TRADITIONS

WKHS builds new practices for the future

tra•di•tion
-n. 1. The passing down of elements of a culture from generation to generation. 2. Any time-honored set of practices.

In its third year of existence, Worthington Kilbourne High School has finally established its own traditions. Some traditions come from the years before two high schools, while students and faculty inside our school have created others.

One tradition that Kilbourne has adopted from the old high school is senior shirt groups. Friends band together and come up with clever names for their clique. Incorrigible member Cory Kahoun stated, "Everyone in your group becomes a family, and it feels warm inside knowing you have your friends there to back you up for any situation." Seniors cover their shirts with acronyms and nicknames that only members understand, strengthening their bond. These groups then paint the rock and hang message sheets. Senior Erica Hardesty agrees, "These are positive ways for students to express themselves."

Homecoming week is an exciting time every fall. On different days students dress up to reflect a theme. Some teachers offer extra credit for students who participate because they want to increase school spirit. Classes also compete for the spirit award, given to the class winning the most points during the homecoming contests and games. Students decorate locker bays, paint window murals, and compete in silly contests such as tricycle riding. Usually the judges hand the spirit award to the seniors; however, this year the judges must have actually evaluated everything fairly since the juniors captured the spirit award. Junior Chris Petty excitedly raved, "Spirit week this year was great! Everyone got involved! The dance was even better than last year's."

Other important traditions revolve around Christmastime. Every year, each classroom sponsors a needy family. Most students pitch in money to buy gifts for children whose parents don't have money to give them gifts. Senior Alan Beymer explained, "Sponsoring needy families during the holiday season makes everyone feel good because they just pitch in money, without even really knowing where it goes." Another important holiday activity is the Jingle Jam. This is a dance where people dress up in red and green and celebrate the holiday season by kissing everyone. Steve Kane summed it all up by saying, "The Jingle Jam was the best day of my life. I danced merrily all night."

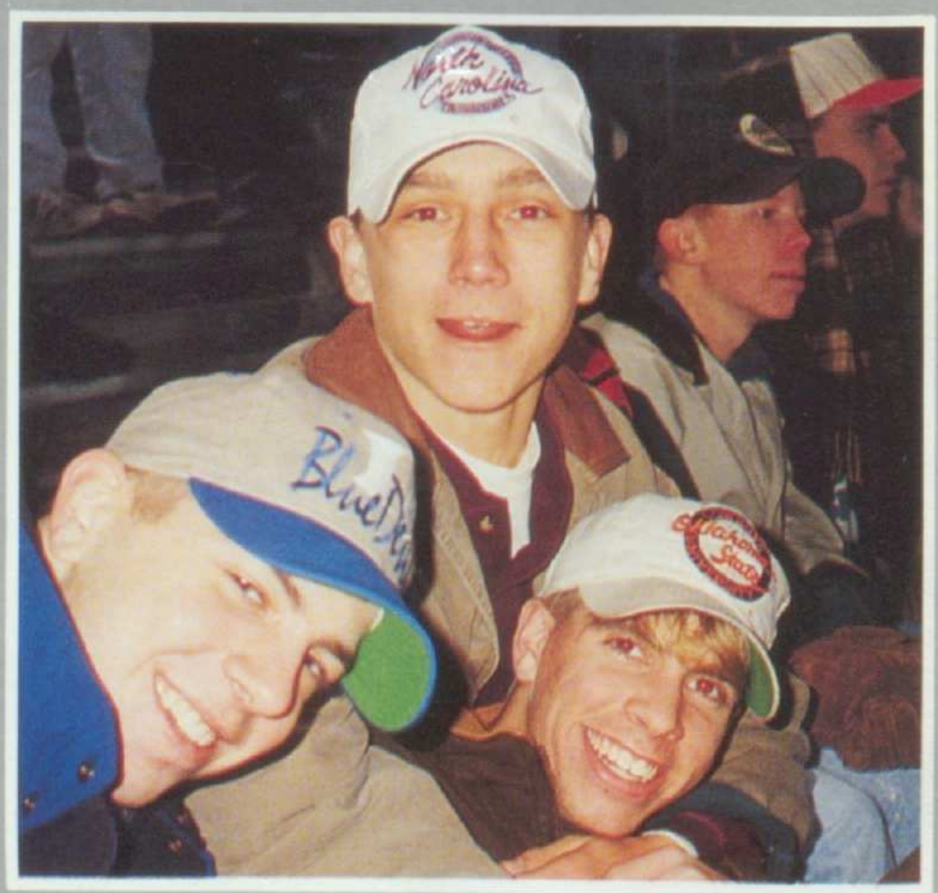

One new tradition Worthington Kilbourne is sure to continue is the prom fashion show, put on by select juniors, seniors, and DECA. They endure lengthy practices before they appear on stage. "The fashion show gives us junior runway models a chance to try something new," said Matt Rieser, who previously modeled for Schottenstein's. These students put on a large scale event that attracts the local news stations also.

Students at Worthington Kilbourne High School have clearly established many fine and cherished traditions. Hopefully, these traditions will stay with the school for years to come.

A wild haired Cary Beck cheers at a pep rally during Spirit Week, but recently his hair has been styled respectably.

Even Chad Sprecher wants to join in as he sees Brian Anderson give his special someone, Dan Brooks, a hug at a football game.

After eating cafeteria food, juniors Kristi Stevens and Kristy Irwin display dazed smiles. Unfortunately, only seniors are allowed to leave the campus for lunch.

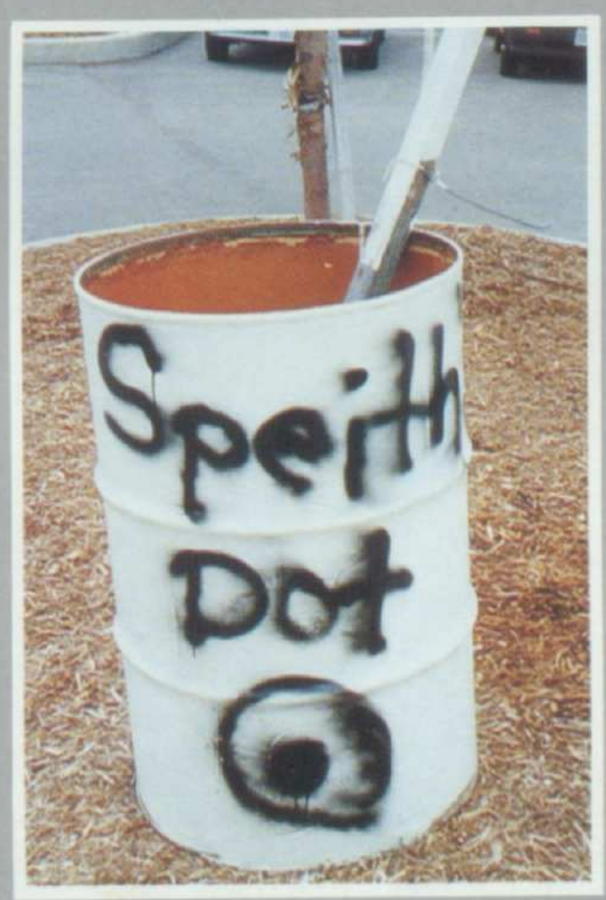

Dressing in bedsheets for Toga day are seniors Teresa Barney and Allison Kunkle as they attempt to appear like ancient Greek philosophers.

Spirit Week participants Lindsay Taylor, Allison Walker, and Sean Milligan dress like hippies in their sixties garb and wish everyone "peace."

Painting the rock and leaving message sheets are valued traditions, but it is considered vandalism to paint the trash cans. Who did this heinous crime?

These seniors, Hollie Prunty, Shannon Decker, Carey Feihel, Joe Cicero, Megan Decker, Brandon Beyor, Debbie Bowers, Josh Brown, Marisa Wooten, Dan Everett, Jenny Cassidy, Ryan Yount, Ian Currie, Jared Himes, Lenny Finelli, Eric Niceswanger, Teresa Barney, Jaime Barry, Suzanne Provanzana, Justin Filia, and Eric Bausch are each from a different senior shirt group. Not Pictured: Incorrigeables, SBUEFF, The Firm.

What do all these acronyms and nicknames on the back of these shirts mean? Each probably means something that should be censored; otherwise, they would have spelled it out.

"This is what I think of proficiency tests," asserts freshman Todd Miller. Now, all students are required to take proficiency tests that cover math, reading, writing, and citizenship.

With black and blue painted all over his chest, junior Brad Coleman shows off his manly figure and school spirit in the middle of a cold football game.

Kilbourne's mascot, Lobo, shakes the hand of a youngster as he tries to excite the crowd. Students volunteer to dress as Lobo for football and basketball games.

Showing she's not cooler because she's older, junior Kelly Curtis hangs around with sophomores Erin Hartong, Amy Shough, and Gina Federico.

WKHS SERVICE

Putting in time after school

vol•un•teer
-n. 1. One who performs or gives services of his own free will. - v. 1. To give or offer to give on one's own initiative. 2. To enter into or offer to enter into an undertaking of one's own free will.

After school and on the weekends, high school students throughout the country have jobs, working to save money for spring break or college. However, some Kilbourne students go to work every week but are not getting paid. They are volunteering their time in various ways to benefit our community.

One such student is Peter Georgiton, who has worked at COSI since he was in the eighth grade. He has already volunteered over 1060 hours of his time, working at least three days a week during the summer and every Saturday during the school year. At COSI, Peter does the Electrostatic Generator Show, the Cyro-Robotics Demonstration, and his favorite, the Chemistry Demonstration. Peter also spends a lot of time in the planetarium running the "Space Quest 2000," "The Sky Tonight," and the "Star Tales" shows. Peter likes his job because "there is always something new to learn. I like teaching people about science, and I'm having fun at the same time!"

Liz Dexter, Kim Iden, Jyoti Patel, and Suzanne Provanzana are four of Kilbourne's candystripers at Riverside Methodist Hospital. They volunteer their time one day a week doing various jobs such as delivering flowers, surgery schedules, or phone messages. They also bring water to patients, help lost visitors, answer phone calls, and work at the information desk. Volunteering at Riverside is a great way to meet new people while helping the patients, their families and the hospital staff. "I like being able to help people," says Kim Iden. "It's fun to work with other teenagers from around Columbus."

When she's not busy with soccer, Sheila Rupp is also a volunteer. She baby-sits children of teenage parents while the parents attend classes on child care at a downtown church. Sheila ejoys spending time with the children because "the parents learn a lot. I make it easier for them to attend the classes." Sheila donates one evening a week to baby-sit and help out with the classes.

Merilee Karr is the founder and president of the Community Service Club here at school. She organized the club last year because she felt "more people from school needed to get involved in the community." Some of the activities the club will participate in this year include passing out jackets to needy children through Coats for Kids, distributing canned goods to the pantries with the Mid-Ohio food bank, sending out mailers from COSI, and babysitting for the Lamaz Childbirth Association. Merilee says she likes volunteering because "I like knowing I can help out others who are less fortunate."

Whether it's through the Community Service Club or on their own, students have lots of volunteer opportunities. It only takes a little of everyone's time to give a lot back to the community. Call an area hospital, museum, church, or Callvac, a service that coordinates volunteers with jobs. Get involved!

By Suzanne Provanzana

Looks as if Erin Tunis has her hands full baby-sitting as a member of the Community Service Club.

"This is not a trash can," explains Peter Georgiton to some C.O.S.I. visitors.

On the job at Riverside Methodist Hospital are Suzanne Provanzana and Kim Iden.

After a night of baby-sitting, Sheila Rupp still has a smile on her face.

DOING TIME

Punishments reign at WKHS

pun•ish :
-v. 1. To subject to penalty for a crime of offense. 2. To inflict a penalty.

Every year students think the rules seem to get a little stricter. Last year the administrators, advisors, and coaches rewrote the co-curricular policy to make it apply all year long instead of just during the season. The punishments have also changed. Basically, it has become a lot easier to receive harsher consequences for both extra curricular and school related offenses. The three punishments handed out are detentions, Saturday schools, and suspensions.

Detentions after school are fourty-five minutes long. Anyone who has ever been to a non-lunch period study hall knows what detentions are like. People aren't allowed to talk during detention, and most either do homework or sleep. Freshman Aaron Woody said, "I actually like detention more than study hall," which isn't all that surprising, considering how much fun study hall is.

Repeat offenders serve Saturday schools on Saturdays (really) from eight in the morning until noon. It's really just a long detention except students aren't allowed to go to sleep. Senior Tara Gallela explained, "Saturday school makes me think twice about skipping." There is usually a healthy turn out for Saturday school, and according to Tom Gerhardt, "you see the same kids every week." One positive aspect of Saturday School is that the students clean up the grounds. It makes the school look nice and saves other people from doing it. Junior Kirk McCutcheon agrees, "Saturday school keeps the football stadium clean."

Suspensions are a much stricter form of punishment. Out of school suspension restricts those students, who can't make up the work they miss, from school grounds. The other punishment, in-school suspension in room 102, is an all day restriction. Students are allowed two water breaks and a lunch break, but otherwise it's pretty boring. Monitor Dan Stevens said,"We try to make it an unpleasant experience so they won't want to come back, but some students still come back." Still, the suspendees mentioned it was a good place to get work done because it's better than staring at a blank wall. Senior Ben Dusthimer stated, "If you ever need to do a project, just get in-school suspension."

The punishments for breaking school rules are clearly strict. It's better to live by the rules and avoid these punishments.

Saturday school veteran Ben Dusthimer shows the trash picking technique he learned from years of experience.

Students Jenny Moul and Tiffany Price sign in for Saturday school with a smile because they know more trouble lies in their future if they don't.

Senior Brian Niess sits in detention pondering why he couldn't make it to school on time to avoid this torture.

In-school suspendees each receive their own little cubicle to separate them from others. Clearly, students Nicole Casperson, Jeremy Blain, and Chris Silver aren't having fun.

A quick lunch break is the only time these ISS students, Kim Henson, Greg Honebrink, and Matt Hermann, see other classmates during a boring day of in-school suspension.

ETHNIC ORIGINS

Something learned

Since the opening of WKHS in 1991, students have been able to choose from a huge variety of extra curricular activities. Among the many choices are the opportunities to learn about different ethnic origins and to stand up for those who believe in cultural diversity.

At Kilbourne, we have two active exchange programs with people of other cultures. One of the programs that allows students to travel outside the country is the French exchange program. By traveling to foreign countries, students become more aware of different cultures through first-hand experience. One of the students on the trip, junior Amy Ricketts explained, "I was involved in the program last year, and when I went over to France, I saw and experienced the difference in my life and theirs. It made me more aware of the French culture and its difference in ours."

The other active program that is closer to home was the Native American exchange. This program allows the students to travel with Native Americans for a week of hiking and camping. One student from Kilbourne, Kelly Harris, has been very lucky to join the exchange for two years and hopes to continue her experience for the '94 year. "The knowledge that I learned throughout the trip made me realize that our country has different variations of cultures all around us. We were able to leave our own environment; therefore, we had a better chance of getting to know a different life style without distractions from our own lives."

Another organization that encourages our cultural awareness is All One People. This program, too, deals with cultural diversity, but in a different way. The members do not travel to learn about other cultures, but they grow to appreciate those multicultural students in our school. All One People is an antidiscrimination group that helps people learn and understand the different ethnic origins around them. The group's mission is to celebrate and respect diversity and to establish an environment which dispels ignorance, dismantles stereotypes, creates positive images, and promotes unity among Kilbourne students.

All of these activities provide better opportunities for students to meet people and learn to know who they really are. As we move towards the twenty-first century, we expect that awareness of cultural diversity in school will continue through the years to come.

eth•nic :
-adj. Of or pertaining to a social group that claims or is accorded special status on the basis of complex, often variable traits.

Kilbourne students that learned first hand with the Navahos on the American exchange program included John Ness, Cory Elzey, Kelley Harris, Koji Osuka, Jeremy Trimble, Ms. Charlton, Erica Hardesty, Will Rutherford, Dan Everett, Jeff Burianek and Schelle Nooks.

FRESHMAN

Just the beginning

fresh•man :
-n. 1. A student in the first year of high school. 2. Any beginner.

" A freshman is someone who stands in the middle of the hallway blocking everyone while talking."
Senior
-Jenny Cassidy

You've seen them in the hallways and in the cafeteria. You might have even wondered who's kids they are, and what they're doing running around our school. You can't miss them; they're a good six inches shorter than the rest of us. They are the WKHS freshmen, the class of '97. Take a closer look at one.

The freshman's schedule is one of rigorous mental strain and intellectual toil. Grades are not high priority (which he'll regret in three years when he's applying to college); Sega Genisis is far more important. The freshman's most challenging classes include Bio-Earth Systems Science I. and Physical Education, an arduous combination. On a busy night, homework can take up to a full hour.

The freshman's main modes of transportation are his parents and the twinkie. Lacking a driver's license really hinders the freshman's social life. " If my mother drives us there, can your mother pick up?" is a common question that accompanies "Would you like to go out this Friday?" Freshman rarely miss dances, except for the Prom, they've seen almost every movie at the dollar theater.

Entering Worthington Kilbourne last August may have been a scary experience for the class of '97, but our freshman are doing a fine job adjusting to high school life. Maybe someday, three years from now, they will be almost as cool as the class of '94.

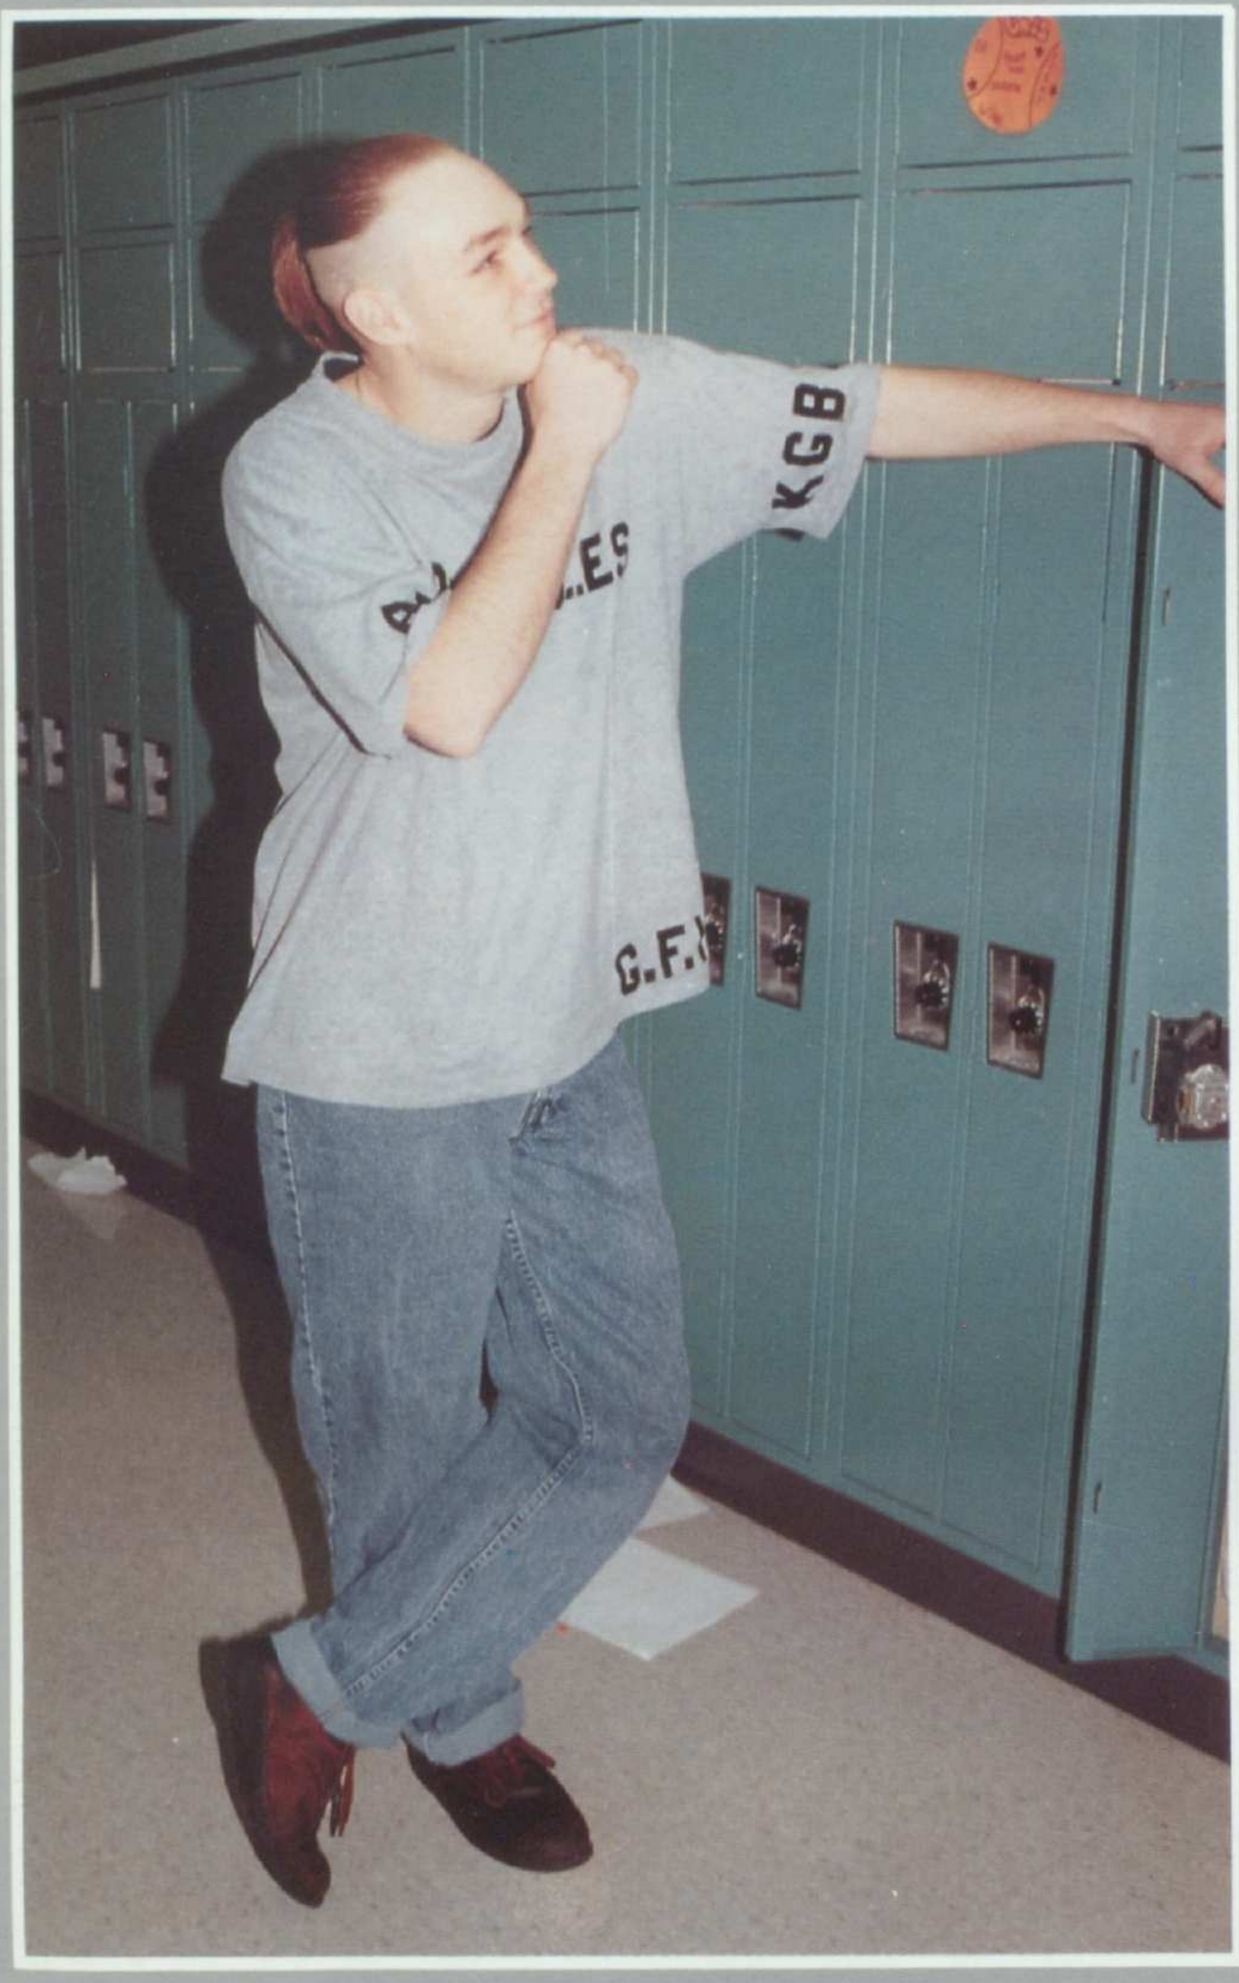

By Suzanne Provanzana

Here, an unidentified freshman wanna-be has been caught fumbling at his locker. Note the confused look on his face: he can't remember where he put his homework. His fashion statement is simple: he has none. He's not looking to stand out in a crowd. He's wearing khaki pants, a basic wardrobe staple, and a plain white shirt, a birthday gift from his grandparents last year. Let's hope that in three years, this freshman will be choosing his own outfits that reflect a little more of his personality.

SENIOR

The prime piece of art

CLOTHES: Senior Shirt : the kind that informs underclassmen that he is someone important. The worn out jeans : we all know he hasn't washed them for awhile. Socks : still can't find them from the last party that he went to. Shoes : worn out due to sprinting to classes, but the casual exterior, in case he runs into anyone he wants to impress is still noticable. Underwear : boxers. APPEARANCE : Shaving after school and before going out at night. Notice the hair style on this piece of art. The ponytail allows others to see his eyes and his million dollar smile. MINDSET: Cool, calm and ready to get out of this place, the epitomy of senioritis.

Even though the seniors are perched at the top of the status ladder in school, they still have time for the little people under them...you know, pushing them to the side of the hallway or telling them to give their homework up. When the typical seniors reach this stage of life, it's healthy and predictable to say that they have been detected with "senioritis." For those who don't know what that means, "senioritis" is a feeling that most seniors experience. It's a realization that they only have nine months (Sept.-June) left in high school for partying until the rest of their lives starts. Around this time they say to themselves: "So many parties, so little time."

That brings us to our next subject, the seniors' social life. During their senior year, typical seniors are all booked up with invites as they grow out of their clean, healthy, innocent look to a grungy, healthy, prime piece of art. The school handbook promotes the idea of the seniors being leaders, setting the tone and pace for the other classes in academics and co-curricular. All the above is true, but one other subject was left out - the seniors also control the social gatherings. Seniors especially take the role of leadership, as the school believes, at parties. Therefore, with years of experience seniors have more finesse than the average freshmen there, if they are even lucky to be invited.

The only problem facing seniors is dating within the same grade. As the graduation date approaches, the seniors usually realize that they haven't been able to date even half the people in the senior class. Therefore, to the seniors who are "going out" with each other, I say, "Nice job." And to the seniors who want to find someone to be with, don't worry! A person with the right qualifications to be with a prime piece of art, a senior, is out their somewhere...

With the partying and dating, you probably assume that seniors have no time for their families and that they never stop in to say "Hi" to their parents. You're absolutely correct. But don't get the seniors wrong: they do stop in now and then... whenever they need money or the car.

IN TOUCH WITH TOMORROW

Wolves are ready for the future

fu•ture
-n. 1. The indefinite period of time yet to be. 2. That which will happen in time to come. 3. The prospective condition of a person or thing.

What does the future hold? No one ever really knows what's to come; that's why it is wise to be preparedd. Some Kilbourne students have a head start on facing their futures.

D.E.C.A. is probably best known to students for the school store. However, the D.E.C.A. program involves a lot more. D.E.C.A. is a marketing class that meets for two periods a day. The diamond, D.E.C.A.'s symbol, stands for leadership development, civic consciousness, social intelligence, and vocational understanding. The program consists of attending classes, running the school store, working outside of school, and participating in D.E.C.A., which is actually a co-curricular activity. The students must work between 15 to 20 hours per week; students have jobs at Phar-Mor, Wendy's, Red Lobster, and Cub Foods, among other businesses. Moving beyond school, the D.E.C.A. program fundraises for various charities. Earlier in the year they raised money for the Muscular Dystrophy Foundation, and part of the proceeds from this year's prom fashion show will be given to Mothers Against Drunk Driving. Although it is a time consuming class, D.E.C.A. students feel it's worth the effort. As Mr. Sanders, the D.E.C.A. advisor, says, "It's more than just a class; it's an adventure."

Youth in Government is a pilot program which started this year. The club members meet about once every two weeks. Each member of the group chose a position from city government, either in city council or the school board, and ran in elections for that position. Some of the jobs the students hold include City Council Member, Superintendant of schools, and Director of Law. The students attended city council and school board meetings and shadowed city government members to learn more about their jobs. Angela Bookwalter, the Assistant Superintendant of Schools, says, "Youth in Government has provided me with the opportunity to learn more about our city's government first-hand. I've really enjoyed being a part of it!"

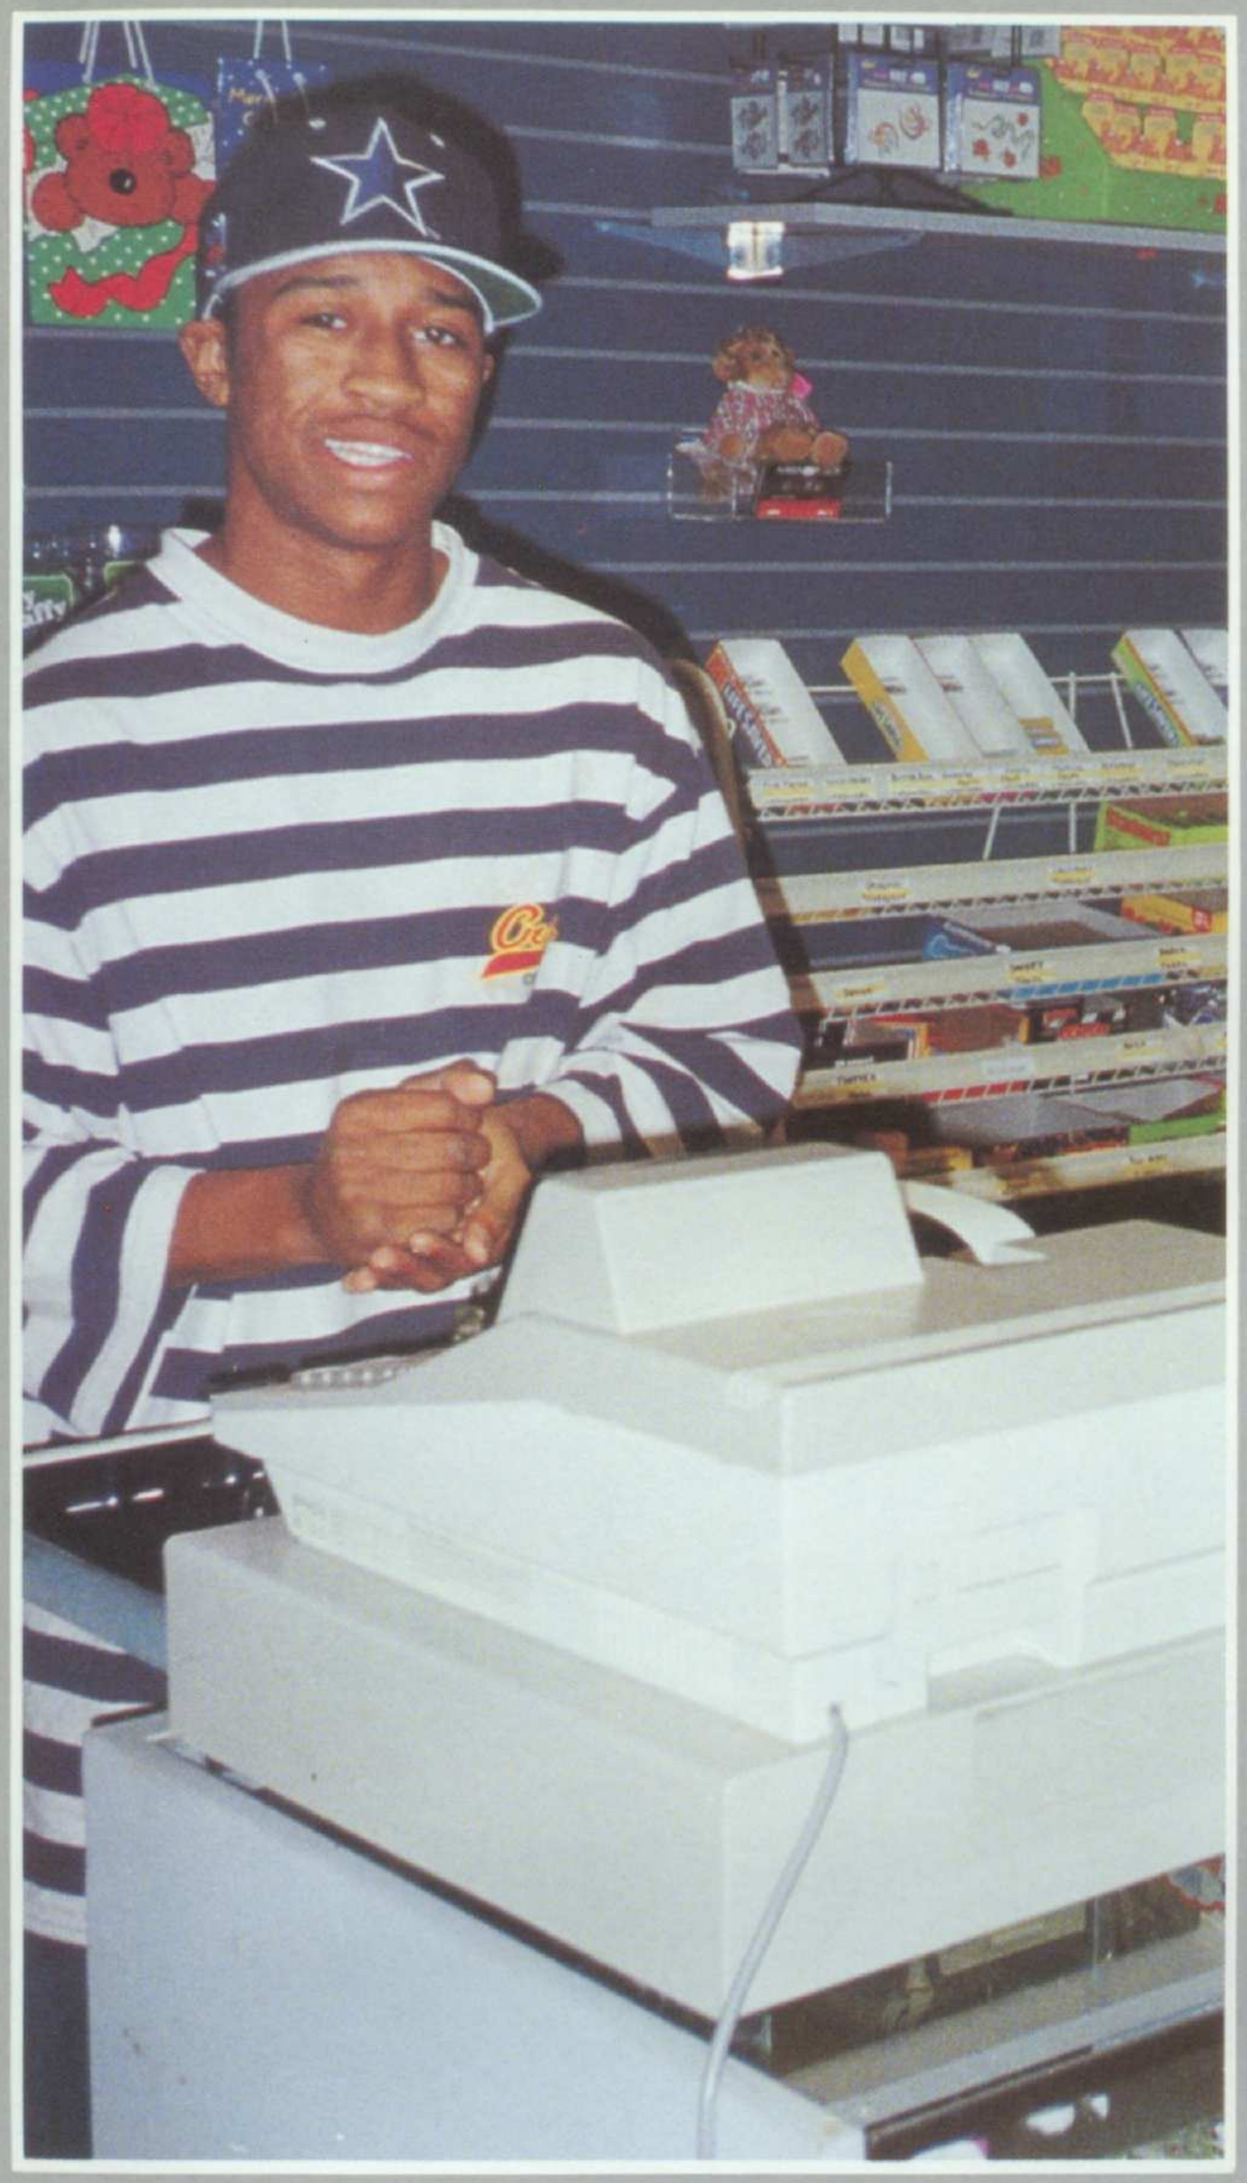

Occupational Work Experience is another popular class offered at Kilbourne. Students in the program attend classes for half the day, including two periods of O.W.E. class, then leave early at 11:15 A.M. for work. The students must work a minimum of 15 hours per week at any place of business they choose such as Ziebart, The Goodie Shop, fast food restaurants, and The Hampton Inn. Some students are even secretaries for local businesses. In the O.W.E. class periods, the students review English and math, skills they need for their jobs. They learn how to fill out resumes and applications as well as how to file tax forms. The students rehearse job interviews in class and learn how to balance their bank accounts. This type of work-oriented instruction prepares them for their future work experiences; additionally, they have a more well-rounded idea of what the real world is like.

From their experiences here at Worthington Kilbourne High School, these and many other studentsare prepared to face the world after graduation. The skills they are learning today will definitely help them in the future.

Is there a future opera singer among these Symphonic Choir students? Nicole Kaitsa, Merilee Karr, Kari Vaas, Mike Feeney, Chris Fridley, Chris Williams, and Matt Cherubino seem to be on their way. However, Frank Shortt and Ben Maurer are more interested in the camera than in practice.

"A D.E.C.A. student's hard work is never done," explains Anthony Savage. "Where would they be without me to count all this money?"

Wracking their brains during the Knowledge Bowl are O.W.E. members Keith Cavote, Tom Barr, Greg Honebrink, and Josh Layne.

Trying desperately to get into college, Mike Hendershot needs all the help he can get from Mrs. Byer. Just Kidding!

BRINE

SPIRIT WEEK

Pound the Hounds

Students will remember spirit week, the first major uniting event of the school year, for many reasons: it was the last spirit week for the seniors and the first for the freshmen and the dance was the most attended one in WKHS history. The annual class locker bay and window decorating contests, which incorporated the theme POUND THE HOUNDS, kicked off the week. Members of each class spent countless hours in their effort to boost school spirit for the big homecoming game.

On Monday a large percent of the school's students and staff wore their favorite college sweatshirts. Next, hippie day found everyone decked out in their Woodstock-inspired 60's retro attire. On Wednesday only the school's most eccentric students and staff "ROMED" the halls in their togas. Later that evening the school's outdoor basketball courts hosted the annual pep rally. Festivities included the announcement of the homecoming court, a student/staff tricycle race, pumpkin toss, tug-o-war, and of course, the lighting of the bonfire.

On Thursday, a formal assembly honored Homecoming Queen Renee Setzer and her court: senior attendants, Kari Vaas and Kathryn Markowsky; junior attendant, Katherine Joseph; sophomore attendant, Mica Luedeke; freshman attendant, Jenny Hanwell. Eric Gnezda, a native of Worthington, and his band performed a special song entitled "Be True To Your Dreams" in tribute to this year's homecoming theme. Also, during the assembly, Student Body President Anthony House announced the junior class, which won both the window decorating contest and the pumpkin toss, as the most spirited class of Spirit Week '93. Junior Jen Sedlak stated, "I think that it's great that the juniors won most spirited this year, instead of the seniors. It's about time someone broke their winning streak."

At the conclusion of this exciting and eventful week-long celebration, it was clear that Spirit Week '93 pulled us all a little closer together and gave us memories which we'll never forget.

Which one of these lovely "gals" would you choose to be your homecoming date? Matt Daniel, Jared Miller, or Jeremy Mosier? It's a tough call.

Smiling beautifully, the 1993 Homecoming Attendants - freshman Jenny Hanwell, senior Kathryn Markowsky, Queen Renee Setzer, senior Kari Vaas, sophomore Mica Luedeke, junior Katherine Joseph - pose after their dates escorted them across the field to greet their fathers who were awaiting proudly with roses.

Using all their strength, juniors Sheri Schneider, Lisa Gildea, and Brian Kramer pull their way to a victory in the tug-o-war contest at the bonfire.

Showing their peace and love, seniors Jamie Thomas and Kari Vaas celebrate spirit week in their Hippie attire.

Hoping to win the annual locker bay competition are sophomores, Sue Chang, Saima Khan, Kourtney Skowron, Christine Gossett, Julie Ucker, and Gherima Woldemariam.

Decked out in their togas , these two gals, Michelle Greek and Sarah Castle, aren't afraid to be original.

HOMECOMING

Be True To Your Dream

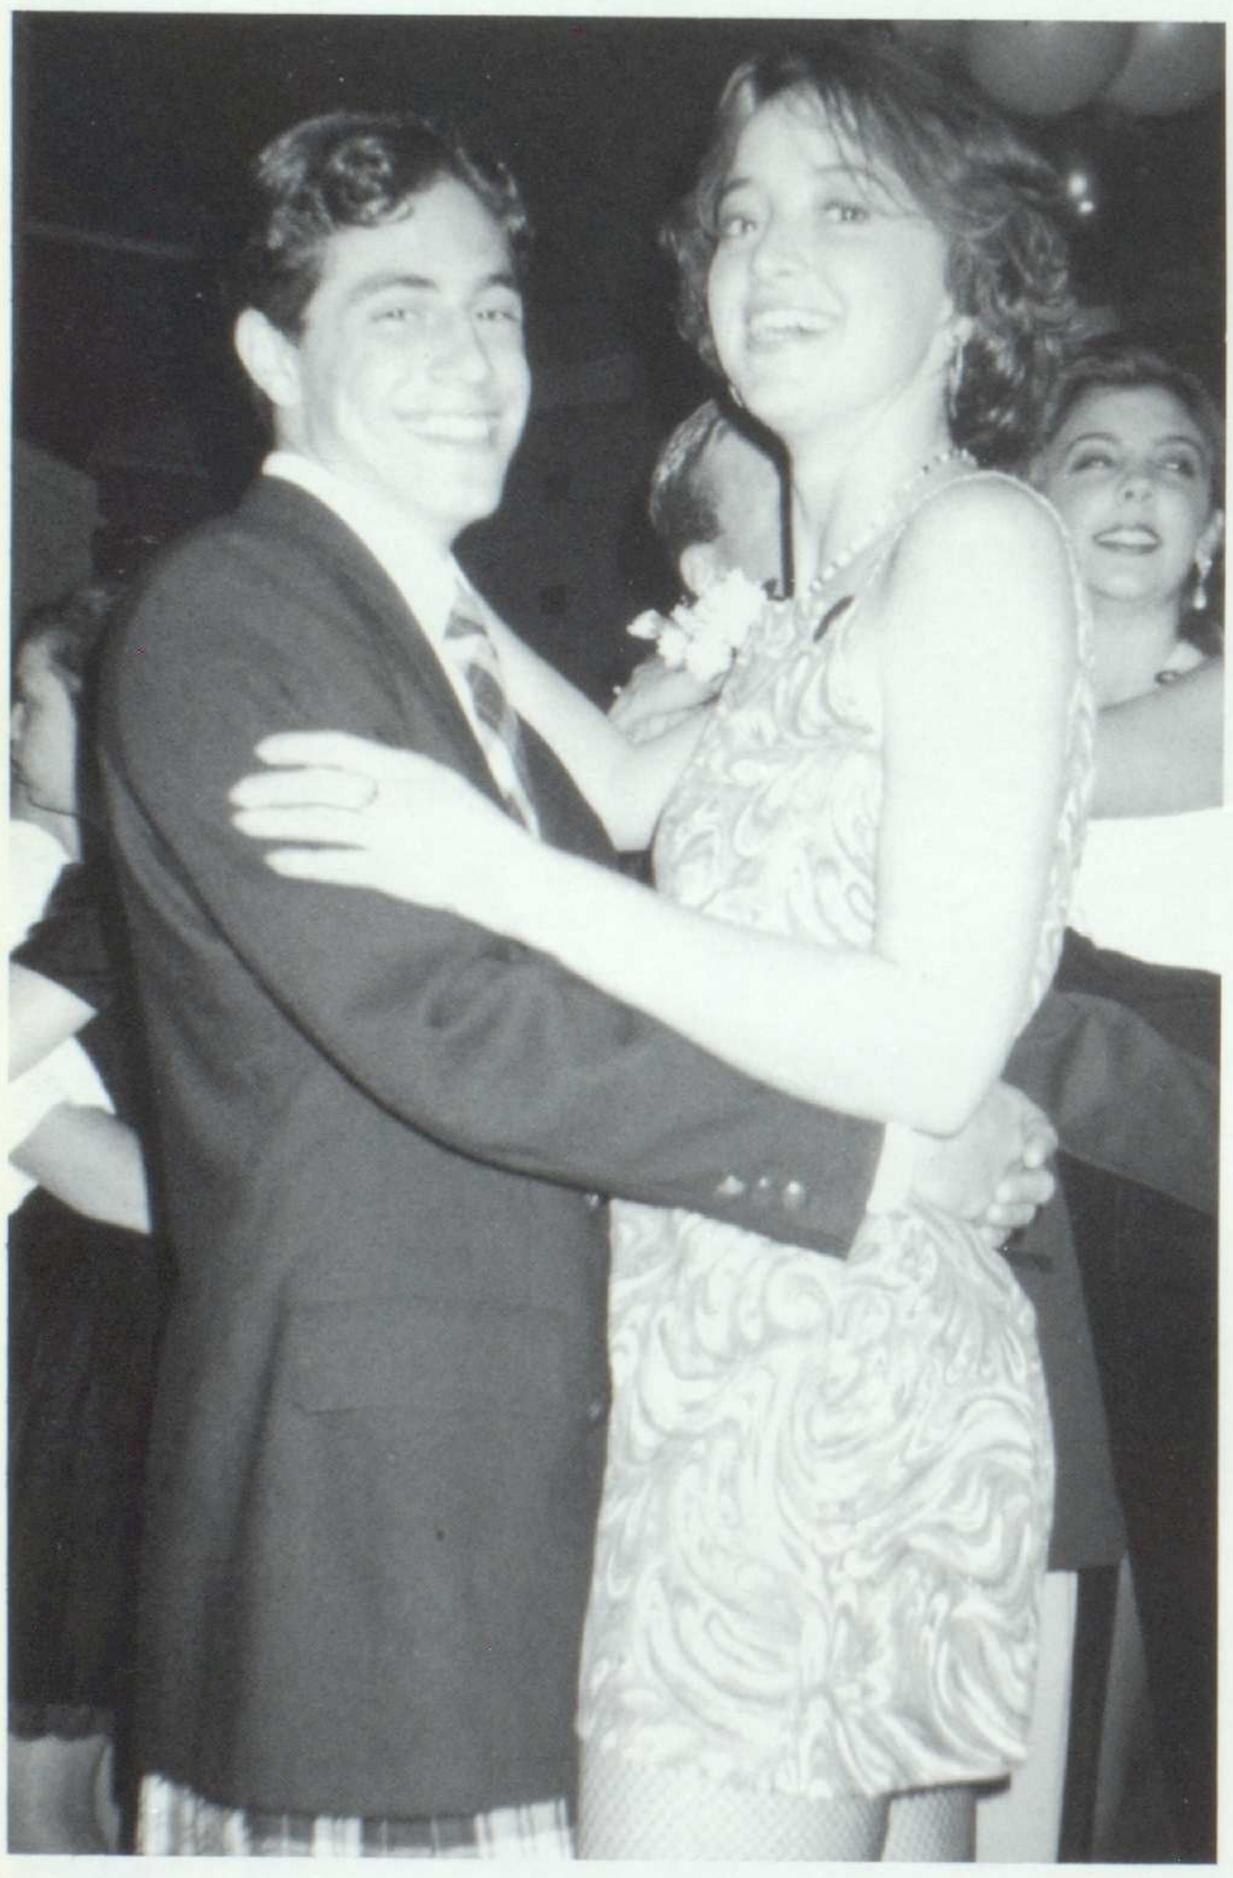

Inspired by Eric Gnezda's well-known song, "Be True to Your Dreams," the theme for this year's homecoming dance held on October 16 in the WKHS commons, seemed appropriate.

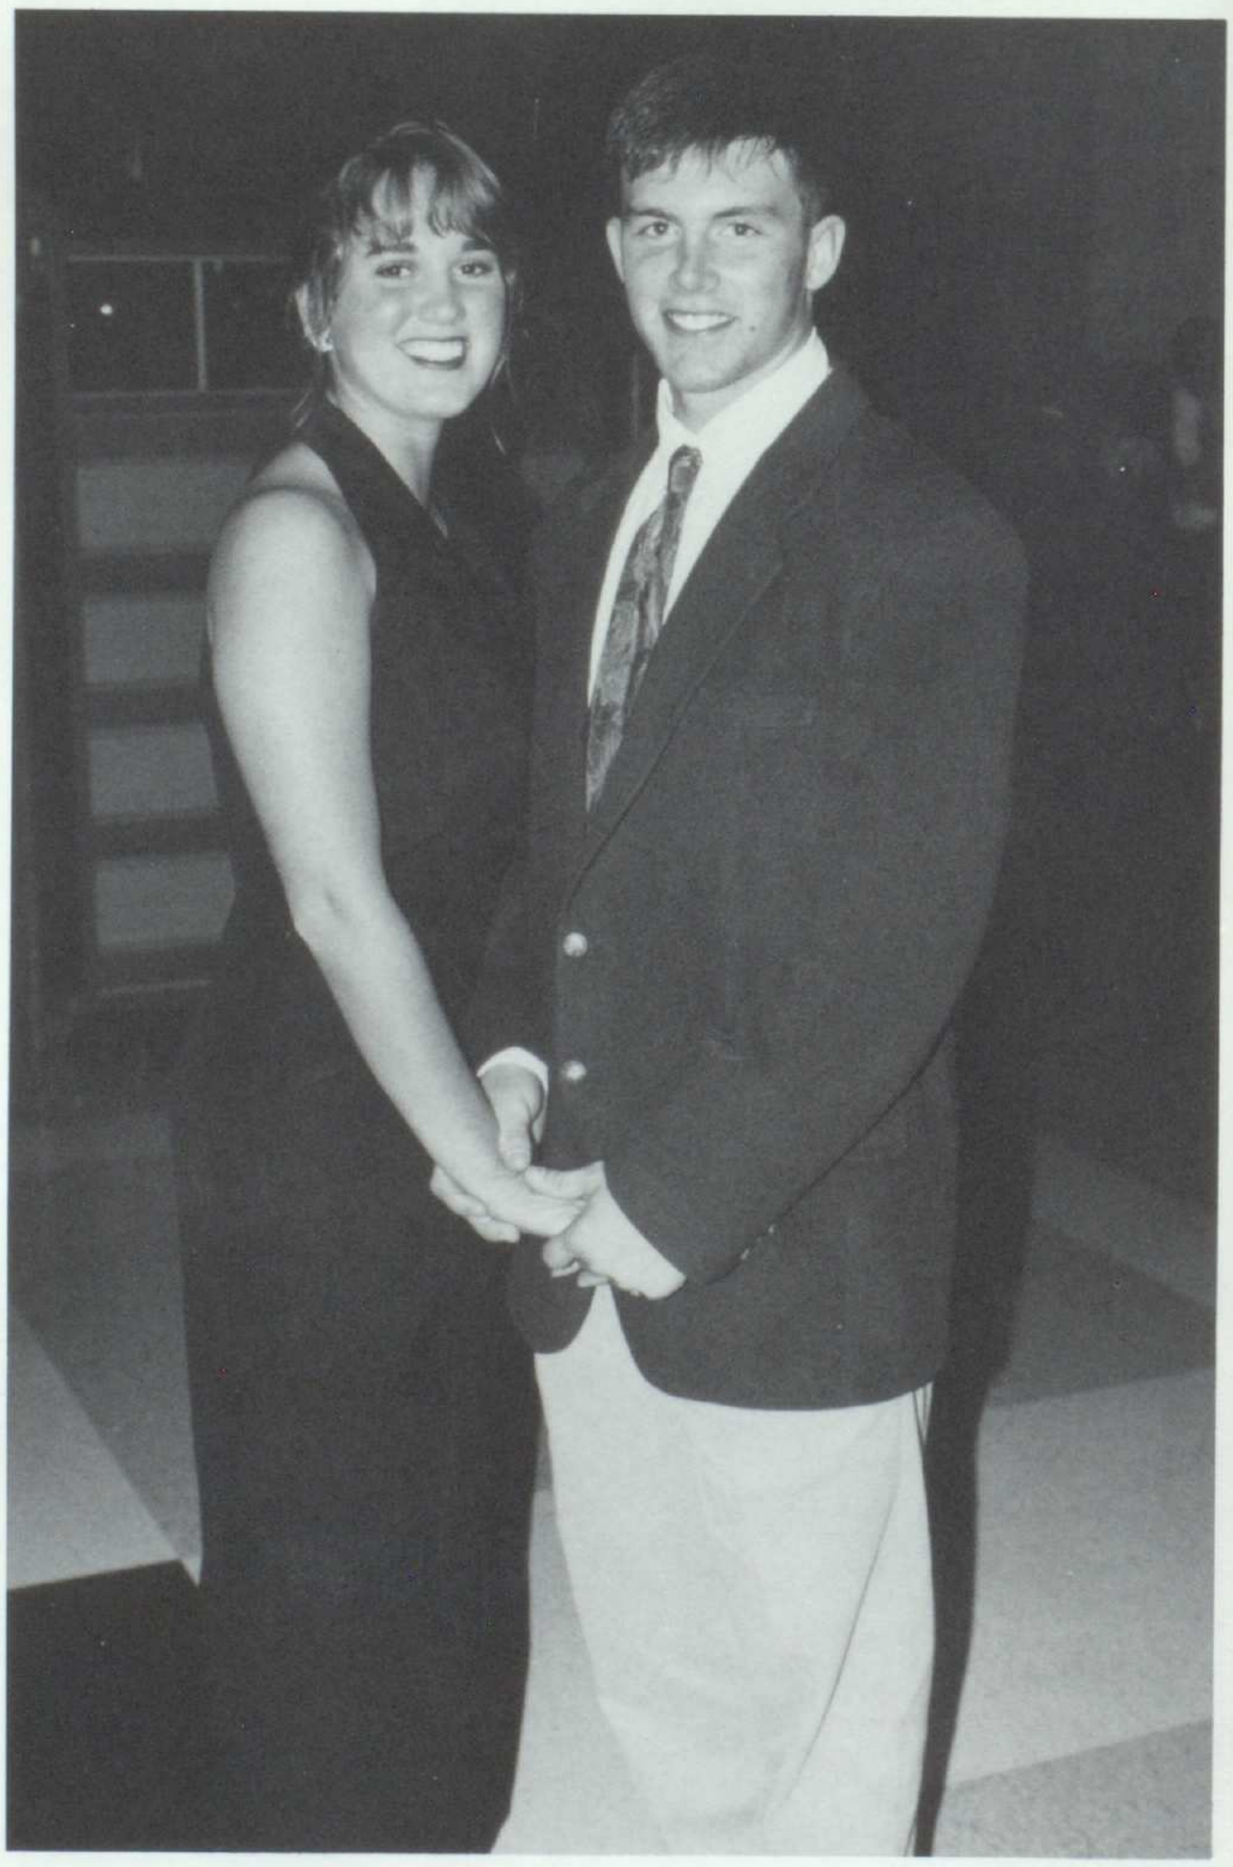

Members of student council spent countless hours in their preparation for the big night. They "dressed" up the commons with twinkling stars and large balloons clouds which hung from the ceiling along with sparkling twinkle lights lining the staircase. MC Productions supplied the dance music for the evening, and Mr. Porta introduced the 1993 Homecoming Queen Renee Setzer and her court to the guests at the dance. Queen Renee voiced, "I've never had so much fun at a formal dance before. It's going to be a night that I'll remember forever."

The students at the dance had a wonderful time. Senior Jaime Bauer commented, " It was great seeing all of my friends dressed up for the occasion. You rarely get a chance to see everyone look this nice at one time." Kristen Lopez, an ex-student form Worthinghton Kilbourne enjoyed herself during her visit back to WKHS with her date, Nick Wehe. " I'm so happy to see everyone," she exclaimed.

All in all, this year's homecoming dance was a night everyone will remember.

Enjoying the company of an older woman on Homecoming night is senior, Steve Pope. Nice kilt, Steve!! Which one of you two is leading while you dance?

Hand-in-hand, Amy Palcic and Tom Kingery enjoy their night together during Amy's visit back to Worthington from California.

Flashing her lovely smile is junior Megan Senecal, who holds her date, Scott Loney from TWHS, close to her side.

Awww! What a cute couple! Junior Amy Cleland and her date from TWHS, Jeff Enzinger, take time out to pose for a picture on Homecoming night.

JINGLE JAM

Kissing Fest '93

The snow on the ground and the holiday spirit in the air helped set the scene for this year's holiday dance. The senior class sponsored the dance, held on December 11, in the commons. Dressed in homemade t-shirts, Christmas boxer shorts, and Santa Claus hats, Worthington students in holiday moods danced the night away. Surprisingly, the merry students could keep the beat for dancing even though the DJ and the music were not as good as the past year's. Joey Igoe said,"The music was out of touch. They needed to play music more up to date." Still, some of the students enjoyed the older music. Sheila Rupp commented, "Nothing can beat 80's music. I love the tunes. Some people just don't know a good song when they hear one. Gosh!" The music did not stop the students from having a gay ol' time.

