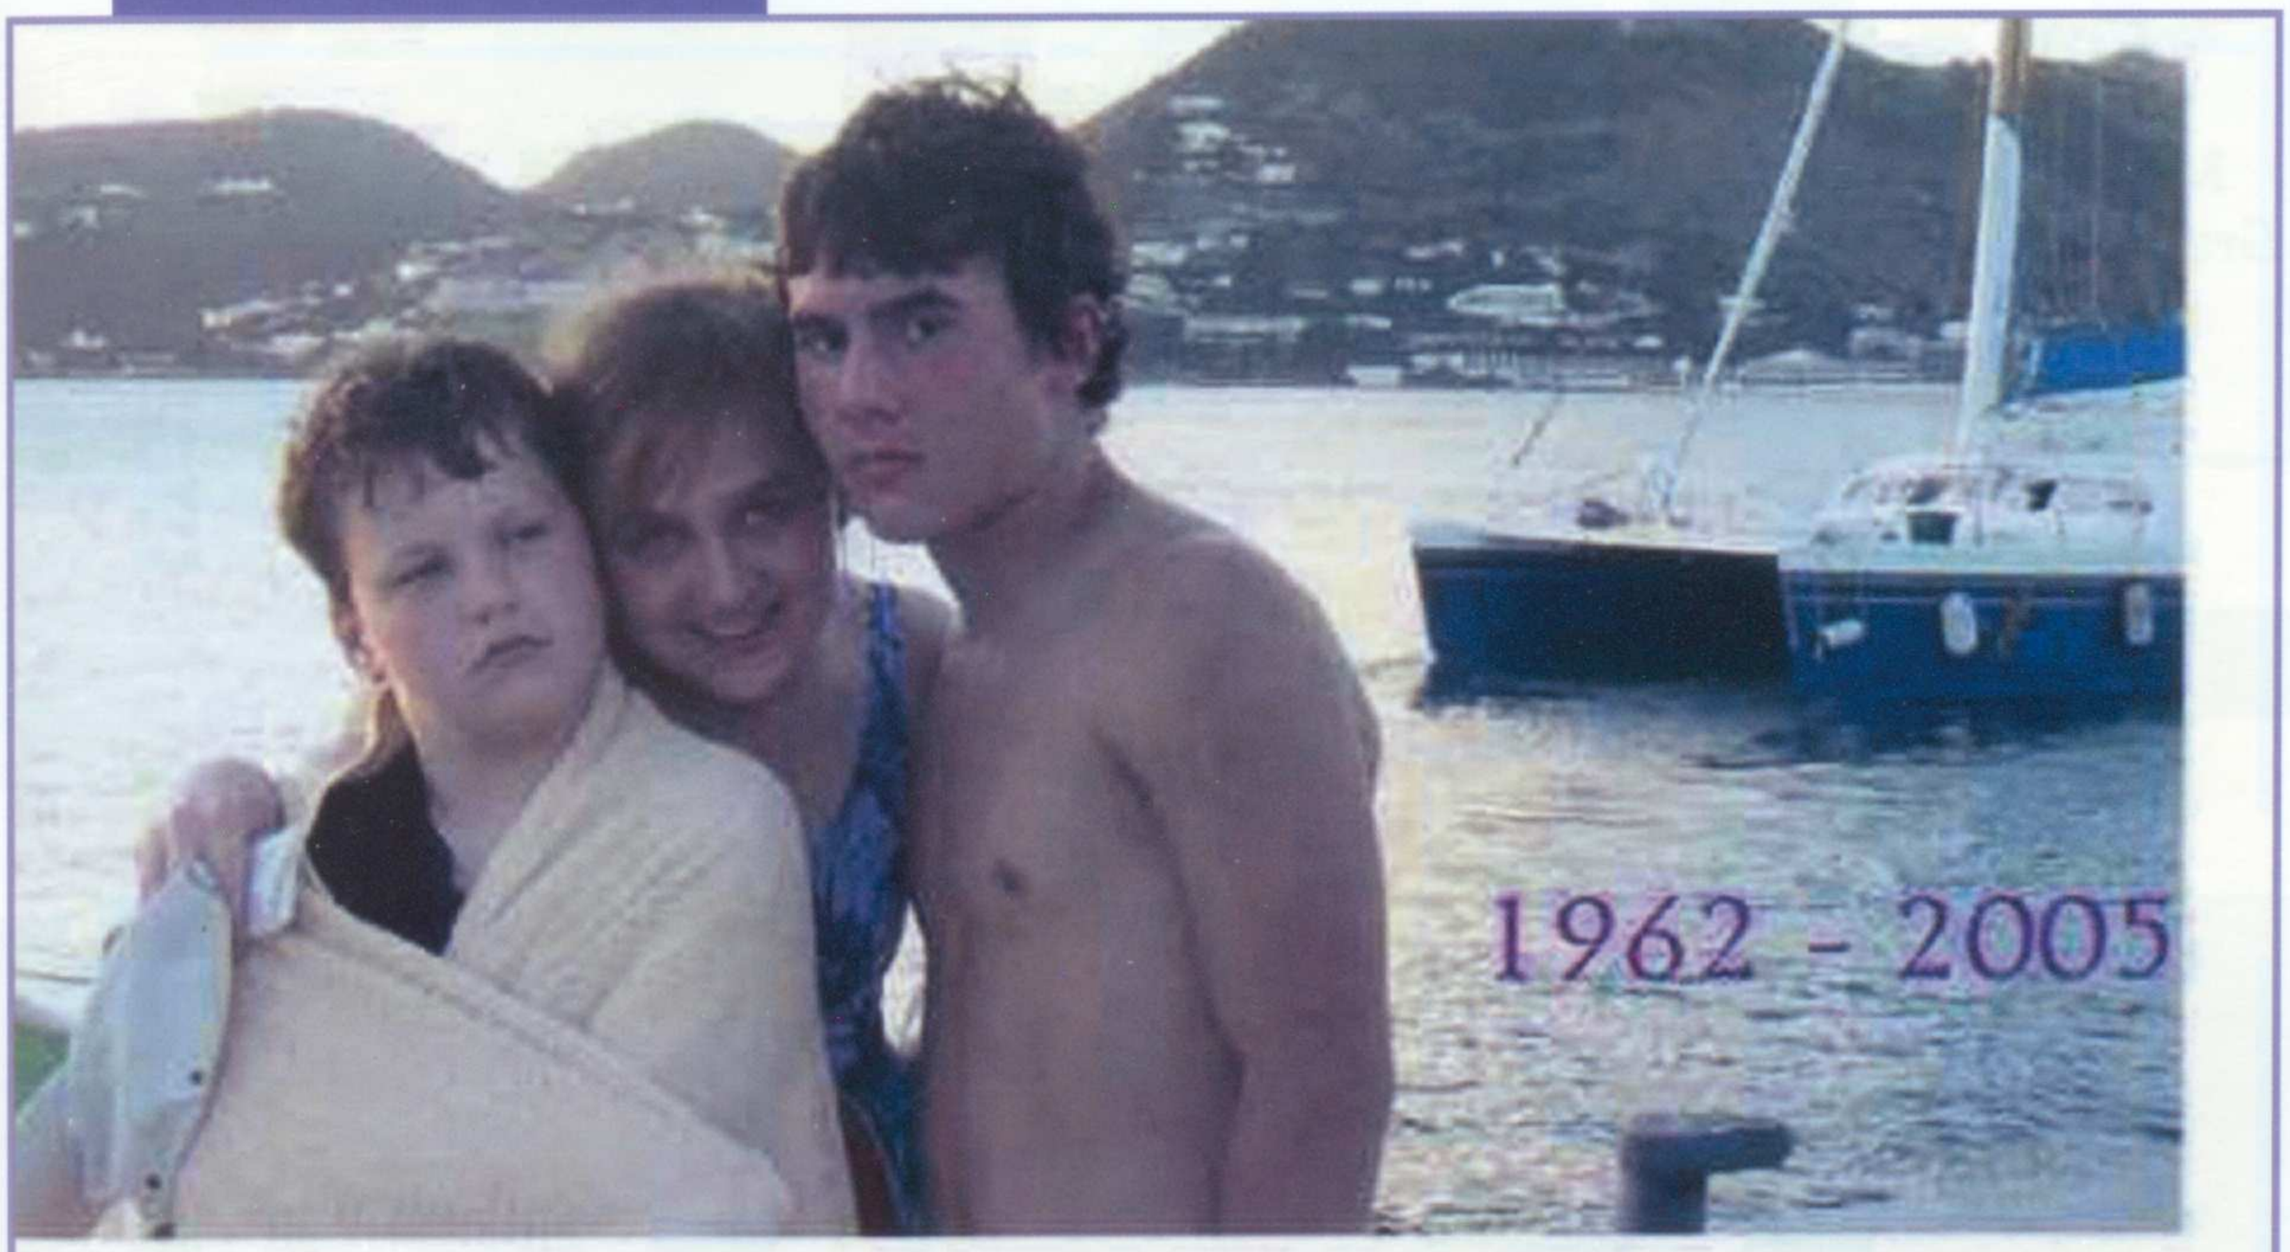




A Special Thank You to all of our supporters.

Without you the 2005-2006 Thomas Worthington Yearbook would not be the same.

Go Cards!



"Laugh..Listen..Learn..Love..Life...."

~Laura Ruth Edwards (Roehrer)~

You've come a long way Stewie!

John,

(To me you will always be John E.)

As your high school days come to an end
A new journey is just around the bend.

It's been such a joy to have you all these years
When you leave for college I'll shed many tears.

I'm so proud of you and everything you've done
And the fine young man that you've become.

Never stop learning and always try your best
Follow your dreams, believe in yourself and you will be blessed.

CONGRATULATIONS & BEST WISHES, I'M SO PROUD OF YOU!

Love always,
Mom

Kelsey,

Way to go Champ!
We are so proud of you.

Hugs and Kisses.

HONOR RING

Congratulations
Class of 2006!

Dear Ariana ("Mamushka/Maxi"):
You have been a very special daughter to us. A harder working and more disciplined girl we have not met. We have enjoyed watching you excel athletically and academically, and praise you for all of your accomplishments. Always remember to act with integrity, stand for what you believe and rejoice on your rich racial and Latina background. We now send you off to college with all our love, blessings and best wishes. Felicitaciones en tu graduacion!!! Love, mom and dad

Family is why
WE DO IT ALL.

We all feel the same commitment to care for our families. As your good neighbor agent, I can help you meet your insurance needs. Call me today.