The best part of the night was all the kisses passed from person to person. The freshmen enjoyed their first holiday dance. They also enjoyed receiving kisses from the upper class guys. Jamie Smith happily voiced, "I have never had so much fun at a dance before. I truly liked giving all the kisses the best." The holiday dance, once again, was one of the highlights of the year and was a great way to bring 1993 to a close at WKHS.

Bobby Carlson and Nick Wehe have a great time macking on all the girls. Why are you two in such a good mood?

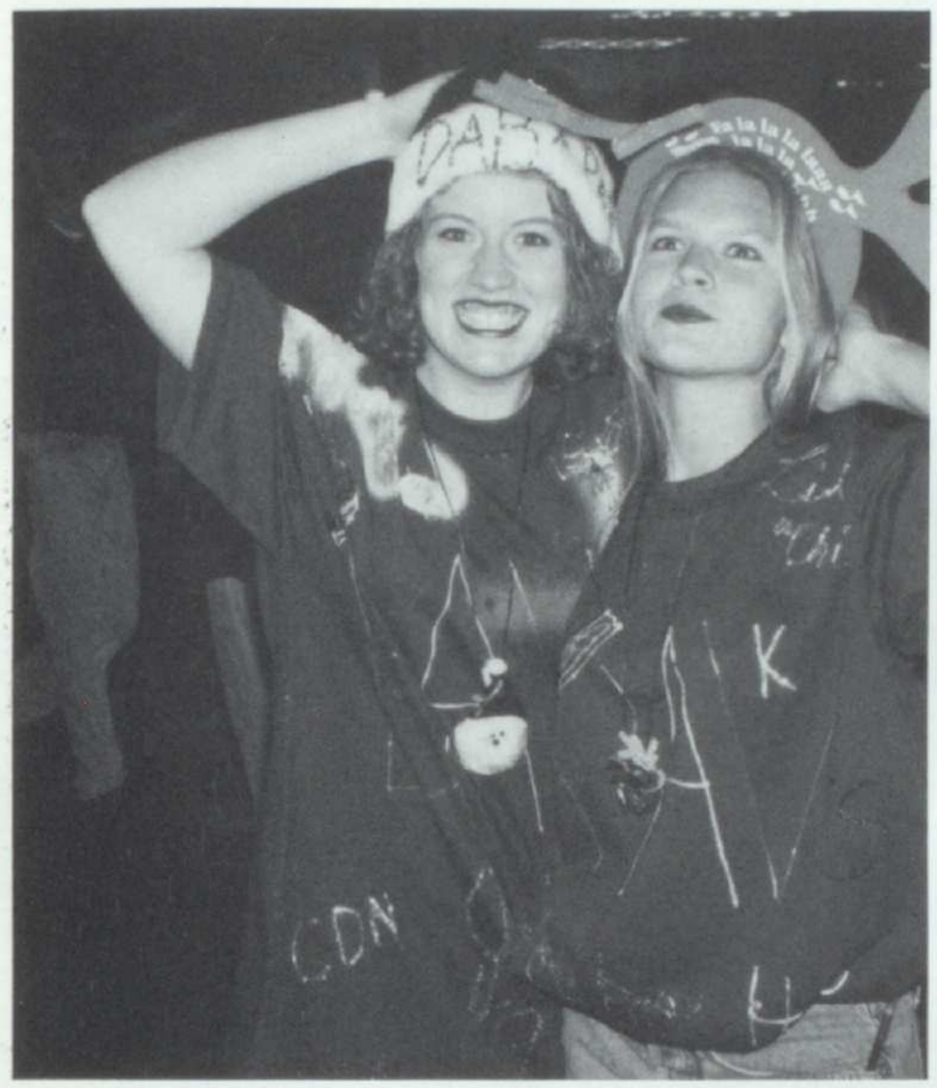

"Take a picture of me!" yells Libby Kirsch who pulls Lisa Gildea closely beside her to pose together.

Enjoying their last holiday dance are seniors Kari Vaas, Merilee Karr, Carey Feihel, Shannon Decker, and Sandy Holmberg.

"I have to tilt my head way back and stand on my tiptoes to give anyone a kiss." Kristi Chitwood demonstrates, while Kristi Stevens shows off her bright red lip stick.

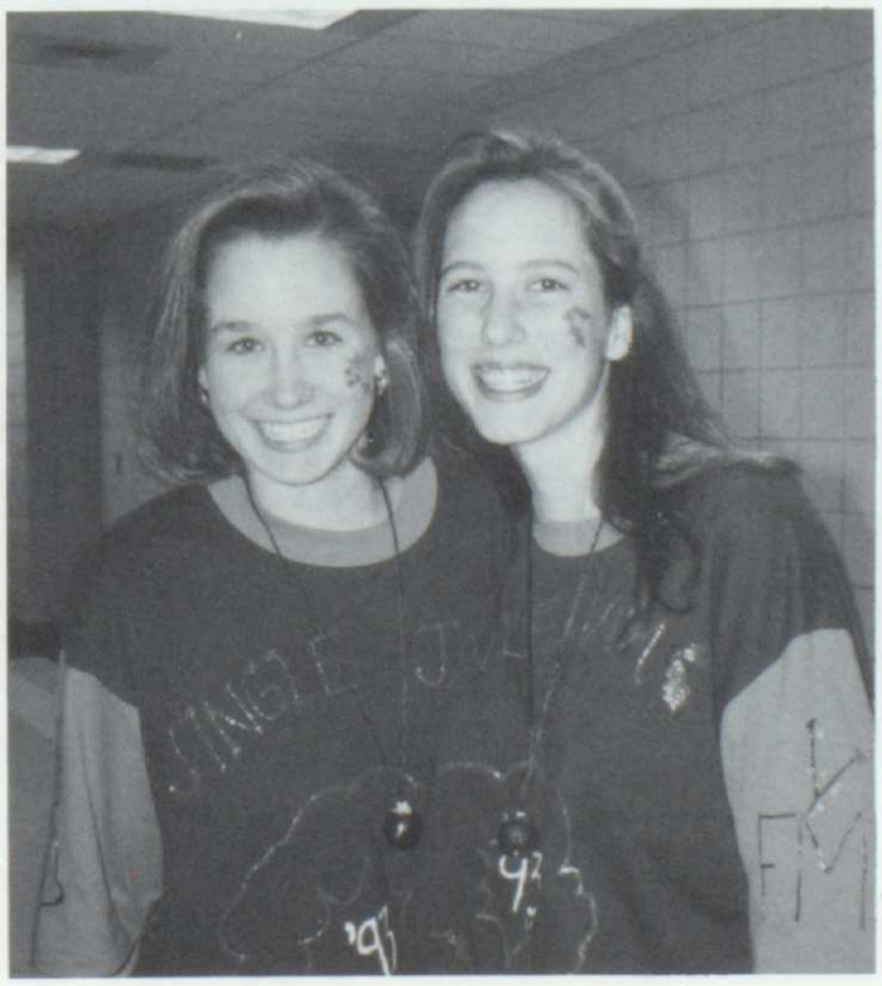

Showing off their Christmas outfits Laura Davis, Sarah Davis, Jodi Dhillon, Erin Daugherty, and Kim Ballantyne pose to show their friendship and love for each other.

"This is for the yearbook," prompts Jenny Edl to Erin Hartong, Gina Federico, Alicia Rosko, Melanie Hendershot, and Katie Wojciechowski.

"Do we look like sisters?" asks Jen Sedlak and Kate Marsh as they pose to show their similarities.

"Look! I can smile like Julia Roberts." Kelly McLean stretches her lips to the max and shows her impression, while Jaime Bauer smiles like a good pirate should.

VALENTINE'S

Total Eclipse of the Heart

On February 12, 1994, students filled the commons with excitement, fun, and romance, creating a unforgettable Valentine's dance. Sponsored by the sophomore class, the dance was held in the commons decorated in pink, red and white balloons dangling down from the ceilings, small white lights covering the balcony and hearts placed every where in sight. The decorations helped generate romance in the air. Overall the sophomores put together a wonderful Sadie Hawkin's dance.

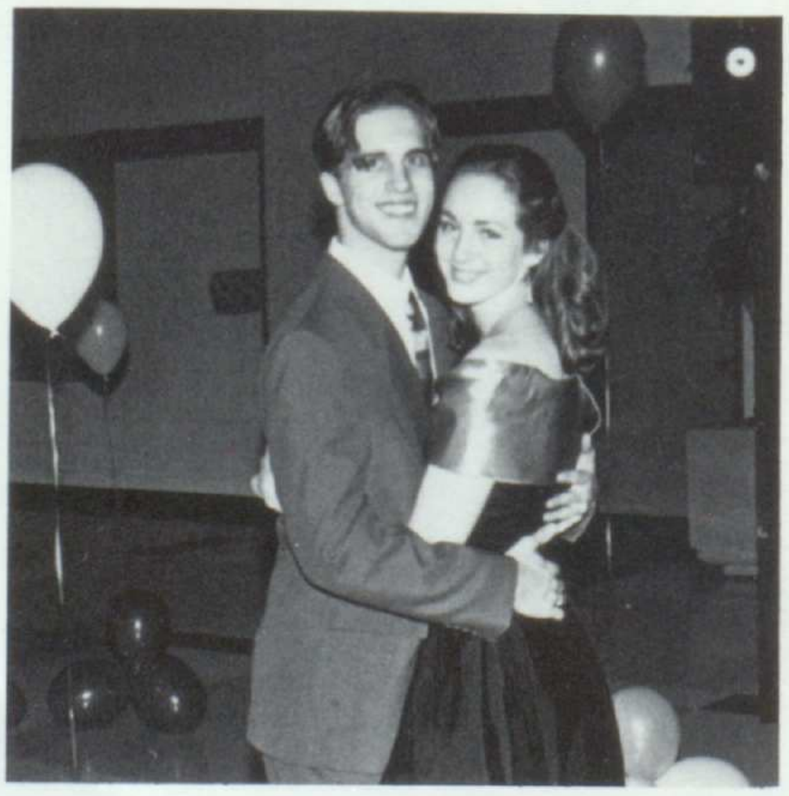

The tradition of having a "King of Hearts" continued. Six seniors nominated this year included Steve Min, Nate Tansky, Matt McNeal, James Burns, Magi McKinney, and Jared Miller. The lucky winner of 93 "King of Hearts" was Nate Tansky.

Many students enjoyed this year's dance. For some it was the best dance they have attended. Junior Jessica Brown said, "The dance was very fun and very romantic." This was the last Valetine's dance for the seniors. Nicole Souders reflected, " I had a really great time. I was sad when the night was over." For some students, the night was less than they'd hoped. Sophomore Marc Tardiff, " I thought that the dance was better than last year's. The music was great. But the over all the night was just okay." Whether or not the night was as special as they had anticipated, students will hold the evening as a cherished memory in the years to come.

Taking advantage of an open floor, Russell Niswander and Adelle Reardon show off their abilty to dance.

Proud to be 93' King of Hearts, Nate Tansky and Rachel Smith celebrate.

Senior Trish Merrill and graduate Nate Davis enjoy being together.

Enjoying their first Valentine's, freshman Tony Lee is giving thumbs up to the camera; Kevin Hoskins is puckering up for his date Jen Casey who is trying to avoid Kevin's puckered lips. Stephen Key is showing off his monkey impression while almost dropping his date Abby Dudley. Colleen Carey and Jamison Jennings seem to be the only two who want to dance.

PROM '94

Puttin' On The Ritz

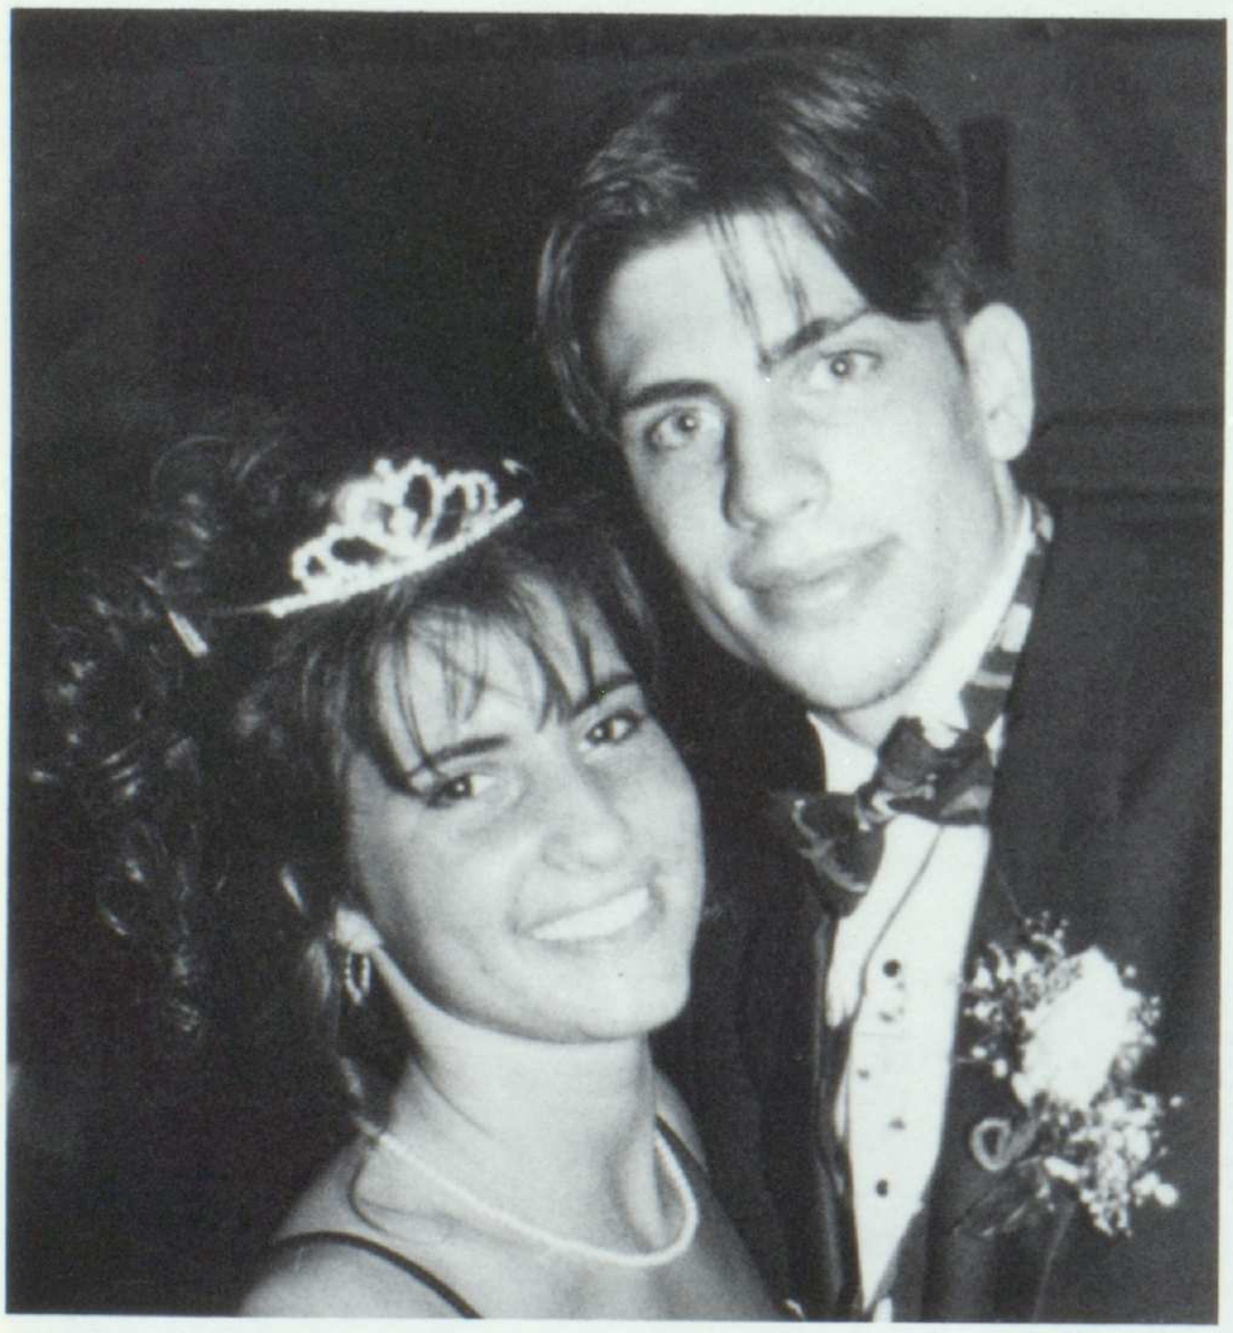

Only the weather prevented this year's Prom from being a complete success. But what else is new? This is Columbus, Ohio. Despite the occassional downpours and passing thunderstorms, Kilbourne juniors, seniors, and their dates had an enjoyable evening. The junior class pulled off a Prom that will be hard to surpass. Held at the historic Valleydale Ballroom near Port Columbus, students danced to the music of Arnett Howard and the Creole Funk Band. Most were pleased with the band's mix of reggae and jazz and were inspired to spend most of the night dancing on the huge wooden dance floor in the center of the ballroom.

A large black and gold banner stating this year's Prom theme, "Puttin' on the Ritz," hung above the stage, and on both levels of the room, gold and white gossamer draped over the balconies and wound around the pillars surrounding the dance floor. Top hat centerpieces, gold and white balloons, twinkle lights, and silhouettes of dancing couples also enhanced the beautiful setting. Junior Sheri Schneider remarked, "The inside of Valleydale more than compensated for the dreary outside." Most students were impressed by the decorations, and they should have been. This year's Prom Commitee and junior class advisors, Dave Devine and Marjori Krebs, spent countless hours in preparation for the big night. Junior Class President, Amy Calhoon, stated, "I hope the seniors really enjoyed their last big formal at Kilbourne. We really tried to go all out and plan a night for them which they will never forget." Senior Kelly Veach had a wonderful evening: "The setting, decorations, and band really made for a much more classy Prom than any of the others that I have ever been to."

An open bar with unlimited access to soda and punch as well as the leather photo albums given as favors spoiled the students and their dates. USA Foto took candids of everyone enjoying themselves and also sold photo packages with backdrop settings so that students could purchase formal pictures. At 11:00 with the lights in the three large brass chandeliers above the dance floor dimmed, students gathered in front of the stage as Prom Commitee Chairs, Amy Calhoon and Katherine Joseph crowned the 1994 Prom King and Queen, seniors Justin Filia and Marisa Wooten.

As the dance ended and the rain continued to pour, students returned to their cars or limos and took advantage of valet parking provided by a group of parents. After midnight, Prom '94 was only a memory—a night which all of those who attended will never forget.

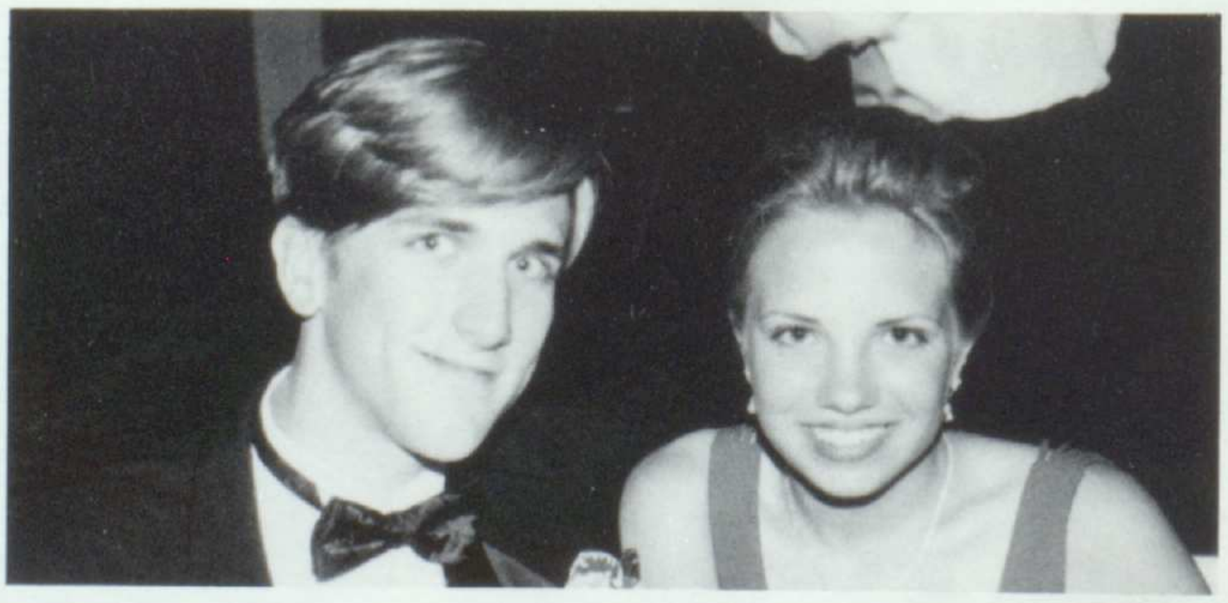

By Amy Calhoon

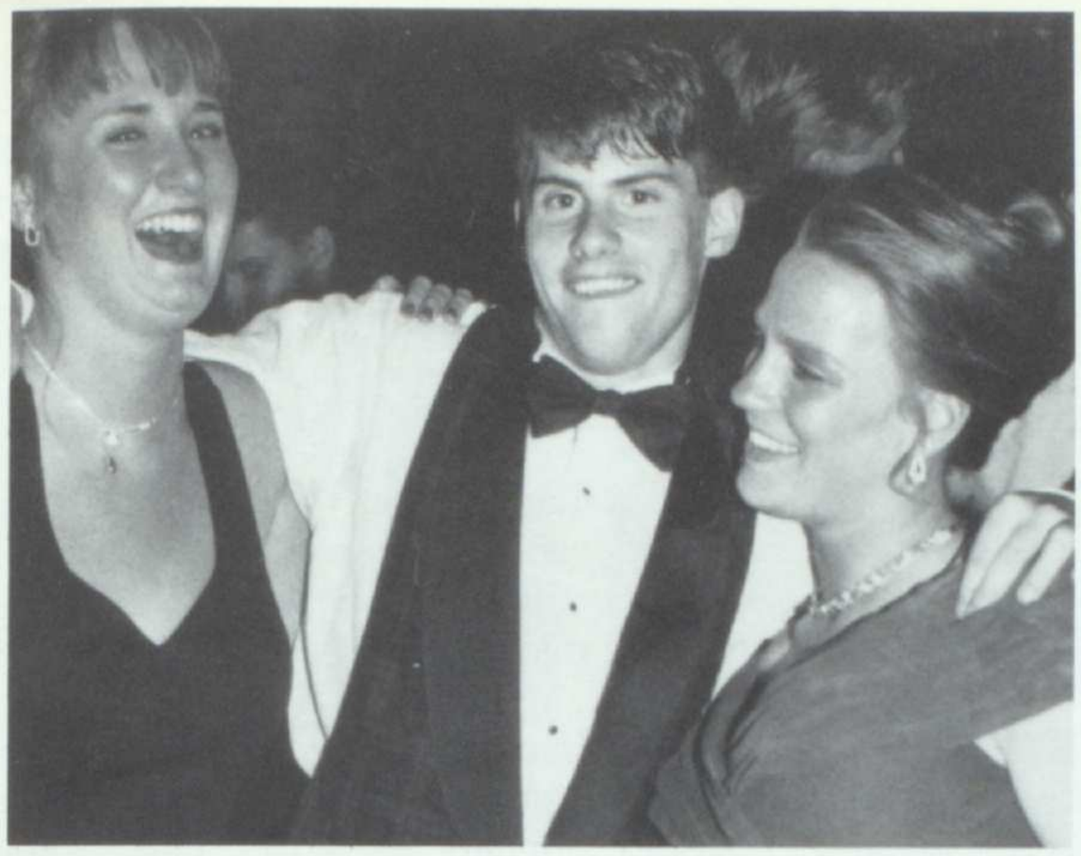

After being crowned Prom King and Queen, seniors Marisa Wooten and Justin Filia enjoy a dance together as the band plays a song to honor them.

Looking somewhat stunned by the flash of the camera, Martin Lamp appears to be having an enjoyable time with his date Allison Walker. Behind them, Todd Rohal gasps in disbelief, "Arnett Howard sounds even better than Eric Gnezda."

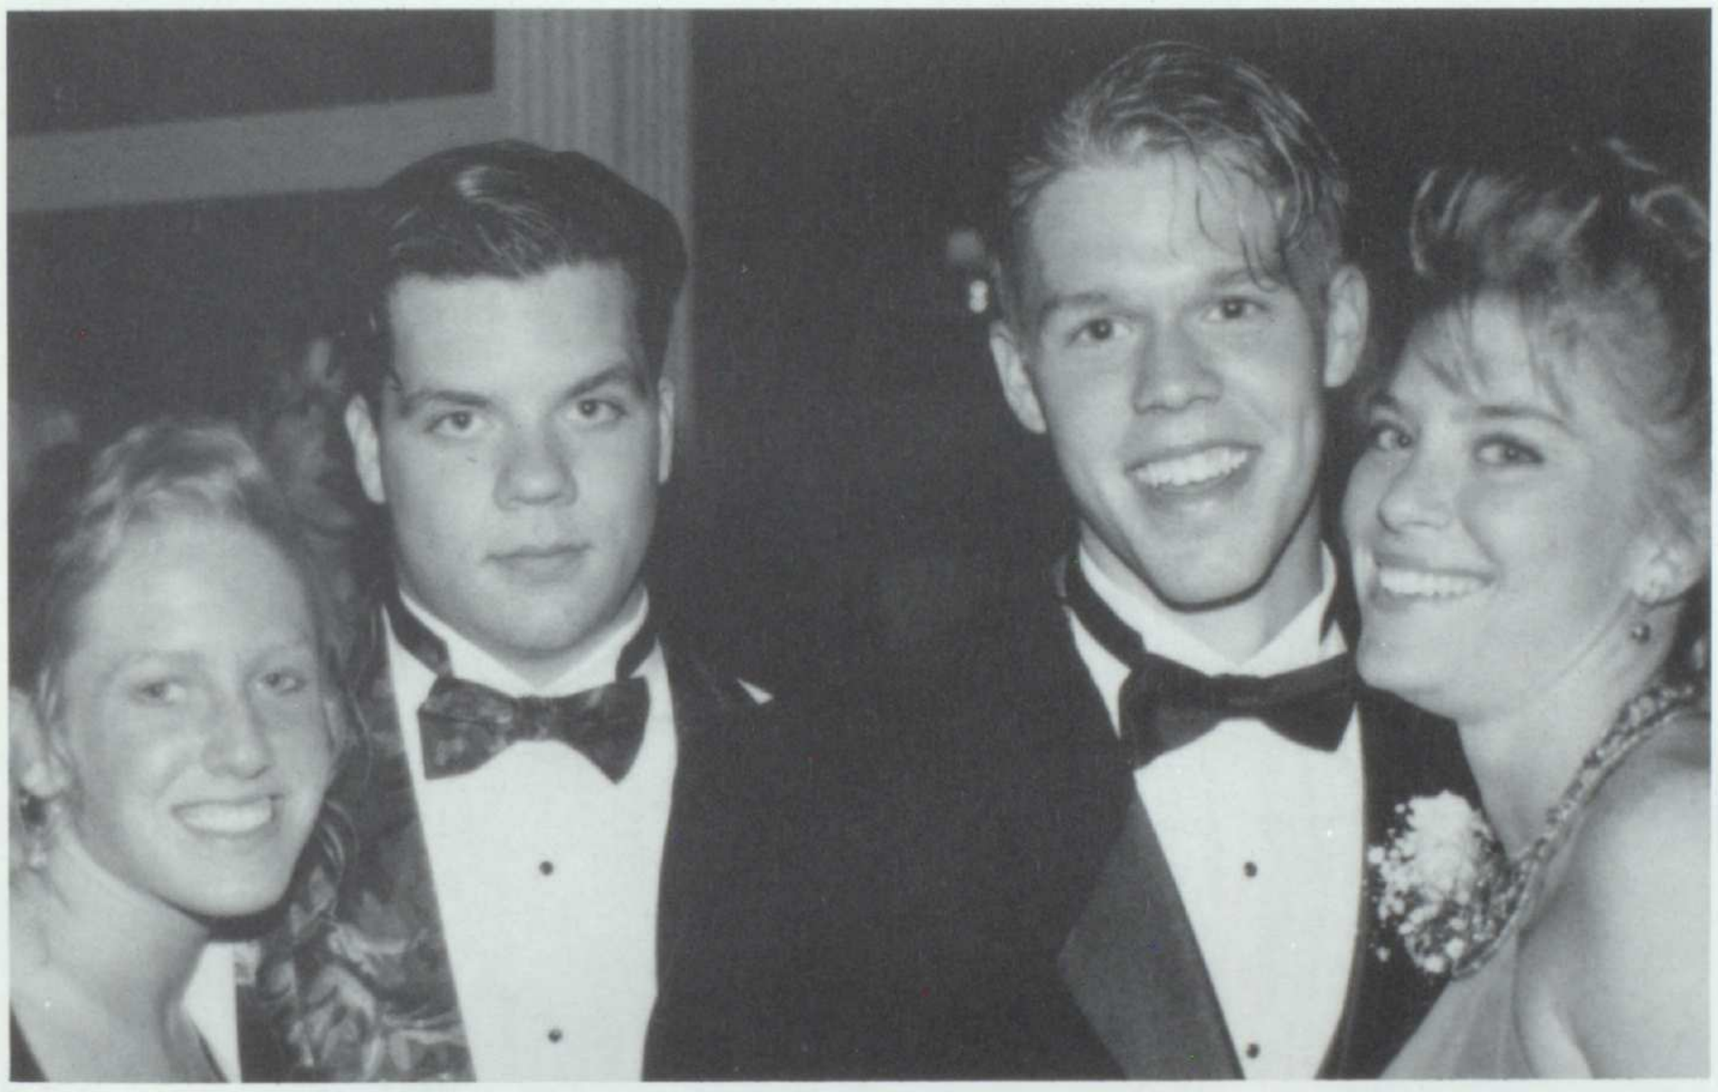

A familiar two-some, Ian Currie and Megan Harrison enjoy their special evening together.

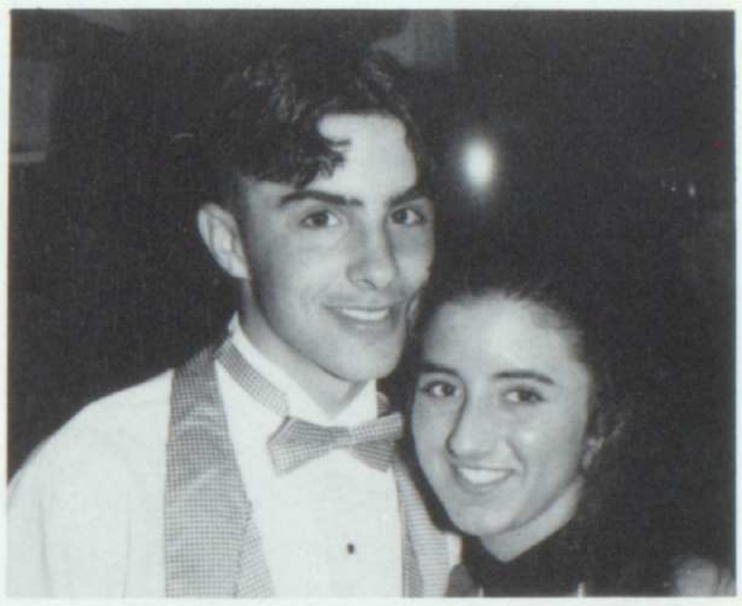

With both Danielle Brink AND Jen Larrison in his arms, senior Brian Schumuan couldn't ask for more on Prom night.

Looking like he just walked off the cover of GQ, an underclassman has never looked so good at prom as sophomore Bert Pike with his lovely date, junior Jamie Swords.

Enjoying a romantic evening together are juniors Kim Kerschner and Jim Begley, with the notorious Kilbourne duo of Matt Daniel and senior Michelle Grey.

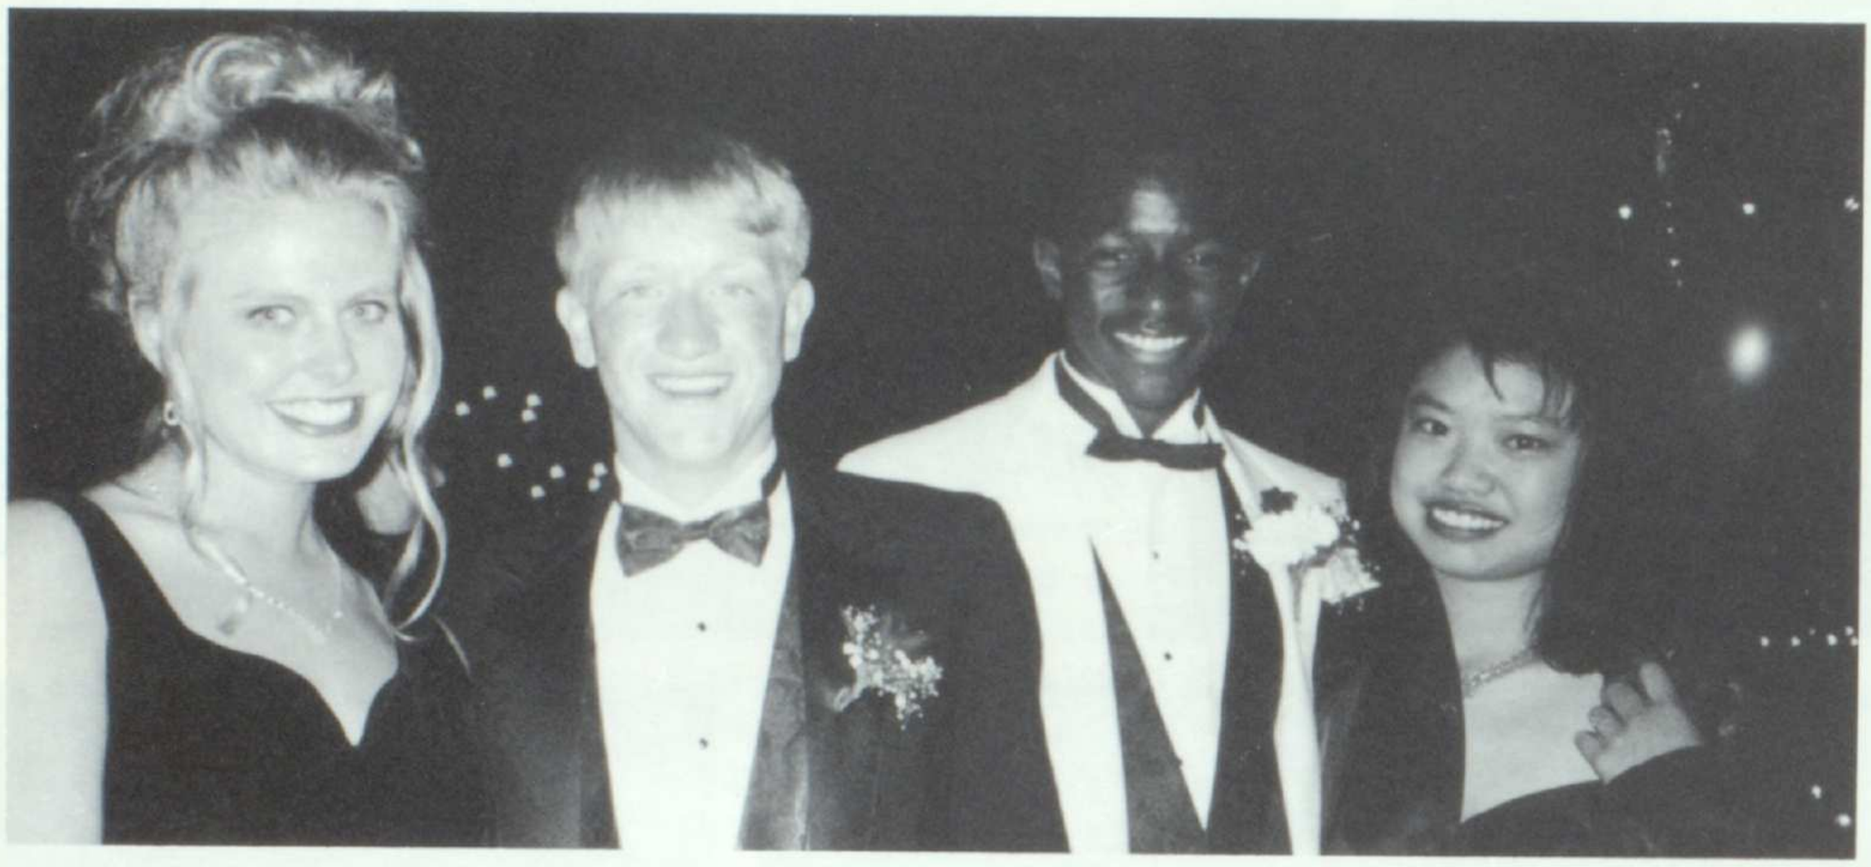

"Aw, c'mon Matt! After I got all dressed up and paraded around in heels all night for your senior prom, the least that you could do is give me a foot massage. It's not like anyone is going to notice," whines freshman Malana LeBlanc to her date Matt Moore. Little did they know that Lance Parker was lurking in the background and captured the whole thing on film as they tried to hide their embarassment with a smile

With looks of relief upon their faces, junior class advisors, Dave Devine and Marjori Krebs, enjoy all of the hard work that they and the prom commitee put into making Prom '94 a complete success. Great job, you two!

Ready for a fun and exciting night ahead of them, Carey Feihel, Jeff Derryberry, Dale Williams and Tammy Pham are ready to get out on the dance floor.

If you look into their eyes, you can see the twinkle of love Zack Tullis and Betsy Belknap have for each.

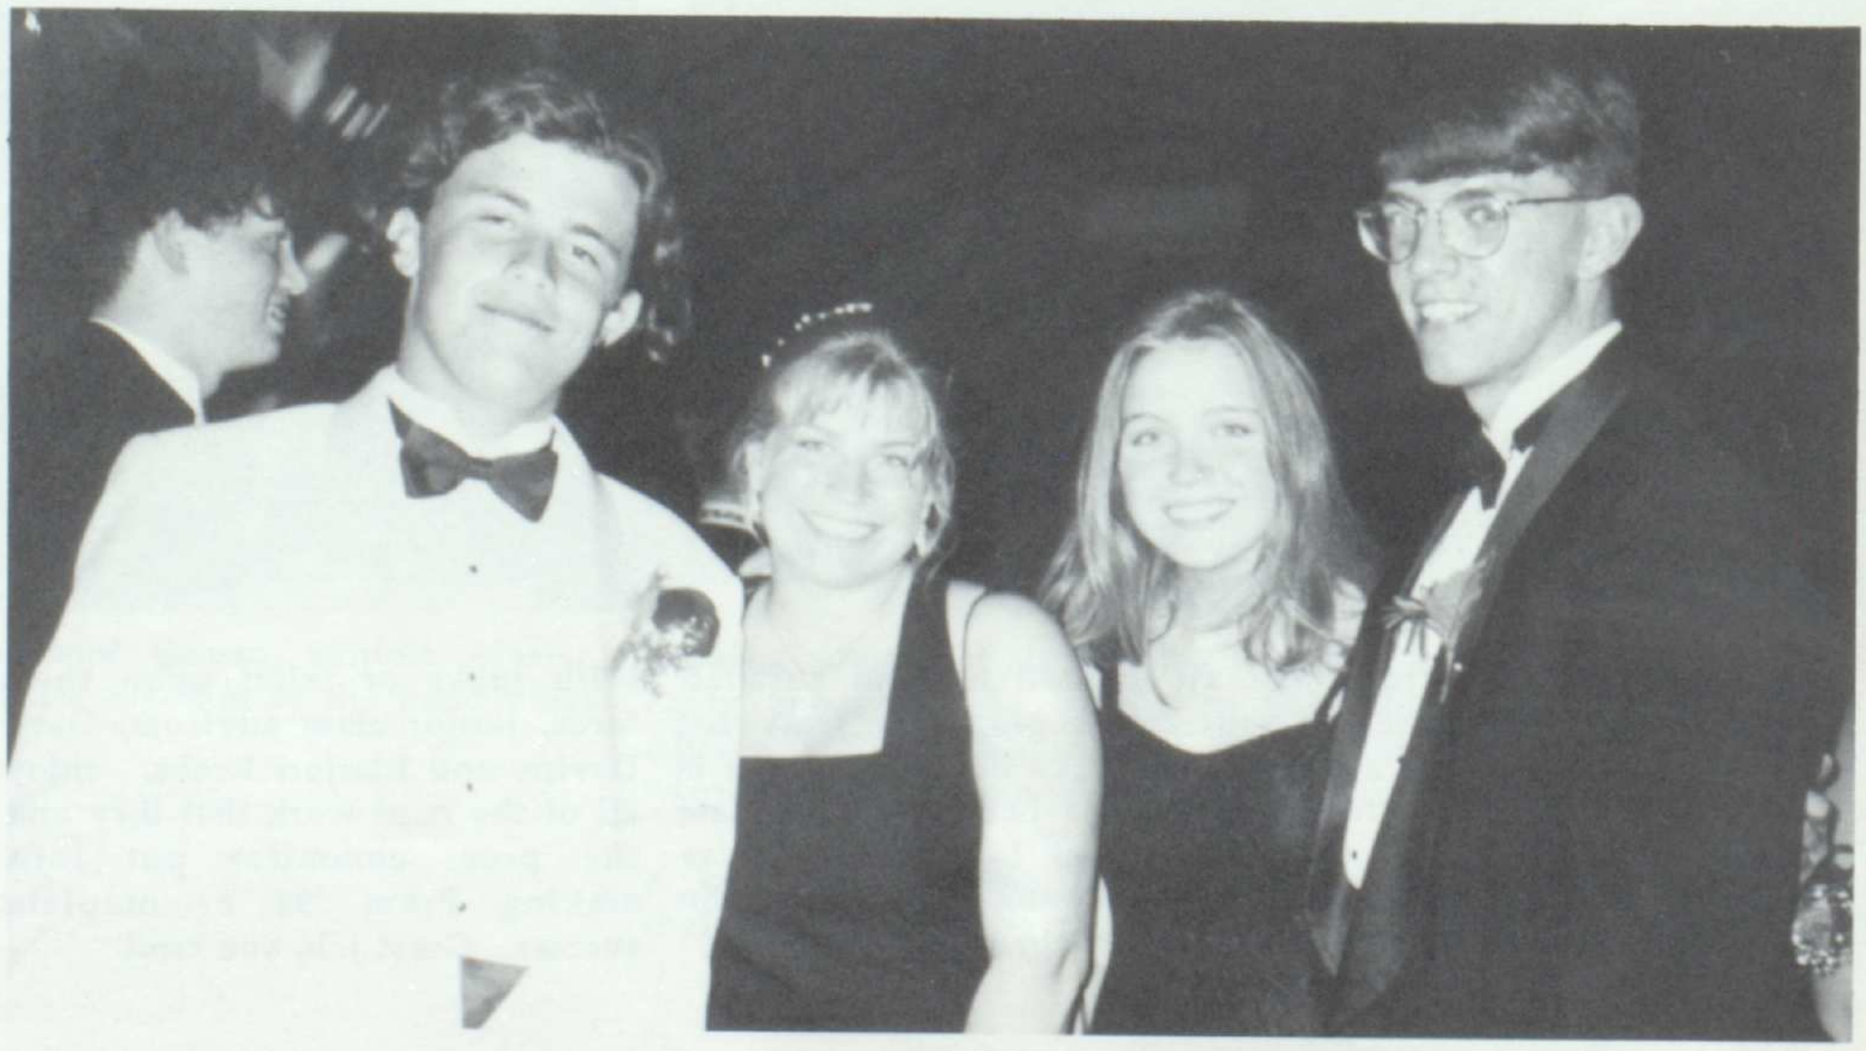

Actually, juniors Kristi Irwin, Shelle Nooks, Courtney Hayworth, and Sarah Dressler had dates at the prom, but where are they? Maybe they are getting punch for these lovely ladies.

"Don't blink don't blink," Chad Buttler repeats in his mind while trying to keep his eyes open as far as they are able; meanwhile, his date is staring out of the corner of her eyes at a major babe like Mike Link.

Giving his James Bond "look," Conrad Pustula enjoys his first American prom with Sandy Holmberg, Corrie Martin, and Bryan Huret.

Dancing forehead to forehead, Rachel Avon and Brian Biggert enjoy the slow song.

"Hey, everyone! Look at this dance we learned from the movie Can't By Me Love," exclaims Holly Prunty and Matt McNeal.

Taking a break from dancing, Ben Hawksworth and Jenny Carter are having a great time at their senior prom.

Decked out and ready to dance, juniors Jason Poetker, Tiffany Groves, Kelli Daniels and senior Cliff Banks are excited for the long night ahead.

CELEBRATION OF EXCELLENCE

Extending his congratulations, Mr. Porta shakes the hand of 1993-94 Hall of Fame inductee, chemistry teacher Mr. Nick Hainen.

Accepting her co-curricular certificate from Ms. McClain, Kari Landis smiles with pride.

Obviously proud, Jason Miles accepts his well deserved award.

Giving Ms. McClain a hearty handshake, Gerard Cox can't wait to receive his co-curricular certificate. Good job, Giraffe!

"Is this for real? I can't believe this is actually happening!" exclaims an excited Andrea Ferguson as she touches her medal in disbelief.

Munching on their lunches after the ceremony, best friends Stephanie Roush and Jyoti Patel enjoy each other's company.

GRADUATION

Hold Fast To Your Dreams

Anticipation filled the air on the night of June 7 as the graduating class of 1994 gathered in the gymnasium for the school's third annual commencement ceremony. Senior Class President Nate Tansky welcomed the class with his opening remarks and the other three class officers then led the Pledge of Allegiance and recited the poem, "Hold Fast to Your Dreams" to their fellow graduates. The symphonic choir sang the Alma Mater before Arnie Skidmore, Teaching and Learning Team Director, gave the commencement address in which he compared the graduating students to pencils: "What's important is what lies inside."

Following the commencement address, the eighteen valedictorians, Megan Ayers, Heather Bell, Andy Blackburn, Jeff Burianek, Jennifer Cassidy, Maha El Nasser, Jonathan Fertel, Sara Gustwiller, Mike Hendershot, Jeff Holowicki, Kim Iden, Korrine Miller, Steve Min, Suzanne Provanzana, Jason Sommerville, John Wieland, Paul Wojciechowski, and Kevin Zaenger staged an entertaining skit based on the TV game show Family Feud which relaxed the atmosphere of the ceremony.

After giving the graduates his best wishes, Principal Ron Porta presented the class of 1994 to Worthington Board of Education President Sue McNaghten. Seniors were then presented with their diplomas by the teacher or staff member of their choice.

This year,1994 , was one to remember. Not only did WKHS send nearly 300 graduates onto the next stage of their lives, but many long-time teachers in the Worthington school system joined them. Retirees included Jeanette Hauser,Todd Kuyper, Jerry Haas, Louise McDonald, J.R. Mansfield, Joyce Whitaker, Stan Robinette, Don Andrews, Don Hyatt, and 1994 Worthington Kilbourne High School Hall of Fame inductee, chemistry teacher Nick Hainen, who retired after 31 years of service to the Worthington school system.

By Amy Calhoon

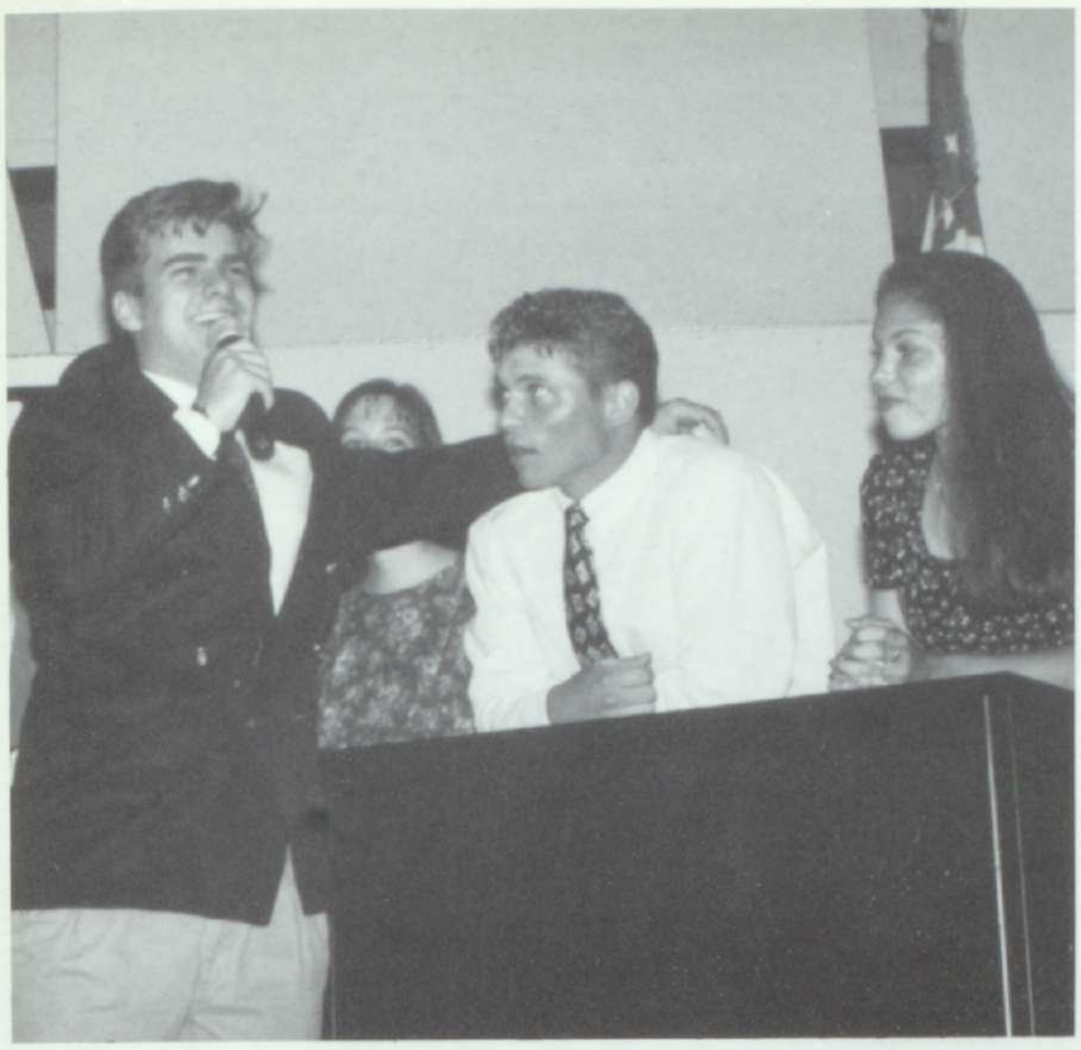

Coach Gafford honors all-star kicker Craig Nye by presenting him with his diploma during the commencement ceremony.

With smiles on their faces and graduation caps on their heads, these two seniors Kim Grunewald and Michelle Hill couldn't get much happier.

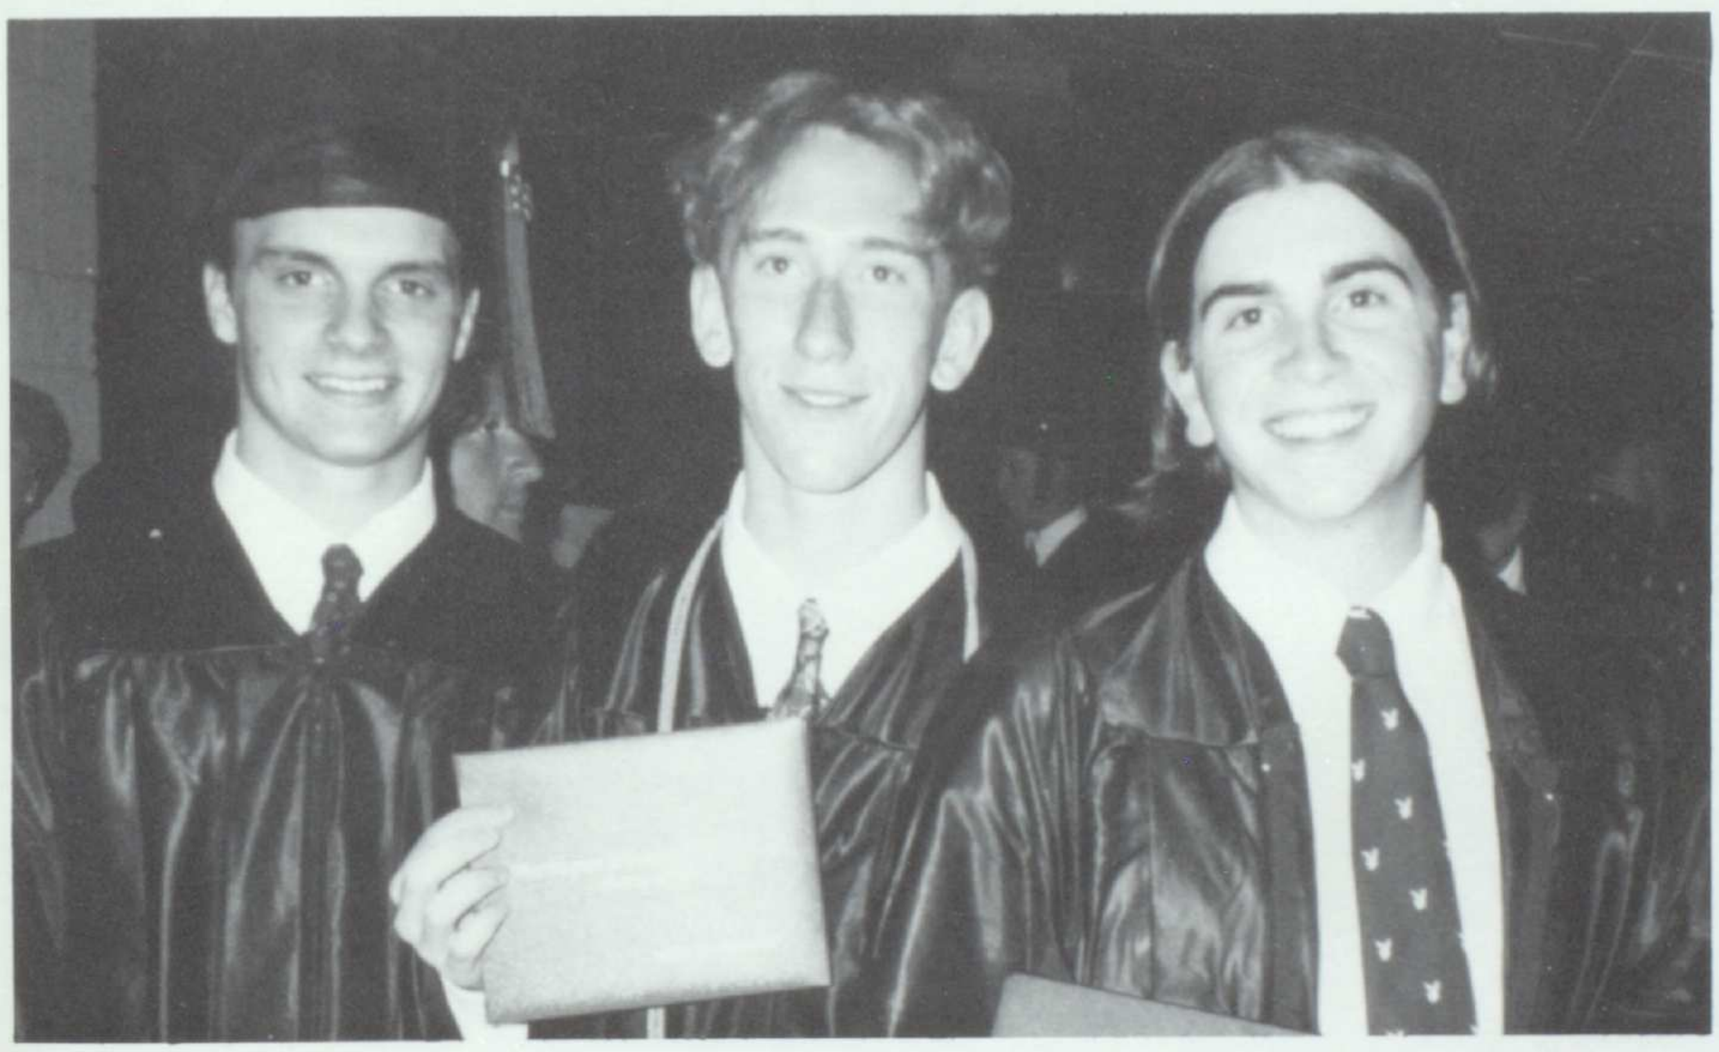

Excited to see an old friend on graduation day is Meagan McHugh with ex-Kilbourne student Emily Zinger. Emily came back to see her former classmates graduate.

"Sorry Johnny, but the number one answer to WHAT CLASS WOULD YOU MOST LIKE TO SEE AT WKHS NEXT YEAR is not Baseball Training and Conditioning. The correct answer is School Board Money Management," says Jeff Burianek to fellow valedictorians Johnny Wieland and Heather Bell during the Honors skit.

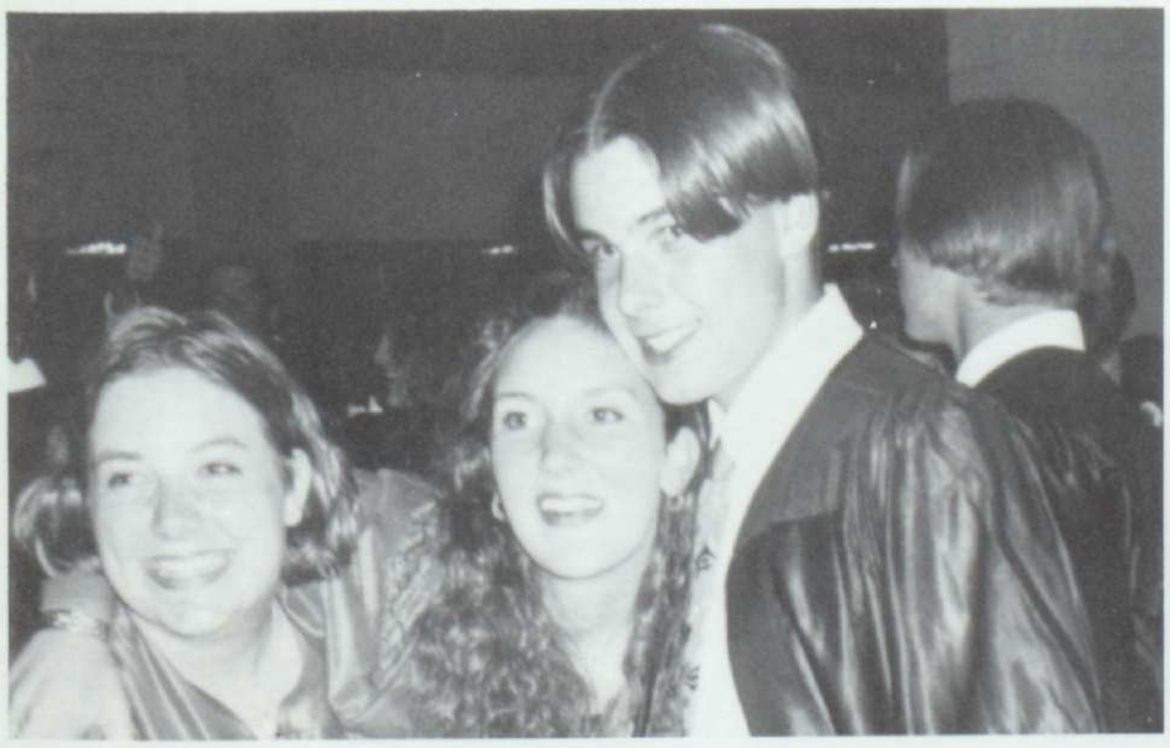

Mrs. Graves helps senior Tom Wolf down the stairs after handing him his diploma.

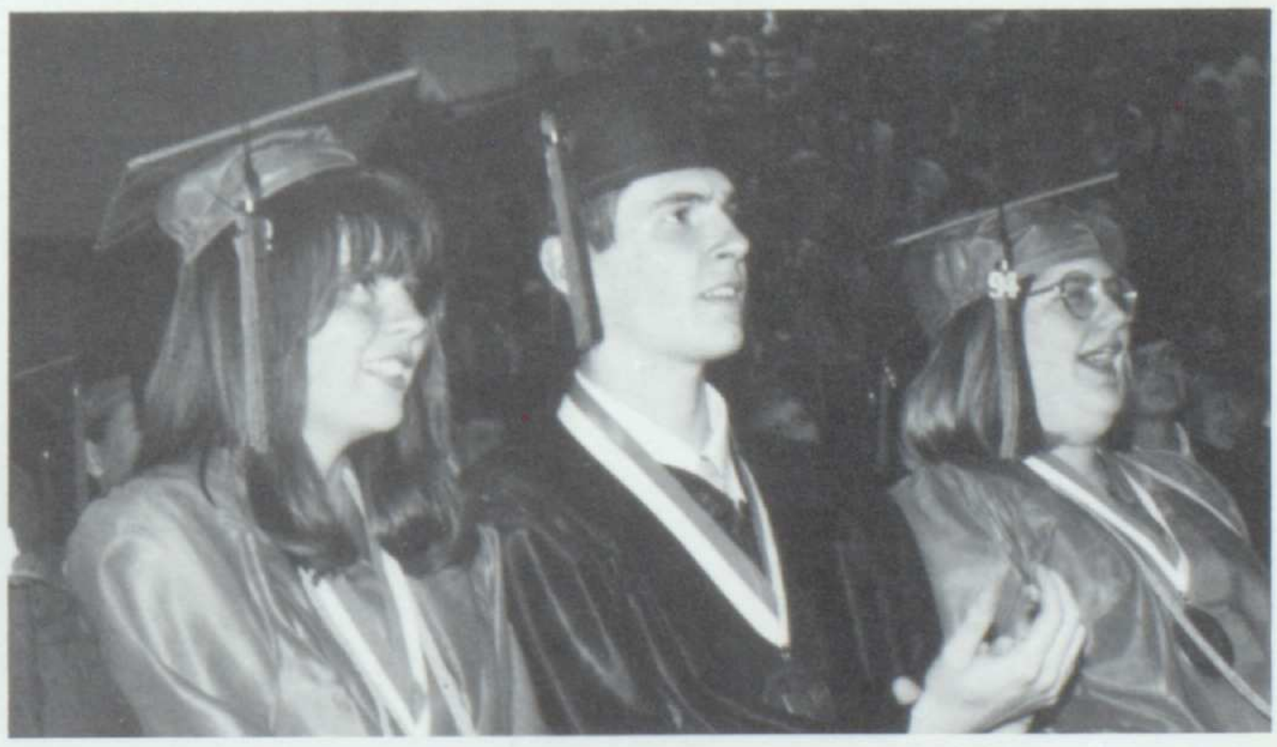

Proud to be a graduate, Matt Hermann grins as he thinks of all of the freedom he will have after leaving high school.

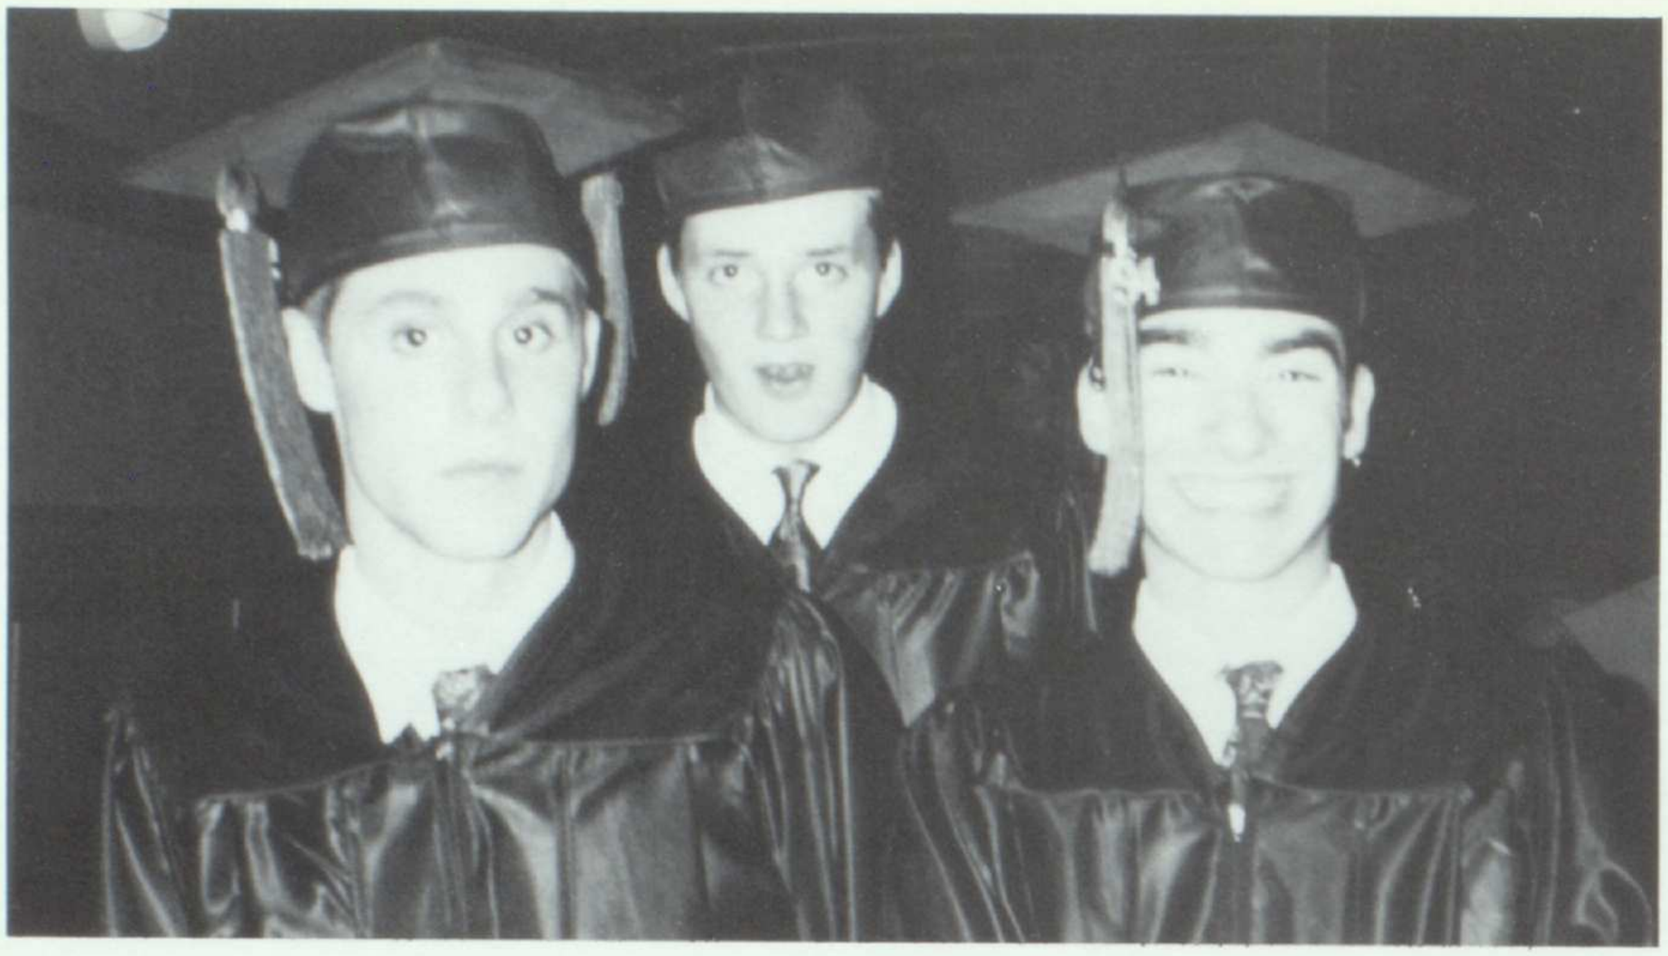

Showing off their diplomas are "Great Pumpkins" Chad Puckett, Andy Blackburn, and Jon Wiley.

Together after the commencement ceremony are long-time friends Carol Musick, Hollie Prunty, and Matt McNeal.

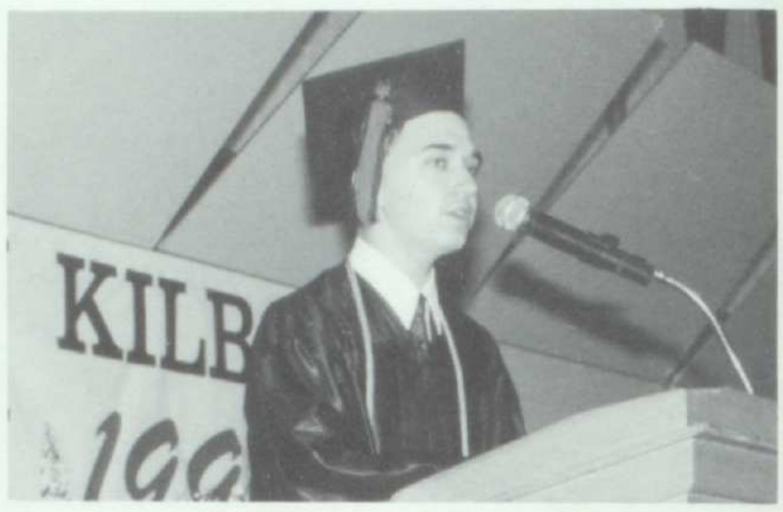

Graduates Jenny Cassidy, Dan Everett, and Megan Ayers enjoy watching the Honors skit as they anxiously await their diplomas.

These three studly men, Derek Wright, Bill Weidner, and Ryan Yount, are happy to finally be graduating from high school.

The President of the Class of '94 Nate Tansky gives his last speech to fellow classmates.

Celebrating together, Nicki Kellner and Holly Cornett are excited to get on with their lives.

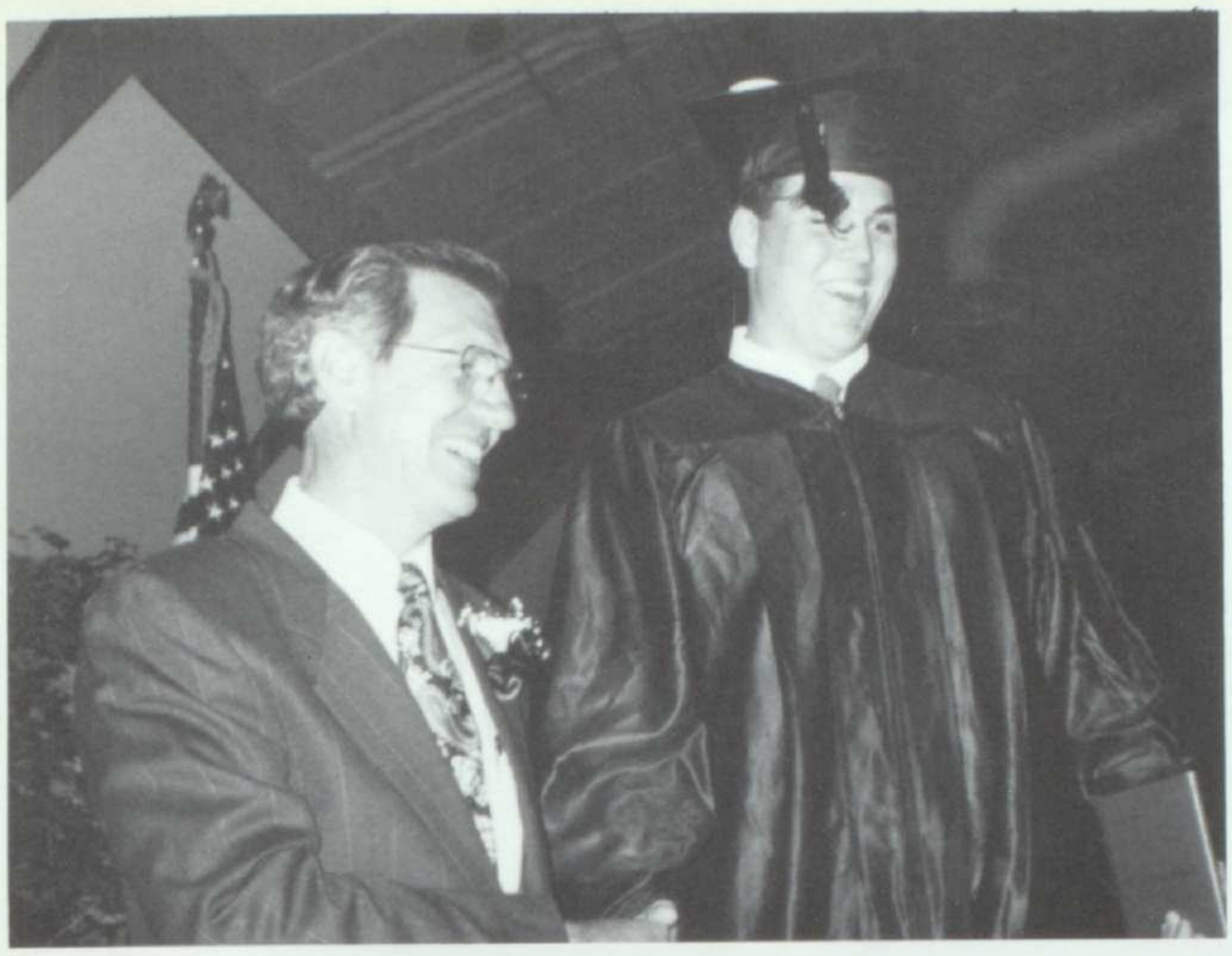

"Look at me. I'm done with high school!" exclaims Lindsay Veil after she recieves her diploma.

Remembering the funny events that occurred in the library are valedictorians, Mike Hendershot, Suzanne Provanzana, and Maha Elnasser, in their skit based on the game show The Family Feud.

As Mr. Kuyper smiles about the future plans for Eric Niceswanger, Eric smiles to his buddies about his plans for later that night.

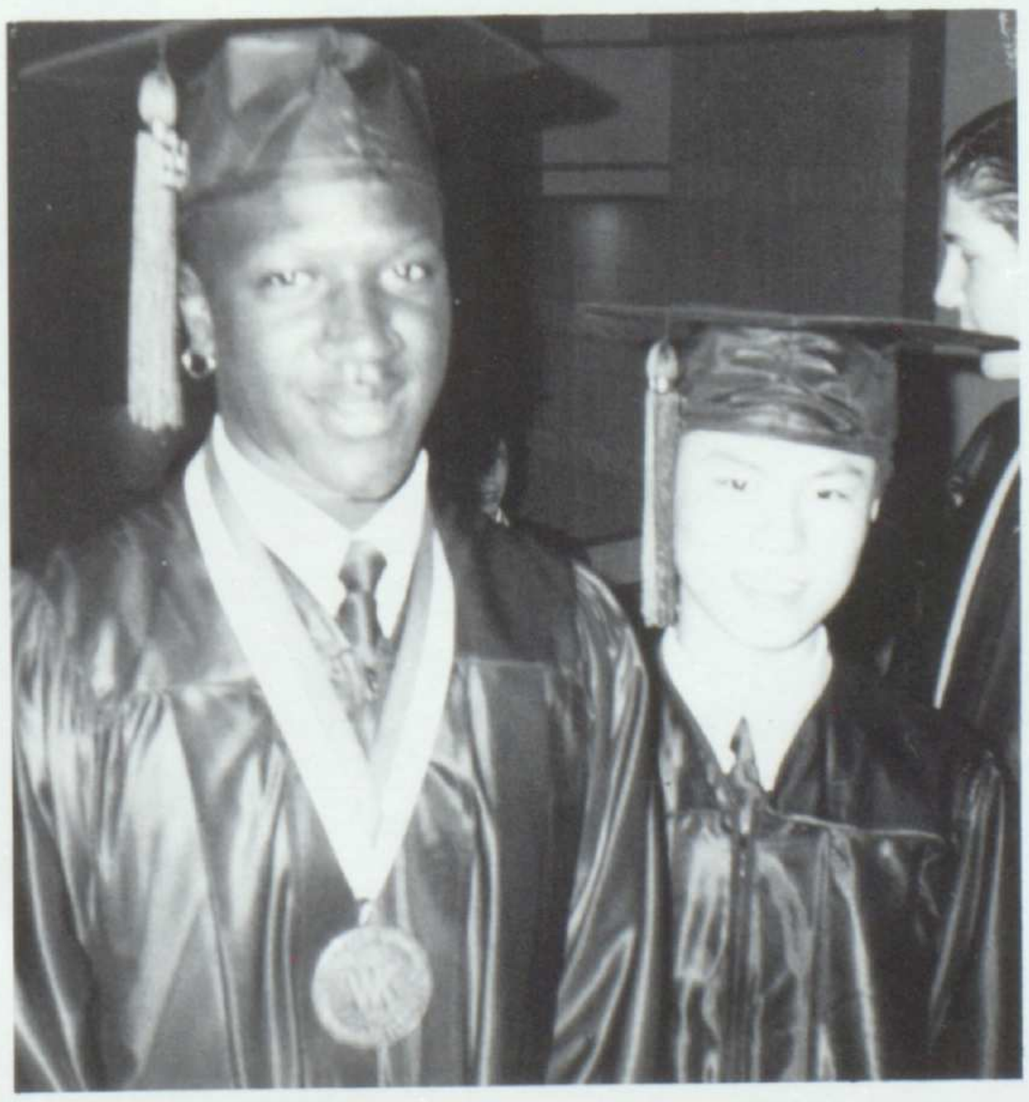

Sounding as beautiful as usual, the choir sings to the graduating class.

Obviously excited, Lucas Pellegrini is smiling ear to ear because he knows the importance of graduating.

Eager for their diplomas, Brian Mccabe, Kat Schwed, Kari Gibbs, and Heather Roberts are waiting nervously to hear their names called.

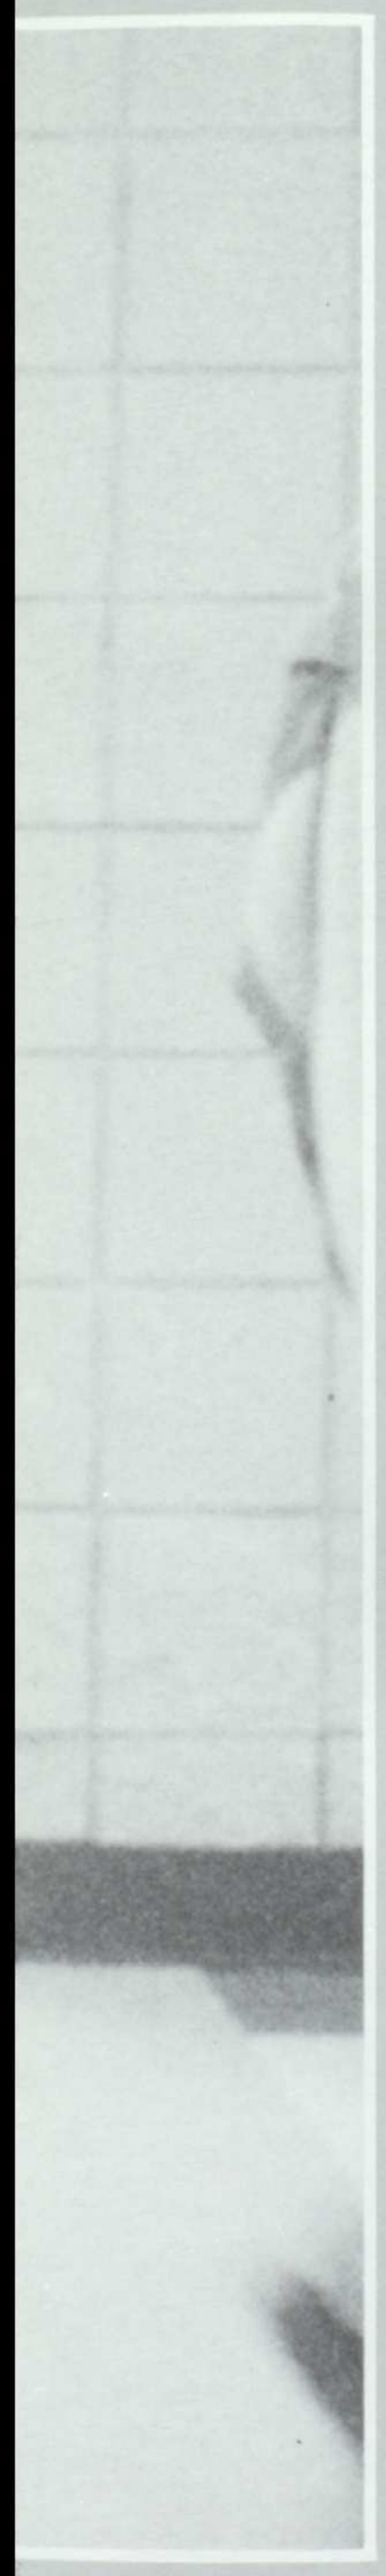

"We're out of here," says Chris Strickland and Hiroyuki Ogawa as they head to the graduation party.

Freshmen Memories...

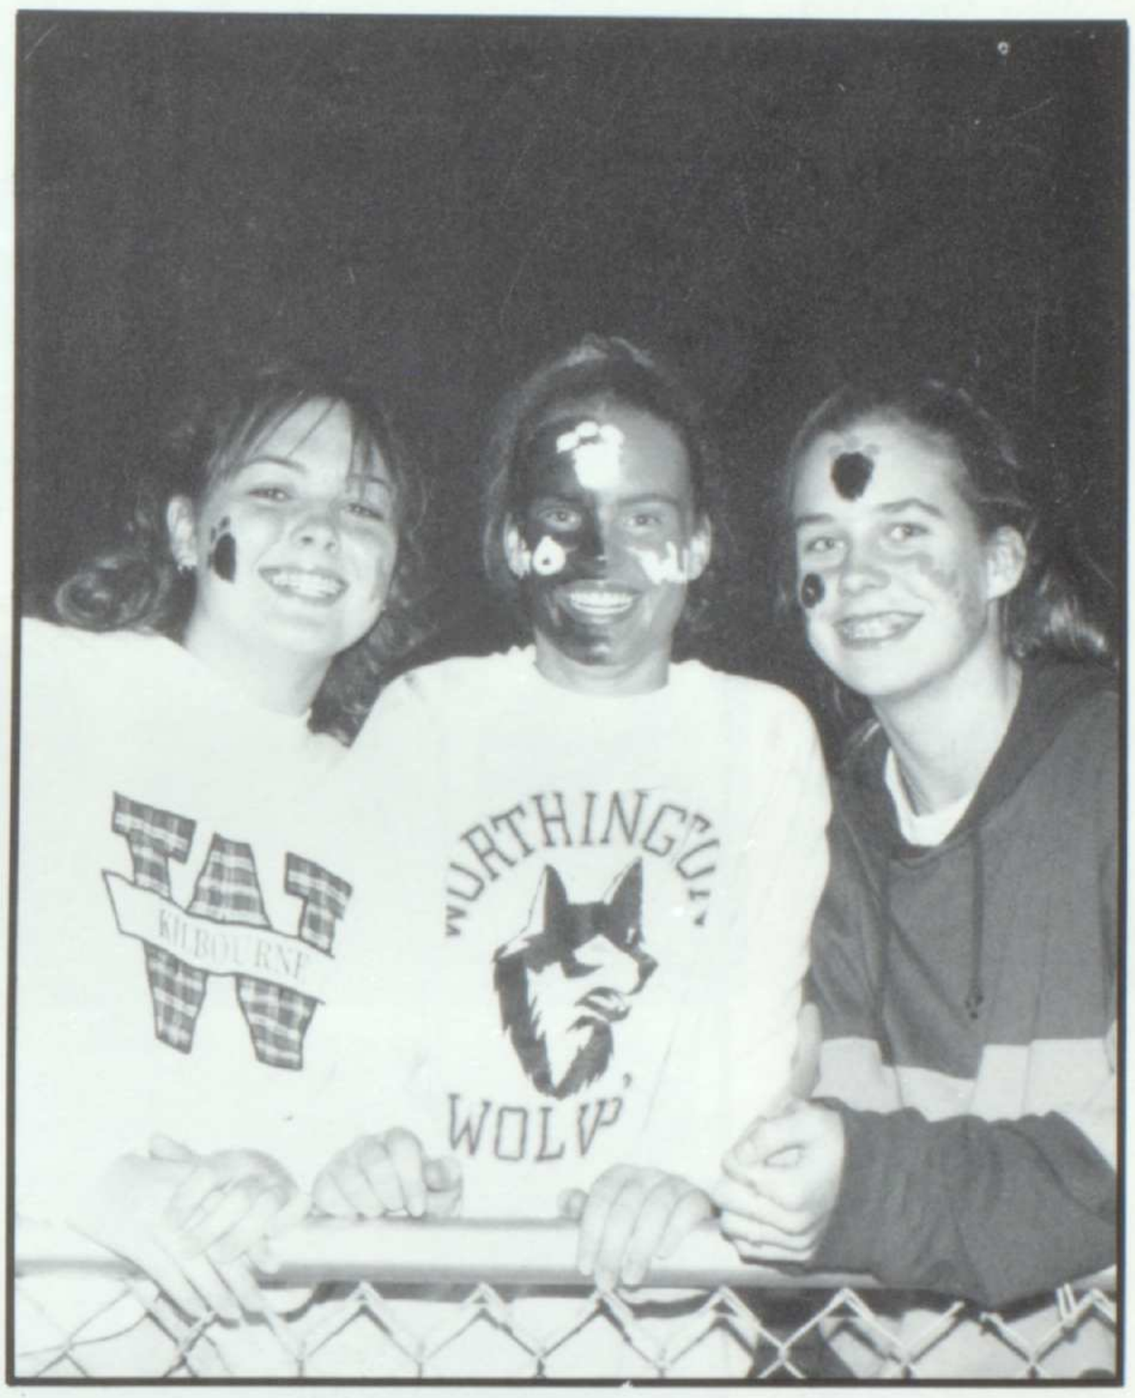

The first day of high school can be very exciting and frightening. Ninth grade students probably have a million thoughts running through their heads and butterflies fluttering around their stomachs. Not one would deny being at least a little bit nervous on that Tuesday, August 31, but somehow everyone survived. Actually the freshmen became old pros about the whole high school deal rather quickly.

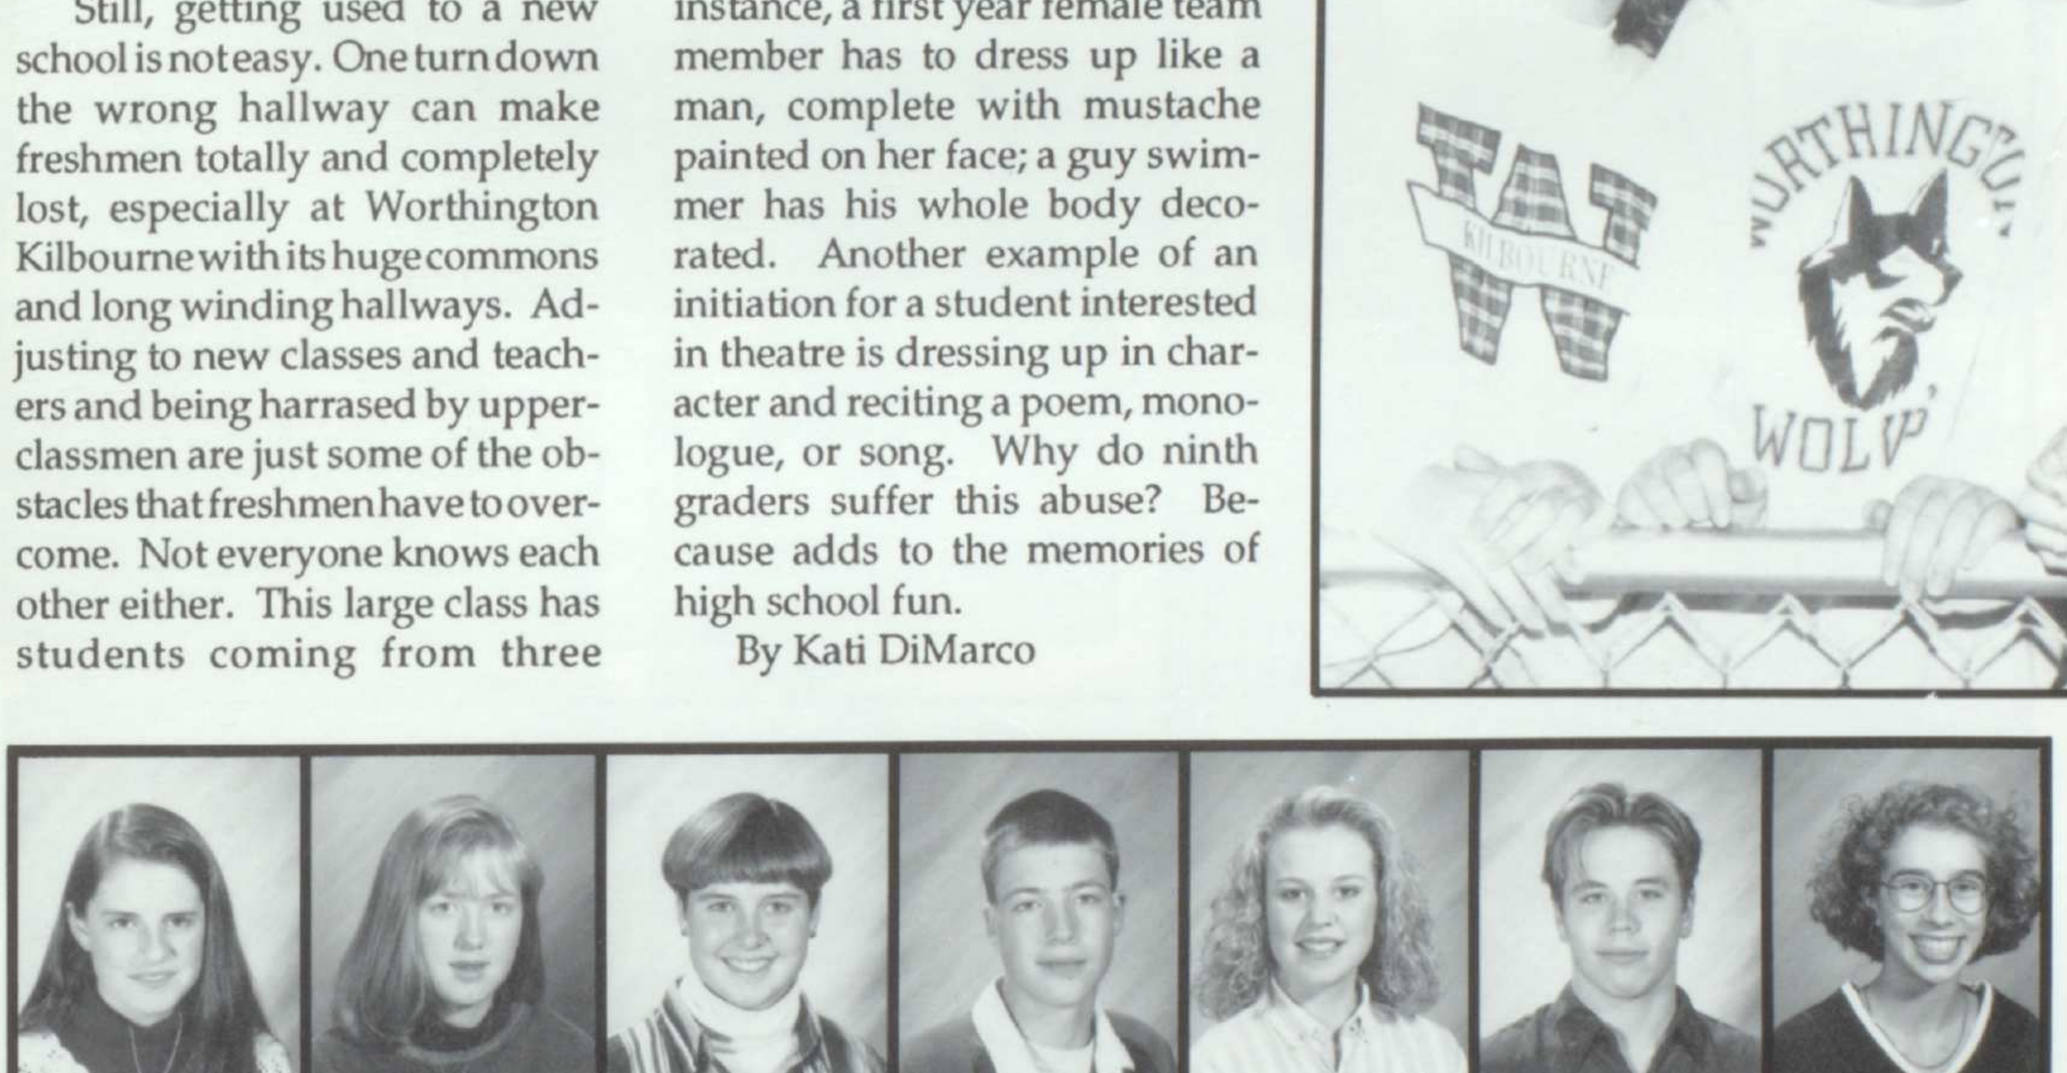

Still, getting used to a new school is not easy. One turn down the wrong hallway can make freshmen totally and completely lost, especially at Worthington Kilbourne with its huge commons and long winding hallways. Adjusting to new classes and teachers and being harrased by upperclassmen are just some of the obstacles that freshmen have to overcome. Not everyone knows each other either. This large class has students coming from three middle schools which separates friends who find themselves amidst other freshmen whom they do not know.

Many freshmen have become involved in different activities in order to meet new people and fit in. Cheerleading, basketball, field hockey, choir, band are just a few of the choices. To be a part of some of these groups, members occasionaly have to participate in an initiation. In swimming, for instance, a first year female team member has to dress up like a man, complete with mustache painted on her face; a guy swimmer has his whole body decorated. Another example of an initiation for a student interested in theatre is dressing up in character and reciting a poem, monologue, or song. Why do ninth graders suffer this abuse? Because adds to the memories of high school fun.

Wes Porter

Wes Porter. That name means a lot to a lot of people. He had friends all over... that truly shows he was independent. Wes was like a brother to all of his friends because he believed in sticking up for them. When ever somebody was bothered by something, he would try to fix it. We always felt his presence even at times when he was not around. He took a chance with life and he lost. Now, he is gone and his friends can only remember the true things about Wes.

The way that we want Wes to be remembered is being the punk or the rebel. He didn't mind if people called him that because he knew that was what he was.

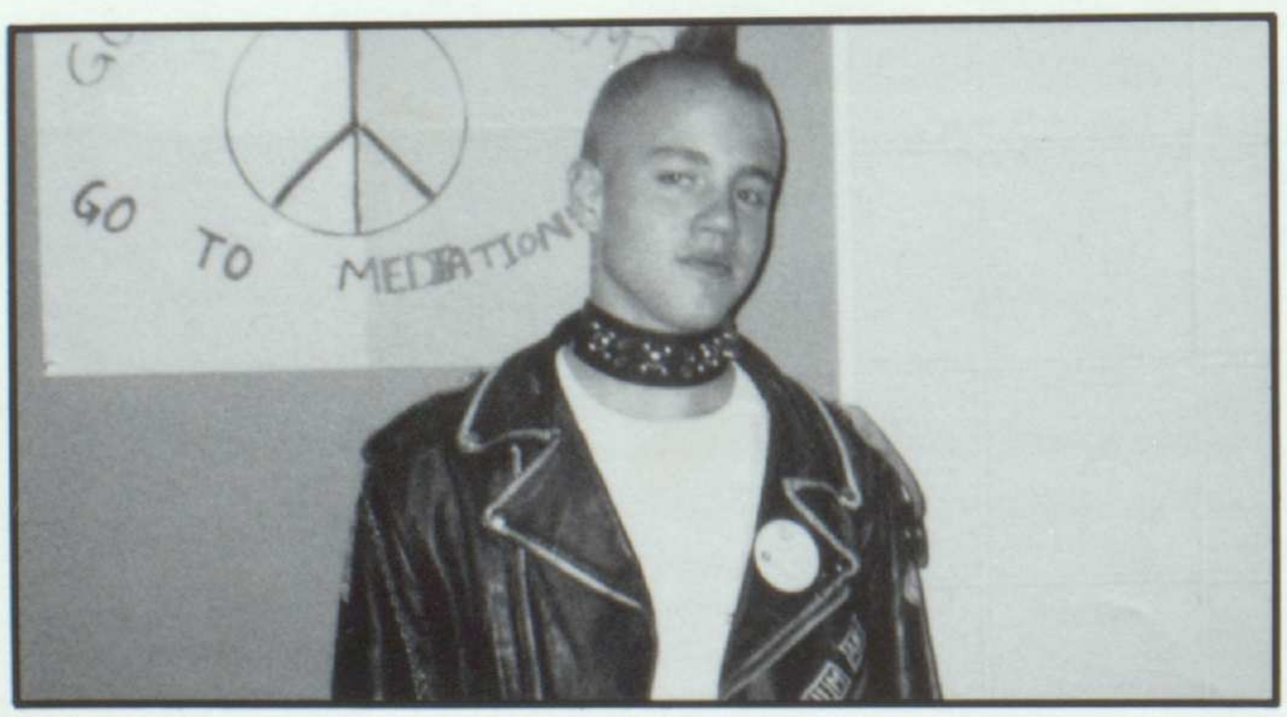

Looking back, we'll always remember the safety pin in the eyelid, the combat boots and the leather jacket. Something about Wes will always stand out in our minds and we will always remember him. This story is from the hearts of Wes' true friends.

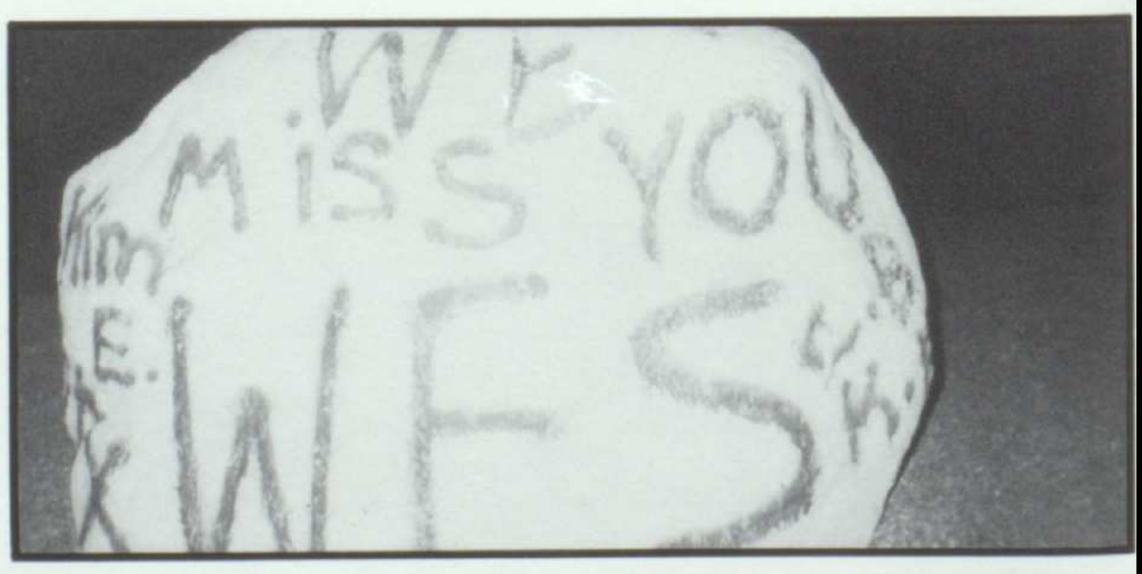

Wes, you will never be forgotten and that's the truth.

Sincerely,
Wes' Friends

A lot of his classmates may not have known him, but Wes' look was distinctive. Obviously, he would be noticed and stand out in a crowd.

Wes' friends painted the rock and a sheet in remembrance of him.

All Katie Carter ever wanted was to be an artist, and here she is fufilling her dream.

This is Joe Hong. Need I say more?

These girls definitely have something to smile about! Jennifer Gilbert, Angela Taylor, Jessica Bair, Lindsay Lancaster and Candace Lentz are all grins because they are glad that the school day is over.

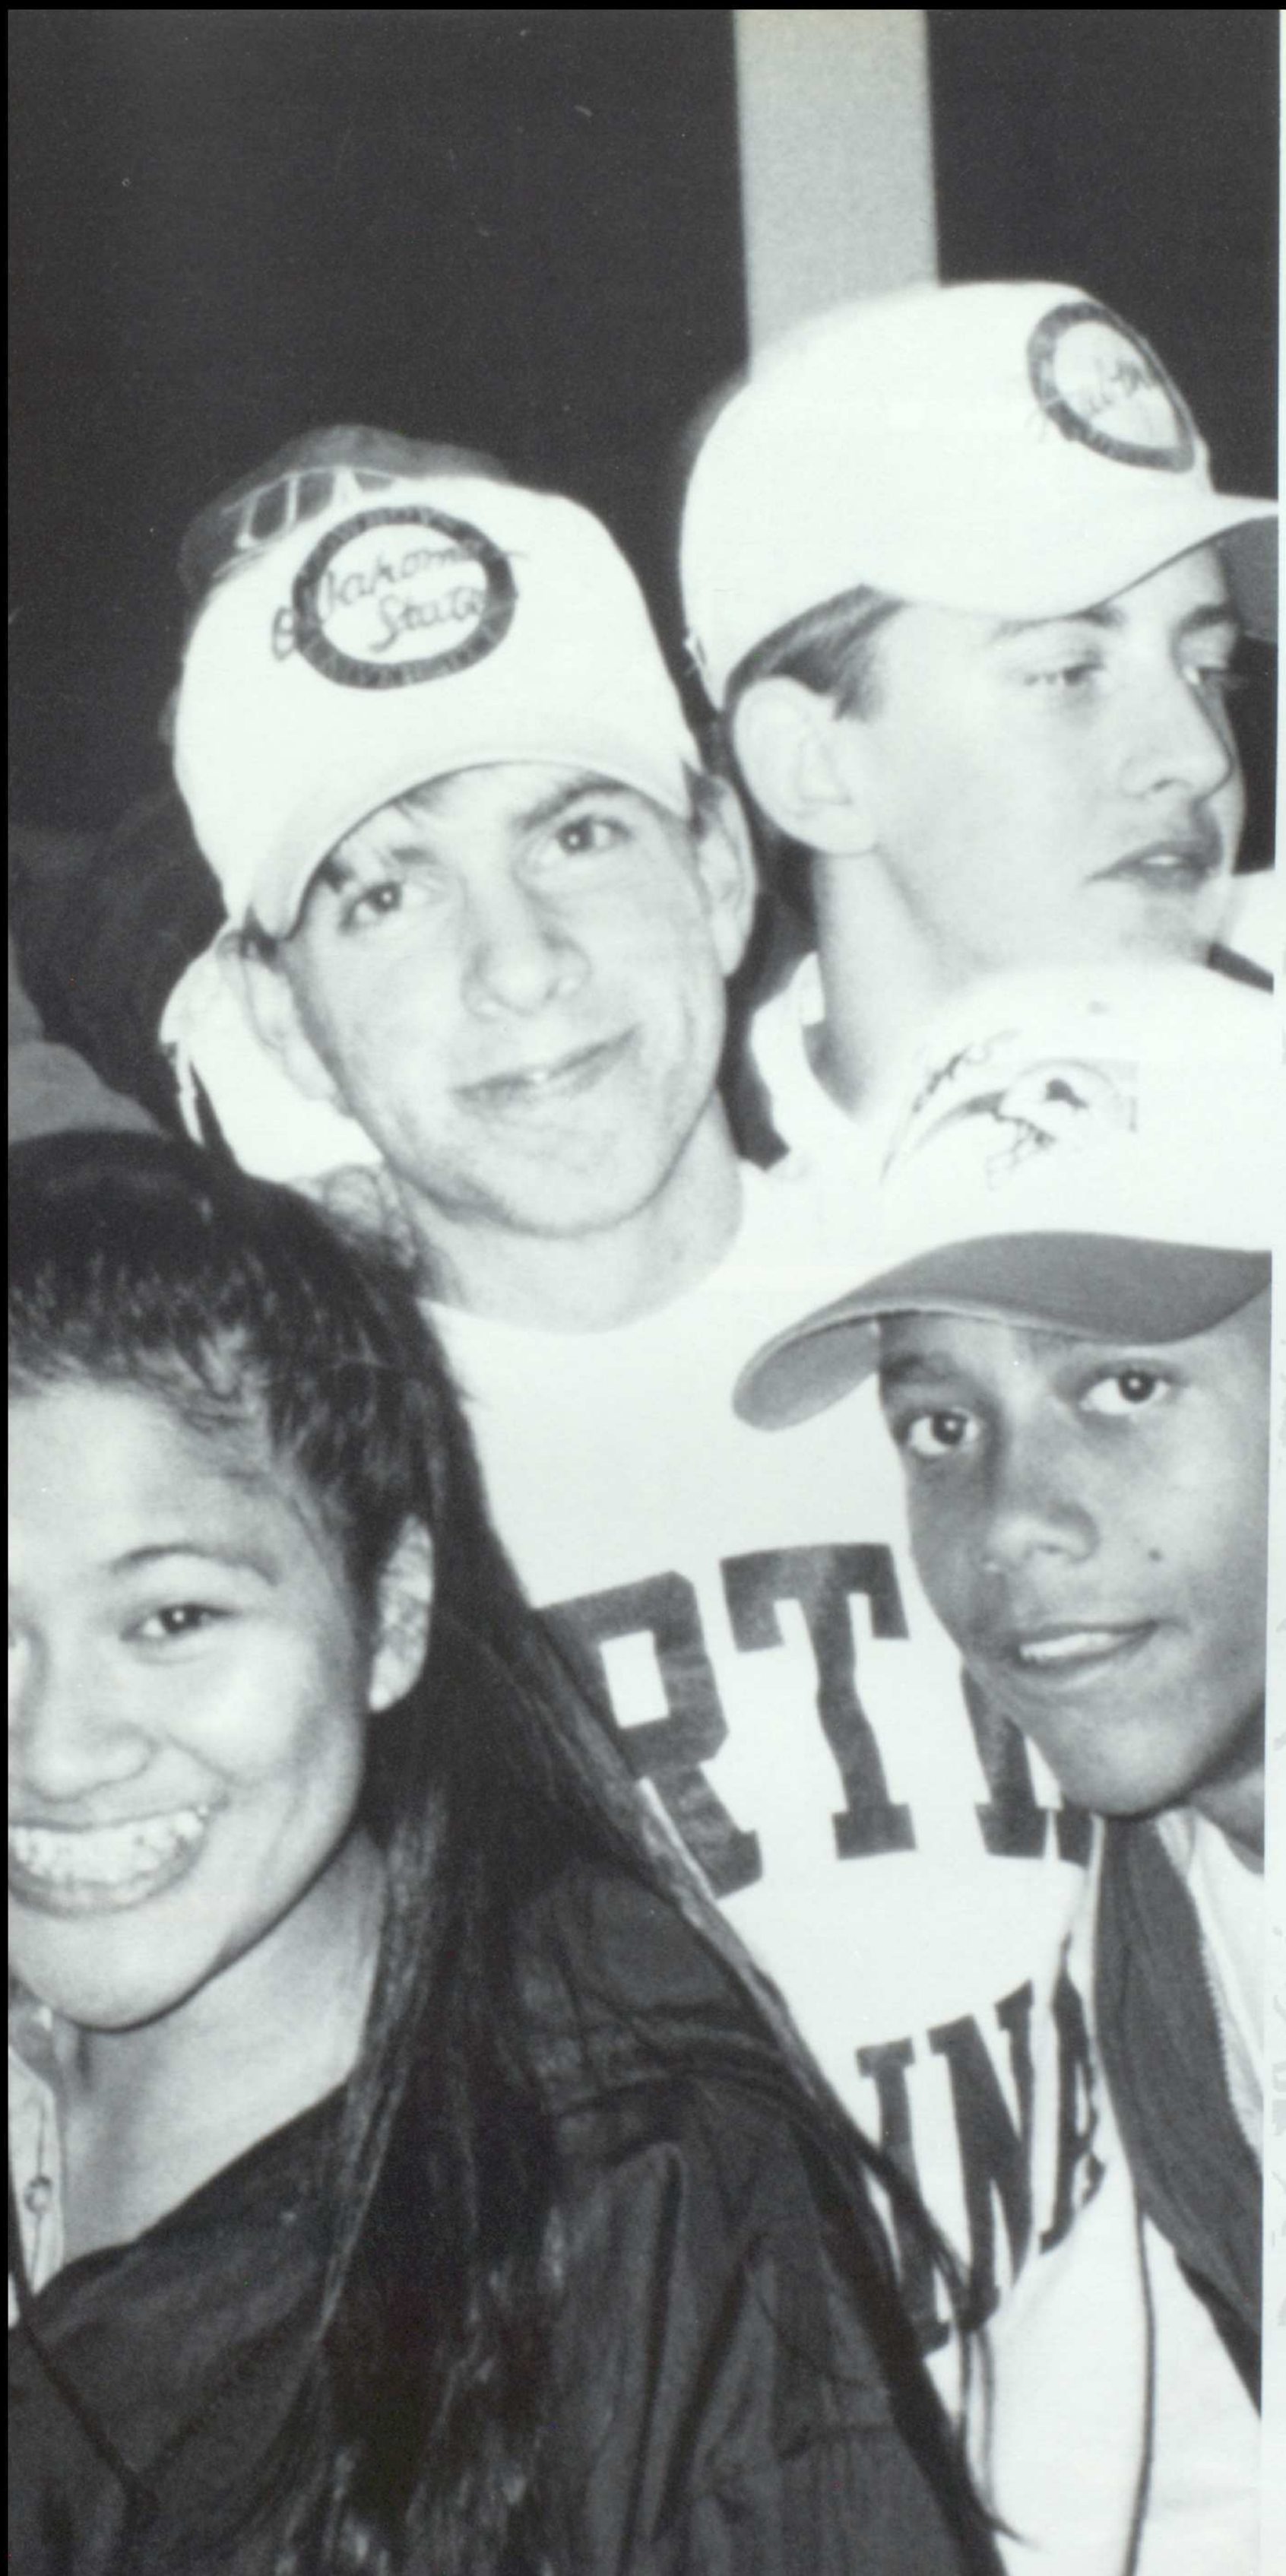

As Karrie Donahue and Angela Fracasso give bold smiles, they think, "Which guys are we going to get tonight?"

Too afraid to show his spirit, Shaun Rodgers leaves as Andy Clager, Tim Kern, Nathan Filia, April Tang, Erin Daugherty, and Holly Bell wait for the bonfire.

"So many guys, so little time!" What is Cindy Panaligan going to do with Kimar Morris, Andy Clager, Dan Brooks, Chad Sprecher, Shawn Mc Quone, and Conrad Cosey.

A Leader in the Pack

As I look at the class of '96, I am amazed by what I see. Our class contains many talented people. Among them, there is Greg Gabel, a gymnast who has achieved many goals. Greg who has competed for five years has been to nationals four years. In our seventh grade year, he travelled to California for nationals and received twenty third. Greg really enjoys traveling around the United States and meeting new people wherever he goes.

His best memory ishis trip to Colorado to see the Olympic Training Center. As the years have passed, Greg has won many awards including highest all-round,in the state of Ohio, as well as many other medals.

To achieve this level of success, Greg has to put in many hours at the gym. Usually he goes to the gym five or six days a week, three hours a day. His best event, he would have to say, is the high bars.

His goal in high school is to earn a scholarship. He already has Navy and Michigan State knocking on his door. Although a scholarship is his immediate pursuit, Greg's main goal is to be in the Olympics. With all of the talent and power that you possess, Greg, there is no doubt that you're going to get far. I wish the best of luck to you, Little Man.

NEARING AN END

Standing in the hot sunshine in a long line outside this huge new school while gazing at the new faces and rows of tables set up for processing student I.D.'s, schedules, etc., we freshmen in the class of '95, the first students to complete all four years at Worthington Kilbourne, began our legacy. We weren't allowed into the school until orientation when we all caught our first glimpse of this high-tech building we had heard so much about. Mr. Porta spoke about how our class would set the standard for the rest of the school. Well, next year is finally our senior year - the class of '95 is graduating.

Over these years, our class has developed its own personality. Junior Justin Bach noted, "Everyone is nice and friendly. We're probably the closest class in the school." This attitude shined brightly when we received this year's award for "most spirited class" during spirit week, beating out the 1994 seniors. We have really joined together.

These previous three years have passed quickly, but our senior year will fly by even faster. We'll enjoy it while it lasts and always be able to look back and remember the good times and great friends after we head our separate ways. We'll go out in style.

As I look out among all of these familiar faces, I wonder what the future holds. Which of these friends will contribute something great to our world? Is one a future president? Will someone find a cure for cancer? Is a rock star among us? I expect great things from these talented people...who knows what the future holds?

In Memory of Mike "Odie" Linnabary

Gone?

You are gone, yet I see you-

You pass by me in the halls
and say my name.

Out of the corner of my eye, I see you smile, and laugh, and I can hear you, just as before.

I remember,
I remember the way you used to wear your hat, and the toothpick that was clenched between your teeth.

Sometimes you are all I see,
Lying there motionless

with cold fingers and hands of stone.

Those hands wake me in the middle of the night,
only to be shattered by the scene of your lifeless body, while we walk around in a daze, clueless to the world around us.

Broken hearts haven't healed.
Tears are still shed-every day:

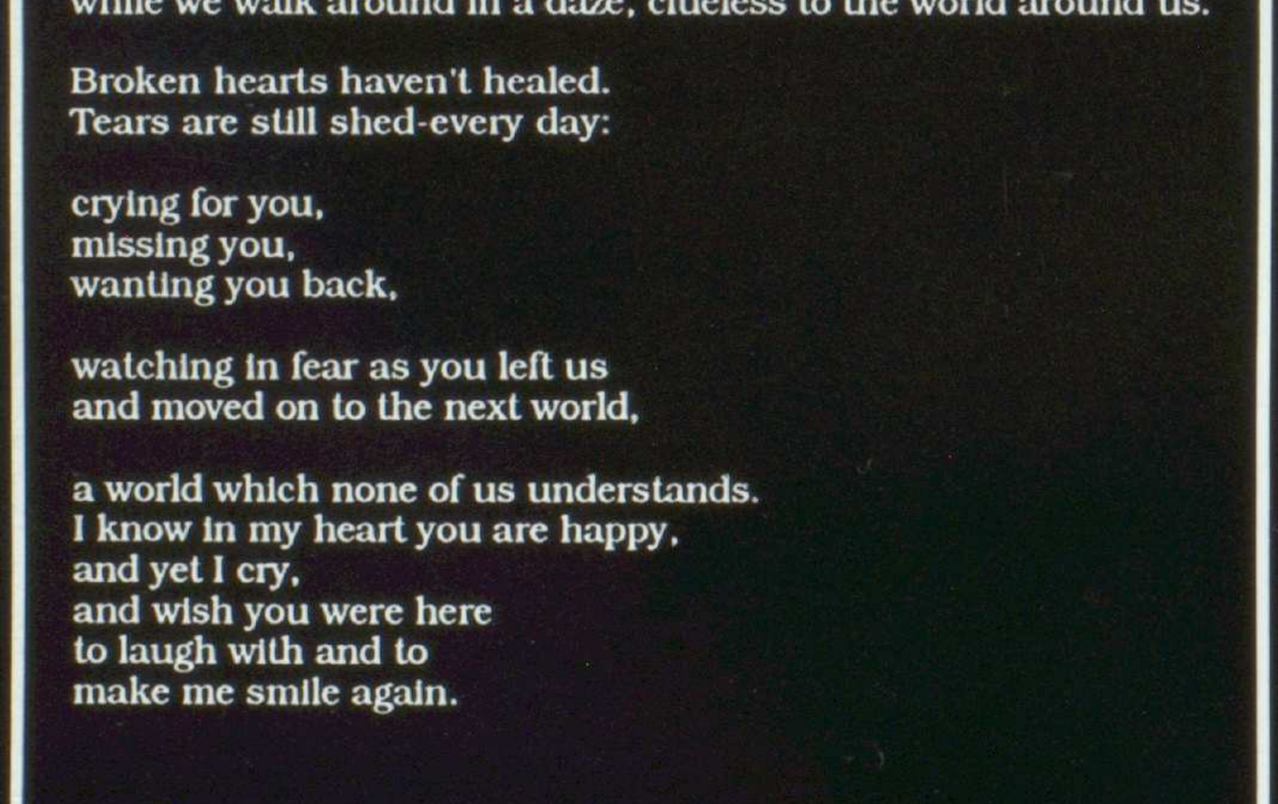

crying for you,
missing you,
wanting you back,

watching in fear as you left us and moved on to the next world, a world which none of us understands.

I know in my heart you are happy,
and yet I cry,
and wish you were here
to laugh with and to make me smile again.

Sandy Holmberg

Everyone will remember Odie as just one of the boys. Odie was just Odie, nobody can really explain him. "Odie was a great guy. He wasn't like everyone else. He was very complex, yet very sensitive," said Brian Biggert.

Odie's passions were fishing, drawing, and lacrosse. He was the leader of the junior group the "Fishhooks," always wearing about his green, bent-rimmed John Deer hat with a fish hook in the brim. He was an outdoorsman. He acquired one of his favorite hobbies, fishing, from his cousin in North Carolina. He also enjoyed art. He was always doodling little things everywhere. Lacrosse was Odie's favorite sport. "He had many dreams and goals and tried to accomplish them. He always stuck with it," explained Jared Miller, who played lacrosse with Odie for two years. The lacrosse team has a black strip displayed on their helmet in his memory.

Even though lacrosse was his favorite sport, he enjoyed baseball too, as both a player and a spectator. As a kid he played little league baseball . His favorite professional team was the St. Louis Cardinals. He had a huge collection of twenty to thirty baseball hats.

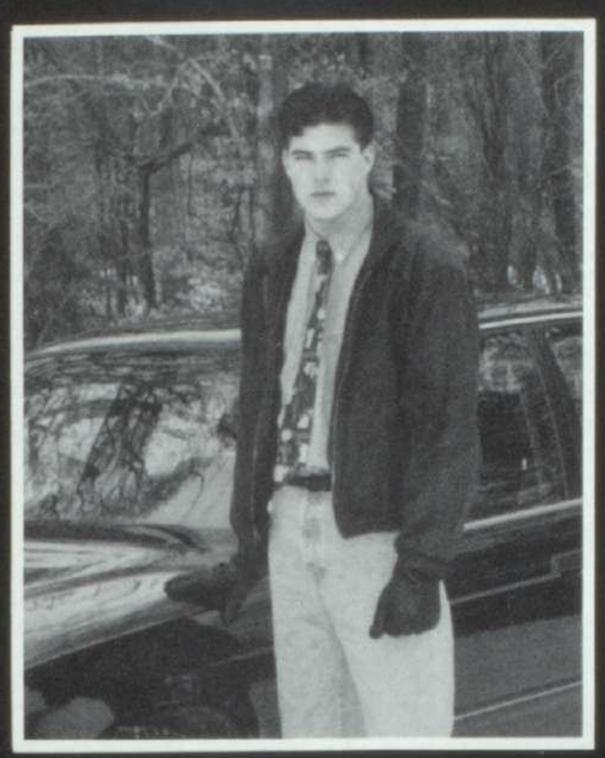

Mike worked at the zoo, and loved the baby goats. He said he wanted to be a zoologist and his job was the first step in his dream. His application to Wooster College, focused on his plan to major in agriculture.

Odie was an original person. I loved everything about him. He accepted everyone for who he was not by how he looked. He always got to know you before he decided whether or not to like you. He cared about everyone else before himself. He was also a very open minded person. "Everybody liked him. He never got into anyone's way. He was a real guy," said friend Jared Miller.

Even though Odie's gone, his memories will live on. He will be greatly missed.

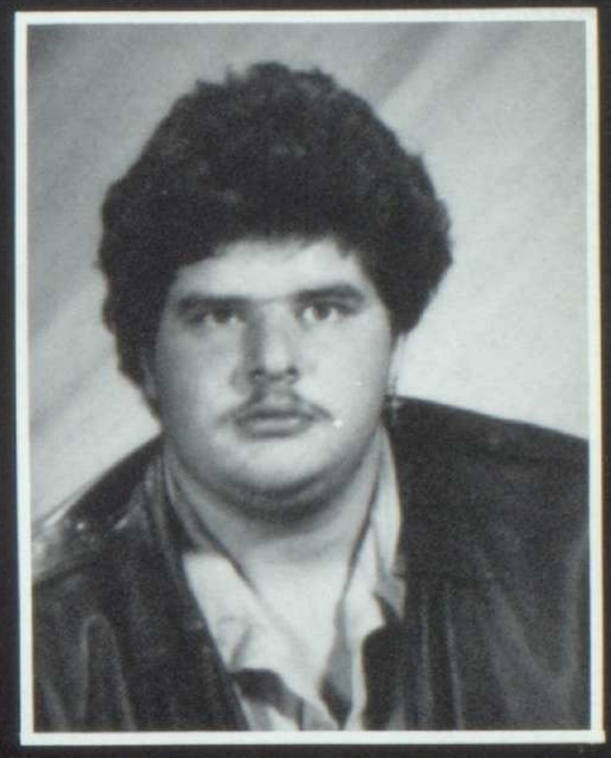

By Bethany Moore

These four students couldn't follow the rules and didn't get their senior pictures in on time, so Matt Rieser and I, Brandon Loynes, decided to make them stand out. Micheal Casey, Racheal Avon, Anita Mathur, and Gary Robinson, thanks for all the extra work, and you are welcome.

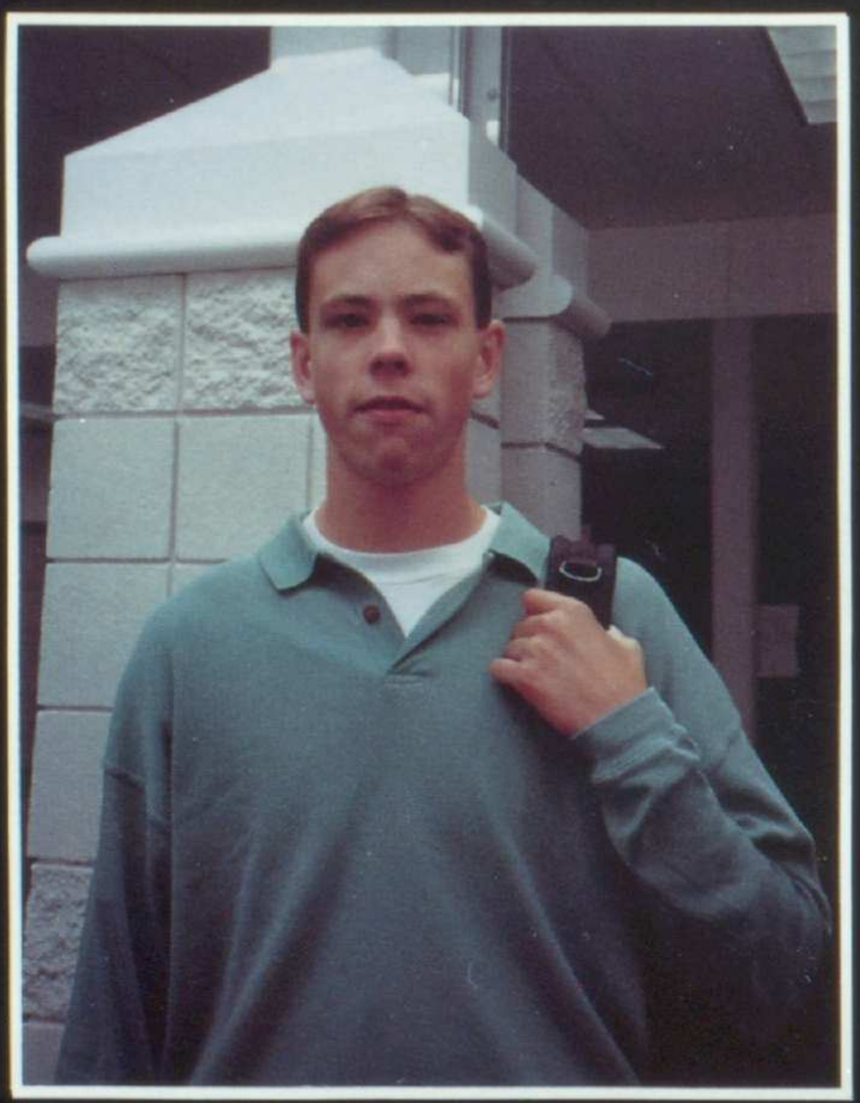

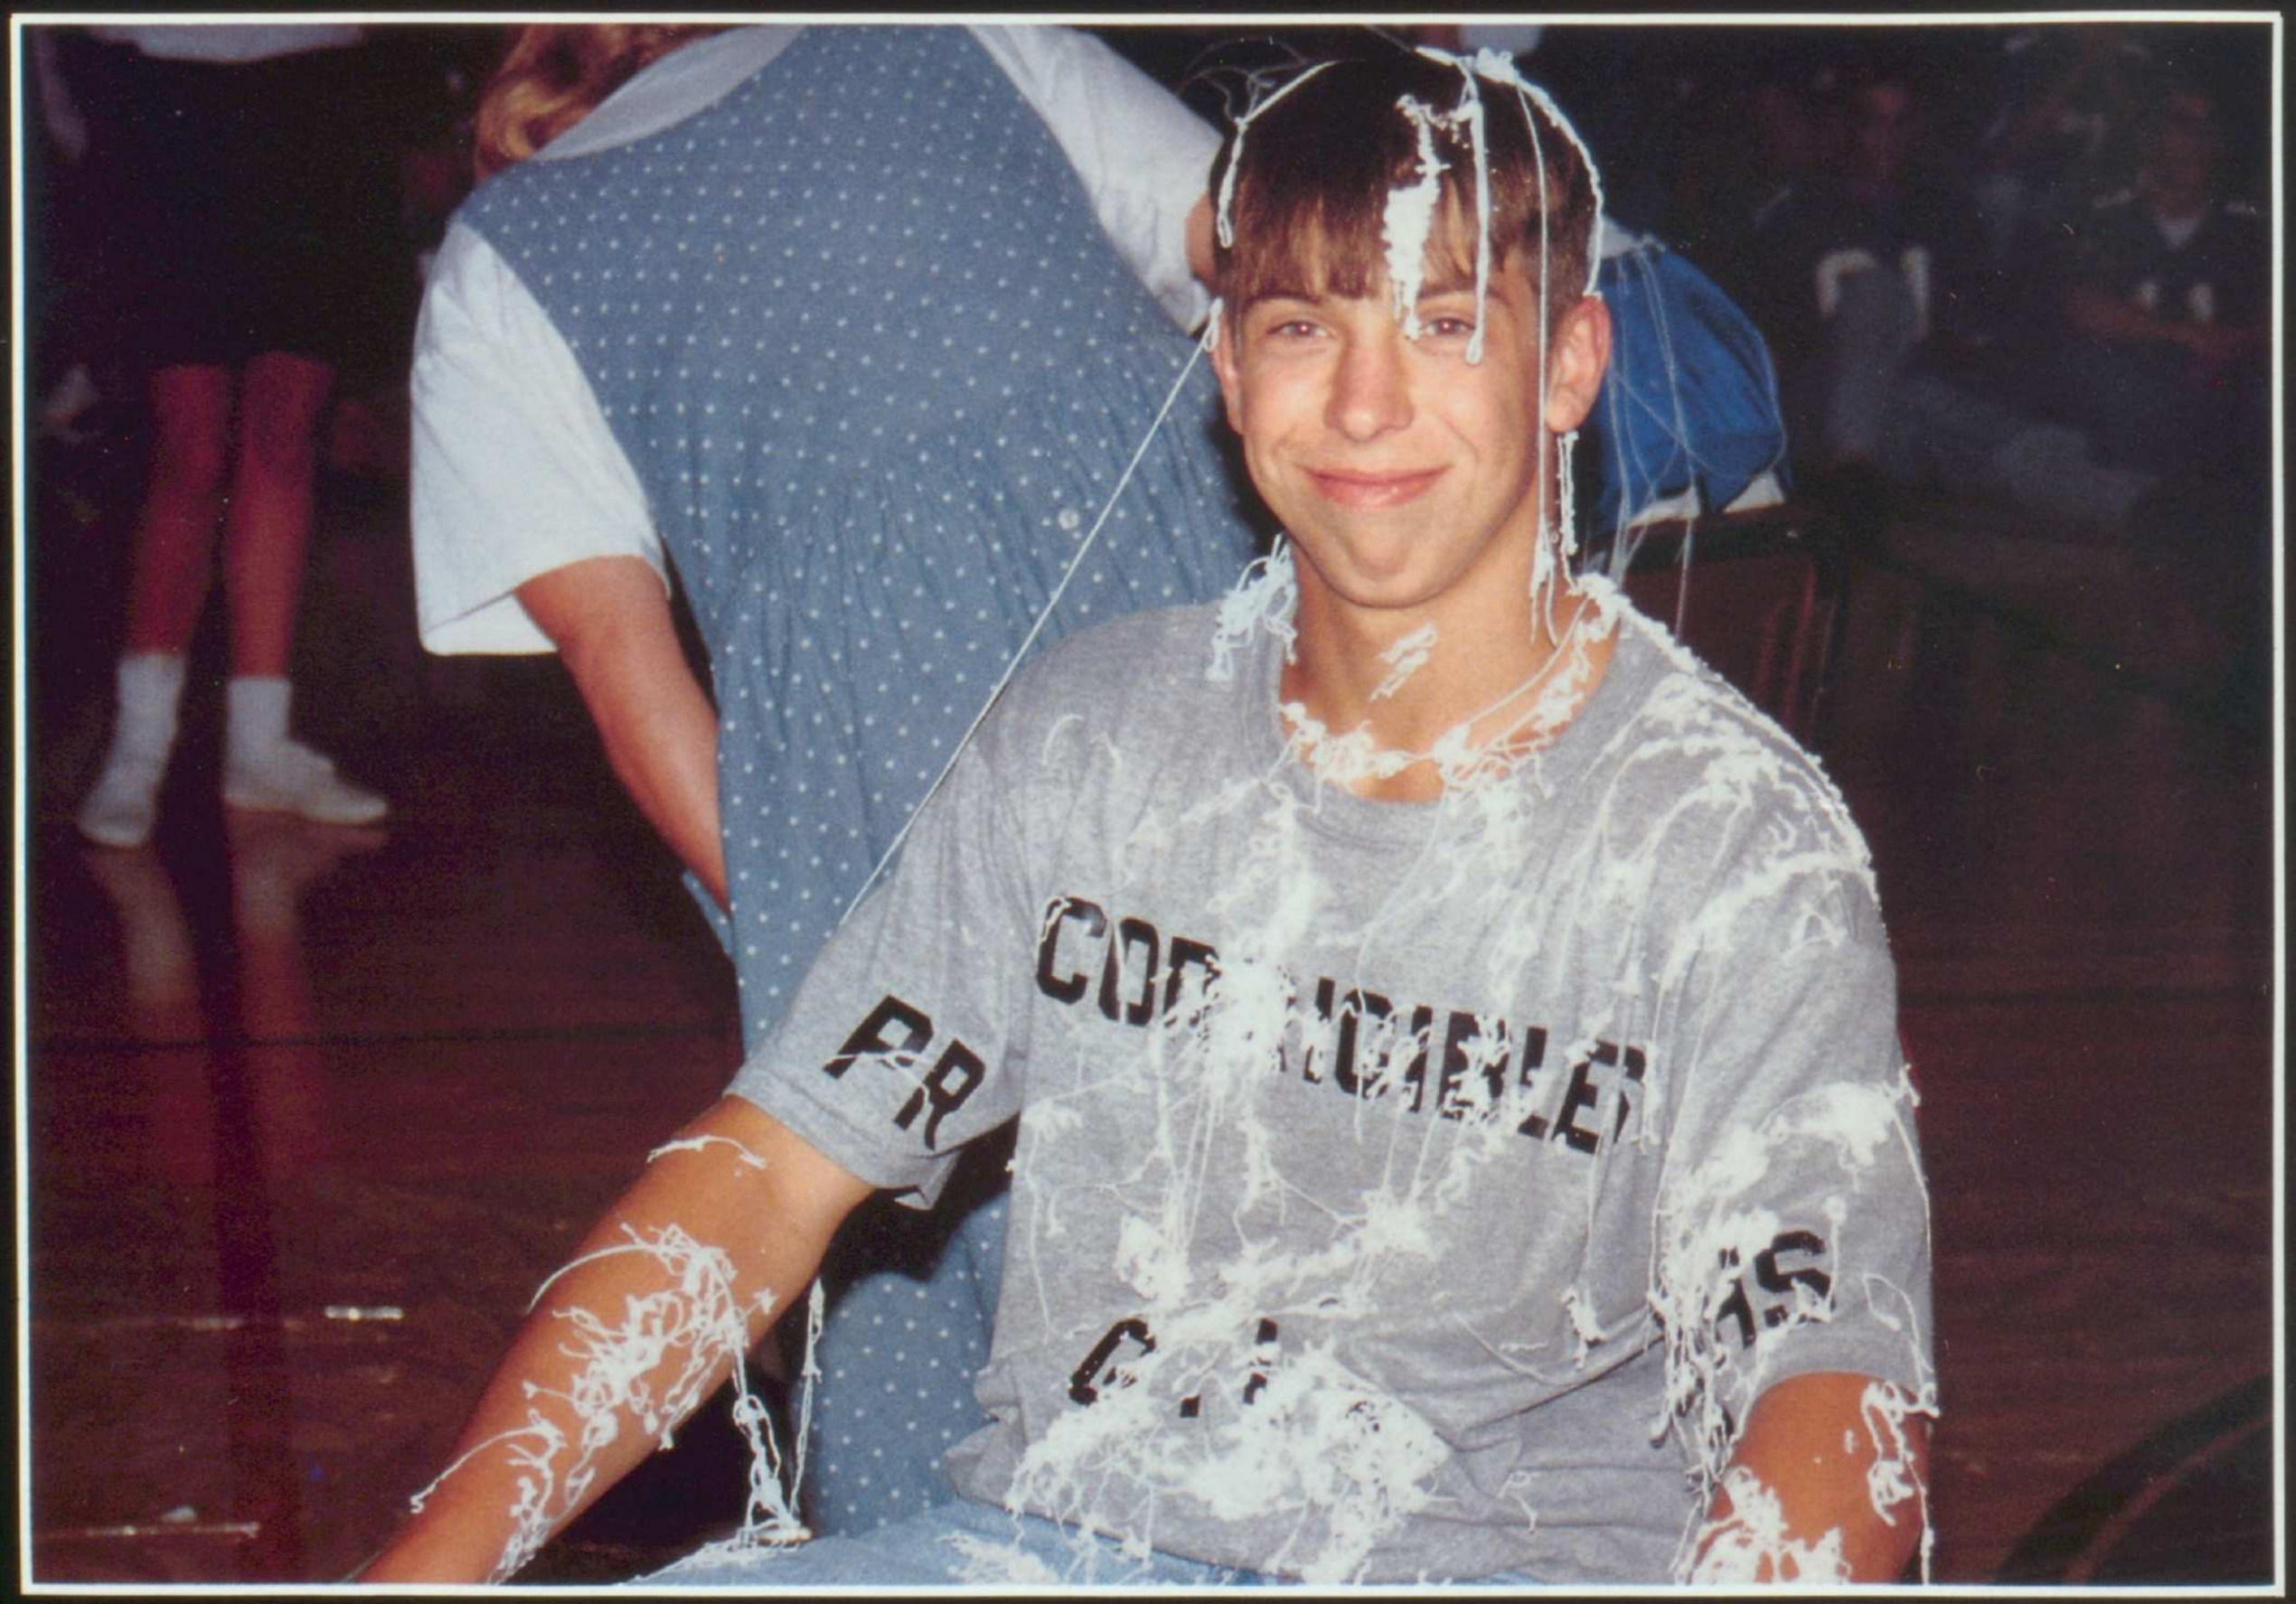

It is not often you get a smile out of Adam McCutcheon, but to have Chris Novy showing of his stuff and Duane Gresh looking like he is on the cover of GQ, you have to snap a picture.

"Often I say to myself, 'I could probably get anything with this confused look,"' explains Matt Penrod.

As you can tell, the Worthington Kilbourne pep rallies are a blast. Jared Miller , Jeremy Mosier, and Tom Kingery, the football captains, stand around and wait for Coach Gafford to finish his emotional speech, all with their hands in their pants.

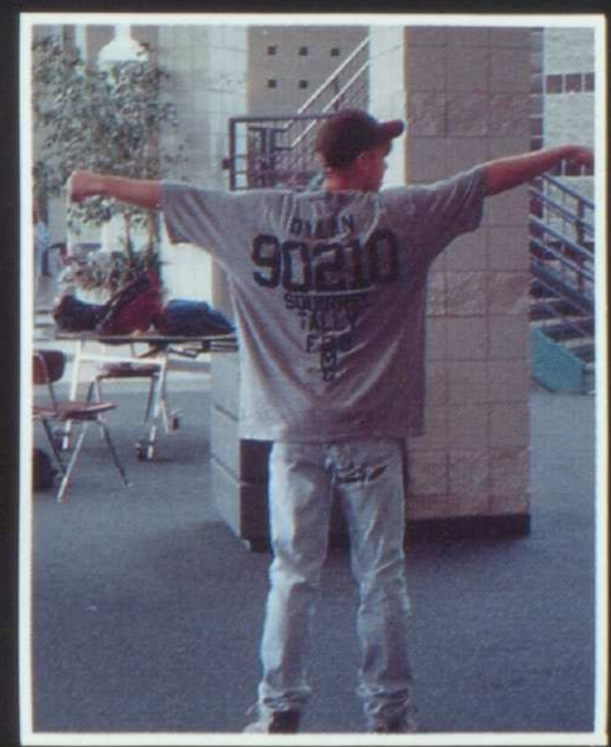

Some people would say senior Cory Kahoun has a pretty good sense of humor. Well, when we found this wonderful photo opportunity, we had to take it. The only thing the yearbook is wondering is what he has on him or who is he with.

As Courtney Fair admires Charika White's new shoes, Tim Tindall looks very confused at Brandon Beyor screaming his head off.

Ben Dusthimer takes a chance to show us his senior shirt.

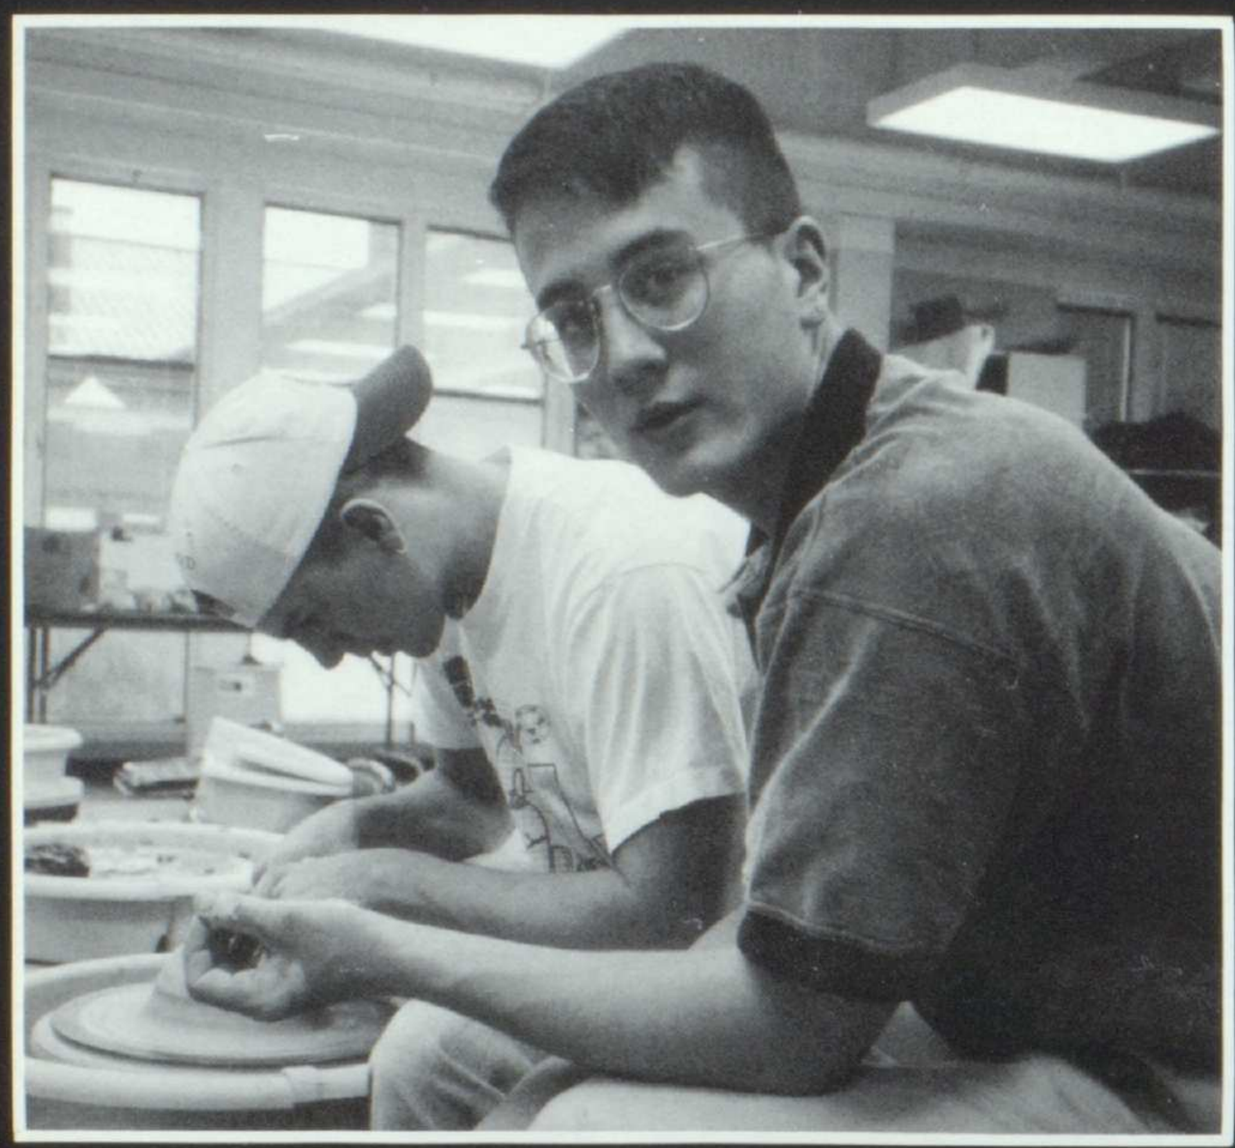

Sean Belcher and Rennee Setzer were just wishing they were the only ones in school. Looks like their wish came true.

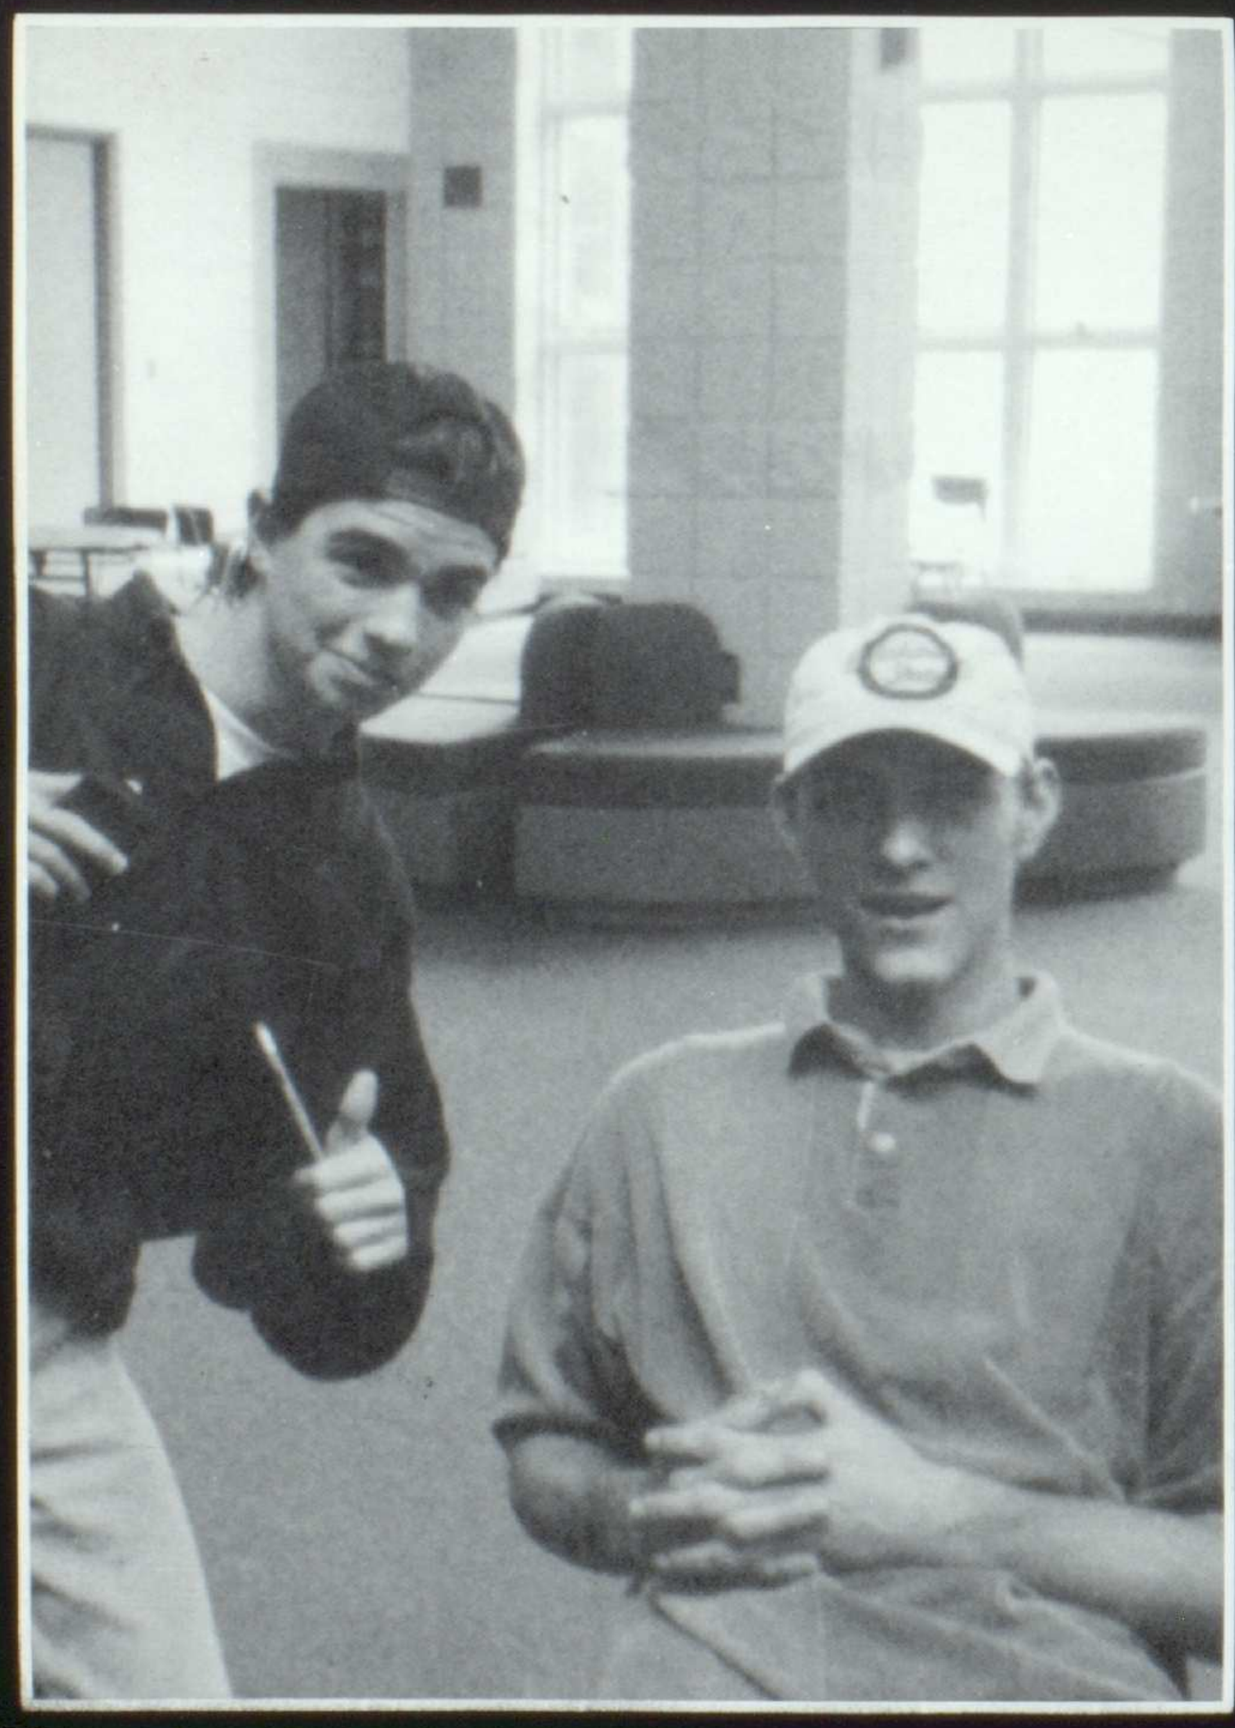

Catch the look on Suzanne Provanzana's face when she was asked out by some dork. Guess she didn't like him.

Michelle Wear, Anthony House, and Sandy Holmberg decorate the halls for the homecoming events.

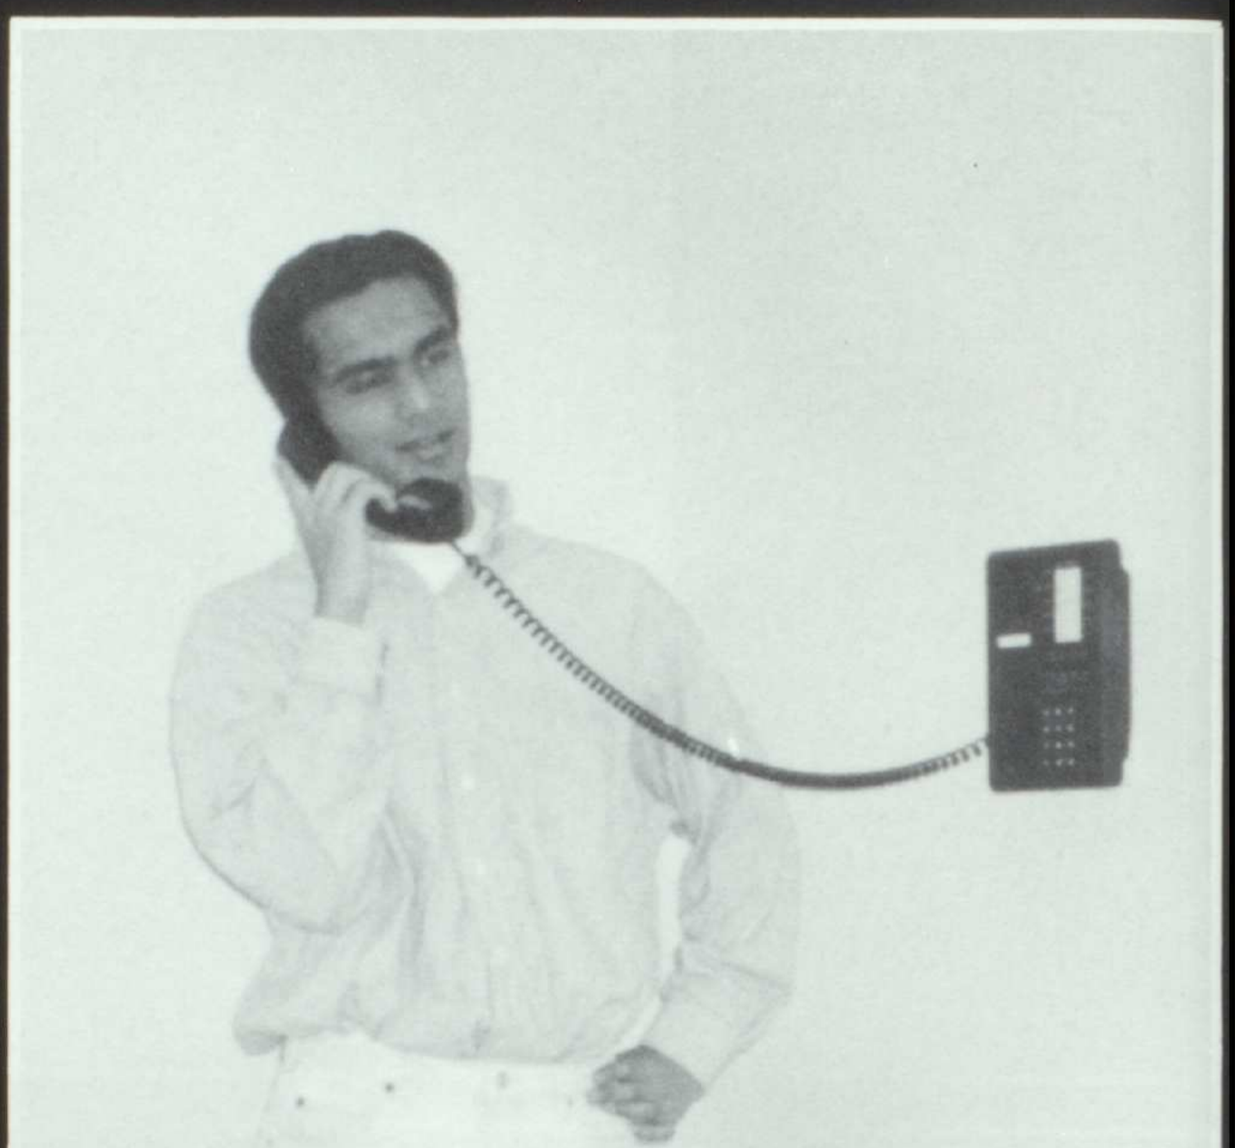

We asked Alan Beymer and Steve Min how they work the clay so well. Steve replied, "It takes years of practice and lotion," while Alan just ignores us with his primadonna attitude.

"That-a-boy, Johnny!" Greg Frasca exclaims to Sean McCoy as they sit in the commons.

I wonder who Reaz Rasul is conversing with on the telephone? Maybe he is bringing his work to school again. There is no rest for an employee of 1-976-HOTTIE.

"I bet I never told you that Bethany Overstake and I are getting married. We are planning on having at least three kids. Do you think they will be cute?" asks Jared Miller. By the look on Bethany's face you better plan on having six.

When a bunch of women get together, you can definitely tell what school they go to. I was just wondering, out of all these girls, why is Jennifer Fernandez the only one with a smirk? I think I will just thank Cara Seiberth, Sarah Weitherholt, Tara Galela, Merilee Karr, and senior wannabe's Courtney Hayworth and Schelle Nooks for showing their spirit.

"Do you think the consistency of this paint is going to work?" asks Dan Evertt. Jamie "THE STUD KING" Bach is testing it and thinks it might just be a little too runny. But Dan seems to have a different opinion.

"Who broke my peace pipe?" Andrew Spieth wonders as he gets hard with the camera.

"Don't speak in tongues to me!" Mrs. Smith tells Jeff Hollenback. He just ignores her and continues his ridiculing. Deep down inside we know that he loves her. Don't you Jeff?

Don't Lori Belford and Renee Setzer look stunning. I bet all those presents are for their boyfriends. Yea, right!

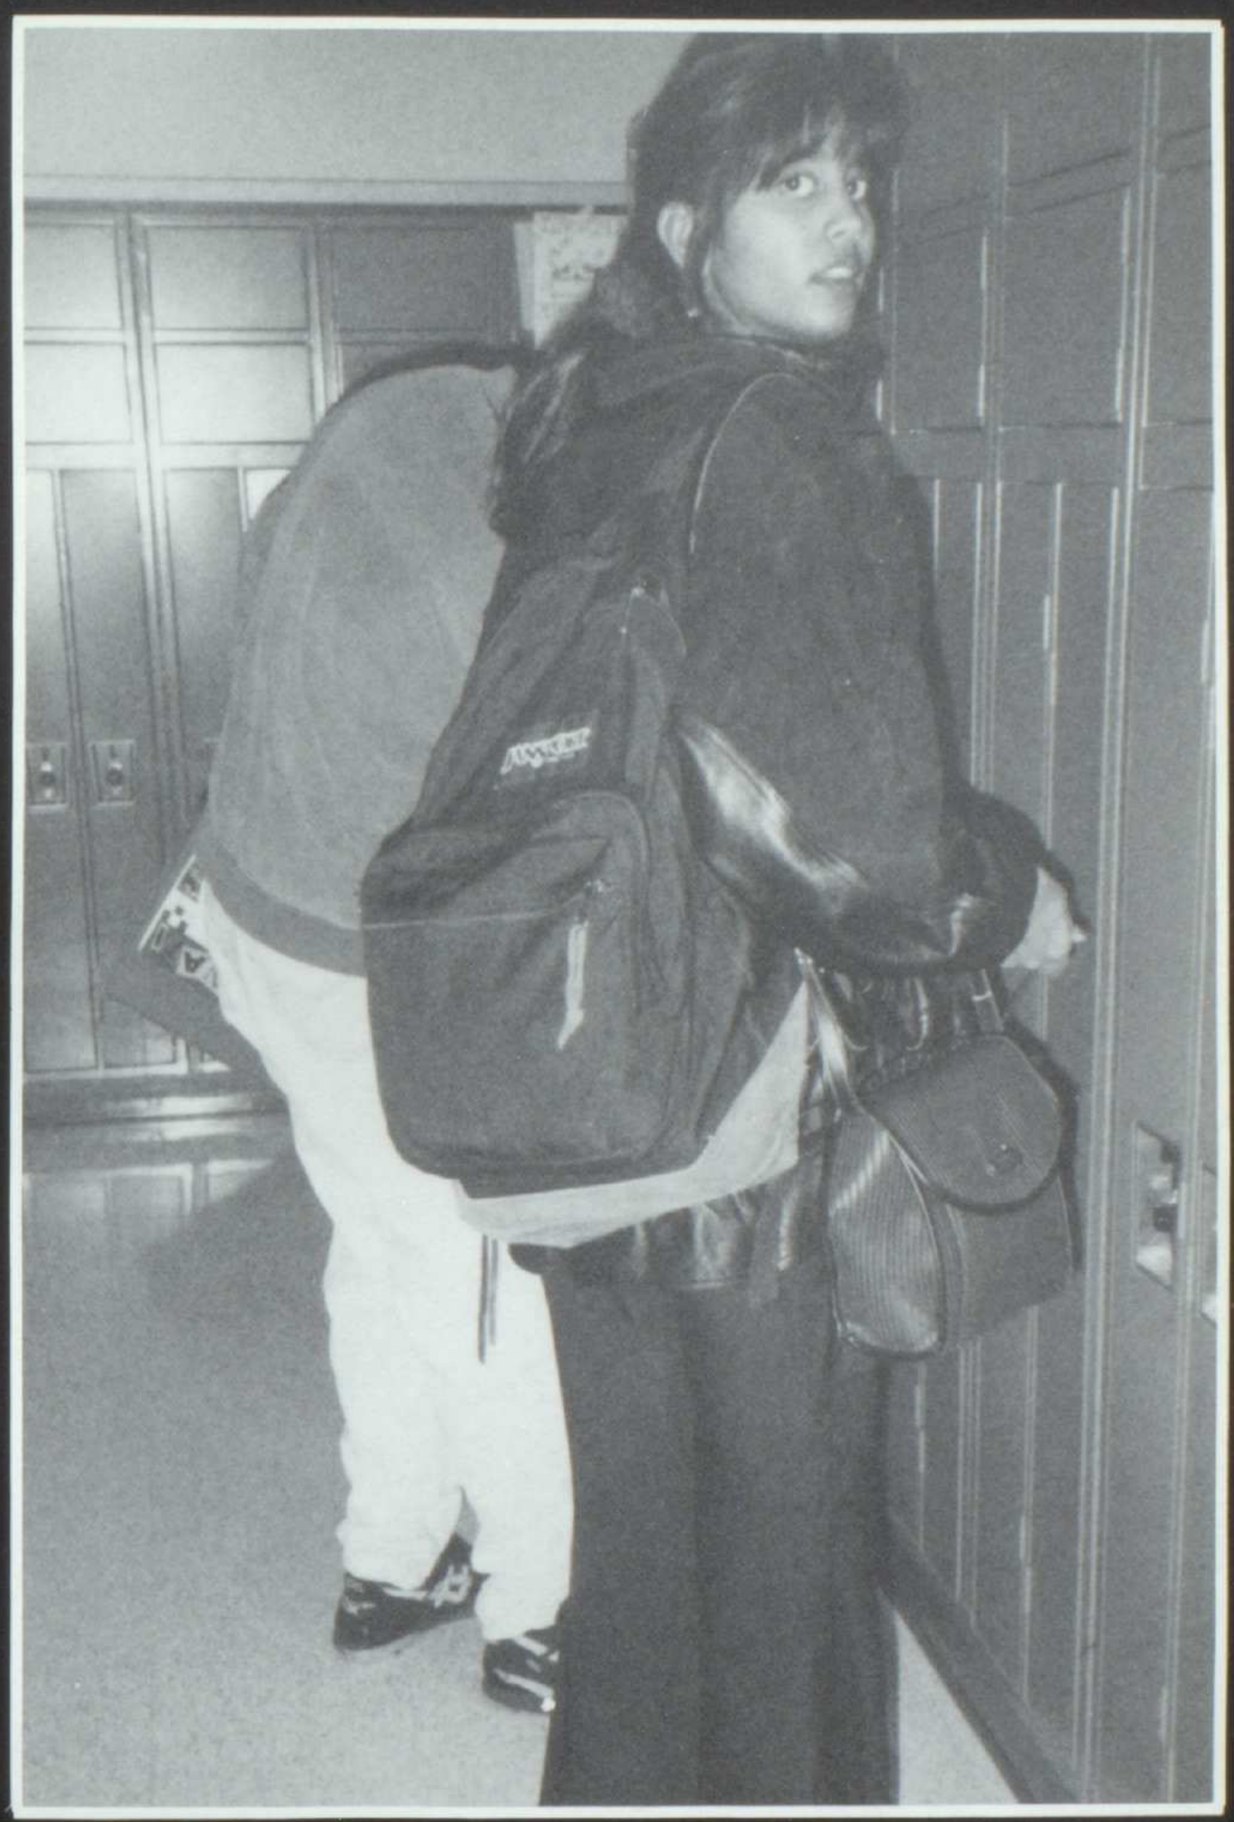

This must be the picture for the Worthington Kilbourne Man of the Year. But I thought Stevie J. won, not Jack Cahill.

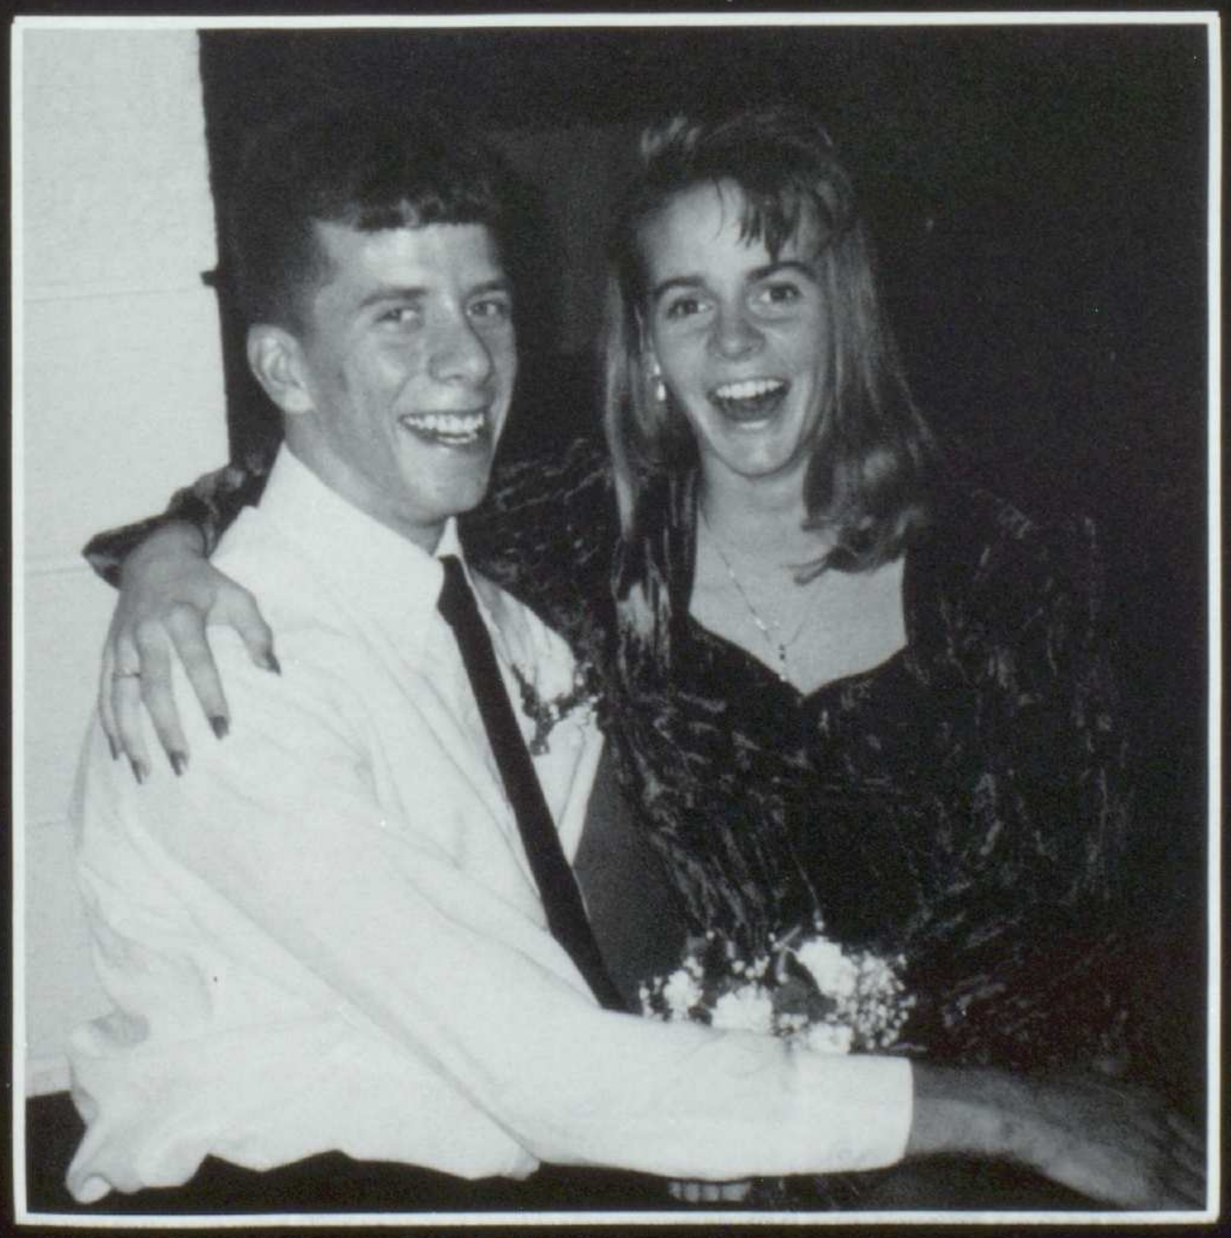

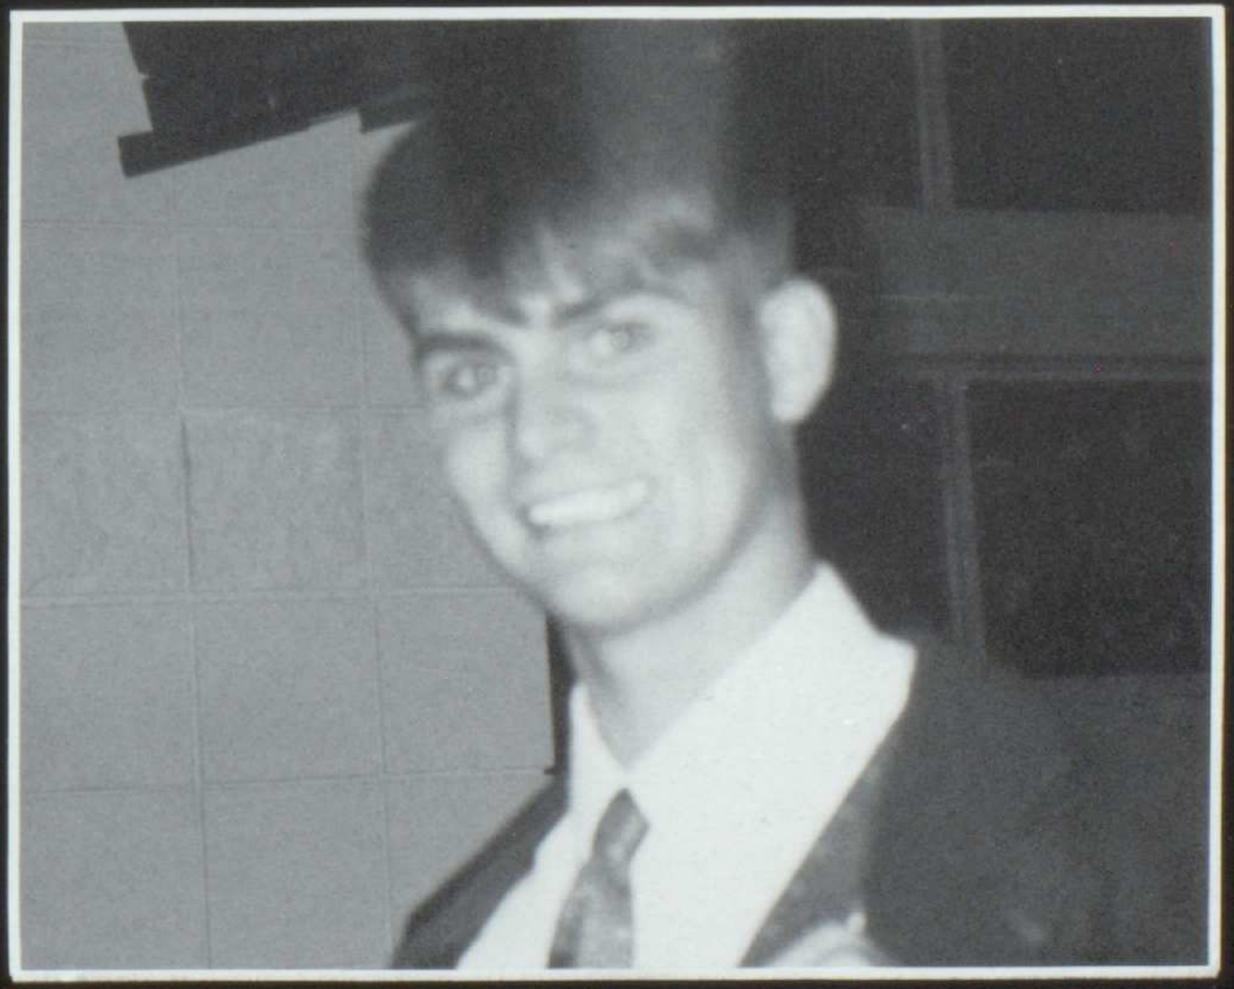

Some people use drugs to have a good time, but if you have ever seen Marisa Wooten and Mandi Allinder at a football game, they are living proof you can be high on life.

"Please, don't hate me because I am beautiful!" exclaims Anita Mathur, as yet another fan bombards her at her locker to get a picture of the superstar.

"You asked what we were laughing at. Someone said we look more like brother and sister than boyfriend and girlfriend," explain Robb Cotter with his sister/girlfriend Tracie Smith.

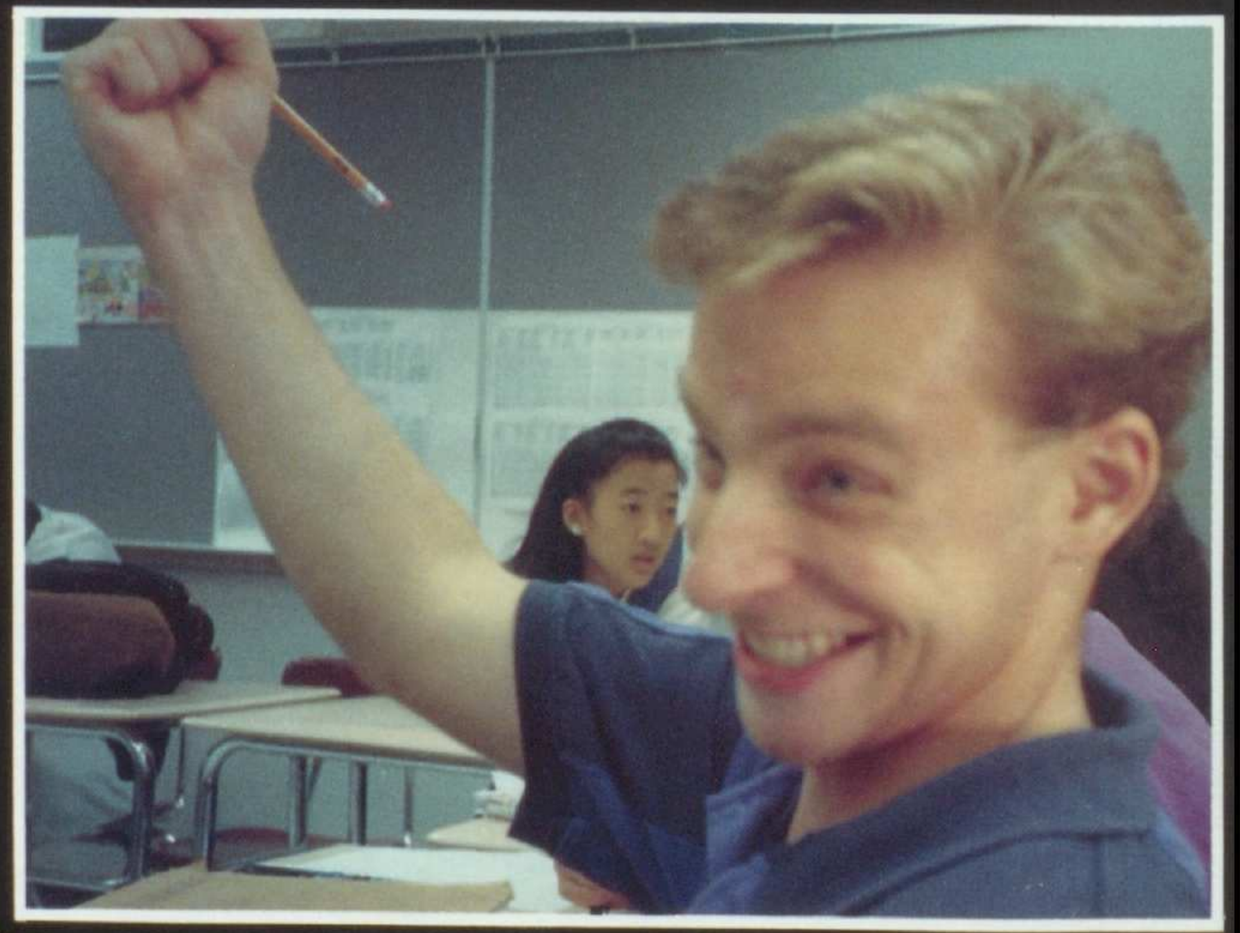

Tim Lockwood struts his stuff at the Valentine's Dance. You can tell by his smile he is confident and having a good time, even by himself. What you can't see is his girlfriend who is dancing and flaunting herself around half a dozen guys on the dance floor.

Showing that the girls of Worthington Kilbourne have just as much spirit as the men are seniors Marisa Wooten, Sandy Holmberg, Kristine Bielek, Merilee Karr, Heather Bell, Erin Joyce, and Mandi Allinder. If anyone can count how many teeth are showing, you could win a new T.V.

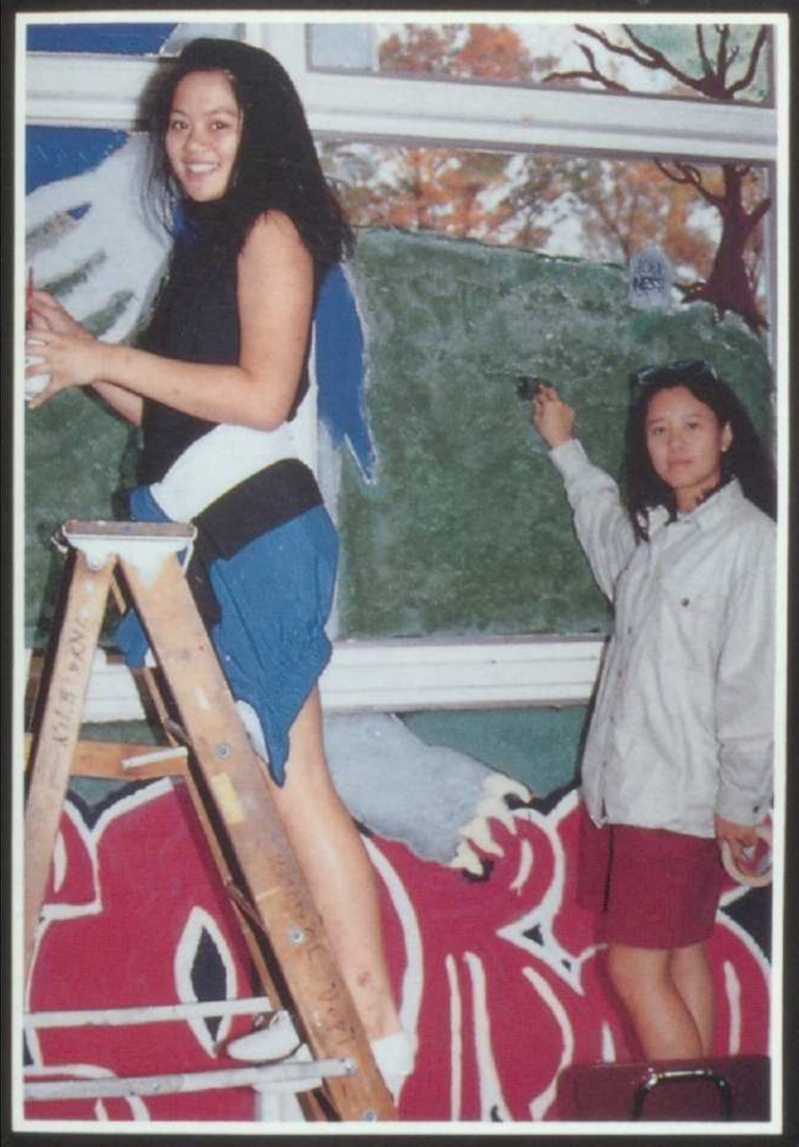

Try to guess who won "The Woman of the School" award, Kelly McLean or Mrs. Papp?

After senior Steve Kane passes gas, he exclaims to the whole class, "I can clear the room in less than 3 seconds if I want to."

Painting the senior window are Racquel Panaligan and Karen Tang.

These are the cutiest darn Brandons in the school, maybe in the world.

As Brian Biggert plays with his food, it looks like Lindsay Mauer is enjoying herself, but I think Rachael Avon is disgusted. She yells to the lunch lady to get him to quit so she can finish her homework. Looks like Lindsay just got some of the orange in the eye.

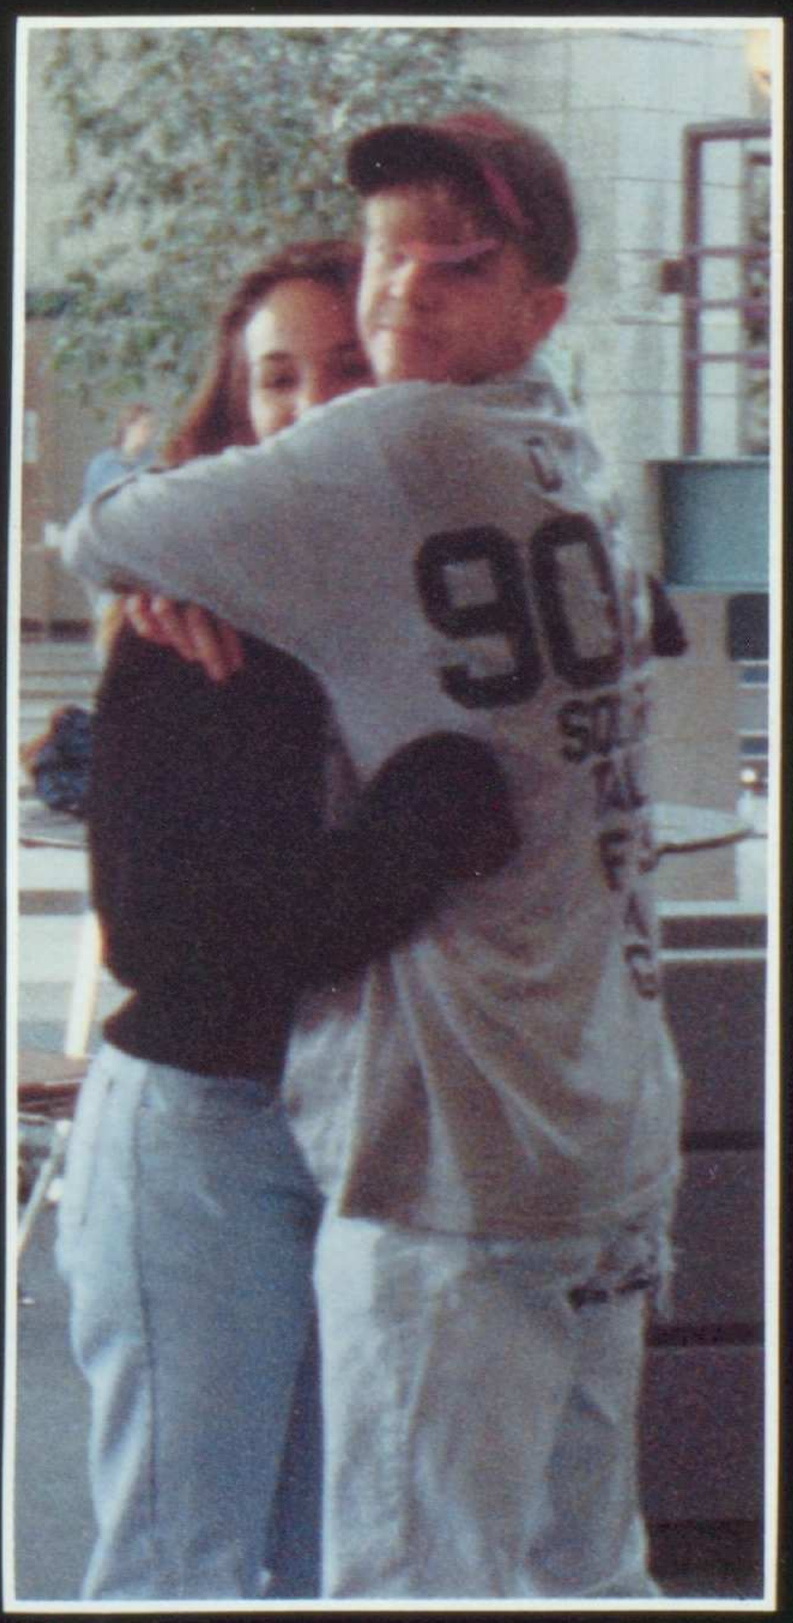

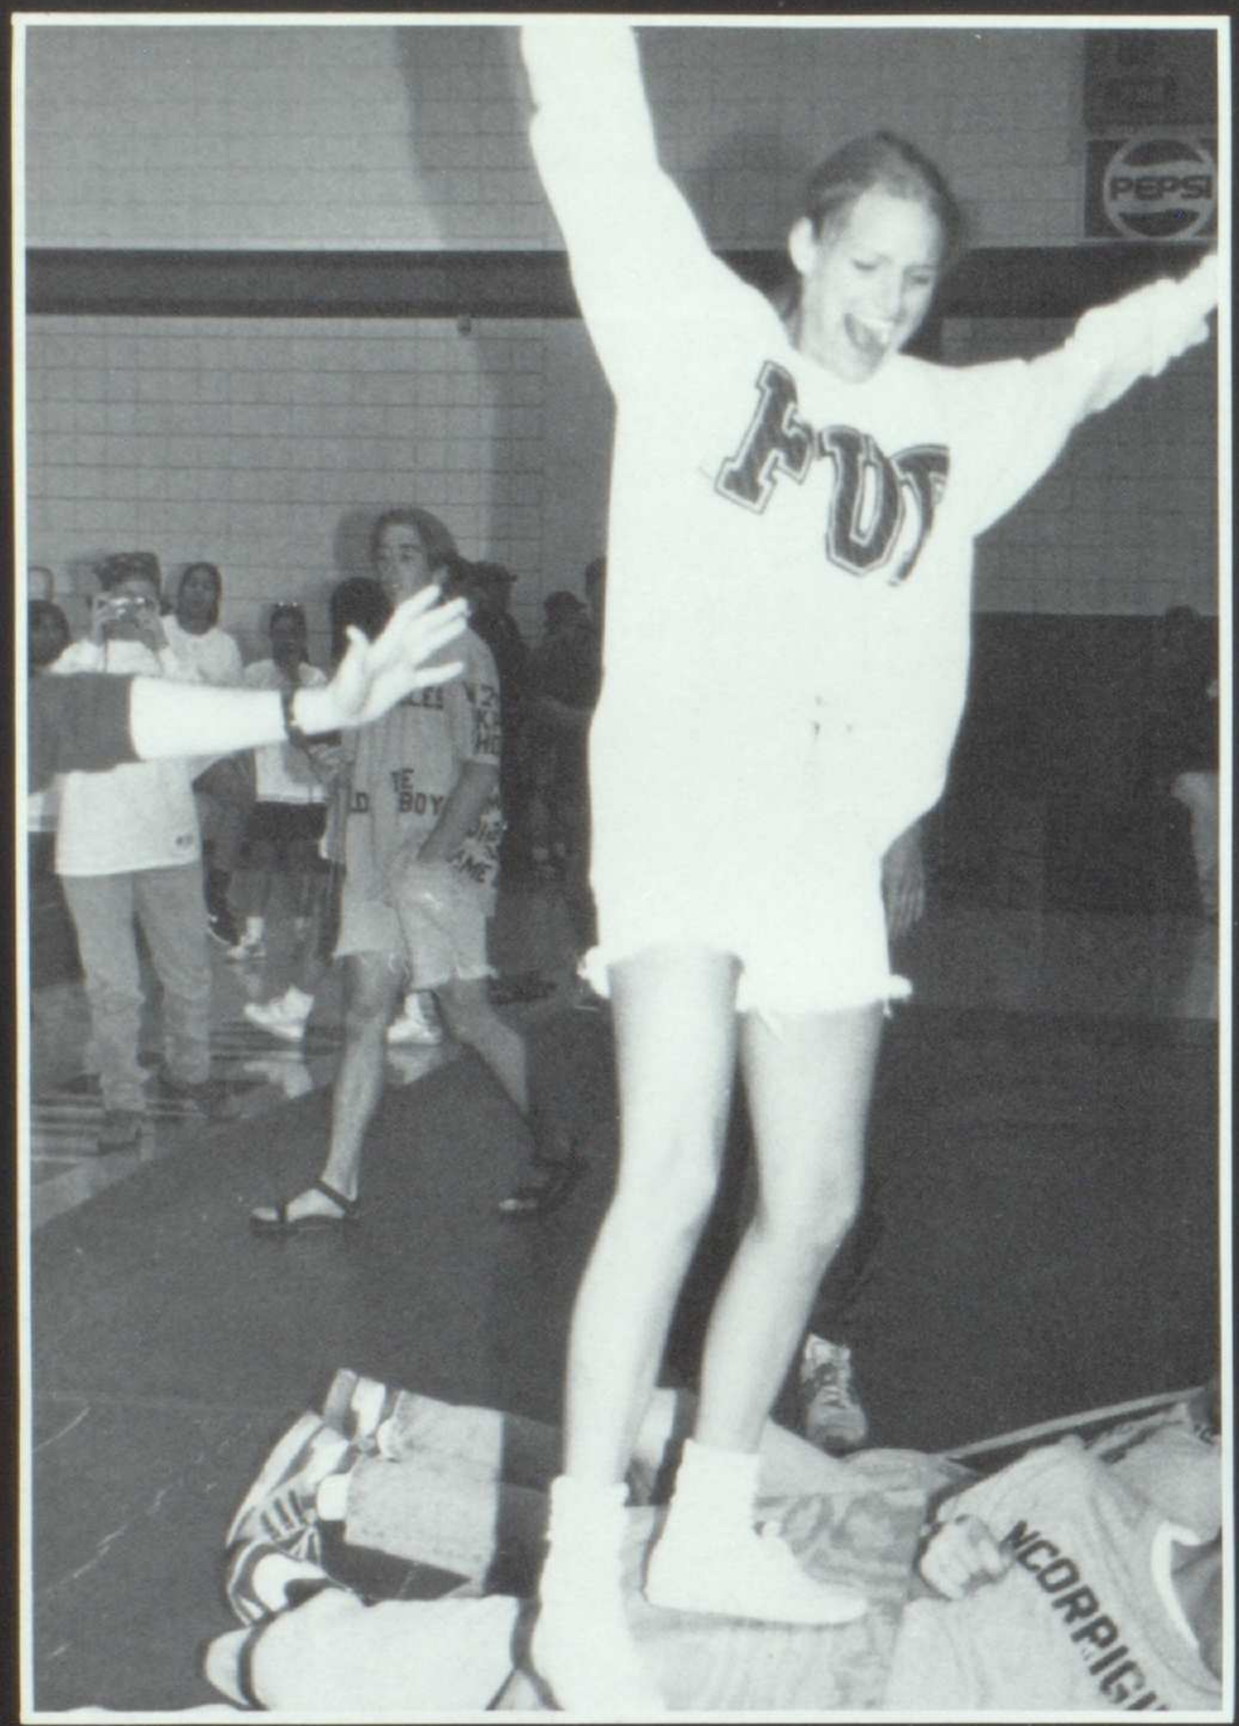

"That sucker looks good," says Tricia Merrill to Shannon Decker.

Ben Dusthimer gives Nikole Sekera a hug. How sweet he is!

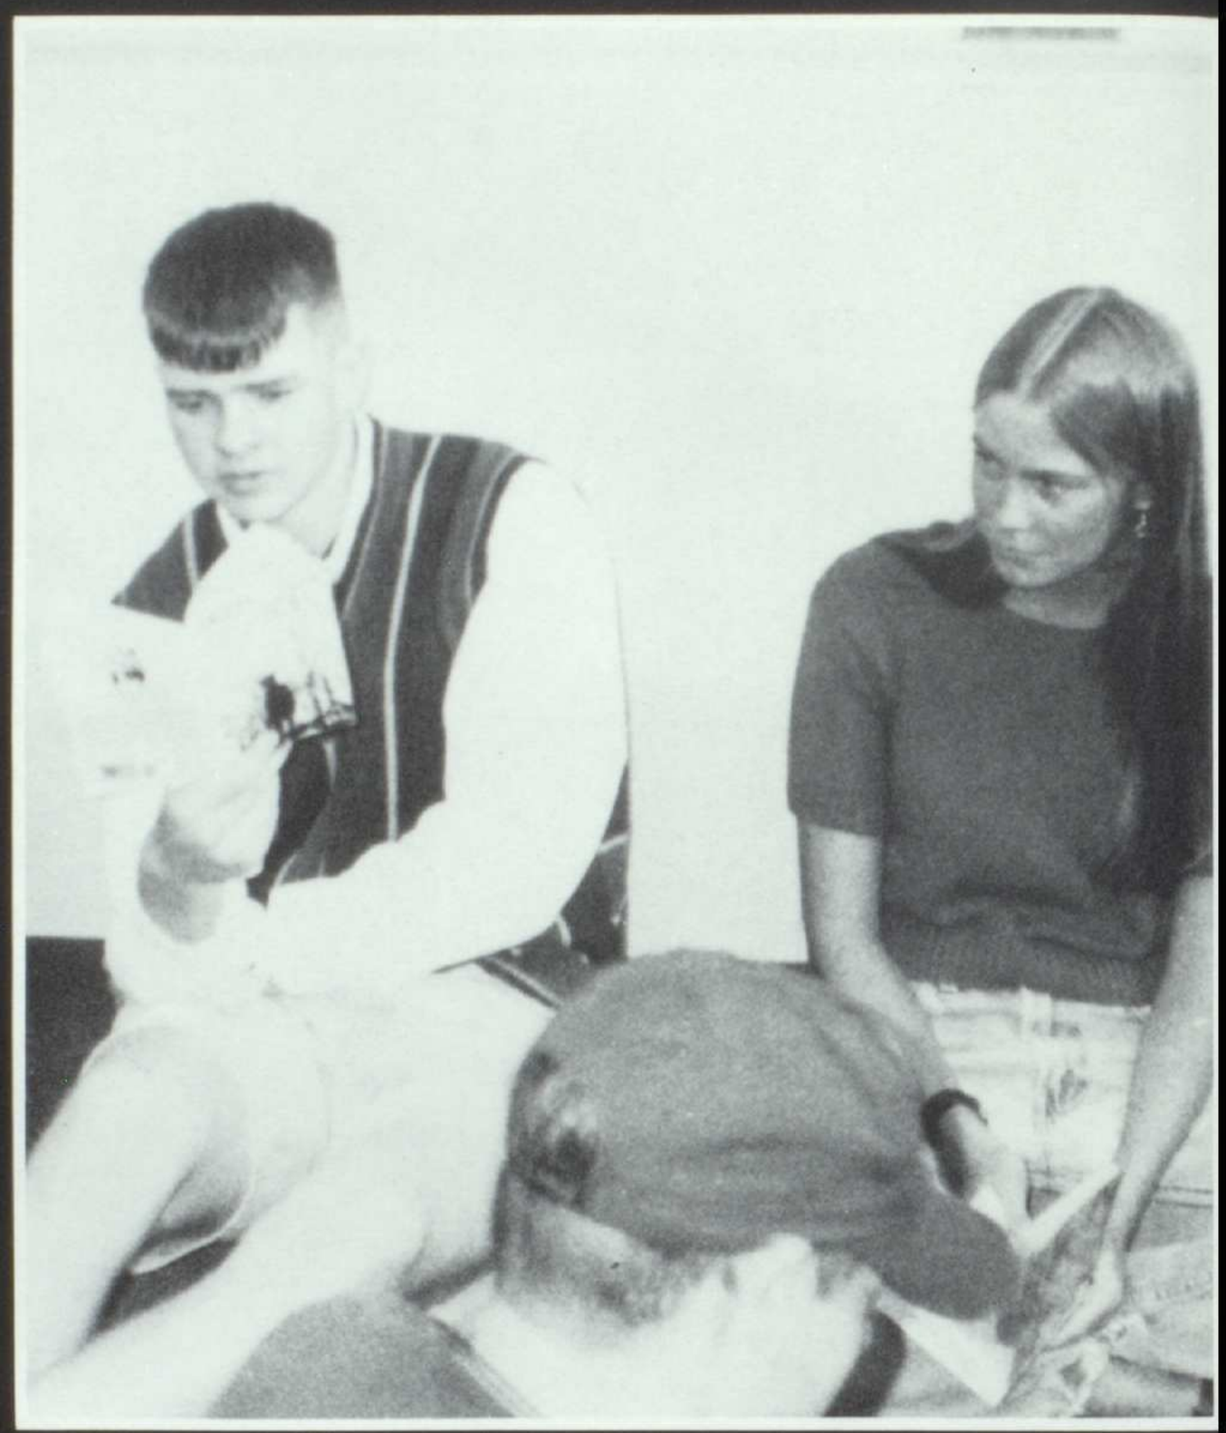

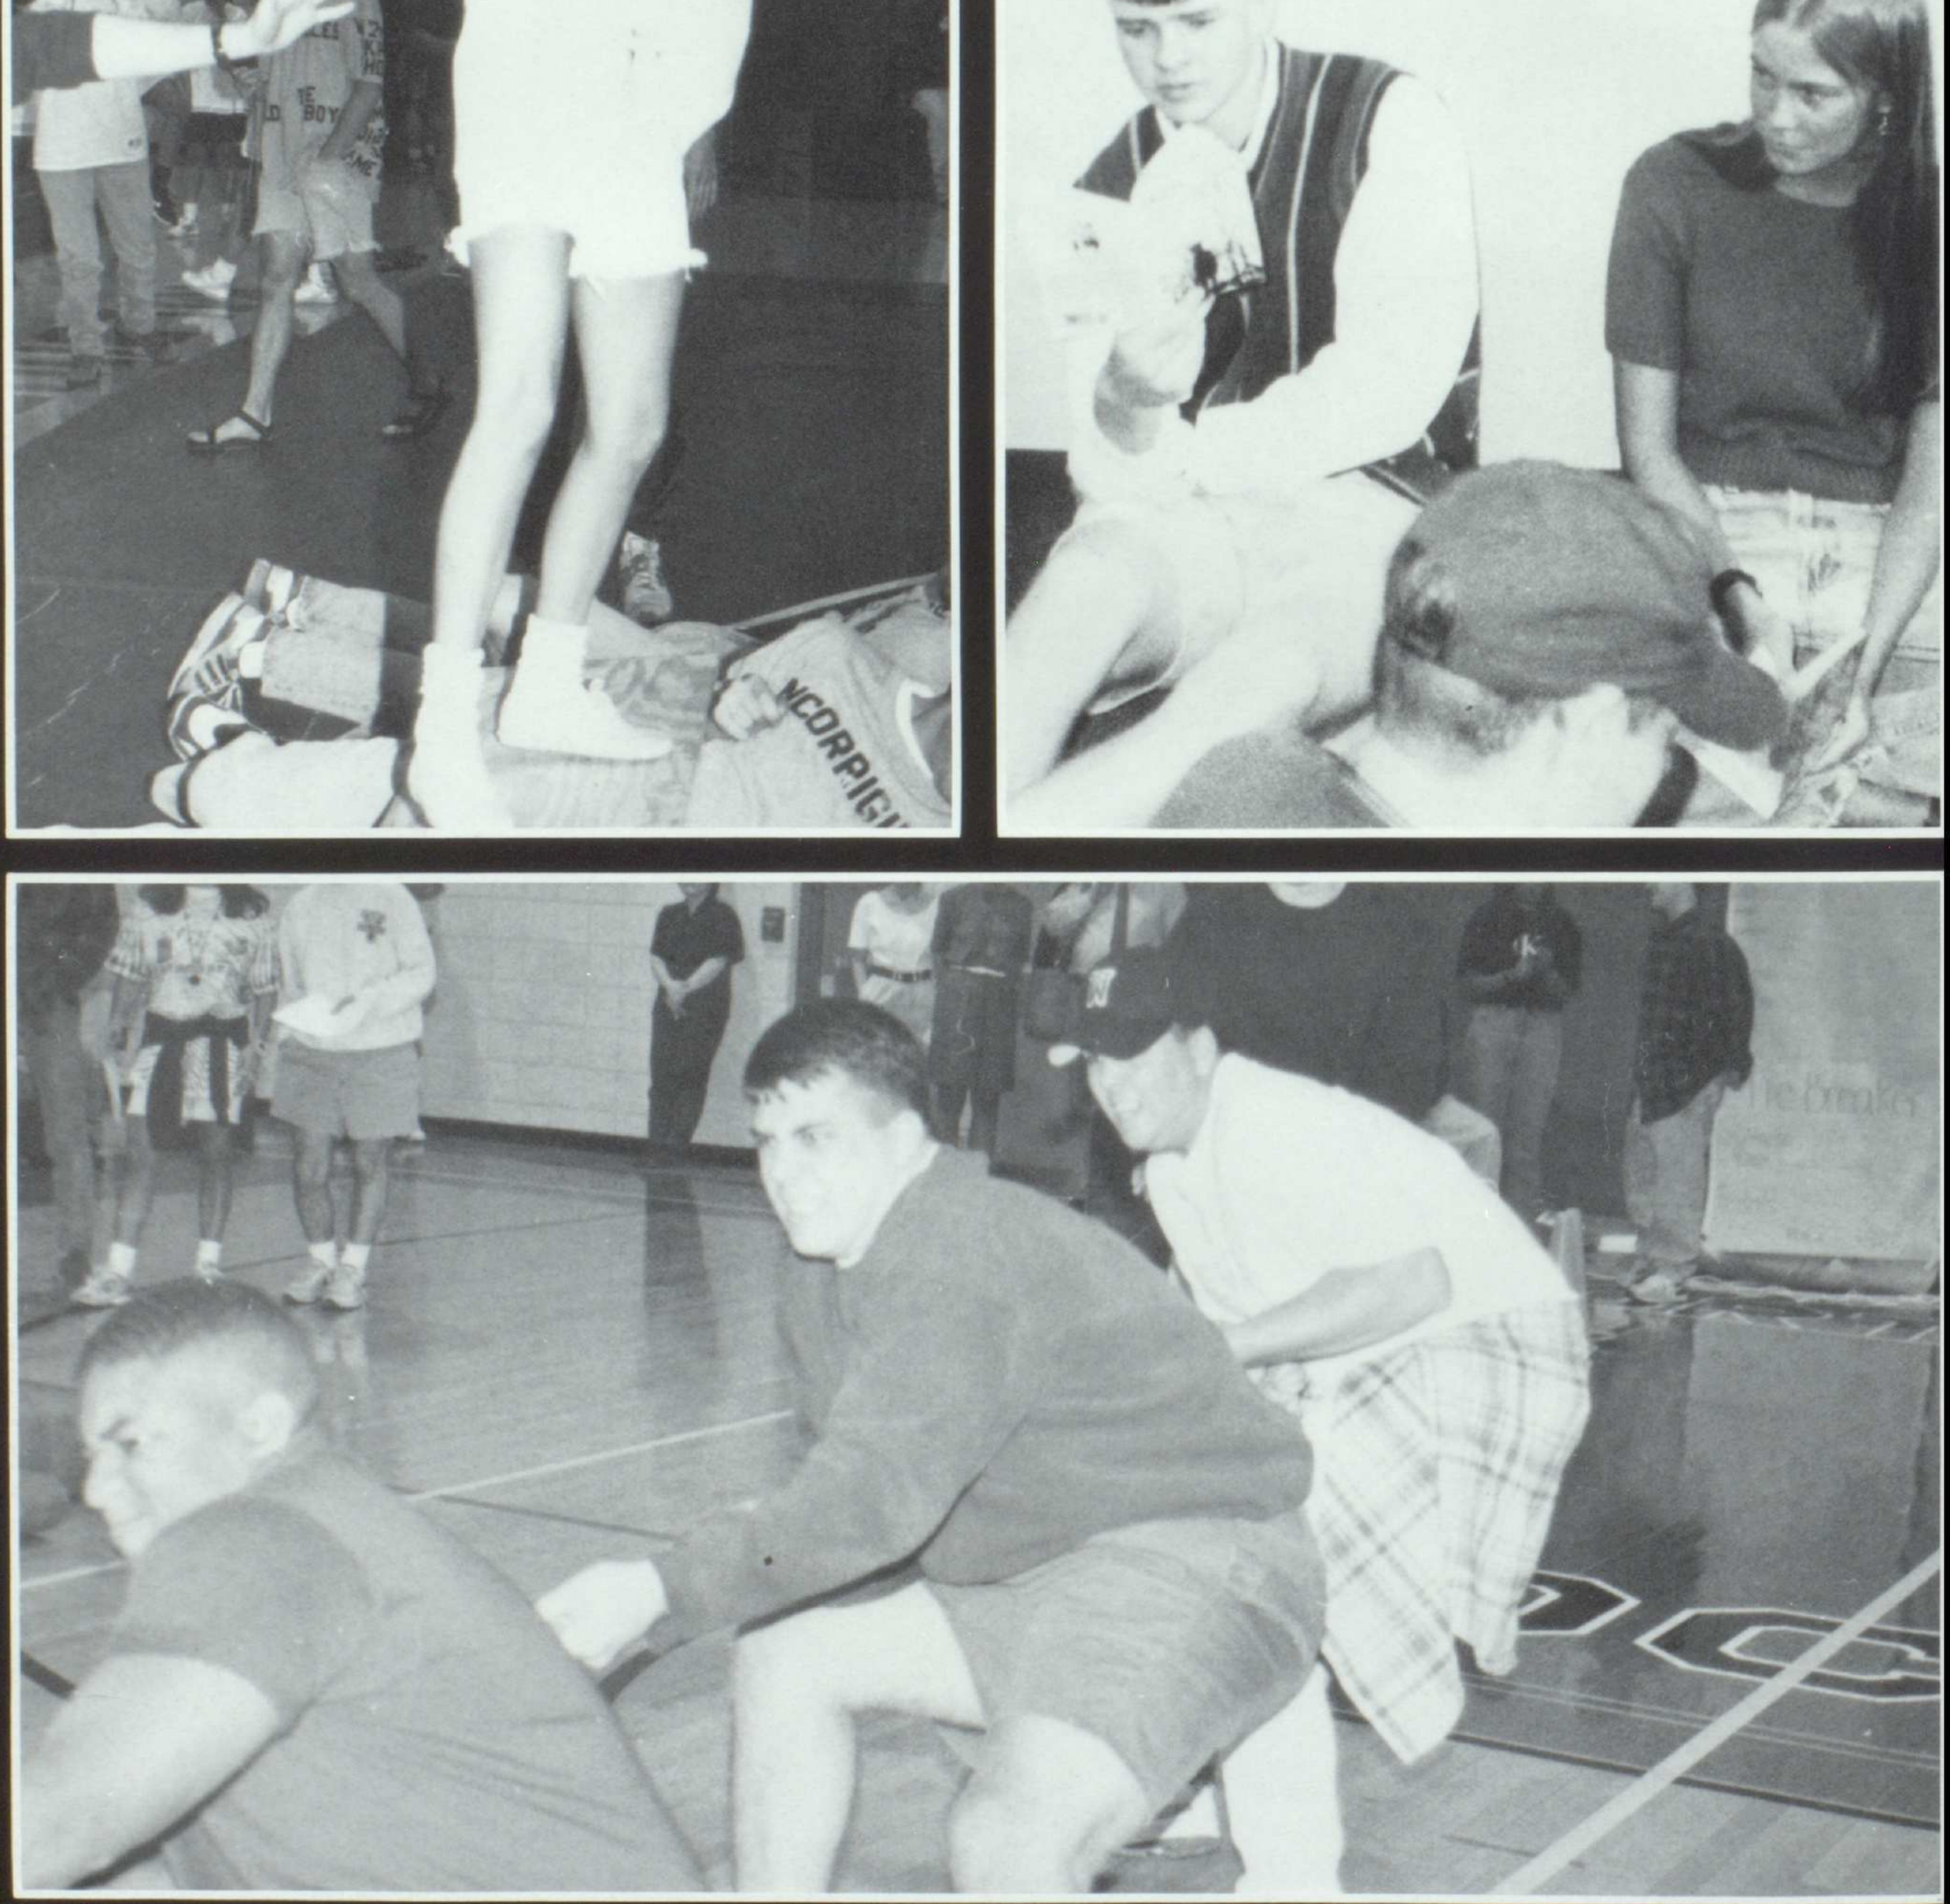

Keri Lee and Kirstine Chapman look beautiful for the camera as Carlie Perkins gives Korrine Miller a look that she is lost. What are you doing, Korrine? I think she is trying to swallow her face. Karen Lepage just laughs at all the girls, thinking she is the best looking of them all.

At the Final Fling, Heather Andes got to ride all the guys she ever wanted to at one time.

Here is a sight for you, Sean Belcher reading a book. Even Meagan McHugh is stunned.

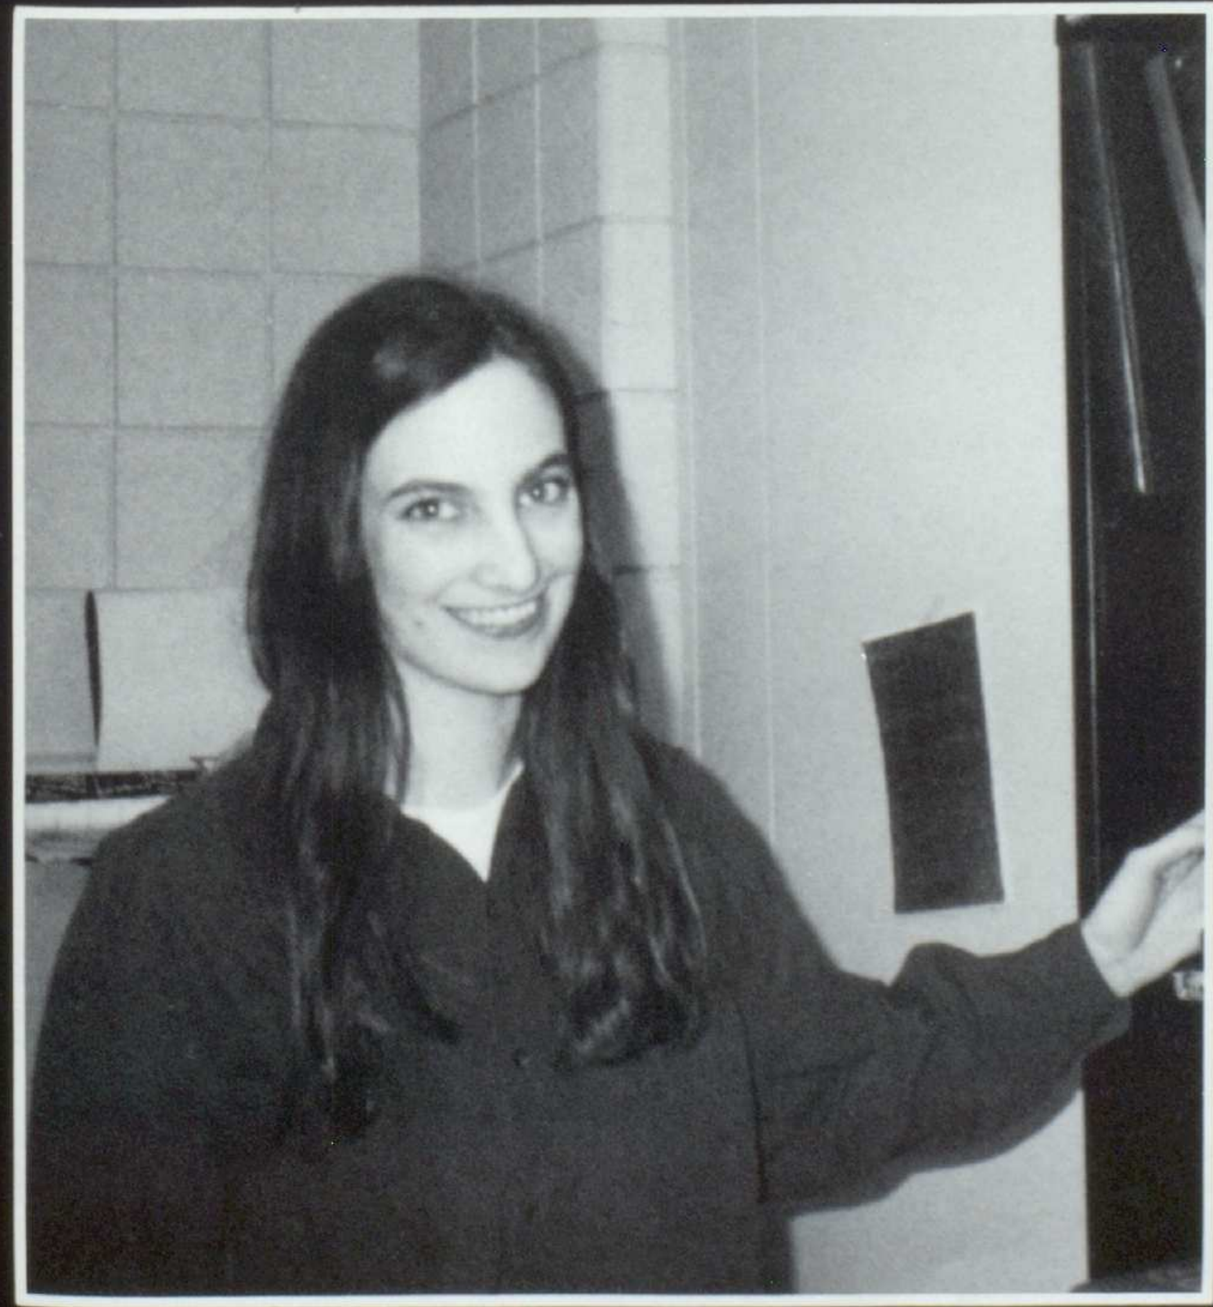

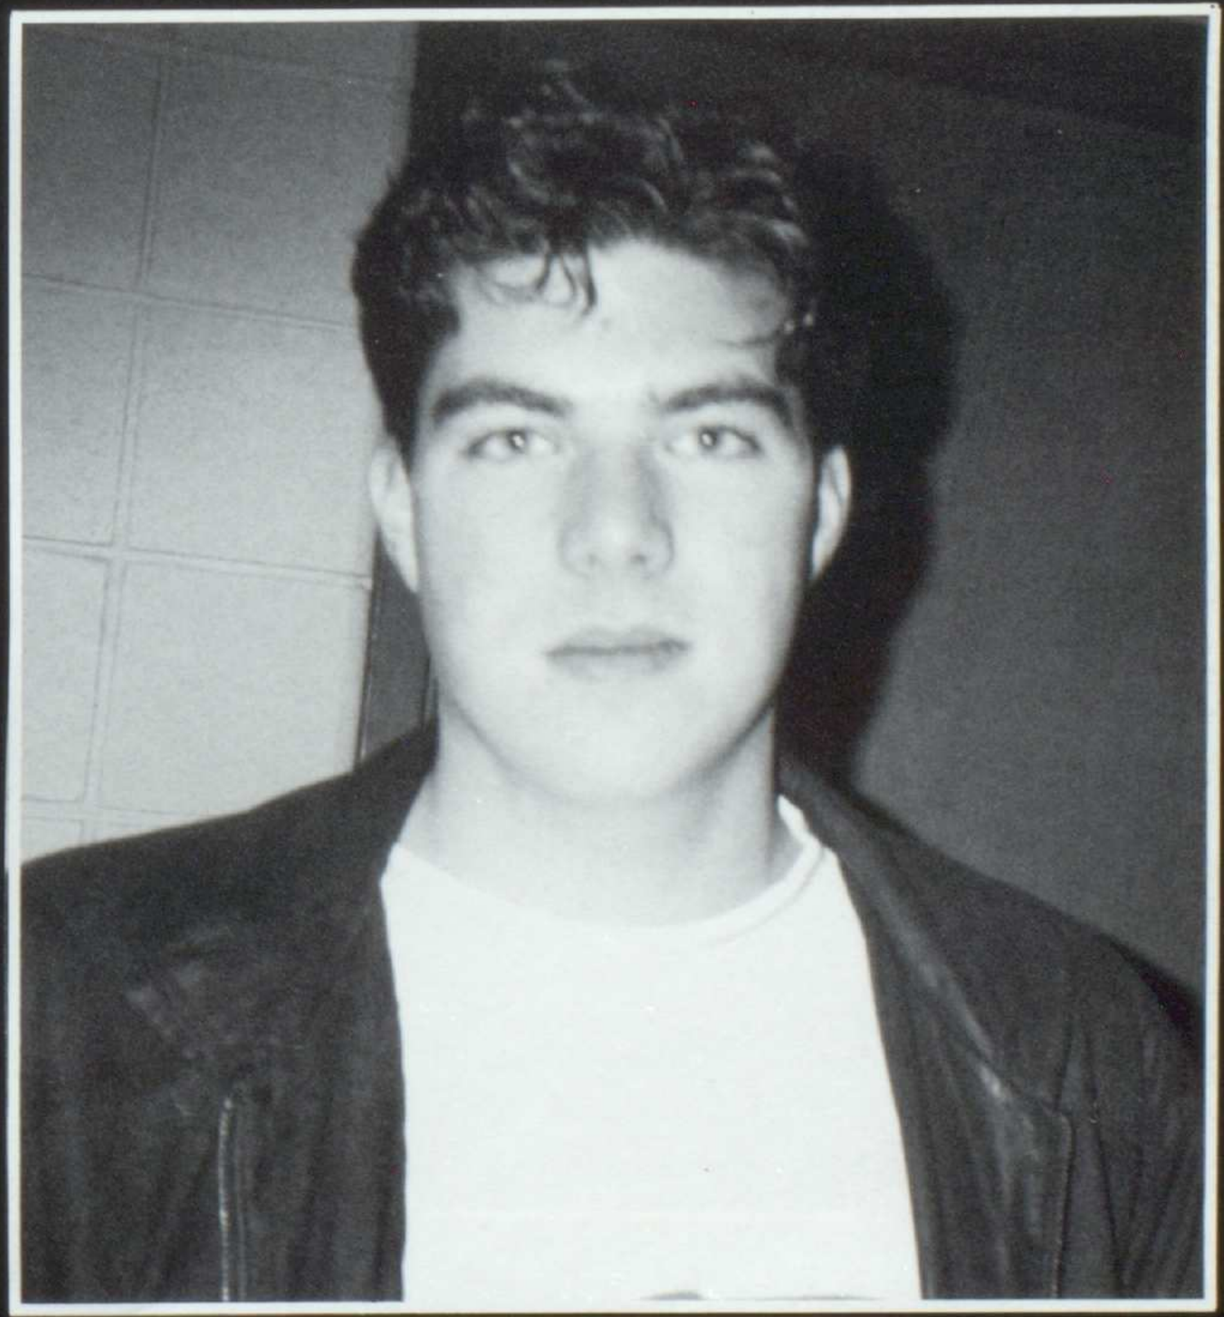

The senior guys in the tug-o'-war event at the Final Fling sure didn't prove anything by losing to the juniors. Tony Perrin, Matt Moore, and Erik Niceswanger held the back of the rope, while Tony Layne and Tom Kingery, not pictured held the front. Nice try guys, but I think the juniors are going to let it go to their heads.

Showing their acrobatic skills, Racquel Panaligan, Tammy Pham, Holly Prunty, Anita Mathur and Lara Davis attempt to build a pyramid in the Final Fling. With moves like that it is no wonder the seniors came out on top in the contest. They might even land a job in the circus. Holly Prunty was quoted as grunting,"Ahhhh... if we can keep this up my talent agent will get us a tryout... get off my neck...with Barnum and Baily's Greatest Show on Earth.

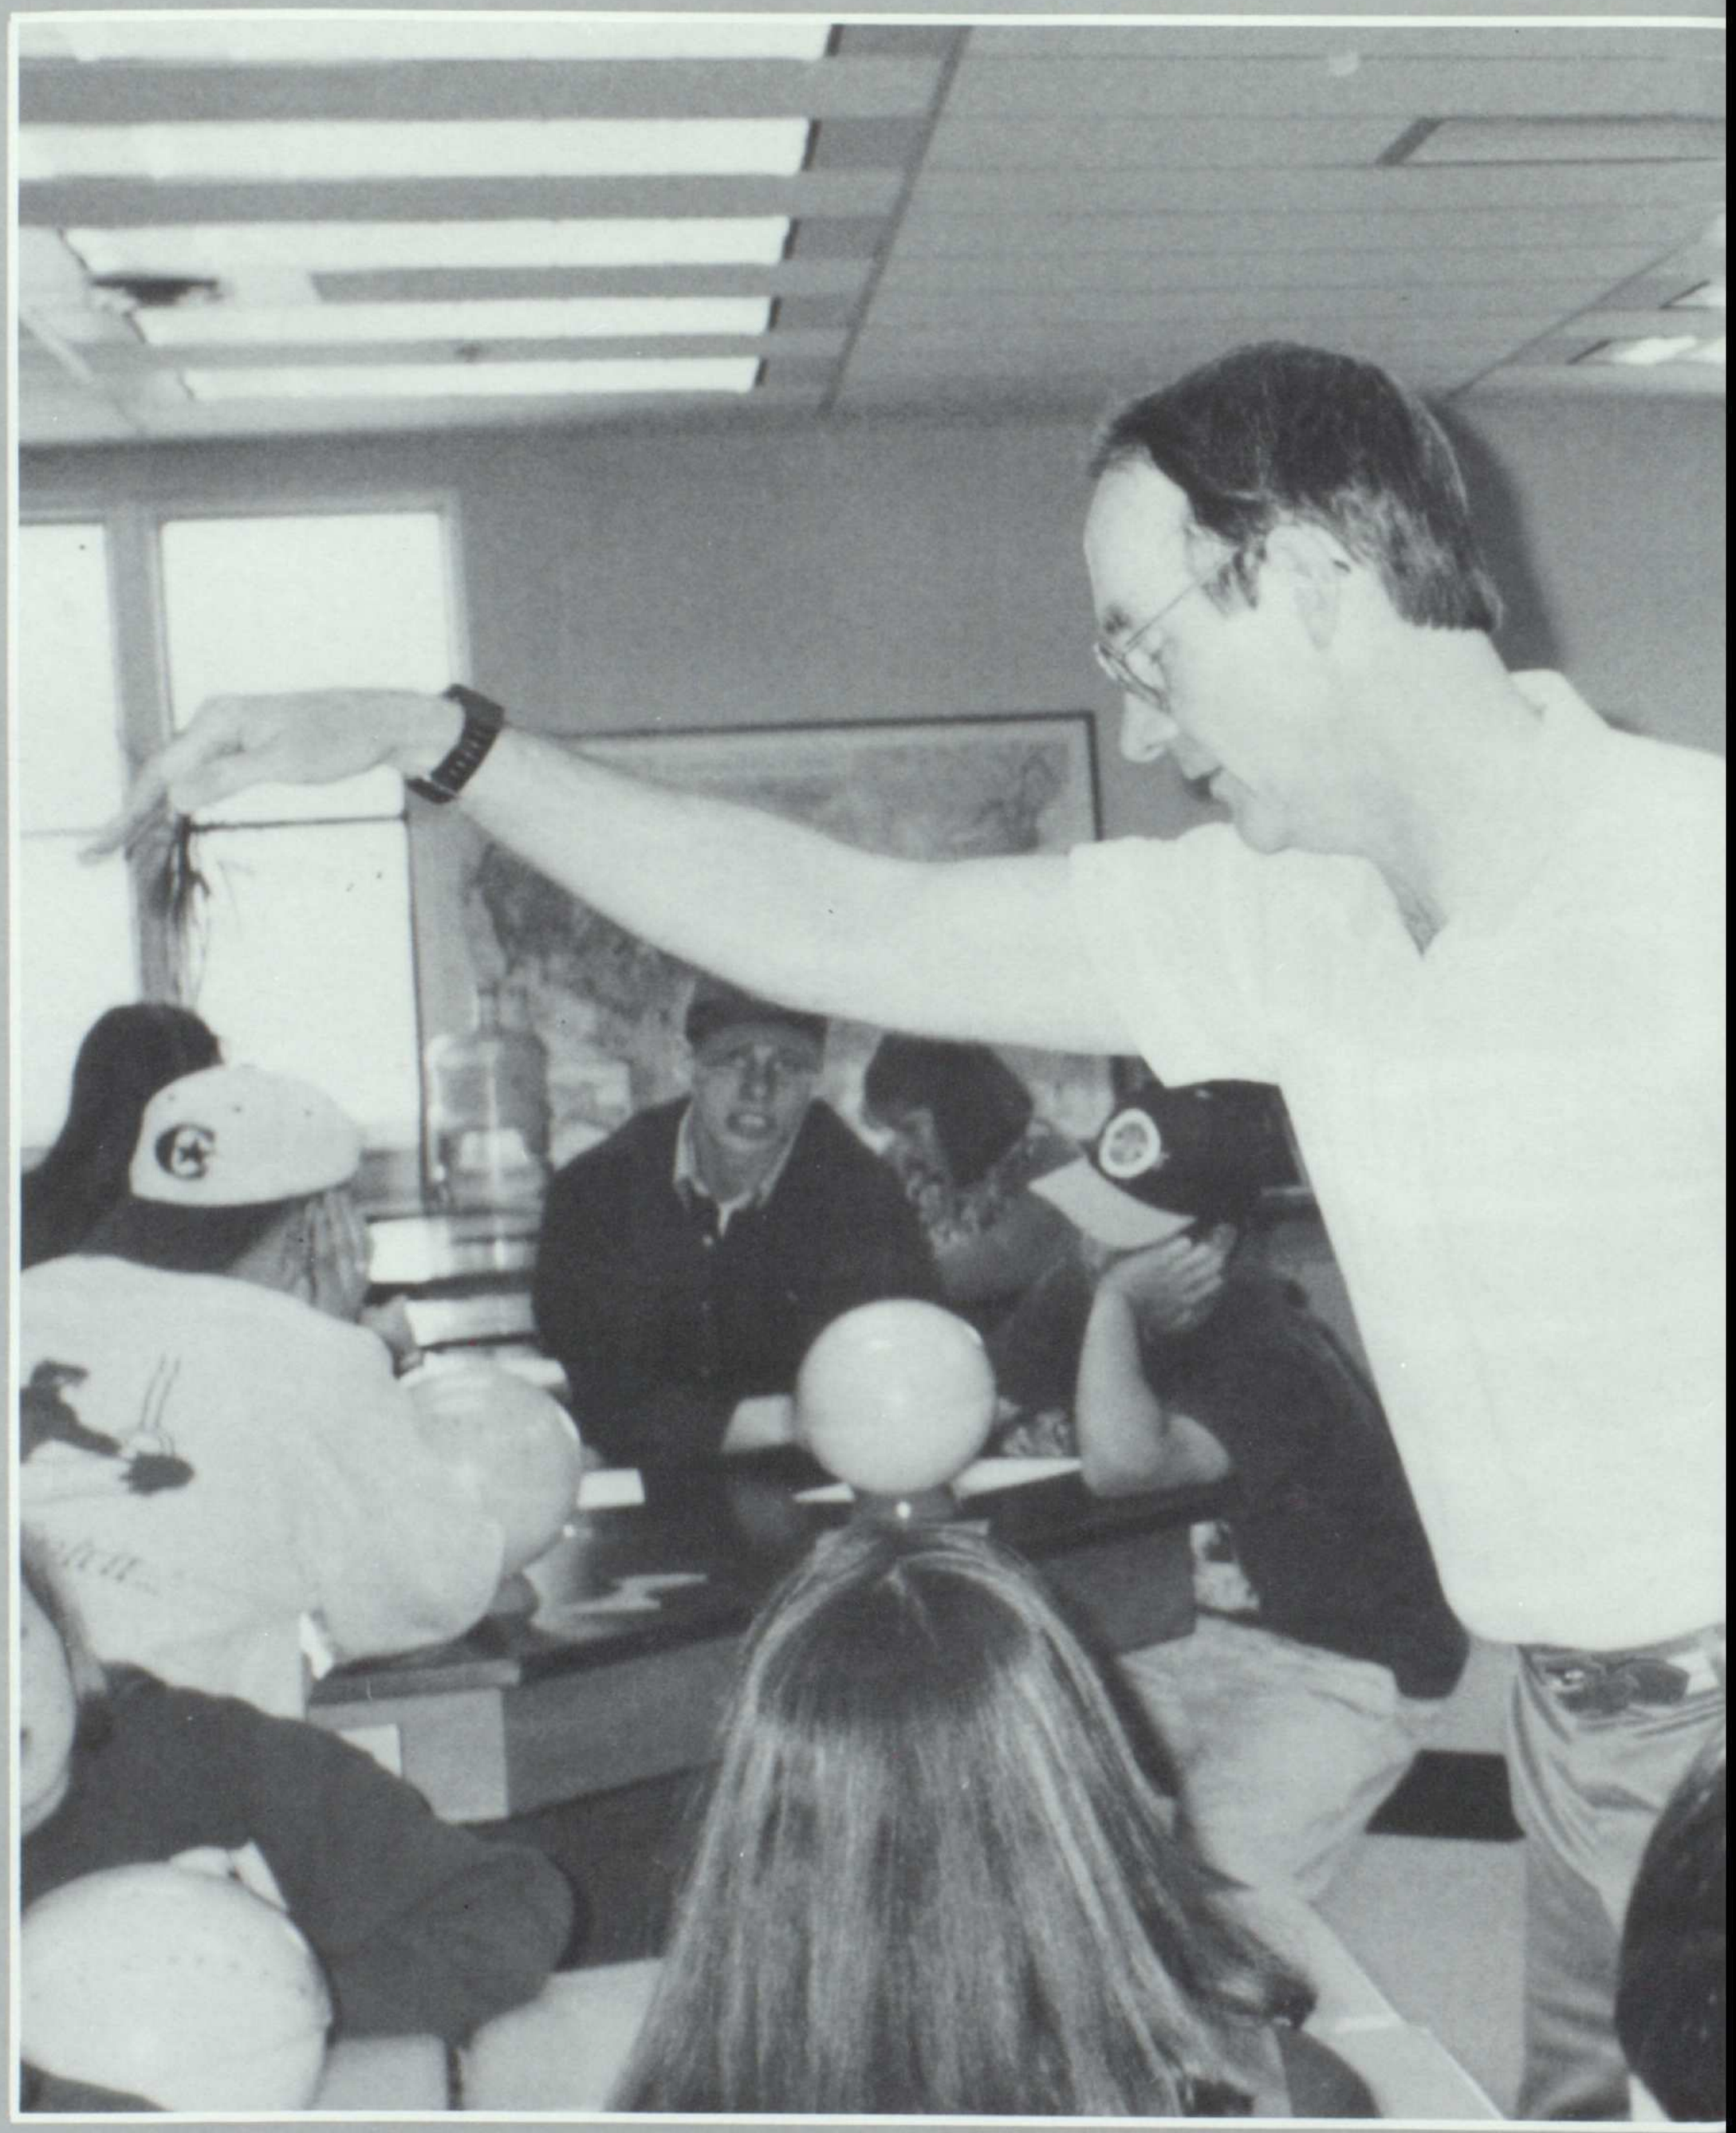

Anna Fullenkamp, the yearbook staff's business editor, keeps everything in her cave nice and organized. With all the work she has to do the yearbook, it is hard to imagine where she finds the time to clean.

When I asked Mike Casey if he was the one he bombed the World Trade Center, he said he pleads the fifth.

Making a Difference

Every student has a teacher who has made an impact on his or her life, but each may have a different reason why that particular teacher has made an impact. Everyone identifies different qualities in a good teacher. Most base their judgements on how well they learn from the teacher and how effective the teacher's methods are.

Senior Mark Bellar says, "I want a teacher who will let me be independent in my learning and will add variety to his teaching methods."

Senior Cindy Wolfe agrees with him saying, "I also like a teacher who uses a variety of methods, but I want the teacher to enjoy what he or she is teaching."

Junior Courtney Hayworth looks for "a teacher that is easy-going and has a good sense of humor."

Senior Eric Bailey likes teachers "that make you think and do not baby feed you information."

Junior Holly Spencer says, "A teacher should be fair, intelligent, and understanding."

Senior Anthony House thinks "a good teacher will understand that students learn differently and will adapt to the different learning styles."

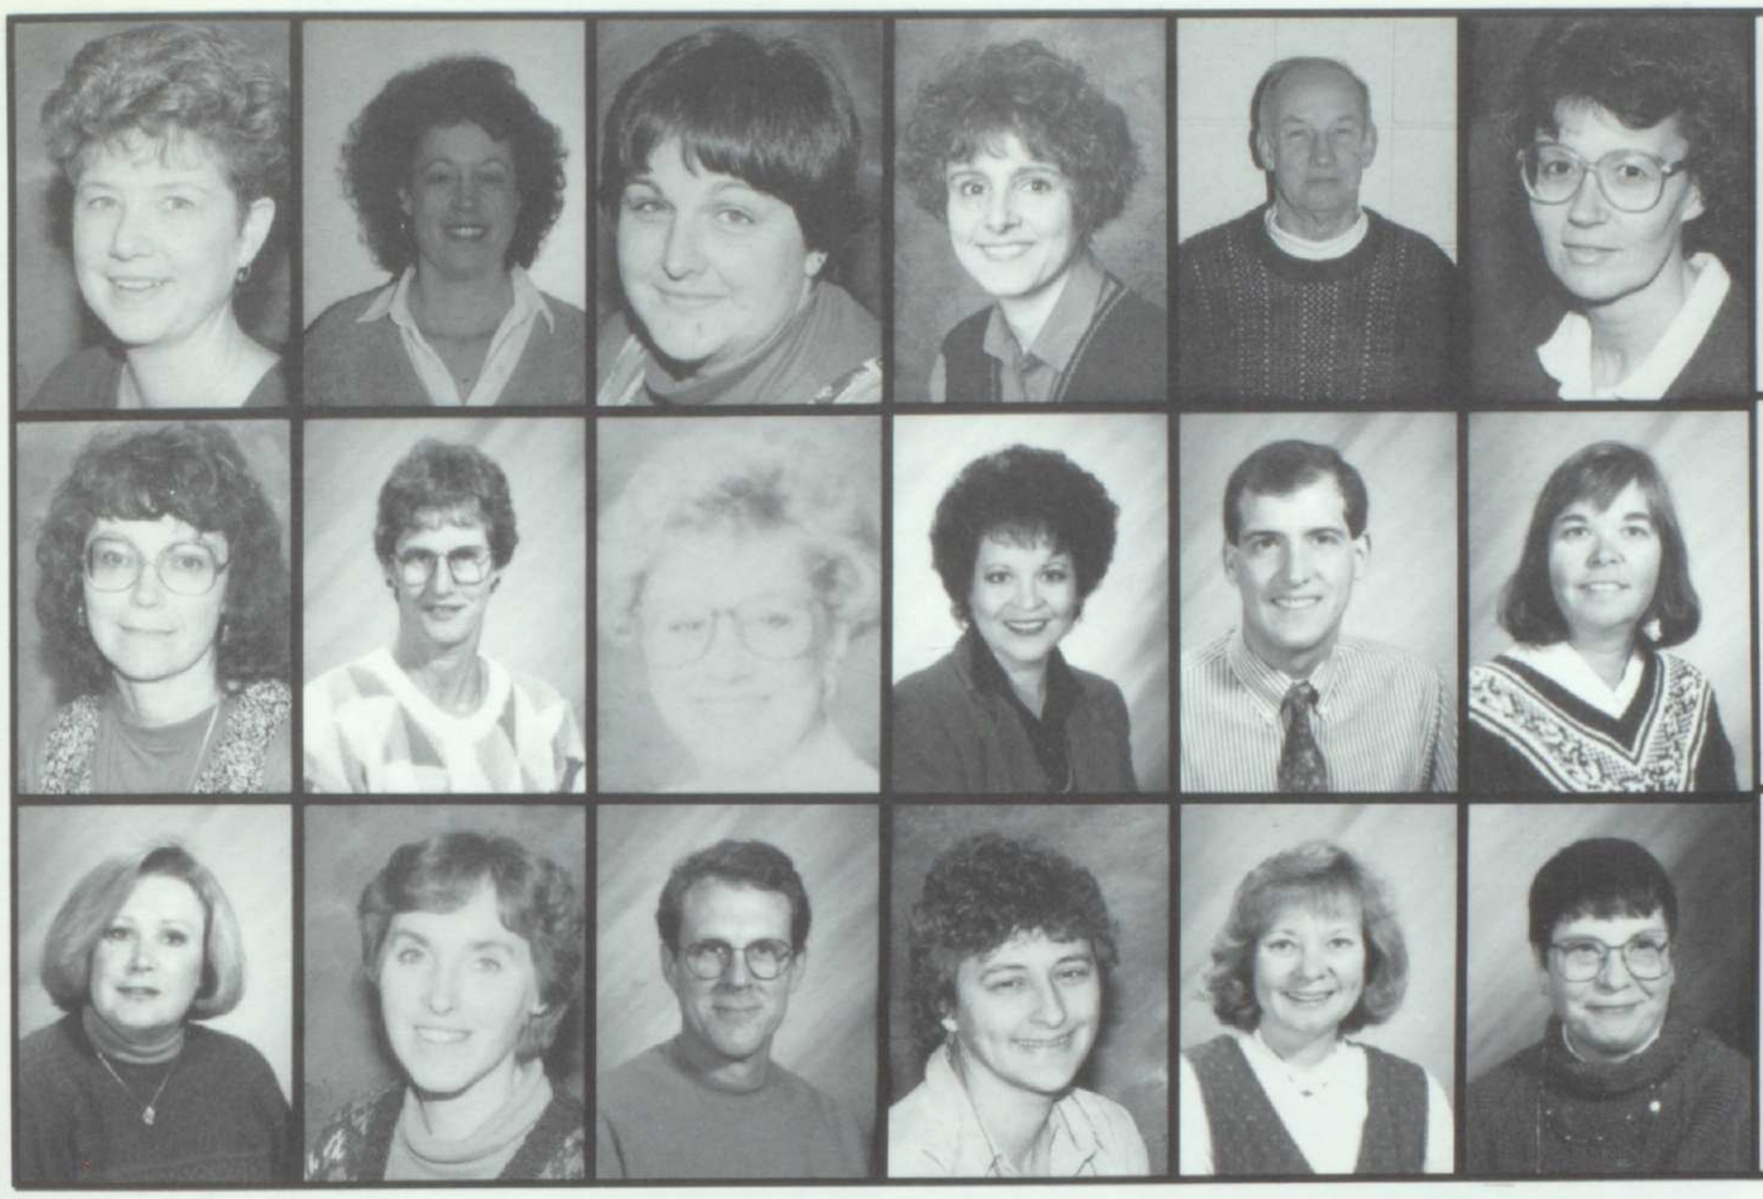

Senior Chad Butler prefers "a teacher who is aware and informed about the world and encourages the education of cultural awareness."

Senior Maja Elnasser simply wants "a teacher that is always in a good mood."

Junior Erin Tunis admires a teacher "that encourages people to stand up for what they believe in and is willing to go the extra distance to help me or his other students."

The qualities a student looks for in a teacher differ depending on the way he or she learns, but an overall concensus from most everyone is that "a teacher should be fair and not play favorites in class."

LINWORTH:
An Alternative Approach

The Linworth Alternative Program offers a different approach to learning for students who choose to attend. The program is designed for those who want more personal control over their education and who are willing to put out an effort to learn to do that. The classes at Linworth are smaller than classes on main campus and place an emphasis on independent work. Linworth students pursue their individual interests and participate in the design of their own schedules.

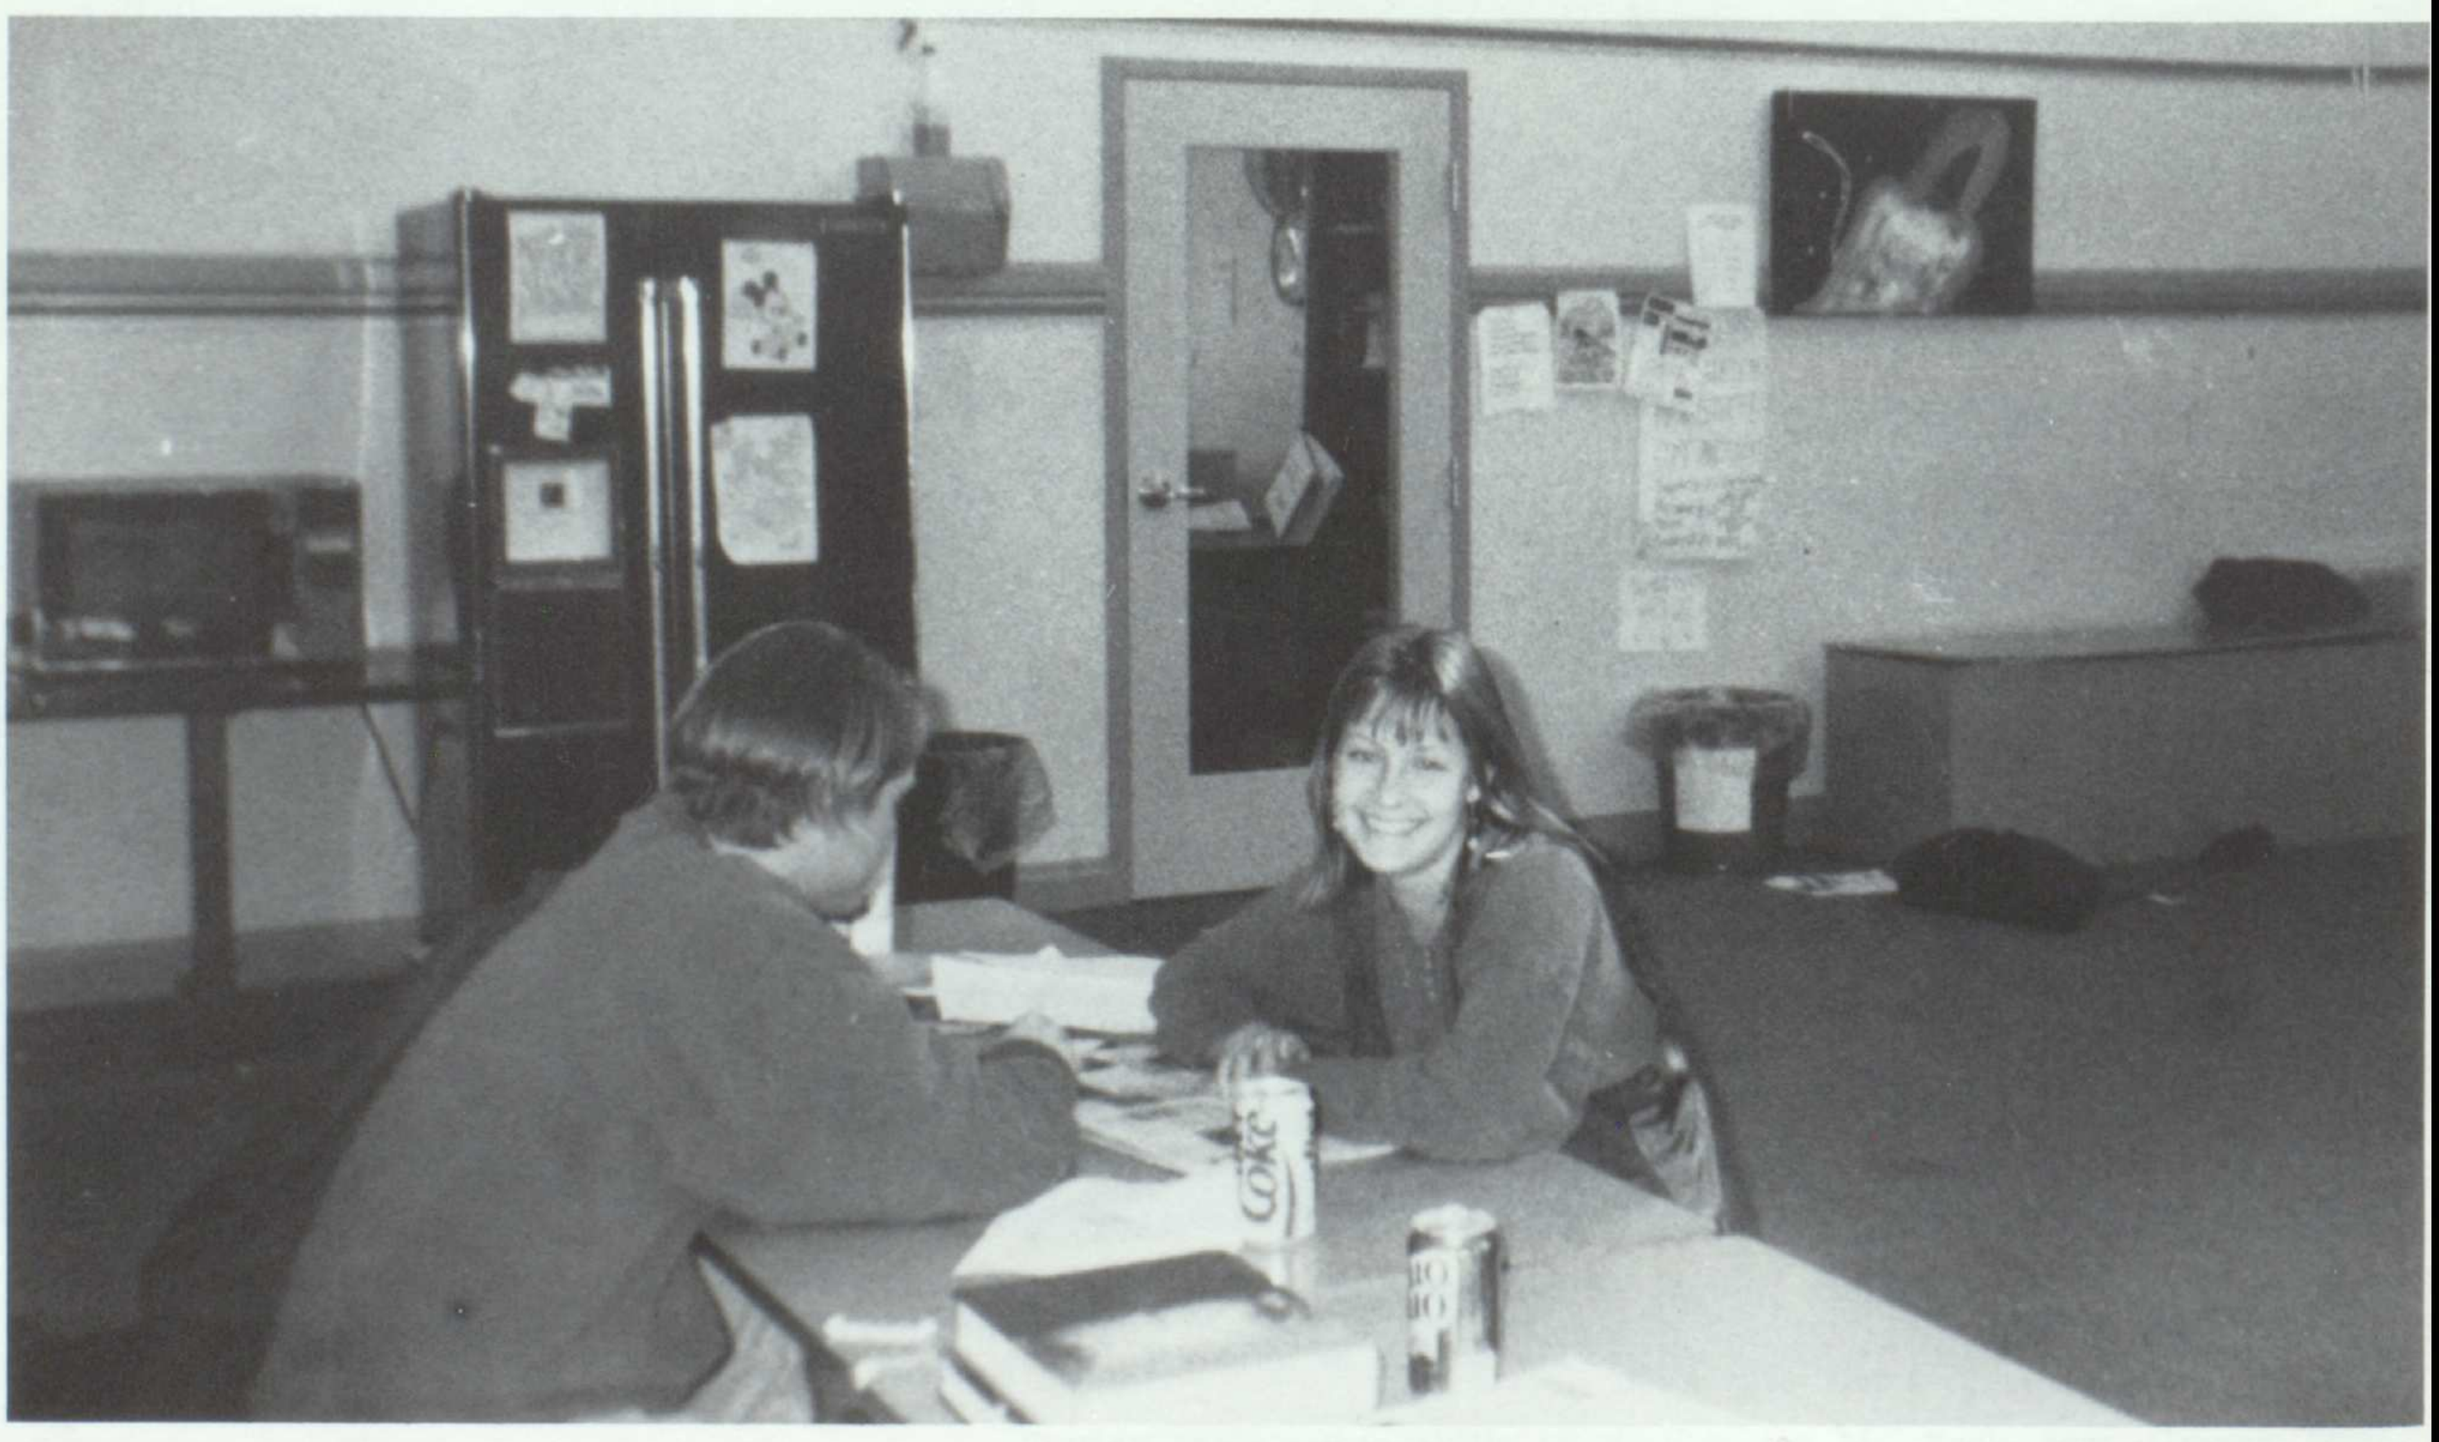

One student, who wants to remain anyonomous, describes the AP Program as a place offering a sense of belonging. It resembles a family. She says, "The teachers are understanding at Linworth. It is like a second family to me, especially because the students are so close."

Every Tuesday, on alternate periods, "town meetings" are held. The goal of the meeting is to create a sense of pride and family. Weekly announcements are made and proposals are formed by students at each meeting. The proposals are usually for fund raisers such as car washes and book sales to raise money to buy paint for wall murals. The meetings also deal with finding solutions to problems that arise and the operation of the school as a whole.

Students that attend Linworth have the opportunity to participate in a Walkabout Program for a portion of the second semester of their senior years. The Walkabout Program allows students to explore career opportunities or college programs and to test their abilities in professional settings. Students may earn college credit and the experience may serve to confirm students' interests in particular fields.

Linworth Alternative School is not for everybody, but it is perfect for students who want a less structured approach to learning and more direct control over their education.

"What do you mean you don't like my hair?" Rita Leal is always willing to make a fashion statement by experimenting with her hair, and obviously, her food.

Could it be love? Stephanie Bowman and Rick Aguirre both have smiles of happiness so big that it proves to us there will be no lover's quarrel in the near furture.

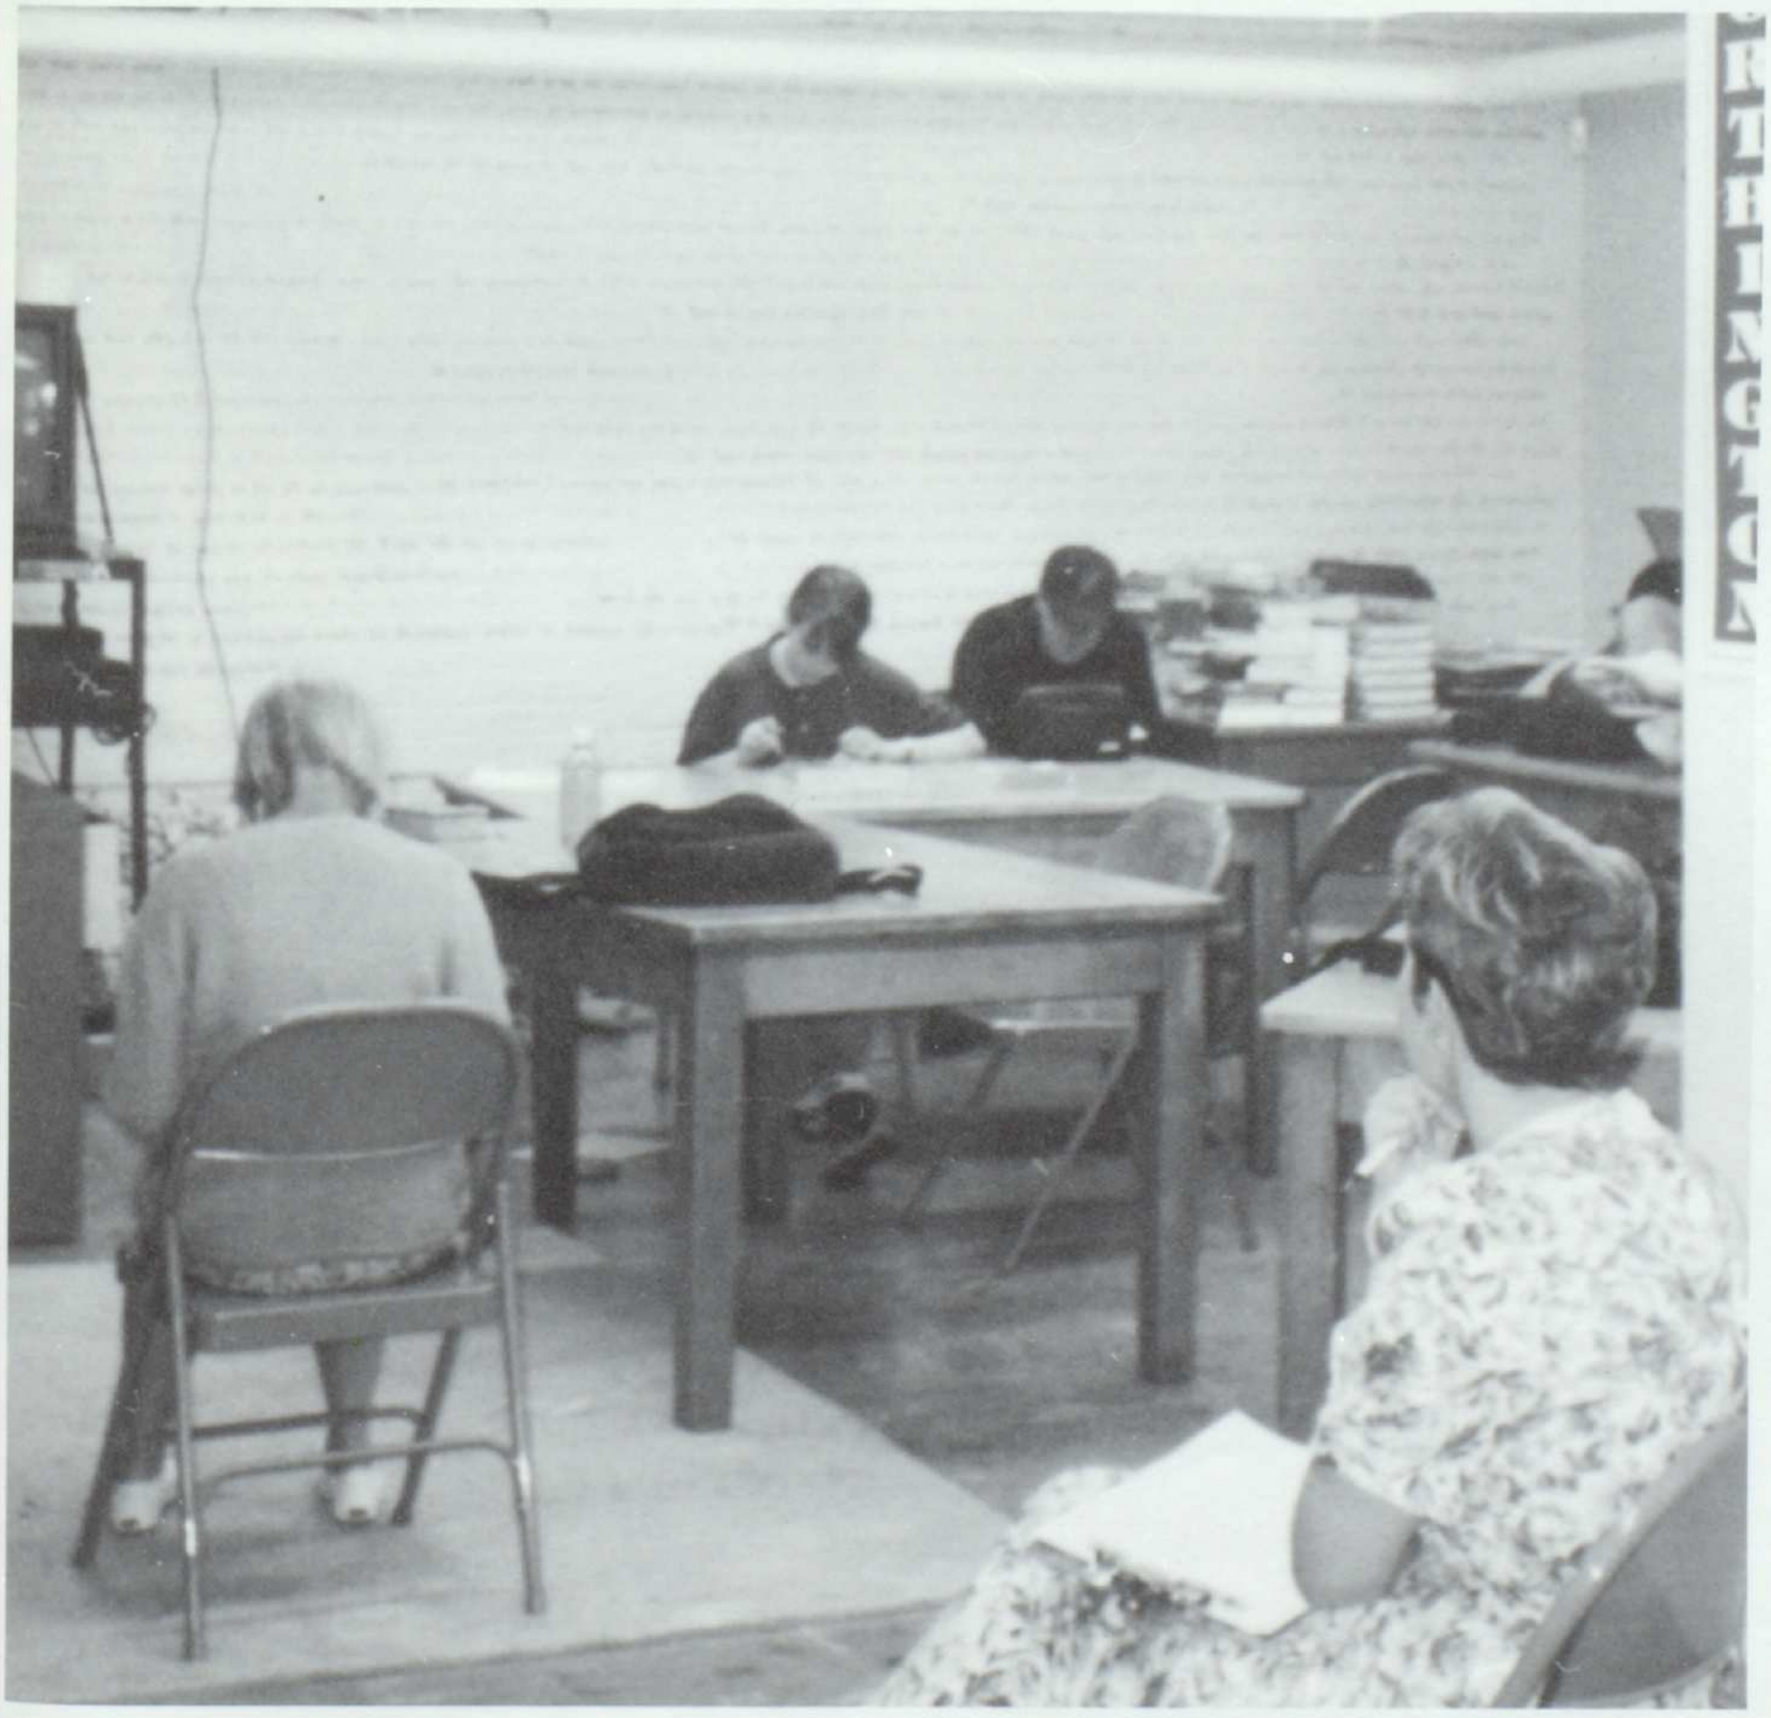

Lounging, gossipping, and working on homework, Susie Lang and her friends find needed time for chilling.

Happy to finally be a senior and graduating, Susan Knorr screams in excitement!

The Linworth secretary, Mel, is busy keeping the paperwork straight for Linworth. Is she planning to go to Burger King for lunch later today?

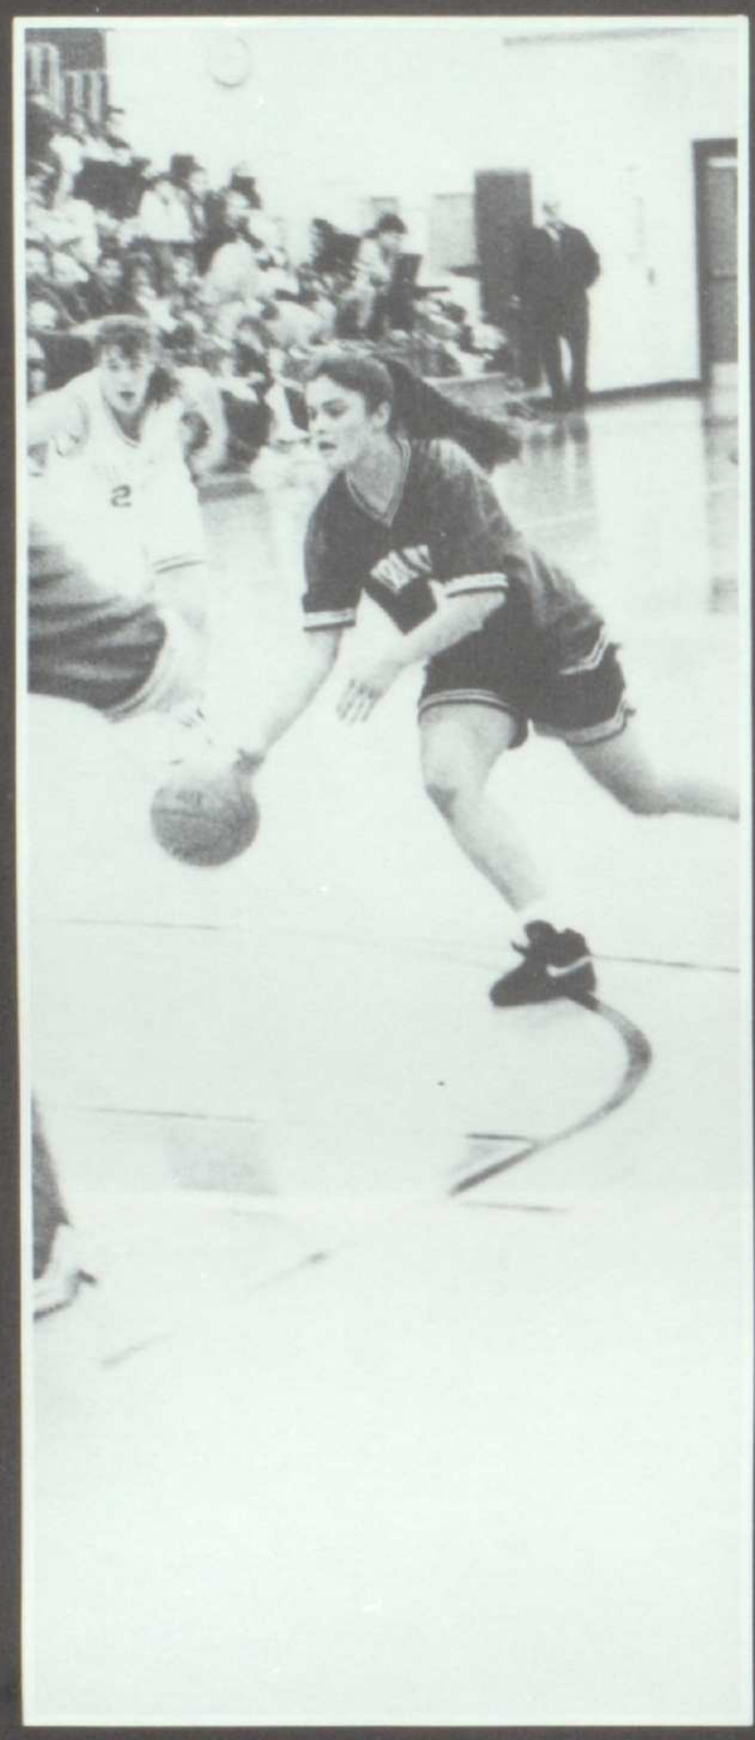

The AP freshmen English class is hard at work. Do you think they are really working or just pretending to work for the camera?

Wolves leave prints in the OCC

A young team last year, the Wolves kickers booted into the season with more maturity. According to head coach Jeff Vincent, "Many of the boys turned into young men this year." Still proud of their team unity, the Wolves repeated as co-champions in the OCC with an undefeated regular season record of 14-0-2.

The fighting royal and black exploded into the playoffs, stomping Linden McKinley (18-0) and defeating Gahanna (2-0). Excited by their number one seeding in the playoffs, the Wolves suffered a disappointing loss to number two-seeded Westerville South (4-2) in the District finals. The Wildcats held a one point lead throughout most of the game until the last minutes when Kilbourne's Chris Fish tied the score at two. The game lapsed into a crucial ten minute overtime when South slipped two goals by to clinch the District final title.

Not only did the team achieve success this year, but many individuals earned prestigious awards as well. Matt Daniel walked away with First Team OCC, district, and state; Adam Fairchild and Andrew Spieth worked hard for First Team OCC, while Paul Smith earned a spot on Second Team. However, all the players worked as a whole to accomplish the success they had this fall.

During the course of the season, the players came together to form a close-knit family. Though the Wolves were shocked in the playoffs, they held their heads high. They showed their pride and sportsmanship with all the class Worthington Kilbourne has to offer. "We put Kilbourne soccer on the map this year!" boasted junior Matt Daniel.

-Amy Roth

"Our teamwork helped us pull off exciting victories."
-Tracy Smith

Hoping for more success every season, the Lady Wolves soccer team worked diligently to improve their skills. They have played together for the past three years and have experienced many exciting victories as they've grown to play as a team. Everyone pulled together this year with high expectations. "The season went pretty well. We just had a little bad luck and missed a few good opportunities," commented Erin Figula.

Unfortunately, they didn't achieve as much as they'd hoped, but they were only one game away from the O.C.C. championship. "As the year went on, we really improved. I'm just sorry to see nine seniors leaving. We will have to build on this year's success," reflected Coach Ted Christman on the overall season with the girls. As the coach for the past three years, he has helped turn the Wolves into a strong, aggressive team.

Some of the players received awards for their great performances: Dana Maurer and Sarah Thompson, First Team O.C.C.; Holly Bell and Heather Niess, Second Team O.C.C.; Heather Noel, Honorable Mention; Megan Decker, Scholar Athlete O.C.C.; and Cara Sieberth, Scholar Athlete All State.

GOLF SCHOLARS

Diamonds in the rough

Teeing off to a new season, the number one goal of this year's golf team was to place third in the OCC and finish in the top four in the sectionals. For years it has been a tradition for Westerville North and Upper Arlington to score lower than the Wolves; still, the golfers drove into this fall with a winning attitude. In the end it paid off. One important match was against St. Charles where the Wolves placed fifth in the tournament. "The level of competition at the St. Charles invitational surprised me," commented Jamey Bach, who finished in second place. The golfers' success continued: the team finished third in the league and sectionals and placed sixth in the districts. "Not only did this year's team play well, but they managed to keep good grades," bragged Bob Pritchard, third year coach. The majority of the golfers also earned school scholar athlete awards.

Three returning lettermen, Jamey Bach, Magi McKinney, and Geoff Cipkala, were great leaders. The golfing Wolves owe much of their success to the these three linksmen who earned the best tournament averages on the team: Magi, 81.9; Jamey, 83.6; and Geoff, 86.0. Magi earned all OCC honors with an 82 average. Jamey and Geoff earned honorable mention with 83 and 84, respectively. Jamey also grabbed the OCC Scholar Athlete Award.

The biggest event of the Wolves' season was the sectionals. The whole team advanced with Jamey placing second with a score of 74. Next came the districts in which Magi played really well. He almost made it to states: at Apple Valley he shot a 78 but missed the cut by one stroke. As a team and individuals, the golfers achieved many of their goals for the season.

SETTING UP

Lady Wolves have a tough season

"The season was peachy from the bench."
-Tammy Pham

"We really improved as the season progressed."
-Sarah Dressler

"It was fun even though we had a tough season."
-Kristen Bielek

The Lady Wolves did not have as promising a season as they had hoped. Varsitiy coach, Cindy Papp, anticipated that the team would have equal wins to losses, but their record of 6-16 fell short. The team consisted of five returning lettermen and five new varsity players. Even though the girls did not have much varsity experience and hadn't worked previously together as a team, Papp hoped for success because "the 1993 team had the best team talent I have ever had."

Their first season win was over New Albany, followed by victory over Buckeye Valley. The netters' best game was against Hilliard, which brought them their third victory. The Hilliard game was also the turning point in the Wolves' season because they played well as a team, did not give up, and stayed aggressive.

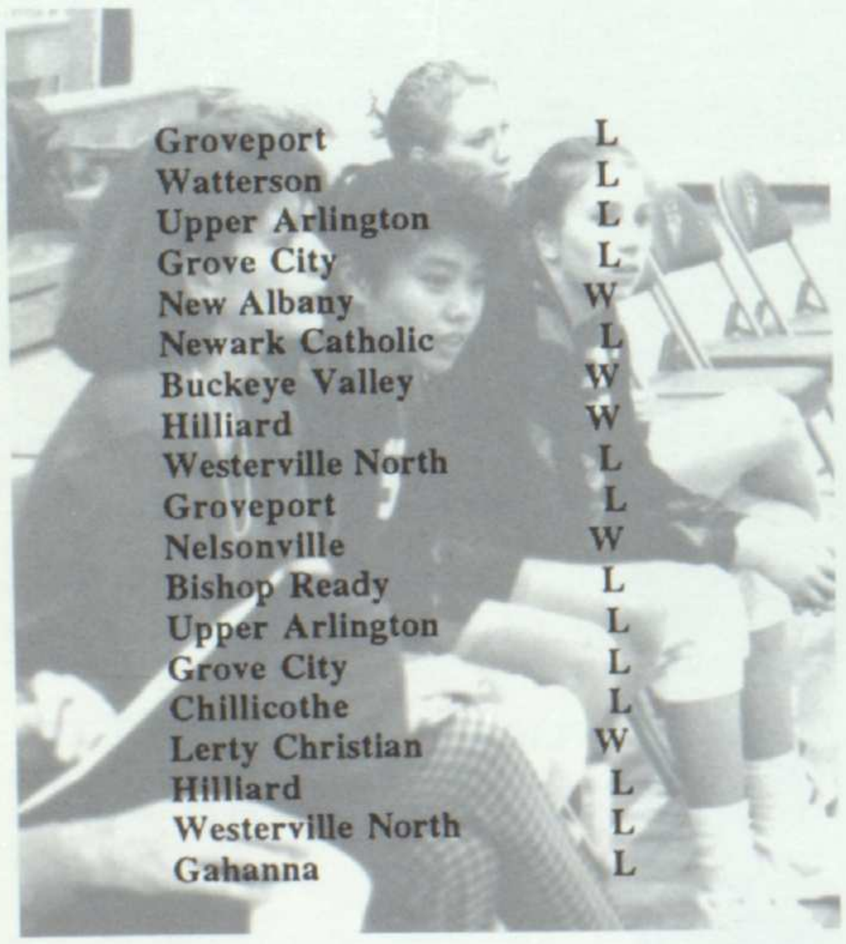

The players agree that they worked well as a whole, illustrated by their third place finish in the Worthington Invitational. Many individuals won awards: at the Worthington Invitational Tricia Merril earned a place on the Worthington Invitational All-Tournament Team; Racquel Panaligan took honorable mention in the league and Amanda Koenigsknecht grabbed second team all OCC honors and honorable mention in the districts. The stats show that Amanda had most kill,145 as well as the highest serving percentage with 88%. The highest hitting efficiency went to Trish Merrill with 12.9%; Racquel made the most service aces, 38, and Tammy Pham, the most defensive digs, 91.

Amanda Koenigschnect, the best player in Papp's eye's, explained ,"We worked well together on the court, but I'm really looking ahead." Coach Papp is looking forward to next year. "This season was a little disappointing. Although our losses were only by a few points, we could have done better. The key to next season will be to work hard and to be unselfish. The girls will have to conditionin the off season and put in hundred percent during the fall."

Wolfpack finishes season strong

Lead by Brandon Bird and Matt Dykes, the Wolves gnawed their way through an exciting and challenging season. "I had more fun coaching this year than ever before!" exclaimed Head Coach Roger Johnson.

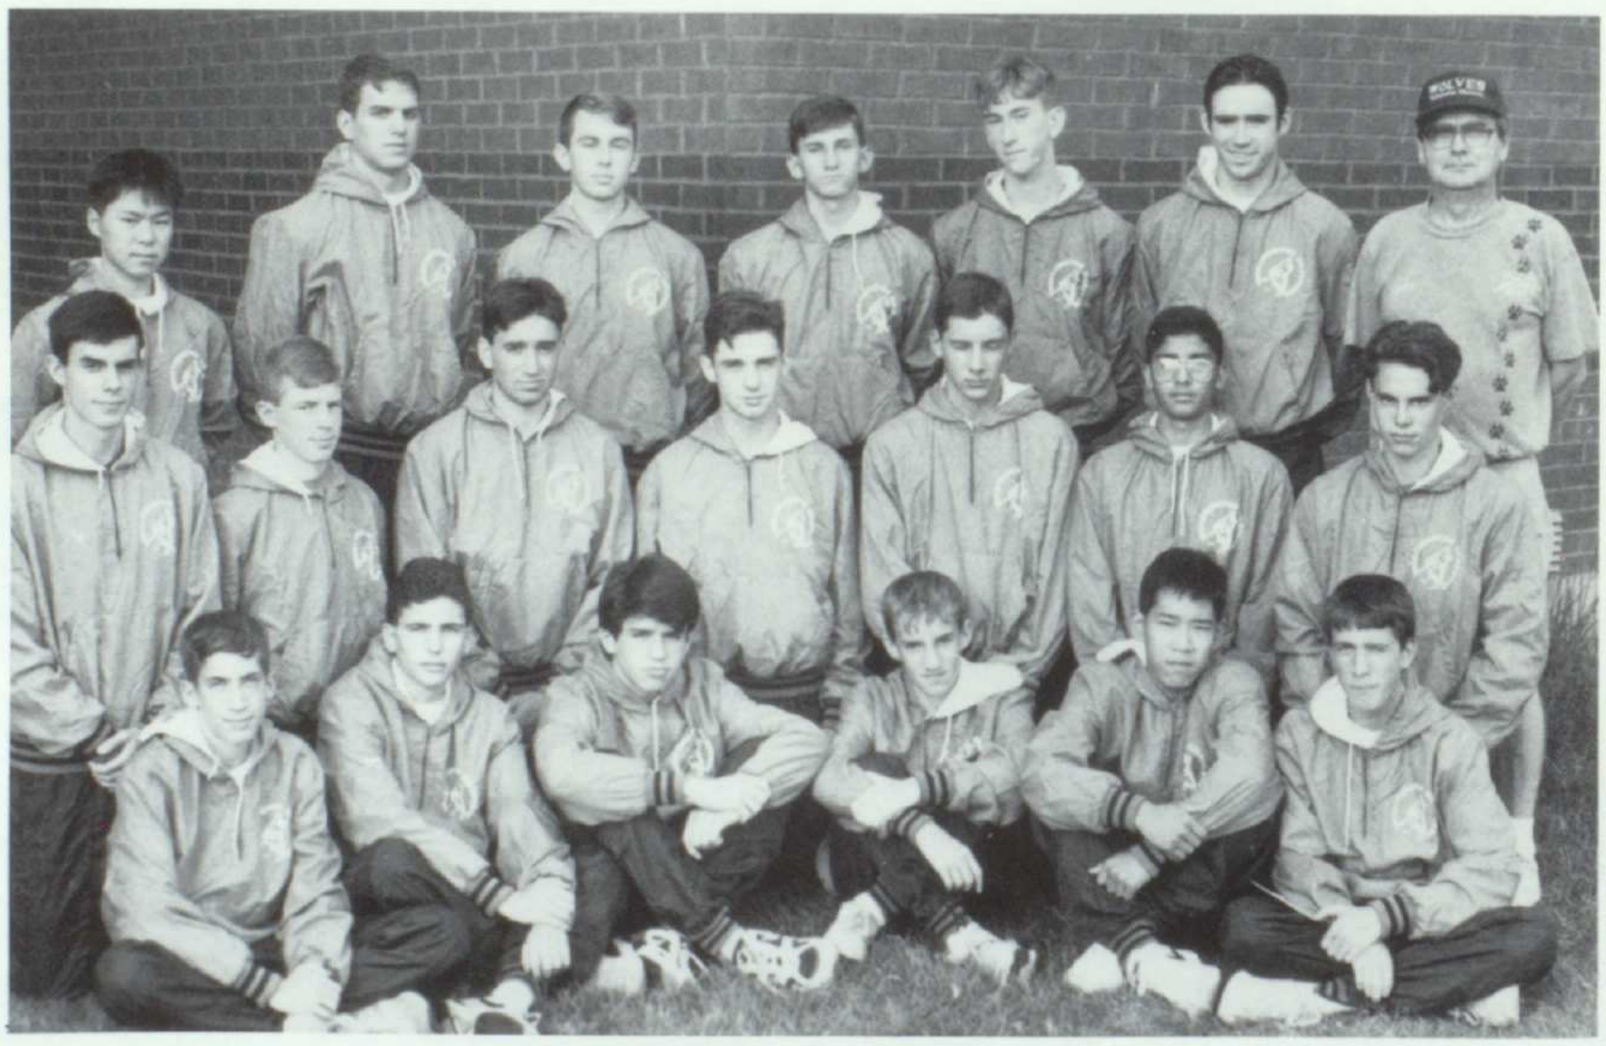

Consistently successful throughout the fall, the Wolves opened the season with a first place finish in the Pickerington Invitational. Conditioning even harder, the guys cross country team raced their way to a victory against archrival Upper Arlington. This performance set the standard for the rest of the year when the Wolves clenched the OCC League Runner-Up and District Championship titles. Coach Johnson explained, "It's a shame we had a bad regional. We could have made it to states with the deepest team I've ever had."

Receiving individual honors: Brandon Bird, Matt Dykes, Chris Kirchhoff, Brian Sieberth, all District; Matt Dykes, First Team all OCC; Brandon Bird, Alan Beymer, Second Team all OCC; Brian Sieberth, Scott Deubner, Chris Kirchhoff, Honorable Mention OCC.

Even after losing senior leaders Brandon Bird, Alan Beymer, and Steve Morris, the 1994 season looks promising for junior standout Matt Dykes and the remaining aggressive Wolves.

Running from the Inside

His feet pound relentlessly, step after step.
Steaming blood surges through his hot veins
Bringing fuel to his muscles
For spent fibers to gorge.
Fed as they're contracting in pain.

There is a small chamber right next to his heart
Where a runner stores inspiration.
If he tires or he falters
These instincts sustain him
Beyond his lucky socks that are worn.

There's a place in his head where he puts racing "smarts,"
Instructions for pacing and race plans,
How to stick with the program,
When to push, when to kick,
How to run the best time that he can.

The race is inside, in his heart, in his head,
In his blood, in his breath, in his bones.
His sweat, snot, saliva
Are external to him
Like the wind and the snow and the rain.

He guests past other runners, moving up one by one,
His spirits is in touch with his goal.
The encouraging cheers
Help keep him from failing,
But the drive comes from deep in his soul.

TOGETHERNESS

Lady Wolves run together all year long

The girls' 1993-1994 cross country team has been improving its record since the opening of our school. From the first day at Worthington Kilbourne, the team has grown and improved. The first year, two girls ran in the regional meet. The second year, the whole team advanced to the regionals. This year, not only did the team make it to regionals, but they all qualified for states. "Sending the team to states this year is quite an accomplishment for a school that has only existed for three years," stated Melanie Justice, the head coach.

The Lady Wolves achieved tenth ranking in the region and finished third in the O.C.C. just behind Upper Arlington and Westerville North, two of the team's arch rivals. Several of the runners earned all league and all district honors: Michelle Martin, First team all O.C.C.; Jeni Moore and Maureen Hacket, Second team all O.C.C.; Heather Bell and Megan Harrison, Honorable Mention. The state competition was the first time for Michelle Martin to compete at that level where she placed in the top half of the state and ran at her second best time, a major accomplishment for a junior.

"The reason why the team did so well this year is because we grew really close during the summer practices," claimed Katie Wojciechowski. Many of the accomplishments of the team resulted from running together on cross country and track so they can support each other all year long. This gives them the added benefits of knowing everyone on the team.

The Lady Wolves are preparing for the future as well as the present. This year the Wolves began a program for McCord Middle School for anyone who enjoys running and is thinking about competing in high school. This also gives the coaches a chance to scout out a few exceptional runners for the future.

-Amy Calhoon

"Most importantly, all of us had fun."
-Summer Kreamer

Inspired by a new coach, Yvette Pederson, the Lady Wolves field hockey team tackled the two-year winless streak by defeating Grandview and Dublin in close games. "We feel like we accomplished something this year. Besides, we don't have to put up with the teasing anymore," stated senior Michelle Wear.

Coach Pederson explained, "The interest of the program has increased." The formation of two squads for the first time illustrated that many more girls tried out this year than in the past. Furthermore, many of the underclassmen experienced more playing time, strengthening the girls' hopes for success in the future.

As the season came to an end, five players earned honors in the Central Ohio Field Hockey League. Juniors Amy Calhoon and Cyndi Maharas were awarded All-League status while juniors Jen Russelo, Stephanie Walcott, and Sarah Castle received All-League Honorable Mention. In addition to the accomplishments on the field, the varsity team maintained a 3.1 G.P.A. throughout the season.

Though the WKHS field hockey team has been together for three years, 1993 will be perceived as the beginning of a promising fall sport.

FAMILY UNITY

Lady Wolves travel and become a family

The 1993-1994 girls' tennis team prided themselves on being a family and gaining the unity that they needed. By traveling to Dayton early in the season for an overnight trip, the team members had the chance to mingle off the court and learn about each other's personalities and develop some rapport.

However, every family faces a few problems. The loss of two team members nearly overwhelmed the entire team. The Mayadev twins' move during the season brought great sadness to all members. Still, "the team continued to mesh and play strong," explained Coach Bobbi Davis.

Ask any of the players and they will tell you that new Assistant Coach Mike Uretsky pushed team unity. He brought to the team a new spirit and inspiration to play the best they could. That the team had to prove themselves added to their spirit. With no seniors graduating, the team was obviously an exceptionally young squad. The advantage to no seniors is that the team will be more experienced for next year.

With all underclassmen, the team needed guidance in order to do well. The tri-captains guided their peers. Sarah Horstmann, Lee Ann Mattes, and Monica Nemecek gave the leadership that everyone needed. Other players felt the pressure as well, as Sophia Yang explained, " One difference between the team last year and this year is that last year I looked up to everyone. This year I had to set an example."

HIGH HOPES

Wolves record doesn't prove effort

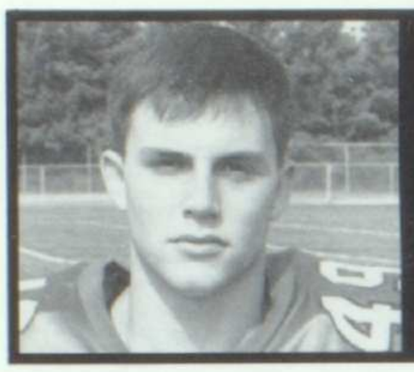

Opening the 1993 season with two wins against Olentangy and Walnut Ridge the Wolves had high hopes of another OCC Championship title. However, a loss in the third game against Westerville South set back their hopes. With a score of 28-6, the team faced their first defeat of several, yet they didn't give up. " I was proud of the 'Never say die' attitude of the team," reflected Head Coach Gafford.

After the game against South, the Wolves were motivated by the previous loss. The game against Dublin was close, but the Wolves succeeded. A touchdown in the first half and a field goal in the second half guaranteed them another win.

The team played a competitive schedule. At the Homecoming game, they faced their archrival, Grove City. A few mistakes cost them the game with a final score of 10-3. All season the fighting Wolves gave their opponents a run for their money. The Chillicothe game was in the team's grasp untilthe last 58 seconds when the Cavaliers kicked a field goal to bring the score to 17-16. The Wolves didn't give up; unfortunately, their attempts to take the ball up the field were met by Chillicothe's defense.

The season ended with a record of 3-7-0, a statistic that doesn't reflect the effort of the team; the Wolves worked hard to win the games but fell just short in several. "We had a long and trying season. We had the talent, but we couldn't put it together," Gregg Reynolds.

Shooting to victory

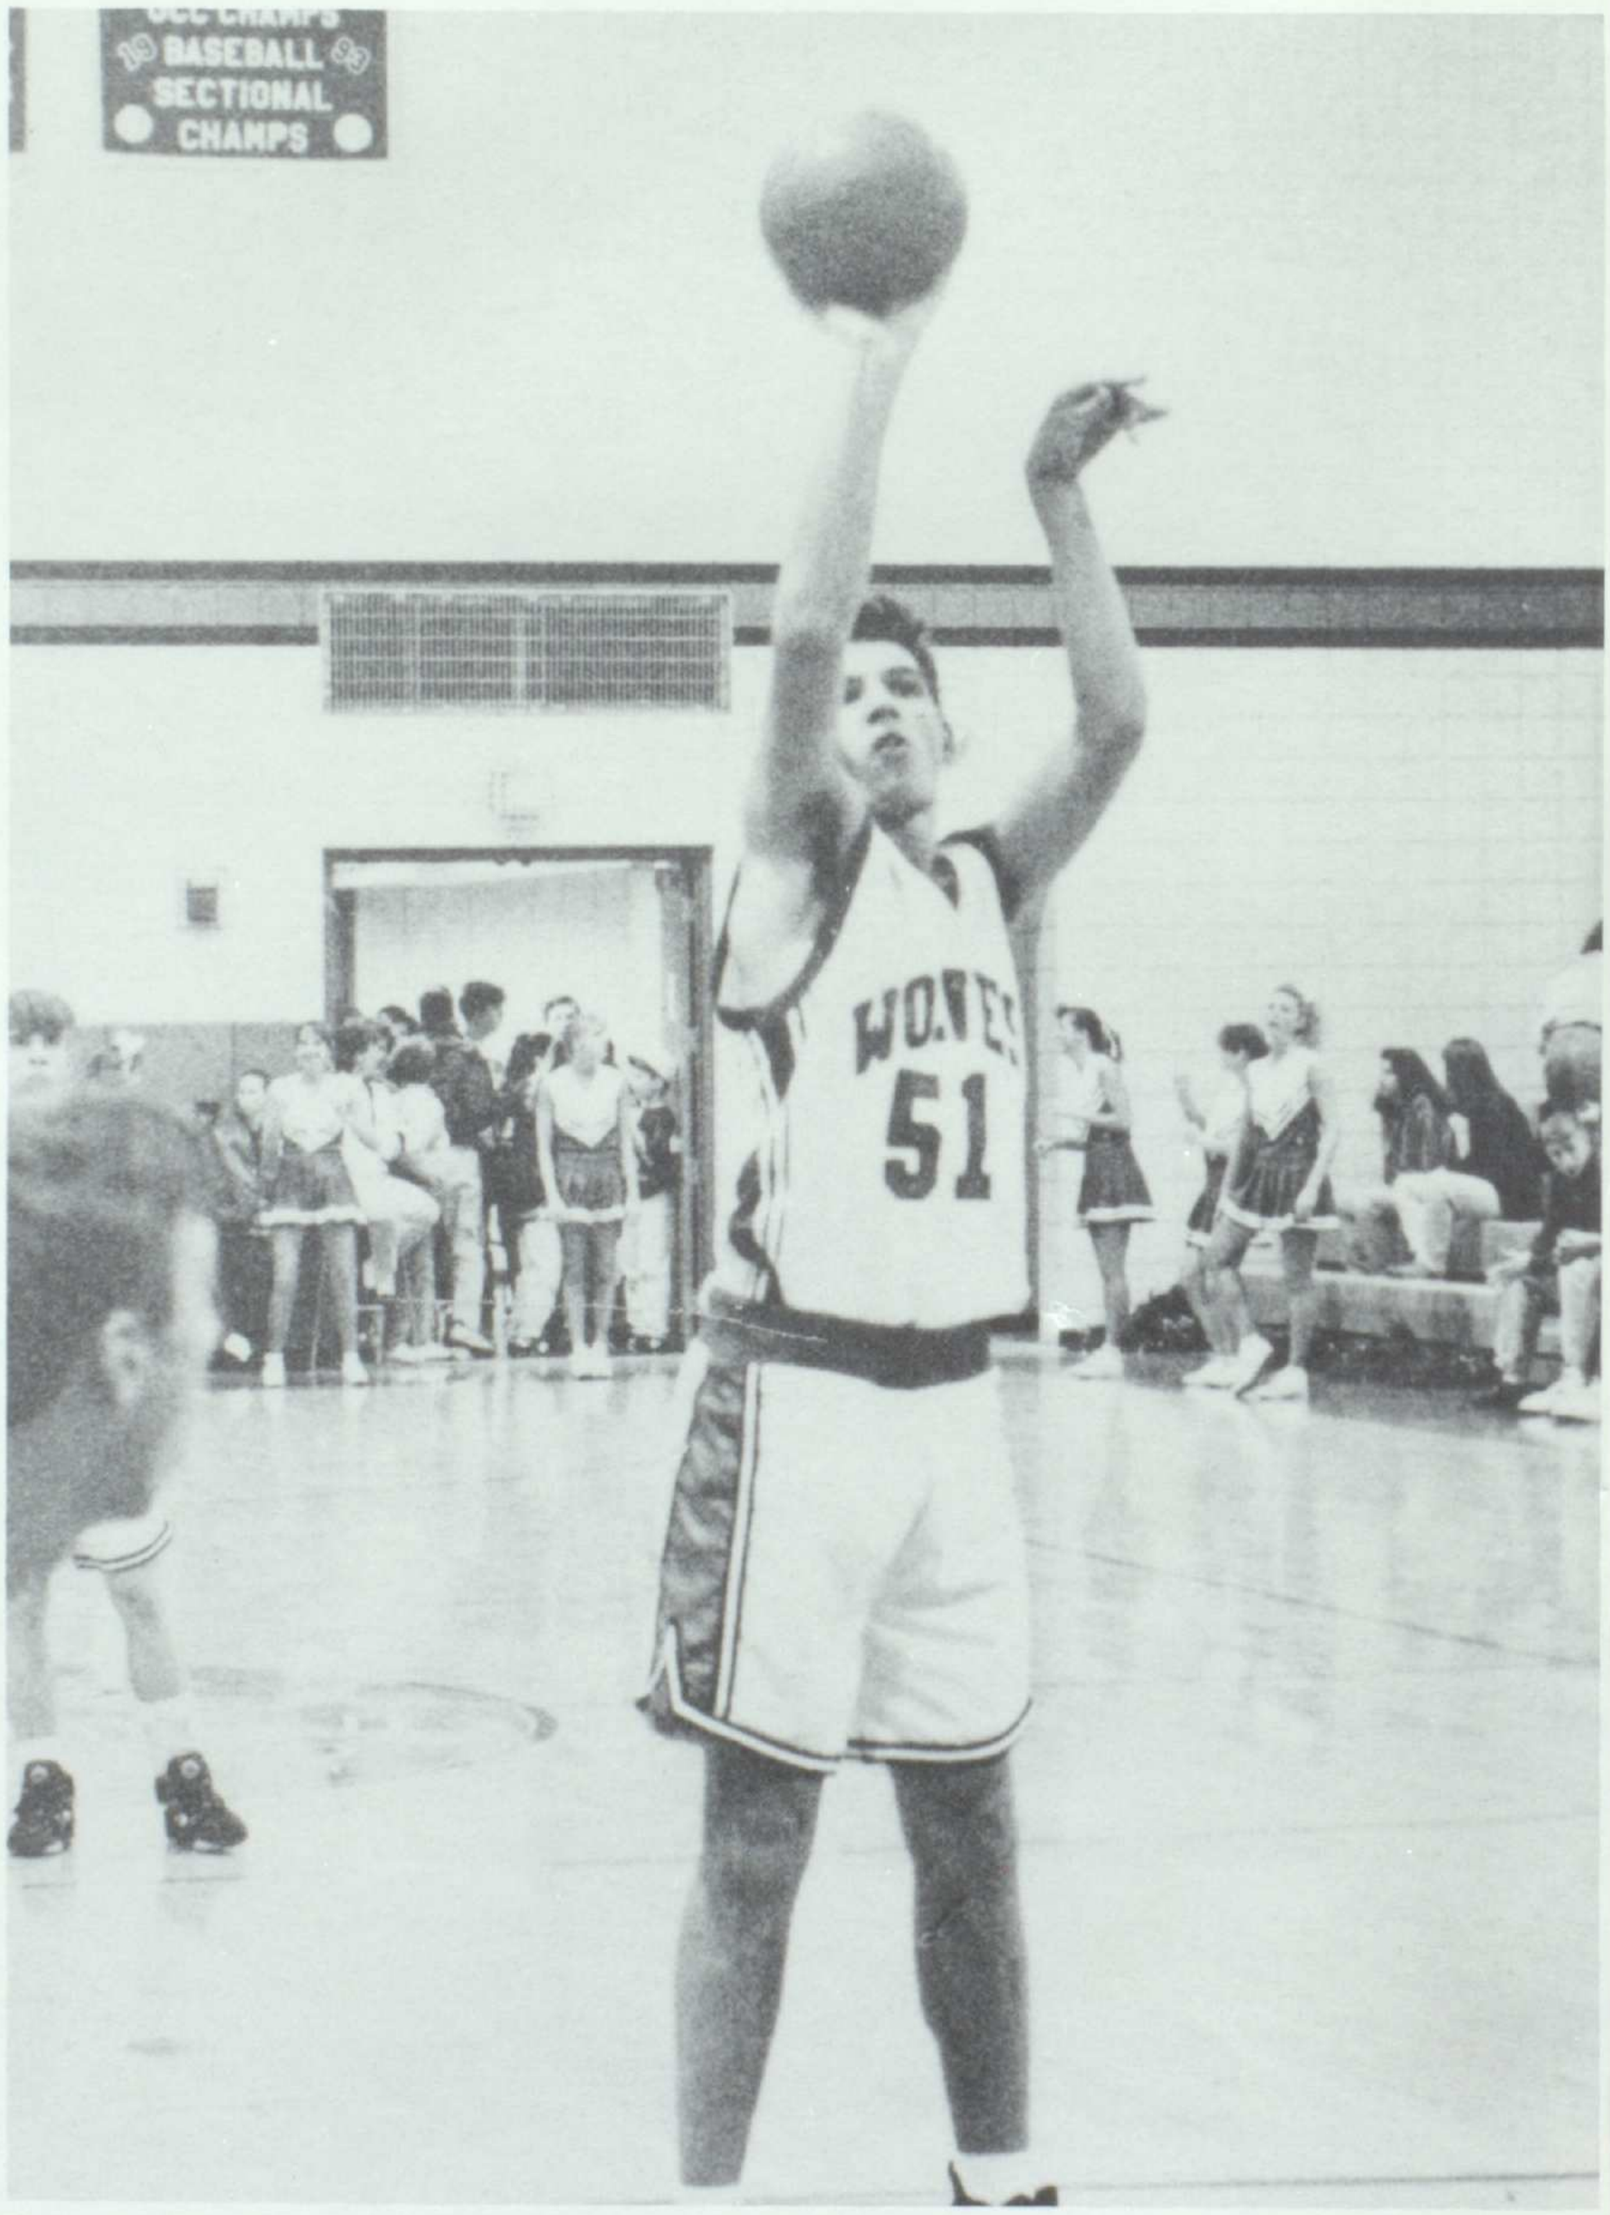

After disappointing performances in the past, the Wolves basketball team improved this year's record by winning seven of the twenty league games. "This was one of the most challenging seasons to date," explained Head Coach Bob Lee.

The squad opened with a close overtime loss to Centennial but bounced back with positive offensive play. "We really started to play well together toward the end of the season," stated sophomore Stefan Walker. Convincingly proving their strength, the guys won four of their last five games.

Earning awards were sophomore Stefan Walker, Second Team OCC and sophomore Chad Sprecher, Honorable Mention. "The future of this basketball club looks positive and exciting," concluded Coach Lee. Kilbourne's five starters will return next year in addition to the twelve-and-five freshmen.

BOUNCING BALLS

The Lady Wolves end up 8-14

The girls' basketball team faced an uphill battle this year. After losing star player, Sarah Kirsch, Kilbourne needed the others to step up and take her place, but no player assumed that leadership position. "No one fulfilled her potential," senior Tri-captain Lori Belford commented; "the problem was that not everyone cared this year. If you don't care, then why try?" This attitude turned the season into a disappointment. "The girls didn't play the way I know they are capable of playing," Coach Tom Gerhardt explained.

Despite the negatives, some positives helped. Along the side of Gerhardt was newcomer Assistant Coach Tami Phillips, a former Dublin assistant who transferred to Kilbourne. Another newcomer was junior Sarah Dressler. She was a major help to the team in scoring. The girls could rely on Dressler to make her last minute shots in the most under-pressure moments of a game.

Team awards included Most Valuable player, sophomore Amanda Koenigshnect; Foul Shots Award, junior Sarah Dressler; Coaches Award and Most Improved, senior Cindy Wolfe; Best Defensive player, who else besides Sarah Thompson herself. League Awards went to Amanda Koenigshnect for Second Team all O.C.C. and Honorable Mention to Sarah Dressler.

Mat madness

After opening the season by pounding Grove City into the mat (50-22), the Kilbourne wrestlers came up short against archrival Upper Arlington (26-31). However, the Wolves scrambled back to capture third place in the league and finish the season out, 7-3. "We displayed a solid team attitude which contributed to the great success we achieved," expressed Head Coach Paul Bukky.

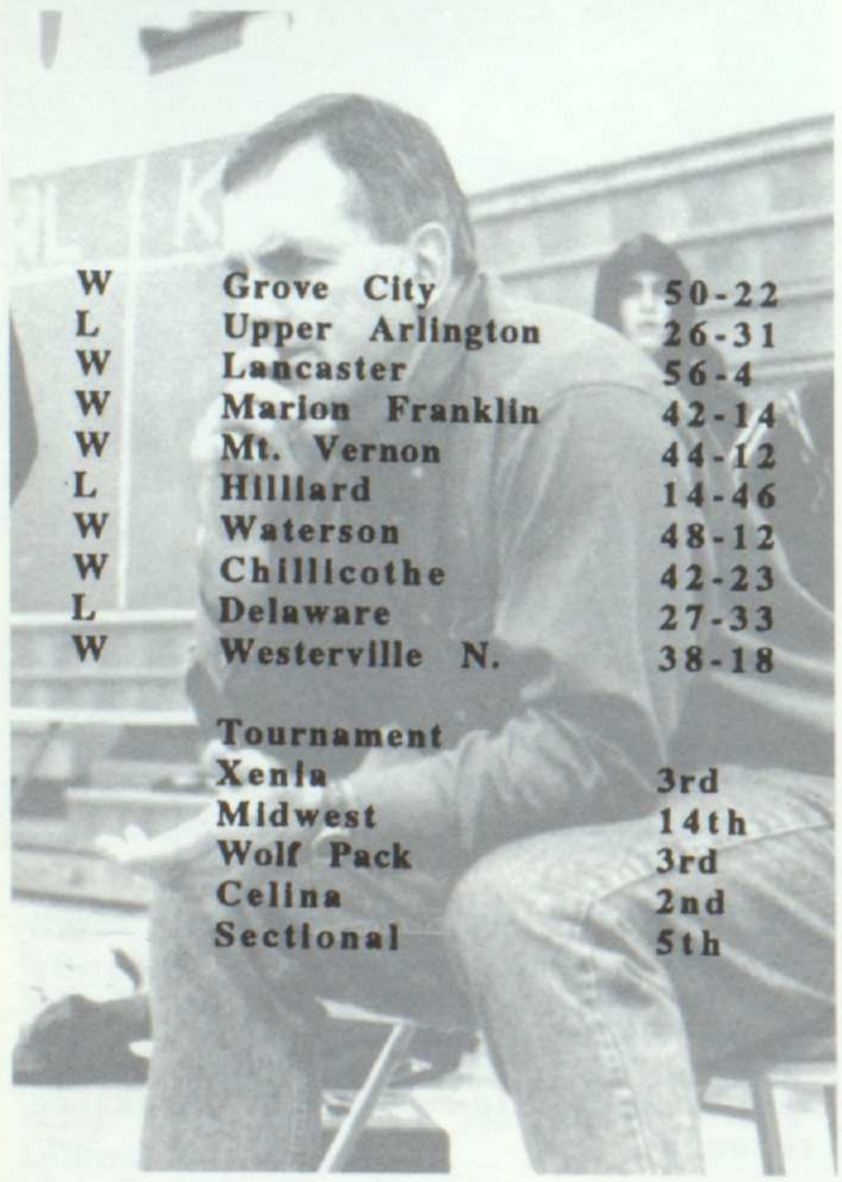

Wrestling to the top was senior Eric Ewald who qualified for the state tournament. Even without capturing the OCC title, the strong-willed wrestlers managed to establish themselves as a prominent threat in the conference. Although four seniors will retire, the team looks to be successful with upcoming young leadership.

Honors include Eric Ewald and Jason Miles, First Team OCC; Pete Rothermel and Brad Todd, Second Team OCC; and Jack Cahill, Honorable Mention. "We trained long and hard all season; it's nice to see it pay off with an exceptional record," stated senior Jason Miles.

A TUMBLING TEAM

Lady Wolves have their best season

The Lady Wolves gymnastics team dominated their opponents after improving their skills over the past twelve months. All the girls returned plus some new faces joined the team including a new assistant coach. "It was hard to adjust to the new coach and the new girls before the season started," senior Tri-captain Kristen Bielek explained, "but we all got along better than any other team." A few injuries plagued the team early in the season. Senior Kari Vaas sprained her ankle and when she returned healthy, senior Michelle Grey experienced the same injury.

Still, the girls enjoyed hard earned success. Defeating Hilliard and Desales prepared them for first place at the Sheridan Invitational. Their fifth place finish in the O.C.C. also pleased the ladies. They won the "Team Spark Plug Award" at the district meet where they finished fourth. Overall, this was the girl gymnasts best season yet.

The leading scorer for the Lady Wolves was junior Kim Kirshner, a state qualifier for the floor exercize. She finished fifth in the state and was voted Most Valuable Player by her teammates. Senior Tri-captain Kari Vaas earned Most Spirited and Scholar Athlete O.C.C. and Erin McGill was Most Improved. Coach Cindy Fushimi received Coach of the Year for all her great efforts.

TURNING HEADS

Wolves Place Second at States

Coach Rob Strohl has been the boys' gymnastics coach for quite some time. He lead the Wolves to the state meet this year where the team finished second. That is an incredible turn around from last year. "We really improved from the year before," senior Mike Feeney commented on the team's impressive accomplishments. The Wolves broke five school records during the regular season.

The newcomers this year helped the team out. The Wolves worked together and spent many hours in the weight room, bulking up. Last year they were young and small, but not this year.

This has been the best season yet for the Wolves; unfortunately, it is also their last. Boys' gymnastics has been canceled from the co-curricular program because of budget deficits. Many, especially the gymnasts, are upset at the loss of the gymnastics team.

MOTIVATION

Girls achieve higher goals

The Girls' 1993-1994 swim team lost some talented swimmers last year, but they did well this year for a small team by receiving sixth place at districts and thirty-sixth place at states. This is a great improvement compared to last year's seventh place at districts and forty-fifth place at states.

Not only did the team do better than last year, but they gained more team spirit. "The captains and the coaches did a great job of motivating the team," explained Erin Hartong.

Senior Sandy Holmberg believed, "The new freshman on the diving team made the season exciting and strong." This was possible with their new insights on motivation.

This year Sandy Holmberg placed fifth in states, and she and Mandi Allinder both qualified at states. Although these achievements are individual goals and swimming and diving is an individual sport, it is obvious to anyone who watches the meets, that everyone takes care each other and there are no individuals on this team.

TEAM UNITY

Boys place high in states

The boys' swimming and diving team has grown since the first year at Worthington Kilbourne. Even with additional members on the team, they became a closer unit in what is usually an individual sport. "The key to success is becoming a team with a strong sense of unity," stated Jon Keeling.

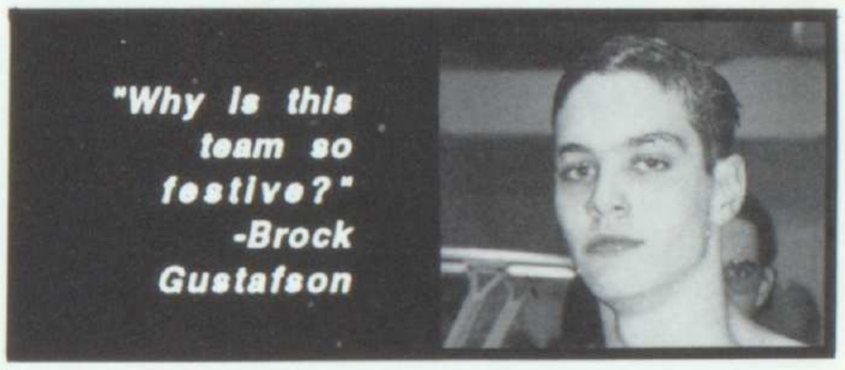

Senior captains Sean Milligan and Brock Gustafson used this philosophy to guarantee the success of the team. The team received fourth in districts and eighteenth in states. That's pretty impressive compared to last year's score with seventh at districts and forty-fifth at states. Although this year's seniors will be gone, the success they helped create will continue next year with juniors Geoff Gear and Henry Walker. With these two captains, the team is sure to go far. Geoff qualified for nationals and was named All American. Henry's leadership skill and Geoff's talent should take the team far.

With only three guys on the team, the divers also did well during the season. Brandon Gustafson and Tim Tindall were two of the three divers who received high honors at districts, fifth and sixth respectively. They were small in number but mighty in talent.

This year the Worthington Kilbourne girls' track team had a bit of a struggle. Losing Sarah Kirsch and Debbie Burdette in the shot and disc put a damper on the team's scoring. Still, the girls did their best. "Even though the team consisted of few seniors and many freshmen, we handled ourselves well," explains Coach Melanie Justice.

The 4x400 relay team surprised everyone with their unknown talent. The four, Kelly McLean, Maureen Hacket, Key Shakoor, and Kari Vaas, dropped the record time by five seconds. They advanced to the Regionals and were then eliminated.

Only four seniors will be graduating this year: Heather Bell, Kelly McLean, Cara Sieberth, and Kari Vaas. These four have been in the program since they came to high school. They will be missed by everyone.

Competing to win, freshman Ifey Chukwumah runs hard.

Power running to the hurdle, senior Kari Vaas leads the race.

Getting a good start in the 100m dash, Kaori Miyadera doesn't worry about having a bad hair day.

Running with all their might, juniors Maureen Hacket and Michelle Martin pace themselves together just like Coach Sprunger wants.

Powering over the hurdle, Jackie Piero takes the lead.

Flying high, senior Robb Cotter tries not to hit the bar in the pole vault.

Blowing up a storm, junior Don Stickel has a good start for the 100 meter dash.

Clearing the high jump bar, Kimar Morris safely lands on the mat.

Approaching the hurdle, senior Matt Rieser is confident that he won't fall on his face.

PERSONAL BEST

Second at states is bittersweet

The Worthington Kilbourne boys' track team has had few problems competing. They have always been strong in the hurdles, sprint relays and the distance events. The Wolves were undefeated in six invitational meets this year and runners-up in the O.C.C., District and Regional meets.

Coach Roger Johnson lead them to more competition at the state meet where the 4x800 relay team placed second. "I can always rely on the guys to follow through 'til the end for me," Coach Roger Johnson commented about his runners.

Many of the athletes earned awards. All O.C.C. Honorable Mention: Matt Rieser, Steve Min, Don Stickel, Scott Deubner, and Matt Cowgill. First team all O.C.C.: Matt Dykes, Robb Cotter, Steve Morris, Paul Wojciechowski, Eric Strickland, Alan Beymer, and Brandon Bird. The state meet qualifiers consist of Alan Beymer, Matt Dykes, Steve Morris, and Brandon Bird. Placing 6th in the state in the 1600 meter run, Brandon Bird won all Ohio designation as did Alan Beymer who placed 5th in the 800 meter dash. Since the boys are seniors, they will be moving on and plan on running for colleges in the fall. The team had a wonderful season, but next year they hope to do as well.

IMPROVEMENTS

Lady Wolves beat O.C.C. rivals

The Wolves softball team began the season with a new coach, and it is no coincidence that their record has improved. "Mr. Strohl came to help us and he succeeded even though our record doesn't show it. Next year we will be a powerful team," stated Andrea Rousey.

It is obvious that Head Coach Rob Strohl has transferred his skills from men's gymnastics to softball with great ease. The gymnastics team had great confidence in its team members and so does the softball team.

Many think that team unity is what helped the girls to do as well as they did. Although the record doesn't show the potential greatness of the team, anyone in the crowd will agree that these players will grow in the future.

This year the team beat one of its rivals to gain a second O.C.C. victory this year. The girls overcame powerhouse Chillicothe in a close, tough game with a score of 2-1. Also, the girls kept many of their opponents from scoring huge numbers of runs against them. For example, the first game against Chillicothe in a 10-15 defeat.

As far as seasons go, this is the best the Lady Wolves have played. They expect their success continue in the future.

O.C.C. CHAMPS

Boys are ranked seventh in the state

By looking at the record of this year's Wolves baseball team, one would think that the team has been around for more than three years. Not many teams could have established themselves as such as powerhouse after existing for such a short period of time.

The team which was ranked as high as seventh in the state became O.C.C. Central Division and Sectional Champions. That's pretty impressive for a young school. A team that talented put Coach Paul Roman in the running for Coach of the Year, which he received. With a three year over-all record of 42-29-1, who wouldn't deserve an honor that great?

With these honors, many of team members received individual awards. Junior Mike Lockwood was named 1st team All O.C.C., All District, and Player of the Year. Ronnie Grimes was also named 1st team All O.C.C. and All District and Jason Trott received 1st team All O.C.C. Josh Doughty was honored with 2nd team All O.C.C. and Chris Klemann was awarded Honorable Mention.

The girls' lacrosse team began pre-season a bit unprepared. With only one defense person returning, the team had a few holes; however, that one defense person was the goalie, Jaime Bauer, the one player they desperately needed. The team had to rebuild for the second time in its history. This may have put them at a disadvantage at the beginning, but it all worked out in the end.

Even though the defense had to start from scratch, the team had great guidance this year because of the eight seniors and the five juniors returning to play on varsity. With captains Erica Hardesty, Amy Roth, and Renee Setzer, the team improved as the girls overcame their rivals and showed them that they can't be scored upon easily. Many close scores, such as 9-15 against Columbus Academy, proved this to be true. Their major accomplishment according to Nicole Kaitsa:"When we beat Hudson, we had the greatest feeling of success. I think it was the most memorable game with the score of 8-3."

RUNNERS-UP

Stickmen prove strength

The Worthington Kilbourne lacrosse team entered the '94 season dwelling in the shadow of last year's team. Without high expectations, the Wolves suprised fans and rival teams with a 6-0 start. However, the guys were stunned when underdog Hilliard upset them in a close match. Rising above the upset, the stickmen boosted their confidence with impressive wins over Cranbrook Academy, Thomas Worthington, and Shadyside. "Our team experienced an extreme 180 degree turn around from game to game," stated junior standout Andres Castrillon.

Jumping into the Midwest Tournament, the Wolves took control over their two opponents. Unfortunately, the talented goalie from Cranbrook played a one-man defense; thus, Kilbourne sucumbed to a disappointing loss. Still, the state tournament proved the magnificant strength of the Kilbourne offense. "We beat Cincinnati Moeller; that's something our past teams couldn't do," exclaimed senior Brian Niess.

The team advanced forward to upset St. Ignatius and move into the state championship versus Upper Arlington. The '94 lacrosse team ended the season as runners-up to Ted Wolford's Golden Bears. "There are many teams that would give anything to trade places with us. We're very pleased with our accomplishments," explained Head Coach Bill Wolford.

HARD WORK

Tennis team has best season to date

The 1994 tennis season marked the year for the guys' greatest success to date. Ranked high in the area throughout the season the Wolves ended up second in the OCC behind archrival Upper Arlington. "It's unfortunate that someone had to lose. Both teams played really well in that exciting league match-up," explained junior Ari Sinharoy.

In doubles competition, senior Ryan Cain and junior Lee Hays reached the state meet when they lost a close third set tiebreaker in the quarterfinals.

The team overcame many obstacles through hard work and dedication. "There were times when we felt a lot of pressure after a close defeat. Our Head Coach, Bobbie Davis, did very well keeping our heads up," stated senior Bill Weidner. Kilbourne looks forward to the return of guys' tennis in '95. "We have a lot of talent returning next year in addition to some new players," concluded Head Coach Bobbie Davis.

"We pressured ourselves to achieve our goals."
-Dan Everett

"I hope next year's team can finally play in the state final."
-Justin Filia

"It was our strongest team since the schools split up."
-Will Rutherford

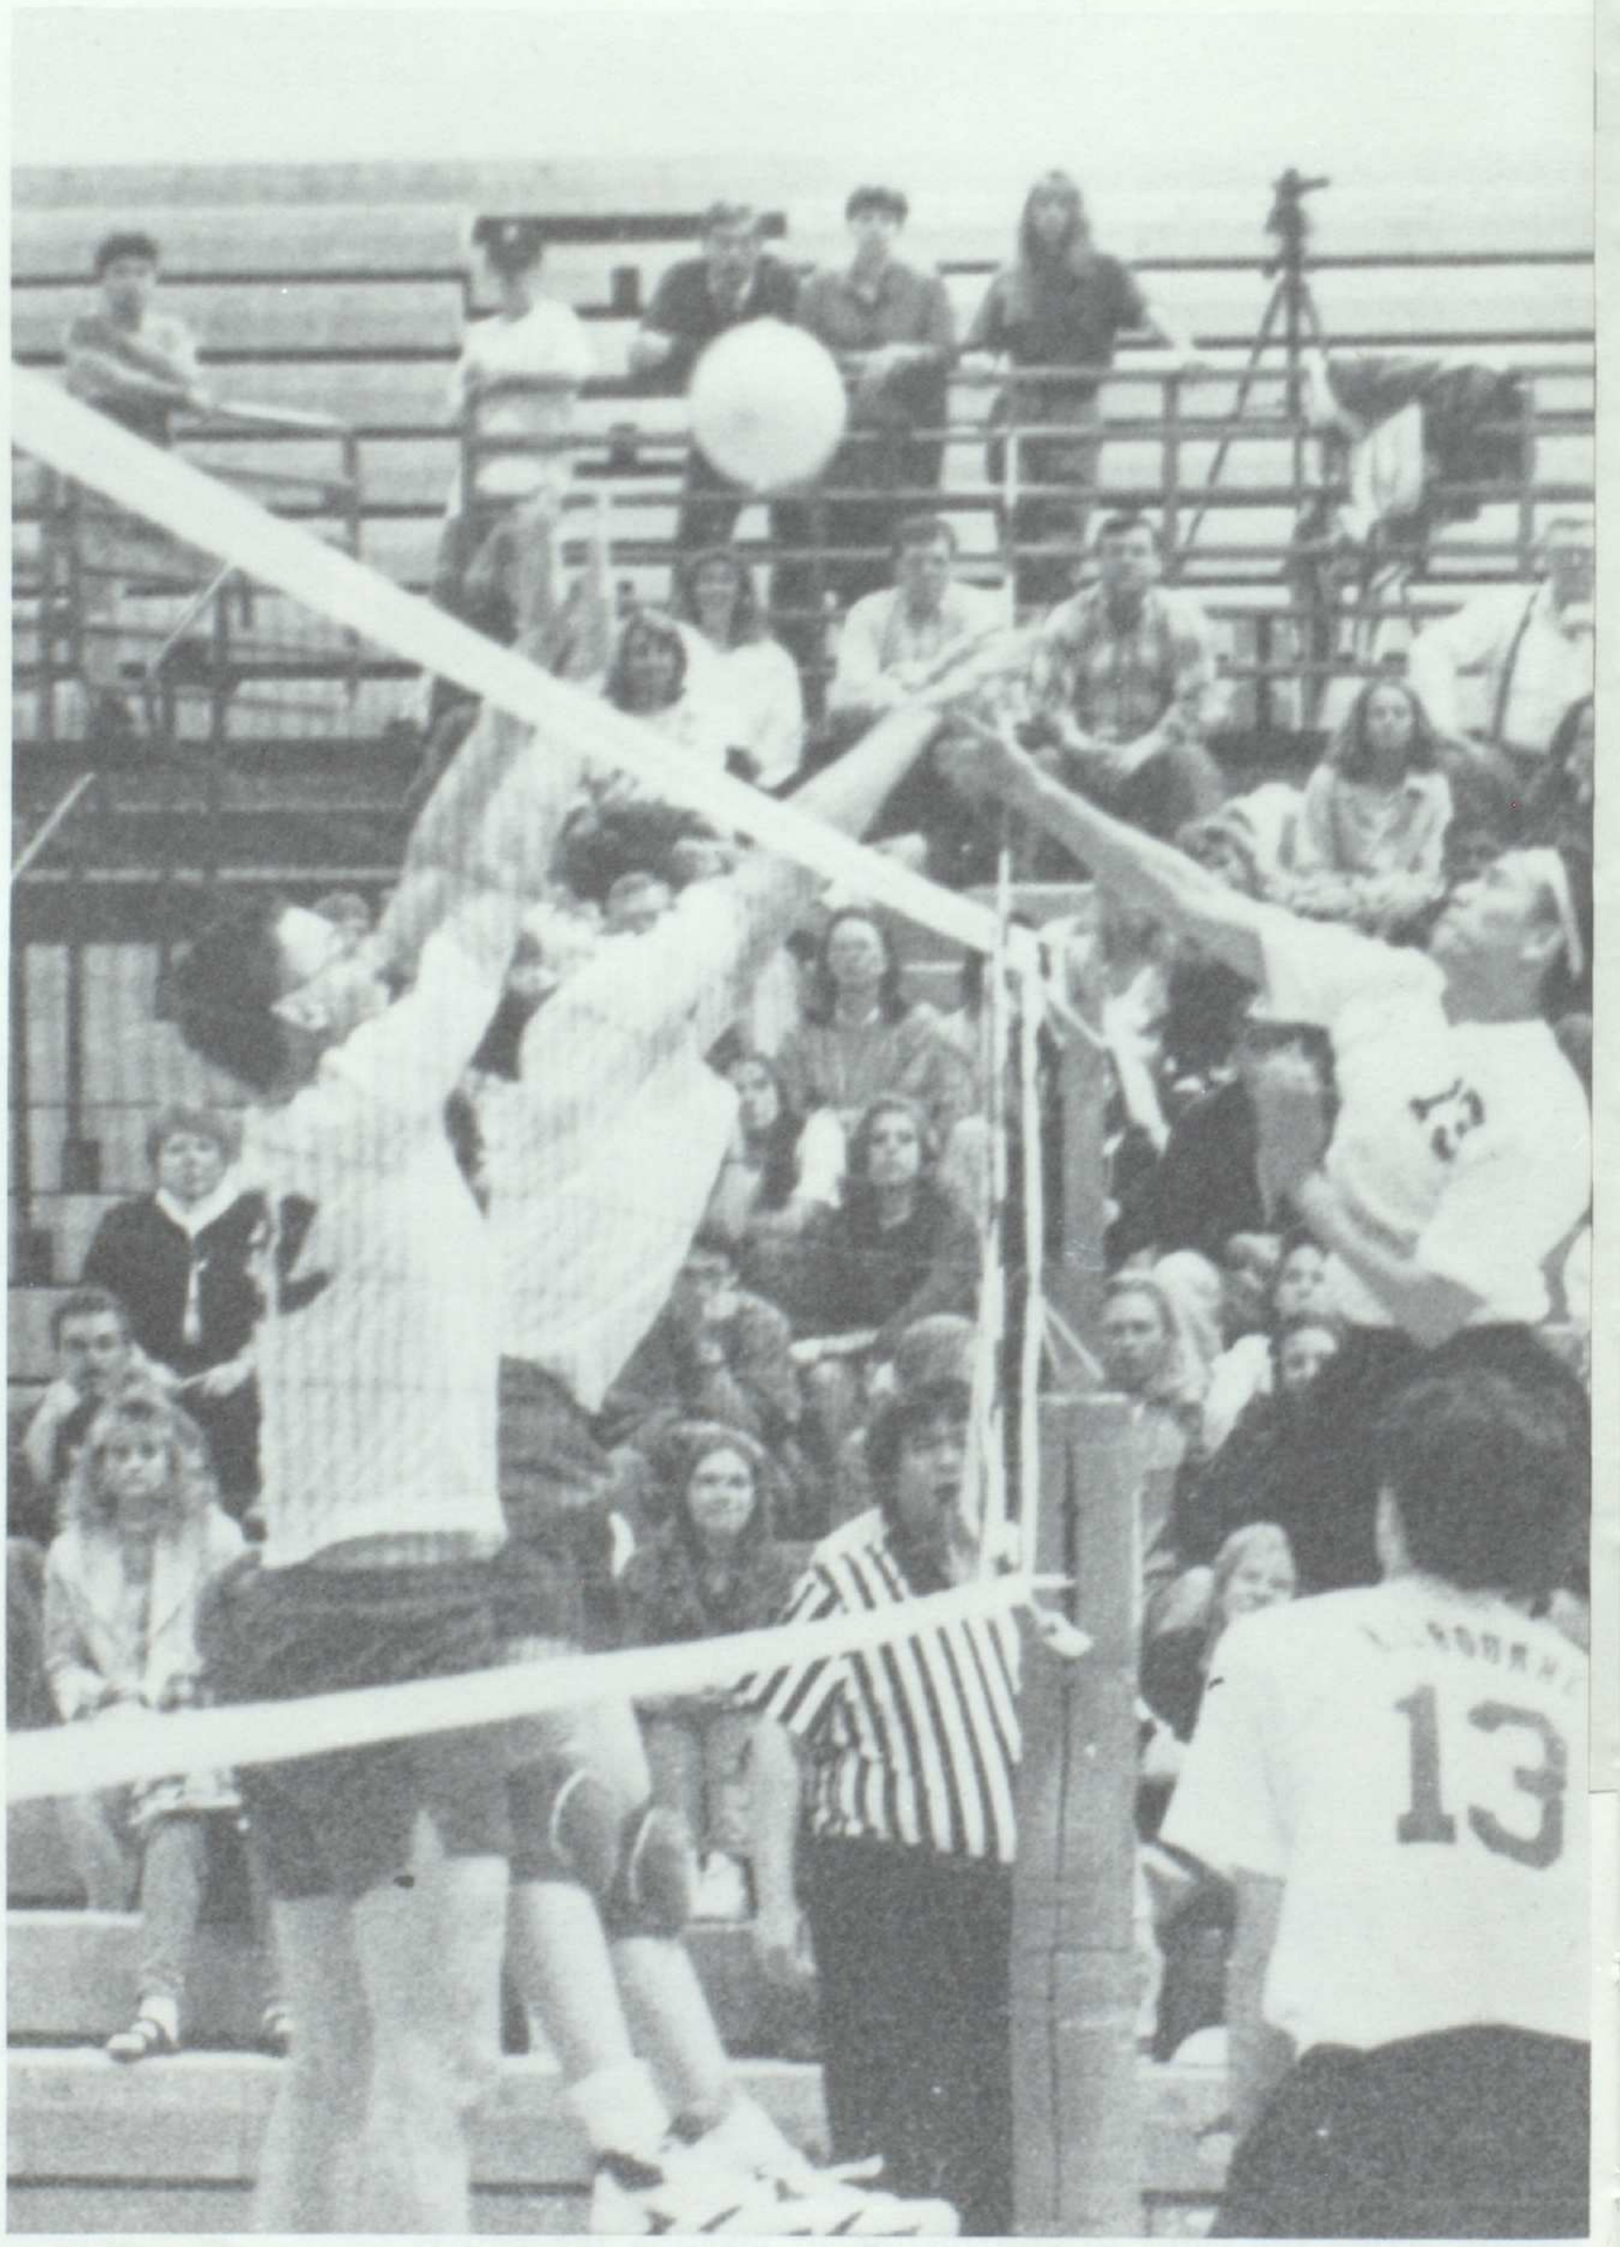

This year the men's volleyball team exceeded their high expectations by accomplishing the best record in three years of play. "I feel proud to have worked with the talented and intelligent young men on this team," explained Head Coach Glenda Rice.

In addition to the spiker's 22-4 record, the Wolves placed second in the Centerville Elete Tournament and first in the Newark Tournament. "Winning the regional title was a real morale booster for us as we approached states. It's a shame we were only one game away from playing in the state final," said junior Co-Captain Dickson Lao.

Individual awards and honors include Dickson Lao, All State Honorable Mention; Will McEachron, Offensive Award; Atsushi Suzuki, Defensive Award; and Justin Filia, the prestigious Team Award. All of the talented men of the Kilbourne volleyball team worked extemely hard for their highly respected position in their sport.

THE SECRET GARDEN

The Magic of Friendship

The first production from the of the 1993-1994 season, The Secret Garden, was a successful dramatization of the beauty of friendship and the power of imagination. This classic tale begins when, following her parents' death, Mary Lennox goes to her uncle's mansion to live. She discovers a young boy by the name of Colin, who because of his illness, is kept hidden inside the mansion and away from other children. Mary also meets Dickon who shows her a magical garden in the heart of the forest; he lets her plant the first seed of life here. Together, Mary and Dickon reveal the magic and the splendor of the garden to Colin, who in the end recovers from his illness and learns the power of imagination.

The stage crew constructed a beautiful set that showcased the fine acting. Senior Todd Rohal, who played the part of Dickon, stated,"I'm sure that those who saw the play thought it was well worth the price of the ticket."

The Secret Garden, a performance that awakened the child in all of us, was a wonderful play to open the year.

KING'S FEAST

A Performance "Fit For A King"

Dressed in elaborate costumes and gowns, the Royal Court from 'King's Feast' gathers together for a picture following their performance.

To the utter dismay of her husband, King Brock Gustafson, Queen Sarah Weatherholt realizes that she has made a mistake.

Performed at the beginning of the winter season, King's Feast, the second production of the WKHS Theater Repertory, was a tremendous success. The troupe produced the musical in the cafeteria, which had been transformed into a medieval dining hall within a matter of days. With Coats of Arms suspended from the ceiling and a pair of thrones for the King and Queen placed in the center of the commons, students enjoyed the beautiful set that had been constructed for the production during the school day. At night, however, the commons boasted Kings, Queens, Lords, and Minstrels who merrily sang and danced. Junior Heather Rebele who played the part of the Princess exclaimed, "The cast was a lot of fun, and we had a good time as long as the guys stayed out of the girls' dressing room and vice versa...." While enjoying the show, the audience feasted on a meal "fit for a King."

King's Feast is another addition to the long list of other wonderful performances the Theater Department has given us in the past.

Sing Ho For a Prince

Children's Play

It's no fun to be left out in the cold while everyone around you is having a good time. Perhaps that's why Hogal, the only fairy not invited to the royal birthday party for the princess, decides to place a curse on the entire kingdom. Under this spell, should the princess prick her finger, everyone in the castle will remain asleep until a prince awakens her with a kiss.

This year's children's play, a lively musical which enticed its audience with a superb set of acting talent and simple humor was a complete success. Two casts performed this musical version of the fairy tale, Sleeping Beauty. Junior Sheri Schneider, who played the part of the princess stated, "I really enjoyed being a part of this play. It was very fun to perform, and I think that everyone who saw it laughed and enjoyed it as well."

The clever mix of humor, music, and fun made the children's play one that entertained not only the younger audiences, but students and adults of all ages.

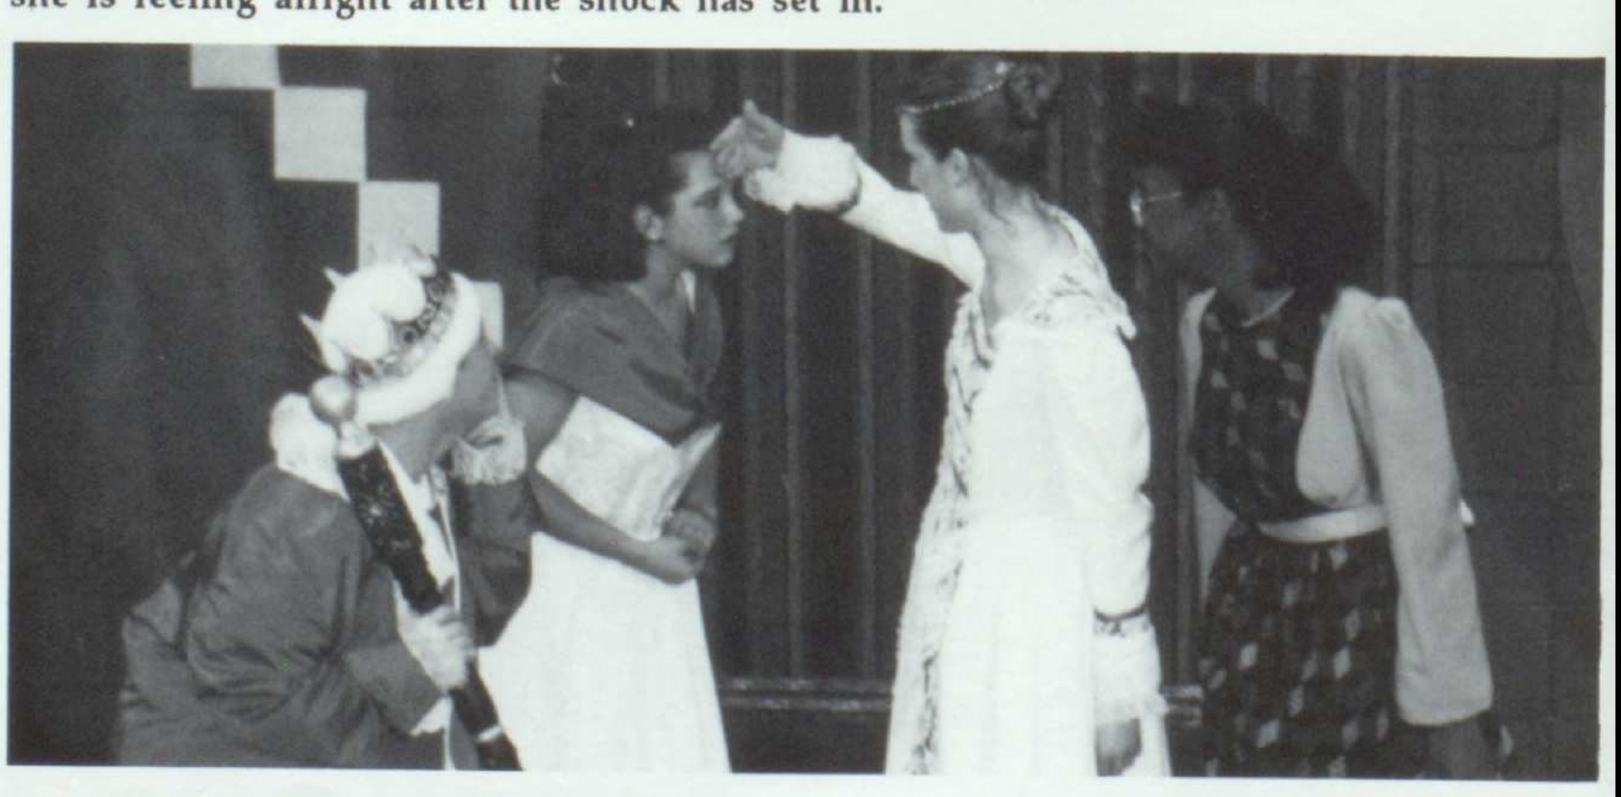

By Amy Calhoon

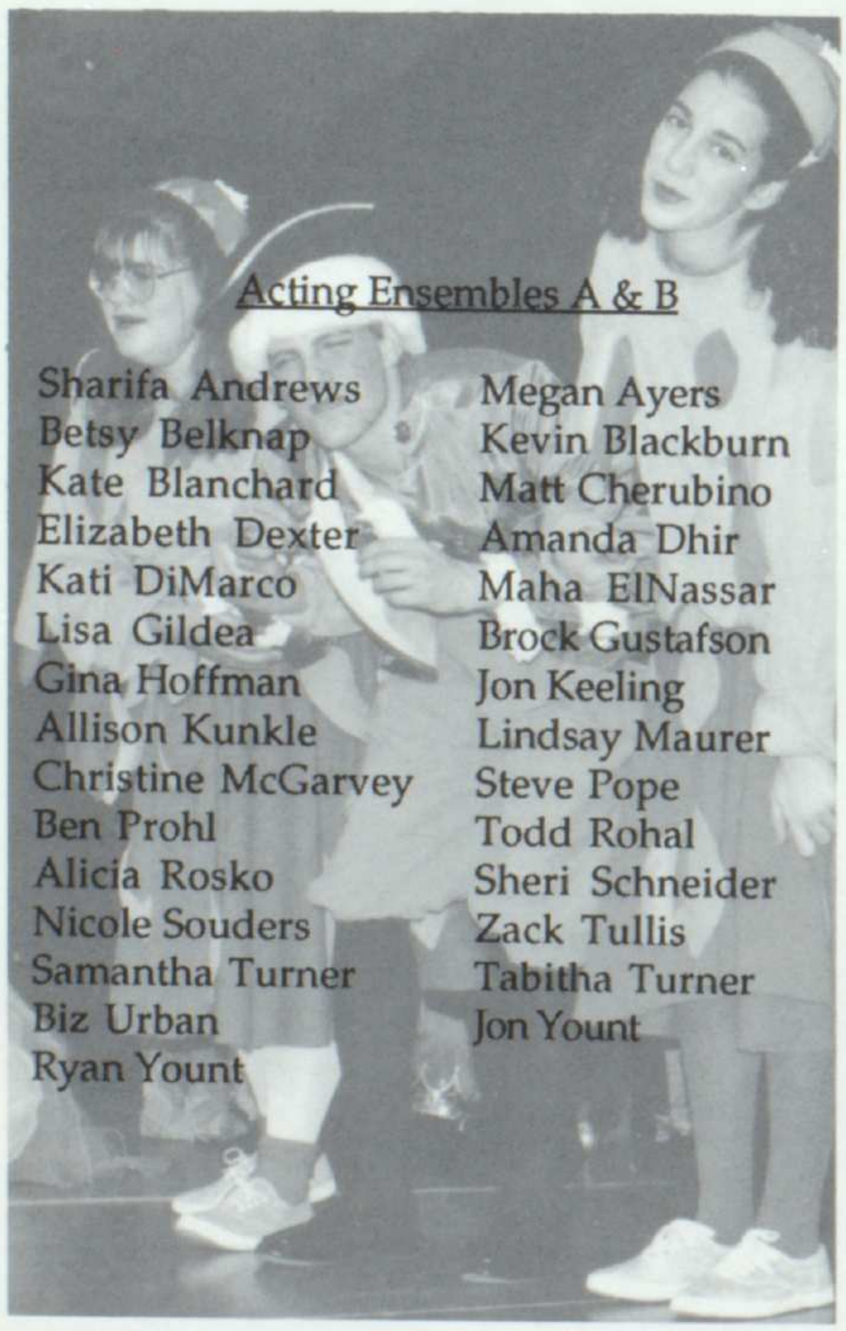

"You mean to tell me that you weren't invited to the princess' birthday party?" asks good fairy Samantha Turner of her evil counterpart, Hogal, played by Lisa Gildea who doesn't seem too happy about the entire situation.

King Jon Keeling wonders if his daughter, princess Sheri Schneider, will survive the evil spell that has been cast upon her as her mother, Queen Alicia Rosko, makes sure she is feeling alright after the shock has set in.

Cast B of the children's play shows signs of joy after the princess has been awakened by a kiss.

SPOON RIVER ANTHOLOGY

A Glimpse at the Past

The cast of Spoon River stands somber and upright as the spotlight focuses upon the group as a whole during Act Two.

Kilbourne's Theater Repertory's last production was Edgar Lee Master's Spoon River Anthology. This particular drama's script includes a long list of characters whose lives are intertwined. "Spoon River really didn't have a plot, although the way that the characters were linked enabled the audience to follow what was going on," stated actor Allison Walker who played the parts of Margaret Fuller Slack in Act One and Lois Spears in Act Two. Throughout each act, the characters reflected upon their own lives after they had died. The play had a chilling effect upon the audience as the spotlight moved from one character to the other as each remembered his or her past life.

With its long list of diverse characters and dramatic storyline, Spoon River Anthology was a superb production with which to close the 1994 season.

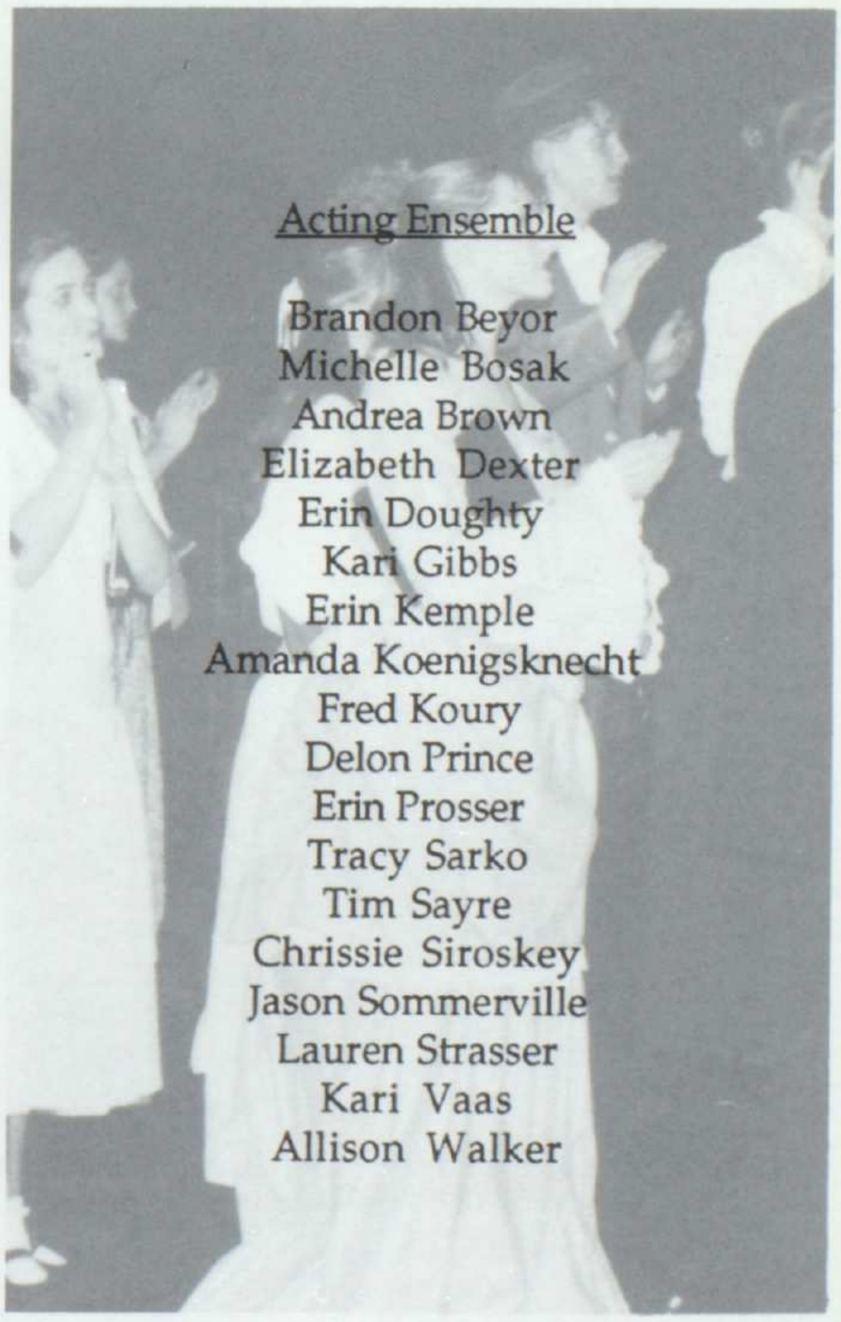

By Amy Calhoon

Senior Tim Sayre makes a sweeping gesture as he recalls an event from his past as he plays the role of Elijah Browning.

GOLDEN GIRLS

"Even when we aren't dancing, we still have that quality showmanship," say juniors Lisa Gawronski, Rachel Dick, and Emily Waggoner.

Since the opening of WKHS, one team has achieved many goals and set high standards of excellence for our school. They were named state runner up in 1992 and came back with a vengance in 1993 to sweep the state and recieve four titles. A conquering of this kind had never happened before. However, their coach felt the group was capable of more so she took her team officers to Universal Dance Association camp in July of 1993 where they qualified for national competition. After months of grueling 3-6 hour daily practices, the team flew to Orlando, Florida. Again, they set a record by being the first new team of national calibur to make it into the finals. They paced fifth in the nation and came home to offer tough competition to the teams in Ohio. They defended their titles with back to back state championships in 3 of 4 categories with a second place finish in the fourth. It is plain to see that the Worthington District Dance Team has had endless success.

When asked what the team attributes its success to, Coach Andrea VanSickle replied by saying, "I don't really think there is only one thing to which we owe our success. The girls are full of determination, and they have so much desire to be the best. Their tremendous amount of respect makes them all give 110% because no one wants to let another member down." She added, "Other teams are envious of the girls' talent which they like. It drives them even harder to be the best." The members agree that drive, determination, and talent are all traits leading to their success, but they also recognize another reason why they win so much, their coach. "Without her knowledge, sacrifice and love, this would all be just a dream," said senior officer Kathryn Markowsky. "She has done so much for us, and we love her for that."

Every year the team has improved. They have come from second best to total domination. When asked what the upcoming years hold for the team, VanSickle simply said, "We'll keep our heads up, work together and pray for the best."

Is it me or are the guys, Eric Strickland and Matt White more eager to take a picture than Gray Sutherland-Rice?

I wonder what has these juniors, Sharifa Andrews, Zeliha Alasyali and Ali Al Shahal, glued to the Television. It must Mrs. Krebs home movies of Texas. They are always a viewing treat.

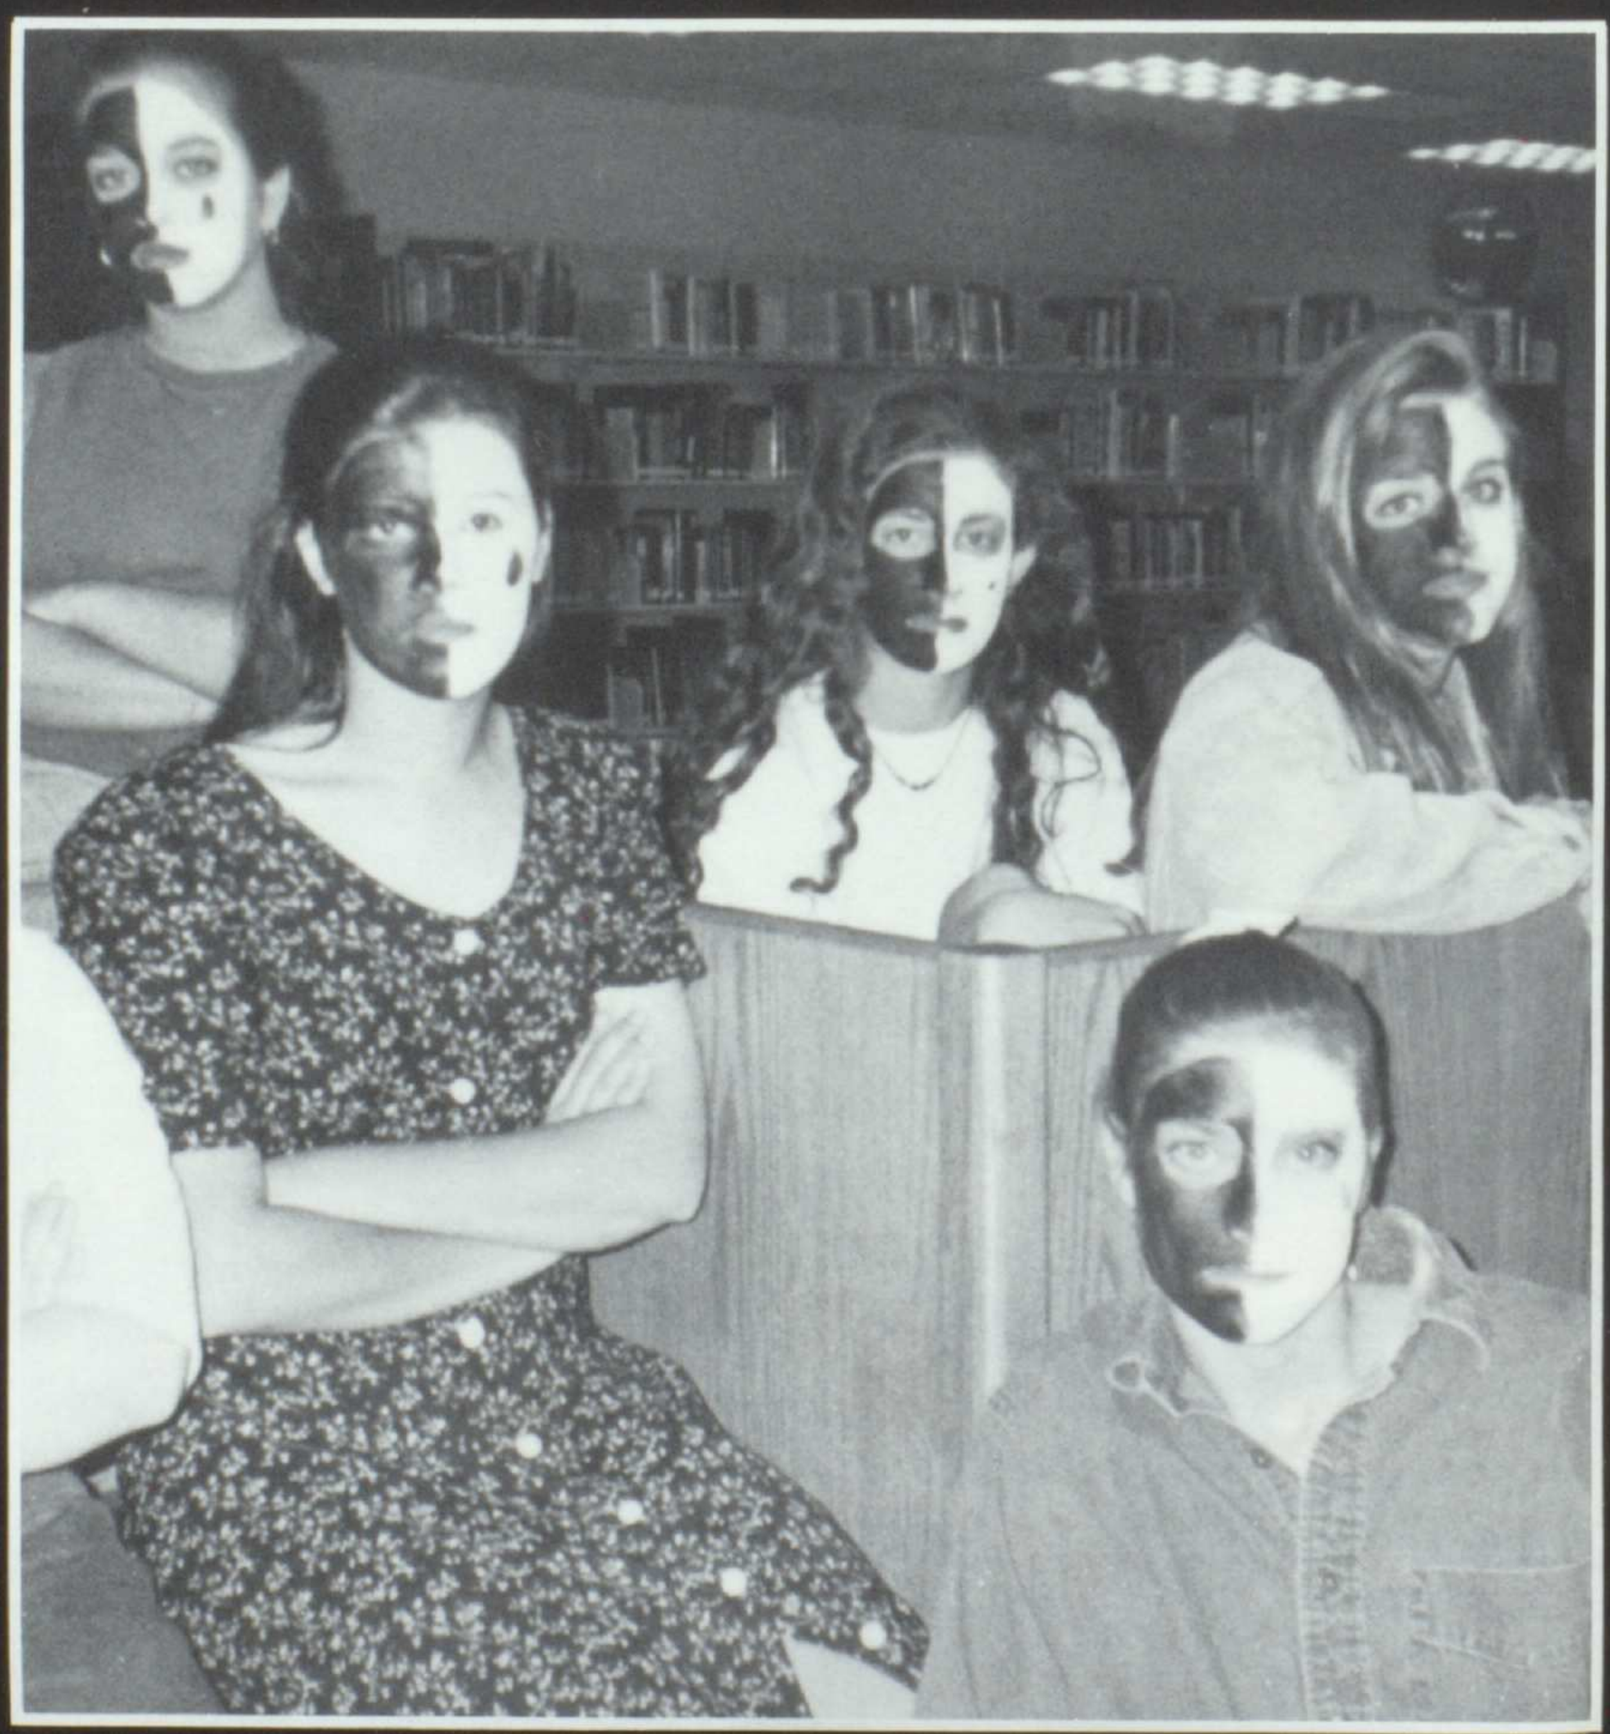

Showing their school spirit are Brock Gustafson, Chris Hoffman, Lobo, Andy Vermillion, Katie Grossman, Jenny Hanwell and Sarah Waite as they ride the spirit bus to an away football game. Now that's dedication.

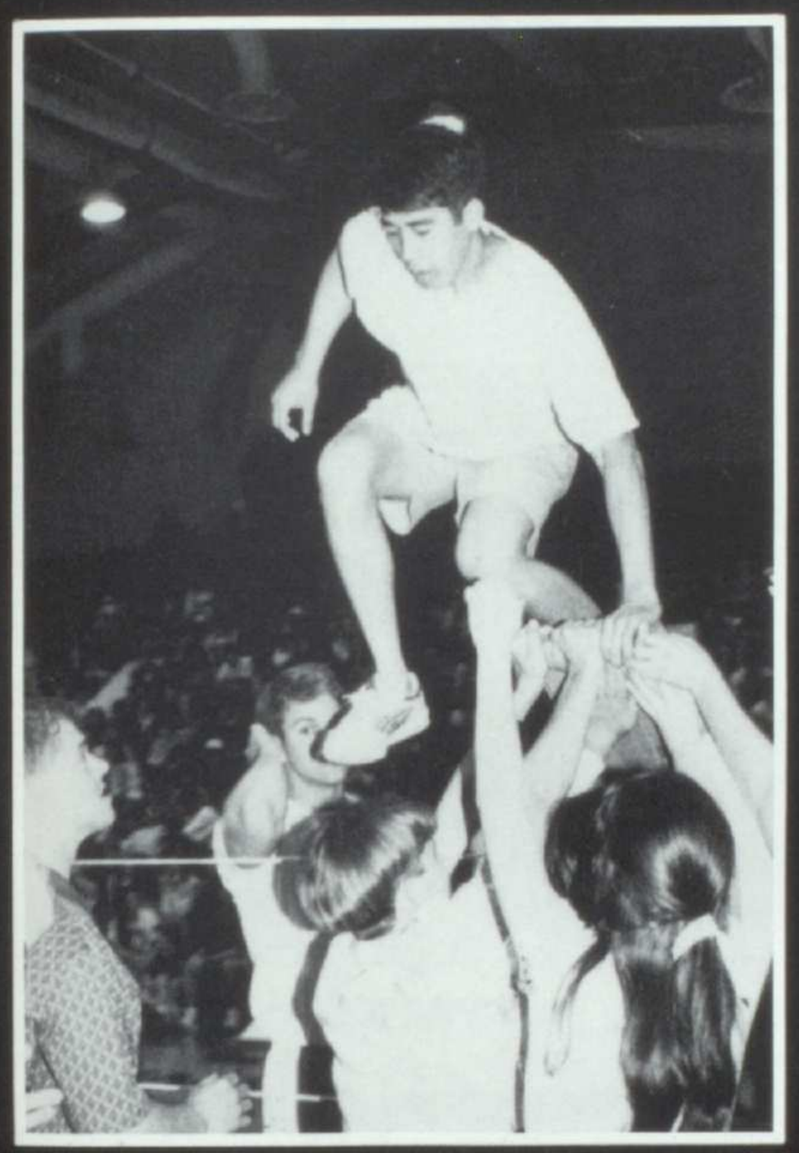

"Am I not not the cutest freshman you have ever seen!" exclaims Jenna Marquis, as Charolette Sidor and Penney Southard just stand by and laugh.

Promoting the anti-drinking and driving campaign are a group of S.A.D.D. members with their faces painted.

Doing the polka at a football game are sophomores Kelly Peck, Erin Reichle, and Julie Russelo.

Leaping over the electric fence into the arms of fellow classmates is junior Tom Tieu.

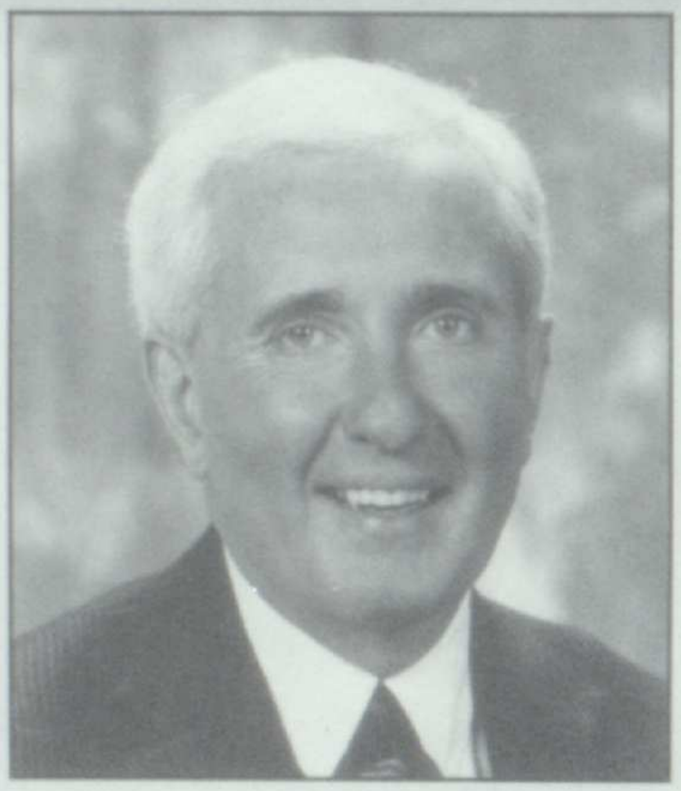

Dancing the night away and having a ball are juniors Amanda Bishop, Megan Senecal, Kate Marsh, Mica Luedeke, and Sherry Snider, swinging at the bonfire. They have moves only second to the number one rapper/dancer... Stevie J.

Often times I think to myself, "How did I get to be so good-looking?" Well, the answer to that question is "Wake up, senior Joe Cicero, you ain't the man!"

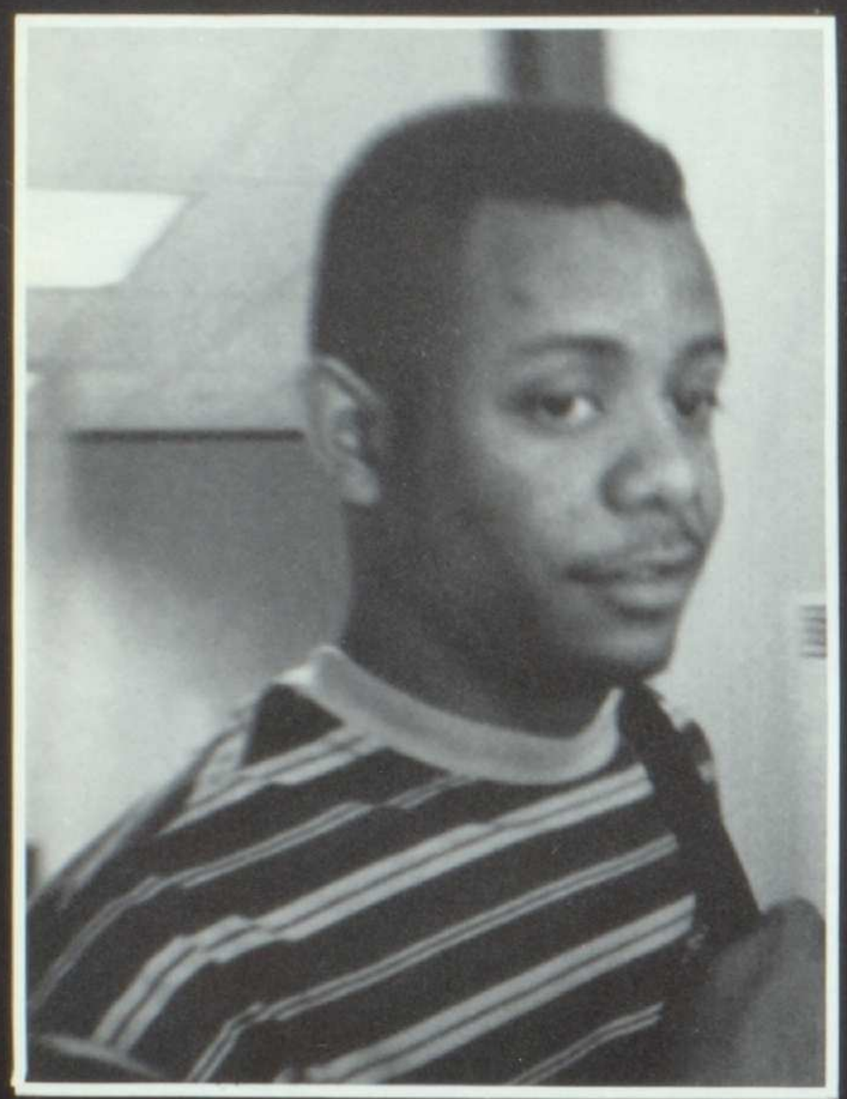

Senior Micki Tumbry just got back from the dentist and found out she had no cavaties. So the first thing she does when she gets back to school is sit down to lunch with a nice big smile.

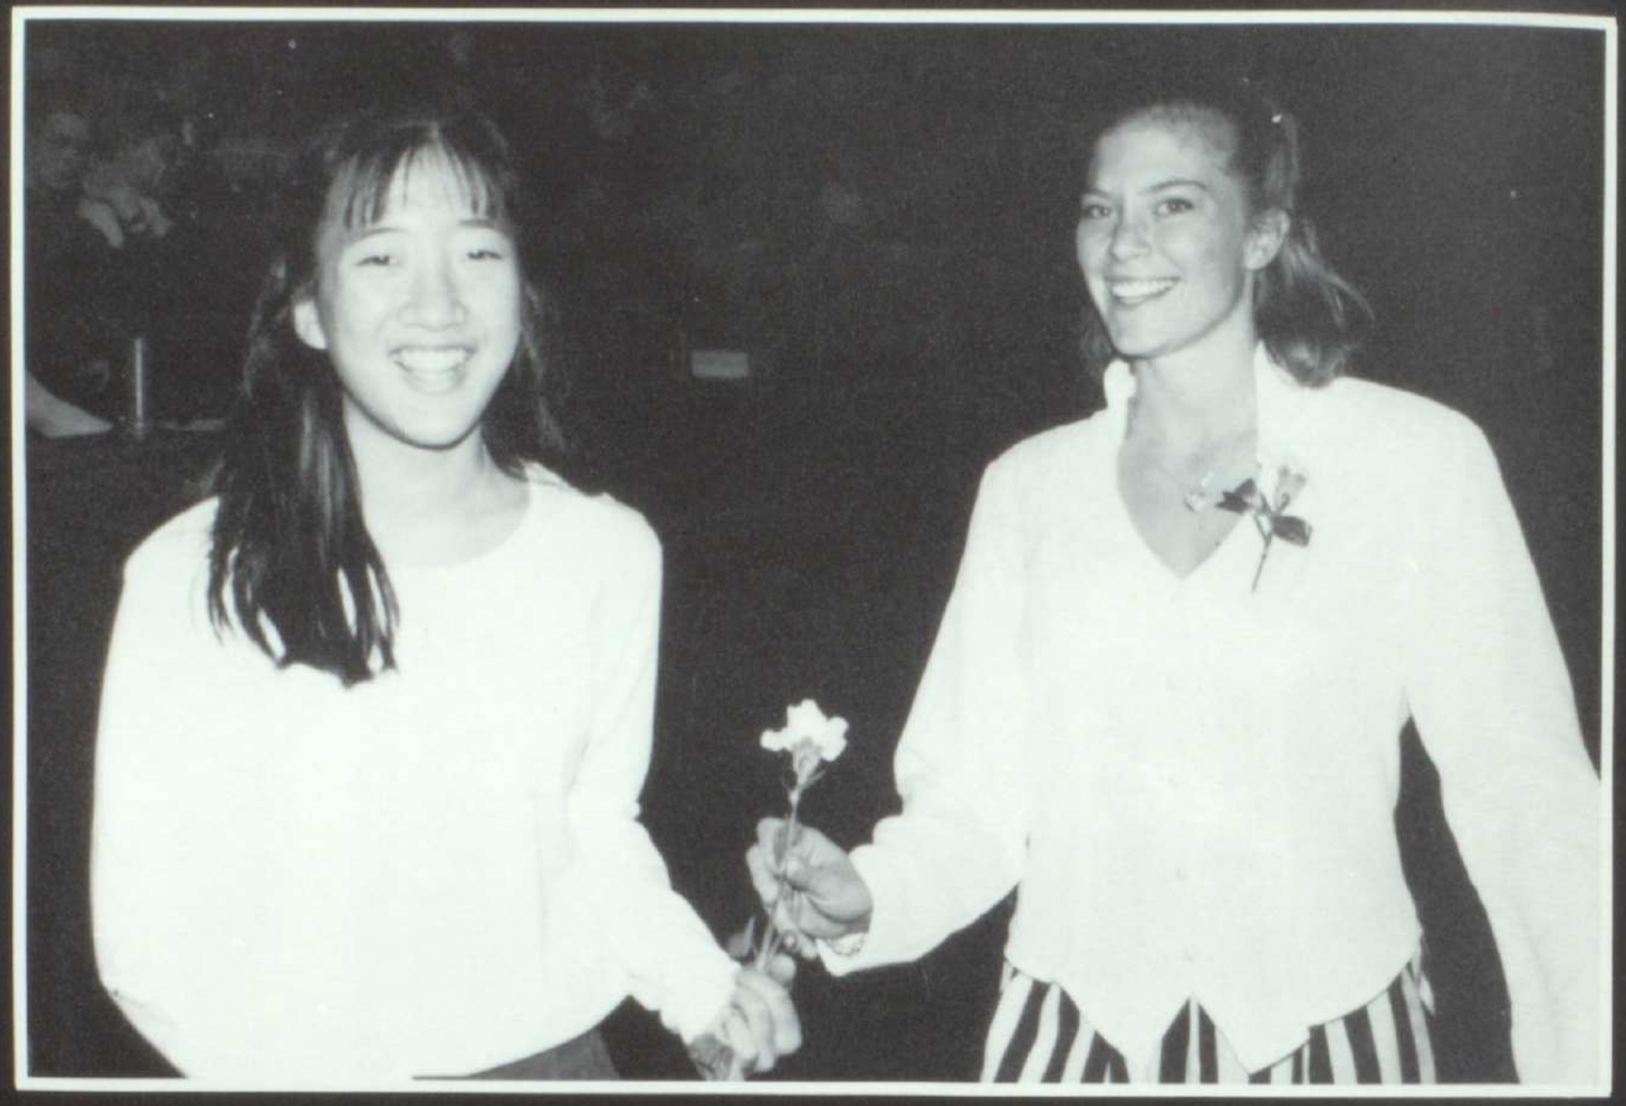

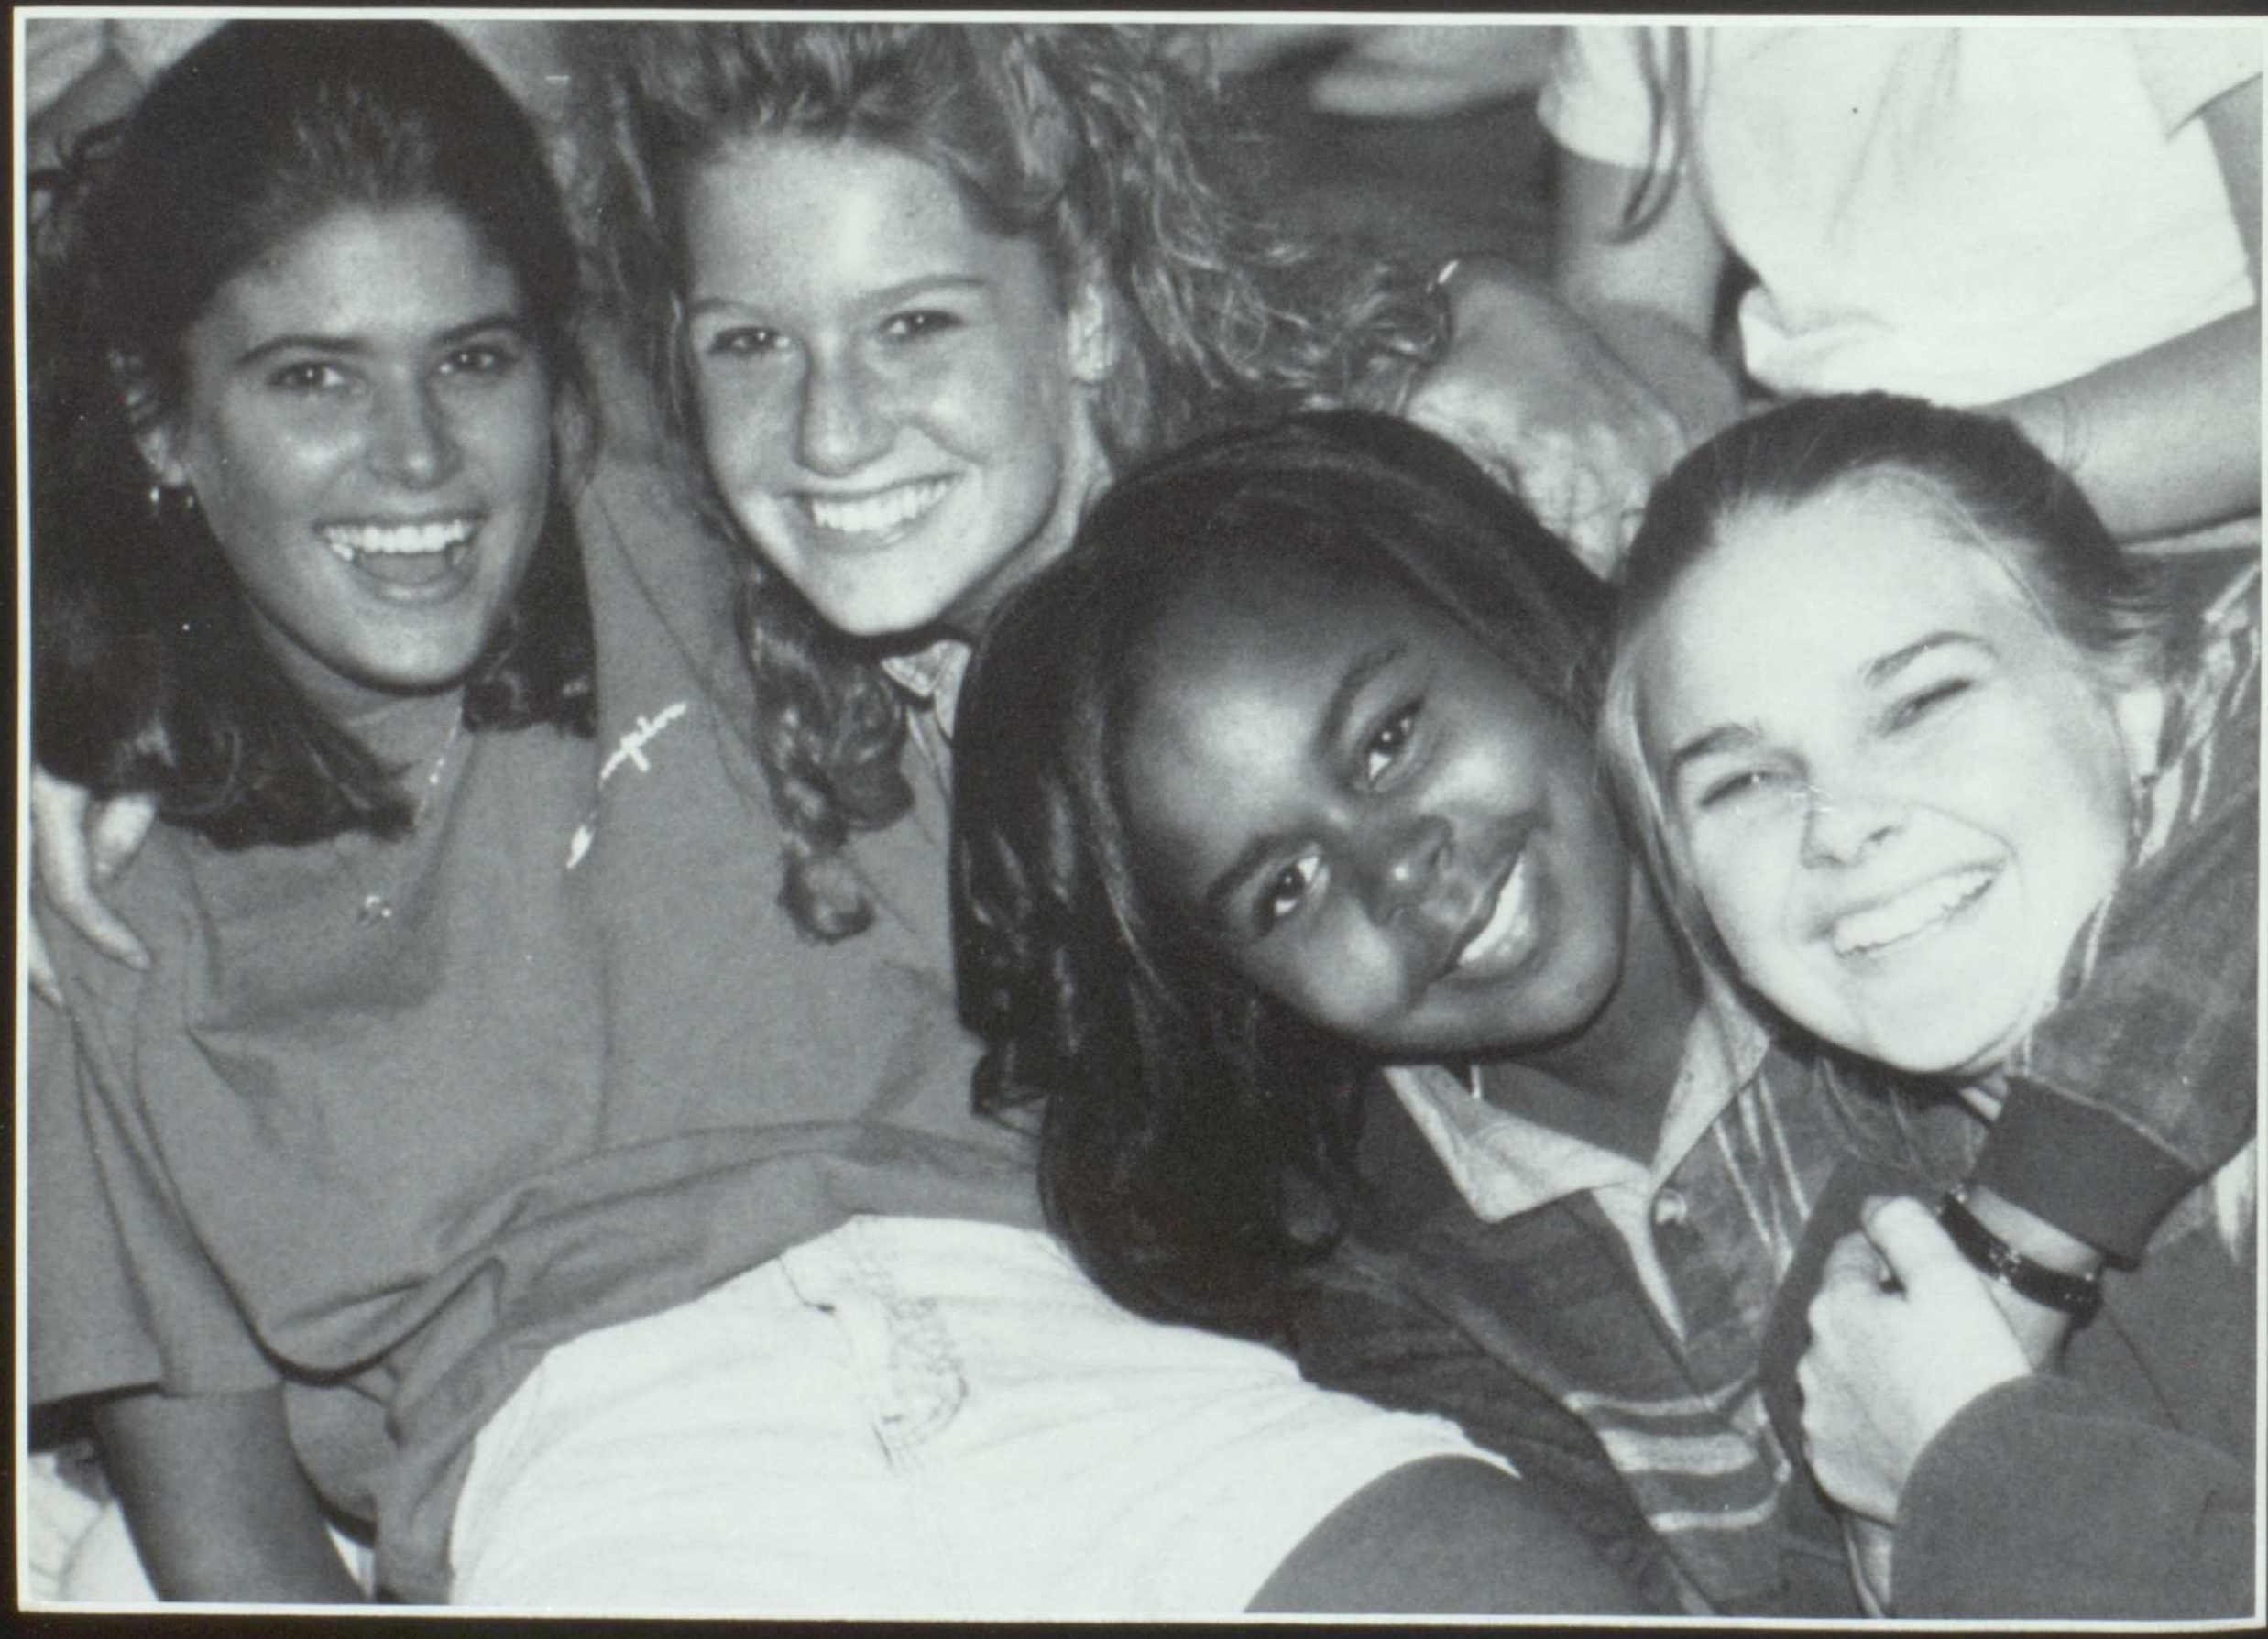

Who would have ever thought the man at the top would have graduated? As a matter of fact who would have thought half of them would have graduated? Congrats Filia, T-Layne, Beymer, Kahoun, Speith, Miller, Bird, Bach, Niess, Gagle/Frost, Ash, Min, and Rieser. You boys have fun doing what you do. Later.

"People keep accusing me of passing gas, but I don't stink," explains senior Jerome Revish who is pleading his innocense.

Senior Michelle Grey hands junior Kay Chen her flower for just being inducted to the National Honor Society. What the nice thing was, the whole school got to share in the celebration.

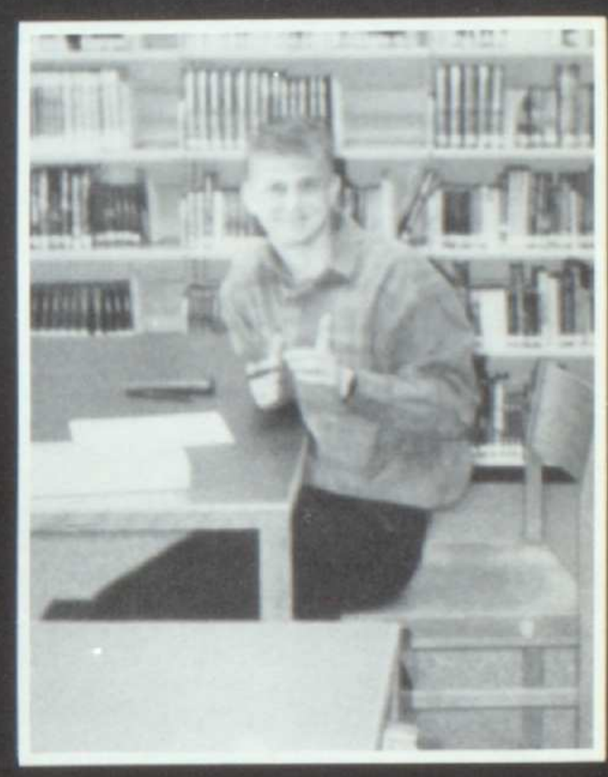

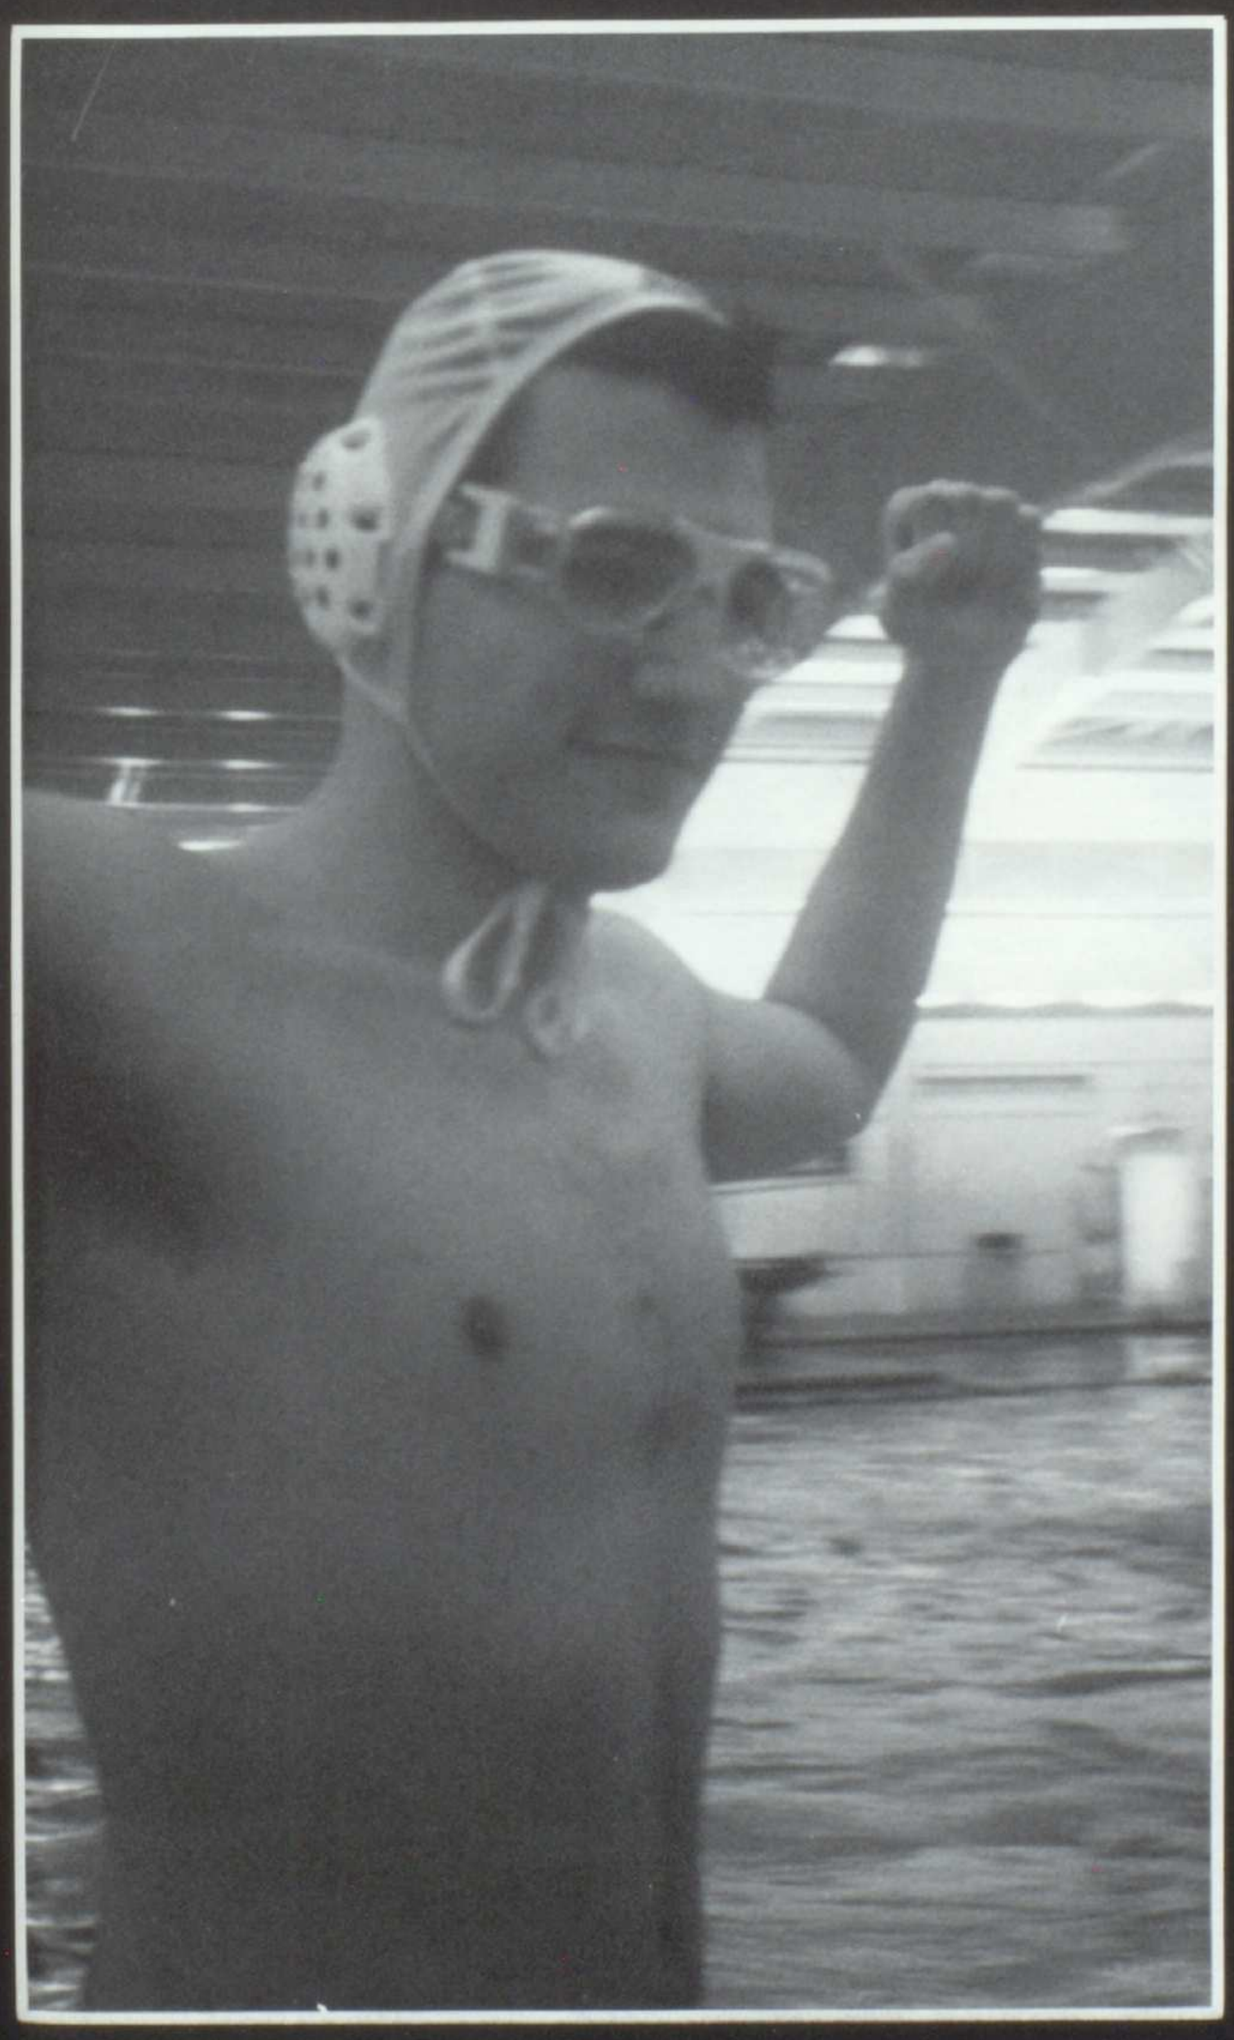

Having a great time at the Final Fling are Kara Battin, Heather Jacobson, Kelley Daniel, and Melissa Barnes.

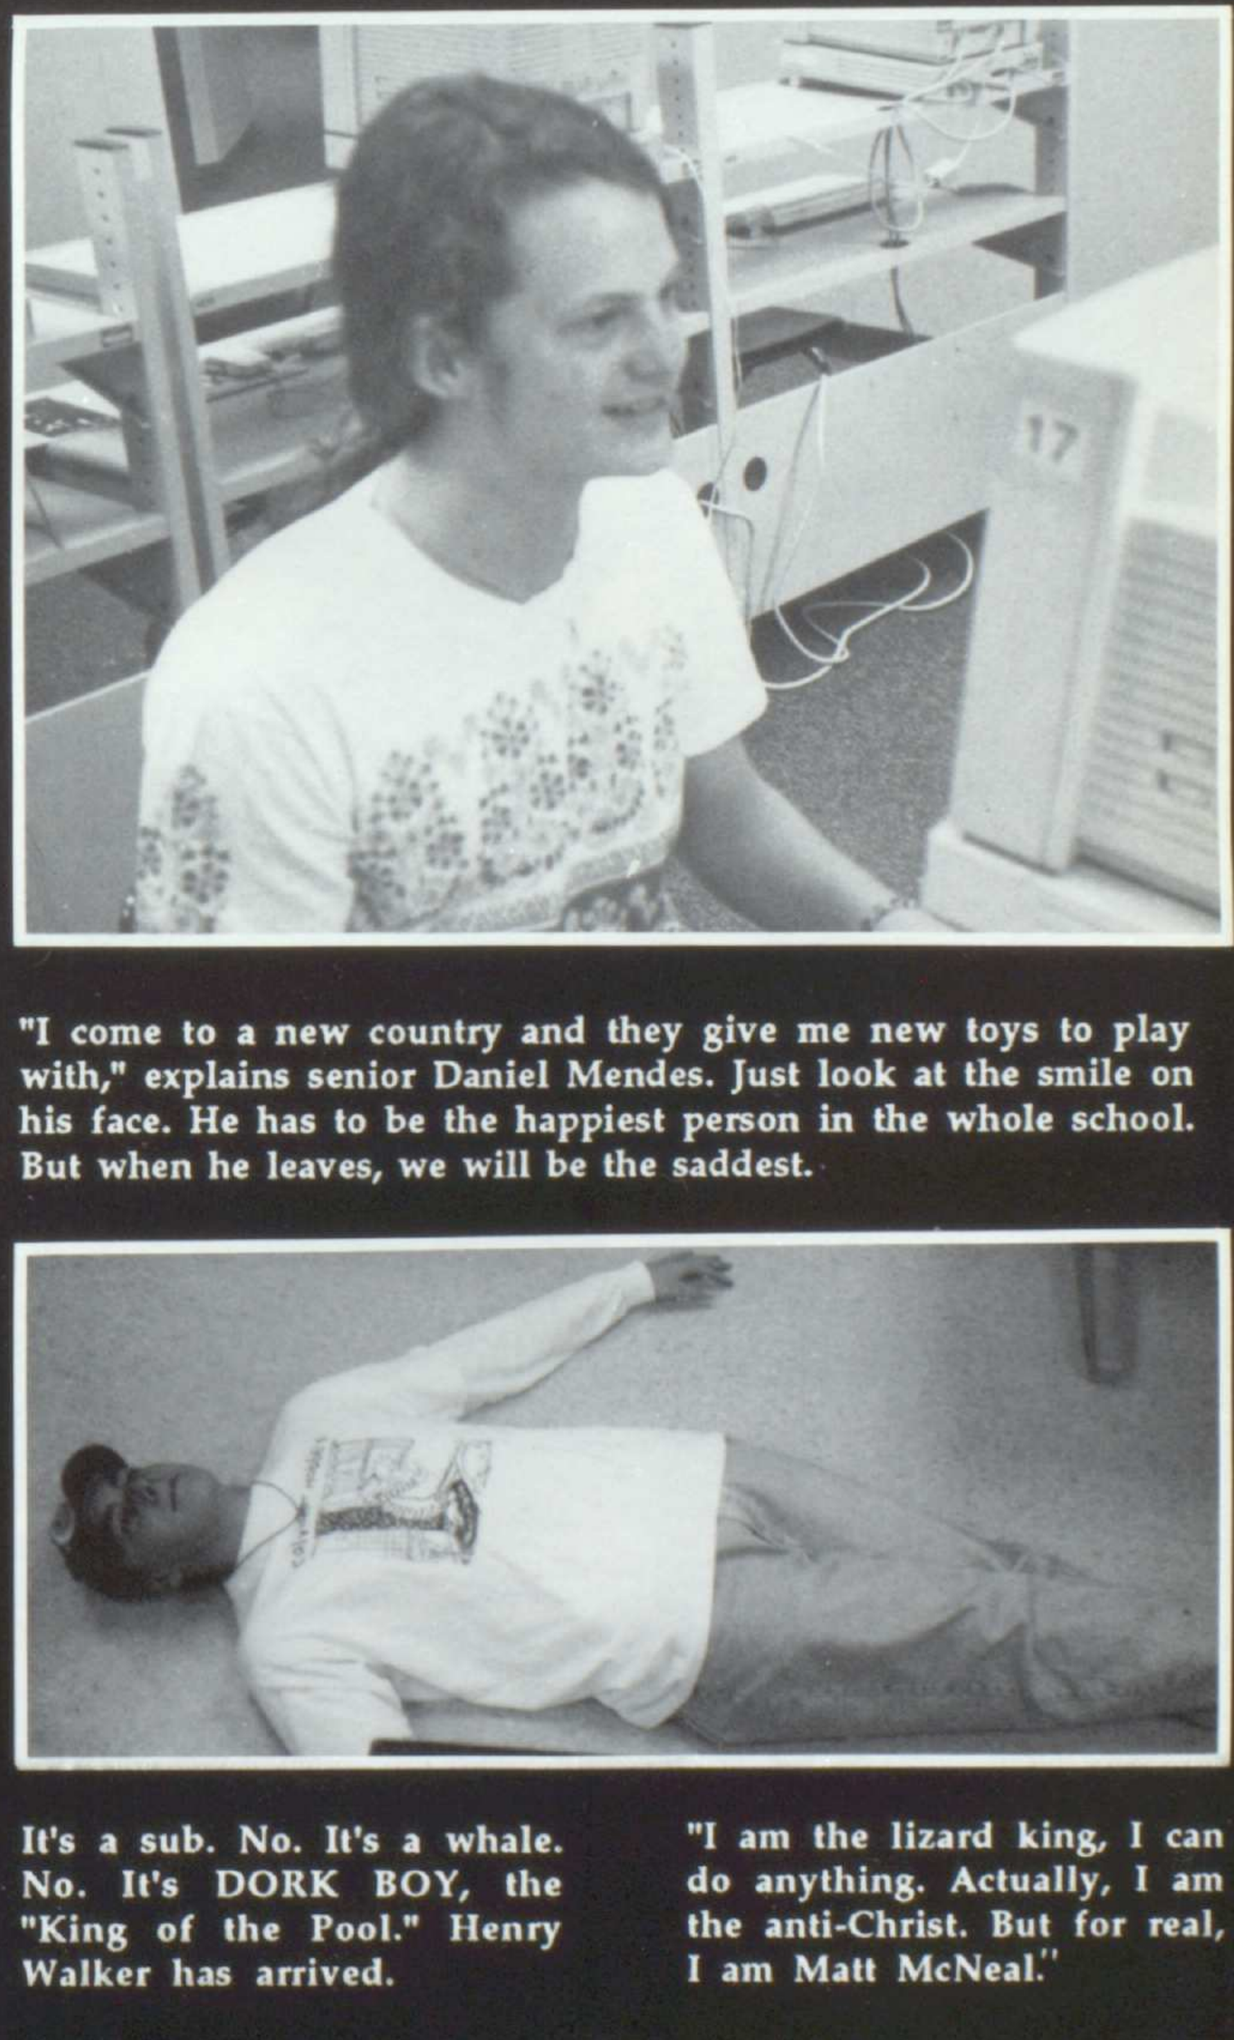

Matt Garrett looks to be planning something that Brock Schmaltz would love to do, but Jeremy Fink and Pete Rothermel won't be tempted.

I was just walking by when senior Paul Wojciechowski told me to take his picture.

"I come to a new country and they give me new toys to play with," explains senior Daniel Mendes. Just look at the smile on his face. He has to be the happiest person in the whole school. But when he leaves, we will be the saddest.

It's a sub. No. It's a whale. No. It's DORK BOY, the "King of the Pool." Henry Walker has arrived.

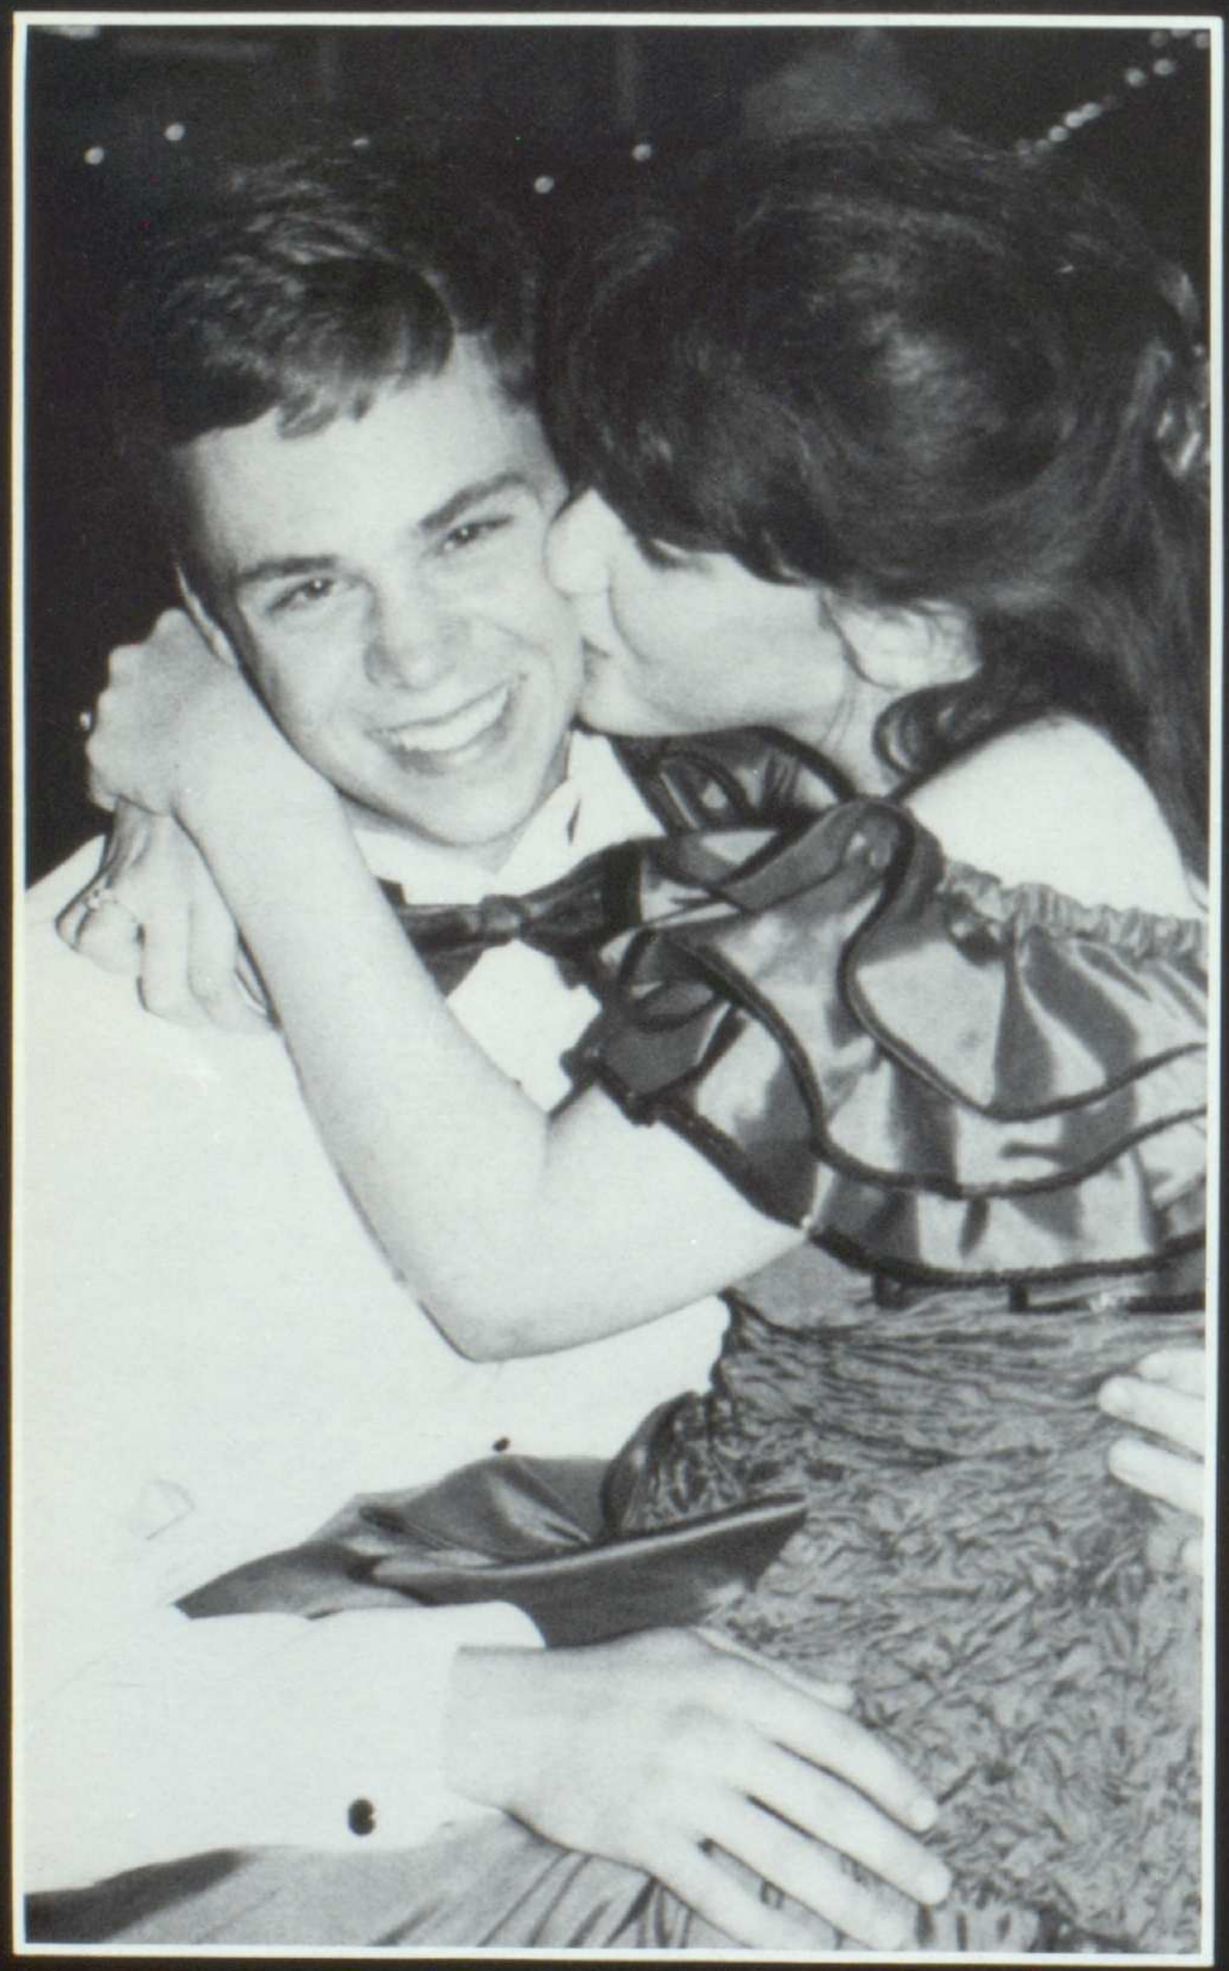

"I am the lizard king, I can do anything. Actually, I am the anti-Christ. But for real, I am Matt McNeal."

Kazuha Nakahara and her mother take time out of their busy graduation schedule to get their picture taken. Now, I know where Kazuha gets her beautiful smile.

Getting kissed by Mandy Dutko is the one and only Derk Trimarche. He is such a mack.

Posing for their picture are Josh Doughty and Courtney George. They are the cutest couple in the school, next to Stevie J. and his grandmother.

About to receive his diploma, Jeff Dever is thinking about how much money he's going to make.

Tracy Rowland steps into the first day of the rest of her life after receiving her diploma.

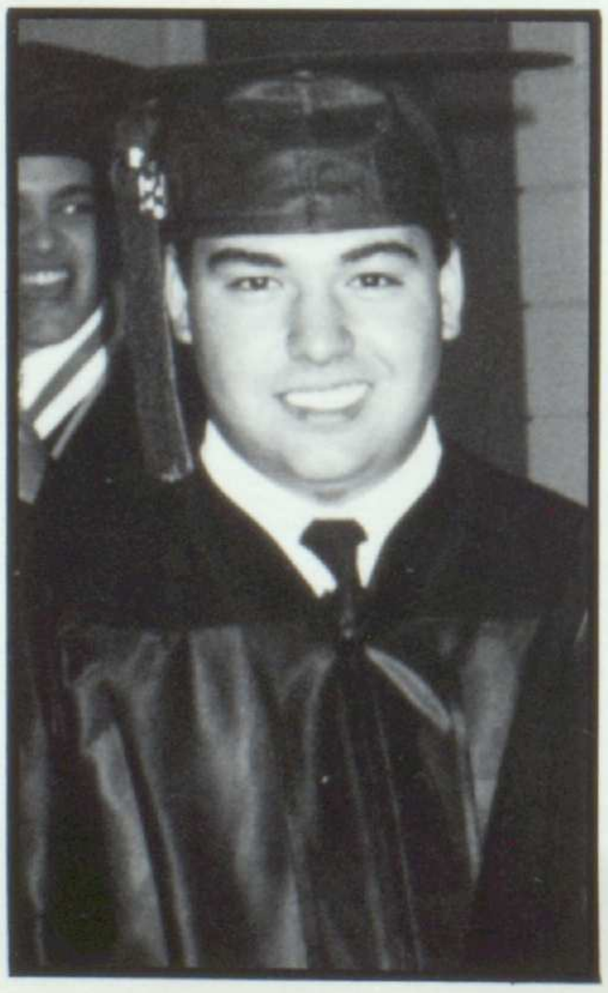

"Is it time to throw our caps yet?" asks Craig Nye. "After we put the tassle on the other side," answers Sheryl Smith.

"I'm so glad to be done with school!" says Chris Gillett flashing his suave smile.

Alma Matter

As we walk the path of life
Throughout the years to come,
We'll sing this song in honor of
Our dear old Worthington.
Across the fields and through the hills
This song will echo clear,
Singing to our Alma Mater
Which we hold so dear.
Worthington Kilbourne High!
